

Michael Louis Scott's Internet Notes

June 1997 to Date

Greenwich, Connecticut USA Site: <http://mikelouisscott.com/>
California site <http://geocities.com/mikelscott/>

Email: mikescot@optonline.net

June 1997 Notes:

Note 06/25/97: I recommend using the IBM dialer with IBM.net instead of the Win 95 TCP/IP dialer alone, which the IBM dialer works with, because on my system the Network seems to freeze after a period of time which it does not do if one uses the IBM dialer. Of course the IBM dialer uses more system resources.

Note 06/25/97: I recommend using the IBM dialer with IBM.net instead of the Win 95 TCP/IP dialer alone, which the IBM dialer works with, because on my system the Network seems to freeze after a period of time which it does not do if one uses the IBM dialer. Of course the IBM dialer uses more systems resources.

Note 6/25/97: NYNEX made a service call yesterday and said my telephone lines in my apartment were fine. They did redirect my service to a different connection box, which seems to have improved service. No problems so far this morning. They said they would discontinue the early morning line tests.

Note 6/21/97: On following message, NYNEX advises me they perform a line test in the early AM every day. When I am online I will be disconnected. When I reconnect and they reperform the line test again until successfully completed, I will be disconnected again, thus setting up a redundant annoyance until the line test successfully completes. That is NYNEX's explanation for the problem listed below.

6/20/97 Internet Access in Greenwich, Connecticut from Byram, Connecticut Via NYNEX telephone exchange in Greenwich to Stamford, Connecticut SNET exchange or NYNEX telephone exchange in White Plains, New York or Armonk, New York has system problems possibly due to heavy usage, or internal industrial espionage. I have experienced continual cut offs in the morning hours from after midnight to 7 AM for the last six months. They are caused by irregular line noise possibly caused by internal telephone system failures or industrial espionage. Since I am not a telephone technician it is all theory. However, repeated disconnects during the morning hours when the system is not heavily used lead me to believe it is more than telephone system failure. Nothing in Scott's directory is classified or secret, so I advise anyone transmitting sensitive information over the Greenwich, Connecticut telephone system to possibly consult with their internal security to see if it is system malfunctions or industrial espionage, or possibly teenage hackers who are too smart for their own good. Believe it or not the busiest category at Scott's site has become "Hacks and Cracks" up to 300 hits a day, so possibly some young hackers have figured out how to hack into our systems and disrupt normal use of the internet. It is all theory, but I have no proof other than irregular audible telephone line noise that the IBM.NET technician also heard and NYNEX claims does not exist. Thus either someone has the capability of tapping into my system telephone "bugging" at various intervals or there is a gopher gnawing at the telephone line. Who Knows ? However, if it happens to a simple home user like myself, I suspect that more serious corporate users might have certain security considerations that they might want to consider.

Note 06/06/97: I have had internet access connection access problems since Christmas Time. The symptoms were that the connection would freeze up or disconnect. I was able to fix the problem by selecting "Control Panel", "Networking". Under "Networking" I removed "Client for Microsoft Networks", "Dialer", and "TCP/IP". I then rebooted and selected "Control Panel", "Networking"; and reinstalled "Client for Microsoft Networks", "Dialer", and "TCP/IP". When prompted to insert Win95 disks, I installed the files again, however I "did not keep the newer files", but overwrote the newer files with the original files from the Win95 disks. The newer files that I overwrote with the original files were:

mapi32.dll

rpctcl.dll

secur32.dll

winsoc.dll

ndis.vxd vredir.vxd

vdhcp.386

vip.386

vnbt.386

vtcp.386

vtdi.386

Those eleven files were replaced with the original files from the Win95 installation disks, by selecting "NO" when prompted to keep newer files. The networking problem that this fixed for me might have possibly been caused in December when I happen to log onto the "Chaos Computer Club" in Germany. However, I also had installed the MS "winsoc.dll" update, MS "TCP/IP Dialer" update, plus numerous other betas and updates. The system is back running fine, so if you are having internet access speed slowdowns or disconnects, you might think that it might be possibly the networking system that is corrupted by one of the various previous mentioned files.

Note 06/05/97: If You Have Problems Connecting To Your ISP, Particularly IBM.NET; IBM Suggests Deleting Your Network Components From Windows 95 Network Window and Reinstalling Them, It Seems To Work for Me.

Note 06/01/97: My internet access worked poorly recently because I had the TCP setting in Networking set to "Windows Logon" instead of "Network Logon". I suggest looking at the link below if you use IBM.NET.

IBM.NET Windows 95 Dial-up Networking (DUN) PPP Setup July 1997 Notes:

Note 07/31/97: Eureka, I might have finally fixed the problem I have been having with my computer system since December 1996. I finally figured out the copy of "himem.sys" in my "C:\Windows" directory was defective. Although Win95 has continually loaded properly, "himem.sys" was not loading properly. I finally determined the problem by pressing "F8" when booting Win95, and watching each driver load with the option of selecting each driver to verify. I corrected the problem by extracting the "himem.sys" from my Win95 disks and overwriting the buggy one. One can also check if your version loads properly by using the bootable startup disk to see if it is working providing the version of "himem.sys" system on the bootable startup disk is the same as in the "C:\Windows" directory. Remember the "himem.sys" was corrupted causing the problem. The file date and bytes were the same as the original installation file. I don't know what caused the corruption of the file, whether a system problem or some sinister web site I had perhaps visited back in December 1996. Remember I did stop by the "Chaos Computer Club" in Germany about that time. After a half hour of testing the system seems to be back up to snuff, the internet is working properly.

Note 07/31/97: IBM Dialer still freezing, and when I reconnect it refuses to authenticated until I reboot. I have reinstalled Network system half dozen times to no avail. I suppose I will have to live with hidden gremlin in the system. Microsoft is offering update 07/29/97 to "kernel32.dll at following link Microsoft Technical Support Help Files, Service Packs, & Other Files. Greenwich is still quiet and peaceful. Enjoyed seeing the movie "Air Force One" last evening which was full of action packed excitement.

Note 07/30/97: Current computer status quo is maintained, although I should upgrade hard drive and add 17 inch monitor for eyesight relief when budget permits. Greenwich, Ct. is very slow at present, many people seem to be vacationing, with a number of other travelers passing through town. Town security seems to be continued to be maintained at usual high level. Many VIP look-alikes have been spotted in the area. Greenwich Library construction continues, parking lot should reopen in couple of weeks. Greenwich hospital construction is still underway. Flags not seen flying in Belle Haven area. Green Military Transports have been seen landing at Westchester Airport. Greenwich Library has "Red Alert" sign in front window. Tod's Point continues to be maintained in excellent condition, and as with all Greenwich beaches is reserved for the use of town residents and their guests.

Phone Numbers for Quick Reference:

United States Secret Service: 1-202-395-2020

United States Military Academy at West Point: 914-938-4011 and 914-938-7398

CIA: 1-703-482-1100

FBI: New Haven, Ct. : 1-203-777-6311

Marriott's Casa Marina, Key West, Florida: 1-800-626-0777

Note 07/26/97: Greenwich, Ct. access story floating around town is from a Texas couple who decided to drive north because it was 110 degrees F. in Texas, and they hit Tropical Storm Danny in Louisiana, and drove all the way up north with it for the next few days. Retired Argentinean couple were sited visiting Greenwich along with the usual group of Merchant Princes and Princesses who frequent the town. Average house price in Greenwich, Ct. is now $650,000 for those of you thinking of moving here. Belle Haven is deluxe expensive area now, but those in the know prefer Round Hill area for privacy or further back country in Bedford, New York if you can afford the taxes, or even further back country up around Hudson's Bay which has less expensive real estate prices if you don't mind the mosquitoes in the summer or the Polar Bears in the winter. Of course if you speak French, Montreal is always enjoyable in the summer if you happen to be up north. Nous Parlons Un Peu Francais Ici. Nice weather predicted this weekend.

Note 07/24/97: Disabled Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 beta 2 Active Desktop to preserve system resources. MSIE 4.0 beta 2 occasionally crashes, but works most the time. Take a look at Internet Explorer 4.0 Platform Preview 2 Technical Support. Also check out Microsoft Download Wizard , hopefully it will work with Internet Explorer 4.0 beta 2 soon, at present JAVA script does not work. MSIE 4.0 beta 2 on my machine has problem logging onto the MSIE 4.0 beta 2 Add-ons page Internet Explorer Products Download Add-ons .

Note 07/22/97: My system 540 meg Western Digital Hard Drive 1 1/2 years old bought at Egghead software is making a clanking sound. I might have hard disk failure soon. Limited budget prevents me from replacing it at present.

Note 07/21/97 PM: Internet Access Functioned Properly in Day Time Today connecting to IBM, Armonk. On my VESA 486 Deep Green PC System Motherboard, with AMD AM486DX4-S 120 MHZ CPU, Award Bios V506 01/08/96, ROM ISA BIOS (2C419R01); I changed the CMOS setup as follows. In the CMOS, I selected "Chipset Features" and changed "AT BUS Clock" from 1/3 CLKIN to 1/4 CLKIN, also I changed "DRAM SPEED" from "fastest" to "faster". Possibly these CMOS changes improved internet access and system performance today. On my system with both WIN95 and OS/3, I don't have any problem accessing internet with OS/3; so possibly the problems I am having with WIN95 have to do with my Win95 system setup or CMOS setup. The symptoms are that the systems seems to have the internet access freeze, and when I relog onto to IBM.net it does not authenticate and I have to reboot for Win95 to access IBM.net properly with the IBM dialer.

Note 07/21/97: NYNEX claims to have repaired telephone line problem, but I am still experiencing interruptions of internet service, possibly due to traffic of Internet. In Greenwich, Connecticut in Bruce Park, there is a flock of about 100 geese. One of them has an Audubon or conservation band on the left leg that I can not identify, possibly someone might try photographing the banded goose with a telephoto lens to check out its origins.

Note 07/15/97: Experiencing repeated telephone line noise problems causing telephone to make clicking sound, which also disconnects computer from internet when online. NYNEX representatives and FBI were able to hear clicks on telephone line also. NYNEX tests say telephone is all right. Theory suggests that we might have a squirrel or a rat munching on the telephone line below or above ground. All power in Greenwich was knocked out last summer by a rat eating power cable insulation. Checking with IBM security, they suggest that NYNEX has brought in a lot of old in disrepair telephone trucks to repair lines in the area that are faulty caused by repeated electrical storms and lightning strikes in the area this summer. In summation telephone line problems interfering with internet access in the Greenwich, Connecticut area might be caused by malfunctioning telephone equipment which was possibly hit by lightning in one of the recent electrical storms. Problems I experienced are repeated clicking sound every two to five minutes which cause the modem to disconnect from IBM's ISP. However, I have had this telephone line problem since 12/96, so I think there is something wrong with the NYNEX telephone system in Byram as it feeds into the Port Chester, New York area which NYNEX has been unable or unwilling to resolve. Telephone clicks when computer is turned off. NYNEX line test says there is no problem. Disconnecting all telephones in the apartment still yields the same problem. Theory, there is something rotten in Denmark, blame it on the squirrel in the tree knowing on the telephone line, who knows? If the internet does not work in your local domain, get out and enjoy the summer weather here in the Northern hemisphere, the internet will always be around once winter sets in to spend more time on and try to resolves any problems.

Other net information, according to Reuters news Mexico City's volcano is lowered to "yellow" alert, but they reported two weeks ago, it was already at "yellow", so theoretically it could still be at "Red Alert", which means the Mexico City volcano "will" erupt, possibly causing a very cold winter up north. Who knows, I don't? Volcano levels of alert increasing in level of activity are "green", "yellow", "orange", "red". Check Cascades Volcano Observatory for exact definitions, and information from the "Volcanic Emergency Response Team". Repeat I make up the category of links, I am not a "Geologist" or "Volcanologist". The number "eight" used repeatedly is the universal volcano alert signal, put out by the regional resident of the local octagon structure. Hopefully they know what they're doing. PAX VOBISCUM.

Note 07/13/97: Possibility Internet Problems for the last seven months have been caused by my "CMOS" setup.

Note 07/05/97: Microsoft Technical Support Help Files, Service Packs, & Other Files, "Update to Windows 95 TCP/IP Out-Of-Band issue 5/22/97", "Updated TCP/IP Protocol Stack for Windows 95 07/01/97", I installed these two TCP/IP files, the earlier 5/22/97 one first, rebooted and then installed the latest 07/1/97, systems works fine, don't know whether they make difference, but it is worth try.

Note 07/05/97: My system network has been freezing up with the IBM Win95 dialer. To correct this problem, I selected "My Computer", "Control Panel", "Network", highlight "Dialup Adapter", select "Properties", select "Advanced", highlight "Use IPX Header Compression", select "NO". This seems to have fixed my problem on my system with the Network freezing up. If you have the same problem it is recommended to try it.

Note 08/10/97 Sunday 4:30 PM EDT: FrontPage 98 Up and Running, I used the editor to open and save my homepage. I'm off to bed.

Note 08/10/97 Sunday 3:00 PM EDT: I just downloaded Microsoft FrontPage 98 beta a day ahead of release. It is suppose to take 6 hours for the five files, but with a nice day here on Sunday, the New York link only took me 1 hour and 50 minutes. I am now about to install it. Also I am a little bit tired.

Note 08/10/97 Sunday 1:00 PM EDT: Second backup completed now. This morning while I was out and about downtown, there were plenty of Sunday morning Church goes out and about town. Many well recognized faces from the local community as well as the national community and the international community. Baseball game going on in Bruce Park. Beach goes getting ready for the beach. Many people having breakfast and going for coffee. I am a little bit burned out, but it was fun to see some of the local daytime people particularly some of their younger off spring who bring them down to earth. Most interesting observation is the town seem to be picking up with the PGA visitors coming into the area, although I did not see many license plates from out of the area, plenty of people do rent cars locally and don't stand out. The Queen Elizabeth II Cruise ship has room for 50 private vehicles, so it is not unlikely that one would see international license plates driving around. Also there are quite a few people from the warmer regions of the country who seem to be enjoying their summer stays here. No names mentioned this Greenwich, Connecticut where we supposedly are use to seeing many people show up, but it is much the same at the Dutch trading post 25 miles west of here. Time for the New Amsterdam night watch to go to bed. It still seems like we have a pleasant day and not to hot. Anybody know anything about winter forecasts for this area, please email me. Dieu et Mon Droit.

Note 08/10/97 Sunday 7:30 AM EDT: I bought Colorado Backup by Cheyenne Version 3.0 for $30 which works just great with my Colorado T1000e. It makes complete backups of my entire system including registry and also permits the creation of two rescue disks for restoring the system. Version 1.70 that came with the drive did neither. Also to use the program one needs a Colorado drive. One can buy the program over the internet with a credit card. Once one has purchased the program and decompressed the program into its separate directory and installed it, I suggest making a copy of the decompressed group of files in the C:\cheyenne\colorado directory by copying the entire file group to another directory, and then using the move command to copy them all to five floppies, so that in an emergency you have disks you can also copy to your hard drive and install it. Of course you can order a boxed copy, but that takes time. Of course the rescue disks will restore the system to, but it is nice to have a complete floppy copy of such an important program. I am just about to make my second tape backup of the entire system. In other news while I was roaming around about 4:00 AM downtown while backing up, I saw two Greenwich Police cars speeding up Greenwich Avenue about 60 miles an hour the wrong way in hot pursuit. I guess the boys in blue are on the job. I did not get any other internet work done for obvious reasons. I will have to clean my apartment as usual when I wake up Sunday evening.

Note 08/10/97 Sunday 1:15 AM EDT: I made a full backup while I went downtown for a walk. It is pretty quiet downtown with a few pub crawlers and movie goers exiting the theatre. I plan to web surf tonight and possibly chat on IPhone since my system is back up to par. I need to get the HPBackup program for the T1000E to do a full system backup which it fails at, at present I am doing a full backup of the C: drive. Also I need to know how to get Win95 to prompt for a CDROM having installed with disks, should I ever install a CDROM.

Note 08/09/97 Saturday 11:00 PM EDT: Last night after downloading Netscape Communicator 4.02 and Pointcast 2.0 beta 1, my IBM.net internet access started freezing. I thus went through the following procedure mentioned several days ago and all is well. Procedure: Note 08/04/97 4:30 AM EDT: Additional Information to previous note below: The internet system freezing once again reoccurred because I did not correctly go through the procedure. To correct the problem first make sure you have your Win95 disks available or the CDROM Win95 also comes on. If your IBM dialer freezes and you have already installed the Microsoft DUN Upgrade PPTP/Dial up networking for WIN95 "msdun12" and then the "winsock.dll" "wsockupd" upgrade, you need to first select "My Computer", "Control Panel", "Network". Then remove "Dialup Adapter #2 (VPN Support)", "Microsoft Virtual Private Network Adapter", "NDISWAN->Microsoft Virtual Private Networking Adapter", "TCP/IP->Dialup Adapter #2 (VPN Support). When you click "OK" you will be prompted for disks number 12 and 13 or CDROM to install files, keep any newer files by selecting "YES". You then will be prompted to reboot. Then install Microsoft DUN Upgrade PPTP/Dial up networking for WIN95 "msdun12" and when prompted once again for disks number 12 and 13 or CDROM to install files, keep any newer files by selecting "YES", and then you will be prompted to reboot, after rebooting the system will automatically reconfigure your system and prompt you to reboot once again. Then install "winsock.dll" "wsockupd" upgrade, and though it does not prompt you to reboot, I go ahead and reboot anyway. My system works fine after this procedure and does not freeze and reauthenticates when I reconnect without having to reboot. If one upgrades the IBM dialer with the software update item or if one reinstalls the IBM dialer, one will have to go through this procedure once again. I guess the IBM dialer installs a file that causes internet connection freezing, possibly within the network. IBM.NET support does not experience this problem because they use OS/2 for their internet access. If you have any questions please let me know. Right now my system is working fine and not freezing. Final Note: I slept all day and am about to go out for a walk about this evening.

Note 08/09/97 Saturday 7:30 AM: I updated the Bookmark page with a new list of short bookmarks bm080997.htm that I will post when I have time. This morning in Greenwich a few people were out walking and the usual fisherman were down by the water. It looks like it will be a pleasant day.

Note 08/09/97 Saturday 3:45 AM: Downloading Scott's Subscription with link to Pointcast Network 2.0 beta . Also downloaded CWSApps 32-bit Web Browsers, Netcaster for Communicator 4.0 .

Note 08/09/97 Saturday 3:05 AM: I went out for a cup of coffee out of my thermos at 1:00 AM. A thermos saves money over Starbucks and is more mobile. I walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue. A few young folks were exiting the local pubs at closing time. Some looked like they should not be driving. I suggest having a designated driver. Bargain at the Grand Union is a 12 pack of Canada Dry regular ginger ale for $1.99 plus deposit. The Purdue chicken was good for dinner earlier this evening. Netscape Communicator 4.01 installed and running. <http://www.vivo.com/> has an active X plug in for MS IE 4.0 beta 2 which works. All quiet on the western front, I might be out in the early AM around 6:00 AM.

Note 08/08/97 Friday 11:40 PM: I got a good rest this afternoon and early evening. I will be up all night on the computer. System is working fine. I just downloaded Netscape Communicator 4.01 which I now have room for. One note if you use the Western Digital Tip Western Digital Corporation (Service/Support) - Tip of the Month, March 1997 to "xcopy" on my system, I needed to run "c:\windows\xcopy" with the parameters described in the tip. One needs the full file path. I suggest keep your slave "original" drive "as is" after installation and changing the CMOS values, in case there are any problems. I also installed the new high speed ISA controller card with my new hard drive. After a few days one can free up the space. Greenwich was busy this evening about 10:00 PM, with lots of people out for the movies and dinner and coffee. Happy Birthday C.W.

Note 08/08/97 Friday Noon: Success installed replacement Western Digital 1 G hard drive on my system. I used this procedure with success Western Digital Corporation (Service/Support) - Tip of the Month, March 1997 . I am now running one C: partition, OS/2 Warp 3 on D: is gone. I am very tired. System is running fine.

Note 08/07/97 Thursday 4:30 PM EDT: I am now thinking of using GHOST Software program to transfer my old drive to the new drive. They offer a fully functional demo good for 30 days. I have spent most of the day inside after returning from a afternoon appointment.

Note 08/07/97 Thursday 12:45 PM EDT: I was up at 6:00 AM this morning. I planned my strategy for the day. Still waiting for the Western Digital replacement to arrive today from Irvine, California. Their diagnostics files are located at Western Digital Corporation (Service/Support) - FTP/Hard Drives . Also I looked at this WDC information page, Western Digital Corporation (Service/Support) - Tip of the Month, March 1997 about transferring information from an old hard disk to a new hard disk, however since I use OS/2 Boot Manager, I think I might have to restore from the tape backup instead of copying from the old hard drive to the new one. I have to do some more research. I am thinking of using the Powerquest Drive Image Beta Program Drive Image Beta Program to accomplish the hard disk upgrade, however this beta program did not load for me, I think it has a bug. In other news I saw that Green jet again today and I also saw an Army helicopter. I spent the morning reading the computer press in the Greenwich library. Time for lunch.

Note 08/07/97 12:20 AM EDT: I still have not gotten to bed. A friend came over and shared a frozen pizza with me. He was happy his Apple Computer stock had finally yielded a profit. I emailed <http://www.ttalk.com/> about my perspective of Illinois and computers. I went out downtown and it is terribly slow. I noticed an older gold Mercedes has not moved in the lower Greenwich Plaza train station parking lot since I first noticed it on Sunday. It seems to have an excess of wait in the trunk. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a Purdue chicken for 69 cents a pound. I bought four frozen Celeste Pizzas for $2 apiece. I also picked up a half gallon of Apple Juice for 99 cents. I noticed the Greenwich Police are out in force as usual. I saw quite a few Eastern Hemisphere visitors walking around downtown. Starbucks is open in the evening across from the police station on Greenwich Avenue, closing earlier on weekdays than weekends. The Colonial Dinner on the Boston Post Road is open all the time in Greenwich serving an excellent menu. All quiet on the eastern front here in Greenwich, Connecticut 06830 USA. I am about to go to bed and will be on a day time schedule.

Note 08/06/97 8:00 PM EDT: I finished making the second tape backup of my system. I also received the backup copy of Win95 Upgrade on a CDROM via Airborne Express to have in addition to my 3 1/2 inch disks. One can order it from Microsoft for $25.00 at 800-360-7561 or 800-451-4239. One will the number off your existing disks. Now all I need is a CDROM player. I am still waiting for replacement hard drive to arrive. I got a little sleep while backing up the system. Now I plan to finish sleeping. Internet system is working great with IBM.net access and web browsers after having tweaked it with the following steps as listed in previous notes.

Note 08/06/97 2:50 PM EDT: On my Scott's Computer System Setup and Value I edited the config.sys with these settings to increase system performance.

files=50

buffers=40

Note 08/06/97 2:30 PM EDT: I have been awake since 4:00 PM yesterday. I went out at 8:00 AM this morning, and had my oil and filter changed, rear axle oil changed, and manual transmission oil changed for $100. I bought a High Speed ISA Bus I/O Controller at Staples in Old Greenwich for $30, they have another one left. I am still waiting for my Western Digital replacement hard drive from FEDEX, which is possibly slowed down by the UPS strike. I went by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop and they are having a bag sale for $10 a bag for what you can stuff into it. I got a charcoal Brooks Brothers suit, two pairs of shorts, two shirts, and a furniture fabric petit point design throw for my computer arm chair, all for $10. I paid my rent, telephone, and cablevision bills. I picked up buy two get two free Winston Lights at Zyn Stationary which are 100 percent tobacco with no additives. I do need to quit smoking some time soon when I am under less tension. I bought 20 yellow rose stamps at the post office. I filled up my car at the Exxon gas station. I stopped by the Greenwich library and it was not too busy, but the parking lot was busy. I had two quarter pounders at McDonalds for $2.12 . While doing this I was reformatting one of my backup tapes and retensioning it. I backed up the computer once I returned to the apartment around noon. Now I am reformatting and retensioning another tape, which I will use to back up the system in about 1 1/2 hours. It is a beautiful day in Greenwich and not too busy this morning. No waiting at Precision Tune or the Post Office. I guess a lot of people are away, but the rush at 8:00 AM showed there are a few people in the offices. Mercedes Benz Dealership is being remodeled. Temporary outdoor showroom is setup for customers. Plenty of Old Guard out this morning doing errands. This is what my busy day is like once a month when I have to pay bills. Good news is that I have no insurance bill or electricity bill this month, so I could afford the car maintenance and computer controller. I don't know when I will get to sleep, but sooner or later I will.

Note 08/06/97 1:00 AM EDT: Scott's Computer System Setup and Value

Note 08/05/97 9:45 PM EDT: Greenwich Avenue is packed full of cars this evening, we continue having thunder and lightning all evening with intermittent rain showers. I read the computer press in the Greenwich Library this evening. I am checking out this utility right now MTU-Speed which supposedly increases internet access speed for Win95. Note 10:50 PM: On my system internet speed increased close to 100 percent to 8.3 K per second. I optimized the MTU-Speed setting on my system to "MAXMTU" set at 1152 and "Multiplier" set at 6. Of course depending on your internet setup these setting could vary. Also in areas of the world with less developed infrastructure, you might want to lower the settings to the "Optimal" setting. Now I will continue to test these settings, but they do seem quite a bit faster, up to 100 percent faster access.

Note 08/05/97 5:45 AM EDT: Created CDF 101: Creating a Simple Channel Definition File for Scott's Site and this page. It is quite simple, however you have to use the Microsoft Paint Program that comes with Win95 to create two gif files one 80X32 Pixels and one 32X32 Pixels to use with the CDF file. It took a hour, quite simple, of course you can only use the file with MS IE 4.0 I think. Once you create the gifs with MS Paint Program be sure to move in the outer frames of the window to the edges of the gif images, to correct pixel size.

Note 08/05/97 3:30 AM EDT: Yahoo! - Volcanic Flow in Heart of Montserrat Capital . I listened to TechTalk for enlightened commentary on the world computer industry. I ran Internet Explorer 4.0 Beta 2 Setup Program, and reinstalled Internet Explorer 4.0 Beta 2 to make sure I had all the correct beta files that it includes which might have been overwritten by other installations. I also was able to correct a problem which occurred when I installed Netscape 3.03, it made itself the default web browser. By reinstalling "Complete Installation" selection of Internet Explorer 4.0 beta 2 setup, I was able to correct the problem. The reinstallation process does not actually redownload all the files, but checks existing files and downloads only those files that are not correct or current, so it is quite rapid compared to complete download. I also disabled loading images on my MS Internet Explorer 4.0 beta 2, by selecting "View", "Options", "Advanced", and unchecking "Show Pictures" in Multimedia. I think there should be an easier way from the IE 4.0 menu bar to do this possibly by a check box and also possibly a load images button. Realistically we all don't have fast connections, and this speeds up web browsing particularly in the day time. Also under "View", "Options", "Programs", the check box for Internet Explorer to Check if is the default browser does not work probably because of something Netscape 3.03 did to this option. I do not approve of such tactics. Net is operating fine tonight, White Plains dialup from Byram seems to be the fastest and most reliable and is toll free from this side of town. Remember reinstalling IE 4.0 beta 2 reoptimizes your system which is handy. Once again I don't plan to maintain the downloadable directory anymore, and if you reinstall IE 4.0 beta 2 and have Netscape, I suggest removing the Netscape bookmarks, so you don't import them into IE 4.0 particularly if you have an extensive Netscape bookmark. I plan to beta test IE 4.0 beta 2 as setup for the near future to see how it performs and learn more about it.

Note 08/05/97 12:01 AM EDT: Awoke at 4:00 PM on Monday afternoon. I drove up to a friend's house in Wilton, Connecticut in moderate rush hour traffic, and had a filet mignon dinner cooked on a outdoor barbeque grill along with three ears of locally grown corn and peas. Around 9:00 PM it started pouring rain and lightning as I drove back down to Greenwich. Six inches of water on route 7, and traffic was going 30 miles an hour on the Merritt Parkway. I stopped by the Food Emporium and Grand Union in Greenwich which are open 24 hours a day and stocked up on different coffee types for my special economy coffee blend. I now have another two months of coffee. I surmise a great many people in the area are having problems with lightning strikes and resulting power failures. Greenwich is quiet in the early AM. Also my computer seems to be working fine with the fix I posted in the note yesterday. Replacement Western Digital Corporation Hard Drive has not arrived yet, it is coming by Federal Express, but they might be busy because of the UPS strike. Anyone want to send me a 17 inch monitor, it would be a lot easier on the eyes. I feel like Mr. McGoo.

Note 08/04/97 4:30 AM EDT: Britain's Queen Mum Celebrates 97th Birthday Please Sign the Guest Book at Buckingham Palace

Note 08/04/97 4:30 AM EDT: Additional Information to previous note below: The internet system freezing once again reoccurred because I did not correctly go through the procedure. To correct the problem first make sure you have your Win95 disks available or the CDROM Win95 also comes on. If your IBM dialer freezes and you have already installed the Microsoft DUN Upgrade PPTP/Dial up networking for WIN95 "msdun12" and then the "winsock.dll" "wsockupd" upgrade, you need to first select "My Computer", "Control Panel", "Network". Then remove "Dialup Adapter #2 (VPN Support)", "Microsoft Virtual Private Network Adapter", "NDISWAN->Microsoft Virtual Private Networking Adapter", "TCP/IP->Dialup Adapter #2 (VPN Support). When you click "OK" you will be prompted for disks number 12 and 13 or CDROM to install files, keep any newer files by selecting "YES". You then will be prompted to reboot. Then install Microsoft DUN Upgrade PPTP/Dial up networking for WIN95 "msdun12" and when prompted once again for disks number 12 and 13 or CDROM to install files, keep any newer files by selecting "YES", and then you will be prompted to reboot, after rebooting the system will automatically reconfigure your system and prompt you to reboot once again. Then install "winsock.dll" "wsockupd" upgrade, and though it does not prompt you to reboot, I go ahead and reboot anyway. My system works fine after this procedure and does not freeze and reauthenticates when I reconnect without having to reboot. If one upgrades the IBM dialer with the software update item or if one reinstalls the IBM dialer, one will have to go through this procedure once again. I guess the IBM dialer installs a file that causes internet connection freezing, possibly within the network. IBM.NET support does not experience this problem because they use OS/2 for their internet access. If you have any questions please let me know. Right now my system is working fine and not freezing.

Previous Note Referred to Above, Please follow procedure above instead. Interesting Development, when I installed the Microsoft DUN Upgrade PPTP/Dial up networking for WIN95 "msdun12" and then the "winsock.dll" "wsockupd" upgrade, my system worked fine with the IBM Dialer IBM Internet Connection Services, Internet Access Kit Download Site and I had no problems with IBM.net access freezing up or when reconnecting not authenticating. However, when I reinstalled the IBM Dialer for Win95, the problem reoccurred. When I reinstalled the MS DUN upgrade and the "winsock.dll" "wsockupd" upgrade, the problem went away again. Ergo for all you geniuses out there, there is something wrong with the IBM dialer for Win95 that causes a network freeze up that the MS DUN upgrade corrects. However, I imagine that whenever one upgrades the IBM dialer, the situation will reoccur. Therefore I plan to keep a copy of the MS DUN upgrade and winsock.dll upgrade until IBM and Microsoft sort out the problem. It is pretty convincing evidence of system incompatibilities on a major network such as IBM.Net with MS Win95 operating system. If you don't believe it try recreating the situation yourself. Remember this note is updated by note above it.

Note 08/04/97 2:20 AM EDT: Bookmark page will no longer be updated for lack of interest. If you have any interest or comment, please email me. I don't plan to incorporate it into the current downloadable directory.

Note 08/04/97 1:30 AM EDT: Greenwich, Connecticut is dead slow on Sunday night with a few kids haunting the night. Cleaned my apartment, watered the plants, did laundry, and had dinner guest over for dinner Sunday evening. This morning I have to buy more coffee at the Food Emporium when it opens. I might possibly take my 1976 Volvo to have oil change and change the rear end and gear box oil this AM or Tuesday AM. I surmise a great many residents are away. 79th PGA Championship coming to the Winged Foot Country Club in Mamaroneck, Westchester County, New York August 14 to August 17, 1997. Stop by Greenwich, Connecticut nearby to Westchester County for a quiet time if you happen to visit.

Note 08/02/97 10:00 PM EDT: Interesting Development, when I installed the Microsoft DUN Upgrade PPTP/Dial up networking for WIN95 and then the "winsock.dll" upgrade, my system worked fine with the IBM Dialer IBM Internet Connection Services, Internet Access Kit Download Site and I had no problems with IBM.net access freezing up or when reconnecting not authenticating. However, when I reinstalled the IBM Dialer for Win95, the problem reoccurred. When I reinstalled the MS DUN upgrade and the "winsock.dll" upgrade, the problem went away again. Ergo for all you geniuses out there, there is something wrong with the IBM dialer for Win95 that causes a network freeze up that the MS DUN upgrade corrects. However, I imagine that whenever one upgrades the IBM dialer, the situation will reoccur. Therefore I plan to keep a copy of the MS DUN upgrade and winsock.dll upgrade until IBM and Microsoft sort out the problem. It is pretty convincing evidence of system incompatibilities on a major network such as IBM.Net with MS Win95 operating system. If you don't believe it try recreating the situation yourself.

On other news there seems to be a party going on a Rockefeller Center right now or they are setting up for a party. EYE ON THE WORLD Rockefeller Center Web Cam , this is the picture I found at around 9:42 PM EDT tonight.

Note 08/02/97: Thanks to Western Digital Corporation Hard Drives three year warranty, Scott's failing hard drive is being replaced free of charge. Western Digital ships a replacement when you give them a credit card number which they don't charge if you return the failed hard drive within 30 days. My hard drive has been decent enough to fail slowly giving a regular thumping sound and write errors. I recommend making a backup if you ever get a similar problem. Hopefully the hard drive will last until I get the replacement in a few days. I was advised that heavy web browser use, uses a lot of disk caching on the hard drive use which can cause premature hard drive failure. Thank you Western Digital. Free Ontrack Data Advisor reports that the current hard disk is failing. Ontrack Data Advisor is free to download.

Note 08/01/97: Installed Microsoft DUN Upgrade PPTP/Dial up networking for WIN95 , don't know if it is necessary, but I guess it can't hurt. There is also a new "winsock.dll" download from the same link. Since DUN Upgrade prompts one to install the old "winsock.dll", I suggest installing the new "winsock.dll" after the DUN Upgrade installation. DUN Upgrade installation upgrade was straight forward, however when prompted for Win95 install disks I did not overwrite the newer files with older files. System is working fine with DUN upgrade. Imported Cars of Greenwich, Ct. dealers of Mercedes-Benz has new models on the lot.

Note 08/17/97 Sunday 9:20 PM EDT: I drove out to Tod's Point and enjoyed the view this afternoon watching a rain shower come in. I had a dish of fruit for dinner. I watched the PBS Channel 13 special on the Hermitage, most excellent. I am finishing up doing my laundry and will clean the apartment first thing tomorrow morning. I might go out for an evening cruise after I do laundry. CIO

Note 08/17/97 Sunday 3:20 PM EDT: I took a two hour nap from noon to 2 PM. I had a shell steak and two ears of corn on the cob for dinner. I plan to clean up and go out in this hot weather, possibly paying a visit over to Tod's Point depending on how the heat hits me when I go outside. I renamed this page "Scott's Notes".

Note 08/17/97 Sunday 10:00 AM EDT: I listened to the computer media reports. I might work on configuring FrontPage 98 this AM. I do not have much to report at present. I imagine it is a hot day outside. There were an average number of people downtown last night. I imagine people will be hitting the beach today. www.ttalk.com has good daily computer reports to listen to if you are a tech head. Check out mrscott.com/bm.htm Scott's Bookmark for a short list of links I have come across this week. Of course the old long list is still there for now. My viewpoint of the internet is to surf the net and point out what I come across. I do not do much editorial comment, but do make occasional comments about our local area as it relates to my activity. Previous notes here might help you tweak your system. I am running Netscape 4.02, 3.02 and MS Internet Explorer 4.0 beta 2. On my system MS IE 4.0 beta 2 is a little slow compared to Netscape. I still have not found the active X plug in at www.vdo.net for it yet. My viewpoint is that the net activity is slow in this area while people vacation and relax, but I am sure once the schools go back and people return from vacation it will speed up and become congested again. www.ibm.net is going limit access to one user per account as of 9/1/97; so many family users might have to learn to share user time or delegate it. I still have not afforded a CDROM drive and am in need of a 17 inch monitor to relieve eye strain. Perhaps I should try wearing my glasses. CIO.

Note 08/17/97 Sunday 8:00 AM EDT: I made two backup tape copies of my entire system yesterday. I was able to get HP Colorado backup working properly by deinstalling the program and reinstalling the program. I also do not select the compare option when backing up, and I also select the "format while backing up" option. One note as mentioned before, I only get about 575 M. backed up, and the hard disk contains over 800 M. of files. Thus over 200 M. of files are not being backed up. I have not figured out what is causing this situation, but it would obviously mean I would not be able to do a full restore if that was needed. System is running fine otherwise. Yesterday was very hot. Greenwich is relatively quiet. I plan to web surf today to avoid the hot weather. I will clean the apartment tomorrow.

Note 08/16/97 Saturday 7:35 AM EDT: Up at 7:00 AM this morning. It is suppose to be hot in Greenwich today up to the 90's. Advise Air Defense Command to stand down from "Red Alert", maintain active status. Stock market bares watching on Monday to see what will happen next week. In the late 1960's and early 1970's, McNamara's Beach on Martha's Vineyard use to be the hippie protest beach where everyone went skinny dipping. When walking from Gay Head to Edgartown or in reverse, I think it is about 14 miles give or take. However, there is a spit of water along the way that is easier to cross at low tide, moreover tidal spits of water can contain quick sand, so it is advised to use caution when crossing tidal estuaries, not to mention watching out for the currents. I still prefer Nantucket from the old days when I lived there, but once again the ocean currents on the south shore can be extremely hazardous particularly for inexperienced swimmers. I would assume the same for the Vineyard. I advise against illegal camping on the beaches of the Cape islands, since many people with sand permits and off road vehicles do not notice campers on the beach particularly when they go cruising at night. There are youth hostels on both Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket, both of which would probably be busy this time of year. In the old days the Episcopal church in Cambridge use to run a place called the "Poor House" in Bourne county where young people could drop by and stay in the summer. It was actually a very nice facility donated by a "Standard and Poors" family member. If one is on Cape Code headed towards Woods Hole, Elsie's sandwich shop is on the way for a good sandwich. Last I knew Martha's Vineyard access is out of Wood's Hole, where one should stop by the Wood's Hole Oceanographic Institute for an adventure. Nantucket access is out of Hyannis. I believe the other Cape Islands have access out of New Bedford, but don't quote me on it. Remember to throw a penny as you leave Nantucket and round Brant's Point. I don't plan to visit up that way this summer and am quite comfortable roughing it out in Greenwich. Other recommended points of destination in the summer are Maine, Eastern Canada, and of course there is the rest of New England and Canada, but once one gets away from the shore it can be warmer. On a rainy day in Maine, there is plenty of discount shopping in Freeport, Maine and Kittery, Maine; enough to bust anyone's budget. I keep telling people they should put in discount computer outlets in both those towns. Well I plan to surf the net a little and get out before it is too hot. CIO.

Note 08/15/97 Friday 1:35 PM EDT: Government of Montserrat and Montserrat Volcano Observatory has latest information on volcanic activity in Montserrat which looks quite serious. Since there are still people on the island, I would recommend total evacuation of the island and not to leave the remaining population on the north side of the island. Research Martinique's eruption during the early part of this century. 700 mini earthquakes a day means to me, a major eruption should occur some time soon. Other news, I slept all morning. I have to go back up to Wilton this afternoon to return a friend to pick up his car from Greenwich Exxon. I am not sure whether I will go out this afternoon, or possibly web surf. Pollution in the area is usual for this time of the year. My computer system is running fine. I have been taking time off from the computer to enjoy our local summer weather and relax my eyes from the strain of daily computer activity. I chatted with Jason and Jack from New Canaan last night who are seniors at Princeton. They seem very smart for young students their age. Also chatted with visitor from Brazil. Usual level of activity seems to be going on in this area for this time of year. All "WH", "MV", "AUCK", and Nantucket sand permit vehicles seem to have disappeared from the area, so it is safe to assume that the entourage of "Eagle" is sitting up off Cape Cod. Of course when I lived in Nantucket none of the locals would dare drive a vehicle with identifying stickers except the "sand" permits. Walking from "Gay Head" to Edgartown on Martha's Vineyard is fun, but make sure you have enough time and walk in the direction that the sun is not in your eyes. Watch out for "rouge" waves when on the ocean shore. Reports out of Kennebunkport are that the town is very busy with lots of visitors. Stock market is down 120 points, it is possibly time to think of withdrawing from the market, depending on one's individual portfolio.

Note 08/14/97 Thursday 6:00 PM EDT: Normal day in Greenwich. Lots of visitors with the nearby PGA golf tournament. Pollution levels are higher. My feeling is that my migraine headache came from looking at the computer too long. Needless to say what is the usual level of busy activity for me in Greenwich might seem very busy to someone from the country. It should be a pleasant evening though. Old guard seen making the rounds about town. Sextons at Christ Church have done an excellent job of maintaining the grounds and flower beds this year. CIO, Chief Information Officer.

Note 08/14/97 Thursday 7:15 AM EDT: Awake. Communications blackout in force, disregard psychic communications, maintain status quo, CIO.

Note 08/13/97 Wednesday 9:05 PM EDT: Migraine Headache persists, unable to function all day. Unable to locate vendor of Corby's Whiskey from Canada. Have not been outside. Local friend is in need of assistance, but I think he will survive. Family is enjoying usual summer activities. August 14 is family members' birthday, but I think she will stay around Fort Sam Houston for the time being. Offutt Air force Base is to continue red alert status until advised to stand down. Military rules still apply in civilian area for the uninformed. Nobody seems to know the real status of the accuracy of the information being conveyed to us in the communication field. Usual facts are people are on vacation and not much is being reported for the time being. Diplomatic group leaves this area for vacation this time of year. Locals try to get ready for winter. Have respect for people who help out in this area during the long winters, particularly when they volunteer away from their more familiar environments. Have not had time or ability with migraine to read any media reports for 36 hours.

Note 08/11/97 Tuesday 1:30 PM EDT: I downloaded Image Composer 1.5 Beta - EN for Windows 95 & NT 4.0 - US English Version - Download Page , while cleaning my apartment. I am about to have lunch and cleanup before I got out, which will take another hour give or take, plus I will do the install before leaving.

Note 08/11/97 Tuesday 12:00 Noon EDT: I finally got my second backup made. I had to reformat the tape. I guess I will have to get two new Travan QTR 1 tapes at the first of the month. I am wondering if the program backs up 560 M. of the hard drive, what part of the 200 M. of the hard drive it does not backup that I will possibly need, if I ever do a restore. About 50 M. of the files not backed up are hidden system files. It would seem to me, that one should be able to backup the entire contents of a hard drive. Even if I did a full install of Win95 of about 50 M. and restored the tape contents, I would still be missing about 150 M. of the present hard drive contents. Obviously there would be some program or group of programs that would malfunction and I would have to reinstall them. I don't think I have 150 M. of temporary files. I assume I have backed up the compressed downloadables. In other news I got plenty of sleep last night and am finally rested. This afternoon I will clean my apartment and go out later, and try not to spend any money. I have to ship back the old defected warranted Western Digital hard drive, so I am not billed for it. Greenwich is not too hot for this time of year, but we seem to have quite a bit of pollution out of the city coming our way which can make it uncomfortable. I believe the Hospital Thrift Shop has put out its new fall line of merchandise. Well all my computer work is basically done, and I can sit back and surf the net instead of doing system work. I might download Microsoft beta of the Graphics program that goes with FrontPage 98. I also need to delete some downloadables and restore some archive files. Basically I have about 250 M. of free hard disk space right now, but I could always free up more if I had to.

Note 08/11/97 Monday 8:15 PM EDT: Made my appointment and chatted with a friend about life in Europe. I stopped by Entree Computer and purchased a 3 1/2 inch floppy disk drive for $31.27 to replace my old five year old drive that seems to be malfunctioning. It took about a half hour to put in and another hour to back up to floppy key startup disks, restore disks, and the HP backup program to disk. I noticed on my older configuration with the new floppy cables they have the old and new fittings, but since my 5 1/4 inch floppy drive is about three inches from the 3 1/2 inch floppy drive, the three inch spacing between the two groups of terminal connectors on the floppy cable was just enough inverting them. I suggest there should be a little more length between floppy cable groups of connectors for spacing in tower cases. The new floppy drive is working fine, and the disks pop out startlingly fast, one has to use a V finger button push to catch them. I am now about to make a second backup of my system which is running well, despite that irritating message at boot up. I will sit and chat with my audience while I make the backup. Who needs sleep anyway, you'll have plenty of time for that when you die.

Note 08/11/97 Monday 3:30 PM EDT: First Backup Complete, I am off to an appointment. Ciao.

Note 08/11/97 Monday 1:05 PM EDT: I took a short nap, but could not sleep. I have the system tweaked to perfection except for that nuisance error message about "Netware Desktop Not Available", which I can't figure out how it got there unless it was something I installed with the Win95 installation. System seems to run fine, but the net is a little slow at lunch time. Now I intend to back up the system. One problem is the backup seems to recognize only about 75 percent of the files on the hard disk, which all can't be system files in use, about 550 meg of 750 meg. Well better some than none. I to have lunch and clean up.

Note 08/11/97 Monday 9:00 AM EDT: Last evening about 6:00 PM, as I was finishing up, I experienced a major system malfunction. For some reason double space was trying to install itself, and the bootable system files were corrupted. Windows would not run. Perhaps my bootable floppy was also corrupted. I went to bed and got up at 2:00 AM this morning. I reinstalled windows running setup and custom and doing a custom installation. This fixed my system problem. I also had to install the network for the internet and configure it. After some hassle I got it done, and downloaded nine updated files from Microsoft to update my Win95 installation. I also reinstalled the DUN and Winsock upgrades, and had to reinstall Colorado Backup 3.0 which installation files I had on my hard drive. I updated Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 beta 2 by running setup.exe and reinstalling any changed files. I also reset my MTU program. The system is back up to normal and running fine. I set my system.ini file to "yes" for 32 bit . I also noticed that the <http://www.vdo.net> Active X plug in for MS IE 4.0 beta 2 was not available at their site, although I had downloaded it and had it working several days ago. Also I get an error message when starting Win95 the "Netware Shell is Not Available" for some reason which I can not figure out how to eliminate, but then the system starts the desktop and the error message does not seem to use any system resources, so I will have to live with it. Now after I reinstall IPHONE, I will back up my system and go to bed for a five hours. What a relief to have it back to normal again. It took about 8 hours to get it back to normal. Also the FrontPage 98 Editor is a little slow in accepting Keyboard keystrokes, so I will continue to use Front pad for typing sessions.

Note 08/24/97 Sunday 11:00 PM EDT: I updated Scott's Watch Portfolio in <http://mrscott.com/stocksym.htm> . It is $1,000,002.37. I do not recommend buying or selling stocks, this is an economic experiment to watch how a broad market basket of stocks performs. I have 100 share lots of 147 stocks, and 1 share of BRK/A. I will not be updating the stock links on the page since if one uses Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 beta 2 with <http://investor.msn.com> one can get the same stock links with my portfolio you can download to use in their portfolio option.

Note 08/24/97 Sunday 9:00 PM EDT: I cleaned my apartment early this afternoon. I went out to Tod's Point to walk around the 2 1/2 mile walk around the park. Tod's Point is limited to Greenwich residents and their guests. I drove back to the center of town and got $14.90 of gasoline at the Exxon gas station. I stopped by McDonald's and had the 20 piece chicken nugget meal for $3.17 . I stopped by Egghead in Old Greenwich and they have a number of clearance software items. I went down town and there is a seaworthy sailboat about 50 feet long from Kiel, Germany. They have a distinguished and smart crew and they seem to have made the trip without too much trouble. There are quite a few other visitors in the area. There was a large group of Mexicans down by Grass Island. Tod's Point seems to have the usual Greenwich group sunbathing, walking and picnicking. The air was clear today without pollution. I am going to work on adding another fifty or so companies to my Microsoft portfolio. I chatted with a fellow from IBM in a red TR6. A lot of people in Greenwich cruise in older cars on weekends. I saw a Model A today. CIO

Note 08/23/97 Saturday 10:00 PM EDT: I doubled the size of the Microsoft Investor Watch Portfolio at <http://investor.msn.com> . One can download my watch portfolio from <http://mrscott.com/scott001.inv> . Remember you have to save the file and then open it from the Microsoft Investor MSN site with Microsoft Internet Explorer. The portfolio is worth $685,537.50 . There are 100 share quantities of 89 different stocks in the portfolio. The current portfolio printout is <http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm> .One can follow my portfolio, but I don't recommend buying or selling any of these stocks, this is an academic exercise. I also made two backups of my computer when I got up at 4:00 PM this afternoon. I am cleaned up, so I am going out once I upload this note and the investor portfolio. I will probably add the additional stocks to my stocks page when I have the time. CIO

Note 08/23/97 Saturday 6:30 AM EDT: First of all CNET screwed up in its news email. They recommended installing the ISDN 1.1 upgrade to speed up ones TCP/IP system. On my system it locked the system because I had already installed the MS DUN 1.2 upgrade and Winsock.dll upgrades. I had to do a step by step F8 boot yesing and not install the windows drivers and then go ahead and install the MS DUN 1.2 upgrade again which I keep on my local hard drive. I then had to reboot and to a F8 step by step boot yesing this time installing the Windows drivers and then after the DUN upgrade completed installation I had to reboot again F8 step by step boot yesing with the Windows drivers and then install the winsock.dll upgrade and then do a normal reboot and the system worked fine. What a pain CNET, although I should have known better. Next I installed the IBM.NET dialer upgrade 4.13. This time it did not mess up my networking system and the system worked fine after installation. I suppose they fixed the problem. I did have to reset the multiplier on my MTU setting from 5 to 6 and left the MTU setting at 1152. I also went ahead and installed the MS Internet Explorer Setup program again doing a quick complete install and letting the system configure itself which took about ten minutes. I did this in case the IBM dialer or the DUN upgrade overwrote any newer files in the beta of MS IE 4.0 beta 2. The install did not install a new "winsock.dll" this time like last time. However, the system is working back up to top speed and everything seems fine. I think I will go to bed. Have a good day folks. I did suggest to IBM.NET that they provide a Greenwich, Connecticut access number. CIO

Note 08/23/97 Saturday 2:15 AM EDT: I created a watch account at <http://investor.msn.com> of 31 of the 32 stocks in <http://mrscott.com/stocksym.htm> not including "BRKA" which does not work. The net value on the account of 100 shares of each is $216,050. As an absent minded Economist I think the stock market is due for a downward adjustment, so lets see what this portfolio is worth over a period of time. Remember I do not recommend buying or selling any of these stocks, this is just my own test watch account. One can download Scott's Investment Portfolio for the Microsoft Investor <http://investor.msn.com> at <http://mrscott.com/scott001.inv> , it only works with Microsoft Internet Explorer. CIO page linked from my homepage. I am a little bushed and need to have dinner and clean up. The list of stocks is a list of popular stocks, and I don't recommend buying or selling them, but I am providing the information. CIO.

Note 08/23/97 Saturday 12:15 AM EDT: I worked on a "Stocks, Symbols, and Quotes"

Note 08/22/97 Friday 6:00 PM EDT: I finally got a good days sleep today after no sleep yesterday. IBM 800 backup number is no longer active. I checked with IBM about making sure the files in their dialer also include the most recent Microsoft files. We have a nice day here from what I can tell. It seems a number of European visitors are in the area. The area is not too busy, but that is a relative statement. I checked around and the term "Corby's Whiskey" is derived from World War II when people use to drink "Canadian Bootleg Whiskey". Most people don't drink here anymore, but some of the "Old Guard" maintain their longevity is from a couple "shots" every night before they go to bed. Roofers have started working on the slate roof on my building. Immediate family members might be transferred to England. Obviously an old Scottish family or several Scottish families in the area have connections to the United States Steel Corporation. Remember European visitors might be major stockholders in various American enterprises. I have not checked my mail in a day.

Note 08/21/97 Thursday 9:00 AM EDT: KERNAL32.DLL update available from Microsoft Technical Support Help Files, Service Packs, & Other Files . Still raining, I checked certain system setups and updated Pointcast. Time to call it a day. See you all hopefully mid afternoon. CIO

Note 08/21/97 Thursday 5:55 AM EDT: Still raining. I downloaded www.adobe.com Acrobat Reader Plug in about 5 Meg. It works great with the New York Times Fax site, and I was able to print out the seven page summary with my slow laser printer in about the time it took to read it. I suggest that the New York Time print the Times Fax in horizontal form of about a third of a page at a time, so it is easier to read off a monitor without having to scroll down long narrow columns. I received another www.msn.com startup disk, but I don't have a CDROM player to use. www.microsoft.com is taking orders for $5 to order the finished Microsoft Explorer 4.0 on the CDROM available on September 30, 1997. I imagine they will have quite a bit more content on it. I suggest that Microsoft give it away at stores for a token $1 or whatever cost of CDROM production is in order to fully promote the product. It is a worthy competitor to Netscape which I have used more since I was working with their bookmark system which Microsoft does not offer. My text to speech demos are simply a demonstration and are not meant to reflect any disrespect or humor. One has to realize that voice impaired individuals might be interested in the concept or even foreign language speaking individuals with a written ability in English. Remember to free up files in the C:\Windows\Temporary Internet Files\ and the C:\Windows\Temp\ directories. There are a lot of unnecessary files residing there. I freed up 50 megs of file space. Of course don't delete your plugins when asked to save them. I noticed with the 15 inch monitor the Times Fax and Adobe Plug in are easier to read. I believe a lot of U. S. Government Documents are printed and published with the Adobe Reader or at least were at one time. I believe Microsoft would like to replace the HTML with the Microsoft Word format on the internet as a universal way of publishing, lets wait and see. Enough Constant Comment. The numbers 888 was in my hard drive free space return and also on my odometer this evening. CIO

Note 08/21/97 Thursday 2:10 AM EDT: Major weather pattern this morning. Lots of rain in the area. High tide is two feet from the top of the sea wall down by the harbor. Apparently two weather patterns converged over Ocean City, Maryland causing a northeastern type storm. Present forecast is for storm to end this afternoon. No wind to speak of, estimate 5 inches of rain so far. I don't know if there is flooding in Old Greenwich. Telephone truck has been working on the post road downtown for the last 24 hours. I had home made Chinese dinner. I watched "12 O'clock High" with Gregory Peck. The town looks slow. There are a number of "GB" stickers on cars around town this morning. Rain continues in usual pattern for this type of storm. There was a distinct lack of nautical bird life on Tuesday when I was out on the water. Not many people out down town this past evening in the rain. I stopped by the Greenwich Harbor Inn and they seem to be at their usual state of awareness as to the weather patterns. There was a Coast Guard cutter in the harbor on Tuesday that I did not see this morning. The Readers Digest Atlas I have has the geographical map of the world including North America showing the Atlantic shelf and where I believe it goes closer to the coast as one goes up north. I will have to refresh my memory. I chatted with a gal from England on Iphone 5.0 yesterday afternoon and the program seems to work all right. I have to tell people I am a 150 yards from a trans Atlantic cable here, so technically there is not much in between in terms of internet traffic when I use the system at the non busy hours in the UK. A visitor at the Greenwich Harbor Inn is very well briefed on weather patterns along the Atlantic sea board. Technically a tidal wave can not be any higher than the water is deep depending on where one is located. Obviously some people have never surfed. I believe in Hawaii they have 100 foot waves in three feet of water, so it does not make since to me. Of course here in Greenwich we are relatively protected by Long Island. The highest point of land in the area is Bedford, New York in this area and the altitude keeps on rising all the way up to Montreal, of course with lots of rain there could be flooding in the river and stream basins which might not be happening near the ocean. The most major flooding I ever saw in this area in 35 years was three feet of water where the Greenwich High School is. Of course with lots of rain one always worries about the Valhalla Dam over in Valhalla, New York which is made out of large blocks of stone and looks very solid, but a dam is only as strong as the bedrock I assume it rests on. Of course the lush green grass on the lower side of the dam indicates quite a lot of underground seepage. I believe the Conyers farm reservoir has been rebuilt recently. At present I think I am between five and twenty feet above sea level, and of course my apartment is on the second floor. Thus I don't think there is too much to worry about in this area, but of course with lots of people away we don't have all the regular personnel that we are use to having in this area. The day time crew is more vigilant. CIO

Note 08/20/97 Wednesday 8:30 PM EDT: I had breakfast and cleaned up. I made a couple of RealAudio files of the Bell Labs text to speech site converted into RealAudio format. Look at mrscott.com/belllabs.htm to see the demonstration. I opened the window to air out the apartment. It looked like it rained today and is nice and cool. Note to use the Bell Labs text to speech site, you need to delete " _ - : characters out of the text of your message. Also words should not be in all caps.

Note 08/20/97 Wednesday 5:30 PM EDT: Awake updated Pointcast. At 11:00 AM while I was sleeping, a stockbroker from Dean Witter called me and wanted to know if I would be interested in attending an investment seminar sponsored by Dean Witter at Giovanni's' restaurant in Stamford. I chatted with him about the economy and explained that I do not own stocks. I am just now starting my day. Perhaps I will go out soon.

Note 08/20/97 Wednesday 7:00 AM EDT: I used the Bell Labs Text-to-Speech site to make a *.wav file of a paragraph of text, however I setup the Netscape 3.0 browser to chose launch a *.wav file with c:\windows\sndrec32.exe , so when the Bell Labs *.wav file came back about 1 Meg, it was able to be saved with the sndrec32.exe program. I save it in radio quality. I then used the RealAudio Encoder 3.0 to encode the 1 Meg file in 3.0 full response file about 80 Kbytes long. mrscott.com/bellms01.ram is the result.

Note 08/20/97 Wednesday 6:00 AM EDT: I beta tested IE 4.0 beta 2 for a while this morning. It is working fine. I tried the Bell Labs Speech program, but I need to use Netscape to setup to receive sound with a recordable player. IE 4 uses the default player. I installed the DJ player. iPhone 5.0 disk caches all the time on my system, and is slow and I still have not established voice connection with it, but it does look like it would be better if one had more memory and a faster system. Montserrat activity is in the news. I am burned out again, time to go to bed. Give my best to the day time people.

Note 08/20/97 Wednesday 2:00 AM EDT: I was chatting with the movie theatre manager this evening, and I told him they should make a Hollywood Disaster Movie of a tidal wave caused by an earthquake or asteroid hitting the east coast of the United States or West Coast of Europe with scenes of the Cape Islands like Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard being flooded by the tidal wave. If one reads Melville's description of Nantucket in Moby Dick it sounds like the island had just been hit by a similar tidal wave. This is not a plot to sell land in the Midwest but it is of worthy consideration considering the large populations on the Atlantic coasts. I've seen more of the ocean coasts than a lot of people and one always knows the sea is a fickle friend. CIO

Note 08/20/97 Wednesday 1:45 AM EDT: I have finally got my system back up to max internet speed. After all the reinstallation of the networks and DUN upgrade I did last night, this evening I ran MS Internet Explorer 4.0 Setup and did a complete install again which does not take that much time, since it only reinstalls files that have changed. Number 1 it installed a newer "winsock.dll" than the DUN version, also it reconfigures and optimizes ones system. One has to reboot after the program installation to get the new "winsock.dll" to install. Also I changed my "MTU" setting mentioned in note two weeks ago from their default multiplier of 5 to 6. Thus I optimize it, then set MTU to 1152 and multiplier of 6. I am now getting 8+ KBS download speeds from my test page my Ohio site. I download the "ibm01.htm" page which is over 700 Kbytes and watch the stats with the Netscape web browser 3.0 and that gives me the KBS. Thus I am back up to speed. I hope to have time to fiddle with FrontPage 98 some time soon. IBM free 800 number access still working. CIO

Note 08/20/97 Wednesday 12:30 AM EDT: This past evening I stopped by Manero's Restaurant meat department and ordered a steak sandwich for $4.50 and went over to the Island Beach Ferry at 6 PM and rode it out and back to Island Beach on a very pleasant evening picnic. One of my fellow passengers recommended that I read "The Perfect Storm" by Younger which I have now reserved at the Greenwich library. This evening I read the computer trade press at the local library and then went down town for a walk. Greenwich on Tuesday night usually is very slow with a number of younger people out for the movies and a smaller group of visitors around town. Center cut pork chops are $3.99 a pound at the Grand Union, Stauffer's French Bread Pizza is 2 boxes for $5.00, Tropicana Orange Juice is $2.50 a half gallon, plum tomatoes, green peppers other various items are 10 cents apiece, Post Honey Bunches $2.00 a box. One needs the Grand Union savings card to take advantage of sale items and one can obtain the card from the service desk. The price for premium gasoline is about $1.69 a gallon. The hospital thrift shop has a round oak reproduction table and chairs for $400, and a very long modern glass dining table which one would need a moving company to move. I am trying to relax a little while the weather is pleasant in the mid to low 70's F., which is quite enjoyable for this time of year. The library still has limited parking, hopefully more will be available in the next couple of weeks, but construction is running behind. ELDC thrift has a number of modern furniture items, and there is a new antique shop in the same shopping plaza with a number of vintage items. Local news stories seem to revolve around the police department. Mercedes showroom is still under renovation. I drove by Tod's Point on Sunday and it is still a pleasant environment with great vistas of Long Island Sound. I suppose a great many people are away or with this excellent weather they are simply being more active with day time activities surrounding numerous sporting activities in town. Once the business community returns from vacation the normal level activity will resume in town. The air quality was quite good today without pollution. The new monitor is much easier to work with since it is easier to read. Remember I am trying to relax a little bit and take time away from the internet, but maintain my usual routines within the community particularly while the weather is more pleasant. CIO

Note 08/19/97 Tuesday 4:40 PM EDT: I acquired a discarded 15 inch Compaq 151 FS monitor. It works great on my system and will be a lot easier on the eyes. I'd say it has about 35 % larger screen area and fills the entire screen. Well I guess today is my day. I am airing out the apartment. I plan to go out for a little fresh air myself. Thanks guys.

Note 08/19/97 Tuesday 2:00 PM EDT: I updated the short bookmark today, mrscott.com/bm.htm with a few interesting links. I am having to use the IBM 800 backup number since the White Plains number is experiencing trouble. It was one of the nice features of IBM.net access is that they give you a free backup 800 number when their local connection is not working properly. I am out to do errands after I clean up. I have not been out since Sunday evening. CIO

Note 08/19/97 Tuesday 3:00 AM EDT: I worked on tweaking the system for about six hours tonight and this morning with no success. I figure out the internet is getting busier with people returning from vacation and heading back to school. I am getting about 5 KBS from the Ohio Scott's site and the same from the Florida site. I downloaded <http://www.vocaltec.com> Vocal Tec's Iphone 5.0 and installed it, but I could not get it to log onto their server, but I still have 4.5 to fall back on which works just fine. I guess I will have to adjust the settings for 5.0 . I am tired after cleaning the apartment while downloading the program. I guess the system is about as good as I can set it up. I am using the Win95 TCP/IP dialer instead of the IBM dialer, which keep trying to redial after I disconnect. It also uses more resources. Perhaps with a little rest and relaxation it will all seem all right. I have not been outside today, but will try to errands tomorrow afternoon. If there is a site for monitoring the state of the net let me know. I am sure some people will enjoy the addition of the bookmarks to the directory, but I don't plan to work on the bookmarks or the directory anymore. The stats off the Florida server don't justify all the work I have put into the directory over the last three years. Ciao. CIO.

Note 08/18/97 Monday 7:00 PM EDT: I edited the bookmark add-on to eliminate Netscape date code and made the page background light yellow and made bold blue links. I also incorporated the bookmark into the scott004.zip download file. I have decided not to post the files scott004.exe and scott4.zip since no one was downloading them. There are about 54,000 links in the overall group of files. This will be the last major update of the directory, however I will continue posting short lists of bookmarks as I collect them on the bookmark page, mrscott.com/bm.htm . CIO

Note 08/18/97 Monday 3:00 AM EDT: I created a Bookmarks Alphabetized add-on to Scott's downloadable directory. Download Bookmark Add-on to Scott's Internet Hotlist "bookalph.zip", 345,784 bytes, unzip into same directory as Scott's Internet Hotlist, such as "c:\scott", new opening page with bookmark link will overwrite existing opening page, "scotlist.htm". File contains an additional 9,000 links alphabetized into separate files.

Note 08/29/97 Friday 5:20 AM EDT: Updated a few random links in the <http://mrscott.com/bm.htm> page. I surfed the net briefly. I added For Security Contact Wells Fargo link to my homepage. Wells Fargo is probably the best private security agency in the United States besides being a bank. They have over a hundred years of experience. At the Greenwich Country Club a year ago the Wells Fargo security guard was a nice old gent who looked like Ronald Reagan. Get the picture. Needless to say many prominent old timers like to moonlight particularly around their grandchildren, so as to keep an eye on them. Last night , the night before tonight, I spotted a yellow Honda Civic with Florida plates with blackout windows entering into town, perhaps it is another youngster coming up from Disney country to visit us. One of the best night time security jobs in the summer is probably night watchman at the Steamship Authority on Nantucket, you get lots of time to chat with kids who don't have a place to stay on the island. Being a security guard around any university campuses can be amusing, particularly like a great many professional university security personnel who have worked dozens of campuses around the world in their careers. Enough of constant comment, time to check the morning rush. CIO

Note 08/29/97 Friday 3:00 AM EDT: I continue to receive email from porn site trying to get me to log on. I emailed the White House to have the Secret Service stop the harassment. Greenwich is quiet, lots of people taking holiday. Library was empty this evening. I imagine a number of universities in the area are going back into session. I will surf the internet this evening a bit for fun. If out at night in Greenwich beware of the large skunk population around town. The area down by the water off Steamboat Road is inundated with a large population of a family of skunks. I have not seen Morris the cat on Greenwich Avenue this summer. In reply to local experts on interior decoration, I recommend the English Country look. Famous decorators such as David Hicks, Billy Baldwin, and Elsie de Wolfe Mendal have succeeded famously with the English Country look. Basically the English Country look is what ever you happen to have lying around of decent quality tastefully organized to suit a comfortable lifestyle and enjoyable home. Vitamins this week are half price at CVS, also garlic tablets which might be good for arthritis are available for half price. Relatives are arriving in Kennebunkport today, so I imagine the town will be happy to see them. I am so near sided like Mr. McGoo I don't recognize any famous people are political celebrities, and living here in the New York area lots of people look alike. I imagine the day time family people will be out and about tomorrow and this weekend getting ready for school. Library is closed on Friday night and I believe this Sunday. It should be open during those periods after Labor Day. Parking lot still is not completed. Remember I hardly every watch television, and the next economic curtailment I will probably make is to have the Cablevision disconnected. Also my VCRs doesn't work. Have a good holiday weekend. CIO

Note 08/28/97 Thursday 7:00 AM EDT: Lots of rain clouds over town. Looks like we will be getting lots of rain, and the town will be maintaining their inside routines until the monsoon passes. Morning traffic reflects quite a few people go to work at 5:30 AM in the morning around here. Quite a few familiar faces out in the morning. I am going to bed now, I have to be up at 1:00 PM to make a 3:00 PM appointment. Enjoy the rainy day, some people live in the rain quite a lot and are use to it. CIO

Note 08/28/97 Thursday 4:20 AM EDT: Created separate stats page linked from homepage. Ordered MS Internet Explorer 4.0 CDROM for $5. CIO

Note 08/28/97 Thursday 3:20 AM EDT: I received email on family reunion of mom's family, Boven Reunion. All is quiet in Greenwich with a few kids haunting the streets at night. I drove with a friend around back country this afternoon. Lots of new houses have been built. The Greenwich Country Club is green and as well manicured as ever. Oldest members are a prominent local Dutch family. Needless to say the teenagers I saw playing golf are trying to maintain a quiet respectful retreat. I believe Jerry Ford and General William Westmoreland are life time honorary members of the club. Alas the Internal Revenue Service will no longer let business members write off club dues off their income tax. Still it is fun to remember the good old days of corporate memberships. I guess now one can write off second homes as tax deductions, so certain people are away at their second homes. Needless to say, I got a little time off the computer this evening. I am not to surprised to see my stock portfolio go down, but remember it is just an economic portfolio of bell weather stocks, and I don't pretend to be a Wall Street wiz, or I would not be living in my present circumstances. I have been reassured that most of our full time residents will return from their summer hideaways after Labor Day. I know of one local individual that claims to know someone that lives in Montserrat, but I have not seen any tan faces around this area. I expect the winter to be mild. They are still working on the roof on my building. I am surprised the historical district commission let the housing authority remove the beautiful old slate roof to replace it with ugly asphalt shingles. Lots of used slate for sale. I guess the black shingles will attract more heat in the winter and keep the building warmer. It costs several thousand dollars a year to maintain a slate roof, but they last forever, where the new half million dollar roof will wear out in 15 to 20 years depending on what quality shingles they use. Once they start banging over my part of the building I will probably get on a day schedule. I have to keep an eye out for relatives traveling in the area today. I have not done much computer work this evening. I made a boneless chicken breast Chinese meal of onion and green pepper and corn on brown rice meal this evening that will last several days. Hope you all are enjoying your vacation. The Greenwich library was not busy this past evening. CIO

Note 08/27/97 Wednesday 9:40 AM EDT: I did 19 hours of systems maintenance work this morning and yesterday. I eliminated the Netware error at startup by installing Netware Network and deinstalling it. I backed up the computer with some hassle. I have not been out in a couple of days. Not much else to report. I checked with our local political representatives yesterday afternoon about them resuming paying for the heat in my building and they just gave me the run around like they have for the last year. Right now conditions are pleasant in my smoked filled room, but come winter I dare say they will be torturing me again. Basically the Fascists have taken over Greenwich or it might be possibly some sort of mafia like the Russian, Irish, or Italian mafia, but needless to say they all hate my guts, except they are afraid of my relatives elsewhere in the country. That is all for now folks. Greenwich is a center of a lot of public relations for people and groups who don't want to be bothered. Have fun on you vacations. CIO

Note 08/26/97 Tuesday 1:40 AM EDT: Phone call at noon from Texas woke me up yesterday. I made 4:00 PM appointment. I had a dinner guest. I went downtown a couple of times this past evening and this morning. The town is very quiet which is typical for a Monday or a Tuesday night. Weather is in the mid 60's F. in the night. I suppose there is more activity in the daytime, but night people don't really care. Nothing unusual to report. Roofers are still working on the roof on the building. I think the Federal or State government should live up to their moral responsibility and pay for the electric heat in this building instead of having 55 elderly and disabled people freeze in the winter. Obviously the local state officials don't care that much about our well being. Under the Americans with Disabilities Act, which is law, they have violated our rights. Something is rotten in Denmark. CIO

Note 08/25/97 Monday 7:00 AM EDT: I'm a little bushed. I had to reinstall my network, going through the procedure mentioned before in these notes. The new version of the IBM.NET dialer continues to mess up my networking system, slowing the system and also causing the system not to authenticate when I reconnect after having it freeze on the IBM.NET access. It takes me 11 1/2 hours for this procedure. The system is back up to optimized speed. 8.8 Kbytes a second on my test page. If interested scan these notes for the procedure. Lot of new news on Montserrat. My viewpoint is that if the birds and other nature have disappeared from the island, man should have common sense to get off. I have to go to bed. CIO

Note 08/25/97 Monday 3:30 AM EDT: I surfed the net this morning. I chatted with a friend about horses. I emailed the Scott Polar Lab in the U.K.. I will update Pointcast and call it a day.

Note 09/07/97 Sunday 10:30 PM EDT: I watched Princess Diana's funeral on Saturday morning. I went for a drive on Saturday afternoon. I had a friend over for coffee Saturday night. I got up at noon on Sunday and cleaned my apartment and watered the plants. I went out to a friend's for dinner on Sunday evening. We had a light sprinkle on Sunday evening. We might get more rain. The Greenwich library is still closed on Sundays. I plan to relax for the rest of the evening after checking my email.

Note 09/05/97 Friday 11:00 PM EDT: I made a recording of the ABC's Real Audio broadcast of Queen Elizabeth II's, Princess Diana Remembrance Speech and placed it on my web sites. This afternoon I went out to Tod's Point and walked around and relaxed for a couple hours. I had a dinner guest over for dinner. I spent the rest of the evening working on the recording and am about to go to bed, so I can be up early. CIO

Note 09/05/97 Friday 9:15 AM EDT: Up at 6 a.m. this morning. I finished typing the Greenwich, Connecticut Religious Faith Forum which is taken from a page in the Greenwich Post. I might stop by Tod's Point this afternoon. CIO

Note 09/04/97 Thursday 6:25 PM EDT: Surfed the net a bit this morning and read Pointcast. I had a cross linked file in my c:\windows\system and I fixed it by using the bootable disk and running scan disk. You can't fix a cross linked windows system file while it is running. I went downtown after a hour nap at noon and paid my $28 cablevision bill. Lots of people out and about. A good day for sitting in the park downtown. I stopped by the Hospital thrift shop and they are having the usual half price sale. I rerun a mirror outside my bathroom door. I read the computer press in the Greenwich library. The usual cross section of the regular library group was there. They are still working on the parking lot, but I found a spot after 3 PM. Work is progressing on the roof of my building. I think one of my ignition wires might be shorting with another, I untangled them; and hopefully that will fix the clicking sound. I am just about to update mrscott.com/scopor01.htm my daily stock report. I am having a guest down for dinner at 7:30 PM tonight. The Greenwich Post has news about Polo events in the area. There is a listing of church times in the Greenwich Post for those of you who have time to go to church on Sunday. Perhaps some time I will copy the directory and post it on my site. That all for now folks. CIO

Note 09/04/97 Thursday 7:55 AM EDT: www.bild.de photo of Princess Diane's Accident aftermath. Photo is blurry. CIO

Note 09/04/97 Thursday 6:00 AM EDT: Vitamins I take every morning: 1 Spectravite Multivitamin, Niacimide 500 Mg., E 400 IU USP, B50, B12 250 Mcg., C 500 Mg., Zinc 50 Mg., Odorless Garlic 1250 Mg., Acetaminophens 500 Mg., Risperdral 1Mg..

Note 09/04/97 Thursday 5:00 AM EDT: Up at 4:00 AM and had breakfast. I slept from 6:00 PM last night. Watched CSPAN program about OPEN SOURCE SOLUTIONS, Inc. before logging onto the computer. I will do a little routine system work this morning. Breakfast usually consists of 8 vitamins, hot or cold cereal, two slices of toast or one English muffin, 12 oz. orange juice, and 12 oz. of coffee with nutrasweet and half and half. I spotted a back packer hiking the Post Road by the Grand Union yesterday about noon. CIO

Note 09/03/97 Wednesday 5:00 PM EDT: Up since 2 AM. I mailed ATT answering phone to Maine. I returned CDs to library. I bought a $31.80 4' X 3' mirror with curved top at MEWS thrift shop and hung it beneath marlin in the apartment with $6 hardware. I have not been on the internet since 9AM. Greenwich is quiet with old guard about town. The library was moderately busy. The parking lot still has a way to go. It is nice cool mid 70's day. Best of wishes to ill relatives, wish all speedy recovery. Started listening to music again while in the apartment and on the computer which is very relaxing. I am trying to focus on local activity to neglect of following other events. Repair of roof seems to be progressing on schedule. There was a good wind for sailing today. CIO

Note 09/03/97 Wednesday 8:55 AM EDT: Tuesday morning I paid bills. I made the rounds around town, and lots of young children were out going back to school. I slept a lot on Tuesday. I surfed the net Wednesday morning chatting with a person in Tucson, Arizona who told me they arrested on average 500 people a night on drunken driving charges. I also chatted with a person in Seattle who told me that there is some concern about volcanic activity around Mount Rainier. I downloaded the July version of sound drivers for my Creative Labs SW32 and installed them. I chatted with a Vocal Tec developer and told him on my system that Iphone disk caches too much. One of the tech newsletters listed the tabloid links in Germany that publish the censored Diana photographs which I will link BILD online , primarily to inhibit young people from trying to ride in automobiles with drunken drivers. Microsoft also has a new German site with ZD, ZDF.MSNBC Titelseite . Other news the system is running perfectly fine, but while the weather is nice today I might rest this morning and try to go out and enjoy some nice weather. I have started reading Arthur C. Clarke's 3001, which I hope to get through. The fellow in Tucson told me that he was able to buy an internet color camera there for $40. I dare say that someone might object to the BILD online link, if they do email me and I will delete it. It will only take one email for it to be deleted.

Note 09/01/97 Monday 10:30 PM EDT: I was contacted 11:30 PM on Saturday about Princess Diane's accident. I followed the media coverage on CNN on Sunday morning.

When they announced her passing away on at 4:00 AM EDT on Sunday morning, I posted her picture in mourning black on my internet homepage. I rested on Sunday and watched more media coverage. I cleaned my apartment while I was watching media coverage. I went to bed on Sunday night and got up Monday morning. I had a guest over for the day who watched television all day. We had shell steaks for dinner which were on sale at the Grand Union today. My British categories seem to be very busy on my internet site. I had a headache today from the large amount of automobile pollution in the area caused by people returning from holiday. CIO

Note 09/12/97 Friday 2:40 PM EDT: Copy of email to the White House:

To: 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue Internet Group:

I continue to work on the computer and make the usual rounds in Greenwich. I chatted with a hippie type fellow down on Steamboat Road at the pier yesterday. He said he was a local housepainter here and had lived in Key West, Florida for ten years. He said he was part of the group that uses marijuana that I don't approve of.

He told me something that I heard when I lived in Key West. He said that one could be murdered down there for $5. I was told that by people when I was there from 1976 to 1978 in the winter. Back then I was told that they also kill priests down there. Having lived down there I determined that was probably a lot of hippie propaganda.

However the hippie told me there is Marijuana festival going on in Burlington, Vermont. He also alleged that President Clinton had murdered 70 Secret Service Agents, that I find implausible. He also said that the drug cartel runs the White House. He seemed pretty sure of himself probably from his hippie contacts. Needless to say he and his house painting buddy are working the area.

On the Princess Di death, I propose an alternative scenario. Perhaps her security people who left with her from the Ritz hotel in two cars, had the lead car with the real Princess Diane take off in one direction from the hotel, and the backup car with the decoy group left the hotel and had the paparazzi follow them. When they entered the tunnel, the second decoy car went on, while a truck in the tunnel dropped off a wrecked vehicle quickly with crash victims and took off quickly, leaving the pursuers to see the assumed wreck. Obviously a lot of people would have to have been in on the operation.

Perhaps the rich "Dotty" who might have been a friend of the Sultan of Brunei whisked the real Princess Di out of the country to a new place of hiding and obscurity, perhaps in some location where many other relatives of the British Royal family live in obscurity.

This part about DI is just an alternative suggestion from what the media might have been misinformed. Question that don't make sense.

1. How was the body of "Dotty" thrown from the car when the crash photo shows his left rear door was still closed.
2. Why did it take a Paris ambulance one hour to drive six miles to the hospital or average of 10 miles an hour.
3. What happened to the second car in the two car entourage that left the Ritz.
4. Were the Paparazzi real paparazzi or agents of some other group.

These questions are based on watching the CNN reports and reading the internet reports.

I have not read newspaper accounts or news weekly accounts on the incident.

As my grandfather Clarence Scott use to say, "Believe Nothing that you here, and half of what you see."

Greenwich is pretty much the same as usual with lots of distinguished looking people here. My public housing building is very noisy with roof repairs going on.

The Greenwich Housing Authority sold one semi truck of Vermont slate back to Vermont, and will probably have another truck of Vermont slate in a week or two.

I can't figure out what the town does not want to keep the old slate for similar buildings. Perhaps if the White House has a slate roof you could use our old slate for repairs if you ever find it. Two fellows from India were inspecting the slate two days ago.

Joan Warburg was sited in Greenwich yesterday. She has short dark hair and a very dark tan, such that people don't recognize her. Her husband was under secretary of the treasury in the Roosevelt Administration.

Bargains in Greenwich at the Grand Union, half gallon fresh orange juice $1.

Extra large 20 oz. box of Cheerios are $2. The new Mercedes Benz from Tuscaloosa, Alabama seem to have arrived, but I think the GMC is more practical in lots of snow because it has more clearance.

I am no longer working on my internet directory, but I am maintaining my site.

I still do not have my heat paid for in the winter, so I have to look forward to another winter of freezing in my apartment at 65 degrees which averages about $120 a month a year for electricity, and when I kept it at 70 it averaged $165 a month. Needless to say with disability and chronic arthritis I would rather have it warmer in the winter if I could afford it.

Averill Harriman's nephew is now an investigator for the New York State Racing Authority. Plenty of diverse people still moving here. Bill Gate's father supposedly lives in Greenwich. Rocks are still staying private. As far as security I would imagine the Vanderbilt family are involved in owning Wells Fargo Bank and thus Wells Fargo Security.

As far as IBM, the Watson's flag is still not flying. That is my perspective, view from the poor side of town.

--

Scott's Internet Hotlist
<http://mrscott.com/>
<http://www.rcch.com/hotlist/scotlist.htm>
54,000 URLs in 132 categories
Email: <mailto:mikescott@ibm.net>

Note 09/11/97 Thursday 1:45 PM EDT: Up at noon. I went through CNET features - how to - Internet speed tweaks to check out my system. Global Exchange Carrier works fine with my Iphone 4.5 setup, but with their rates, I am not sure it is a bargain. One can test it on 800 numbers for free. Try "ping" or "tracert" with web address, such as "tracert mrscott.com from DOS window to test your ISP routing. It is raining today, and I have yet to be out. Needless to say in the rain, they are not working on the roof. CIO

Note 09/11/97 Thursday 0:30 AM EDT: I posted my mrscott.com/bmnow.htm Current Bookmarks. I also installed my OLE update for Win95 from Microsoft Technical Support Help Files, Service Packs, & Other Files. I am about to install for a test Global Exchange Carrier. I also changed the setting on my older Zoom VFP 28,800 modem by selecting, Control Panel, Modem, Modem Properties, Properties, Advanced, Advanced Connection Settings, by checking from Hardware to Software (XON/XOFF) in order to possibly stop the intermittent freezing of my connection which still happens occasionally. CIO

Note 09/10/97 Wednesday 9:00 PM EDT: I updated mrscott.com/nasa.htm today to reflect the next NASA launch. I went by the library this afternoon and some of the old guard were there, but certain regular members of the old guard were not. The library parking lot is progressing fine, and hopefully will be done within a couple of weeks before they start work on the new addition. I saw the U.S. Tobacco Skoll Racing Team Semi Truck passing by the library as I left. I read the usual four computer weekly news magazines I usually read, PC Week, Computer world, InfoWorld, Interactive Week. The weather was overcast today, and I am still on a day schedule. When backing up my system with Colorado Backup 3.0, I get a message of 600 Megabytes selected from the program when in fact the files selected are all the files and represent over 900 Megabytes. I surmise I am getting an incorrect byte count since the files selected reflect the whole hard disk. However unless I am getting better than 2:1 compression I would not be able to back up over 900 Mbytes of files on a Travan TR-1 tape, so it is still a question. I will have to study the Cheyenne Colorado backup program site to see if any information is posted about this. I finally got a backup of my system by following these directions:

INSTALLING THE HP COLORADO T1000e TAPE DRIVE

Special instructions for installing the HP Colorado T1000e in Windows 95:

1. Power down your computer.
2. Power up your computer.
3. Install the T1000e's data cable.
4. Install the T1000e's power cable.
5. Insert a tape into the drive.
6. Follow the Installation Guide's directions for Installing the Software.

If you are having problems:

- A. Click the Uninstall icon.
- B. Right-click on the My Computer icon.
- C. Click the Device Manager tab.
- D. Verify that the HPTAPE and TAPEDRIVE sections are deleted.
- E. Go to step one above.

Note 09/10/97 Wednesday 11:00 AM EDT: Yesterday afternoon I tuned up a friend's 1977 Volvo. I also installed new ignition wires on my 1976 Volvo. I have about 95,000 miles on my Volvo. My Volvo is making a clicking sound when I go up hills. It is possibly the timing, but until I can get around to having the timing checked, I put a bottle of STP fuel injection cleaner in the car and filled up the tank. The car seems to be clicking less. We're have to wait and see. I tried backing up the computer, and the backup program keeps quitting in mid progress. I may have to buy a new backup tape. I took a friend for a drive last night. I am on a daytime schedule. The roofers have done about half the roof and are still working on gutter flashing. They have brought in lots of bricks to fix the chimneys. They also brought in plywood, I assume for the roof. On Monday they loaded up a semi truck full of the used slate and shipped it back up to Vermont. I assume the rest of the roof slate will fill up another semi truck full of slate. On Tuesday night at 10:00 PM, Greenwich was totally quiet without much happening. There was a lot of air pollution. The Greenwich Times keeps having articles about the Greenwich Police Department, but I have not had time to read them. All quiet on the Eastern Front. I received email that the *.tiff files posted by NASA GOES linked in my current bookmark can not be read with a regular *.tiff viewer. CIO

Note 09/09/97 Tuesday 11:30 AM EDT: On Monday I put Netscape 4.03 Professional Version on my system. I am having trouble making a backup of the system and need to clean my tape drive. On Tuesday morning I updated mrscott.com/bm.htm with more links from the current bookmark link. I listened to www.ttalk.com for what was happening in the computer world. I have a number of NASA links in my current bookmark including GEO ones. Greenwich is pretty much the same as always. I will probably spend the rest of the day reading the computer press in our local library. CIO

Note 09/21/97 Sunday 7:00 AM EDT: I chatted all night and morning on Iphone. I am chatted out. Off to bed. CIO

Note 09/20/97 Saturday 5:30 PM EDT: Last night I walked around downtown Greenwich with the French military. There were lots of New York city people out from town having dinner and going to movies. I noticed in the old Pickwick Plaza across from the new library, they have a new mini mall with a patisserie, dress shops, spa, and a Kinko's. The Kinko's has IBM computers to use, scanning facilities, courtesy telephones, free coffee, and of course the usual copy services. They are open 24 hours a day seven days a week. The French soldier suggested a Kinko's would be handy to have at the French airports not to mention any other airports that might be busy. I chatted with our rep from the University of Alabama and told him about my travels around America. I mentioned that Lady Bird Johnson was still around down in Texas, and I believe Susan Ford was living in Tulsa. There was a young fellow sleeping on a bench downtown about midnight, I suppose he had to much to drink. The weather was good for strolling. I noticed a number of stores are under renovation on Greenwich Avenue. I believe the Baccarat Crystal Glass showroom is throwing a $400 a plate fund raiser for the Greenwich library tonight across from their showroom at the bank. It should bring the black tie crowd downtown. There should be a heightened security presence in town this evening if I have my dates right. I chatted with the wife of an Italian general about volcanoes at the Grand Union. Planet Pizza next to the train station has pizza downtown, however I usually buy a Tony's frozen pizza at the Grand Union at the end of the night. I have not seen many young people downtown, so I suppose they are all watching television and using the internet. CNN reports that this years El Nino is suppose to cause coastal flooding in California and other unusual weather patterns around the world. I keep having a recurring nightmare or a vision of a tidal wave some place in the world, lets hope it is not real. I keep thinking the conventional wisdom that Long Island was formed by a glacial deposits might not be right, since there is mostly sand deposits out there, and thus it could have been formed by some huge tidal wave before European settlement hundreds of years ago. I also worry about the Valhalla Dam not holding back the reservoir and having most of Westchester County flooded if it ever gave way. I suppose after over a hundred years and enlarging the reservoir, the Valhalla Dam might not be as strong as some people would like to believe, although I assume it was built on bedrock. Still there is quite a bit of water behind it that could flood out all the new office complexes around Terrytown, if it ever did give way. Greenwich seems the same as ever, with the usual level of weekend evening activity. Also not to mention the old twenty plus year old Nuclear Reactors in Connecticut are a constant state of worriment, since no one knows how safe they are, and they are probably long due to be shut down. However with General Electric and Asea Brown Boveri in the area, I would assume some of their personnel would know the real state of the nuclear reactors. I did notice when I went to the Watson Research facility in Fishkill, New York two years ago, there were signs posted along the highway the said "Warning, Nuclear Contamination Area". Perhaps it was some sort of joke, since there has been nothing about it in the papers. CIO

Note 09/19/97 Friday 1:50 PM EDT: I deleted Microsoft Publisher beta to free up hard disk space. I also deleted all Netscape Cache files, and mail trash files, and c:\windows\temp and c:\windows\temporaryinternetfiles and thus freed up 150 meg hard disk space and now have 190 meg hard disk space free. I backed up my system. I am having a lazy day not doing much. CIO

Note 09/18/97 Thursday 8:00 PM EDT: I posted my biography "Scott's Biography" that I wrote a number of years ago, and have not updated in several years. CIO

Note 09/18/97 Thursday 8:45 AM EDT: I added The 7am News Ticker to the top of my homepages. I also looked at www.ttalk.com new internet site. I need to free up some disk space on my hard drive, and then I will go out a bit this morning.

Note 09/18/97 Thursday 6:15 AM EDT: Ttalk IBM John Patrick audio interview on the Future of Internet Technology. Excellent interview. Must listen. CIO

Note 09/18/97 Thursday 4:30 AM EDT: I was woken up at noon and 4:30 PM yesterday by a relative who wanted me to check Southwest Airlines Home Gate where you can buy tickets over the net. I finally got up at midnight this morning. I had breakfast at 6:30 PM earlier and had lunch at 1:00 AM. I went for a walk on Greenwich Avenue at 2:00 AM to 4:00 AM. I chatted with the night desk clerk at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. They have two nice yachts in port. I noticed the underpass lights on Steamboat Road underneath the turnpike are not working and it is quite dark there. They need to be fixed. While walking the upper part of Greenwich Avenue, I noticed the dumpster in front of the old "Favorite Shoe Store" does not have night lights behind it at night which could be a traffic hazard. I noticed several street lights on Greenwich Avenue were not working. Also the street light on the end of Steamboat Road by the rear of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club was not working. Only a few people were out and about. I stopped by the all night Grand Union. Soda is $1 a six pack plus deposit. Mums are $3.50, boneless breast of chicken is $2.99 a pound, broccoli is $1 a head. I like Tony's deep dish frozen pizza for $2.50. I had ham steak Florentine for lunch, and I probably will have a pizza for dinner about 6 AM. I will be out this morning for a while possibly from 8 AM to noon. The Greenwich Library has lots of new information on their site along with Community Answers Databases at the Greenwich Libraries . I noticed the new Mercedes Benz Imported Cars of Greenwich showroom is completed and has the new Mercedes four wheel drive vehicle on display. I also found a site <http://www.navigation-station.com/princess-diana-conspiracy.htm> which you conspiracy theorists might find interesting, but it is busy most if the time. I posted a copy of the Princess Diana funeral web cast <http://mrscott.com/dfuneral.ram> on my web site. I took the *.wav file from Britain in the USA: Radio Services and use the Win95 Recorder to increase the volume, and I then encoded it with the RealAudio encoder and posted it. Now you can hear it the broadcast and save it if you desire. The flowers on Greenwich Avenue are still in bloom and look very nice around the post office and the veterans monument downtown. The Greenwich Police are maintaining their usual high level of surveillance. The Food Emporium is also open 24 hours along with the Grand Union, Colonial Diner, Cumberland Farms, Kinko's, Shell and Texaco Gas Stations. Of course the hospital, police, EMT, and hotel employees along with the fire department are awake at night along with U.S. postal employees. Today looks like it will be humid in the mid 80's along with early morning fog. Their was a very light drizzle this morning. The roofers are still working on my building along with drainage work. Most common question on Greenwich Avenue is "How to get to I-95?". CIO

Note 09/17/97 Wednesday 12:00 AM EDT: I was out at 6 PM this past evening. The roof is progressing well and they are digging a trench in front of the building. I read the computer press in the library. I noticed three comfortable yachts at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. They also have a bicycle group riding from Portland, Maine to Orlando, Florida. The number of Ryder Rental trucks dropped off in town is up, so more young people are moving in. Greenwich avenue was moderately busy this past weekend. My portfolio mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was up. Needless to say this is just a bellwethers portfolio, I don't actually own the stocks. I put Pennzoil Gumout fuel injection cleaner in my car this evening and filled the car up at Greenwich Exxon. The library parking lot is still being worked on. The worst thing about today was there was a lot of pollution in town which was practically unbearable. The Greenwich Police are now maintaining foot patrols on Greenwich Avenue at night. Starbucks was not too busy this evening. There is a full moon tonight, so I imagine a few witches and warlocks will be prowling the town howling at the moon. I plan to catch up on a little internet work this evening. That is all folks. CIO

Note 09/16/97 Tuesday 5:00 AM EDT: Installed Publisher97 Trial Version for Windows 95 & NT 4.0 - US English Version - Download Page . I uninstalled Colorado 3.0 and put Colorado 1.70 back on since it is a more reliable backup program. 1.70 worked fine. I did my laundry this evening and it was slow downtown this evening. Back to sleep. CIO

Note 09/15/97 Monday 5:45 PM EDT: Up at 2:30 PM and had breakfast and paid my telephone bill for $59. Bank of New York has online banking for $35 to $45 a month which is a little pricey if you are like me and only pay three bills a month. They are still working hard on the roof. Tomorrow they are digging a trench in the driveway to provide better drainage for the building, one will have to park by the skating rink. I have cleaned my apartment. After I post this message, I will shower and go out and enjoy the evening. I received a free IBM t-shirt today that I sent up to Maine. Greenwich seems busy as usual. If one hates waiting downtown at the post office, the post office off West Putnam avenue is much faster. I noticed Microsoft was down 7 1/2 points today. IBM was down only 1 1/2 points today. Last boat to island beach will be leaving in a few minutes. Mostly same old routine. CIO

Note 09/15/97 Monday 4:13 AM EDT: I had a relaxing weekend. I did not bother turning on the computer for a couple of days. I road the Island Beach Ferry out to the island. Monday today is the last day of the island beach ferry. The roof is progressing well. They are still working above my apartment. I had a dinner guest down. I chatted with an acquaintance about France. Lots of Greenwich people were out for the United Way party. Supposedly 10,000 people road bicycles by my building while I was asleep on Sunday. I am on a night schedule. Grand Union and Food Emporium have been closed after midnight for shopping. Greenwich was very quiet on Sunday evening. I have not surfed the net very much, so I don't have much to report. People have been asking me about Lake Forest, Illinois. I suppose they are looking for less expensive property or more private property than Greenwich. Perhaps the old wisdom of living in the interior of the country is occurring to some recent arrivals from Europe, or they just want to see it. Lots of Europeans at Tod's Point on Sunday evening. There seems to be a lot of Polish in the area. Relative has returned from Maine to Texas. Sailboat "Nordic Joan" was seen on Greenwich harbor. "Our Toy" is at Greenwich Harbor Inn along with "Glory". There is an old Chris Craft boat on the harbor. There are two new cigarette boats for sale on the Mianus River road. They have a new parking lot at the Bush Holley House. The library is still closed on Sundays until October, but it is open on Friday night. My doctor is still visiting in Spain. I need to get a prescription for pills to quit smoking. I am trying to figure out whether I should continue Cablevision since I never watch television, but I guess I can keep it around for guests for a while. Local friend made money on the stock market. Most houses in the area seem to have high Radon levels from large Rock formations in the area. Probably many former family houses have Radon problems. A Scottish bag piper was seen playing the pipes walking up and down Greenwich Avenue this evening. He seemed to be in pretty good shape. Lots and lots of little kids seen around town this weekend. Ritchie Havens did a United Way concert this past weekend. I chatted with a Jamaican about Bauxite in Jamaica, and he said there were lots of Germans in Jamaica. I believe Jamaica also has Cobalt that is used in Cobalt Steel. I don't know the status of Jamaica's current volcanic activity if any. I assume it is volcanic. The temperate is 70s in the day time and 50s at night. Lots of New York yuppies at the Dome Restaurant on Saturday night for beverages. CVS pharmacy in Riverside Shopping Center is now open all night for pharmacy prescriptions. It seems like many Latino workers have gone back south for the winter. Local Episcopal Church sent a trailer of supplies to a technical school in Honduras for orphan boys. Greenwich police are maintaining usual excellent patrol in the area. I plan to clean my apartment and water the plants when I wake up on Monday afternoon. Former French soldier in the area seems to know quite a bit about France and speaks English well. All quiet on the Eastern Front. English historian spotted this weekend. CIO

Note 09/30/97 Tuesday 11:55 AM EDT: Microsoft Internet Explorer Products Download for final release of IE 4.0. I checked with people down in Washington D.C. . If you have intelligence information of a high level nature, please phone White House Intelligence at 1-202-435-5000. I advise you have serious real information to report if you call that number. Also IBM's new security number in Armonk, New York is 914-499-4100 at the new World Headquarters Building. I have not been out yet. I am waiting to download IE 4.0. It is the end of the month, so I don't have mugging money, but I will survive.

Note 09/29/97 Monday 11:45 PM EDT: Thank <mailto:billg@microsoft.com> for the great new web browser he is giving away. I saw a heavy set Germanic fellow downtown this afternoon with German business suit on, he had the look of a Dutch Prince. Nice weather this afternoon. I went to the library three times today. Old guard were in residence just after noon. I dare say there is lots of interest in the Greenwich billionaires on the www.forbes.com Forbes list. Of course some people don't care for obvious reasons. Basically the richest man or group of people is that group or individual who can afford to maintain and defend their private property. Biggest person sighted in Greenwich in last 14 years since I have been back is a Dutch farmer from Maastract who was over seven feet tall and over 600 pounds trying to sell cheese at the local Food Emporium. Second biggest person was Russian Admiral about 6' 6" and 500 pounds shark fishing down at the end of the Steamboat Road several years ago. I am only 6 foot and 196 pounds which is about average for adult males in the area. CIO

Note 09/29/97 Monday 11:00 AM EDT: Downloaded and installed Webcam Sam from Vista X Software , it is a novel program. I am out of here. CIO

Note 09/29/97 Monday 11:00 AM EDT: I finished cleaning my apartment and watering the plants this morning. I had the Cablevision disconnected since I never watch television and just keep it for my guests. Since the Greenwich Housing Authority does not pay for my electric heat like they use to for the first eight years, I need to use the $30 a month for extra heat in the winter, so at least I am warm and comfortable during the winter with my arthritis. I do have a central cable antenna in the building for receiving local television, so I will install that. I had a visitor yesterday who watched television all day and will be going to Germany in the next couple of weeks. When I lived in Europe I never watched television and had a much more enjoyable time. I am maintaining my usual routines. CIO

Note 09/28/97 Sunday 7:00 AM EDT: I listened to mrscott.com/nasa.htm for a while. I listened to the first hours of www.ttalk.com. I uploaded mrscott.com/bmnow.htm Current Bookmarks. I downloaded some of the most popular programs at www.activex.com to install on my computer. I don't know whether I will go out this morning or not. I checked out Internet Telephony at www.pulver.com and installed www.vocaltec.com Internet Telephony plug in to use with Pulver's Free World Dialup II. I will install the programs and possibly go to bed. CIO

Note 09/28/97 Sunday 1:00 AM EDT: I rested this afternoon and earlier this evening. After having dinner I went out for a walk. The usual bunch of movie goers were out. I noticed a skunk by the train station parking lot and a rat in front of the senior center. The usual group of yuppies were at "Dome" having cocktails. I guess that is the popular spot for young folks. Also there is another yacht at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. Unfortunately Greenwich Harbor is very small, so the Greenwich Harbor Inn is limited to about 150 feet for mooring boats. I read today the Britannia is being decommissioned by the British. I guess the Queen could always use the QE II or barrow the "Viking" from Norway. The "Viking" is suppose to be the world's largest private yacht. The Britannia was only number three after the King of Saudi Arabia's Yacht and then the "Viking" first. Of course some old Russian might turn an aircraft carrier into a private yacht for the fun of it. Needless to say they have enough hardware in mothballs. I wonder how the swimming pool fared on the Russian submarines during turbulence. The usual morning group were in the library this morning. A friend told me to think about investing in the Canadian Company Bombardier which might start making mid range aircraft. Apparently there is a market for over 20,000 new midrange aircraft and Boeing is interested in getting in the business. Also Gold is a good hedge against stock market downward fluctuations as we all know. There seems to be a few tiny kids that like driving around in Ferraris here at night. I guess their parents don't watch them closely enough. Average height in Greenwich for males is about 6 foot and for females about 5 foot 8 inches. I chatted with a young fellow about Petrified Dinosaur Eggs that I use to find in Decatur, Alabama. I was wandering if there might be any petrified bones there also. He did not know anything about it. We use to find the petrified dinosaur eggs in the southwest to west ditch adjacent to the Walter Jackson school playground. They were about six to eight inches in length, and when you cracked them there was a petrified yoke. I distinctly remember finding dozens of them. Well have a good Sunday. CIO

Note 09/27/97 Saturday 7:00 AM EDT: I updated Scott's Broadcast mrscott.com/sound.htm or www.rcch.com/hotlist/sound.htm which I will upload shortly. I update the broadcast every two to three months on my current observations and recent activity. Enjoy listening to the broadcast. I will go out after I upload the broadcast and enjoy Saturday morning. CIO

Note 09/27/97 Saturday 4:00 AM EDT: I relaxed yesterday afternoon and thought about what I had researched during the last few days. Basically I feel with the El Nino we will have more rain in this area with flooding in the eastern river basins. We could have that winter effect with mid 60 degree days one day and several feet of snow the next day. More than likely we will get unusual weather patterns. I practiced my French conversation skills which are lousy. My sister told me that former President Bush is at the Ryder Cup in Spain. George Agnew will be out of the hospital fully recovered today. CIO

Note 09/26/97 Friday 2:10 PM EDT: I updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm current bookmarks links.

IBM Numbers:

IBM Armonk, Sommers, New York: 914-765-1900

IBM Armonk Security: 914-765-4400

Construction of the roof repairs is completed. Apparently there are parts of the building filled with Asbestos that the Greenwich Housing Authority refuses to repair and apparently somebody is getting kickbacks on the overall project rumors has it. The masons from India will be working on the Chimney repairs for the next two months. I might shower and go out soon, I am not sure. CIO

Note 09/26/97 Friday 9:00 AM EDT: George Agnew Doing Fine After Surgery at Maine Medical, All is OK. My sister in Kennebunkport says George is doing fine and will make a complete recovery. CIO

Note 09/26/97 Friday 4:50 AM EDT: Recommend Mayo Table of Contents, Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minnesota for George Bliss Agnew cardiology problem, cardiology telephone number at 7:30 AM CDT is 507-284-3633. General number is 507-266-5800. I chatted with Mayo Clinic this AM.

Note 09/26/97 Friday 2:45 AM EDT: No News on George Bliss Agnew medical condition yet up in Maine. My Doctor returning from Spain told me that the daughter of the King of Spain is getting married. Check out 1997 Best Hospitals Cardiology and Texas Heart Institute for help on George Agnew's medical problems and 1997 Best Hospitals. CIO

Note 09/25/97 Thursday 7:40 AM EDT:GBA, my stepfather having heart surgery this afternoon up in Maine. CIO

Note 09/25/97 Thursday 4:30 AM EDT: Yesterday I went out in the morning. Around 9 AM at yesterday's high tide, a fisherman pulled in two 15 pound blue fish off the pier on Steamboat Road. I noticed the Watson's flag was flying. There are two baby swans with the pair of swans in the harbor. I went by the library and read the four computer press newsweeklies that I read every week. I went downtown and lots of people were out and about. I drove down to the water again and enjoyed the view from the bottom of Steamboat Road. I came back to the apartment at noon. I did some decorating organizing. I changed the square table in front of the couch for the smaller end table to use as a coffee table. I put the square table at the end of the couch. I also did a major change switching the smaller mahogany desk from the bedroom into the living room and putting the Danish modern desk in the bedroom where the bedroom bureau was and putting the bureau where the desk was. Moving this all around took about three hours. There is more room now in the living room. I put the mouse pad to the left of the computer on a small mahogany table in front of a stereo speaker and moved the fruitwood table next to the Queen Anne chair. I also moved some pictures around. The overall effect is more comfortable and looks better. I also put one of the oil filled radiators out in the living room to take the chill out at night. I will take the air conditioner out in a week or two. The roof on the building is about done, but they still have to do the brick work on the chimneys. I had a dinner guest down for dinner at 5 PM and had boneless breast of chicken Florentine, Pasta Fresh, and Frozen Broccoli. I went to bed at 8 PM, and got up at 4 AM this morning. At the moment the internet is not working properly. I linked the mrscott.com/nasa.htm NASA Shuttle page from the top of my homepage. I will surf the net this morning, if it works. I will listen to www.ttalk.com broadcast once it is posted. I chatted with a fellow from Australia yesterday morning about technology. He mentioned that the Summer Olympics in three years will be held in September down there since the reverse seasons apply in the southern hemisphere. Greenwich seems to have a rush of people into town around noon time which keeps it busy right up until late evening. I have an appointment downtown at 3 PM this afternoon. CIO

Note 09/24/97 Wednesday 8:00 AM EDT: The house in Redding, Connecticut is $1,600,000 on 35 acres with 2000 foot road frontage all on one level about 5000 square feet. I saw lots of people going to work this morning. I noticed 9 or 10 winged director chairs in the dumpster at the Greenwich Harbor Inn that two fellows were taking just as I left. The yacht "Mercedes" is from Georgetown, Cayman Islands. There have been a large number of yachts at the Greenwich Harbor Inn from the Cayman Islands the past two summers. Half dozen fishermen on the end of Steamboat Road. I noticed someone that looked like a prominent European monarch in the lobby of the Greenwich Harbor Inn, but it might have been a look alike. "Non Hablo Hispanlo". The El Nino is suppose to be messing up the world's weather. Tropical storms in the Gulf of Mexico are suppose to be less. Also it was 45 degrees F. here this morning. I will float around a bit this morning and take a nap this morning, and try to get on a day schedule tomorrow. I have a dinner guest this evening. Town seems a little bit busier in the day time. CIO

Note 09/24/97 Wednesday 4:00 AM EDT: I went out and mailed letter at West Putnam

Avenue Post Office. The box in the lobby is picked up at 6 AM. I drove down Steamboat Road and noticed the Grey Volvo Wagon is down there with a fisherman on the pier. I noticed at the Greenwich Harbor Inn, they have a fast sleek yacht called the "Mercedes" about a 120 feet long. It looks like the modern configuration like a Cigarette Racing Boat Yacht, and is probably very fast. I was not able to see its port of origin. I noticed the Greenwich Police Front Desk was not lit up this morning. The Grand Union is not open until 5:30 AM. I filled up my car with $12.75 gasoline at the Shell Station on West Putnam Avenue. Richard is on duty there as usual. Tuesday night and Wednesday morning are probably the slowest time of the week. I might chat on the net this AM and have one of Tony's Pizzas at 6 AM. I will then probably go out. CIO

Note 09/24/97 Wednesday 1:00 AM EDT: Up at midnight. A friend in real estate TILGHMAN and FROST Real Estate, Wilton, Connecticut; United States of America, contact Richard Van Marter, 800-999-3366 called to tell me he is listing a $2 million dollar house on 30 acres in Redding, Connecticut. Yesterday I bought a German hand coffee grinder at the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop for $2.50. The ELDC thrift shop had an antique rope bed for $60. The Mews thrift shop had Windsor chairs for $30 apiece. Needless to say I have no room in my apartment for more items. There is a new consignment shop next to ELDC with lots of antiques. Check Greenwich, Connecticut Thrift Shops. I also went by the Arnold Bakery outlet on Railroad Avenue in Byram and got four loaves of "Healthnut Bread" for $2.59, a 75 percent saving. I noticed Frederick Supper's house in Belle Haven is still under construction across from the Indian Harbor Yacht Club, and the Watson's flag was not flying today. I saw on local television that a young kid in the Danbury area caught a two and half pound Piranha in the reservoir. I also noticed someone that looked like a Brazilian friend of mine, but he has not contacted me if he is in the area. Retired gentleman was out walking his Bijan. The Greenwich library parking lot is scheduled to be finished on October 6, 1997; however they have already asphalted most of it, so maybe it will be ready sooner. Once construction begins on the new library people will have to use the auditorium elevator to enter the library, check Greenwich, Connecticut Library. I will write a letter this morning and go out briefly. I guess I will be out in the morning this morning. I deleted Microsoft Money 98 preview since it is time expired. I have 160 meg hard disk space. CIO

Note 09/23/97 Tuesday 8:45 AM EDT: Check out Cassini: Voyage to Saturn

Note 09/23/97 Tuesday 4:45 AM EDT: I finished lunch. I had my coffee downtown in front of the senior center out of my trusty thermos. I noticed the baby black and white skunk was still prowling around downtown around the southwest corner of the senior center across from Starbucks. The all night artist was at work. I noticed yesterday that the Watson's flag was flying in Belle Haven, so she must be back. I noticed at the Grand Union yesterday morning, that Tropicana Orange Juice and Grapefruit Juice half gallons were $1.39 limit four, Quaker oatmeal 99cents, Betty Crocker cake mix 79 cents, Betty Crocker frosting 99 cents. I enjoy Tony's deep dish frozen pizza for a snack at night which costs $2.50. They are still working on the roof on my building and they will have to do the chimneys next. They are still working on the front entrance drainage. I need to have the timing checked on my car, but that can wait until the first of the month. As usual on Monday night and Tuesday morning, Greenwich is quiet per norm. I noticed the YMCA leaves a lot of high voltage lights on inside at night. I watched President Clinton's speech at the United Nations yesterday morning on CNN. I wonder how he determined the $750 billion figure for the illegal drug activity figure unless somebody he knows has an accurate count. It would seem hard to determine. I wonder what the net value of the legitimate pharmaceutical market is then. I also noticed a Burgundy Isuzu this AM with a West Point sticker. The Shell station is open all night as usual. There sounds to be a bit of truck traffic on the turnpike. Two different gray Volvos were spotted this evening on the bottom of Steamboat Road enjoying the view and fishing this AM. It is cool in the evening and early AM about 60 degrees F. Well enjoy your day folks. CIO

Note 09/23/97 Tuesday 2:45 AM EDT: I slept most of the afternoon and early evening yesterday. In the later evening I went out and it was very quiet. One baby skunk walking up Greenwich Avenue in front of Saks. I recommend downloading the demo of MS Money 98 and checking it out. I noticed MS Investor Portfolio evaluated my demo portfolio wrong yesterday saying it was up $1,822.49 when in fact the portfolio value says it was down over $5,000. Time to cook lunch. CIO

Note 09/22/97 Monday 4:00 AM EDT: Last evening I had a relaxing day sleeping most of the day and then cleaning my apartment and watering the plants. I noticed in Clarinet News they are having the 50th Anniversary Party for the QE II at sea. I will relax for the rest of this morning.

Note 10/10/97 Friday 2:45 AM EDT: Did some routine netsurfing this morning. Munched out on Grapes and Cheese Its. Reorganized the homepage a bit. Need to surf, try mrscott.com/bmnow.htm for a few handy links. I will now uninstall and reinstall iPhone 4.5 and 5.0 to reactivate them. Lets hope this does not cripple "Explorer.exe", like happened last week. CIO "Chief Information Officer".

Note 10/09/97 Thursday 10:45 PM EDT: Today I made it to my 3 PM appointment. One person told me it takes five minutes for Windows NT to load. I stopped by Tod's Point in Old Greenwich and enjoyed the view from the southeast section which is not free. The southwest section was full of nats on a non windy day. I bought groceries, and had a steak for dinner. I was told they are going to start painting the trim on my building soon. I still wish they would pay for the electric heat, because sooner or later it will get cold here despite the 80 degree day here today and I would prefer adequate heat in my apartment to prevent my arthritis from acting up which I don't think is too much to ask of the Federal government considering the amount of time I have volunteered my services in my lifetime, not to mention the efforts of my fellow tenants. My attitude is not to vote in the next election and let the chips fall where they may. When Lowell Weicker was governor of Connecticut we had our heat paid for. Obviously no one of any importance in the Republican or Democratic parties cares enough about the tenants in this building to offer them electric heat which was included during the first eight years we lived here. All of the other public housing projects in Greenwich include the heat in the rent which for some technical reason this place does not. Basically my fellow tenants say they are, "Robbing Peter to Pay Paul". I stopped by the library after dinner and read PC Magazine. There was a good article on Bill Gates' summer hideaway in Washington where he held a conference. I was told by the librarian it is very noisy in the library in the daytime with all the construction going on outside. They are preparing the site for the new Peterson addition. I went for a walk downtown after the library closed and there were quite a few people out for dinner and drinks who obviously are daytime people. Greenwich Avenue is always good for people watching. I did notice the police responding to a call at Citibank, possibly a broken door. Also I noticed the street light across from Citibank and the train station is burned out. I suggested to one of the Greenwich Librarians that they put a time capsule in the new addition, and also they might publish some information from the local paper such as obituaries which they could scan and post, or any other useful community information. They are still working on the roof outside my window. They plan to pitch it and resurface it. Now for a night of net activity. CIO

Note 10/09/97 Thursday 12:15 AM EDT: I updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm Current Bookmarks. I will probably surf a little and check out www.ttalk.com . CIO

Note 10/08/97 Wednesday 9:30 PM EDT: I stopped by the library and read Byte magazine. I took a walk down town. It is quiet for a Wednesday night. It is a bit polluted today, but the temperature is comfortable for this time of year. The Greenwich Police are maintaining routine sidewalk patrols during the evening hours. I will do a little routine work this evening. CIO

Note 10/08/97 Wednesday 5:30 PM EDT: Today I picked up the Volvo at the Exxon station at noon. They replaced the timing belt and valve cover gasket for $400. They replaced the starter motor which was under warranty for free. The car is running great particularly now that the timing is correct. I read the computer trade press in the library. They are chopping down the trees in front and removing the old masonry to start working on the new addition. The new parking lot is open now. I picked up some sconces at the Mews thrift shop for $10 that I hung over the dining room table. I need to take a nap. CIO

Note 10/07/97 Tuesday 4:30 AM EDT: I added Internet Explorer Products Download Add-ons to my MS IE 4.0 setup. I now have about 60 Meg free hard disk space. I need to figure out how to free up some space. The add-ons took about an hour to download for me this past morning. I checked with Exxon next to the library. The problem with my car is that the starter motor they put in several months ago was catching the flywheel. They are going to replace it for free. I am also having them put on a new timing belt and replace the valve cover gasket and set the timing. The car should be ready in a couple of days. I will thus be immobile until then. Since my legs have been bothering me all summer, I can not walk that far such as into town. I will have to sit back and relax and enjoy my apartment. The roofers are still working on the flat roof removing the asbestos and installing the new covering. The masons are still working on the chimneys. While taking a short stroll on West Putnam Avenue, I noticed the old post office building for lease would be an excellent sight for a CVS drugstore. I have enough food and supplies to survive until my car is ready. I will try doing some routine computer work. I noticed my million dollar portfolio mrscott.com/scopor01.htm is up about $55,000 since I published it. Today is warm and comfortable, I wish I could be out enjoying it more. CIO

Note 10/07/97 Tuesday 3:00 AM EDT: Routine work this morning. CIO

Note 10/06/97 Monday 8:30 PM EDT: I made my Monday appointment at 4 PM. I drove around by Grass Island and enjoyed the view of the water on this warm day. The new library parking lot is now open. I read the computer press. I dropped my car off at the Exxon station to have the timing repaired. It should be ready when I get up tomorrow afternoon. I walked back to my building at 6 PM to find out that the Housing Authority has sub contractors working on the roofs above my apartment and outside of the windows removing asbestos. I turned off the air conditioner to keep the dust from coming in. They have an inspector on the job. I guess the subcontractor prefers to work at night. They have set up containment areas to contain the removed asbestos. It is a little bit noisy right now. I will try to work on the computer while they are doing this. CIO

Note 10/06/97 Monday 3:30 AM EDT: Updated mrscott.com/bm.htm . Will start slowing down and get ready for bed. CIO

Note 10/06/97 Monday 1:00 AM EDT: This afternoon I read the computer press in the Greenwich Library. I noticed one URL www.ubn.co.uk that might be of interest. Steamboat Road had a number of visitors. At Tod's Point there were a number of families enjoying the beach. The black tie crowd were at the Hyatt with two miniature black and white horses. At Westchester airport the jets were coming and going and the parking area was filled, so lots of people are away. One can smoke cigarettes at the bar at Westchester Airport. Since I don't travel much anymore it is fun to watch people coming and going. The Grand Union supermarket in Glenville needs to put a guard railing on the south exit door. When it swings open it can knock someone over. Dole produce is inexpensive for California red grapes. Downtown this evening there were the usual number of kids in the pubs and a very few movie goers. I suppose the day time crew will be out in full force tomorrow morning. CIO

Note 10/05/97 Sunday 3:00 PM EDT: Today I am finishing up cleaning the apartment and watering the plants. On Friday evening I had a couple of friends over for dinner. We went down to Newark, New Jersey Airport to drop off one of them for a morning flight to Daytona, Florida. Newark airport is quite deserted during the early morning hours with a coffee shop open and no pubs open. One had to stand outside to have a cigarette. We stopped by the Marriott Hotel at Newark Airport and its restaurants and bars were also closed. They have a nice hotel at the airport with vistas of the Port Elizabeth area of New Jersey. The departing passenger thought the deserted airport would be good for skate boarding. Saturday I went to Tod's Point with one of the friends and went out to Pizza Hut in Glenville for Pizza. I got up at noon today. It is in the 80s today. My mother said the Queen Elizabeth II cruise ship is up cruising in Maine. CIO

Note 10/03/97 Friday 5:45 AM EDT: When I started the computer today, explorer.exe the file browser was crashing. The only thing I did before that was uninstall and reinstall Iphone 4.5 and 5.0. I had to log onto the internet and run MS IE 4.0 setup and do a complete install which does not actually download but reinstalls the *.cab files on the local hard drive. This fixed the problem. However, the active desktop did not install, so I ran MS IE 4 setup again and only upgraded newer components, and the system with active desktop was back to normal. Power Toys was still installed. I turned off pictures on MS IE 4.0 to have it browse faster. Today I bought a Panasonic Electric typewriter at the Hospital Thrift Shop for $10 for typing envelopes and large mailing folders. I noticed quite a lot of Florida license plates around town, so I guess the people from up north are traveling south for the winter. It was good to see all the snow birds. I watched the FBI hearings on CSPAN about Organized Crime while doing the computer repairs. The India Indian masons are still working on the building chimneys. They are going to repair the flat roof outside my windows soon, I am wondering if I should take the air conditioner out not or wait until the roof coating is dry. Three years ago when they did it, I went out to take out the air conditioner and the roof coating was still liquid like wet tar although they use a plastic compound. I will do some work on the internet this morning now that I have the system repaired again. I also bought Niacimide at the health store. I also found out that Bank of New York only charges $5 a month for personal internet accounts. CIO

Note 10/02/97 Thursday 7:00 AM EDT: Look at Internet Explore 4.0 Tips and Tricks . I backed up my computer successfully. I have over 100 meg free space now. I keep my Microsoft system upgrade files in a folder, so I don't have to download them if god forbid I ever have to reinstall the system from a backup. CIO

Note 10/02/97 Thursday 2:30 AM EDT: I suggest looking at Microsoft Technical Support Help Files, Service Packs, & Other Files for updated files. I just installed six new files that have been posted in the past months. I also added Channels to IE 4.0. I need to free up a little disk space. CIO

Note 10/01/97 Wednesday 11:30 PM EDT:I downloaded MS Internet Explorer Powertoys and I recommend looking at New 32-bit Apps at Stroud's CWSApps List . I also stumbled across this MS JAVA Internet Explorer 4.0 Features link. I can not get FrontPage Express to Hyperlink with MS IE 4 but only Netscape hyperlinks with it, there must be a fix. MS IE 4 is working great on my system, and I am most pleased with it. It seems faster. I have the Active desktop installed which takes getting use to. I paid my rent this morning and I paid my auto insurance to www.geico.com . While at the First Union Bank paying my rent, I noticed a dozen Japanese business men standing in front of the bank building. I chatted briefly and gave them my internet address and mentioned the Winter Olympics coming up in Japan and the fact that my directory had a volcano mrscott.com/058.htm category. I noticed that one was wearing an IBM name tag. I noticed the Watson's flag was flying today. I slept this afternoon and past evening. I guess I will be up all night again. I need to get a new Travan 1 tape to make a backup of my system. The old tapes don't seem to work reliably. CIO

Note 10/01/97 Wednesday 9:20 AM EDT: Note I was able to correct the JAVA problem in

MS IE 4 by going to "Add Remove" programs and uninstalling Microsoft JAVA VM and then rebooting. Then I ran the MS IE 4 setup program and reinstalled it. I did not have to redownload it since it is already on the hard disk. JAVA seems to be working fine now. If you use RealAudio Pro the setup program won't overwrite your advanced version. CIO

Note 10/01/97 Wednesday 8:00 AM EDT: Internet Explorer 4.0 downloaded and installed basically without any problems. I did have to reconnect a couple of times. It took about seven hours from midnight to 7 AM. On rebooting the system did give me error messages that the *.cab JAVA files were not being installed, however IE 4.0 seems to work fine. I took two naps during download and baked a cake. I have to pay my rent and insurance this morning. CIO

Note 10/17/97 Friday 11:20 AM EDT: I updated the Greenwich mrscott.com/greenw.htm and Greenwich Real Estate mrscott.com/gwreal.htm Pages. I suppose it is busy out around lunch time. I still have not shaved or showered, and I feel like a nap before lunch. CIO

Note 10/17/97 Friday 9:40 AM EDT: I updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm. I surfed the net this morning. It is working fast. I noticed they still have a NYNEX telephone truck on Nantucket on as seen on their live cam Nantucket Washington Street Cam. Chuck and Henry are off to South Africa. I dare say most people are watching the stock market closely today. My million dollar bellwethers portfolio mrscott.com/scopor01.htm is down as expected. I read that <mailto:billg@microsoft.com> is planning to take over the Cablevision Internet modem market. I sure wish he would get one hooked up to my apartment building soon. It sounds like the roofers are working outside on the rain terrace today. If you look at mrscott.com/stats.htm you will notice my server in Florida seems to be a little bit busier than normal and more people are looking at the more tech orientated content. Netscape has a mail spell checker at: Netscape CyberSpell. I think the local senior community thinks I have lost my marbles since they don't understand the amount of content of information I am dealing with. CIO

Note 10/17/97 Friday 5:50 AM EDT: I made the usual rounds yesterday morning. I found three computers discarded at a local office park, IBM Model PS/2 Model 50Z, PS/2 Model 80 386 8580-311, PS/2 Model 80 386 8580-041. I brought them back home. The two model 80s could be used to make a glass coffee table. I tested them and the CMOS is gone on them, but they seem to work if one had the patience to configure them. I will leave them around for a conversation piece for a while, and possibly take them to the Hospital Thrift Shop in the near future if no one wants them for free. I would imagine the model 80s will be collector items some time soon. One model 80 is missing its side panel. I got my Taft Alumni manual. A great many alumni have email addresses. I noticed one local resident is a member of the class of 1920 and outlived all of his other classmates. I made my afternoon appointment. I noticed a great many construction workers departing from the new hospital project while I was downtown. The new facility is suppose to have 135 beds instead of the present 400. I read when Queen Elizabeth II gets back from India, they are suppose to have the Commonwealth Meeting up in Scotland. Perhaps the QEII was carrying a private party of Commonwealth members when it left on a non scheduled cruise back to South Hampton. Lots of new faces around as is typical of the New York area. A friend took me out to dinner at That Away restaurant last night. We had the steak sandwich for $12. The place is a little noisy because of the tin ceiling. I also bought the Dinosaur Plate of stamps for $5 and I bought four Currier and Ives plates for $2 at the Hospital Thrift Shop. Greenwich seems to be the same as usual. I imagine quite a few residents are worried about the stock market going down. CIO

Note 10/16/97 Thursday 8:00 AM EDT: Dinner was good. I updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I will make the rounds this morning. I will probably come back and work on the net if the library is still too noisy. Terry Waite of Canterbury Cathedral, the representative of the Archbishop of Canterbury will be speaking at Christ Church Greenwich, Connecticut this Sunday at 10 AM. All Welcome. CIO

Note 10/16/97 Thursday 5:15 AM EDT: I did not mean to imply or encourage people to drink in yesterday's coded message to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in Montreal on Mount Royal. If one is good at reading open code messages, you obviously got the message. I just got up having slept most of yesterday. I had breakfast about 9 PM yesterday and went back to sleep. I am now in the process of cooking an 8 pound Purdue chicken for dinner, which I will have for dinner. I have an afternoon appointment this afternoon. I have not been out in 24 hours. President Clinton apparently canceled the Asteroid Avoidance Program. From reading the British reports in the news last February, it seems that British scientists thought the program was very important. IBM is reducing and merging its PC division. I imagine it is about time to get out of the stock market, if one can afford the Capital gains. I need to start boiling some rice to go with dinner. Occasionally it helps to get a long rest and break routine. I remember the French movie "Cousin Cousine" about the French sleep cure method to reduce stress. With winter coming, I would imagine that we will all start leading more dormant lifestyles. I believe the Queen Elizabeth II is returning to South Hampton. Their next voyage goes by Bermuda. My neighbors visited the U.S. Military Academy at West Point yesterday. It is funny whenever I call there the person answering the phone is from Venezuela. I guess that is another low paid night job, they can't get United States citizens to work anymore. It seems there are a great many people considering heading for the hills because of various news reports, but quite frankly I think it is all a paper dragon, and I intend to stay in the area until any evidence of hostile intent by hostile forces occurs. As far as I can tell Greenwich is peaceful and quiet as usual, and perhaps first generation immigrants are not use to living in a quiet peaceful environment, unless of course they are fifth columnists are something like that. Enjoy the day for a change. CIO

Note 10/15/97 Wednesday 2:45 AM EDT: I got up at 11:30 PM last evening. The library yesterday morning was busy, but it is virtually impossible to read there since they are driving piles for the Peterson wing. The sound is interminably loud and it makes it hard to concentrate. The entrance is through the Cole auditorium. I paid my telephone bill of $42. I made a few rounds about town. This morning when I got up, I checked with Kennedy security at the Greenwich Country Club. They said they had heard of Corby's Whisky. It was popular in the 1930's and 1940's. In refreshing our memories, I believe it had a beige label with burgundy striping, and "CORBYS" written across the top in curved letters. I believe there was a picture of a Raven on the bottle. It is so long ago, it is hard to remember. I suppose some of the "old guard" who control everything would like to sip some of it in their retirement, particularly on cold winters night. I believe it was imported from Canada. The last time I saw it, it was up around the Canadian Border in Sue St. Marie. It came in a ten to twenty gallon cider crock and we drank it out of a water cooler. A friend of mine who was a friend of Noel Coward and who was also one of the largest landowners in Western Canada inquired about what happened to Corby's Whisky about five years ago. I assume she is still trying to get it back on the market, if it is still available. It tastes like Canadian Club, but much smoother, unlike the rock gut they serve today. It makes Jack Daniels taste like horse piss. I imagine the Matre Di at the Pump Room at the Ambassador East in Chicago would know where to get it, if it were still available or perhaps the cellar attendant at the 21 Club in New York. If it is no longer available, if someone could find it in a whisky museum, perhaps some clever group of chemists could come up with an authenticate recipe to duplicate, but perhaps the method of making it went with the old timers who use to produce it over 50 years ago. It was a very popular brand in its day. Other news, it is misty and rainy this morning. Perhaps the Queen Elizabeth II, if it is still around in dock and has supplies to off load at dock to be put in the warehouse, might have an extra bottle or two of Corby's lying around from the old days. The Rolling Stones according to the Greenwich Times cancelled, and David Bowie was suppose to appear last night. The pipe smoker was spotted yesterday morning. The old guard were out in force at the Senior Center. It seems to be quiet per usual on early Wednesday morning. I will be out a little in the morning, but finances prevent me from being too active. My starter motor on the car is still making noise after having it fixed twice at the Exxon station, but the car is still running fine. I plan to have a quiet morning. The NASA Cassini Voyage to Saturn is scheduled for relaunch at 4:50 AM EDT this morning. I will plan to watch it on CNN. Back to the net. CIO

Note 10/14/97 Tuesday 5:30 AM EDT: The night before last when I went out, I saw the mother of all skunks outside my building. It was as big as a raccoon. Luckily it did not spray me. I chatted with the regular night clerk at the Greenwich Harbor Inn also on Monday morning. I got up about 6 PM Monday evening and had breakfast. I then slept until 9 PM. I watched television until 1 AM enjoying the Discovery channel. I also had lunch of Chicken Dijon and broccoli. I went out at 1 AM and walked the length of Greenwich Avenue back and forth from the center. I sat for a while and enjoyed looking at the moon. I noticed in the newspaper headlines they are having a Rolling Stones Concert on Tuesday night at the Palladium theatre in Port Chester, New York to do a music video. I suppose they will have a full harvest moon for the event. I will keep an eye out for old hippies tomorrow night. The concert is for 2,500 invited guests. In Nantucket the old timers use to think I looked a bit like Mic, but I suppose he is a couple of years older. I think he use to hang out in a few of my haunts in New York City in the old days. I believe he has a degree in physical education from the London School of Economics. I won't bother going down to Port Chester to watch the crowd. Perhaps there will be a few Rock groupies in the Colonial diner here tomorrow night. Keep an eye out for long haired hippie types around town. I also filled my car up with gasoline. I bought three boxes of buy four get one free Marlboro lights. I stopped at CVS in the Riverside shopping center and got sunin, M&Ms, remote control batteries, toothpaste, mouth wash. I went by the Grand Union and got a Purdue chicken, a six pack of diet Pepsi, four 40 watt bulbs, two frozen pizzas, and half and half. The Greenwich police were out in usual force patrolling around town. I am now getting about 15 miles per gallon on my 1976 Volvo with 96,500 miles. It is running much better, but the new starter motor occasionally makes noise. I have to pay my telephone bill today, so I will be out in the morning. I will do a little internet work before going out about 8:30 AM give or take. I noticed a distinguished gentleman smoking a pipe on Greenwich Avenue, the night before last, so I stuck out my two pipes in the silver bowl in case I feel like smoking a pipe. I have a jar in my freezer for the last seven years of a 50/50 mixture of Round Hill and Cavendish tobacco, that still seems to be pretty fresh since I keep it frozen in a mason jar. I noticed lots of out of state plates at the Greenwich Harbor Inn with the usual group of leafers around the New England area. I put new batteries in all my remote controls. The weather was about 60 degrees this past evening. I noticed a United Van Lines van on Greenwich Avenue from Wisconsin. The mountaineering shop at the top of Greenwich Avenue has lots of winter items as does the ski shop across the street. I noticed a sign notice in the window of Putnam Barbers that they are going to have a testimonial in November for Mike at Lucas steak house in November. Donations to the rotary club will be $125. I would imagine a great many people will turn out for the event. He has been on Greenwich Avenue probably longer than any other merchant, and is always very happy to see regular customers and visitors in town and is his coworker from China, Chin. Back to work. CIO

Note 10/13/97 Monday 1:45 AM EDT: I was up at 5 PM and cleaned my apartment and watered the plants. I went downtown about 10PM. I noticed one French family on vacation. I took a walk. About 11 PM I tried to stop by the grocery stores, but they are not closed at night. I stopped by Cumberland Farms and picked up milk. I am drying my laundry right now after having a Red Baron pizza for lunch. This morning around 4:30 AM EST, I believe they are launching NASA Cassini Voyage to Saturn which some people are concerned about. Lets hope it goes all right. I will do a little routine work tonight and probably relax the rest of the morning. CIO

Note 10/12/97 Sunday 5:30 AM EDT: I went out for a walk downtown for several hours. I spotted three ten year olds walking around the train station. The regular night manager is not at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. The newspaper delivery couple gave me a free copy of the Sunday Greenwich Times. Several young people hanging out at the pier down by the Steamboat Road. A tour bus with "One if by Land" written on it pulled into the Island Beach parking lot about 4 AM. Kinko's is still open all night despite lack of business. The diner has the usual late night crowd. Grand Union appeared to be open. I had chicken Dijon for dinner at midnight. Arthritis is not bothering me this evening, but I will probably be crippled up tomorrow. The Shell Station is still open all night. I would imagine key players in the Greenwich business community are probably away. Two couples told me last night there are a lot of people with foreign accents, but that is perfectly normal for this town. English seems to be the most common language in town. No unusual wildlife sightings this morning. I would imagine certain security people in the area are worried about the threat of nuclear devices that the Russians may have misplaced. However, it is my understanding that modern satellite surveillance techniques can detect the radioactive footprints of such a device, and thus if military personnel are still stationed at some of the local military bases in the area and have not evacuated, I assume there is nothing to worry about. With a large youth population and senior citizen community, Greenwich is a very quiet community when the out of town visitors and workers depart. Of course this is the perspective from the night time. Approximately a million people pass through town every day, but that is mostly during the day time. Popular site on the internet for some of the senior volunteers would be www.aarp.org. I would imagine with hurricane in Mexico and Earthquakes in Italy some of the international community are working on disaster relief efforts as usual. However, I am not sure of whom remains in the area or whom is away in professional capacity. Once again Greenwich seems quiet as usual. I would imagine a few people will be raking leaves some time soon. Temperature is suppose to be in the mid 50's today. Report on Cablevision said most the United States imported oil comes from Venezuela. I was emailed a site <http://www.krugerworld.com/> to look at. I suppose the Germans have some interesting environmental ideas. Cablevision is suppose to be offering Optimum TV soon with a 100 channels for about $30, for those of you who watch television unlike myself. The original concept of the Cable Television Network as it was discussed about twenty or more years ago, was that each cablevision system would have a different reality. Thus theoretically elected national officials on cablevision would be different in each section of the country, depending on which cablevision system one watched. It seems that there is less night activity in the area these days, so perhaps more people are busy doing work at home on the internet. Thus the random comments from Greenwich are finished. CIO

Note 10/12/97 Sunday 1:55 AM EDT: I got up at about 6 PM last evening. I went out at about 8 PM and stayed downtown until 11 PM. I chatted with a few of the folks wandering around downtown strolling. It seemed to be a typical Saturday evening in the fall here. I posted a recipe from the "Joy of Cooking" I found in my library on Bouillabaisse Soup which a close relative enjoys making when she has the time. Obviously it is a lot of work. That is all for now folks. CIO

Note 10/11/97 Saturday 2:45 AM EDT: Cablevision installed the cable box again this past morning. Roofers were working on the roof outside my windows all day making a noise that gave me a headache when I woke up. I went up to CompUSA in Norwalk about 6 PM and bought a Power Control Center for $20 to replace the one that burned out several days ago. I also bought a Travan 1 tape for $13 out of the discount clearance area. I returned about 9 PM and installed the Power Control Center and then made a tape backup of my system. I repositioned the Cablevision box for easier line of site with the remote control. I had Stauffer's Lasagna and coffee and went out at 12:15 AM. I found a note on the car left my persons unknown with threatening allegations obviously written by some deranged person. I called the Greenwich Police Department and Officer Jeff Caldwell came over and interviewed me and retrieved the note for investigation. I also notified the New Haven FBI office about the incident. My synopsis is that people who take the time to write threatening notes better make sure they have targeted the right person. I am not sure what it is all about, but I am sure the Greenwich Police department have a more informed viewpoint. After officer Caldwell left, I went downtown and had a cigarette on Greenwich Avenue, and saw a number of yuppies leaving the DOME restaurant from their evening beverages. The town seemed quiet as usual. I will now try to get a little tech work done. It seems to me that persons or persons unknown seeking to bother me, must be very ignorant and I don't think the note has anything to do with my internet activity. More than likely some self righteous individual does not like the fact that I prefer to remain a private individual and don't have the time to be bothered by busy bodies. Having been up at night for 35 years, I dare say who ever is going to try and keep an eye on me will sooner or later get tired and go on a day schedule, and the usual night crew around town will be back to their normal quiet routines. Day time people who interfere with night people should try out staying awake at night for many years to find out how really peaceful it is, but it does take a bit of stamina and training to stay awake all night. And of course as we all know the internet goes much faster during the early morning hours. CIO

Note 10/24/97 Friday 12:45 PM EDT: I updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm , believe it or not a lot of work goes into that bookmark. I downloaded the latest version of WS FTP and installed it. Since every time my Ohio page is logged onto it gets the JAVA script from the Florida site, I can now count the JAVA action to determine the basic activity of both the Ohio and Florida sites. It looks after one day, they are equally busy sites, which means each site takes about 500 hits a month on the homepage, and about 10,000 hits a month for each site, thus both Scott's sites take about 20,000 hits a month together. Of course the directory is downloadable and posted elsewhere around the world, so it is a little bit busier than that. The counter at mrscott.com/download.htm shows how many times the download page has been logged onto. I plan to maintain the site, but only do minor updates to the directory, after six months to a year I will incorporate the mrscott.com/bmnow.htm into the alphabetized bookmarks in the directory. I will now have lunch and clean up, and stop by Exxon station for gasoline next to the library. They are giving away free sodas this week. I will then make my usual rounds. I hope the family I sent my Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 CDROM to, is enjoying the program. Work continues outside my windows on the chimneys and the roof. The Greenwich Hospital and Greenwich Library construction is still under way. They need to put a second set of temporary sliding doors at the library, so as to keep the cold air from rushing in, probably out by the parking lot. Have a good day. CIO

Note 10/24/97 Friday 8:45 AM EDT: I added a second JAVA script scoller of homepage topics to the top of my homepage. I will work on the net a bit this morning. I hope a friend of mine is enjoying Cologne, Germany. He flew into Dusseldorf on LTU from Daytona this morning. I noticed www.ltu.com is offering $250 round trips to Germany this winter on their homepage. I stocked up on steaks and Orange Juice at the Grand Union where they are on sale. Have a good day. CIO

Note 10/23/97 Thursday 5:45 PM EDT: I changed the JAVA script on my homepage to scrolling across instead of down. I updated mrscott.com/scopor01.htm Scott's Bell weather Portfolio. The market was down today, but the MS Portfolio drop is $10,000 more than my figures, I can't figure out why. I am having a dinner guest for dinner. CIO

Note 10/23/97 Thursday 1:00 PM EDT: I created a JAVA scrolling Applet at the top of my homepages of all the Categories. The site for the applet is Feeder - Scrolling Text . I have the applet posted at the Florida site, but I think it should work at the Ohio site. I will post it on my homepage for now and latter today create a separate page for it, so as not to slow down my homepages. I will also create another applet of my homepage main topics later on today also if I have time. I have a 3 PM appointment this afternoon. Time for lunch and to clean up. CIO

Note 10/23/97 Thursday 7:10 AM EDT: Yesterday the commuter trains were not working in Greenwich. Today they are. I went by the library in the afternoon and read the computer press. I checked out the site where the commuter train overhead wires went down, but could not see anything. I worked in the evening of trying to make a JAVA page of my categories. I might work on it this morning. The White House is on ABC Morning show on the White House Conference on Childcare. It is cold here down to 20s last night. I finally put on the heat. CIO

Note 10/22/97 Wednesday 12:20 PM EDT: I fixed the ESPN ticker on my ABC ESPN news ticker page, mrscott.com/abcnews1.htm . However it the Scoreboard ticker works in Netscape, but not MS IE 4.0, not even from the ESPN page. CIO

Note 10/22/97 Wednesday 10:20 AM EDT: mrscott.com/note03.htm for the Fun Note Posted Below. CIO

Note 10/22/97 Wednesday 10:10 AM EDT: I was up at 5:30 AM this morning. I read the www.yahoo.com/headlines reports. I listened to www.ttalk.com World Technology Roundup. I read the email from Netscape In Box Direct Registration . I noticed a new sites New York Today , Microsoft Home Essentials , Le web de Canal+ , computainment.com - the World's only computer software consumer search engine , Microsoft Money Insider Version 2: Smart Financial Decisions Made Easier ,Family.com , Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency , Policy.com , NetMeeting 2.1 , Global Gateway Group , Aerosoft - NetLoad , NETWORLD+INTEROP 97 PARIS . The President of the USA is speaking at National Geographic today, and another good link is World Wildlife Fund Take Action on Global Warming or World Wildlife Fund Global Network www.panda.org . Hard Rock And Heavy Metal Internet Radio in Real Audio for the kids. BarnesandNoble.com World's Largest Bookseller Online has been added a free advertiser at the top of my homepage. ZKM | Deutsch German Art is online. YMCA Europe international for young travelers in Europe. Whitbread Round The World Race For The Volvo Trophy for you sailors out there. Need Tabasco Pepperfest Taste Tent Chats for your barbeque sandwich, I believe there is good barbeque around 1500 East Main Street in Stamford, Ct. . New 32-bit Apps at Stroud's CWSApps List for latest Applications. Ask Martha is still Under Construction . Republican Main Street for those trying to get a view of the White House Camera. Houses of Worship for the faithful. New York Times on the Web: Books for your reading pleasure. National Audubon Society for you birders. Today@nasa.gov for what's happening with Space. Marijuana as a Medicine for the ill. Fall Foliage Report: Maine Department of Conservation for the leafers. MARRIOTT'S CASA MARINA RESORT - An Island Paradise in the Florida Keys, Florida Keys Florida Keys Fl for your winter vacation needs. IBM Voice Type Via Voice for those of you who don't like to type. If you need a new heart HoustonChronicle.com Spare Hearts . For your dining pleasure around in Greenwich Restaurants . It's all happening at the zoo Gorilla Foundation . For winter golfers Golf in Spain or see Germany. For star gazers Gemini 8m Telescopes Project . For fun on your computer GAMECENTER.COM . Parlez Vous French Embassy in Washington DC, Ambassade de France à Washington DC. . Elvis Presley's Graceland , the King. NOAA/PMEL/TAO - What is an El Nino (ENSO)? the weather. EBN Interactive for European Business. Better living through Chemistry DuPont . Don't forget Mickey Disney.com Web Site for Families . Discovery Online on the tube. Chill Out Davis Station, Antarctica . Order out cybermeals . More for star gazers CMDL MAUNA LOA OBSERVATORY . President of China will be in DC on Sunday. Classy search engine Britannica Internet Guide . Help speaking from Bell Labs Text-to-Speech . Back to school American School Directory . Read a book American Library Association . Live like a CZAR Alexander Palace Time Machine . Need medical help 1997 Best Hospitals . What's happening on Wall Street Merrill Lynch Market Data or Merrill Lynch Financial News & Research Center . Worried about a Volcano Smithsonian Institution Global Volcanism Program or MTU Volcanoes . View from the sky GEOSTATIONARY SATELLITE SPECIAL EVENT ARCHIVE . Or computer support No Wonder Computer Support . Check out the weather from the sky NRL Monterey GOES-9, GOES-8, METEOSAT, GMS, Tropical Cyclone, Hurricane Satellite Products Images Mo . See what Paulallen.com is up to. Email mailto:billg@microsoft.com . Star gaze in Instituto de Astrofísica de Canarias . Relax on a volcano Lanzerote Map . Tell the boss you need a vacation this winter Lou Gerstner . Buy a horse New York Breeding and Racing Program . See how much fun it is in Nantucket in the winter Nantucket Island, Ma. - Nantucket.net - Nantucket Island Information or take a look for yourself Nantucket Washington Street Cam . Go down east Kennebunkport, Maine . Remember I will be hiding out in Greenwich, Connecticut more than likely at the Greenwich Library which will be a little noisy. Have a good day from mrscott.com or say hello mailto:mikescott@ibm.net .

Note 10/21/97 Tuesday 7:10 PM EDT: Note the Microsoft Investor Portfolio Program says my bell weather portfolio at mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was up $14,544.25 today, however by my math it was up only $5,231.75; there must be something wrong in the portfolio program in the way it computes the daily totals. CIO

Note 10/21/97 Tuesday 6:50 PM EDT: I went downtown at 4 PM. Greenwich was out in full force. Whoever sells gasoline was making money today. The library was busy. I read two of the computer trade weeklies, and the Greenwich Times. Lots of foreign speaking people around. The Hospital Thrift Shop had the usual array of merchandise. I did some grocery shopping. I got four half gallons of Tropicana grapefruit juice and orange juice for $1.39 a half gallon. I got a half gallon of milk and a quart of half and half. I bought two pounds of "I Can't Believe It's not Butter" for 99 cents a pound. I bought two steaks for $5.55 at $3.99 a pound for shell steaks. I bought a 12 ounce jar of Grand Union peanut butter for 99 cents. Thus I have food for a few days, but I hope to lose some weight. I keep all my receipts. I have 14 years of receipts for most everything I have purchased except for cigarettes. I hope to get the pill to quit smoking this week. The roof outside on the rain patio is just about resurfaced. It looks like they have done a good job, and hopefully it won't leak anymore downstairs. I threw out the ten pounds of yellow snapper I had in the freezer along with the four day old chicken remains. I was worried about getting food poisoning again. Having worked in French restaurants, I know something about keeping an eye on food in the frig. A senior citizen was wearing HH in the library. I told him there are a lot of famous HH people, who seemed to have gone to Harrods in England, and Harvard in American. Think about it. HMS and HH have similar connotations. I will post mrscott.com/scopor01.htm shortly. The women seem to be conspiring once again as they usually do in Greenwich. However, they have a sense of what the town should be like, and they usually get their ways. I noticed a Bolshoi Ballet Bag in the Greenwich library. Of course the Russians at the Albertville Olympics were selling all of their uniforms for hard currency, so maybe the Ballet is doing the same thing too. I was thinking that the Greenwich Library is such a popular gathering place, perhaps there was an old Indian meeting lodge on the same grounds, and their spirits keep drawing the community back to the same location. I did not notice them doing any archeological digging around the new parking lot, so I suppose it has been regarded many times over history. I commented to a passerby that when I visited Troy the ruins were set back from the sea, because over thousands of years the sea had receded. I told one of the employees of the library he should look into going to Wabash College in Indiana, I believe it is the last male college in America, for those who are hen pecked by the opposite sex. I received a magnetic alumni patch from Greenwich Country Day like Lake Forest College sent me. Since computer hard disks are very sensitive to magnetism, it is strongly recommended "NOT" to stick the magnetic alumni patches on your computer case because they could damage the contents of the hard disk, likewise for telephones which still have magnets should not be near the computer. Also the unshielded electrical cords behind the computer can cause interference. CIO

Note 10/21/97 Tuesday 2:40 PM EDT: I was able to create mrscott.com/abcnews1.htm ABC News headline page today out of the existing JAVA scripts by using both the Netscape and Microsoft FrontPage Editors. It took several hours of tinkering. I also spell checked this document with the Netscape 4.0 editor spell checker. However Netscape's editor on my machine is too slow for typing because I use a 486/DX4 120 Mhz, whereas MS's editor works fast enough. The roofers are working on the roof outside my window today with lots of banging. They seem to have a nice day for it. I am going to log off as soon as I post this note. CIO

Note 10/21/97 Tuesday 7:07 AM EDT: Updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . If you need links to surf, I am sure you will find them in the bookmark. I basically subscribe to a dozen and a half email tech letters for links, www.netsurfer.com Netsurfer Digest, and www.cybercouncil.com Cybercouncil, and look at IBM's www.ibm.com , and Microsoft www.microsoft.com , plus what ever links come across my desktop in email. I do not publish obscene or objectionable links, however if someone has changed their pages since I linked them, I obviously can not be responsible with over 55,000 links in the downloadable directory, mrscott.com/download.htm and the bookmark mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Obviously most the links reflect the United States and the English speaking community in the western hemisphere. If you can find another volunteer who feels like offering over 20,000 hours free time, I will be happy to relinquish this past time, and pursue some more worthwhile personal endeavors that involve a healthier work routine in a more friendly climate. Thus after spending over 40 years in libraries and 8 years on home computers, I have been keeping track of a lot of your missing links, which the commercial people on the internet would prefer to ignore. However, IBM and Microsoft are two of the largest players on the internet, and if you want to eliminate them you can go back to your dead paper press and two week old news weeklies. I have a feeling the general public are demanding timely and accurate information not just a smoke screen. Greenwich is pretty much the same as always with the usual number of patrons in the library. No unusual activity in the area, but for the uninformed we are a contiguous part of New York City, so one has to treat the Greenwich environment more like the gateway to New England, not the Hollywood version of Christmas in Connecticut. Cheers to the net heads. CIO

Note 10/21/97 Tuesday 4:45 AM EDT: Check out mrscott.com/scopor01.htm , to see how Scott's Bellwether portfolio is doing. Individuals who watch television and network in night clubs, should take time out to study this technology, before they pretend to be an experts. CIO

Note 10/21/97 Tuesday 3:45 AM EDT: I am up at 2 AM. I had breakfast. I am listening to the MS Conference Call at Microsoft 1st Quarter 1997 Earnings. My basic attitude on the U.S. Department of Justice charges against Microsoft is that the DOJ is acting like a bunch of naive thugs trying to shake down a prosperous American company. The original intent of the antitrust statutes as I studied them at Lake Forest College from 1968 to 1972 is that they were intended to protect companies that seek to restrain trade and commerce through a monopoly position as they were applied to the Standard Oil Trust. Since Microsoft is only second largest software company one fourth the size of IBM's software operations, they are not a monopoly. Moreover MS Internet Explorer 4.0 is given away as a accessory program which individuals have the option of installing or not. Basically Netscape also gives away its browser. One can not allege anti trust violations in pro bono public relations efforts of a company donating its costly research efforts to the general public. Realistically I use Netscape 3.0 more since I like its faster bookmarks than Netscape 4.0 . I find what is going on behind the shell of MS IE 4.0 much more useful, but on my common 486 DX 120 MHZ, IE 4.0 is slower by a factor of 2 to 4 compared to Netscape. Since Microsoft controls the operating the system, they are in a position to optimize the web browser and operating system as they work together which is to the benefit of the general public. Most program add-ons frequently add various files that might possibly alter the operating system. It is safe to expect that Microsoft is best suited to provide the best system files that work with the operating system. It is my viewpoint that the DOJ lawyers are looking at Microsoft's large cash resources and not their technology. Since Windows 95 is not bundled with MS IE 4.0, the DOJ case is invalid and not relevant to the previous DOJ restraint order that it refers to. Since users have the option of installing either MS IE 4.0 or Netscape 4.0 or both when configuring their systems, and frequently do both, the DOJ is out in left field and obviously not familiar with the technology. My viewpoint is based on three years of web browsing and internet use and eight years of system use. My viewpoint is that the Windows 98 operating system should be able to have an option to install MS IE 4.0 since it is to the benefit of the general public, and if they wish they can also install the Netscape browser by downloading it, and it is expected the two companies will make sure their browsers work simultaneously on the Win95 or Win98 platforms. Realistically MS IE 4.0 is an integral part of the operating system, and to force Microsoft to cripple its technology would not be in the general interest of the general public. Moreover, Microsoft in offering MS IE 4.0 for free has the right to offer it with its operating systems that it licenses on various systems, since it is an integral part of the operating system. I thus rule the U.S. Department of Justice ruling against Microsoft on 10/20/97 is null and void and the U.S. Department of Justice should cease and desist all activities that seek to hinder the development of this technology which is most useful in providing diverse and informative viewpoints to the general public.

Executive Judicial Order: U.S. Military District 5 Court of Review, 10/21/97;Greenwich, Connecticut USA 06830, subject to review by U.S. Supreme Court, period to appeal limited to six months from date posted.

Michael Louis Scott, Esquire; LLDS, Harvard University, 1908

Note 10/20/97 Monday 2:45 PM EDT:

Microsoft 1st Quarter 1997 Earnings

IBM, 3rd Quarter 1997 Earnings when posted probably after market close

Note 10/20/97 Monday 1:35 PM EDT: I chatted with a fellow down in Tallahassee, Florida about Tabasco sauce on the internet this AM. At 8 AM I took a nap until 1 PM. I just had a bowl of brown rice and soy sauce, and a Diet Pepsi, and am now having my coffee. I was awoken by the delightful sound of a masonry saw cutting bricks on the chimneys the Sheiks are repairing outside of my window. It sort of sounds like a dentist's drill. My two Nomad 4000 portable phones have to rest in their cradles with the red lights on, or they cause interference with the computer modem by sending an annoying signal when the computer is turned off, which can interfere with the modem connection when it is turned on. Obviously ATT had a design flaw in the Nomad 4000 phones that they can't keep charging when they rest in the cradle. It sounds like Jack Hammers outside my window now. I think I will turn on a little music. I just put on Alex North's 2001. I suppose the country club people will be out stocking up this morning, since the clubs are closed on Monday. It is suppose to be 65 degrees outside, so as soon as I have my coffee and shower; I guess I will go outside and people watch this PM. I have a 4 PM appointment. Needless to say I have my computer all tweaked and up to snuff, but I have to keep an eye on the NOMAD 4000 phones to make sure they are resting properly in their cradles with the red charging lights on. Obviously this is a low budget operation and like the town of Greenwich, the motto of this operation should be "Penny Thrifty and Pound Foolish". Well I have seen it all in this area over the years, so I don't think I am missing out on anything. Recently there has been a little activity at the indoor skating rink in my back yard, so I suppose the rink rats are beginning to do their thing. My grandmother use to have a neighbor whose family I believe owns the Florida Marlins, so I guess I will root for them, but I hardly ever watch television, so I don't plan to watch sports on television either. Most interesting past time in Greenwich, is to drive to North Terrytown, New York and walk around Pontannico Hills State Park and enjoy the brisk fall weather. They have many miles of nature trails they gave to the state. I believe an IBM office is just down the road from the Rock's state park. One is not allowed to smoke on the property I believe. One can also visit the John Jay homestead in Bedford, New York which I believe has a family connection to the Scott's in the old days. One of the two Scott daughters in Manhattan in 1700 married into the Jay family, so a lot of what is known as historical Jay family properties were Scott family properties originally. Basically the first Scott in Manhattan was the first sexton at the first Dutch Reform Church built in the city of New Amsterdam. He probably tended the grave yard and import molasses from the Indies and a bit of rum. In Manhattan the Metropolitan Museum and the Natural History Museums are a lot of fun. The old guard tend to gather around the DAR building, the Museum of the City of New York, and the Colony Club. I believe General Douglas McArthur's widow Jean is still in residence in the Waldorf Towers after all these years. Having not set foot into Manhattan in 4 1/2 years, I guess a great many of the nouveau residents in the city suppose I am just another country bumpkin in town here, but I am sure many of my neighbors are holding court in the city, and on my limited budget I don't have the funds to travel comfortably into the city. Hint at the Metropolitan Museum in the old days, the admission was a suggested donation, so I would just give them a nickel and say I was an art student. Of course the Frick Museum is an oasis in the city. Also Greenwich has an Audubon Center, but beware of deer ticks that can give Lyme disease. Also I believe there is the Waverly Center in New Canaan that has walking paths. Possibly Tod's Point in Old Greenwich is now open to the general public for a brisk walk along the shore. Well enough practice writing for now. Enjoy the day. <mailto:billg@microsoft.com> is too cheap to include a spell checker in FrontPage Express that I use to post these notes, so I guess he wants you to buy Office 97 that has a spell checker that might work with this. What the Hell, if you grew up in Alabama and Florida until age 11, one does not need to know how to spell all the fancy Yankee words properly. You get the gist of the message. Apparently the mass communications media barons don't think people should drink or smoke Tabasco anymore, but if you spent a few or more hours out in the winter cold up north, I suppose you might want a shot of booze when you came inside. I always feel like an Admiral on a Aircraft Carrier who smokes his pipe watching all the pilots come and go, in Greenwich's case of course it is the business community that comes and goes. The fellow I knew "Wiley" that imported all the coffee into America in the old days, use to drink his whisky and lived to be 96 years old in Tybee Island, Georgia. I suppose somebody is making money off all this gourmet coffee that is being consumed around the country. CIO

Note 10/20/97 Monday 5:25 AM EDT: Microsoft 1st Quarter Earnings will be posted here today . CIO

Note 10/20/97 Monday 5:10 AM EDT: I updated mrscott.com/stats.htm Scott's Web stats at the main Florida site mrscott.com . I also added my email address <mailto:mikescott@ibm.net> at the bottom of my web homepage, which I had neglected to have for the last six months. I did have it under the mrscott.com/scottm.htm Michael Scott page. The most impressive car I saw yesterday was a new Bentley two door coupe in dark British Racing Green, which looks like a very reliable conservative car for those who enjoy touring and have the extra bucks to spend on ground transportation. However, I think if one is not in a rush, it is probably more enjoyable to travel over long ground distances by private rail cars which are still available for hire in this country. Of course one can only follow the rails in a private rail car. CIO

Note 10/20/97 Monday 4:50 AM EDT: I updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm with the latest links across my desk. I also downloaded MS Internet Explorer 4.0 Products Download Security Patch . Now time for a little surging and possibly Iphone chat by www.vocaltec.com . Also in my bookmarks look at Beware Of Lying Online: It's Not What You Say, It's How You Say It . CIO

Note 10/20/97 Monday 2:30 AM EDT: Yesterday I stopped by the Greenwich library at 1 PM on Sunday when it opened and exchanged my music CDs. I was unable to find a copy of the Greenwich Times in the library, so I am unaware of local events. In the morning I chatted with a few friends, since I have MCI's 5 cents a minute on Sunday. I found a 14 inch monitor glare reducer that I cut the frame in half and taped together with duct tape, so as to fit a 15 inch monitor. It is a polarizing glare reducing filter that should make the monitor image less taxing on the eyes. I dropped by one of the filters at the hospital thrift shop along with 3 dell keyboards. A great many offices discard computer equipment around here. I chatted with a former neighbor down on Steamboat Road who spent World War II in a Russian prison camp. W. Averill Harriman got him out of the prison camp. He is very knowledgeable about the water. I noticed they were having a small street fair down town. In the later afternoon, there were lots of Volvos, Mercedes, BMWs, and Rolls Royces downtown per usual of people going to Starbucks for coffee. It was a bit overcast and cool and damp. I mailed my MS IE 4.0 CD-ROM to a relative to install. He just got a Pentium 200. While mailing it at the post office off West Putnam Avenue that has a 24 stamp machine, I noticed the new electronic stamp vending machines are a little bit complicated, if one is nearsighted trying to following the instructions on the electronic pad. A nice lady waited impatiently behind me. I also topped up the oil in the car, filled the battery water, cleaned the battery terminals, and made sure the ignition wires did not touch any hot surfaces. I chatted more on the phone during the evening and went to bed at 7 PM and got up just now at 2 AM. I will do a little net work this morning. I have a 4 PM appointment on Monday afternoon. CIO

Note 10/19/97 Sunday 7:00 AM EDT: I got up at midnight. I read the four computer news weeklies in the Greenwich library yesterday morning. They were having a trustees meeting as I arrived the trustees were arriving. I stopped by the Arnold Bakery store in Byram on the way back and picked up some Arnold Healthnut Bread and Sandwich Size English muffins at outlet prices. When I got up at midnight, I started watering the plants, and cleaned my apartment until 4:00 AM. While doing it, I made a backup of the computer system. I need a second Travan 1 Tape when I can afford it to make a second backup. The old TR1 tapes, a year and half old, don't work. I cleaned my air purifier which took about an hour. I have the heat on a little bit to take the chill out. I listened to www.ttalk.com weekend roundup. The first hour is all about satellite technology with a spokesman from NORAD, very interesting. Obviously my mrscott.com/ss.ram message was meant to be tongue in cheek. While listening to the broadcast I tried connecting my computer speaker to the stereo system like I use to, and gradually figured out I don't get the buzzing sound, by making the stereo input into the amplifier mono instead of stereo. Thus I can listen to any sound out of my computer through surround sound in my living room and bedroom, which is nice so one can wander around. Basically I disconnected the stereo cord adapter half way out and taped it, so only the mono feed is inputted. I just showered, after having dinner, and I will do a little more work and go out later this morning. CIO

Note 10/18/97 Saturday 5:25 AM EDT: I received a call from a friend in Daytona, Florida last evening. He is enjoying the hot humid weather down there. He said in a week he goes to Cologne, Germany to live with his girl friend. He received a black leather jacket for his upcoming birthday. His first jet flight down there made him a little nervous, but he seemed prepared for the flight on Lufthansa to Germany. I finally got up about 11 PM this past evening. I tied up the electrical cords above the electric wall radiators, so they will not get hot this winter. I put the two tower IBM 386s underneath my printer to the left of the computer. I might replace them with a two drawer file cabinet when I find one. I dropped the PS/2 50 Z at the Hospital Thrift Shop. I did some grocery shopping at the Grand Union. The Grand Union on the Post Road will be closed at 11 PM on Saturday and Sunday nights in the future. I had cold chicken, brown rice, green beans, and zucchini for dinner just a short while ago. It is cool out and I have the oil filled radiator going next to where I am sitting for a little warmth. I am spooked by the tabloid in the Grand Union predicting the coldest winter in 6000 years. They ran the same story last February. I will do a little computer work, and go out this morning. CIO

Note 10/30/97 Thursday 11:45 PM EDT: I got up at 2 PM this past afternoon, after being up on the net until 6:30 AM yesterday morning. I was awoken by the workmen hammering and sawing on the roof outside of my window. It seems that they are doing an excellent job of repairing the building. Hopefully in the spring or summer, they will get around to painting the building's trim. I am keeping the heat in my apartment at 70 degrees F. . I stopped by the hospital thrift shop this past afternoon and they had all their merchandise half price with a wide variety of goods. I went down on Greenwich Avenue, and the New York City ABC News truck was there. The cameraman told me I don't look like Peter Jennings, unlike the comments from certain blind people in the area. They were reporting on a story that ran a few days ago in the Greenwich Times about two men trying to abduct

a 12 year old girls in Greenwich. I noticed a link that you might find useful in PC Magazine on this subject, it is Safeguarding Our Children - United Mothers . Working families seem to be gravely worried about the security of their children, as I told a coworker in the area based on my experience five years ago, one should keep an eye on their children first, and put career second. As with all New York City communities, we try to keep a neighborhood watch in Greenwich, and I have spent 14 years on Greenwich Avenue at all times of day at all times of the year, keeping an eye out as I did in all other communities I have lived in. It is a quite tiring and exhausting past time, and in a busy area one frequently gets an overdose of humanity after a while and begins to fell like a New York City policeman. Obviously having grown up down south until age 12, I am use to spending more time outside than most civilians, and pace myself on my daily rounds. Although legally one can do very little if something happens other than notify the police, a large community presence is the best safe guard against unwanted intruders. Greenwich has had 25 dinner time burglaries in recent months, so obviously a gang is working the area. Knowing the local law enforcement's high degree of professionalism, I am sure they will solve both cases soon. Mark Furman of the O.J. Simpson trial fame, is writing a book on a unsolved case 25 years ago here, he is looking for any information on the case and has posted a 1-888-975-9306 telephone number for anyone that might have any information on the Moxley murder case. It is my impression from the news reports that I read on the case many years ago, the investigating officers thought it was a transient that came off the highway since the sight of the murder was near the 95 thruway. Because of politics, I think people have blown the case out of proportion, and a professional FBI expert would tell any informed member of the general public, that there are a large number of unsolved cases in the country probably attributed to transients or travelers coming through a community. One FBI report I once read said that at any given time there are 200 serial killers lose in America, meaning people who have committed more than one murder. Needless to say staying out in the vicinity of the police station is relatively safe activity, and from an insurance stand point, one's own home is considered the most dangerous place. It reminds me I have to buy a bath mat for the tub shower. Thus if any former members of the Greenwich community has any information on the Moxley case and runs across this message, call Mark Furman at 1-888-975-9306. Obviously a professional law enforcement officer would probably assume that people with celebrity attrack a few bad apples too. The local elections are this next week, and I plan to vote Republican which is the status quo in Greenwich. After dinner I went by the library and was unable to find the local paper, and then I walked downtown for several hours and enjoyed the warmer weather. This coming weekend is suppose to be a wash out with rain. I suppose some people had hoped to rake leaves which is also the status quo for property owners this time of year. One of the most unseen nuisances at night is the large skunk population around town, which if you happen to stumble across one can be sort of nasty. Wash with tomato juice to remove the smell. I believe one skunk lives in the bushes by the senior center. Also one local told me from experience that the Cos Cob power plant site is an environmental nightmare. Back to the net. CIO

Note 10/30/97 Thursday 3:00 AM EDT: Following is the text of a letter of information to the

New York City FBI office.

<http://www.homegamblingnetwork.com/>

I was emailed to add this to my directory.

It was my understanding from the press that Internet Gambling has been outlawed.

I am no longer maintaining the directory since it has generated very little interest,

I am just keeping it as is and maintaining the bookmark.

China Connections I have if you are interested:

Decatur, Alabama 1955-1961, I believe Clair Chenault of Flying Tigers Fame was there.

Lake Forest College 1972, I knew Hurley Harris Haywood, from Oak Brook, Illinois who was the grandson of General Hurley, the first American general to deal with Mao Tse Tung.

Greenwich, Connecticut 1961 to date, friends and neighbors of the Bush family who have former President and Ambassador Bush to China, and Prescott Bush supposedly building a Country Club in China, represent by Hannaford Group Public Relations Consultant.

Lake Forest College, friend of Pris Watts whose step father Wolf Barker was chairman of the board of Lipton Tea Company. I believe Wolf had two daughters who were tea buyers in Asia.

New York, New York knew Frederick Von Mieres designer and student of Chinese History who had a roommate named John from China who studied at Columbia University. Fred showed up in the New York Press with Nelson Rockefeller and William Westmoreland at Society parties.

His main patron Helen Kress Williams was the heir to Kress Department stores and Alice Roosevelt's neighbor in Oyster Bay, Long Island.

Key West, Florida 1977 - 1983, met John Bolton from Manhasset, Long Island whose father is presently in the State Department in Thailand, his mother worked for Cyrus Vance after the Carter administration. I traveled by car to California with John two or three times. I believe his paternal grandfather is in the U.S. Army. His sister worked for China Airlines and married a silk merchant from China, where they travel back and forth.

New York City and Westport and Wilton, Connecticut; I knew a large tall Swedish fellow named George who was the part of the first American Group representing Linblad Travel to China. Last he told me about ten years ago, he was living in Wilton in America.

Wilton, Connecticut a long time friend Richard Van Marter has a wealthy neighbor in Wilton, Connecticut who is a professional social worker in New York City.

Key West, Florida 1983 and New York City, I met a Chinese fellow who had a store on Columbus Avenue in New York City called "Design Observations". I believe one of his sales assistants was murdered in Manhattan according to the press.

Boston, Massachusetts at Polaroid Corporation, I.M. Pei was a well known Chinese architect that my father always used for his commercial architecture. I believe I.M. Pei use to also be in Nantucket. I remember seeing a Connecticut License Plate "IMP" ?.

Maui Hawaii 1980, I believe Madame Chaing Kai Chek was around.

Manhasset, Long Island John Bolton's grandmother Vivian West had traveled worldwide and many times to China. She had a Chinese silk rug in her living room.

San Francisco Airport 1979? I witnessed the departure of the reinauguration of the Shaing Hai Express Clipper flight of Pan Am to China. I remember reading the guest book and saw Mrs. Honeywell from Honeywell Computers of Wellesley, Massachusetts on the guest book. Greenwich, Connecticut recently, worker at the library canteen is from Taipei.

Key West, Florida 1983, I met Stephen Salisbury from Salisbury, Connecticut who said he was related to Harrison Salisbury of New York Times fame.

Paris, France 1994 before Albertville Olympics, I believe the Louvre was full of Chinese visitors.

Geneva, Switzerland at the same time, many Chinese visitors there at the same time I was there.

Greenwich, Connecticut last ten years one of my two barbers at Putnam Barbers, Shu is from China and he lives with his family here.

Greenwich, Connecticut my mother always takes me to dinner at Hunan Gourmet across from the YMCA.

Greenwich Village 1972 - 1975, Chinese Observer was always in Ninth Circle Steak House.

Greenwich, Connecticut early 1960's, childhood friend would go to Chinatown in Manhattan to buy illegal fireworks.

Decatur, Alabama 1955 to 1961, I use to unroll fire crackers and try to read the Chinese newsprint. I also was told by a friend of father's, I was digging a hole to China when I use to dig holes in the yard.

Stratton, Vermont 1987? saw where Perl Buck had lived and visited Orvis Sports.

Decatur, Alabama 1955 to 1961 a neighbor kept carp in a small fish pond.

For Life: My Scottish Dutch sister thinks she is the empress of China.

Nantucket 1978 - 1983, summers "Gone to China" meant I was working as a dish washer.

Greenwich, Connecticut today has plenty of Chinese, after all one fourth the world is Chinese.

Sweden, King of Sweden likes to collect Chinese Art.

Greenwich, Connecticut 1987 Scott bicycle is made in Taiwan.

Well that is a short summary of my Chinese experience besides,

Champagne, Illinois My grandfather's brother Vernon Scott claims to have been to China over 40 times in 1980 basically selling soy beans for soy sauce to the Asian market.

North Terrytown, New York; I believe Happy Rockefeller is on the Board of Directors of Archer Daniels Midland, which as you all know sells soy beans. Enjoy the Tofu.

Yours Truly,

Michael Louis Scott
Apt. # 206
71 Vinci Drive
Greenwich, Connecticut 06830
United States of America

Scott's Internet Hotlist
<http://mrscott.com/>
<http://www.rcch.com/hotlist/scotlist.htm>
54,000 URLs in 132 categories

Email: <mailto:mikescott@ibm.net>

Note 10/30/97 Thursday 1:00 AM EDT: I got up yesterday about 3 PM in the afternoon and watched the President of the USA and the President of China in their news conference on CNN. I went by the library and read the four computer newswEEKlies, I read every week. One controversial link report in the computer press was the German view of World War II, Zündelsite and www.ostara.org ostara.html - the site for patriots, law and order . I have not had time to study it. Of course an equally good site for patriots would be U.S. Air Force World Wide Web Sites , particularly if one is interested in low cost air travel on a limited budget, of course some restrictions do apply as with all low cost operations. Check out the old model of the DC-3 Mohawk Airlines in the departures lounge of Westchester Airport, if you ever are in the area. It is like the first plane I flew into in this area in 1961. Of course Chemstrand back then had a fleet of private planes along with Monsanto. I believe that day I flew from the Decatur - Huntsville, Alabama airport up to Raleigh Durham where the Research Park was, and then to National Airport in Washington D.C. where Dad introduced me to the head of the then Atomic Energy Commission who he happened to recognize in the airport and then on to Teddleboro Airport near Trenton, New Jersey and then to McArthur Airport on Long Island, and finally we landed at Westchester Airport as I recalled and took a stretch Cadillac limousine to Stamford, Connecticut to stay at the now closed Roger Smith Hotel which did not have very good barbeque. The following day I interviewed at Greenwich Country Day School and was accepted because I had good academic skills and knew quite a bit about the game of golf. That kind of airline travel I called "puddle jumping" in the old days. Of course I had been on dozens of other flights down south since it seemed some of the people living around NASA in Huntsville were experienced pilots in those days. In other news after going to the library I walked around down town, I asked Quinn's Market if they had ever heard of Corby's liquor. On the way back to Byram, I stopped by Var Max Liquor Pantry in Port Chester, New York and studied the current state of their Scotch Whisky inventory. They had one bottle of Windsor Whisky from Canada for $13 a fifth left on display. Plenty of other Scotches. Dewars was about $20 a fifth, and Canadian Club about $13 a fifth. They have Glen Morangie in three different ages up to $50 a fifth, plus the usual assortment of other Whiskeys including a big bottle half gallon of Johnnie Walker Blue. I did not think their Scotch and Whisky selection area was very large, they seem to have mostly wine on display with excellent values in some close outs. They did not know what Corby's Whisky was, so I suppose it has not been around here in a long time. One old timer on Greenwich Avenue who is known for having a night cap at the Greenwich Harbor Inn told me it was an excellent Canadian Whisky and like a great many distillers, the Canadians don't export the good stuff. I suppose it is like "Holy Isle" single malted Scotch Whisky which is usual given as a gift and not exported from Scotland. At Var Max they said they carried one brand of whisky that has 5,000 blends in it, but they did not tell me the name. I suppose on a cold night when one has been outside on the moors all day, a little whisky helps warm up the innards. I also was told that whisky does not go bad over time if opened, but it will evaporate if not properly sealed. This is not to encourage whisky drinking, but it is a commentary on the current state of the Whisky business as I was able to investigate it in the area. A good advertising slogan would be "Windsor Whisky, the Whisky that Won the West", but my favorite brand name I have not ever seen would be called "Old Courage". It seems that rather than encourage illegal drinking and driving in the area, the responsible people use limousines to get around so as to avoid traffic accidents. I then made flavored brown rice for dinner and sautéed spicy chicken breast and green peas. I made my coffee and went out with it in my thermos, and sat out on Greenwich Avenue about 9:30 PM. It was very slow, and David at the Senior Center told me that he met the Governor of Connecticut yesterday when he was using the rest room at the Senior Center. I believe the governor was in the area for the opening of the Swiss Bank Corporation headquarters in Stamford, Connecticut. According to the Greenwich Times, they have a large trading floor on the sixth floor. As I recall the Swiss speak, Italian, German, and French in their native land. Of course I live across the street from Perrier, which is owned by Nestle a Swiss company in White Plains, New York. As I recall when I first went to school in Europe in Italy at the University of Grenoble extension in Firenze, everyone called American style coffee, "Nescafe". It was basically instant coffee, a cup of hot water and a little package of "Nescafe" instant coffee. I soon learned that Cafe Au Lait was much more enjoyable which is Espresso and Hot Frothed Milk, similar to Cappuccino. I saw the Chief of Detectives coming out of the Colonial Diner this evening, and I had not seen him in a while. Tucson was very busy with what seemed to be a local younger crowd. Over all Greenwich was very quiet for a Wednesday night. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a 100 tea bag box of Lipton Tea for $1.39 which is on sale. There seem to be quite a few local hospital workers that reverse commute into the New York area in the evening. The most common pedestrians out in the late evening on Greenwich Avenue are hospital workers going back and forth to the hospital. That's all for now folks. PS, I believe in the old days in the NAVY whisky was considered a Red Cross Emergency ration and kept by the Medical Officer. CIO

Note 10/28/97 Tuesday 9:00 PM EDT: Market rebounds, and my bell weather portfolio is basically back where it started when I began it. Look at mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . At least the two amount changes now match, which I think they should. A friend bought a 1,000 shares of General Electric this morning. Lets watch the market for the rest of the week for now. In other news, I stopped by the Arnold Bakery Store and bought three loaves of wheat bread for $2.59. I spent $3.80 on $2.99 a pound Purdue Boneless Chicken Breasts. I stopped by the library and read the Greenwich Times. The Swiss Bank Corporation was opening their new office building complex in Stamford, Connecticut today. Let's hear it for the Swiss, Swiss Bank Index . I believe the 29th is my hippie friend's in Cologne, Germany birthday, www.raven.com still does not exist. Happy Birthday to Chris and his girl friend. Don't cast any wicked spells on "All Hallows Eve". I chatted over the weekend with a fellow from Deutch Telecom in Bremen. He told me the Bremen Shipyard is for sale. I think it would make an excellent investment for a containership port for Europe, somebody should look into it. All the Germans on the net using Iphone seem to be drinking beer. The television said this evening that a man's waste should be half the size of his height to maintain good cardiovascular health. Thus if you are 6 foot tall, you should have a 36 inch waste or less. Over all it was a pretty peaceful day, but I am well fed after my dinner this evening. I like watching Sherlock Holmes on television, but I have not found any features on recently. Perhaps I will surf the tube instead of the addicting net, but

let's wait and see. CIO

Note 10/28/97 Tuesday 1:25 PM EDT: I noticed my stats Scott's Stats for October are over 10,000 this month; but nobody is looking at mrscott.com/bmnow.htm and mrscott.com/note02.htm which I put a lot work into. My Microsoft categories seem to be busy though. I emailed the site manager at Collecting Fossils in California about what I recalled about the Dinosaur Eggs in Decatur, Alabama in response to his email. I suppose it was all covered up by the NASA scientists in the area. We do have an exhibit on Dinosaurs at the local Bruce Museum in Greenwich that I have not been to yet. CIO

Note 10/28/97 Tuesday 11:45 AM EDT: Up latter this AM. The stock market seems to have rebounded a little. I would still exercise caution. I will maintain my normal routine. CIO

Note 10/27/97 Monday 11:00 PM EDT: For all of you Robber Barron Yuppies, who have been ripping of the system blindly, I have a new resort for you all in French held territory called "Devil's Island". It is a modern yuppie resort sort of like the old television series "The Prisoner". Following are the links to the only television show on the island. It is sort of like "1984".

Six of One "The Prisoner" Appreciation Society

Kipp Teague's RetroWeb Classic Television "The Prisoner"

In addition since you are prisoners, you might as well help fix up the resort, we have not bothered upgrading it recently. It is just as it was when "The Butterfly" tried to escape. Sorry I am not the "BOSS", just CIO "Chief Information Officer" for the prisoners. So basically I guess you should make "Devil's Island" like the television series "The Prisoner". CIAO

Note 10/27/97 Monday 7:30 PM EDT: Scott's Bell Weather Portfolio mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was down -$56,080.88 today. All the eights in the change remind me of the universal warning number "8". Thus one should exercise caution. I have seen the number "8" a lot recently, but I don't know if it means a relevant natural disaster like a volcano erupting, or some other disaster like the stock market going down. I would suppose it will continue to go down tomorrow. Let's wait and see. Be sure to exercise caution in one's activities. Remember this is a Bell Weather demonstration portfolio, I don't recommend buying it or selling it. I certainly would not buy stocks tomorrow; and if I owned them I would keep selling them. Obviously major forces are shorting the market. Let's wait and see. CIO

Note 10/27/97 Monday 1:30 PM EDT: I was up at 10 AM. I checked my email and updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm which should have something to keep you busy. I emailed a site in California about Dinosaur Egg fossils, and also St. Andrew's University in Scotland about the directory. CIO

Note 10/27/97 Monday 12:00 AM EDT: I had a relaxing weekend. I cleaned my apartment, watered the plants, did laundry. I bought a pound of Cashews at Fresh Fields. I bought a pound of Columbian Coffee at the Food Emporium. I had a pound of poached salmon for dinner. There is a quiet misty rain falling this morning. As far as I can tell not much is happening around here, just the normal fall routine of this peaceful quaint New England village on Long Island Sound. Of course that is tongue in cheek, since the avenue on Friday and Saturday night was filled to capacity with the usual dinner hour guests. Enjoy the week and watch the stock market. CIO

Note:<888> 11/07/97 Friday 9:30 PM EST: According to CNN, we might be having confrontation with IRAQ. However, neither CNN or the Internet are considered military communications. Thus we have no real verified information as to events relayed through the Civilian communications network. I believe the Military communications network is called the Audubon Network, so I recommend people with access to that network to use it. However, the best network in a civilian environment is the "grapevine", so just gossip to see what is going on, but try to be diplomatic. With a great many foreign residents in the area, they are already preprogrammed on their point of view, and I don't suggest that they are fifth columnists. My main point of view is that we have another winter ahead here, so personnel who are able to keep the show going here will be appreciated. Thus a few people who don't like the cold will keep busy inside, but I dare say with French Canada to the north, we have enough personnel to move snow whenever it does arrive. Of course the Green Mountain boys are always welcome in the area, since coming from Vermont they have first hand experience in dealing with the snow not to mention I think we have a few Canadians in the area who consider the Connecticut shore a walk in the park during the winter. Thus the status quo pretty much remains the same in the area, as all long term residents are aware. I would recommend the kids and youngsters to continue their homework, and personnel in the area to maintain their job activity so as to keep the overall community going. I dare say when I go out this evening the streets will be practically empty as usual for that time of night, and I am always happy to see the Greenwich Police Department patrolling around and maintaining their usual excellent level of public safety not to mention the other night workers like EMT, hospital personnel, etc. So try to ignore the yuppies trying to have a good time and maintain your usual level of professionalism. I still have to have a bite to eat. CIO, Chief Information Officer

Note 11/07/97 Friday 12:20 PM EST: I surfed the net a bit last night, my usual routine. I went to bed at 6 AM and was up at 12 PM. I watched the opening of the George Bush library on CNN while having breakfast. I noticed this evening that the Cavalier gallery downtown on Greenwich Avenue next to the Sundown Saloon has a very well done four times life size bronze bust of former President Bush. It reminds me of busts that one sees around Washington D. C. of Franklin Roosevelt. I think the sculpture caught the spirit of the man. Take a look in the gallery next time you are down town. I made the usual rounds by the Hospital Thrift shop and the ELDC thrift shops on this side of town. I stopped by the library and read the computer press. I chatted with one regular about the economics of Royal Dutch Shell. I mentioned that I thought it would be a good idea to build an oil pipe line across Latin America, so that oil could be shipped from one ocean to another by tanker without having to transfer it around South America. I don't think it would be that expensive of a project whether it was along the existing Panama Canal Zone or one of the other Latin America countries. Obviously there would have to be tanker ports on both ends of the pipeline, so that would be the determining factor. In fact I thought they had already finished such a project. It would definitely save on transport costs from the middle east not to mention help get the Venezuelan oil to the west coast and beyond to Asia. I chatted with three visitors down on the pier on Steamboat Road from Key West, they looked a little bit cold. I told them I enjoyed my stay in Key West years ago, and chatted informally. This evening I recommended to Starbucks on Greenwich Avenue, they might consider serving Cuban Coffee which as I recall is quite delicious. I read the article in the Greenwich Times about the election, and they said that the Republican Ragland won by 170 votes and the Democratic contender Sanchez is calling for a recount. They police department have impounded the voting machines until the situation is determined. The air was quite cool and fresh. I cooked French sautéed center cut pork chops this evening with lots of chopped garlic, onions, and mushrooms in a wine sauce and olive oil. To help prevent arthritis I use garlic and olive oil. At the Grand Union one can buy a quart jar of chopped garlic for $5 and this week they have three cans of mushrooms for $1 and three cans of Mandarin Oranges for $1, plus sales on boneless chicken and center cut pork chops or pork roasts. During the cold winter months watching the fresh produce arrive at our many fine grocery stores is a feast for the eyes and it usually is quite reasonable. Every time I use to buy Caribbean Pineapples it would snow, so I finally became somewhat more reserve about buying them. Ultimately we enjoy seeing visitors from the south, but it takes quite a few people from up in the North Country to keep the whole show going, and they have their own perspective. One gal from the Philippines was working at the cold entrance to the library today. They still should put in a second set of sliding doors to keep the cold air from rushing into the downstairs entrance. I noticed they are putting up the brick facing and insulation at the new hospital addition. Teddie Kennedy Jr., is suppose to be at the Hyatt Hotel for a benefit this weekend, but I believe he went to school in the area at Yale and majored in forestry. I believe his wife is a doctor. Lots of cars from upstate New England at the Greenwich Harbor Inn, and they have a tent set up for some event this weekend. I hope they have heat. Remember OMAR the tent maker. Greenwich was pretty deserted this evening, so maybe people are busy inside. Scott's Bell Weather Portfolio, mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was down a bit today. I noticed earlier this week at Staples Supplies Store, they have the 8X8 video telephone 8x8's ViaTV Phone: Affordable Videophone for $450 apiece. One obviously would need two or more to use them. They play a full screen video picture on the television with an existing telephone connection without any special telephone setup. They seem to be quite a novelty for the person who has everything. A busy business man could call home if he carried it and see his wife in curlers and face cream. Of course it might be necessary to have a more presentable appearance when using the phone. Of course Grannys could chat with their grandkids too. I have not tried it, but it seems like it would work well at 20 frames per second, without additional telephone charges. Overall it was a pretty normal afternoon and evening in Greenwich. We always have the latest movies, and the Titanic is coming in mid December. Check the CUNARD schedule below for the comings and goings of the Queen

Elizabeth II for waterfront activity. A former neighbor just returned from an enjoyable trip down to South Africa. Greenwich people do get around, while the kids stay home and do their homework and the old guard tend to their knitting. CIO

Note 11/05/97 Wednesday 11:30 PM EST: Today I slept until 5 PM. There was a big racket outside my windows all day of pneumatic drills, drilling on the brick work. I suppose they are installing new flashing on the rain patio. A friend came down for dinner and we had sautéed center cut pork chops. He is going to spend the week of New Years in Paris studying architecture and art with another friend who has not been there. I told him to try out the Ritz Bar for entertainment on New Year's Eve, but he is probably a little bit too frugal to spend that sort of money. I bought a five pack of Marlboros for $11. Greenwich is very slow downtown this evening with not much going on. My portfolio mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was up a tad today. Back all night on the net. CIO

Note 11/05/97 Wednesday 12:15 AM EST: Updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm Scott's Current Bookmarks. CIO

Note 11/04/97 Tuesday 10:25 PM EST: Listened to EBN Interactive broadcast. The Republican Tom Ragland candidate for First Selectman in Greenwich, Ct. has won by slightly more than a half percent 50.5 %, they still need to wait for 650 absentee ballots, Democrat Sanchez has 49.5 %. Democrats are calling for a recount. In the Second Selectman race and Third Selectman Race it looks like the Democrats are winning, winning two of the three seats on the board of selectman. Richard Bergstresser former IBM scientist seems to have won on the Democratic Party ticket for second selectman 7100 votes versus 5900 votes for Romeo. Sanchez is down in the first selectman race by 150 votes, and waiting for absentee ballots count. 13,360 votes were cast at the polls and they are counting 650 absentee ballots. Republicans maintain majority on the BET. CIO

Note 11/04/97 Tuesday 8:15 PM EST: I awoke at 4 PM and went out and voted Republican in today's local election. I stopped by the library and read the local paper. It is a little cooler out, and I guess winter is on the way. After watching the ABC evening news, I snoozed for a half hour. I guess I will do a little net surfing since, I don't feel like facing the chilly evening. I chatted with the Johnson Controls repair man at the Greenwich Harbor Inn, and they said they were installing a new valve. Johnson Controls is an interesting company in terms of their overall product range. I should research it more. I think they are headquartered in Newport News, Virginal. I believe they acquired the old Pan Am Special Services which was like the State Department of the Airline Industry in the old days. All quiet on the Eastern Front. CIO

Note 11/04/97 Tuesday 2:45 AM EST: Updated mrscott.com/nasa.htm and mrscott.com/nasa-87.htm for the NASA STS 87 Columbia launch on Wednesday, November 19, 1997 at approximately 2:46 PM EST. Quite on the net this evening. CIO

Note 11/04/97 Tuesday 12:00 AM EST: mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was up quite a bit. Today I went to an appointment at 4 PM. I stopped by the library and chatted on economic principal. I intend to vote Republican tomorrow. I stopped by Odd Job Trading in Port Chester and bought a computer monitor cover for $2, they had one more left. I went by the Staples there and they had a security guard as big as Refrigerator Perry. There is a new appliance shop in back behind Staples that has two returned GE $2,000 refrigerator for $1,300 apiece. They are the deluxe two vertical door models, which were returned because they were too large to fit in, they are usual height, 36 inches deep, and 36 inches wide, thus one needs about a 31 or 32 inch opening with the door off to fit them in, and a 36 inch wide opening for a fridge. Good value if you have the room. They stock GE returned merchandise at the store. I bought an air conditioner filter for 95 cents. I had spaghetti for dinner. I went down town for a short walk and found a plastic Coca Cola case I am using for a drawer underneath my computer table. I chatted with a former neighbor, and told him about these two links, Shell Oil Profit Forecast 1 and Shell Oil Profit Forecast 2 . I committed that when the profits are released on Thursday European time, there would probably be a buying frenzy, and if one already owned the stock and were considering selling it which I would not, an hour after the release of the profit information might be the peak. However with El Nino October here was 5 degrees warmer which is not good for oil profits, one would have to look at the oil consuming nations and figure out if their temperatures are running warmer than usual, to see if El Nino might effect oil company profits. However, J. P. Morgan's buy recommendation for me would be good enough reason to hold on to the various Shell Oil stocks traded. Grand Union bargains this week, are boneless pork chops for $2.79 a pound, Tony's Pizza $2.50, Campbell's deluxe soup for 99 cents, Pepsi, Schweppes, Lipton Ice Tea, or Mountain Dew $2 a 12 pack plus deposit. However, supplies as I saw them this evening are limited until they have restocked by tomorrow morning, so wait to stock up. Greenwich was very slow this evening with few people down town. I suppose they were watching the Monday evening sports. Back to the net. CIO

Note 11/03/97 Monday 5:30 AM EST: I updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm which has lots of new links for your web browsing. I also hope the folks in New Smyrna Beach, Florida Yahoo! - Tornado Ravages Florida Coast, Dozens Hurt are recovering from the Tornado. I had the good fortune of passing through that pleasant seaside community in 1979 when I was living in Daytona in the winter. I suppose it has changed since then. Greenwich seems quiet this morning. CIO

Note 11/03/97 Monday 1:30 AM EST: I got up at 7 PM this past evening after having breakfast at 3 PM and going back to sleep. I watched a bit of television last evening and tried to copy the <http://news.bbc.co.uk/java> Java script unsuccessfully. I guess the BBC does not want people posting their own BBC headlines. They had a submarine movie on last night that I did not watch. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants this past evening. I had dinner of Cajun French chicken breast, baked potato, and frozen mixed vegetables. I went out about 10:30 PM and bought milk and floated around town until now. I stopped by the Greenwich Harbor Inn and the night clerk said they are going to get a web page, probably something like www.greenwichharborinn.com . It is a convenient place to stay in Greenwich, since they have airport limousine service and are only a half block from the train station. They have an excellent Atlantis restaurant and a cocktail bar with memorabilia from the Queen Elizabeth II and Cunard Cruise lines. I believe the Cunard family live close by. They have at least 100 rooms and are on the harbor and across the street from Maneros. Also they are only a block and half walk to downtown Greenwich where one can walk the one third of a mile walk up Greenwich Avenue for exercise with lots of restaurants and shops. Always interesting for people watching, and of course they have parking if you happen to have a car. In the summer they have a terrace patio where one has room to dock a small yacht up to about 150 feet. Most of the Yachts are usually from Georgetown in the Cayman Islands. On weekends they usually have big Italian weddings for locals. The Greenwich Police senior staff use to drink at the Greenwich Harbor Inn and the previous owner was the last person in town to have a Reagan bumper sticker on his car, despite all the Kennedy memorabilia they use to have before it changed hands. The current night clerk explained to me that people only drink whisky in cold weather anymore, and cigar bars with hard whisky are becoming more popular. I noticed in my Taft alumni directory that a former classmate probably a major backer of the Clinton administration is living at 66th and Fifth and more than likely occasionally stops in the Pierre Hotel nearby for a cocktail, unless he has left an anonymous forwarding address at the Knickerbocker Club like one of his other classmates. I believe that fellow has lived in the Canary Islands for about 30 years. What a life. Anyway if one sees that part German citizen or was it Austrian, tell him he might consider buying the Bremen Shipyard to use for Asian containership activity, however one would have to deal with the EU rules and regulations, not to mention the German government rules and regulations. Of course I believe the Port of Rotterdam is still one of the busiest ports in Europe. I still have not been able to get the Red Star saloon to put a Heineken Beer Sign in the window, which would be appropriate since the Heineken Beer label has a red star on it. Of course Becks beer still might be around Greenwich. I mentioned to one of the Pedestrians in Greenwich that Reebok shoes are very comfortable for walking if one intends to walk a lot like I usually do. I have not set foot in Manhattan in about 4 1/2 years, although I do cross the nearby border into New York State frequently to shop for a few items in Port Chester, or observe the airport comings and goings when it is not busy. Back to work on the net, enjoy yourselves where ever you are. CIAO from Greenwich, Connecticut USA. CIO

Note 11/01/97 Saturday 4:15 PM EST: Yesterday I bought the bath mat for my shower tub at Caldor's for $10. I got the large size. I stopped by Tod's Point and a few thrift shops. Lots of people were buying their Halloween costumes at the thrift shops. I bought the five different A&P blends of coffee and a pound of Hazelnut and mixed them all together, and now have 7 pounds of coffee beans which should last a while. They were about $40. I filled up the car with gasoline and bought a 12 day supply of cigarettes. I paid my electricity and automobile insurance. It is raining today. Greenwich on Halloween night was very quiet almost unusually so. There were a few spooks and goblins out. The downtown yuppie bars were slightly busy. There was a light shower on Halloween night. I chatted with one of the partners of Planet Pizza, and he said I should try out their pizza, but I explained I love Cheese, but I worry about cholesterol and they should try selling pizza with Soy bean cheese. At 2:40 AM this past AM I noticed two pedestrians walking down Steamboat Road who did seem familiar with the area. I also noticed three ten year old boys walking around down town at midnight. Also quite a few teenagers were out until about 2 AM. I guess the Halloween night brought out a few vampires. Last night was warm, I don't spend much time out during the rain or cooler weather, so I will probably be inside most of tonight. CIO

Note:<888> 11/14/97 Friday 6:15 PM EST: Check out mrscott.com/scopor01.htm. I'm bushed thank you very much, time for Z's.

Note:<888> 11/14/97 Friday 2:50 PM EST: I am staying put for the day. One of my neighbors is making minced meat today. I have not been out of the building since last evening. I noticed my neighbor's three year old cat seems very well. Living in an old folks home, one does not expect a lot of activity on a cold rainy day. I suppose we all have to sit tight and follow the news reports. I suppose the cat at #10 will find a comfortable dwelling in the country. I advise it seems peaceful and quiet here. I noticed there seems to be a little activity at the skating rink. I received notice from Medicaid I don't need to pay any bills under which I am already covered under. It is nice to sit and back and relax in the warm comfort of home on a cold rainy day. I don't generally watch much television, so I have only turned it on to watch a stock report about two hours ago. I surmise that the town will get a little busier once school gets out, and that being on a split shift at the present, I will have to rest in a little while. My next door neighbor just came in wearing her black turban and red rain breaker, she thinks the neighbor on the other side who is constantly knocking on her door several times a day disturbing her is being a royal pain. I suppose she does not want to hurt his feelings. Well not much else to report on the quiet front. Hope all is well out there in the brave new world of everyday business. I should be napping soon for a little rest.

9X3Z7P8I7N8D3E8Z7S2K7Y4Z9A7M1X8X

6S1J4K3Q9R2L7H3C2B9Y2V7M1D9J2L9P

7N8S9C3K4C8X9W4H7K8B4D3S2I8P3W5I

6E4L9G5R4B5L5C9Z0F7E5M4D4C8J7D5N

1S3V5N2V7G8K7C8N3B0J8L6S4G6K8A3C

5U1C8V4D3L7D5J7X3R7K7L5S3A2M7C3D

4X0D3Z1M8V4D3J2S6F5X2C4B1S6S8Z8F3S

3R4Y4X2D1Q2E2G7M3X4C6W3F5R4S1GO

257 cHARaCTER COde sTriNG, tRY CraKing It, Ci0. MLS.

Note:<888> 11/14/97 Friday 11:15 AM EST: Today is a cold rainy nasty sleety day, not fit for ducks or tourists; but since British tourists are mainly a bunch of simple sheep farmers who are use to spending many hours on the cold damp moors tending their flocks, they don't mind being out in the rain. However, it is traditional when they come off the moors they have a snifter of good Scotch whisky to warm up from the chill of a days flock tending. I understand one is suppose to feed the sheep dog also. Thus it seems in the British Commonwealth heritage empire, they have quite a bit of wool to sell which is quite comfortable to wear on a cold damp day. I even have a wool carpet in my apartment I bought from the Adopt a Dog tag sale many years ago. I suspect that since one of my father's employers in the area was in the synthetic carpet business, that they learned a good deal of their spinning and weaving techniques from the loom manufacturers in Great Britain who have maintained a trading relationship with the American cotton industry and other soft goods manufacturing and production enterprises in this country for hundreds of years, so whether it is synthetic Acrilan from Monsanto, Gortex or Nylon from Dupont, wool from the British Empire, cotton from the south, or silk from China chose your fabrics as they pertain to your environment and what sort of conditions you expect to be dealing with. I believe Oil Skins are popular in Great Britain during the rainy months. Since we all seem to have access to secure transportation, we don't get wet that much. However many urban people in the area use public transportation and they seem to survive the diverse weather conditions of this area and dress appropriately after years of experience. I recently committed that L.L. Bean sells both tan or red hunting jackets, which seem to be popular amongst the youth. Red is the preferred color for hunters, so other hunters can see you in the brush. If you wear camouflage, another hunter might mistake you for a deer. Of course on rainy days, one needs to be sure one has good enough tread on the automobile tires so as to provide proper traction while driving on the curving roads in the area. I believe most tires today are made out of synthetic materials. Also expecting colder weather in the upcoming winter, one might want to consider having one's battery replaced at some convenient place like Sears, so that on a really cold day, ones automobile will start. Of course all of this is predicated that the powers that be allocate enough budget allowance to perform routine maintenance as is necessary to maintain oneself in this area. It is also recommended that one make sure the antifreeze in one's car is good to at least 50 degrees below zero, since the wind chill factor in this area in the winter can be that. If one drives to colder regions like Vermont in the winter for skiing activities, one might want to consider 100 degrees below zero antifreeze setting. Thus on a cold rainy day when one has nothing else to do, one might consider routine maintenance which comes in handy when the colder weather sets in. One can also consider putting up some canned goods to have if one can not get outside during the cold weather. A bottle of whiskey or brandy might come in handy if one has a poor stranded traveler come knocking on one's door during a cold winter's eve after being stranded in mountains of snow. I can only afford to keep a few bottles of wine around the house for cooking purposes, since I don't bother drinking in my comfortable situation that I have adapted myself to. I recall that certain old timers in the area who spend lots of time outside in the cold, seem to need their whiskey to recover from a cold day's activity. I suppose if one were at sea in the North Sea this time of year, and one came into port, one would head into the local pubs to seek liquid refreshment. However, the church going female population that controls this community seems to prefer that its personnel not drink alcohol so as to maintain secure driving skills, and safe working conditions as their labor personnel perform their duties. What ever the case, I feel more like the Swiss ambassador commenting on the overall situation. I dare say some experienced personnel will make their educated judgments from experience as to their profession or trade. Traditionally in the Navy the ship's medical officer has custody of the drinking alcohol to be made available in emergency situations. However, drinking by active duty personnel could endanger the safety of the passengers and crew as they perform their duties. There is plenty of time for refreshment once the ship puts into port. I dare say that the overall perspective of the insurance community is that personnel should not drink alcohol before or while performing their duties. If personnel is on standby they should never drink alcohol. However, I dare say after years of surveying the general surroundings of Greenwich, Connecticut somebody is drinking alcohol around here, since we have dozens of liquor stores and taverns and restaurants in the area. We also have adequate liveried vehicles, so that personnel can be transported to their appointed destinations. We hope if you are a visitor to America, you enjoy your stay; and it seems that hundreds of millions seem to survive and work in these hostile conditions. I am staying inside at the moment, so certain members of the senior community can survey the town as they see it, before I make my usual rounds. I dare say the coats of paint on the Town Hall and my building yesterday will not dry properly in this current weather and will possibly peel sooner as a result of the damp application caused by the current weather. It seems that the overall situation is pretty much the norm, and I can dictate dozens of pages a day of written text faster than typing. However, I think the combined experience in the town leads us to running a fairly professional community, and I dare say we will survive this winter providing the oil sheiks don't cut off the oil. I believe at present three of the Connecticut nuclear reactors are shut down for maintenance. Enough constant comment, have a cup of hot tea if you are cold. Cheers, CIO.

Note:<888> 11/14/97 Friday 2:35 AM EST: I made my usual Thursday appointment. I stayed inside most of yesterday morning. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop and they were busy. I stopped by the library. They told me one of our senior volunteers made it in this afternoon. I commented to the staff that the new camera is a nice idea, but they need to secure it outside or someone will steal it. They told me they were having problems with homeless people abusing their privileges. I suggested they hire an off duty policeman or security guard to patrol the premises. As usual with Greenwich, anything that involves spending money they don't want to do. I am aware that the Town of Greenwich is self insured, so anything they do has to be looked at from an insurance and legal point of view. They decided not to put in a second set of doors on the library temporary entrance, so as to prevent homeless from sleeping in the entry way and will continue to keep the heat loss in the temporary entrance. I suggest that they remount the camera behind the temporary plywood wall behind bulletproof glass or some other suitable material, so to protect its security. Frankly I don't think that the library is worried about the security of the books, but the security of the patrons. I have advised parents in the area to keep an eye on their children. It is not the responsibility of the library to run a day care facility. Most libraries seem to know the general demeanor of the general public, and they work it out of experience. Since the library is a public facility, it is the responsibility of the town police department to patrol it, and keep an eye on the citizens well being. Homeless people have constitutional rights, but when they interfere with the general welfare of the public, precedence has been set in the courts in this particular case. Needless to say as a frequent user of the library for over 35 years, I have seen a very good cross section of people. However, if one has sensitive hearing the acoustics are lousy and one hears all the traffic also. Thus the noise level is more like one of a busy office, which can make it difficult for people to concentrate on their reading. It is a community library, so it is generally expected that people will chat in going about their business there. For those out of towners who want to use it as a temporary home, it is advised that the local taxpayers who pay for the library will sooner or later express their viewpoint as to the situation in the library. A town facility that has over a million patrons a year and does not have onsite security is probably asking for trouble, and it should not be the responsibility of the employees and the volunteers to patrol the library for inconsistencies. Yes as the town gets busier you have to accept the reality you have to pay for more infrastructure, it does not all happen for free. If the town of Greenwich can not afford to pay for security in the library out of frugality or some act of moral political demeanor then realistically not many other communities can also afford to pay either. Thus Greenwich library is more like a bus terminal with all the comings and goings, but I can assure you that quite a few prominent local citizens do serious work there, and it is not their responsibility to be the social workers of the town conscious. I assume the status quo will remain for now, and that some sort of committee will be formed to debate the subject and submit the topic for review by the trustees and the legal representative of the library. In other news I slept this evening and had a Tony's Pizza when I got up. I will be on the net this morning. It is cold out and a little chilly in the apartment which affects my arthritis and make me appear stiffened as I make my rounds in the day time. Thus one can readily empathize with the homeless who don't feel like spending all day outside, some of whom are older than I am. Needless to say we have plenty of people working outside. A few people are finishing up working on the copper flashing on my building, and a couple of young fellows are on two story ladders painting the trim on the building. I can also assure you that the construction teams at both the hospital and the library seem to keep busy in the cold and work is progressing on both new facilities; but it will take time for them to be completed. I am distress to read in the Times of London that Dodi, Princess Di's boy friend use to buy Cocaine by the pound. I can only assume that it helped lead up to the tragic events. Since we have local representatives of the family of the parties involved, we can only hope they learn from their relative's mistakes and refrain from using the European Drug Cocktail of Cocaine. It is my understanding that the usage and possession in the United States carries severe criminal penalties. In another trivial matter, excuse my spelling; but I don't use my glasses when on the computer; and I work so fast I don't have time to proof read the spelling in my notes. I hope Bill Gates provides a spell checker in FrontPage editor soon enough. I hope you slept well while I was up on the net. Other notes, the CSPAN school bus was spotted at the Greenwich Harbor Inn and one of our local tellers at Bank of New York is from Antigua. Also it seems that from the view of the Steamboat Road Pier, on the western side of the harbor; residents are flying new American Flags, I guess IBM has a connection to the government for some odd reason. I also noticed today while at Bank of New York on Mason Street that they had recovered a counterfeit 20 dollar bill, that I advised them to contact the secret service to investigate it. I believe it was sitting on the counter behind the teller from Antigua. The phony 20 has smeared Green ink around the seal and it had a yellowish tinge. Also Bank of New York needs to be sure to restore the copper sculptures in the lobby of the bank building. The bank guard was bitten by a dog and has a nasty cut on his hand. CIO

Note:<888> 11/13/97 Thursday 5:10 AM EST: Seiwa-en Cool Cricket Noise. Updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Cricket Noise sounds like Morse Code, doesn't it. CIO

Note:<888> 11/13/97 Thursday 2:10 AM EST: On Tuesday Veterans Day I went by the Grand Union market in the morning and bought two Porterhouse Steaks for $3.99 a pound. I went by the Arnold bread store and bought some discount bread. I then slept until 7 PM that following evening. I got up and tried backing up my computer. I finally got it done at 5 AM yesterday Wednesday morning. I was having trouble getting it to do a full back up. I changed one of my LPT 1 port settings and that may have fixed the problem. I watched Die Hard with a Vengeance, A Documentary on Admiral Bull Halsey, and then the beginning of a classic California Marine Training Camp movie. Yesterday morning I got up at 10 AM. It was cold out about 40 degrees F. . I dressed up and went downtown. The Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop had its Christmas merchandise on display mrscott.com/thrift.htm . There were lots of women there shopping for women's clothes, but they have lots of merchandise including clothes for men. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and stopped by the Mews thrift shop. They were having a half price sale. They had a 1950's Maple Chest of drawers Grand Rapids reproduction of the colonial style for $145, a large 6 foot by 4 1/2 foot deep desk for $100, it is about 28 inches high if you want to know if it would fit. They are overflowing with lots of clothes and other merchandise. I stopped by ELDC and they had their usual merchandise. I went by the Greenwich library and read two of the computer press newspapers. They have installed a remote camera looking up the temporary entry passage, that one can view from the circulation desk monitor on the wall. It gives a full view of the passage looking out. They look like they might be installing a second set of sliding doors to keep the cold from rushing on the receptionists at the entry way. One of our senior patrons has not been seen in a couple of weeks. Perhaps he headed to the tropics. Speaking of the tropics I once read that St. Barts was the reclusive hideaway of several prominent families who have houses all over the world. I also was told that the reason that the murder rate, 600 a year, is so high in Jamaica is that the natives are descended from the warrior classes along the Ivory Coast of Africa, and they are more hostile than some of the more tranquil natives in the other Caribbean islands. I recall visiting Tobago a couple times 25 years ago, and recluses like Greta Garbo and Norman Parkinson lived there during the winter. Tobago is as far south of Jamaica as Jamaica is south of New York, so it is truly a tropical paradise, The Robinson Crusoe Island. The Mount Irvine Club was popular when I was there, and they had pleasant modest size tropical villas around the golf course. Also Blacks beach was good swimming, but it had a rough coral bottom that could be dangerous. I recall Pigeon Point was a nice shallow beach out by the airport, although the sand flies were a pain. One character who was the son of a senior NATO air force officer was living in one of the beach cabanas roughing it at Pigeon Point. Of course you pale people up north would get so darkly tan in Tobago, everyone would think you are of tropical origin when you returned up north since the sun is much more intense down there. A family friend lived in an old Sugar Cane mill down there. I recall another eccentric had thousands of wild birds living in his house, which resulted in a few bird droppings in the house. I was once told there was a top secret installation on the Northeast side of the island. I believe it was a Swedish Scuba Diving Camp. The natives seemed to have liked our family when we visited and they are not spoiled and offered very gracious hospitality. Of course the island might have changed in 25 years. I recall the Chairman of the Board of British Petroleum told me there were large amount of off shore oil deposits off Tobago that would remain untapped for the indefinite future. Thus it is recommended you use sun screen if you go to Tobago and don't want to look tan when you come back. I believe Angostura Bitters come from Trinidad and Tobago. I use it in my ice tea recipe, mrscott.com/icetea.htm . I believe the early British settlers used it to prevent Dingy fever, of course Quinine is always good for Malaria. A close relative is going to visit Bermuda soon for a change. As I recall a good tropical rum punch in Tobago had lots of Angostura Bitters in it, they sell it in gallon bottles down there and of course the local rum I believe is Mount Gay from Barbados. BWIA airlines use to fly down there. They use to have an office at Rockefeller Center. Remember not to spoil the natives if you ever visit there. After going to the library, I came back here and relaxed and had one of the Porterhouse steaks for dinner. A friend showed up at 7:30 PM while I was napping and we chatted a while and I fell back asleep on the sofa while he was here. He said it was 25 degrees up in the Berkshires this morning. I believe he might be hunting up in the Berkshires with a prominent New York family members from nearby Bedford who were formerly involved in Massachusetts politics. He is still exporting tons of hard wood off his farm as a result of the tornado damage several years ago. Thus I am up this morning making a 2 gallon batch of my mrscott.com/icetea.htm mix. Remember Angostura Bitters has the British Royal Warrant on it, so it is highly favored in the inner court of the Victorian Monarchy. I noticed they were working on the "Thanksgiving House" today across from the pier on Steamboat Road. Greenwich seemed normal and quiet, and the usual routine was being maintained. I think the Cruise ship the Queen Elizabeth II departs Manhattan today for the Panama Canal and Los Angeles before returning to South Hampton. I suppose some of the passengers will be disembarking in Manhattan, so keep an eye out for British visitors. Of course one of the Scott's original businesses in the Western Hemisphere was rum running, so I imagine the cargo of the mother country's ship will contain the necessary return provisions when they sail into the Caribbean like Highlander Whisky which they value down there. That all for now. CIO

Note:<888> 11/11/97 Tuesday 4:10 AM EST: Updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm Bookmarks. CIO

Note:<888> 11/11/97 Tuesday 3:00 AM EST: I added the EBN Ticker to mrscott.com/abcnews1.htm ABC News Ticker. I had the last of the sautéed chicken Dijon and brown rice for dinner and coffee. CIO

Note:<888> 11/11/97 Tuesday 12:45 AM EST: I posted mrscott.com/scotwork.htm Scott's Daily Work List Links as short list of links I try to look at everyday. CIO

Note:<888> 11/10/97 Monday 10:30 PM EST: I was up at 7 PM. I went by the library and read Byte Magazine. It is quiet downtown this evening. It is cooler out probably about 45 degrees. A number of people have taken four day weekends with Veterans Day tomorrow. I got a hair cut this past morning at Putnam Barbers. I believe hunting season starts next Monday for all you hunters. A fellow I chatted with in Brisbane, Australia this past morning told me it is up to 150 degrees F. in the Summer in the South Central Australian desert for those of you who like it hot. I did not see it, but I was told they rehearsed a gas attack downtown some time recently to have people prepared for gas attacks, and all the merchants participated wearing gas masks and practiced a mock emergency drill. I am back on the net all night. I think the library will be closed tomorrow. CIO

Note:<888> 11/10/97 Monday 4:30 AM EST: Surfing around the net this morning. I suggest those feeling generous to look at GuideStar - The Donor's Guide to Charities and Nonprofits . I think I might chat in a little while after I update mrscott.com/bmnow.htm bookmarks. CIO

Note:<888> 11/10/97 Monday 1:00 AM EST: I finished the laundry. I am just about to eat sautéed boneless chicken breast Dijon on herbal brown rice. I might watch a little television this evening instead of surfing the net. CIO

Note:<888> 11/09/97 Sunday 10:45 PM EST: I worked on the net until 9 AM this past morning. I did a bit of chatting around the world. I installed the Read Audio 5.0 in a different directory than RealAudio Pro 4.0 and both seem to work. I got up at 6 PM this evening, and cleaned my apartment and watered the plants after breakfast. I went downtown for $13.50 of gasoline at the Exxon station next to the library. I bought $10.60 five pack of Marlboro lights. I got change to do laundry. I am doing laundry right now. It is very quiet downtown with out many people around. It looks like it rained all weekend, and is just beginning to clear out. A few of the younger posse members were seen prowling around. In all it is a typical Sunday Greenwich evening. I will spend the rest of the evening and morning on the net. CIO

Note:<888> 11/08/97 Saturday 11:45 PM EST: I slept until about 9 PM this evening. I had breakfast at 3 PM. I am now making Chicken Dijon and Spiced Brown Rice for dinner. I suppose I will surf the net this evening and maybe listen to the end of www.ttalk.com while I have dinner. I might sneak out for a little while this morning. I made sub pages linked at the top of this page for previous notes. CIO

Note:<888> 11/08/97 Saturday 8:25 AM EST: Copy of message to <mailto:kent@nrlmry.navy.mil> Subject: Queen Elizabeth II Cruise Ship: Message: Curious with present weather pattern in North Atlantic, I am wondering if the Queen Elizabeth II Cruise ship would be in hazard. I noticed it left South Hampton, England on Friday the 7th of November, 1997 and is due in New York on the 13th. I can't tell from your satellite photographs how bad the weather or the ocean is up towards the northeast where they are. Any ideas.

I am looking at:

http://www.nrlmry.navy.mil/sat-bin/trop\_images.cgi

Must be rough waves out there at sea.

Sincerely,

Michael Louis Scott

Apt. #206

71 Vinci Drive

Greenwich, Connecticut

06830

203-531-6754

Note:<888> 11/08/97 Saturday 7:45 AM EST: Updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm
Bookmarks. Lots of rain falling, I think it might be one of those North Atlantic Northeasterners, that go on for three days. Must be pretty rough for those at sea on the ocean off New England. Wonder if it is anything like in the book "The Perfect Storm".
CIO, I am tired.

Note:<888> 11/08/97 Saturday 6:10 AM EST: For all of you security conscious individuals, try Top 10 Security Programs for civilians. Cheyenne Mountain don't use these. CIO

Note:<888> 11/08/97 Saturday 4:40 AM EST: Note in times of military conflict, espionage and treason are felony crimes punishable by capitol punishment. "Lose Lips Sink Ships".
CIO

Note:<888> 11/08/97 Saturday 4:25 AM EST: I was thinking this evening while out front of the Senior Center staring at the American Flag, that if the market as a result of this Friday's past decline of one percent were to go through another major decline this coming Monday like two weeks ago, we would have a major problem the following Tuesday because the American Stock Exchanges would be closed on Veterans Day, and it would be up to the foreign markets to sort out the trading equity until the American markets opened the following Wednesday, by which time the heard mentality might be hard to correct.
Thus I recommend playing it cool on the market on Monday and wait until Wednesday to make any major decisions. Realistically the world markets are being traded all the time and it is important to reflect stability in our local domestic stock markets to encourage investment in the country as opposed to other ports of call in the financial world. Thus watching the Asian and European markets on early Monday morning might tip one as to what is in store for Monday's domestic exchange markets. PS <888> is the universal warning code number besides toll free dialing in the U.S.. With all the misinformation I recommend individuals in authority to use reliable sources of information from appropriate government agencies in the know, and not to rely on disparate news broadcast from the National media, which are more public relations than accurate information. Of course if the government agency in charge does not know, then I would suppose they would also tell one as much. One recent news story is that 75 percent of the United States fall harvest is in, compared to 65 percent last year, so hopefully good weather will help the farmers get in the rest of the crop before the winter sets in. On Blackbird surveillance the satellites can do it just as well and more efficiently. Another news story said they are using Navy Seals to train Federal Energy department security personnel, so I imagine the government is tightening up on security domestically. The general rule of the day and for the indefinite future should be vigilance, until things calm down. As far as I can tell here it is peaceful as usual. CIO

Note:<888> 11/08/97 Saturday 3:30 AM EST: I had my dinner of sautéed pork chops. I went out until midnight. The Dome, Sundown Salon, Thataways, and Tucson were full of the usual group of yuppies letting off steam. I found a discarded Dell Monitor, but it did not work. Apparently Hitachi makes Dell's monitors. The Planet Pizza delivery person told me they deliver to IBM in Armonk at night, so I guess they have not discovered Tony's frozen pizza which I am cooking right now. I went back out at 2 AM and the last stragglers were leaving the pubs. They seemed pretty well behaved. I noticed a few people coming out on the last train just after 2 AM. Headlines in Saturday's paper was that Tom Ragland the republican has won for first selectman and there will be no recounts. Lots of 12 packs of soda at Grand Union for $2 plus deposit, which will end Saturday night when they close at 11 PM. One of the downtown residents were walking their dog at 3 AM. It look like we have a Northeastern storm coming in, so the weekend should be a wash out, so one will have to defer leaf raking until next weekend. No unusual activity to report, but the local PD were out in force. I hope people exercise caution in driving on the damp slippery roads this AM. CIO

Note:<888> 11/21/97 Friday 7:15 PM EST: I went out about 3PM after a peanut butter sandwich and apple for lunch. I drove by the Arnold Bread store and bought two loaves of Healthnut Bread for 99 cents a loaf. I drove through Bruce Park and stopped by St. Catherine's thrift shop and they had not received the file cabinet yet. I returned via the Post Road and saw the construction where the water main broke opposite Rudy's limousine service. I went by ELDC, and they commented the town is changing. I said we all are just getting older. I noticed they had a mahogany map cabinet for sale for $90. I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop and they still have the usual selection of merchandise. I drove down Greenwich Avenue, and bought buy 4 get 1 free 5 pack of Marlboro lights for $11. No one was down at the end of Steamboat Road, but one seagull. I spent quite a bit of time down there on this warmer day. I checked my lights on the car, and noticed the reverse lights were not working. I checked the fuse and it was all right. I took off both lens, and the right reverse light was not seated properly which I fixed. The left reverse light had a missing contact, which I fixed by running a wire into the light fixture, and seating the bulb, and then grounding the wire with the existing wire. Now both reverse lights work. I checked the oil and put pure antifreeze in the overflow container. I relaxed a bit more down by the water. I noticed the flags were flying around the water. On the way up the road, I chatted with a former neighbor who was out for a stroll. I went by the library and read the Greenwich

Times. There is a nice split level house for sale in Riverside for $450,000. There was a special supplement in the paper about the Greenwich Library and the Petersen Grant. I noticed an article about Louis Gerstner being the first recipient of the Petersen Award with Jerry Ford at the awards ceremony. This is a article about Louis Gerstner today, IBM's Gerstner to stay at helm of computer maker for five more years . I returned home and cooked two sautéed center cut pork chops and ate one, with reheated Macaronni and Cheese and Broccoli. I am now sipping my coffee. I updated mrscott.com/scopor01.htm Scott's Portfolio. It was down a bit today. It is warm and comfortable here today with the cooler weather. The fellows outside are still working on the copper flashing and painting the trim. They have to cut into the brick to install the flashing. Over all it was a good afternoon.

Following is an excerpt of an article from the Key West Cybercouncil email newsletter, CyberConch Zine - 1997 Issues :

KEY WEST MAYOR OPENS ARMS TO HOMELESS - "It's the responsibility of the City to pick up and take care of the homeless," Key West Mayor Sheila Mullins told a business luncheon this week. The surprise policy statement follows one week after city police cleared White Street Pier of its residents. Mullins promised a working solution by April 1st, but in the meantime a tent city will be built to house at least 120 people using tents provided by the Salvation Army. The Monroe County Sheriff offered to donate sleeping cots. Land to locate the shelter has yet to be secured, but several ideas were floated. City Manager Julio Avel pledged to coordinate the welfare effort, however, he made clear that no City funds would be used.

Well when I did not have any place to stay in Key West in winter of 1977, I roamed around. I stayed in the Casa Marina undergoing renovation in the winter of 1978, and I recall around 1980 for short spell in the winter I slept in my car, and in the winter of 1982, I recall I tried camping out in inconspicuous places, until the local law enforcement picked me up on a false charge, that was for another person with the same name. Obviously a great many tourists camp out in the campgrounds in the Keys, but it can get chilly occasionally in the winter. CIO

Note:<888> 11/21/97 Friday 12:45 PM EST: Up at 7 AM this morning. I updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm , Bookmarks. It as usual has mostly what I find in surfing through my Scott's Daily Work List Links . I will have lunch, and go out after cleaning up to enjoy the warmer day. Lots of racket from the workmen out side. CIO

Note:<888> 11/20/97 Thursday 11:15 PM EST: I recorded Queen Elizabeth II's, 50th Wedding Anniversary Broadcast mrscott.com/queen02.ram and encoded it for uploading. One can record the ram file with Real Player Pro which has recording capabilities from my ram file. I hope the Queen is not upset, but it permits archiving and rebroadcast for those in her dominion who might not have access to the BBC link BBC News | UK | Queen promises to modernize the monarchy that I downloaded it from. My Bell Weather portfolio was up 1.14 % at mrscott.com/scopor01.htm today. Remember I posted the portfolio as an economic experiment to track the market, I do not recommend buying or selling the stocks, it is just for tracking purposes. I made my 3 PM appointment. The Valet parking attendant said he was going to Cancun, Mexico. I guess he was cold. I drove down to Long Island sound afterwards, and it looked bleak and wintry. Tomorrow is suppose to be in the low 50s. I stopped by the library afterwards and read the Greenwich Times. Headlines are about the Tod's Point access case which will be tried February 10, 1998 and if need be taken to the Supreme Court. The article was inaccurate, in that many communities in Connecticut restrict access to their recreation facilities to local citizens. I went downtown afterwards and took a walk and bought a Croissant at St. Moritz Bakery for 80 cents. I walked up the Avenue and went to CVS and bought 9 colorful candles for 25 cents apiece and two 16 ounce cans of peanuts for $1.50 apiece. I returned home and watched the ABC news. I made a Tony's frozen pizza for dinner. I was having coffee when a friend stopped by. He said he got his deer "buck" while hunting, a very large one. He was tired and nearly fell asleep. After he left I worked on preparing the Queen's Broadcast. I only got five hours sleep last night since I was up until 6 AM and slept until 11:30 AM, so I will probably go to bed soon. I checked with the library internet computer, and one can post messages with ICQ and my Guest book, if you don't have email on your internet site. CIO

Note:<888> 11/20/97 Thursday 1:45 PM EST: Last night I installed MS Outlook 98 Beta Version . It was about a 16 meg download after downloading the setup program. The program worked fine. However, it reinstalls IE 4.0 and if you have a long Netscape bookmark like I do, I suggest you save the bookmark and delete it and reopen it after installing Outlook 98 since in the reinstallation of IE 4.0 it adds the Netscape bookmarks to that program's favorites. However, I am low on hard disk space, so after looking at Outlook 98, I had to deinstall it. Outlook Express from MS IE 4.0 still works fine. Outlook 98 removed the Microsoft Exchange or Inbox Logo from my desktop. I suppose it replace it. I had a little bit more hard disk space left after deinstalling Outlook 98. Outlook 98 like MS IE 4.0 stores its *.cab files on the hard disk which takes room. Overall Outlook 98 consumed close to 80 meg of hard disk space which I did not have. If you have a Personal Information Contact program, it imports those files from several popular PIM programs. One other thing you have to reinstall ME IE 128 byte encryption, and probably any security fixes. I now have 110 Meg disk space left, and hope to keep it that way since the WIN95 system runs better with more hard disk space available particularly for the swapper file. I have a 3 PM appointment today. It looks like it is warmer out, so I turned on the air conditioner fan to air out the apartment. Also work on the building flashing and painting the trim is coming along fine, and it looks very good. CIO

Note:<888> 11/19/97 Wednesday 10:30 PM EST: Greenwich, Connecticut Area - NITC Travelbase City Guide . I went out at 1:30 PM today. I stopped by St. Catherine's Thrift shop looking for a file cabinet that will be in later on this week. I went by the Old Greenwich thrift shop and bought a spoon rack to hold my house keys for $3.18. I went out to Tod's Point and toured around. I say there were about 50 people out there on a little warmer day than usual. I went by the ELDC thrift shop and then the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. All shops have lots of merchandise. I drove down by the harbor on Steamboat Road and checked the weather patterns. We were right on the edge of a front. I stopped by the library and read the other two computer newspapers. I returned home and had Macaroni and Cheese, Sautéed Center Cut Pork Chops, and Broccoli for dinner. I watched the evening news on CNN instead of ABC for a change. There was a good segment about Queen Elizabeth's Wedding Anniversary. I will have to email them. Use this link to email Buckingham Palace British Monarchy Comment Form . After dinner I went by the library and read two computer magazines. I then went downtown and walked a bit. It was quiet downtown this evening. I stopped by the Greenwich Harbor Inn Greenwich hotels Greenwich Harbor Inn Connecticut and found out their web site. CT I believe is the abbreviation for Connecticut. I came home and am back on the net. CIO

Note:<888> 11/19/97 Wednesday 11:45 AM EST: I updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm Current Bookmarks. I also reorganized my homepage a little bit. If someone is using these notes on my site and wants to get hold of me off the internet, the two links at the top of the page Page Scott ICQ and Scott's Guest book would probably work on a Internet Web site that did not have email privileges. Thought I would let you know. I will have a bite to eat clean up and go out about 1:30 PM. CIO

Note:<888> 11/19/97 Wednesday 9:15 AM EST: I was up at 7 AM, it is suppose to warm up a bit to the low 50s this afternoon. I will surf the net. I am running both ICQ #5202411 and AOL IM "mmikescott", they both work together. I will probably try to get out a little earlier today, to raise my dopamine level to feel a little bit more upbeat. I suppose with the Christmas shoppers the town will be busy. Downtown Greenwich is like the great outdoor mall of America. Parking is 25 cents a half hour. I was told by a neighbor that Bermuda has a Piggly Wiggly, if anyone in Bermuda needs to do shopping. I weighed 206 pounds last night before going to bed, so I think I need to work on dieting during the Holiday season. Of course I do plan to eat the center cut pork chops this week that I have in the fridge. I suppose 175 pounds would be a better weight, and more of my clothes would fit me. I have clothes from 155 pounds to my present weight of 206 at about 6 feet tall and plenty of size 9 1/2 C shoes. I am basically a pack rat, and I don't seem to throw away anything. I think I still have a few pairs of those hippie jeans with worn out holes from my Greenwich Village days, but I don't think they would fit at the moment. I even have 25 year new suit that I only wore twice when I was first out of college. I don't donate them all to the thrift shops, in wishful hoping that I will some day lose a little weight. Who knows anything is possibly. I don't eat that much, but I lead a sedentary lifestyle in the cold climate, which if I were starving and sleeping on a bench in Key West, I would probably lose a little weight and maybe get a little tanner, but the local medical community does not think that is the ideal way to lose weight. Thus I say I am graduate of the "I'm Still Eating School of Business and Finance and Computers". Basically we have so many heavy set people around here, I feel more comfortable with a little bit more weight on. I am not quite "Bubba the Beached Whale", but I have to start trying to lose weight. My old high school in Watertown, Connecticut is trying to raise a $100 million dollars, so if any of the prosperous alumni are reading these notes, send them a few million dollars. I also got an Identifax postcard looking for another "Michael Scott" for the 1978 Class of Brien McMahon High School in Norwalk, Connecticut. If you know of his whereabouts call 1-800-964-1980 to register him for his reunion. I believe when I lived in New Canaan in the late 1970s the Chief of Police also had a son named Michael Scott who was constantly making the newspapers for setting off fireworks. Thus Michael Scott is a common name. One even lives at Windsor Place in London, and I believe I have several second cousins with the same name. Michael is the most common male name in America, and Scott is a very common last name; particularly since we have been here for over 350 in the Colonies. I spotted a distinguished younger fellow yesterday, who might be from the Old Country. The way to tell Europeans, is to check out their tailoring and shoe styles which are a little bit different than American styles. Of course millions of people go back and forth all the time. One can fly to London for $300 round trip for three days and ride the subway all weekend for $6, but I would rather be a house guest, and no one has invited me over yet. I do remember an address in Eaton Square, but I generally don't show up uninvited. Perhaps I could stay at the Eagles Nest in London, which is what all the Limies call the American Embassy, because of all the large gold eagle above the entrance way. Well my place in the states is what you call council housing, and I graciously refer to it as my "Grace and Favor" housing. Enjoy yourselves. CIO

Note:<888> 11/18/97 Tuesday 10:30 PM EST: I installed a wider form in mrscott.com/scotticq.htm Scott's ICQ link page. I updated mrscott.com/scopor01.htm Scott's portfolio. I went out this afternoon at 4 PM. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop bought two smoking pipes for $1 apiece. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and bought a five pack of Marlboro lights. I drove down to the harbor and viewed the shoreline. I surmise the unusual skyline of clouds two days ago was from Volcanic activity on the Kamchatka Peninsula. Check out Alaska Volcano Observatory for updates on the activity. It is obviously the cause of some of the colder weather we have been having. I went by the library and read two of the Computer press newspapers. The library was busy full of youngsters. I stopped by the Food Emporium and bought a half gallon of Tropicana. It is not on sale yet. A friend invited me to a Thanksgiving meal at Christ Church. I had an excellent Thanksgiving meal at Christ Church and had two helpings and enjoyed the company. Downtown today had a lot of traffic. I am back home and about to go to bed. CIO

Note:<888> 11/17/97 Tuesday 1:25 PM EST: I added a Scott's, Michael Louis ICQ Web-Pager Panel Sample Code link to my homepage, so I can be paged when I am online. I need to have lunch. CIO

Note:<888> 11/17/97 Tuesday 12:15 PM EST: I worked on mrscott.com/bmnow.htm bookmarks, yeh the Bookmark from Hell. I downloaded Microsoft NetShow - Player Download , I am not show if it is different than 2.0 or is a new 2.1. I downloaded ICQ - World's Largest Internet Online Communication Network . I posted a link on my mrscott.com/stats.htm Stats page to my direct stats link Scott's Internet Hotlist Web Server Statistics for mrscott.com I need to have dinner soon. CIO

Note:<888> 11/17/97 Tuesday 6:45 AM EST: Up at 5:30 AM. Yesterday I surfed the net until noon. It is pretty quiet with Comdex. I had Campbell's Mushroom soup for lunch and toast and apple. I rest briefly. I went out about 2 PM. It was in mid 30s. I stopped the Hospital thrift shop and they have lots of merchandise. I went down Greenwich Avenue and checked out the harbor. It was still there. I stopped by the library. The police were there for some unknown incident. I read the Greenwich Times. I drove back down the avenue again, and it was moderately busy. I stopped by the Hall and I believe the three selectman were exiting as I entered. Afterwards I went back down Greenwich Avenue to the harbor again. Cloud formations were a little bit more as one expects. Coming down the avenue, I noticed a Norwegian diplomat driving around in a jeep with his roof off. I guess they don't mind the cold. I saw at the Lexus dealership across from the train station, they were having a reception to show off the prototype of a new four wheel drive vehicle. A young fellow was serving Perrier there which is headquartered across the street from me. I noticed at the top of the hill on Indian Field Road, somebody was selling a Toyota for $850. I returned home and had a Tony's frozen pizza and went to bed for a good night's rest. Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888> 11/16/97 Monday 8:30 AM EST: Microsoft @ COMDEX I listened to the Bill Gates speech at Comdex. The device I found is a 1. Memotec: Products, CX1000 Access Concentrator/Central Site Switch . If anyone is interested let me know. It turns on. I don't know if it is compatible with my system. Anyone need it, let me know. CIO

Note:<888> 11/16/97 Monday 6:00 AM EST: Up at 5 AM for a change this morning. Let's see if the net works faster during the day. Orange Juice supply is running low. CIO

Note:<888> 11/15/97 Sunday 8:00 PM EST: I went out yesterday morning and made the usual rounds. I stopped by all the thrift shops. I drove around Tod's Point. The water was very high, about two feet below the road grade. If there were a storm, there probably would be flooding in the low areas around the shore. I stopped by the Egghead Computer store in Old Greenwich. It was very cold below 60 degrees, since the thermostat was locked, and the employees could not fix it. I picked up a computer cord at Radio Shack for the MEMOTEC, CX1000; so I can turn it on from the computer council and have star wars flashing lights highlight my system. I know that is sort of corny. They now have a security guard at the library entrance, so the librarians don't have to sit in the cold entrance way. I still think it would be a good idea to put in a second entry door out by the parking lot, to stop the cold air from rushing into the entrance way. It uses up a lot of heat in the downstairs entry way area, probably for two winters. Not much to report from the local newspaper, except the Sunday paper had a very informative article on tourism to Cologne, Germany. Apparently they have 20 breweries there, besides a large cathedral there. I guess it took so long to build, because they weren't in any rush drinking all the beer. Saturday night I had a dinner guest over. He informed me that Chicago was iced in. I got up on Sunday and cleaned my apartment and watered the plants. I chatted with family members. Bermuda was a hot topic. One family member won $60 dollars in a tennis tournament. I suppose if one ever visited Bermuda, they would probably like a solar powered jitney. I think they use to have those little pink and white canopied vehicles when I was last there in 1968. I imagine the people get use to island life like I did. I assume Bermuda is volcanic, but I don't know whether it is dormant or not. I would imagine the temperature in the day time would be 65 Degrees F. . On Sunday I went out and the flag was flying across the water off Steamboat Road. I noticed quite a few people out walking around in the cool air. I saw lots of cars at the local churches downtown. I suppose with the families back from vacation, the churches are busier. I had an apple tart at St. Moritz bakery. I went for a short walk. I stopped by the Grand Union and got $21.75 in groceries. DAK hams were $2 a pound. Center cut pork chops were $3.59 a pound. I picked up a bag of onions for $2 and Russet potatoes for $2, PolyO cheese for $2, 4 cans vegetables for $1 and a few other minor necessities. I returned home and relaxed a while. I cooked Sunday dinner of herbal wine garlic baked scrod, with baked onions and russet potatoes, and fresh broccoli. I made coffee and put it in my thermos and went down town and viewed the public while having coffee. It seemed to be the usual cross section of locals and visitors. It was much busier in the afternoon than the morning. I stopped by the library and read the Sunday paper. One of our favorite patrons was escorting a friend around the library. They had a different security guard on Sunday who was also cold. The parking lot on Sunday was filled up, but there is plenty of parking in the adjacent areas on Sunday. I then drove back down to the water and saw two full grown swans and their two off spring swimming around. There were a lot of interesting cloud formations today, but only light snow flurries. I came home and relaxed and just had an apple and peanut butter sandwich for supper. I will relax for the rest of the evening, and stay off the computer. I was thinking if somebody nuked Las Vegas about now during COMDEX, we could all quit using computers and go back to reading books, but I suppose that would undermined the infrastructure of the country. I also found a Microsoft Mouse that was with some discarded material one of the offices had thrown away. It is not to easy for a left handed person, but I might try it; but the Kensington Mouse seems to work better right now, maybe because I am use to it. I have turned the heat up a bit to be more comfortable and have the humidifiers going full blast. When I went out today a fellow was digging through our dumpster looking for cans, so I guess the community is totally into recycling. I discarded another broken VCR and a broken humidifier, but I have two humidifiers working now, and two backups. Same old story around here, peaceful and quiet day. CIO

Note:<888> 11/15/97 Saturday 8:25 AM EST: Upgraded mrscott.com/bmnow.htm .
CIO

Note:<888> 11/15/97 Saturday 7:15 AM EST: I was up at 2 AM this morning. I had a Porter House steak with onions and mushrooms when I got up with Broccoli and Potatoes. I started downloading Netscape 4.04 New 32-bit Apps at Stroud's CWSApps List . Yesterday I also installed the new Microsoft MS DUN 1.2 upgrade available from the same page. I went out after showering. My car was covered with ice. I guess the ice storm the last day was a lot worse than I realized. I discovered that my ice scrapers were locked in the trunk which had a frozen lock. Luckily I keep a couple bottles of lock deicer on my dinning room table. I thawed out the lock and got the trunk open. Remember it does one no good to keep the lock deicer in the car if it has frozen locks. I scraped off the car breaking one of my three ice scrapers. I went for smokes at the Shell station. I checked the view of Long Island from Steamboat Road. I went by the Grand Union. I got another $7 Porter House steak for $4 a pound. I also picked up a piece of scrod and some Tony's frozen pizza. I picked up a 12 pack of diet Pepsi for $2. I also found discarded at one of the local offices an obsolete piece of equipment called a Memotec CX 1000 with lots of lights and serial ports on it. It turns on, but I am not sure what its purpose was. I am using it as a printer stand. It was made in Canada. When I got back I just finished downloading Netscape 4.04 Professional Edition. I installed it. It has the American Online Messaging system which is a neat feature. I am "mmikescott" on AOL messaging system. I will go out about 8:30 this morning probably. I took a short walk at 4 AM while down town. Hopefully it will warm up a bit this morning. While the car was warm I removed the rest of the ice. The CSPAN school bus is no longer at the Greenwich Harbor Inn, but I think it is in the area for one more day. Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888> 11/30/97 Sunday 1:55 AM EST: On Friday I went out and watched the holiday shoppers around town. I picked up three pillows to go with my curtains at the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I chatted with the Sotheby's Real Estate agent about real estate in the area, and asked if they had an internet web page. They told me that they would email the site once it was posted. The Greenwich Hardware store was busy with shoppers as was the rest of the avenue. I did not see any Salvation Army Santas on the Avenue yet. They're still installing the avenue Christmas lights. I went out in the evening and took an exercise walk and there seemed to be the usual crowd around. I stayed up until 7AM Saturday morning and did not get up until 7PM Saturday night. I went out Saturday evening for an exercise walk. The avenue was full of parked cars with lots of people out to dinner and at the movies. Quite a few youngsters wandering around with the Thanksgiving holiday season. I noticed they had put the dinosaur back upright at the museum. I also saw a Red Fox run in front of my car when I was driving down by the water. It was a clear cold evening. The Food Emporium is open until midnight on Saturdays. They have a coffee machine there with 55 cent coffee. I chatted with one of the deli employees there who said his mother had worked for the United Nations at one time. I noticed a few people using Starbucks for coffee. I walked by the train station and there was an automobile accident by the exit ramp and the car had run off the road and ended up in the town train parking lot. The usual foot patrolmen were out and about. I noticed for some mysterious reason 88 cents disappeared from my bank account perhaps it was a computer error. I have not had time to follow the news much and I have been simply relaxing. The workmen were making a lot of noise working on my building the last couple of days. I replaced one of my neighbor's defective phones with one of my spare phones. Her new Lucent remote phone had failed. I suppose the cold damp weather is keeping people inside. I am still eating Thanksgiving meal left overs. I carved up most the Turkey and froze it for eating later. I noticed a car around from Illinois. Lots of out of state cars with holiday visitors. My car took three turns to start once, perhaps I need to put some fuel injector cleaner in it. I will have to keep and eye on it. All in all it is pretty quiet around town. Enjoy the rest of the weekend. CIO

Note:<888> 11/28/97 Friday 12:15 AM EST: I got up about 1PM yesterday and went down town after breakfast. It was very slow in the area with lots of people remaining home for the holiday. It was so slow that when I parked in front of the senior center, there was a $20 bill lying on the sidewalk which I retrieved. I went for a walk around downtown. I noticed Starbucks closed at 2:30 PM. Not many people were around. I noticed a few foreign visitors. I suspect most people were having Thanksgiving dinner about then. I went back home at 4PM after retrieving my curtains from the Hospital Thrift Shop that I had donated. I tried to get change at the Grand Union while they were closing, but they did not have any. I finally got change from the Food Emporium which was closing at 4PM. I got home and put the curtains in the washing machine. I started making the stuffing mrscott.com/stuffing.htm for the Turkey. I then put the curtains in the dryer. One of my neighbors gave me a slice of minced meat pie. I stuffed the turkey and put it in the Convection Oven and cooked it for 3 hours and 15 minutes at 325 degrees. I took the curtains out of the dryer and hung them behind the new curtains, so there would be a greater thickness to prevent drafts. I then setup wild rice and mushrooms, mashed yams with ginger and margarine, mixed frozen vegetables, Ocean Spray cranberries and Pepperidge Farm low fat gravy with white wine add and chicken bouillon cubes. Once the turkey was done I let it rest for a half hour, and put all the different dishes together, and had a delicious Thanksgiving dinner with a half glass of white wine. Basically this all took about six hours. At 10 PM I went out with my thermos of coffee, and I sat down in front of the senior center, and sipped my coffee. I noticed today that the Colonial diner was open and Rue de Croissant. After I had my coffee, I went for a drive down by the water. I noticed the fifteen foot long paper mache dinosaur in front of the Bruce Museum for the dinosaur exhibit until January 4, had been blown over by the high winds last night and was lying on its side. I saw that the awning at the Baccarat Crystal shop had blown off the building. While driving through Bruce Park at 11 PM, I saw a white rabbit with two black spots on its head run in front of my car. Either it was a domestic rabbit that escaped or a Artic heir that had migrated south. If it was a artic heir, that means some cold weather is on its way. I mentioned it to the Burns security agent in the neighborhood, to see if he knew any kids that had lost a rabbit. The Dome restaurant was busy with young yuppies having refreshment. I saw a number of out of town license plates particularly from Pennsylvania. The weather was clear and gusty in the mid 50s today. I had a relaxing day. The Greenwich Times said the body found along the turnpike was a homicide, and the state police are investigating. Also for the last couple of nights they have been installing the Christmas lights on the trees on Greenwich Avenue, and they have the hanging Christmas baskets of evergreen out. Over all it was a quiet day and after I post this message I will relax and go to bed. CIO

Note:<888> 11/27/97 Thursday 3:25 AM EST: I surfed the web tonight. The wind outside is extremely high, it must be wreaking havoc with the attempts of the volunteers in Manhattan to blow up the Thanksgiving Day Parade Balloons. I suppose there will be some interesting stories in the media tomorrow. Locally I can here the construction equipment falling off our roof onto the rain patio and creating quite a lot of noise this morning. I have not been out, but I suppose there are some stout folks braving the elements. I used ICQ to tell Ken Rat at www.ttalk.com the game plan of the local environment since he has access to the Australian Community. As far as I can tell it is pretty normal around here with lots of eager feasters tomorrow. I probably won't be up and about until afternoon, and will cook dinner in the evening. Well enjoy your net adventures. I am really spacey from the net. CIO

Note:<888> 11/26/97 Wednesday 9:50 PM EST: Today I went out about 2PM after getting up later. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop and one of my neighbors who works there showed me a pair of purple curtains with Tulips on them that were for sale for $20. I bought them and went back home and installed them. They look very festive. I put the Orange pair in the middle with Purple Tulip curtains on either side. I took the old pair of blue and orange curtains and dropped them off at the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I then stopped by the Greenwich Library at closing time. There were lots of youngsters there. I read the local paper. Apparently someone dumped the body of a charred burned African American at one of the turnpike ramps here in town. As of yet the body is unidentified. There were lots of people out and about town this evening. It is just beginning to rain. There were about twenty young teenagers hanging out at the train station, but they seemed to be behaving themselves. I think quite a few kids go to Planet Pizza for dinner when their parents are busy. I chatted with a local retired railroad employee and he said the horse racing business is going down the tubes, since no one is going to the track anymore preferring Casino gambling. He said that Yonkers trotter racetrack would be soon be up for sale. I suppose the people who breed race horses and depend upon racing for a business will be having a hard time. I am listening to "The Best of James Bond, 30th Anniversary Edition Double CDROM edition, I got from the Greenwich Library. It is suppose to rain tomorrow for the Thanksgiving Parade. Friends of mine are buying new Mercedes Benzes, and I noticed the Mercedes Benz dealership here was quite busy today. Another friend sold her red Volvo, so I suppose people are switching from Volvos to Mercedes Benz. I suppose it is a sign of economic prosperity. It was close to 60 degrees F. today, but I suppose it will cool off this evening. I chatted with an associate of the Economist today and told him about my web site, explaining some tech specifications of the current computer industry. I guess I will be up around noon tomorrow, and will cook my Thanksgiving dinner in the evening. I read a sign in Starbucks window on Greenwich Avenue, saying "That Do the End of the World Coming Soon, Starbucks Would Close on Thanksgiving Day at 2:30 in the Afternoon", so if anyone is planning to come out and deja vue Greenwich Avenue from Starbuck's window on Greenwich Avenue, they might consider Versailles or the Colonial Dinner which are a little bit more expensive. There are plenty of restaurants around town. I suppose I will be out a bit tomorrow afternoon before I cook dinner. The net seems a bit slow this evening. It might be all the students and execs home at the same time. Enjoy your Thanksgiving Holiday. CIO

Note:<888> 11/26/97 Wednesday 2:30 AM EST: I went out this afternoon after installing the two betas. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop and they were very busy. I went by ELDC and they were moderately busy. I drove down Greenwich Avenue to the end of Steamboat Road and made sure Long Island Sound was still there. I went by the Greenwich Library and read the four computer newsmagazines, I read every week. Not much seems to be going on. I guess a lot of people have taken this week off and are away or working at home. One of our senior patrons was in the library this afternoon dressed in Red like Santa Claus. I suppose a few of the youngsters will be going to Thursday's Thanksgiving Parade. I am not sure if they have a Barney balloon or not. I chatted with the local ornithologist about the Microsoft DOJ antitrust case, and told him that Cravath, Swaine, and Moore and Davis, Polk, and Wardwell had represented IBM a few years back; and perhaps Microsoft should employ their services. I believe they are in the Chase Bank at the Chase Plaza downtown off Wall Street. He was wondering if Nichlos Cassenback was still alive, who he believe handled the case. Obviously they must be versed in techno legal jargon. I noticed quite a few old Volkswagens in the library parking lot. The security guard from Pakistan seems to be getting use to the cold drafty doorway entrance. They were pouring cement for the annex parking structure. The headlines in the Greenwich Times was that the Cos Cob branch of Putnam Trust Bank of New York had its drive up teller window robbed of $10,000 by a group of African Americans in a Black BMW. Apparently the robber had a gold nose stud in his nose. I then drove back down Greenwich Avenue. I noticed in one of the office parks, someone had discarded three plastic Coca Cola case trays and a Hood Dairy plastic milk crate. I was also told by movers that Moran Towing is moving out of the building. I believe they are the tug boat company that hauls the cruise ships into New York Harbor. When I got home I made the Hood Milk crate into a file case. I put one Coke case tray in the fridge to hold my soda cans. I put another in my bedroom Window to support my Long Island Lighting Light Bulb. I put another above the television to hold my VCR tapes. I have a fourth I use for holding one of my plants. I now have four Coca Cola Plastic Red Trays for interior decoration. I also cleaned out one of my plastic file cases of old software and put more folders in it. I cleaned out one of my cabinets of old DOS and Windows software and manuals and threw it all in the dumpster. I had a guest stop by for dinner. Since I had forgotten to stop by the store, I made a homemade pizza which is quite tasty.

Homemade Pizza recipe is:

Put one package of yeast in Welbilt Bread Machine

Three cups flower

One Tablespoon Sugar

One Teaspoon Salt

Three Tablespoon Olive Oil

One Cup Hot Water

Set Welbilt Bread Machine to French Bread and turn on.

When the machine quits it first cycle kneading, turn it off and let dough rise for an hour.

While dough rises, I made a thick spaghetti sauce with a quart can of crushed tomatoes with peppers and onion in it two tablespoons of chopped garlic one chopped onion teaspoon of garlic powder, teaspoon of oregano, teaspoon of basil, teaspoon of Italian Spices quarter cup of white wine and tablespoon of olive oil and I simmered that sauce while the dough rose for an hour.

8 ounce can of mushrooms

I shredded a half pound of PolyO Mozzarella Cheese with a grater.

Once the dough was ready I oil an 12 inch by 24 inch by 1 inch baking sheet with olive oil, and then floured my wooden cutting board which should be dry. I then rolled out the dough to the full coverage of the cutting board which is the same size of the baking sheet with a rolling pin. I then turned the baking sheet upside down on the rolled dough and flipped the board over so the dough rested in the baking sheet. I then fold the edges over to make a nice thick edge.

The I put half the spaghetti sauce on the dough covering it thickly. I freeze the other half for the next time I make one.

I covered the sauce with the shredded mozzarella cheese evenly. I then sprinkled parmesan cheese thinly over it all.

I then sprinkle lightly olive oil over the cheese.

I place the pizza in my Convection Oven for 20 minutes at 450 degrees.

I then let it stand for five minutes to cool and enjoy eating it.

I then chatted with my dinner guest. I finished getting rid of some old computer manuals and software boxes after he left. I chatted with a relative who said it was cool damp humid and overcast in Bermuda last week. They returned a ten month baby boy back to his mother in Florida. I then went out for a short drive, Long Island sound was still there. I chatted with one of the business partners of Planet Pizza at the grocery store. He has a shop down by the train station and told him about my home made pizza. He thought it was a lot of time. I noticed a six hundred pound man walk by while I was talking to him. I picked up a 12 pack of diet COKE at the Grand Union for $2.50 a red pepper, two yams, a large box of Grand Union stuffing, and a can of Ocean Spray Cranberries. I intend to make a stuffing like this:

Scott's Stuffing Recipe:

For 11 Pound Turkey

One 12 OZ. Box Grand Union 10 Minute Stuffing Mix Chicken Flavored

Contents of seasoning packets

Half Stick I Can't Believe It's Not Butter

1 Cup Water

2/3 Cup White Wine

Stiff in Bread Crumbs

Add teaspoon garlic powder, teaspoon oregano, teaspoon Italian seasoning, teaspoon basil;

Two Chopped Onions

Four Tablespoon Chopped Garlic

Two Diced Apples

One Diced Red Pepper

Chinese Five Spice, Curry Powder and Cinnamon lightly

Mix all these ingredients together.

Place in clean Turkey just before cooking.

Follow instructions for cooking Turkey.

REMEMBER DO NOT LEAVE THE STUFFING IN THE TURKEY AFTER SERVING, BUT TO STORE IT SEPERATELY.

I will update mrscott.com/scopor01.htm Scott's Bell Weather Portfolio and then go to bed. CIO

Note:<888> 11/25/97 Tuesday 2:20 PM EST: I downloaded the final version of Real 5.0 www.real.com and also the beta of Pointcast Business Network www.pointcast.com . I think the final version might be out soon of Pointcast Business Network. I did another update of mrscott.com/bmnow.htm Current Bookmarks for your surfing pleasure. I noticed another discarded Coca Cola red case try around town last night, I will see if it is still around. CIO

Note:<888> 11/25/97 Tuesday 11:25 AM EST: I had a dinner guest down for dinner last night. We went for a stroll downtown and not much was going on during last night's cold winter weather. There were not many people in the library. I imagine a few people are taking the whole of Thanksgiving week off. I will check my email and probably go out this afternoon, to see what the day time people are up to. CIO

Note:<888> 11/24/97 Monday 3:00 PM EST: I was up at about 11 AM this morning. I updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm , current bookmarks has lots of links to explore what is happening on the net. I have not seen any other reports on the virus. I have not been out today. I am expecting guest at 4 PM. My OHIO site is not working, possibly because of the snow storm out there. CIO

Note:<888> 11/24/97 Monday 1:45 AM EST: I just received notification of this virus alert. I have not verified it. "Join The Crew" Virus Alert CIO

Note:<888> 11/24/97 Monday 1:30 AM EST: Well I got my laundry done, and it is all dry. I worked on my JAVA script trying to make both lines even at the end, but putting spaces on either end of the short link, did not do anything; and I don't think it would look right with .... or ____ . I reorganized some of the links on my homepage. There is not much in the bookmark to work on, until the computer press email starts coming in. I am a bit bushed, so I think I will shut down for the night, and I will try to get a little shut eye. CIO

Note:<888> 11/23/97 Sunday 9:55 PM EST: I had breakfast this morning, and then chatted a while with family. I took a nap until 3 PM, and then I resumed cleaning my apartment and watering the plants. The Harvest Time Assembly of God group of fellowship students stopped by and delivered a nice Stew Leonard's Frozen 11 Pound Thanksgiving Turkey, which I am very appreciative of. If anyone wants to stop by on Thanksgiving Day, I might be on a day schedule. Stew Leonard's www.saystew.com is one of the finest grocery dairy stores in the area. They have a unique marking concept and their flagship store is in Norwalk, Connecticut. Many local people from all over shop there, and many celebrities from around the world have visited the store including Presidents and comedians like Bob Hope. I believe Stew and his family are followers of Robert Schuler's Crystal Cathedral Church Crystal Cathedral Church, and its Reform Church of America. Of course there are a few Dutch Reform in Holland, Michigan. I believe Marble Collegiant Church in Manhattan is Dutch Reform along with numerous others, also there is one nearby in Rye, New York and another in Terrytown, New York. The old Dutch have been around New Amsterdam for quite a while. I guess I will not being having a DAK canned ham. A friend told me that she was going to be help in serving 25,000 Thanksgiving meals to the homeless at the San Antonio Coliseum on Thanksgiving Day. I recall where my mother's family were from in Michigan they raise millions of Turkeys on the farms surrounding Holland, Michigan. I went out for a short walk downtown at 6 PM. I noticed quite a few people out strolling. I noticed Starbucks is closing at 8 PM this evening. They had the fire engines out for a smoke fire at the Dome Restaurant. It did not seem too bad, but the smell of smoke was in the air. I put air in my left front tire, it seems to have a slow leak. It is cold and damp out. I cleaned my car windows with Windex when I went out, so I can see better. I came back home around 9 PM after stopping by the Grand Union for a half gallon of 2 percent milk for $1.79, a 96 ounce container of Grand Union Orange Juice for $3.59, and a quart of Grand Union Pine Sol that I use for cleaning. I also picked up a five pack of buy four get one free Marlboro Lights for $11 downtown. If you have a smelly smoky apartment like I do with out too much ventilation in the winter, one trick is to put out a little of the Pine Sol in a dish, and it leaves a nice fragrance in the room. I am doing my laundry right now. One of the tree dryers does not work, so I hope it all dries in the two dryers. At least I saved 75 cents. I will do a little net surfing tonight until I get tired. I use ICQ and AOL instant messaging when I am online if anyone want to contact me. My ICQ number is 5202411 and my AOL instant message name is "mmikescott". Once again Thank You for the Turkey from the Harvest Time Assembly of God, Greenwich, Connecticut Religious Faith Forum .CIO

Note:<888> 11/23/97 Sunday 11:00 AM EST: I stayed inside all day yesterday working on the computer. I added JAVA script to the top of my homepage that I found at www.iab.net Internet Advertising Bureau. The Java links in the script have to be equal number and the count has to be exact. Also I had a problem debugging the script in that "msg44 " had three spaces that I accidentally put after "msg44" which did not show up in proofing, but caused the script not to run in MS IE 4.0. I basically deleted groups of "msg" and "msg" links in pairs of groups of ten until I found the area where the problem was occurring, and I then did one pair at a time until the script ran. A lot of work for a minor error of three spaces in the "msg" name. I have to eat breakfast and clean my apartment. I will probably rest afterwards. CIO

Note:<888> 11/22/97 Saturday 10:30 AM EST: Last night I stopped by the Exxon gas station next to Greenwich Library and put $13.60 of premium gasoline in my 1976 White Volvo 244. I asked them if they planned to use the Mobil type pass key at their station and they did not know what I was talking about. I went to the Grand Union and bought a DAK ham for $2.99 and a quart of Half and Half for $1.42. Last night it was raining downtown, yet the Avenue was full of Movie goers. I noticed a party in full swing down at the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. I also noticed that parking regulations were not being observed on Steamboat Road, and people were pretty much parking where ever they felt like, particularly down at the end. With parking not being enforced, it could lead to a disaster since emergency vehicles would not be able to access the premises. I suppose people when they are having cocktails feel they can park anywhere they wish. Legally the club has to provide a parking space for every two members or guests on the premises, which they obviously don't try to do. I guess they could try using the Island Beach parking lot and hiring a shuttle to drive them all back and forth. I guess since they new second selectman is a former IBM scientist, he chooses not to enforce the parking regulations around Tom's old yacht club. Well if it catches on fire, and the fire trucks can't get in, don't blame me. I also think as you all know the adjacent rental building is also a fire trap and should be inspected regularly as are a good many of the residential and commercial buildings on Greenwich Avenue and around town. As far as Lou's $200 million stock bonus in his new package, I would quite frankly rather hire 50 conservative Protestant business men for a million dollars a year to do whatever he is supposedly doing that I think they could do better. Quite frankly all this notoriety of these celebrity monarchs, business people, politicians, movie stars, etc. has nothing to do with their celebrity. The simple fact is that they spend so much time traveling on jets and other forms of transportation, that I think they use their celebrity as a form of insurance policy like a guardian angel keeping eye on them while they travel their millions of appointed miles making their rounds. In other words, they are more like airline personnel than whatever they pretend to be in reality. I suppose if you have traveled extensively and had bad experiences, you'd get a little superstitious, and try to cover yourself with all the insurance one can. Traditionally people do that by going to church and supporting their church. The library was virtually empty last night, but the parking lot was full with the Friday 8 PM free old movie series, which a lot of old timers like to go to. They don't like the new movies anyway. I saw somebody with a DreamMagic hat going in late to the movie. I noticed several jets in the local air corridor flying very close to each other yesterday. I was lead to believe they were suppose to keep a further distance from each other, particularly in overcast weather conditions. Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888> 12/07/97 Sunday 6:50 AM EST: I tweaked the init string for the modem and am getting compression and 115KBS. The init string is:

AT&F&C1&D2&M4X4V1L2Q0S7=70S10=60&B1&H1&R2

MAKE SURE YOU COPY IT EXACTLY!

This init string might possibly make 3COM USR X2 modems go faster, basically I just put &M4 earlier in the string to get compression to work. CIO

Note:<888> 12/07/97 Sunday 5:10 AM EST: I got up at 4PM yesterday and went up to COMPUSA in Norwalk. I exchanged the defective TR1 tape I got earlier in the week. I also bought the Logicode 56 W-P X2 compatible 56,000 KBPS modem which was on sale starting today for $60 with $20 off. I got home and installed it without any problem. However tonight the net was slow for a while in the morning possibly with IWORLD people converging on Manhattan. I get faster actual download rates of about 44,500 KBS from IBM.net. The Logicode 56 W-P model #801 uses the same modem init string as 3COM's X2 modem, so I just used the one IBM.net recommended. I have to research about enabling compression, perhaps it will go a little faster. IBM.net uses X2 technology. I also put my older IBM laser printer card in the computer, which I might use, it I can't get the NEC going. I am somewhat fatigued from tinkering with the system, but it all seems back up to snuff. My older Zoom VFP 28,800 had similar download rates with V42 compression but only connected at half the speed. I will have to study the 3COM site about compression. It is cooler tonight and I have to get to bed soon. CIO

Note:<888> 12/06/97 Saturday 9:20 AM EST: Downloaded and installed Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.01. It seems to be a little bit snappier. However, I am tired and going to bed and don't have the time to evaluate it now. Enjoy the clear cool day. Window Thermometer says 35 degrees F.. Enjoy the weekend. CIO

Note:<888> 12/06/97 Saturday 3:10 AM EST: For you Sinatra fans out there, try www.sinatrafamily.com for the latest on Frank.

Note:<888> 12/06/97 Saturday 2:50 AM EST: I updated Scott's Bi Monthly Broadcast mrscott.com/sound.htm or mrscott.com/scora001.ram . It is about 1,598,144 bytes to download and then listen to. It contains my latest observations about activity on the internet. I rested a bit earlier this evening after having sautéed center cut pork chops for dinner. I did them in olive oil, white wine, crushed garlic, herbs and spices, a little brown gravy, onions and mushrooms. I was quite stuffed after dinner. Today www.marketpro.com is having one of its computer trade fairs at the Westchester County Center in White Plains, New York between 9:30AM and 4PM. They have excellent value on generic items such as motherboards and processors not to mention all the other computer accessories. I don't plan to attend since at the moment I prefer to reserve my funds. CIO

Note:<888> 12/05/97 Friday 5:20 PM EST: Up at 4PM. Updated mrscott.com/scopor01.htm Scott's Index. Good day on the street while I slept. I will clean up and read computer press at the library this evening. CIO

Note:<888> 12/05/97 Friday 4:50 AM EST: I posted Michael Scott's Christmas Message this morning. I had a dinner guest last night and cooked sautéed boneless chicken breast in garlic, herbs, and wine; stuffing, brown herbal rice, and green peas. I type up my Christmas letter and copied it at Kinko's downtown. I mailed out my Christmas cards. I had a problem with the NEC LC-800 laser printer cartridge message coming on and it would not print. Thus when I get the toner cartridge I will had toner and hope that solves the problem, and hope I don't need a new printer cartridge also. I used the IBM PS/1 24 pin printer for printing this evening. I have an older IBM Postscript printer but it uses a separate memory card and needs to load drivers, so I will hold off trying to use that. Tonight was a little warmer when I was out. All quiet on the Eastern front. CIO

Note:<888> 12/04/97 Thursday 6:15 PM EST: Today I got up at 1PM. I made my 3PM appointment. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. They did not have anything I was interested in. I went for a drive down by the water, and it was warmer today but slightly overcast. I stopped by Christ Church and bought a box of Christmas cards at the book store for $17.49. I chatted with some people I knew. I bought the C.R. Gibson cards at the church because it benefits the church, but if one does not feel like helping the church

C.R. Gibson has a factory outlet in Norwalk, but remember savings are lost by the cost of gasoline to drive there. My printer cartridge still has not arrived at Marx brothers. I stopped by the library and chatted with the local ornithologist about the volcanic activity of the Karymskey volcano in Russia. I returned home and updated mrscott.com/scopor01.htm Scott's Index. I checked out French English dictionaries for a friend going to France on New Years. I plan to start working on my Christmas cards soon. CIO

Note:<888> 12/04/97 Thursday 3:25 AM EST: Updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm Bookmarks. I'm bushed. CIO

Note:<888> 12/03/97 Wednesday 11:40 PM EST: Well I finally got the second and third backups made after two calls today to Colorado Backup on my T1000e. Basically their tech support at USA 970-635-1500 was very helpful, particularly the second call. I basically had been installing both versions of Colorado backup 1.70 and Cheyenne Colorado 3.0 by clicking on the "setup.exe" files from my control panel. One is suppose to "run" the files from the "start" panel to install the software. One other problem when resetting the tape drive, one needs to disconnect the cable to it and the power supply at the drive with the software uninstalled and reboot the computer and then connect the lpt cable to the drive and then the power cable, and then install the software and when prompted to reboot the computer leave on the drive. I think it is desirable to have the drive on when booting the computer for using it. Anyway I have two backups with Colorado 1.70 and another full system backup with Cheyenne 3.0 backup. I will do differential backups for a while. I also had a broken tape in my new 3M TR1 package of four, so I will have to exchange it at COMPUSA next week. Of course with Cheyenne 3.0 one needs the emergency recover disks that one makes also. I think each backup program tape needs to work with the program that created it. Thus the drive is working fine, but if I want to return it under warranty for repair before the end of the second year in July 1998 from when I bought it, I will need to find my sales receipt which should be around otherwise I have until December 18, 1997 two years after manufacture. Basically it all seems to be working fine. Yesterday Tuesday when I got up in the early evening, I watched the Rockefeller Center Christmas tree lighting. I worked on trying to get a backup all that night. Today when I got up at 2:30 PM I went out and put my good spare tire on the left front, so my tires are all right for now. I then called Colorado backup twice and finally got a good backup with Cheyenne Colorado Backup 3.0. I had a friend stop by for chat both evenings. I checked the air on my tires. I have updated mrscott.com/scopor01.htm Scott's Index, and did not do it on Tuesday. I will catch up on my email and web surfing this Thursday morning. I had boneless sautéed chicken breast and brown rice Tuesday night and Peanut butter sandwich and brown rice on Wednesday night. I stopped by CVS in the Riverside shopping plaza on Tuesday night around midnight and stocked up on mouthwash, Dove soap, shampoo and conditioner, and a jar of Planters Peanuts. There is a discarded Dell case and two power supplies and a Coca Cola case at the office park. Back to net. CIO

Note:<888> 12/02/97 Tuesday 4:40 AM EST: I just finished backing up my computer. I was able to get 4 TR1 3M Tapes at CompUSA in Norwalk for $40 with instant rebate. I did not get the changes for mrscott.com/scopor01.htm Scott's Index, but posted it alphabetically with new columns. Tomorrow or today after market close I will have changes. Yesterday Monday, I went out to Putnam Trust Bank of New York on Mason Street and did some banking and then paid all my bills for the month except for one phone bill that has not arrived. I filled the car up with gasoline and put fuel injector cleaner in it. I picked up a ream of paper at the clearance table at Stables in Port Chester for $2. I went by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop and bought a pair of tasteful brass plated lamps for $20. I order a toner cartridge for my older laser printer NEC LC800 at Marx Brothers for $22. I chatted with an employee of United States Trust there from across the street. I purchased 20 Christmas Postage Stamps when I mailed my bills at the new West Putnam Avenue Post Office which is less busy this time of year. I paid my telephone, cablevision, auto insurance, and rent. I picked up smokes downtown, buy 2 Parliament get 1 free. I noticed a fellow that looked like Al Roker, who said he just looked like him, but still mentioned the volcanic activity in Alaska might be causing our colder weather. I picked up some discarded office materials at an office park. Moran towing is not moving. I went by ELDC thrift shop, and did not find anything. I drove over to Country Appliance in Stamford. They are getting the new Web TV in today. They have 2 head GE VCR for $159 or 4 head Samsung for $189. I drove up to the Wiz in Norwalk in rush hour traffic. They have clearance VCRs or returned ones, DAEWOO 4 head with stereo returned $139. Sharp 4 head with stereo $169 new on sale, Proscan 4 head with stereo, and commercial editing for $220 new off from $300. The sales attendant recommended getting a Quasar which they also have in stock. They have a Magnavox 20 inch computer monitor on close out for $800 down from $1,000. I decided to wait on getting a VCR. I went by COMPUSA in Norwalk and bought the 4 pack of 3M TR1 tapes for $40. They have the Connectix color camera for $130 with a $30 mail in rebate. One needs a Pentium 100 to use it. I think they have a 24X cdrom player for $90 with $20 mail in rebate. I was not there long enough to notice much else. I went up to friends house in Wilton to repay a loan, and I had Venison sausages for dinner. I returned back to Greenwich and read the paper in the library. I went by the Grand Union. They have Kellogg's Corn Flakes with the Microsoft CROM offer for $1.50 a box and Clementines for $3.88 in those small crates they come in. Purdue boneless chicken breasts are buy one get one free with the Grand Union Saving Card which is freely available from the courtesy counter. Several different frozen vegetables are 59 cents a 12 ounce box. Tropicana orange juice is $2.50 a half gallon. Purex detergent is $4 a gallon jug. I then filled up my car with another $6 premium gasoline at the Exxon station for $1.63 a gallon and added the Gumout Fuel Injector cleaner I got at the Grand Union for $4. Over in Port Chester at the Mobil station, premium gasoline is $1.49 a gallon, however I like to maintain a regular customer relationship with the Exxon station across from the library, so I can depend on them for car maintenance. I returned home and put away the groceries and installed the new lamps using my old shades. I put the old lamps in the car to donate to the hospital thrift shop. I put some of the office park discarded file holders and in out boxes around my apartment. I have a computer keyboard drawer that I will also give them. I entered my daily expense activity into the Microsoft Money program. I started backing up my computer, but I had to uninstall and reinstall Colorado Backup 1.70 several times to get it going. I had my LPT 1 port reset at the default IRQ3 and I had to reset it to "setup 1" IRQ 7 to get the Colorado T1000e tape drive to be reliable. I finally made a differential backup and then a full backup. I finished the backups at 3:30 AM. I will eventually keep 2 full backups, 2 differential backups, and 1 full backup off site at a friend's house. I now have 5 good TR1 tapes. I was not able to download mrscott.com/scopor01.htm early enough to have the amount changed in today's page. I added some other column categories. I will post this note check my email and go to bed. CIO

Note:<888> 12/01/97 Monday 2:00 AM EST: I was awoken this past afternoon by a friend coming to visit. We went for a drive downtown Greenwich and stopped by some stores in the Port Chester shopping center and then went for a ride in downtown Rye, New York. After chatting for the evening, he left and I finished the unfrozen remains of my Thanksgiving dinner. I cleaned my apartment and watered my plants. I made up a batch of mrscott.com/icetea.htm to have for the week. About midnight I went for a drive, and the rain seems to have quit. I need to replace my left front tire with my spare since I seem to have a slow leak in it. I have to pay bills tomorrow and do other first of the month routines. COMPUSA has a number of items on sale. They have four 3M TR-1 Tapes for $50 with a $10 mail in rebate. The only problem with mail in rebates, is that they never seem to arrive in my experience using them. I prefer instant rebates. There use to be a law in Connecticut that rebates had to be instant. I also need some toner for my NEC LC 800 Laser Printer which should be about $10. I don't plan any major expenses other than paying bills, since I believe it is good to try to save funds for the future. My friend said that a large red fox is usually a male. I will do a little net surfing this evening before going to bed earlier, so I can be up earlier tomorrow. CIO

Note:<888> 12/14/97 Sunday 5:20 AM EST: I watched "The Client this Past Evening" with a dinner guest. I listened to www.ttalk.com and from about 1 A.M. to 5 A.M. was able to sleep. I suppose I will surf the net a bit, and then sleep some more before I get up and do house cleaning. There is suppose to be a colder spell of weather coming in. All is warm and comfortable here. I suppose we all are getting a bit of cabin fever. Of course "Cabin Fever" records is also in Greenwich owned by U.S. Tobacco across the street from the Greenwich Library. Obviously we need a bigger indoor heated swimming pool so we can relax in the winter from the chills of the Siberian cold fronts. With over 2,000 private swimming pools here in town, I think the town should make better swimming conditions available to the general public. It should be something like an indoor tropical health club. There is a slight possibility that I might be visiting Key West around New Years. Who cares if one tans, it all goes away after a week anyway. Basically the powers that be are only concerned that the "Cold Weather Maintenance Crew" is doing their job, and from what I can see the town is being maintained up to snuff and it looks pretty normal for this time of year with no unusual activity to report. The local news media is not very reliable, and the grammar checking program they are using with their word processors does not work properly. Perhaps the local news media does not have English as its primary language and is only representing somebody else or group who speaks a different foreign language. I suppose the big secret is that, "What ever Cat they hoped to Skin, Fled the Coop", possibly to more private ports of call. CIO

Note:<888> 12/13/97 Saturday 6:10 PM EST: After breakfast, I went downtown. I noticed that my barber Mike at Putnam barbers closed his shop after 66 years. I guess I will have to start going to subway barber across from the post office. Mike has been a local fixture here in town for years. He was always very discreet and had a blue chip clientele. Being at the top of the Avenue for all those years, he certainly knew what was going on downtown. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop and said hello to the staff. I went down to Diane's bookstore on Grigg off the avenue and bought a unique book for my mother for Christmas that I think she will enjoy. I stopped by the Mews thrift shop and bought a brass frame for $5 and a backup tape box for $3. I stopped by the library and said hello to Norman the security guard on weekends. When I got home I took the distributor cap and rotor off the car and sanded the contacting points with fine black sand paper to eliminate the carbide buildup that they get from my slow driving around town. It should make the car start easier in the winter. It is part of routine maintenance. I also put in a quart of oil. I waited for my guest but he did not show up. While waiting I put the Coronation Edition of Queen Elizabeth Life magazine in the brass frame and hung it on the wall. I hung the dinosaur stamps on the wall also. I went by McDonalds and had two 99 cent triple cheese burgers for lunch. The place was packed with lots of parents and their young kids. I mentioned that a lot of McDonalds people lived around Lake Forest when I went to college there. I also said that McDonalds had vertically integrated and also had ranches and marketed the prime cuts of meat also. I think the first McDonalds I ate at was in Decatur, Alabama in the mid 1950s. I stopped by the library and chatted with Norman about food. He said there are lots of steak houses in the major cities of Canada. He also said that President Clinton eats smoked salmon all the time. I went by the ELDC thrift shop and said hello. I went by St. Catherine's thrift shop and they had my file cabinet. I paid $15 for a Steelworks beige 18 inch wide double file cabinet. It just fit next to my computer. I drove through Old Greenwich and the Old Greenwich thrift shop is going to have their Christmas sale soon. I drove out to Tod's Point and a number of hearty people were walking out on this nice day. I noticed quite a few people selling Christmas trees around town. I received notice that I am being sent a smoked turkey from Tyler, Texas as a Christmas present. I suppose with the turkey I have left over from Thanksgiving, I will be eating turkey for quite a while. Ross Perot's Christmas card was sent back, so I guess he no longer lives in London, Kentucky. I guess he did not leave a forwarding address. I installed the file cabinet when I got home, and took a nap until just now. I have a dinner guest coming down for dinner. I have "Grumpier Old Men" and "The Client" movies I checked out. I also checked out new CDROM music. Dinner guest has arrived. CIO

Note:<888> 12/13/97 Saturday 6:30 AM EST: Fail Safe tape did not work last night. I watched Batman Forever and went to bed at midnight. I will update Pointcast and listen to daily briefing, and then go out to Hospital Thrift Shop at about 8:30 A.M.. I am expecting guest around noon today. CIO

Note:<888> 12/12/97 Friday 9:00 PM EST: I rested from 9 A.M. to 1:30 P.M.. I then received a guest and we chatted about what was happening around here. I then went by Bank of New York on Mason Street and there was a line at closing time. There was an exceptional piece of artwork on the wall done by the kindergarten class at Greenwich

Country Day School thanking the bank. I then drove by the Greenwich Hospital thrift shop and they were just taking in another VCR. I went down Greenwich Avenue and drove down by the water. I then drove through Bruce Park. I saw an accident on I-95 east bound about 4:30 P.M. from the park, and the traffic west bound was not moving at all. I noticed people going in and out of the Bush Holley House for some holiday activity. They have completely redone one of the oldest structures and museums in town the Bush Holley house, and of course the old Putnam Cottage Tavern is still across the street from Christ Church. I went by Egghead and they were unloading new merchandise. I went by Stables in Old Greenwich and they had the best deal I have seen on hard disk drives this week. They are offering the Maxtor 3.8 gigabyte hard drive for $179 plus a $30 mail in rebate for a total of $149. When using large hard drives, I recommend spending the money $59 less $15 mail in rebate for "Partition Magic" which can save up to 40 percent of one's hard disk space I believe by optimizing the sector sizes. On a larger than 1.2 gigabyte hard drive, the sectors are 32 Kbytes, which as in most partitions you have 30 to 40 percent of space is much smaller files, you are wasting that space. Of course I believe if one used partition magic, one would have to reformat one's hard drives, and do a complete restore. I will wait for a new hard drive, since hard disk prices are suppose to be coming down rapidly. I then drove back west on the Post Road in lots of traffic and stopped by the Greenwich Library. I chatted with one of our local legal representatives. I chatted with a local Economist from England who complimented me about my internet site, I had mentioned to him. I was rather verbose in my explanation about my perspective, but I think he understood. While chatting with him, I noticed a book about volcanoes that I checked out called, "Volcanoes, Crucibles of Change" by Richard V. Fisher, Grant Heiken, and Jeffrey B. Huller which I will most definitely try to read. I read the four computer newsweeklies I normally read very quickly. I stopped the Grand Union and bought the last one pound package of Icelandic smoked salmon for $9. I suppose they will put more out tomorrow. I also bought a half gallon of cranberry raspberry juice for $1.50. One the way back home I stopped the Port Chester Beer distributor and bought a six back of dark Heineken in bottles and a six back of Spaten Optimator Special Dark Beer in bottles from Munich, Germany. The six packs were about $7.50 apiece. I normally don't drink at home, but I thought during the holidays I should keep some beer around for guests. I noticed on the Whitehouse Christmas recipe site, White House Holiday Recipes they use quite a bit of liquor in their Egg Nog and Fruit Punch, so I guess it all right for a guests of mine to have an occasional beer if they don't abuse the privilege. I checked out "Fail Safe" a classic cold war movie, and "Batman Forever" for my next VCR viewing pleasure. I also updated mrscott.com/scopor01.htm Scott's Index which was down a tad today. Enjoy the weekend, I hope you all get your Christmas bonuses. CIO

Note:<888> 12/12/97 Friday 9:00 AM EST: Updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm Bookmarks. Lots of noise of workers working outside my window this morning. I suppose they are just about done on the building. It looks great and they have done an excellent job on the exterior renovations. I am expecting a guest this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 12/12/97 Friday 3:25 AM EST: I updated mrscott.com/scopor01.htm Scott's Index. Yesterday was not a good day for the market. I had two guests come over yesterday. I typed a few letters for one of the guests. We all went out for lunch at Thataways cafe on Greenwich Avenue. I had the steak sandwich, and they had fried clams. I made my appointment in the afternoon. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop and bought a like new JVC 4 head VCR that works with my universal remote for $35. It works great. One of the friends and I watched "My Own Private Idaho" which I checked out of the library. The picture with the JVC VCR is perfect. It is nice to be able to check out the library videos again. I went to bed about 9 P.M. and got up at 2:55 A.M. this morning, just in time to get the market changes. I received a family Christmas card yesterday and also I received a very nice Christmas card from Vice President Albert Gore and family with their photograph on the card. I will do some net surfing this morning, and one of my friends is coming out again.

Note:<888> 12/11/97 Thursday 3:25 AM EST: Updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm bookmarks with a couple dozen links. I had sautéed center cut pork chops and russet potatoes and mixed vegetables for dinner. I will do a little maintenance work. Hope to rest soon. CIO

Note:<888> 12/10/97 Wednesday 10:30 PM EST: Today I got up at 6PM. A friend called at 4PM to tell me it was snowing. When I went out there was about 4 inches of damp snow on my car. I cleaned off the car. I noticed it was beginning to clear. The roads were plowed downtown. I stopped by CVS and bought $25 of 50% off vitamins including odorless garlic pills for my arthritis. I went by Zyn stationary and picked up some smokes. I stopped by Starbucks and had a medium cup of Ethiopian coffee and enjoyed the view of the avenue. It was not too busy. I went by the Grand Union and bought a red Poinsettia plant for $3.33. I picked up Tropicana Ruby Red Orange juice for $2. I bought a half gallon of two percent milk. I picked up two Tony's frozen pizzas for $2.50 apiece. I like Tony's pizzas since they have a pastry crust. I noticed they have one pound packages of Icelandic smoke salmon for $9 in the fish case next to the hams, a very reasonable price. I might have to try some. I returned home and posted Scott's index, mrscott.com/scopor01.htm. It was not a good day for the market the last two days. I am expecting a guest tomorrow around noon, so I will have to get to bed earlier this morning. I will surf the net this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 12/10/97 Wednesday 9:00 AM EST: Updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm Bookmarks Long List of Recent Bookmarks.

Note:<888> 12/10/97 Wednesday 5:20 AM EST: This past evening I got up at 4PM. I had a quiet but frustrating day. I was going to go out at 6PM but I decided to install my IBM 4201 older laser printer. I loaded the drivers and started it from a bat file. Win95 recognized the laser printer port as LPT3 and it worked fine. However the laser printer had not been used in two years, so I cleaned it. I had to disassemble the cleaning cartridge and remove the old toner and reassemble it. I then adjusted the printer a bit and by the time I cleaned up it was about 3AM. It is working fine as a second backup laser printer along with the NEC LC800 that works fine. I went out and picked up smokes at the Shell station. The Grand Union was closed until 5:30AM, so I went to the Food Emporium across the street. I got a Food Emporium frozen pizza for $3.50 that I just ate. I picked up two half gallons of Tropicana for $2 apiece. I got a frozen fettuccini meal for $3.50 and some garbage bags. I returned my used soda cans. I noticed last night while shopping that Jimmy Dean sausage at the Grand Union is $2.50. I also got a large box of Grand Union Nutratate for $4. I noticed they also had Tropicana half gallons for $2. I picked up some Betty Crocker frosting for $1 in case I want to make a cake. Empress mushrooms were 65 cents, Tony's Pizzas $2.50, half gallon Grand Union cranberry juice is $1.50. I will surf the net reading the news a little now. I will possibly go out briefly around 8:30 AM this morning if I am still awake. I have to remember to keep my window closed when I drive in the winter. The brief time I was out driving around in the cool air, aggravated my arthritis. I told my friend I did not feel like going to Paris, since I think I would be all stiffened up. Thus I should be here through the holidays. I did not have time to update Scott's Index before I lost the changes at 3AM, but it did lose about $6,000 yesterday. CIO

Note:<888> 12/09/97 Tuesday 1:15 AM EST: Yesterday I finally got to bed at 8AM. I surfed cyberspace a little. I got up at 2PM. I had my usual breakfast of cereal, coffee, toast, orange juice, and vitamins. I noticed yesterday that CVS had vitamins half price. I also noticed they have cashews for $2.59 a can plus a large assortment of useful items. When I went out I chatted with my neighbors getting ready for Christmas. I remember a call last night that Yonkers raceway is not doing too well. On the way into town I bought 3 loaves of Arnold Healthnut bread at the Arnold Bakery store. I noticed a semi truck load of Archer Daniel Midland flour being delivered. They use tanker trucks to deliver flour. I went downtown by the bank withdrew money to pay my telephone bill. They weren't busy at Bank of New York on Mason street. I then went down to the Greenwich Post Office and got a $31 money order to pay my telephone bill to Bell Atlantic. All my bills are now paid. I had my afternoon appointment cancelled. I noticed in the post office they could do with a little remodeling of the interior and restoration back to the original decor. It is a great old building, but the interior has been patched up many times. They redid the exterior walk, but the interior is still a little chaotic looking. Probably something in traditional Williamsburg style or original interior would be appropriate. I then told the local traffic officer that it was a good day for the brick masons at the hospital laying bricks who are trying to get the Helmsley wing closed in before the cold weather starts in. I noticed some prominent computer people walking around town enjoying the weather along with the usual shoppers and families. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop and found a unique bargain. I found a charcoal gray black IBM 50th anniversary selectric typewriter with a little one inch square brass plaque that said 50th anniversary. It had never been used. I got it for $10 and it must be about 20 years old. It is definitely a collectors item. When I returned home I had to oil and grease it a little for about several hours to get it working right. However it is a classic machine and it looks great on my bedroom desk. I dare say whomever discarded it did not want to pay to have it repaired since they never used it. Basically in mint condition. I then went downtown and picked up the toner cartridge for NEC 800 laser printer. When I installed the toner it was a simple clean job. However, I had to reset the laser printer by either turning it on or off with printer switch and not the computer control panel switch, or either turn it on with the drum cartridge uninstalled and reinstalled. Anyway it reset the "PC Life" message and the NEC laser printer is working just great. I then went by CVS and noticed a large group of holiday shoppers looking for specialty items. I next went by the library and told the ornithologist my viewpoint on the Russian volcano. I noticed a large group of individuals using the library. I also noticed a car parked out front with Alaska license plates which I thought was unusual. I use to see a Rolls Royce from Alaska during the winter. I also told one of the librarians about the X2 modem sale at COMPUSA. I returned home and serviced the IBM typewriter. It is the one with the little round ball. I fixed the laser printer. I made up a batch of mrscott.com/icetea.htm which should last me for another week. I put my Panasonic electric typewriter in the cabinet underneath the Proscan television. I cleaned my wine glasses and put five of the remaining seven bottles of French wine on the kitchen glass shelves with cleaner glasses. I chatted with a friend telling him I did not think I would be up to making a trip to France, since I am not sure I would be up to doing all the walking that a Paris trip requires. Besides there are plenty of French people here visiting. I noticed a fellow night before last at the Hyatt that had the same look as Jacques Cousteau. Well I still have to think about it and it is not clear whether I was invited or not. I suppose the French won't notice if I don't show up for New Years, I can always find a pilot who needs a navigator to Hawaii which would be better for my arthritis. If I can't scare up a pilot no one can. After all I did spend a little bit of time around aviation. I suppose KIWI airlines stops by in Hawaii. Well it is all probably a Bonzi pipeline dream. That reminds me I have not checked the surf reports from around the world recently. I noticed on the victims of AIDS report from Cybercouncil in Key West another fellow named Billy Gates had passed away. I suppose in the computer industry it is a "nom du guerre". Lets see I believe the Cousteau family have a resort in Fiji along with the Forbes and a few other people. Of course if one did not know what they were doing, one might end up as shark bait. I suppose one could hitch hike down to Key West and buy a cooler and sell refreshment on the beach and work ones way up to running a bar called "Ship Wreck Mike's" but then one would have to buy a parrot and feed it for a hundred years and leave it to a relative. Of course if I got tan when I came back if I ever did they would think I was a "Cuban Refugee", until I paled out I like I have done many times before. I suppose I could say I was a representative of a foreign country's "Geographical Society" like one of the many Royal Geographical Societies around the world. I suppose "National Geographic, the Explorers Club, and the Smithsonian have people in the field all the time. Remember members of the "Explorers Club" are not allowed to tell the story until the "Club" dinner. I suppose one could also say they were on "Outward Bound" which is a Royal Society as well as the World Renown "World Wildlife Fund" or the Audubon Society. Thus if one gets bored of sitting at the computer and is resourceful like the Cub Scouts one can always dream up an adventure. I believe Florida has an interesting group called the "Sea Scouts" with a ship called the "Unicorn" and the "Raleigh " is always out there sailing the high seas. Thus for the older generation there are alternatives for the experienced although less safe than Disney. I suppose the professional adventures are not for the amateurs. Needless to say I know what conditioning from experience it takes for certain adventures, and I am not sure if I am up to par. Well enough of pipe dreams. With 6 Billion people in the world, I suppose everyone has been most everywhere. I hear tell people in Greenland, Iceland, and the Faeroe Islands are very friendly. Well us urban warrior couch potato computer hacker nerds, might dream up something soon. Think about it. It might be nearby in our own area. However be safe in your holiday adventures. I don't think we want any casualties. I suppose if I got back to the eastern hemisphere I would want to check out Lanzerote to see if it got any bigger or busier. One never knows with a volcano. Say hello to "Rhone Dietrin" if you see him floating around one of my swimming pools. I still think there are Sea Monsters out there in the ocean, so let your imagination go, and keep a sharp eye out to the ocean. Remember Flipper is smarter than you are in the water not to mention a few reptiles. CIO

Note:<888> 12/08/97 Monday 12:20 AM EST: Yesterday I got up at 2PM. I started cleaning my apartment and watering the plants. I listened to computer news service while I was doing my housecleaning. I made a differential backup. I chatted with a few friends. I went out about 7PM and the veterans were laying a commemorative wreath at the Greenwich Avenue veterans monument. I paid my respects and mentioned that when I read the Pearl Harbor causality list, I noted there were about 17 Scott family members listed. I suppose in the old days pre World War II, Pearl Harbor was a nice relaxed tropical port where a great many military families enjoyed serving and possibly retiring. I believe one of Admiral Halsey's Carrier Admirals was also named Scott and he went down on his carrier during the War. I noticed a few Japanese coming out of the Senior Center after the Wreath laying ceremony. I believe General McArthur's widow might still be around the Waldorf Towers where she has held court for many years. McArthur and Company is a major New York Investment Company also. The McArthurs are long time Scott family friends coming from one of the earlier European American families to settle in this country. I believe the same family has a dairy operation in Florida. When I use to chat with one of the sons in laws of one of General McArthurs' aids who was Lyndon Johnson's heart surgeon; he told me that his father in law had been General McArthurs aid in charge of psychological warfare. Now for believe it or not. When I first got on the internet a little over three and half years ago, I focused on the Russian volcanoes north of Japan. When one was erupting along the same fault the Kobe earthquake occurred in Japan. I suppose symmetric activity along the ring of fire in Russia can result in earthquakes in Japan. Obviously you would have to consult with an experienced geotectonic expert. We might have a similar situation today along the ring of fire. After picking up smokes on Greenwich Avenue, I noticed the office building had discarded three Coca Cola cases. I drove down to the water and checked the horizon. I noticed the lights were still on Long Island, the old Scott family potato farm. Yes we showed up in South Hampton first to buy it from the Indians. I believe there is still a Scott family homestead out there. Also a friend lives near the Walt Whitman homestead in Melville, Long Island. I believe the original America's Eagle Nest is out there somewhere too. Well then I drove down the post road and checked out the price of VCRs at Caldor's in Old Greenwich. They are still too high. I said hello to a Japanese resident who uses the library regularly, but he seemed to forget his English and I told him quickly about the volcanic activity in Russia. I then went to the Hyatt and used the Bank of New York cash machine. I noticed the Hyatt is beautifully decorated with Christmas decorations and the staff there is very helpful and courteous. They maintain a nice ambience on a cold winters day. They told me they only have internet access for conference rooms, but I suppose one could dial a local access provider like IBM.net from a room. The Hyatt Hotel did not seem very busy, so I guess the business community is spending more time in warmer destinations. I then went by the Exxon gasoline station and bought $12 in gasoline. I picked up one dollar in change and mentioned to a local homeless individual he should apply for public housing. He seemed upset about his predicament. I then went home and did laundry and watched the end of Stanley and Livingston. I had a Red Barron pizza for dinner; and then folded my laundry. I then posted this message after midnight. CIO

Note:<888> 12/21/97 Sunday 3:05 P.M. EST: I went to bed about 4 A.M. this morning. I got up at 10 A.M.. I chatted with family with MCI's 5 cents a minute plan on Sunday. I had breakfast. I called up Cablevision to chat with them about my service. I don't watch television very much, but I keep it handy for guests and visitors. Cablevision told me when the "E" flashes on my present Cable Box, a "Pay For View" is available. I never use this feature since I can't afford it. I was told that Optimum TV is up and running on my present system. I now get MSNBC I believe on Channel 77. On this Tuesday between 8 A.M. and 12 Noon, Cablevision will deliver the Optimum TV box for free which works with the new features. I called Cablevision at I believe the local number is 203-348-9211. I also was informed by Cablevision of Connecticut they are installing a test Internet Cable Modem system in Westport, Connecticut right now. For information on the service call 203-750-8790. I chatted with Mrs. Davis for quite a while at Cablevision and she was quite knowledgeable about her customers needs after 9 years on the job. She said lots of young children call all the time about the cablevision service and the older population is somewhat confused on how to use it. She said I might be able to reprogram my cable ready TV to accept the new channels which I will try shortly. Hopefully they will install cable modem access in Greenwich soon. Since the optic fiber network is up and running, it should not be too difficult to install once the service is available in the area. I cleaned my apartment and listened to Saturday's broadcast of www.ttalk.com while I cleaned the apartment. I now have to have a bite to eat and clean up, and I should be out about 4 P.M. or shortly thereafter. CIO

Note:<888> 12/21/97 Sunday 2:55 A.M. EST: Yes guys I am still awake in the penthouse. I found those URLs and sent them to Ken along with some old sci-fi stuff based on other beings existence. GOTO Software, Developer & Publisher of successful Internet and Game Software and Webearly 1.70 and PC Magazine: PC Tech (Share Your Bookmarks Between Browsers) . I am a little bit bushed and it is cold in here. Returning to the planet "Neptune". I wish someone would turn back on the mirror, but I guess they need it in the tundra. CIO

Note:<888> 12/20/97 Saturday 11:40 P.M. EST: I had a Tony's frozen pizza for dinner tonight and a Pepsi. I put on my long johns bottoms and my Gap blue seaman's sweater. I drove downtown and parked in front of the veterans monument. I walked down the avenue and by the train station as I was pausing, at the crosswalk the pizza deliveryman was walking and a black Mercedes Connecticut plate 747-MOM came to a quick halt impatiently. I started to walk behind the pizza deliveryman who was upset that the Mercedes had not wanted to stop for him. He said "Doesn't he know, it is pedestrian crosswalk?" I walking behind the Planet pizza deliveryman was slower with my arthritis.

As I was almost out of the way of the Mercedes he the driver became impatient and accelerated almost hitting me. Perhaps he a younger white male dark haired fellow with a female did not realize that it was a pedestrian crosswalk in front of the train station. The crosswalk has a sign in the middle of the road saying "Stop for Pedestrians". I noticed and have commented to both the Greenwich Police before and Kennedy security at the building across the street from the train station that the street lights across the street from the train station in front of the office building are burned out, so it is very dark at night. Also since it is dark the crosswalk sign is not very visible. I suggested to the desk sergeant when I reported the incident fifteen minutes later that they should put blinking yellow lights on the pedestrian crosswalk sign. I also suggested that lots of Mercedes drivers seem to be Doctors, so possibly the younger gentleman driving the Mercedes was possibly rushing to a medical emergency. After crossing the crosswalk I walked into the train station and chatted with a young man from Philadelphia that worked for a computer company in London. He had my family look, so I told him where many of my family lived around the world. I then proceeded up to the second level of the train station and crossed over the overpass to the taxi area and commented to one of the local drivers about the incident. I next went back up the avenue and reported the incident to the desk sergeant. I then sat in front of the senior center. I chatted with the day custodian who told me the regular night custodian would be back on Monday. I then chatted with a new local about his dog. He said he had found it and it was half husky and half German Shepard. I am somewhat familiar with dogs and the lost dog he has adopted looks more like a coyote to me, who knows. I next walked back down the avenue and back through the train station which out of some kind act of sanity they are leaving open for the passengers, so they can stay warm. I chatted with a couple of people I thought colder weather is headed our way. I next walked back up the avenue and sat in front of the senior center until 10 P.M.. I noticed quite a few young people were out. The movie "Titanic is playing at the train station cinema. I did not think it was very busy downtown, so perhaps people are away skiing. Starbucks had about a dozen people. I saw a number of visitors around town, however although today was busy the night was not busy. I then drove down by the water on Steamboat Road and saw the lights on across the harbor. I noticed it seemed to be an unusual cloud formation like I have seen after volcanic eruptions before. I was wondering if it was not an after effect of the Greenland asteroid. It got me to thinking that an asteroid that large could possibly alter the Earth's polar axis or its orbit and possibly effect the weather as we know it. It also made me wander if it had put up any unusual amounts of dust debris in the upper atmosphere possibly thinning out the sun's light and warmth a bit. I wandered if anyone had gone up to Greenland to find out if the asteroid or meteorite had left any geological remains from other parts of our solar system or universe. It was an eerie night as far as the weather on the Harbor felt. I heard a Duck on the water which lead me to believe it might be expecting warmer weather. I don't usually see Ducks this time of year. I commented to the fellow walking the Coyote that backcountry game keepers have spotted wolves and bears in the area since I have lived here. All and all it was a delightful evening. I noticed quite a few younger people headed into the late showing of the train station cinema. I am not sure whether they are interested in the Titanic or not, perhaps some other movie is showing. Having spent a great deal of time outside today, since 8 A.M., I need to take a hot bath to ease up my arthritis, so I will feel better tomorrow when

I get up to clean my apartment. I have turned the heat down in the apartment to try to save a little money. I will try once again to do that, but I will have to wait and see how I feel. I suppose it will be a little quieter tomorrow since it is Sunday, but the downtown merchants might be open this time of year. I noticed the police department were monitoring traffic speeds on Greenwich Avenue and pulling over people for speeding. I do not walk around the upper part of the avenue that much anymore since it is not that busy at night. I did stop by Baccarat Crystal shop today and told them that when I worked in the kitchen at "La Vielle Maison" in Boca Raton; they used Baccarat Crystal. I commented that someone I once met, said their family owned the sand pits in Steubenville Ohio where Steuben glass comes from. I asked them where Baccarat's sand came from and they said it was a trade secret. I told them I knew quite a bit about sand, and I had probably forgotten where the Baccarat Crystal sand came from. I suggested that since the French own Devil's Island, they could possibly make it into a "Club Med" for white collar criminals. I also suggested that they might think about using black Lanzerote sand for black crystal. I also suggested that a few French people and other Europeans are working in French Guiana for the European Space Agency Arian Space Program. I chatted with a fellow named Eduardo and his son outside my building today from Brazil. I told him about other Brazilian's I knew of in the area. Since one Brazilian friend showed up here, we have seen about fifty coffee shops show up in town. Coffee is an important commodity, but it is not the only commodity. I suggested to the librarian today that the government should put a $2 a gallon tax on gasoline to raise more money for providing heat for older people and other necessities. I also suggested that it might help in conservation. People here seem to be use to using as much oil as available. Having lived through the oil crisis in the 1970's, I know it could happen again. Environmentalists spending hundreds of millions of barrels of oil a year to travel to look at ecology does not make since to me. Ultimately the people have to decide for themselves what they want to do, and get unglued from the mass media. The younger people I saw downtown looked very sincere and look like they have been working very hard and I hope they enjoy their holidays. I suggested to several people today, if they have family members who are ill, Westchester Airport has two flights a day on weekdays to Rochester, Minnesota where the Mayo Clinic is located. It is colder there, but they have excellent facilities and are world renown. I have not had a chance to surf the net today, but I suggested to a British patron in the library today that the British could possibly use the Britannia as a tourist or holiday vessel in Florida, the Bahamas or the Caribbean. I know it costs a lot to maintain, but there are lots of enthusiastic Commonwealth and retired United Kingdom citizens down south that might like the idea. Interesting URL's I jotted down today are www.postageplus.com , www.pitneybowes.com , www.goto.co.uk , www.aolpress.com . I also read an article in PC Magazine about a program one can download from their site PC Tech "SYNCURLS". It is a program that minds both the bookmarks simultaneously for Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.01 and Netscape Communicator 4.04. I will have to look into it when I have time. Au Revoir Mes Amis.

Note:<888> 12/20/97 Saturday 2:20 P.M. EST: Today I got up at 7 A.M. and had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, Two Slices Arnold Healthnut Bread, One Large coffee mrscott.com/coffee.htm , and a 12 ounce glass of Tropicana Ruby Red

Orange Juice and my usual vitamins. I went downtown and stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop and bought a Budweiser Beer stein for 50 cents. I chatted with one of the shop volunteers about aviation. I stopped by Bank of New York Putnam Trust and withdrew all my money except a $1. I chatted with an old Day school classmate about who was up at Harvard that I had gone to Taft with. I went down the avenue and stopped by Quinn's market looking unsuccessfully for Tom Collins Mixer and drove down by the pier on Steamboat Road and chatted with one of my former neighbors about Volcanology and Oceanography and Lanzerote on the pier for a while. I went by the Mews thrift shop and bought a whisky decanter for $1.06 to keep water in at my bar. I went by the ELDC thrift store and bought a bartenders spoon for $1.06. I went by Hospital Thrift Shop again, but their parking lot was full, so I did not stop by. I went by the Greenwich library and read the local paper. I chatted with the Burns Security agent and he said he once worked at Wescon tire in Port Chester. I stopped the Exxon station and filled up my tank with $8.80 premium gasoline. I went by the Grand Union and bought Whisky Sour Mix for $1.61. I stopped by Val's liquor across the parking lot and they did not carry Canada Dry Collins Mixer, and neither did Quinn's, Grand Union, or the Food Emporium. I noticed Val's carried the quart bottles of Angostura Bitters, so I will have to start buying it there. I went over to the Port Chester Beer distributor and they finally had Canada Dry Collins Mixer for a $1.09 a quart. I bought three bottles. I noticed that they had 12 packs of Becks beer for $8.99 plus tax and deposit. I came back home and expressed my condolences to one of my neighbors about Mary Ann passing away while she was in the laundry mat. She seemed quite mournful. I went upstairs and defrosted some smoked turkey and had a smoked turkey sandwich and with Tabasco sauce and two microwave russet potatoes. I then made coffee and entered my financial accounts and filed this report. I will probably go out for another tour shortly. CIO

Note:<888> 12/19/97 Friday 10:55 P.M. EST:I updated my SoundBlaster SW32 card drivers from this link Creative Labs What's New on the FTP site , select "SBW95UP.EXE". This afternoon I organized my kitchen cabinets some more and moved the canned goods out of the bookshelf by the kitchen. It looks much neater. I polished my wooden furniture with lemon oil. I straightened up a bit. One of my neighbors told me Mary Ann Thyse died from heart problems caused by pneumonia. The state of Connecticut refuses to pay for the electric heat for the seniors and disabled in this building, so quite a few tenants are forced to live in very cold conditions which can cause illness and death. Mary Ann called me two weeks ago to check her new Lucent cordless telephone which did not work. I noticed when I was in her apartment it was very cold. I suppose she was trying to save on electricity and caught pneumonia and died. It is a shame that the State of Connecticut refuses to pay for the electric heat in this building causing a great deal of misery for many of the tenants. All the other public housing in Greenwich has the heat paid for. I was told by our former tenant's president who was evicted for complaining that over 15 people have died in this building of 55 tenants in the eight years it has been open. If one complains the establishment threatens and intimidates the residents here. Most of them are afraid to speak up. I guess the local housing authority would rather allocate the funds for heating this building to other projects more popular with the voting public. The head of the housing authority has not returned my calls in 1 1/2 years. I basically have no choice but to pay the higher heating bills or suffer in the cold with my severe arthritis. It is pretty much the same for all my other fellow tenants. One neighbor's electricity bill was $500 last February. It basically shows how foolish the housing authority was to install electric heat in a building up north and we all have to pay the consequences. We have no political redress since the Housing Authority is an independent agency. Still it is better than sleeping in a palmetto tree in Key West. I had frozen pasta primavera for dinner. I cleaned up. I went out for a drive. While driving down Greenwich Avenue, a good looking 25 year old brown haired female pedestrian tried to pick up a ride with me to the bottom of the Avenue because she was in a rush. Basically we are not rude here, but from experience I try not to pick up hitchhikers anymore, not to mention it would raise eyebrows to be seen with such a good looking gal. She sort of looked like Ali McGraw when she was that age. I guess since I am such a local figure she wanted to grab a ride, but the village has a million eyes so I don't think she minded walking the three blocks to the bottom of the avenue. There were lots of young folks out tonight. I stopped by the library and read the local newspaper with a story about the Greenwich Police investigation. I chatted with some of the library locals. I returned Nixon and checked out the film Sophisticated Gents. I also checked out "Diana The Last Year" by Donald Spoto to read. I then went by the Grand Union and bought a half gallon of 2% milk for $1.84 . I went over to the Food Emporium and chatted with a local about general topics. I was looking for Tom Collins mixer at both places and neither seem to carry it anymore. They did have Whisky Sour mix though. I noticed the Food Emporium carried Key West Lime Juice which is strange because when I was down there I don't recall seeing many Lime trees. I played a $1 lottery ticket out of the vending machine at the front of the Food Emporium and did not win anything. I chatted with an acquaintance who must have been spending at least $100 on the lottery tickets there. I told him I read an article that the one of the Indian Casinos in Connecticut was giving each of its tribe $1,500 in profit sharing which seemed a little low, since I read that the same Casino was the largest individual contributor to Bill Clinton's campaign giving him $50 million. Basically from what I am writing one can surmise that the political establishment in Connecticut is somewhat corrupt with the overflow of the mafia element out of New York State. Needless to say they don't worry about Federal intervention, so I basically feel the status quo will continue. They never bother me because I tell them I have family in the military who would be quite upset. After I returned home I chatted with one of my neighbors and filed this report. CIO

Note:<888> 12/19/97 Friday 2:40 P.M. EST: I was up at 7 A.M. this morning. I updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm bookmarks. I had all three local IBM.net access numbers not work and the operator "0" number fail for ten minutes today. It obviously was some problem with the telephone company switching system. I checked with IBM Armonk security 1-914-499-4400 and they did not know about any problems. I found the Inforworld link for Dave Livingston's article this week for using two modems, two lines, and two ISP accounts with Microsoft MS Dun 1.2 to double one's connect speed. This is the link but it will change after a week, Opinions InfoWorld, Dave's Current Column . I found an interesting password saver program that just came out at ZDNet Software Library - The Lock 98 . I straightened up my kitchen and dining area a little while listening to the Internet News broadcasts. I will probably go out in about an hour. CIO

Note:<888> 12/18/97 Thursday 5:40 P.M. EST: I updated mrscott.com/scopor01.htm Scott's Index. I went out this morning and bought 4 Champaign glasses at the hospital thrift shop for $2 and 2 beer mugs for $1. I stopped by the library and read the four computer news weeklies I normally read. Brian Livingston has a good article in InfoWorld this week about multilinking with MS Dun 1.2, setting up two 56,000 baud modems with two telephone lines and two ISP accounts where one can get 112,000 baud download speeds. Of course I don't know if it actually downloads from one site that fast, or one can download from two sites at 56,000 baud. I am going pretty dang fast right now, so I don't think I will try it just right now. I checked out Oliver Stone's film Nixon out of the library to view. I had a smoked turkey sandwich for lunch with Tabasco on it. I went back downtown and parked by the water down on Steamboat Road and had a cup of coffee out of my thermos. I watched the aviation traffic around the area on the clear blue sky day. I did not notice the flag flying. I saw two jets from Europe headed down south plus the usual Westchester aviation traffic. I drove by the hospital thrift shop again. I sat downtown for fifteen minutes. I went by the library and read two computer magazines. I noticed that www.ibm.net is rated the best internet service provider. I wish they would let one dial up at least two ISP connections at once like they use to and I might try getting a second phone line then. I noticed a lot of activity around town. I guess we have a lot of holiday shoppers. I noticed one of the family neighbors wearing a red baseball cap. I guess so many people travel into and out of the area, I continue to feel like the computer reference librarian at the library. It is too bad I don't have more of a budget to expand my operation. Well at least I have a well stocked refreshment center. They say in the future one will be able to talk to ones computer very easily. I already talk to my computer like some other people chat with their plants. I wore my long underwear on this warmer day, and it seemed to make a difference with my arthritis. I have to check if I am having guests for dinner or not shortly. Great Day in Greenwich. I also received a second call from an attorney in Port Chester, Mann? and something yesterday about a Michael Scott that use to have the Cutting Board deli. He is from the east block and his real name is Michael Swobe in his 50s. I suppose he left without paying his landlord the rent on the deli. Michael Scott is very common name. Lots of new arrivals have taken the Scott family name instead of using their more complicated sounding foreign names. I am reasonably assured that I am from the real Scott family that arrived here over 350 years ago, and I have lots of relatives descended from that branch of the family here in this country and around the world. Lots of this European types around today. I suppose lots of relatives are coming to visit their families while others head away on holiday. www.ibm.net supposedly works fastest in the evening because it caters to daytime business users. I do not use the IBM dialer which I think messes up the system with older files, but the regular Microsoft dialer for IBM Net. That is all for now. CIO

Note:<888> 12/18/97 Thursday 9:15 A.M. EST: Updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm Current Bookmarks. I plan to go out shortly this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 12/18/97 Thursday 7:00 A.M. EST: I was up at 4 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast and showered. I went out and cleaned the frost off the car. I stopped by the Grand Union and picked up a six pack of Schweppes Bitter Limon for $3.59. I also picked up a bag of Idaho potatoes for 99 cents and a box of Post Raisin Bran for $1.99. I got home and carved up the Greenburg smoked turkey from Tyler, Texas I received from a family member. I put the white and dark meat in five different plastic bags in the freezer and left one bag in the fridge. I cut the meat off in large sections, and ripped the rest off. I put the carcass in the dumpster. I noticed this morning the early morning execs going to work. I did not see lights on down by the water, so people are probably away. I will do some net work today and possibly go out this morning. I received my electricity bill for the last month which includes my electric heat. It was $188.87 which is about typical. I am keeping it warmer turning the heat off in the room that I don't use either the bedroom or living room. I pay an averaged monthly amount of $123.. With my arthritis I have to keep it warm enough, about 70 degrees, to be comfortable here so my joints don't ache. Back to net. CIO

Note:<888> 12/17/97 Wednesday 12:30 P.M. EST: Updated
mrscott.com/bmnow.htm Recent bookmarks. The internet seems to be quiet with the holiday season approaching. No, I have not gotten into the hooch. I made a complete backup this morning. I also had a turkey sandwich for lunch and coffee. I need to carve up and freeze the smoked turkey. I ran across one interesting story from yesterday on the BBC that caught my attention, BBC News | Sci/Tech | It came from the skies, Greenland Asteroid . I hope this does not mean that the possible dust cloud from the asteroid will cool off the earth shortly and we will have a much colder winter than normal. They have had minus 20 degrees F. weather in Russia recently, but I don't think the asteroid would cause that effect so quickly. Only time will tell. I probably won't be going to Key West. I am so stuck in my routine, and enjoy the quiet and comfort of home. I think I can tough it out here in Connecticut. Somebody called me this morning asking me if I was the Mike Scott that owned the "Chopping Block" in Port Chester. I had to say no. CIO

Note:<888> 12/17/97 Wednesday 3:15 A.M. EST: I went to bed at 8 P.M. and got up at 2:00 A.M.. Scott's index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was up a bit yesterday. It seemed to be a good day for tech stocks. I finished setting up my holiday hospitality bar with a 1 liter bottle of Kailua Coffee Liquor, in case anyone wants to stop by and have a "White Russian". The Kailua was $19.99 plus $1.35 tax for a total of $21.34 . I normally don't drink that much, but I figure with snow possibly coming at the holiday time, I would try to set up a user friendly environment should anyone contact me about stopping by. I suppose a lot of people enjoy drinking something besides ice tea and coffee. I have spent a number years around established people sipping their booze, so I guess part of the secret to success in moderation is to offer liquid and alcoholic refreshment to one's guests. Having lived in places like Manhattan, Nantucket, Key West, and Lake Forest; I suppose I have a number of deja vue friends who enjoy a cocktail occasionally particularly amongst the old guard. Well I'll let you know if anyone stops by for cocktails. If not all this good hooch can sit and gather dust. It will give me something else to dust in my apartment. If we ever get something like the blizzard of 1888, I suppose I will have some extra Red Cross Emergency Medical supplies stocked up for emergency purposes too. Alcohol is part of our culture, particular in colder climates and realistically I think it is safer to sit back and relax and entertain or have a night cap at home than to spend particularly high prices at the local pubs. Not that I am cheap, but I am on a limited budget and I suppose one can only do so much. I expect guests will not drink and drive, where ever they are enjoying their holiday refreshment this year. I suppose this collection of beverages and cocktails will be handy for anyone who stops by. I do not myself drink alone, but do enjoy conversation and relaxing when old friends and visitors stop by and would probably have a drink myself if any of them ever do. If you don't have the time to come into the area, I am sure some of the staff at the main operation headquarters would be happy to make sure you are given ample refreshment whenever needed. After all these years around corporations and diplomats, I tend to be forgetful about what the main operation is, but I am sure there is somebody out there to remind me. Needless to say the funds to set up the holiday bar were provided by other members of the Scott family, so that gives you an idea what the main operation might be after over 350 years of helping to run a Dutch Trading Post on the Hudson River. I believe one of the family's original businesses was the Molasses business down to the Indies and back up the coast to Europe. Back to the net. I hear tell somebody I might know has a house in Brazil bigger than the Kremlin with millions of acres of land, but that might be one of the southern branch offices. With this extended network, I am not sure of all the established friends, family, and associates that we have in place, but I suppose it is extensive. Needless to say things are quite simple here in the diplomatic quarter. CIO

Note:<888> 12/16/97 Tuesday 1:30 P.M. EST: I went out at 7 A.M. this morning and bought 2 % milk for $1.84, Lemon Juice $1.69, Angostura Bitters $2.49, Rose's Lime Juice $3.19, 2 Tabasco $1.19 each, 2 cocktail red and green napkins 40 packs $1.59 each, cocktail onions $2.29, V-8 Juice 99 cents, White Wine Vinegar $1.09, cocktail olives 99 cents, 6 limes $1.98, 1 lemon 67 cents, 1 box clementines $4.99 plus tax .37 for a total of $29.73. I then put the food away and arranged it around my cocktail bar. I then did had toast and orange juice and vitamins took a shower. I then went over to Var Max Liquor pantry 1-914-937-4930 and purchased 1 liter Canadian Club $16.99, 1 liter Jack Daniels which came with two JD glasses for $17.99, 1 liter Mount Gay Rum $17.99, 1 Liter Gordon's Gin $12.99, 1 bottle Le Fleur Chevalier rouge $6.99, 1 bottle Notilly Prat Dry Vermouth $3.99 for a total with tax of $5.19 of $82.13. I then remembered to buy a bottle of Moet & Chandon White for $23.99 plus $1.62 tax for a total of $25.61. Thus $162.12 was spent on liquor and $35.30 for mixers and additives. I also picked up four 1 1/2 ounce shot glasses at Lecters for $4.10. After finishing up setting up the Holiday bar I did some minor arrangements. I went downtown and walked briefly. I sat in front of the senior center and noticed a number of British tourists strolling around. I remembered that I had a UPS delivery coming, so I returned home and the smoked turkey and a package from mom just arrived now. I guess I will relax of go out a bit shortly. I had a peanut butter sandwich and Pepsi for lunch. It is a nice day, but I like to keep my accounts straight, and am trying to relax a bit by drinking less coffee. I have a 4 PM appointment, so I might make a few rounds before then. I also unsealed the liquor bottles, so they are ready for use. CIO

Note:<888> 12/16/97 Tuesday 4:30 A.M. EST: Yesterday I went out about noon. I purchased a solid oak Microwave cart for $12.50 at the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. It normally retailed for $120. It came disassembled. I went downtown by the water and checked the skyline. I noticed a new forest green GMC parked down by the water. I noticed a long time family friend parked by Mike's former barber shop trying to get a haircut. He still drives the black and white Rolls. I did not have a chance to converse. I stopped by the Greenwich library and chatted with Norman. He asked me if a 747 could land at Westchester Airport. I said I did not think so, but possibly a C5A could, if they cut down the trees at the end of the runway. It probably depends on how much fuel it is carrying as to whether it could take off. Greenwich was full of holiday shoppers and old guard. I noticed a few new young faces returning from college. The library painted the temporary construction partition yellow. I noticed the construction crew was busy digging the foundation for the new addition. They have a lot of rich top soil they have dug up, I suppose they will have to relocate. I went home and assembled the Microwave oven stand on wheels. It looks presentable. I decided to setup a Strategic Air Command Emergency Cocktail Bar on it. I washed and cleaned 40 beer, wine, short and tall pieces of glassware and placed them strategically on the bar. I set out the Westchester PGA ice bucket in the center. I put 7 sealed bottles of white wine and one open bottle of white wine along the back top. I put the seltzer bottle on the bottom shelf, with the flask, and the empty Dom Perrignon bottle along with a wine carafe. I put a Benson and Hedges cork screw next to the ice bucket. I placed the Norwegian peace conference flag in front of the ice bucket. I went out and got smokes, and 4 bottles Schweppes Club Soda, two bottles tonic water, 2 seltzer water, one ginger ale for 89 cents apiece at the Grand Union. I stopped by Var Max liquor pantry in Port Chester just down the road 1-914-937-4930. I purchased a 1.75 liter bottle of Dewars Scotch for $36 and 1.75 liter bottle of Smirnoff Vodka for $18.50. I set the mixers and the liquor on the bar when I got home. I probably need to pick up a fifth of Jack Daniels, a fifth of gin, ?what type, a fifth of Canadian Club, a small bottle of vermouth, a bottle of red wine to complete to complete the emergency bar. I refilled the ice trays in the refrigerator. I don't drink at home myself, but I always try to be prepared for guests stopping by. When one is out in the chilled holiday cold, they occasionally need a warmer upper, particularly if they are use to warmer weather or conditions. The Scott family has a tradition of trying to offer hospitality and refreshment when we can afford it. I guess it is all right to use my emergency money to setup a cocktail refreshment center instead of getting a new hard drive for shareware programs. I also unsealed the liquor bottles. They tell me at the liquor store, if one does not drink it in a year or two it will evaporate. I placed the bar in the corner in front of the deer picture next to the laser printer. With winter coming up, one never knows when chilled visitors might show up or sneak in, so it is better to be prepared. I also have a case of cokes and Pepsi in the fridge, orange juice, cranberry juice, 12 bottles dark beer, and Tabasco, tomato juice, lea and perrins. That reminds me I need to buy some 2 percent milk. After setting up the bar, I stopped by the Greenwich library and chatted with the custodian about Key West in the old days. A friend wants me to check at Liberty Travel across the street from the library about Key West travel packages around New Years. Last year they had a $800 round trip airfare package, with stay at the Key West Best Western next to the airport, and car per person double occupancy for a week. Well I will do a little bit more cold weather maintenance today and net work. I suppose if anyone is in Manhattan around Rockefeller Center they should be generous to the Salvation Army Santa collecting funds in front of Rockefeller Center. He might be getting a little chilled this time of year, but he works hard. Maybe they should setup a little warmer booth for him around his kettle. Enough of Christmas preparations.

CIO

Note:<888> 12/15/97 Monday 11:00 A.M. EST: Yesterday at 8 P.M. I got up and started cleaning my apartment after breakfast. I did a little bit more thorough cleaning and finished about 3 A.M. I went for a drive around town, and noticed an orange Volkswagen Beetle for sale down town. I drove out by the Westchester airport and studied the flight schedule. I always park at the XEROX parking space, since when I went out to California around 1980 a fellow in charge of XEROX west coast that looked like Nelson Rockefeller in Laguna Beach took me out to lunch and I explained some of my concepts of the computer industry. I guess they had enough research projects like the Windows operating system at the XEROX parc research site, that they were able to develop and market some of their research concepts. I had several thousand people around me from Cal Tech, and I believe Vincent Butler in Santa Cruz was enthusiastic about some of the concepts. He said he was a fourth generation Californian that had gone to MIT. Back in 1978 the only thing they had on the Computer lab at U.C. Santa Cruz was Fortran, so I guess after a several hectic trips to California, the Volcanology alert team came up with some more interesting software and hardware for the computer industry. One has to realize there are quite a few people on the West Coast and it was not all a one man operation. I believe the original company I formed was called Discovision, but it might have evolved into something else today. I talked with so many people out there during 1978 -1980, I am not sure what all came of it, but I figure some of the boys in the Silicone Valley remember. I remember 50,000 private airplanes parked around Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, so obviously it was a major effort. Hippie guru computer types in the Redwoods of California, well how life has changed. Remember when life was simpler. Yeh, the IBM office is in Palo Alto, and I stopped by it to on those trips. Well lets not forget a few other people living peacefully in Carmel by the Sea. Who knows for sure who was in charge out there, but I suppose the computer industry has changed a bit in 17 or 18 years since those trips. I remember when the Apple came out in 1982, so I suppose some of the people when I went west came back east, needless to say the patent lawyers and attorneys are going to have a field day with all this. Yes it is all mostly proprietary patented company information that they are using that we leant for the global effort. On a minor note an IBM friend JJ is renting a house near my family in Florida to take Executive Air Flight Training, so I guess he plans to travel a bit for business and pleasure. Company trips off Nantucket were a lot simpler in a $150 Subaru with a Polaroid sticker all around the country. So who knows whom the evil wizard really was, but most of all the new toys were sitting on the shelf for years only to be rediscovered and reconfigured and remarketed. I guess one could look at it as the ultimate recycling project. You were all having so much fun partying you never paid much attention to what the old family firm was doing. I suppose you better not fire the help because they don't look like movie stars, but they sure as hell made the firm one hell of a lot of MS dollars. I noticed Westchester Airport has a couple flights a day to Rochester, Minnesota for those needing expert medical care at the Mayo Clinic. Most of the flights there are to D.C. and around the north country. CIO

Note:<888> 12/30/97 Tuesday 5:15 P.M. EST: I was up at noon today. I went downtown and checked with Liberty Travel. There are not openings to Key West packages, until 1/10/97 - 1/17/97 at the Key West Best Western Ambassador flying U.S. Air, White Plains, Philadelphia, Miami, and Key West and return with four door rent a car for $1,050 per person double occupancy. I don't plan to travel. I also found out a weeks stay at the Mount Irvine Club in Tobago with airfare is $1,500 per person. If one rented a car there, they drive on the left side of the road. I made mrscott.com/icetea.htm . It is suppose to be down into the teens on New Year's Eve. I feel a little achy right now. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . The market has been good the last two days. Try to stay warm. CIO

Note:<888> 12/30/97 Tuesday 12:15 A.M. EST: Yesterday on Monday I got up at noon and after breakfast went out about 3 P.M.. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrifts Shop and browsed the merchandise. I went down by the water and viewed the cloud formation created by the rain formation. I stopped by the Town Hall for an appointment. I went by the library and returned Princess Di book and two video tapes. I checked out a video on the QEII, Sleepers, and Second Best. I read the local newspaper. I stopped by the Entree Computer store and viewed the latest models of equipment. At 6 P.M., I returned and my dinner guest had arrived. I reheated the Chicken Cordon Bleu, and then watched QE II, and Sleeper. I received a call from the music librarian about two music CD's and explained I had double checked my limited collection of CDs about 15 twice, and the library had made a clerical error. I will update Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm and then go to bed. It does not look like it will be snowing here tonight, just heavy rain. I saw a former classmate of mine returning to Belgium today, so I suppose other international visitors are in the area for the holidays. CIO

Note:<888> 12/28/97 Sunday 11:50 P.M. EST: I was up at noon today. Confirmed with family members. Checked in with police departments of former communities our family was established in, and advised them to tell visitors still looking for us to refer business matters to the family companies. They got the message. I cleaned the apartment and watered the plants until 6 P.M.. I had a dinner guest for dinner. I made my own version of Chicken Cordon Bleu, frozen beans, and Idaho potatoes. I watched Texasville on the VCR. I went down to the Shell station and purchased $10 of gasoline and advised the night attendant nothing was going on in Greenwich. I advised him the stock market has not done anything in the last five months, up maybe a half percent; and treasury bills or secured bonds would be a better investment. I am home for the night, and will maintain routine for the rest of the month. As far as I know, they all have FY money, so they don't care about anything but themselves. Well the town makes a portion of its money off the traffic through the town, and when that traffic dries up particularly in the winter, expenses still have to be met, and from an overall perspective the town is not a good business investment at the present moment. Prices are artificially inflated, but the town offers privacy for those who like a quiet boring peaceful life not far from the hectic city life. Overall they're probably looking for new sheep to fleece, and if they don't show up which they always do, they're fold their tents like the Arabs and head toward more prosperous hunting grounds. Thus if the market goes down, a certain negative element in town won't find it to their advantage to be here; but some of us might have to exercise and delegate more authority. Wolf patrol is still out tonight. It is not determined whether the snow storm in the area tomorrow and Tuesday will leave any accumulation since, we are close to the shore. Enjoy the upcoming Holiday week and be ready for work next Monday any of you that still have jobs. CIO

Note:<888> 12/28/97 Sunday 3:30 A.M. EST: I am still relaxing sitting around my warm for now apartment in my white wool socks, white long john bottoms, and white turtle neck. Tighter long underwear in the winter is warmer than those baggy Chinese long johns they sell at the GAP. I baked 22 Duncan Hines cookies with a few teaspoons of Kailua and vanilla and cinnamon and nutmeg instead of a teaspoon of water. I fiddled checking my modem X2 by running HyperTerminal and running "ATI6","ATY11","ATI1 through ATI12". It gives all sort of useful stats for you techies. I posted If Your Internet Activity Is Malfunctioning, This Might Be Why, rootshell.com for you hackers who want to sabotage somebody's system. It showed up at www.7am.com out of New Zealand, probably some smart ass got tired of the cold and is camping out down there for the summer in the 120 degrees F. dry air. Well too each his own. I suppose all the pink slips sent out by registered mail recently did not make anyone happy, but they suddenly realized they were all per diem employees and the budget and the program was eliminated by the present ruling authorities. I suppose a few people will be spending their savings on Seeing Eye Dogs and Glasses. Needless to say they all will be pretty useless for security work if they have to use their eyes to see very well. I would imagine most of the team is pretty near sighted by now. Emergency bell went off briefly this evening. I imagine some of the old timers in the computer industry I have seen around here recently are getting tired of McDonalds' hamburgers, so I recommend to them to take a job in a French restaurant and learn how to cook for enjoyment and better health. Needless to say having a half dozen French knives at your back takes getting use to. Best thing in this cooler environment is to stay busy and pace oneself. Always other more interesting things to do than cruising the highways aimlessly. There seem to one or two people in the area who make a living out of being professionals. Needless to say the conservation movement in Greenwich is on hold until the so called authorities return from their tropical hideaways. Words of experience, if one uses mechanized equipment frequently one should take an interest in its maintenance. Such play toys as Air Force One have to be refitted every time it flies into a different environment or location, any trained aviation mechanic would know that. Thus if it goes down, contact Bill Gate's father, I believe he is suppose to be the attorney representing Boeing. I am told that it can't land at Westchester Airport, but I would imagine the Army Corps of Engineers could make the proper adjustments in about a day. Of course the green 727 is an old plane with a new paint job, if I flew a lot I would inquire into the planes history and maintenance records. With budget cutbacks, I can not assure anything is working properly. I suppose next they will want to start growing rice in the environmentally protected conservation areas. What you idiots don't realize it is more than a five year or ten year plan, it is part of a 100 to 200 year plan that is so slowly evolving that you call it progress. Thus the puppet master has basically played his red queen, and the game is over until we get more sensible communications out of the other hemisphere. Basically keep the security watch on, and find out what they really want, not the propaganda handouts. Obviously there is enough real estate in the Eastern Hemisphere, so it is not a land crab. My attitude is that they were all sent here, because they were causing problems in their home countries or had incompatible philosophies. Needless to say the motto of the local library is not, "Knowledge is Power" it is "Let's See What Comes Next". CIO

Note:<888> 12/27/97 Saturday 11:55 P.M. EST: Today I got up around noon. I puttered around the apartment for a while. I went out at 4 P.M. and a friend just arrived. We drove by the Arnold Factory Outlet store and I picked up two loaves of Healthnut bread for $1.29 apiece. I went by the library and it was quiet. I dropped off Mission Impossible and checked out Rob Roy and Texasville. I also checked out a colorful book of pictures by Valdez on George Herbert Walker Bush that only recently arrived at the library. I guess by comparing pictures in the book, Bill Clinton must be 6'5" while GHWB is only 6'2". I used to know about a half dozen fellows here in Greenwich all over 6'6" who were mostly into electronics and finance. I guess I am a shrimp at 6' and 200 pounds. I noticed that Prince Charles is 5'10" tall. The tallest person I have ever seen locally is a New York City policeman I believe named Miller over 7' tall who was actually a Canadian and there were plenty more up in Canada where he came from. He use to stick out in a crowd as he observed the traffic at 5th Avenue and 42nd Street. I guess Canadians have plenty of room to grow up there, which is why Olympia and York is such a fine construction company having built comfortable buildings like the World Trade Center. Needless to say the Feds never bothered me when I hung out in the bar where the Olympia and York construction crew drank after work. As I recall they use to keep the bar at around 80 degrees in case one of the major senior stockholders showed up, and I would walk in and turn the thermostat down to 40 or 50 degrees to see who would still hung around. After all when it is below zero degrees F. outside 40 or 50 seems comfortable in case one has to go back out in the cold. That reminds me we still seem to have one homeless fellow wandering around town for the last two months, no one seems willing to help out. I advised him to seek shelter at the Volunteers of America shelter at Westchester Airport or the Stamford shelter. Perhaps he is out of Prudoe Bay Alaska just observing for Exxon and thinks this a walk in the park. Anyway he does not seem to be deteriorating too much being out in the cold. I suggested to him to hitch hike down to Key West, but he said he was from the area. I said hello in the library to one of our local legal observers. I mentioned to him that near sighted lawyers should not try to fly airplanes. It was mentioned to me today that they had tornado warnings in Vero Beach today. Locally we have a little damp snow not sticking maybe a half inch. However forecasts for Monday and Tuesday are calling for a lot of snow and possibly a blizzard, so I advise people to get ready to be shut inside for a day or two if it develops. I generally am mobile once the Post Road is plowed since I am only about 500 feet out the lot to it. I suppose my roof could also hold about 20 feet of snow unlike some other structures here in town. I was advised by a high ranking British internet official that since I have electric heat which the government is legally obligated to pay for, that Niagara Falls is a steady source of hydroelectric power which is very dependable. Of course a friend of mine's family if they get ticked off know how to turn it off, since they live near the falls. Saudi Oil is very good for heating, but it is only reliable if the tankers get through. We were informed by the White House that most of our oil being consumed is from Mexico and Venezuela, so I guess no one is using this cheap Scotsman's North Sea Oil around here. Obviously you better learn the facts before you try to pull the wool over my eyes. I hear tell the folks in Russell, Kansas have quite a bit of oil not to mention people in Texas seem to know the oil business whether they have any left there after driving around with those bumper stickers that say "Drive Fast Freeze a Yankee", it is hard to tell. My reply is eat lots of beef and let a skinny freezing person decatherize your arteries before you die of a stroke. Obviously we have excellent medical facilities in the area, so whether I freeze to death at least once I catch pneumonia in my 70 degree apartment, I will be treated at government expense if they don't pay for the electricity to keep it that way. Yeh that is why I say the motto of Greenwich should be, "Penny Thrifty and Pound Foolish". If anyone is gaining access to my apartment while I am not here, it is a violation of the civil criminal code and the appropriate counter surveillance measures have been installed since I moved in here nine years ago. For over fifteen years a camera lens or microphone can be as small a pin head, so obviously the optics people are not worried, just a little bit bored when I run reruns such as some of televisions earlier shows. We're out of bargain low tar cigarettes, and just have buy four get one free Marlboro Red cigarettes. There seem to be a lot of Asian people wandering around, perhaps they are part of the hospital medical team. God only knows they would not show up here for the weather this time of year. I gave directions to one fellow trying to catch a bus this evening to the taxi stand, he said he was Bogotá, Columbia. I told him there were lots of Brazilians in Danbury. I think the International Debutante Ball was at the Waldorf Astoria last night. An older family friend who is long since gone use to run it. They always like seeing the West Point and other military academy cadets show up in their dress whites for the party. I am sure liquid refreshment was served. I chatted last night with local security Kennedy Security and advised them they should look into having the street light across from the train station in front of the building they patrol activated. I guess we all have such good night vision we don't really notice dark street lights. I functioned pretty well last time all the lights were out in town when the transformer blew up at the top of Greenwich Avenue. I noticed the brick apartment down on Steamboat Road still had gas lights burning outside. Of course natural gas is more dangerous if one does not know how to properly maintain it and monitor it. I believe all natural gas for domestic use is scented, so if it leaks the occupants can smell it. I remember one forty story building in Manhattan near the United Nations once blew up in my face because of a natural gas leak. I believe the glass went over 50 blocks uptown as far as 79th street. Thus living in the urban and suburban environment has it natural hazards particularly when there is shoddy or slipshod maintenance. I also noticed two firemen had a plow on their truck, so the firemen do a little snowplowing in their free time along with other maintenance groups. I called up the White House again today and advised them to look into why the Greenwich Housing Authority is not paying for our heat after all the tens of millions of dollars they have allocated to the Housing Authority. They advised me they would look into the matter, so now we have to wait and see what happens next. Remember the old timers have friends in high places too, check with Stillman Rockefeller and see what he thinks about all these new yuppie Robber barons here in town. I am sure he just as soon send them all up to Prudoe Bay to pay off their bills. Only time will tell. CIO

Note:<888> 12/26/97 Friday 6:30 P.M. EST: I went out at about 2:30 P.M. today after breakfast. It was warm in the apartment, so I turned off the electric oil filled radiator. I went downtown and the Hospital Thrift Shop was closed. I went down the Avenue and I noticed at the bottom of Steamboat Road, Long Island Sound was still there. I went by the library and I chatted with the Security guard about local security matters. I checked out the "Mission Impossible" video tape. They said one of the CD's of La Traviotta was missing. It must have been missing when I checked it out, because I did not even open the CD jewel box to play it. I don't recall checking it out. I read the Greenwich Times and the four computer news weeklies that I normally read. The library was pretty quiet today, but downtown was packed with people with lots of young tots out with their parents. I went back downtown and noticed that two meters at the south side of the north parking lot of the Board of Education building were not working. I mentioned it to the parking violations bureau. I walked to the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. I walked up to Greenwich Hardware. I was looking for a Holmes Humidifier filter. I just used my last white dust cartridge. The Greenwich Hardware store only carries Bionaire. I went by CVS, they did not have it. I went by Grannicks, they only carry Bionaire. I will next look for it at ServiceStar. I stopped by the Police Supply store above Grannicks that is going out of business the first of the year. I asked them about military surplus computers and computer parts. They don't carry them. They have lots of police supplies they're clearing out. I went by the Grand Union and bought a half gallon of milk and a half gallon of orange juice for $4.13. I returned home and chatted with my neighbors. I had a smoked salmon and smoked turkey sandwich with mayo on fresh baked bread and reheated the sweet potato puree. I chatted with a friend about what's happening around here. I filed this report. I will update mrscott.com/scopor01.htm Scott's Index. It was a good day for the market.

CIO

Note:<888> 12/26/97 Friday 1:10 A.M. EST: I recorded and encoded Queen Elizabeth II, Christmas 1997 Broadcast 1,213,364 bytes Recordable for redistribution around the net. It is a pretty good copy without the pictures just the sound. One can record it with the RealAudio Pro version after downloading it or better yet set your browser to save a "ram" file and save it. I hope Her Majesty does not mind, but in more remote posts in her domain, the internet to London might not be as quick as from here. I also watched the movie "Forest Gump" before doing the recording. The Ohio site has all the Queen's audio files in www.rcch.com/hotlist/gb.htm , however the Florida site mrscott.com/gb.htm only has the most recent recording since that site is limited to 25 megs of storage. I am going to rest and I hope you all "Enjoy Boxing Day". CIO

Note:<888> 12/25/97 Thursday 6:00 P.M. EST: I was up at 9 A.M. for breakfast. I went back to sleep and got up at noon to received a Christmas call from Mom. They were having a quiet time. I opened my Christmas presents. I received a pair of Nike Air sneakers, two wool shirts, a LaCoste Polo shirt, a box of three Cologne scented soaps, and a nice brown vest sports jacket for outside wear. I also picked up a number items with my Christmas funds, like a well stocked bar, a 56,000 baud modem, a smoked salmon, and I received a smoked turkey, not to mention the VCR. Thus I had a very good Christmas. Thank you everyone. I had cold smoked salmon and cold smoked turkey breast, pureed sweet potato with cinnamon, nutmeg, white wine, and butter; and steamed green beans for Christmas dinner. It was a light dinner, but I am trying to lose weight; so I am not eating too heavily. I put on the music CDs with Nutcracker and other classic Christmas hymns and Frank Sinatra Christmas Tunes. I sent mom a book on Deluxe Inns with a forward by Peter Dutchin. I went out at 3 P.M. and sat down and had a thermos of coffee in front of the senior center. I chatted with our local RTM representative about the status of town. I went down by the office park and retrieved 10 Compaq docking stations and one Dell Keyboard that I dropped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. If anyone wants them grab them. The docking stations probably work with Compaq 286 or 386 laptops. I am not sure if they will work with newer machines. I drove down by the water and checked out the weather. It was about 50 degrees F. out this afternoon and quite enjoyable this afternoon to get a breath of fresh air. There was a small number of strollers walking around. I noticed that Versailles was opened, but Starbucks was closed. I saw quite a few people going to the movies. I returned just now, and after I file this report, I will watch the videotape of "Forest Gump". Over all it was a quiet enjoyable Christmas. Our RTM rep told me the "Old Guard" were at Christ Church for midnight Christmas service. He mentioned one person whose wife I see around, but I have not seen around; so he is back from China. I hope all the family is doing well and feeling well. Merry Christmas and thank you for all the great gifts. Don't forget to log onto Queen Elizabeth II's Christmas Message to hear her first internet Christmas Broadcast. Merry Christmas. CIO

Note:<888> 12/24/97 Wednesday 7:10 P.M. EST: Today I was up at about 10 A.M. . I freed up space on my hard drive about a 100 megs worth, by deleting Outlook Express, Netmeeting, MS System Upgrade Files Stored, MS IE 4.0 Installation Cab files, and uninstalling Netscape Communicator Professional Edition and Install the Standard Edition. All of this took some time. I have about 150 meg free space on my hard drive. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm and Bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . After I upload the new files, I will scandisk and optimize the hard drive and then start the backup program. While that is running I will go out for a while perhaps to McDonalds for a burger. It is suppose to snow this evening, but I just looked out the window and it looked clear for now. Have a Merry Christmas and Happy Holidays. Enjoy Yourselves and try to relax form the net. CIO

Note:<888> 12/23/97 Tuesday 11:50 P.M. EST: I had another smoked turkey and DAK ham sandwich for dinner. I made up another batch of mrscott.com/icetea.htm . I had a cup of coffee. I set the favorites on the new remote control for the television. A friend told me he knows the owner of Cablevision, and I mentioned to him they should get Cable modems out her PDQ. I suppose all the diplomatic corps would like them, so have the communications division expedite matters. I toured by the library, and the new observer had disappeared. I chatted with a local accountant, and he showed me his new IBM ThinkPad. I advised him, he should not leave it unattended. I went downtown and parked in front of the senior center and took my usual stroll around lower Greenwich Avenue. T was seen roaming around. I drove by Steamboat Road and noticed the office building down there has left a street barricade sitting down in the middle of the road which is a traffic hazard. I noticed a party getting out at the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. I drove down East Putnam Avenue and stopped by the Hyatt Hotel. The Concierge told me that they are expecting a full house on Christmas Eve. They have extraordinary and very festive decorations in the Atrium. I suppose they have at least a thousand Poinsettias. I advised him to keep an eye out for stranded travelers if as predicted there is a snow storm on Christmas Eve. I mentioned to him that there are a lot of French Canadians to the north of us. I noticed a new Mobil Gas station with car wash and fast oil change down the street from the Hyatt with an all night mini market. I drove back down to Greenwich Avenue and walked the lower part of the Avenue again. I drove down by the water again. I picked up another two Coca Cola Red Plastic Cases to use for decoration around the apartment. They're very sturdy and make great storage containers. I suppose an enterprising gardener could use them like plant flats. I returned home and filed this report. All in all it is rather quiet in town with the Hannhaka Holiday on Christmas Eve. There was not much traffic, however the usual patrol is being maintained. I would imagine a number of families are busy in the day time with last minute Christmas preparations. I suppose some of the young college students think the town is a little dull, but they obviously know their way around the maze of Greenwich. Pax Vobiscum. CIO

Note:<888> 12/23/97 Tuesday 5:50 P.M. EST: I had the Cablevision man from Jamaica deliver the Optimum TV cable box today. I tinkered with the system setting it up after he left. A good friend stopped by and wished me Merry Christmas. We discussed family and general conversation. He has to work tonight. I made him a smoked turkey and DAK ham sandwich on healthnut bread with Mayo and Dijon mustard. I though a good sandwich some time might be a smoked ham, smoked turkey, and smoked salmon combo sandwich with horseradish, Dijon mustard, Tabasco, and mayo. We both have relatives who are high tech lawyers on the west coast. He left at 3 P.M. and I went downtown for four buy two get one free Parliament smokes. It is cold and damp out. Quite a few young faces and families out and about. I stopped the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop and the Greenwich library and checked out Forest Gump which I have never seen. I still have 1900 to watch. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was a down day for the market. I will try to relax off the computer and spend less time on it for the next few holiday days. Have a Merry Christmas and Happy Holidays, Yours Truly, Michael Scott CIO.

Note:<888> 12/23/97 Tuesday 12:15 A.M. EST: I went out and stopped by the library and gave the one inch snow warning to the staff. Local observer does not seem to know why everyone is not interested, basically we all have our jobs to do. I parked in front of the senior center. I wore the Bass top siders which have good traction, but are uncomfortable for long distance. I strolled down the avenue. I checked out the office park. I noticed a lost black ladies glove with a hole of expensive vintage, that I turned into the east building security officer. I walked down the train station platform and viewed the professional movie goers exiting and entering the theatre. I conferred with the Planet Pizza observer about having him lobby the local street light department to fix the street light opposite the train station and briefed him on the crosswalk incident. I mentioned to him that Cablevision is ripe for a takeover since they have six billion in debt. I walked back up the Avenue and noticed that the street light in front of Richard's is out too. I drove down by the water and noticed the cloud formation. I noticed two of the street lights are burned out at the bottom of Steamboat Road for some odd reason. I drove back home and got comfortable sitting around my drafty apartment in my long johns. I filled the humidifiers to take some of the dryness out of the apartment. I watched Mrs. Mapples investigate crime in Barbados on the tube. I conferred over the com with the shift supervisor. I noticed my modem makes funny noises when it is not online. I use to many "I"'s. Basically we all have our routines in town, mine is a cheap Scottish Dutch routine, but after over 350 years in the area we have certain instincts as to the nature of the community and find it useful to maintain a watch downtown in the Honorary New Amsterdam Night Watch program which we still perform after all these years. Downtown seems to be not getting more than an inch of slush right now, but it could ice up latter on, and back country being a number of degrees colder most definitely will probably freeze over and not be safe to drive until roads are sanded. Emergency and patrol vehicles should be prepared to use chains. Possibly will be vehicular accidents on the parkway or turnpike. Kids are about and around town networking with their peers. I don't intend to move to Westport, just so I can have T10 access, I am perfectly comfortable in my native domain. Possibly commuters in the morning will be delayed or they might take an early holiday. Basically the town is pretty quiet and nothing unusual to report. CIO

Note:<888> 12/22/97 Monday 8:40 P.M. EST: I went out at 3 P.M. and made change at Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I confirmed with the bank guard and he said that the Mercedes Ct. plate 747-MOM is a client of the Bank about 38 years old. I guess since he is one of my better customers I won't press charges. I stopped by Watson's Mercedes Benz dealership and confirmed with them on the matter and recommend a high tech ignition lock and a governor. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop and put the word out and went by ELDC. ELDC has a delightful well made hand made lavatory bowl table made by a skilled carpenter for $45. I went by the library and checked out 1900 and said hello to the ambassador from Greenwich High School. I went by the Grand Union at 5 P.M. rush hour Marcal Toilet Tissue four pack 99 cents, String Green Beans 99 cents a pound, Frierhoffer Hearty Nut Bread $1.50, I Can't Believe It's Not Butter $1.29, 2 percent milk $1.84. I stopped by the Food Emporium and purchased 6 Yoplait Yogurt 3 or 99 cents, limit four and a half gallon whole milk $1.84. I noticed a distinguished gentleman in both stores checking out the variety of American products. I have seen him before, but I have a hard time placing a face with whom he is. Perhaps the computer messed up my vision a bit. I noticed three little kids in the Food Emporium pushing full tiny grocery carts and one gal buying lot of spray starch. I came home and started my laundry. I made a 12 jars of vanilla, honey, cinnamon, nutmeg yogurt with the half gallon of whole milk. I had a DAK ham sandwich for dinner with Dijon mustard and two small russet potatoes. I am now waiting for the laundry to dry. I just went down and folded it and brought it up and put it away. The right most dryer did not heat up, so the clothes in there were damp. I will leave them out to dry. It is suppose to snow a bit tonight. I guess I could go out for an hour or so if it is a dyer emergency. Remember I cripple up the more time I am in the cold. CIO

Note:<888> 12/22/97 Monday 1:45 P.M. EST: I checked with Cablevision www.cablevision.com about why they have not put Internet Access which they offer for $30 a month plus $10 a month Cablevision Modem rental in Greenwich. They gave me the continual vague answer they have given for the last year. They offer T-10 10 megabyte a second access, but they don't think the people in Greenwich are important enough. I noticed they have $6 billion in debt, so I would foreclose on them and put in a professional management team that can start doing business properly. It can't be that complicated for them to start up the service if they have it in Westport and the fiber optics are already here. Check with the boss and have him get down on their case. I also updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm. I will be out in about 1 hour 15 minutes. CIO

Note:<888> 12/22/97 Monday 12:45 A.M. EST: I went by the library this afternoon. It was very peaceful and quiet for a change. I went downtown and walked around for a while. I noticed a young full dress Marine at Starbucks with his parents. I walked down the avenue and noticed it was slow. No one seems interested in seeing the movie Titanic. I would imagine with families getting ready for the holidays, they are enjoying a little time at home. I chatted with one of our senior volunteers about the street light problem across from the train station. He agreed the maintenance department should take a closer look. I noticed the young daughter of a friend walking around with her mother looking quite tired of walking. The Greenwich Harbor Inn seemed to be vacant. I had a cup of coffee at Starbucks and noticed a few local people relaxing. It was cold and damp this evening. I ran into a friend downtown, and came back and chatted and watched the movie Auntie Mame with Rosalind Russell which I have on video tape. I watched a little of the program about English butlers. I watched a bit of the discovery channel about the Titanic. I noticed with the Optimum TV the reception is much better. I also play the television stereo sound through my stereo with the 14 speakers I have in my apartment for total surround sound. I chatted with a friend who plans to pay a visit Tuesday noon. I was given a Christmas gift grant from my guest. I will go to bed shortly. I am wearing my long underwear and blue jeans and denim shirt like an old sea dog. I suppose Submarine One can stay underwater for 2 years if the giant Octopus which I think exists in the ocean does not trail it. It is my premise some ancient psychic controls its movements and possibly the same with the Loch Ness Monsters. I guess one should confer with Flipper to be sure. The Sea Horse should be fully readied. The Black Eagle just crossed the Bearing Straits. I suppose we should line the cracker jack boxes across the ocean and puddle jump the force across. I would imagine cold weather maintenance would apply. Supplies will be short over there, so one should think the folks in the Eastern Hemisphere would need for an enjoyable Holiday. We live very simply here, but we try to lend a helping hand when we can. The Sleeper has to Sleep. I suppose Budweiser is expensive in Germany, so try Heineken. The 50 foot long Mercedes is still in reserve if the Eagle's Nest needs it. I suppose there are other older cars in Paraguay. I imagine the Swiss are making out like bandits, but keep the Perrier stocked across the street. The Peanuts are still being processed for distribution. No sign of any drunken Indians in this neck of the woods. I suppose the wildlife patrol might spot some unusual wildlife movements. Basically the people who are cold can expect colder weather. The Druids are restless with the Winter Solstice. The Milk Cows are still eating their hay. Coffee cups have been cleaned. I have not hit the hooch yet, I am keeping it as emergency Red Cross Medical supplies for those with chills that might drop by. Old Courage 100 Year Old Scotch is still being Rocked around the World to help better ferment it. New Zealand is suppose to be a paradise that www.ttalk.com chats about. I suppose the folks down under in their 35 degree plus Celsius weather are enjoying sun tanning and the beach. 13 days of 007 is on the TBS. Basically the ski crowd seems to be getting ready for the winter holiday. Train station was locked tonight. I did not spend much time out, but I suppose the Canadians are making themselves comfortable in their winter hideaway. Yes it is warmer here by the ocean, so 20 million French Canadians might enjoy a holiday down here by shore. Of course if the Loch Ness Monster created a big tidal wave, we would all be surfing in some pretty chilly water. General rule around the Navy is not to make waves and to respect the old guard. It is not really cold yet, so I advise local personnel to enjoy the holiday down time and possibly do a little domestic maintenance to get ready for colder weather which sooner or later will arrive. Enough Constant Comment. I heard a joke about "Some Old Queen Upstairs Would Like a Hot Cup of Tea", and a flask of Drambuie. Remember to have enough oats to feed the horses. I hear tell leaving a radio running in the barn scares away the wildlife and settles the horses. Off to Never Never Land with Peter Pan and the Lilliputians. Keep the Good Ship Lollipop Afloat in the bath tub. Remember the fish in the aquarium might get cold, but don't handle electricity around water unless you want the shock of your life. Keep the starfish in its natural habitat. Personnel should remain at their station for the duration of the Red Cross movie. Keep rex and regina in the separate safe houses. Tell Lake Forest to remain calm. Check in with Lake Louise to see if artic weather has swooped down upon them. I suppose Niagara Falls has not frozen yet, but the Polar Bears are probably beginning to venture on the ice at Hudson's Bay. Hudson Bay Blankets make great Christmas gifts. So keep up the spirits, and make sure the drafts are not to bad. A small number of cheerful smiley faces out tonight. Will probably be out in the morning. I will do laundry tomorrow night. CIO

1998 1998 1998 1998 1998 1998 1998 1998 1998 1998 1998 1998

Note:<888> 1/10/98 Saturday 2:35 A.M. EST: I slept all day Friday. I went by the library about 8 P.M.. I went for a short walk downtown. I returned home and made yogurt. I had a smoked turkey and smoked salmon sandwich for dinner. I worked on installing my old OS/2 Warp hard disk in an older 386DX I picked up, I need to have more memory for it to work which would not be too much. I need to use the OS/2 editor for some list editing. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . The market had a bad day on Friday. I will do a little net surfing this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 1/8/98 Thursday 11:35 P.M. EST: Updated Scott's Index, mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I had smoked turkey and smoked salmon sandwiches for dinner tonight with a guest. Watched the movie "Brave Heart" which seems to go on forever. I have been warned to avoid public places to avoid picking up the Type A Flu which is suppose to be spreading in this area. Next week they expect the local hospital to be filled up with it. I hope I have some sort of built in immunity after the last episode of regular flu. CIO

Note:<888> 1/7/98 Wednesday 10:15 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index, mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I read the computer press in the local library this evening. Town seems to be quiet, not much happening around here. I would imagine certain group are down south for the winter. Warmer this week for a change. CIO

Note:<888> 1/6/98 Tuesday 6:30 P.M. EST: Caught up on my old email by deleting it all. No point in reading old automatic email. I updated Scott's Index, mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I don't foresee the market doing much, I suggested earlier Government T Bills or Secured Bonds might be a better investment in the long run, although some individual stocks might out perform the general index. I rested this afternoon. I am still recovering from major bout with flu. I learned one has to use the inhaler upside down for it to work. I use the inhaler with the bronchitis which I developed. Overall I am beginning to feel better, but I am still a bit weak. I have stayed in so far today, although I am told it is warmer out. CIO

Note:<888> 1/5/98 Monday 7:30 P.M. EST: For last week I have add Flu, I advise anyone who has not had a flu shot yet to get one. I was sick as a dog, but I did manage to quit smoking. Still recuperating, but I did manage to pay my bills today and get a haircut for $12 at Subway barbers and do a few small routines. CIO

Note:<888> 1/18/98 Sunday 2:00 A.M. EST: I listened to www.ttalk.com for three hours this past evening after getting up at 9 P.M.. They mentioned two interesting sites. ABC News has a new finance site www.moneyscope.com which is in beta, but is a novel use of Java script. The French are also having an internet conference during the first week of February, look at www.milia.com . It is in Cannes, France; but it might be a little chilly this time of year. Back to surfing the net. CIO

Note:<888> 1/17/98 Saturday 2:00 A.M. EST: I got up about 10 P.M. this past evening. I went downtown for a walk. I noticed the usual crowd out and about. I drove over to the Riverside Shopping Plaza all night CVS and bought 4 twelve packs of diet Sprite and 2 twelve packs of diet Coke for $1.99 apiece plus can deposit. I also picked up some peanuts for $1.99 and some microwave popcorn for $1.49 and a bottle of Lysol for $2. I stopped by the Grand Union and got a dozen eggs for 79 cents. I returned home and unloaded the supplies. I noticed a black car from Florida with blacked out windows cruising my parking lot. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was a good day for the stock market. I think National Westminster Bank owns www.greenwich.com . I will have Stauffer's Chicken Dijon for dinner shortly, and then surf the net all night. CIO

Note:<888> 1/16/98 Friday 3:00 A.M. EST: I added two news pages of IBM, Recent Bookmarks Last Six Months and Microsoft Recent Bookmarks Last Six Months. I also updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I am having problems creating the bookmark pages as I use to, since I no longer have the OS/2 editor on my machine. I need to find a text editor that does not add additional blank lines when one opens the bookmark file. CIO

Note:<888> 1/15/98 Thursday 11:35 P.M. EST: I went out at 2 P.M. and stopped by CVS. They have 12 packs of Coca Cola for $1.99. I also got some Hal's cough drops. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I picked up some Niacimide at the Greenwich Health Center. I came home and had devil crab cakes and pasta fresh for dinner. I slept from 4:30 P.M. to 10

P.M. . I went out and got $9 of gasoline at Greenwich Exxon and two packs for Marlboro ultra lights for $5.10. I basically have quit smoking, but I occasionally like to sneak a smoke until I cut out completely. I stopped by the Grand Union. They have Stauffer's frozen meals for 2 for $4 and 2 for $5. I got two Chicken Dijon, one light Lasagna, and a Chicken Chow Mien. I also got a Tony's Pizza for $3.39. I picked up some Green Pasta and a can of cashew pieces for $2.79. I noticed they have fresh leg of lamb for $1.99 a pound, but I could not eat that much. I also got some green beans for 59 cents a box. I got a jar of Ragu pasta cheese sauce. The Coca Cola at the Grand Union is $3.99 a 12 pack at the Grand Union twice as expensive as CVS. I will surf the net a bit this evening. It is raining heavily outside. It does not look like it will snow or ice up. This Northeastern should last about three days. CIO

Note:<888> 1/15/98 Thursday 12:35 P.M. EST: I made a differential backup this morning. I finished configuring the 386 backup system. I went out at 9 A.M.. I stopped by the hospital thrift shop. I noticed a screw in my left front tire. I removed it, and there was no puncture. I stopped by Entree computer, and they did not have the CMOS battery with the four prong connector. I stopped by at the new Mobil station across from the Hyatt that has a quick lube and got my oil changed for $31.80 . I stopped by Egghead and they did not have the CMOS battery. They told me they finally got paid, I guess Egghead has been having problems. I stopped by the Grand Union and got three bottles of Pine Glo for 99 cents, and a half gallon of two percent milk. I chatted with a lady behind me about old Russians who eat yogurt live a long time. I went by the library and returned the book on Volcanoes and the picture biography of George Bush. I noticed the parking lot was quite busy. I went by the Arnold bread store and bought two loaves of Healthnut bread for $1.29 apiece and a 12 pack of English muffins for $1.79. I returned home and had a Hillshire Ham sandwich with mayo and Dijon mustard and ice tea for lunch. I am updating PointCast while I type this. I have a 3 P.M. appointment this afternoon. It is very cold out, and we are suppose to have a three day northeastern starting this afternoon which is not good for the old arthritis. I received notice that the hospital charged Medicaid $500 for my emergency flu visit. I guess if the state paid for my heat I would be healthier. CIO

Note:<888> 1/15/98 Thursday 4:25 A.M. EST: Yesterday I configured the old 386 computer with Windows 3.1 and installed IBM dialer and web browser on it for a backup. I need to get more memory for it and CMOS battery, but it is more of a collectors item for the fun of it. I will surf the web a bit this AM. I have not been out in about 30 hours. CIO

Note:<888> 1/14/98 Wednesday 4:15 A.M. EST: I installed the new version of MTU Speed 4.02 Mike Sutherland's Software Site MTU Speed 4.02 . On my system with MTU Speed I chose the "optimum" settings, and MTUMAX of "1152" and Multiplier of "6". One might want to tinker with these settings, but they work great for me. CIO

Note:<888> 1/14/98 Wednesday 3:15 A.M. EST: I updated the recent bookmarks, mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Enjoy yourself surfing the net, or get a life. CIO

Note:<888> 1/14/98 Wednesday 12:45 A.M. EST: I got up around 6 P.M. yesterday. I received a call about noon and chatted. I went up to COMPUSA in Norwalk and bought a new keyboard for $10.50. I stopped by Egghead in Westport and they did not have the $59 24X Cdrom players, but were sold out. On the way down the Post Road on the Westport Norwalk border, I saw a Gateway Computer showroom they have there. It is the size of an automobile dealership, but one only orders the Gateway product there. They have very tasteful setups of the Gateway products and friendly courteous sales staff. It is a very spacious environment for a computer sales outlet. They told me that Gateway has a clearance center in Kansas City, Kansas. They also said they sell the Pentium 300 with everything for about $1,500. Next I stopped by Stew Leonard's for a one pound package of Scottish smoked salmon for $13.99 that I will use with my ham sandwiches. I installed the new keyboard which is quiet and a very good value. I picked up a used discarded Compaq 14 inch monitor, two keyboards, and one mouse. Needless to say lots of other junk keeps showing up at the office park. I had fish cakes, frozen vegetables, and baked potato for dinner. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm which did well today. Back to net activity. CIO

Note:<888> 1/12/98 Monday 6:15 P.M. EST: I made my appointments today. I spent 25 cents on parking at the Greenwich Town Hall, $13.35 at Exxon, and about $6.50 at the Food Emporium on Dijon mustard and a pack of Mrs. Paul's devil crabs and a pack of fish cakes. I chatted with the usual entourage of people floating around town. The town is dead slow. I did see two deer crossing the Post Road in front of the high school last night. Egghead is out of $59 cdrom players right now. I suppose the old guard is nestled into their routines, and it is a pretty much a normal day in town. The library was noisy this morning with the construction which is still progressing. I read the four computer news weeklies in the library that I normally read. Not much in the way of computer news. Scott's Index, mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was up a bit today. I told a fellow economist that I am getting bored of the internet. Overall it was a pretty normal day up here in the tundra 25 miles east of Manhattan. I saw a Bill Gates look alike walking around downtown Stamford today, but he was taller at 6 foot. I was told by the ornithologist that the bird book on Tobago is "Birds of Trinidad and Tobago by French". I mentioned that the house that George Bush visited in Brazil is larger than the Kremlin and they have a private army to protect it. Of course one would have to find it first. Lots of places to hide out in the world when one is bored of the neighbors. I understand that this is the time it is nice for visiting Antarctica since it is summer down there. I suppose Argentina, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa all have warmer weather just about now. Well back to never never land on the internet. Say hello to the folks down under at the Australian Open for you venturesome travelers. CIO

Note:<888> 1/12/98 Monday 1:50 A.M. EST: I got up at 9 P.M. last night. I had breakfast. I went shopping and bought a 3 pound Hillshire Ham for $2 a pound. Tropicana Orange Juice is buy one get one free at the Grand Union. I also picked up a loaf of Healthnut bread for sandwiches. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants when I returned. I had sandwich at midnight and showered. I went for a drive and picked up an old Tandy PC unit that I threw away. I picked up shampoo at CVS for .73. I have the annual state evaluation at Stamford at 9 A.M. this morning. As far as I can tell the town is very quiet. I think a lot of people have the flu, and the type A1 flu which the flu shot does not immunize against is suppose to be going around this week with the hospital expected to be full. Back to a little net work. CIO

Note:<888> 1/23/98 Friday 5:45 P.M. EST: Updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . The figures as usual are different for the amount changed listed in Microsoft's program and by differentiating them manually. I am not sure why the program does it, but they are major differences. I am off for a drive in this cold damp weather, possibly stopping by the library. CIO

Note:<888> 1/23/98 Friday 2:00 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Internet Hotlist. It is now over 58,000 links. I updated the IBM, Microsoft, JAVA, Volcano, NASA, and Key West Categories. I also added a new category of Finance, New Links which contains the most recent finance links. It was a little tricky using two different computers to edit. I used the OS/2 editor and boxer editor on the 386 backup machine and Text Pad on my Win95 machine. Hope you all enjoy the update. CIO

Note:<888> 1/22/98 Thursday 9:30 P.M. EST: I went out at 9 A.M. this morning after surfing the net and having lunch. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I stopped by CVS and bought a 12 pack of diet Sprite for $2, shaving cream for $2, 2 packs throat drops for $1 apiece, and a four pack of Yardley soap for $2. I drove down by the water. I stopped by Exxon for $12 gasoline. I went to the Grand Union and bought 2 packs Orville Redenbacher popcorn for $1 apiece, raisin bran for $2.20, Center cut pork chops for $2.99 a pound, 2 Tony's frozen pizzas for $2.50, 2 percent milk for $1.84, Idaho potatoes for $2.50. I came home and had a cup of coffee. I stopped by the library and read this week's computer press. I returned home and tried to install a shareware bootmanger from Germany to no avail. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I returned home and deleted the configured version of OS/2 from my 386 backup system and installed a plain vanilla version of OS/2 Warp on the system which runs on 4 megs of memory. I basically need the OS/2 Warp Enhanced editor for editing my directory, so now I should be able to do some minor updates of the IBM, Microsoft, NASA, and volcano categories and the bookmarks. I will have to walk between computers with the files. The Enhanced editor does not open the Netscape bookmarks with spaces between the lines. I will possibly update Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm before going to bed if the site works sometime soon. I am bushed . CIO

Note:<888> 1/22/98 Thursday 5:15 A.M. EST: Up at 3 A.M. this morning. I updated my recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I might rest a bit more this morning. I had to change my CMOS battery around the other way, I hope it works with the polarity changed on the backup 386. CIO

Note:<888> 1/21/98 Wednesday 8:15 P.M. EST: I went out at 9 A.M. this morning. I stopped the hospital thrift shop, and they had some new items. I drove up to CompUSA in Norwalk and bought a 386 Clock CMOS battery for $13 made by Duracell for the backup 386 computer. I had to created a fourth hole in it for the 4 pin connector. I stopped by

Tod's Point on the way down. I went by Egghead and Staples in Old Greenwich. Staples and CompUSA had clearance computers. Staples had two black two drawer wide heavy duty file cabinets clearance for $50 apiece. I went by the water on Steamboat Road and checked out the weather. I went by the library and checked out the new "Joy of Cooking". I returned home and installed the new CMOS battery in the backup 386. I also installed the OS/2 hard drive as a second D drive. I backed up the C drive with the tape backup and partitioned the first C drive with OS/2 boot manager to boot Windows 3.1 from the C drive and OS/2 from the D drive. I restored the C drive. I made a tape backup of both drives. The backup 386 system is all configured, but I need to buy 4 to 16 megs of memory in a pair of 30 pin SIMMs, either two 2, two 4, or two 8. Then the backup 386 system should function normally. I have installed my old sound card and 28,800 modem in it. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . My index did very good today considering the market was down quite a bit. I am tired and off to bed. I will upgrade the backup 386 memory when I have the funds and find it. CIO

Note:<888> 1/21/98 Wednesday 5:05 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . CIO

Note:<888> 1/21/98 Wednesday 3:55 A.M. EST: Posted NASA 89 Shuttle page at mrscott.com/nasa.htm and mrscott.com/nasa-89.htm for your space viewing pleasure. CIO

Note:<888> 1/21/98 Wednesday 3:15 A.M. EST: Microsoft Second Quarter 1998 Earnings Release. CIO

Note:<888> 1/21/98 Wednesday 2:10 A.M. EST:IBM announces fourth quarter, full-year 1997 results; revenues, earnings per share were records in 1 were released. I found a new link that I find interesting for future reference in case I decide to take up Oceanography Harbor Branch Oceanographic Institution, Inc. which is near my family. Yesterday I got up and toured the five local thrift shops mrscott.com/thrift.htm . I did not purchase anything. I stopped by the Mobil quick lube and they determined the fact that putting 10 - 30 oil in the car instead of 10 - 40 causes the oil pressure light to come on occasionally. I drove around Tod's Point and enjoyed the view. I noticed one of the middle schools on the way back had 50 crows on the yard in front of it. I drove down by the water on Steamboat Road and noticed one of the harbor houses had 50 geese parked on their front lawn. I suppose that IBM family has a major goose problem. I stopped by the library and the parking lot was busy. I checked out "Scuba" by Lloyd Bridges and "Free Willy II". I received a call from a friend and he is back from Crested Butte, Colorado. He said it was very festive out there in the Rockies with lots of snow. Back to surfing the net. Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was up yesterday. CIO

Note:<888> 1/20/98 Tuesday 5:10 A.M. EST: I was up at 1 A.M.. I am having a quiet morning surfing the internet. I noticed at the Grand Union yesterday that Purdue boneless chicken breasts are $2.99 a pound, and Tony's frozen pizza is $2.50. Not much else to report. CIO

Note:<888> 1/19/98 Monday 5:30 A.M. EST: I updated mrscott.com/bmnow.htm bookmarks. Enjoy surfing the net. CIO

Note:<888> 1/19/98 Monday 4:00 A.M. EST: I was up at midnight. I went out for a short drive. Greenwich is quiet. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants and did laundry. I made mrscott.com/icetea.htm last night. I am pretty much maintaining a midnight to noon routine. I am sleeping a bit more recently, but all is pretty much quiet around here. I will surf the net this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 1/31/98 Saturday 6:30 P.M. EST: Today I was up at 9 A.M. I dropped off my old IBM 4240 Laser Printer with downloadable fonts at the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I went over to the computer fair in White Plains which was $5 too get in. I purchased Dataswitch box with one parallel input and four parallel outputs ABCD for $11. I bought four 1 meg memory chips for my 386 which still did not work. I think the machine is parity memory. The four 1 meg chips were $2 apiece. I bought a used IBM 160 meg hard drive from some Russians for $10. I noticed that one can buy a new system board and processor for about $150 to $300 depending on the type system. I picked up a serial gender changer male to male at Radio Shack in Port Chester to use with the cabling on the Dataswitch box. I stopped by in Odd Job in Port Chester and bought a video tape rewinder for $4. I noticed at Staples they sell two 16 meg memory chips for $40 for both which was comparable to the computer fair. I installed the Dataswitch box with the three printers on LPT2 swichable A for NEC LC800 Laser Printer, B for HP LaserJet 500+, C for IBM PS/1. Now I can switch on different printers from the computer and run them. I don't print that much, but it is a useful setup. I will save the four 1 meg memory chips for other jobs. Basically I did not see that much difference in price in the computer fair and computer stores, although they two have a wide variety of motherboards, processors, and other accessories. However, it is difficult to return items. I found out I can get a P5 processor to upgrade my system for $44, but they were sold out of them. I am going out to Thataway for dinner tonight I think. CIO

Note:<888> 1/30/98 Friday 11:55 P.M. EST: If you like betting on the horses, try Interbets Horse Racing Information and Legal Betting from OTB. Today I went downtown about 11:30 A.M.. I purchased the HP LaserJet 500+ printer at the hospital thrift shop for $20. I had a guest stop by at 12:30 who helped me carry the printer up. I chatted with my guest and he convinced me to get rid of two plants I put in the community room. I discarded the red plastic Coca Cola trays, and I donated the 80 years old RCA radio and some old sports jackets to the hospital thrift shop. Since my guest is an equine enthusiast, I gave him a pair of horse pictures. I then went downtown after he left and bought a 12 pack of Surge and Diet Coke for $2 apiece at CVS and 200 cough drops. I stopped by the library and read the paper. I then returned home. I spent considerable time to no avail trying to install a third LPT 3 port, but I did not have the instructions for the card. I installed the LaserJet printer on a pass through LPT 1 on my Colorado backup. I can switch the cord for the IBM PS/1 envelope printer. One has to turn on the tape drive for the LPT 1 to activate. I updated Scott's index at mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I was so busy I did not have time to watch Bill Gates interview. I am off for a brief drive and might stop by at the computer show mentioned previously in White Plains tomorrow. CIO

Note:<888> 1/30/98 Friday 2:00 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Off to dreamland. Net is fast after midnight, but occasionally vampires need to get a little day time activity. CIO

Note:<888> 1/29/98 Thursday 10:45 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm ,it was a good day for the stock market. Scott's Index is at its highest point since I started it last September. I have a feeling with Microsoft's stock price at its present point <mailto:billg@microsoft.com> Bill Gates is now the world's richest man. If you email him ask him to invest in some newer computer equipment for me. www.marketpro.com MarketPro is having a computer fair at the White Plains, New York Westchester County Center on Saturday January 31, 1998 from 9:30 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. . I would imagine one could get some value on computer supplies there. I noticed at www.auction.com that a 200 MHZ Cyrix processor and motherboard is going for $139. I also found an interesting download from Microsoft to prevent outsiders from pinging one's site at New Teardrop-like TCP/IP Denial of Service Program which might be useful if you have a hacker bothering your ISP or server. Today I was up at 10 A.M. after fiddling with a discarded 386 until 3 A.M.. I did manage to salvage 6 memory SIMMs from it, which might be useful in restoring an older system in the future. I had a friend stop by. We went out to Tod's Point which is open to the general public this time of year. We walked around out to the far side and back which is about a three mile walk which is on this warm day was enjoyable. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I happened to notice that the new Helmsley wing at the Greenwich Hospital is just about enclosed. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital thrift shop. They have a HP Laser printer with Microsoft downloadable fonts. It is a large model, but would be a good machine if one did not have one, although servicing it might be expensive. I noticed most everything is half price. They have four two drawer file cabinets. Lots of new merchandise has been put out. I drove down by the water on Steamboat Road and chatted with one of my former neighbors. I noticed the two swans swimming on the harbor. I stopped by the Arnold Bakers Factory Store and bought two loaves of Healthnut bread for $1.29 apiece and a Entenmann's cheese cake for $1.89. Lots of other bake goods there. I returned home and served my guest ham, broccoli and Idaho potato for dinner. After he left I went downtown and put $12.45 gasoline at the Exxon station in the car. I stopped by the library and read Byte magazine. I went for a walk downtown. Quite a few people were out and about town. The "Titanic" is still playing at the train station movie theatre. I went by the Grand Union and bought four Idaho potatoes for 25 cents apiece, 2 boxes frozen peas for 65 cents apiece, 2 frozen Spinach for 50 cents apiece, and one box frozen broccoli for $1, one Ello frozen pizza for $1.69, one box Grand Union raisin bran for $2.19, one half gallon 2 percent milk for $1.84. I then stopped by Dunkin Donuts and bought a pound of Hasslenut coffee beans for $6.99. I mixed all my coffee beans together when I got home. I am now making mrscott.com/icetea.htm for another week. I will do a little net surfing before retiring this evening. All in all a good day. CIO

Note:<888> 1/28/98 Wednesday 2:00 P.M. EST: I updated bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Below is a copy of a letter I email to my local congressman Christopher Shays about the energy situation in my building. His email address is <mailto:rep.shays@mail.house.gov> . Below is the text of letter. CIO

Michael Louis Scott
Apt. # 206, 71 Vinci Drive
Greenwich, Connecticut 06830
Telephone: 203-531-6754
Email: mikescott@ibm.net
<http://mrscott.com/>
<http://www.rcch.com/hotlist/scotlist.htm>
January 28, 1998

Representative Christopher Shays
Fourth District
10 Middle St.
Bridgeport, Connecticut 06604

Dear Mr. Shays,

I had the good fortune of meeting you in your office in Washington D.C. during George Bush's inaugural. I attended since I am a long time Greenwich republican and my mother is a neighbor and friend of the Bushs in Kennebunkport, Maine.

Since I live off of SSI in Greenwich Public Housing at 71 Vinci Drive, my general attitude is not to make waves. However after seven years here, a year and a half ago, the Greenwich Housing Authority started charging us for our electricity which includes our electric heat which in my case averages over $150 a month and much more for my neighbors. Moreover, because the Greenwich Housing Authority gave us a $91 rent reduction, my Connecticut State Aid of $123 a month was completely eliminated. The net result I had a net loss of about $2,000 a year having to pay close to $2,000 a year in electric heat and not having any state subsidy.

I initially spoke with Diana Washington a year and a half ago in your office, and she said to contact legal aid which also had its budget reduced and could do nothing. Tom Crawford at the Greenwich Housing Authority refuses to return my phone calls. I contacted the White House Secret Service agency about contacting the president and they gave me the number of the White House Secret Service intelligence office, 1-202-435-5000; and they said they would look into the matter.

Basically I along with my fellow neighbors can not afford to pay the high electricity bills for electric heat which we are now responsible for paying. Some of my neighbors have close to $500 a month electric bills. I have reduced the heat and am paying an average of about $160 a month. Still I do not have any money from the government to pay this high electric bill, and all I receive is $492 SSI.

My present rent is $56 a month. Since for the first seven years the electricity was included with the subsidized rent of $156, I would like for the Federal government to pay for our electric heat like they did for the first seven years. I don't think it is fair for elderly and disabled people to go without heat during the winter. The town of Greenwich and the Greenwich Housing Authority has received over $30 million from the Federal Government for other Housing Authority projects, but no one seems to think we need heat when all the other projects have the heat included in the rent.

Please look into this matter. In other matters I have been keeping busy on the internet as you can see from my homepage at "mrscott.com". I hope you are able to restore the subsidized heat to our building.

Yours Truly,

Michael Louis Scott

Note:<888> 1/27/98 Tuesday 5:00 P.M. EST: CWSApps - 32-bit Internet Utilities Craig's Connect Monitor, although one would have to activate it every time one starts their TCP/IP connection to the internet would provide a log of internet connect time. I have been running about 140 hours average a month online time with ibm.net, so I will have to cut back my internet time about 40 to 45 hours a month. I don't really care since I have not been making any money off the internet and this is a volunteer project. I will simply get more rest and relaxation and time for more enjoyable pastimes. I updated my Scott's Index today mrscott.com/scopor01.htm and on a good day IBM stock was down, so I would dare say the stock market thinks IBM has made a foolish decision to limit internet access to 100 hours a month. For full time users they use over 160 hours a month. They should have limited it too 200 hours a month. As many locals know IBM is frequently out of touch with reality. I suggest upper management review and change this network access time limitation decision. CIO

Note:<888> 1/27/98 Tuesday 3:45 P.M. EST: Possible solution DOWNLOAD.COM -- InternetMeter Inlay for monitoring online time for ibm.net users who are restricted to 100 hours usage per month coming this April. I know it has monthly stats in the web browser, but when on line with other Winsock programs, I am not sure they are included. CIO

Note:<888> 1/27/98 Tuesday 2:45 P.M. EST: IBM Internet Connection Services announced that it is limiting internet use to its customers to 100 a month then charging $1.95 an hour for usage after that. I don't know how much time I use at the moment, but if I need more time I will probably be switching to cablevision optic fibers once their cable modem access is offered in this area. I also updated bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . CIO

Note:<888> 1/26/98 Monday 10:45 P.M. EST: I have been enjoying some quiet time locally watching Sea Gulls. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Kraus Honey Maple ham at the Grand Union this week is $3.59. No comments on the national news situation, but I think it is all propaganda written by a poor script writer to divert the public's attention from more important matters. CIO

Note:<888> 2/07/98 Saturday 6:15 A.M. EST: I was up all night again, mostly tweaking the system. I now have 125 megs free with a 33 meg swapper at the beginning of the optimized hard drive. The hard disk does cache when I use the web browser. The system overall is much more responsive. I add a MS Internet Explorer Fix Internet Explorer Security MK Overrun. I updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I am bushed but with the help of Norton Utilities 30 day demo I have got my system up to snuff. I am off to dreamland. I also installed www.thedj.com , I recommend not installing the new beta 3.02 since it messed up my sound files, and I reinstalled the sound drivers, however version 2.2 works fine. CIO

Note:<888> 2/06/98 Friday 6:15 P.M. EST: Last night and morning I did system maintenance. I downloaded the Norton Uninstall Deluxe and freed up ten megs of disk space and then deleted it. It is a tricky program to use, and one could delete critical files if not careful. I worked with the Norton Utilities more. I have freed up about 120 megs of disk space all together, thus with the 80 meg Norton Utilities I have 140 megs disk space including the swapper or about 120 megs usable space free. I might be able to free up more, which I will work on next. Greenwich was warmer about 45 degrees today. The library was quiet. Lots of kids were roaming around on this warmer day. Scott's Index portfolio was up about $5,000 today, see mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It is almost at the $1,100,000 threshold which would be about a $85,000 gain since September for a total of about 17 % gain yearly which is pretty dang good for the stock market. Still one has to watch the stock market, lots of people have lost their shirt in it over the years. Enough "Constant Comment" from Greenwich, Connecticut. CIO

Note:<888> 2/05/98 Thursday 10:00 P.M. EST: Happy 87th Birthday to Ronald Reagan and our Best to Nancy see his Presidential Library. I was up until noon today. I have my system going great with the Norton Utilities. Still at this time of night I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm. I deleted the three Volcano movies, and sound files from my hard drive. Norton Utilities found 460 errors in my registry it repaired. It also deleted about 80 megs of cache, temporary, and extraneous files. It set my swapper at the beginning of the drive, and optimized my drive. I placed command.com, config.sys, himem.sys, and autoexec.bat as files first and c:\windows and c:\netgold1 "Netscape 3.04" as the two starting folders. I deactivated the Norton Crash Guard, Norton Speed Start, and Norton Protected Recycle Bin to have more system resources when my 16 meg ram 486 DX 120 mhz system starts. The system information files say my system is half as fast as a Pentium 133 which is pretty good. I notice tonight while reading the computer press, one can buy a PC 266 mhz AMD processor and motherboard for about $350, of course I would have to upgrade my case and power supply for about $100, not to mention I would need to spend about $160 on 64 megs memory, $60 for 24X Cdrom player, and $150 to $300 for 3.5 G to 8 G hard drive, thus it would be close to $1,000 to upgrade my system to what I would like with parts, and realistically one can get a Pentium 166 system with everything for about $800 with warranty, so it is hard to tell whether it would be worth buying the parts or whole system with warranty. Needless to say my system is running fine now. It is the net that is slow in the daytime and evening. It is cold and rainy here. There is ice on the trees slightly north of here. Bargains at the Grand Union this week, Red Peppers 99 cents a pound, Broccoli 99 cents a head, Rib Eye Steaks $3.99 a pound, Grand Union 96 ounce containers of fresh orange juice $3.19 and Tony's frozen pizzas are up to $3.39. Lots of other bargains at our favorite local market. I only had about five hours sleep today, so I am not sure how long I will make it up this morning. I stopped by the library this evening and read the computer press, and Lou Gerstner is featured in an article in InfoWorld which is interesting reading. For $8.99 a pound I bought a pound of Grand Union gourmet coffee beans mixing Hasslenut Vanilla, Hasslenut Cinnamon, and Kailua Flavored beans into my existing mixture. One day I will have to try a mixture of all the Starbucks blends together. Back to the net once it speeds up. I made a full backup this evening when I got up. CIO

Note:<888> 2/05/98 Thursday 8:25 A.M. EST: I downloaded ZDNet Norton Utilities for Windows 95, fully functional 30 day trial, works great!, It is a 29 meg fully functional download good for 30 days. I have spent the early morning hours tweaking my system with the Utilities. I freed up lots of disk space, optimized and repaired the registry, and optimized the hard disk. Lots of great tools in the Norton Utilities. I would recommend buying it, but if you can't afford download it and tweak your system for 30 days. Thanks to Peter Norton. It is available from Symantec Corporation also. CIO

Note:<888> 2/04/98 Wednesday 7:10 P.M. EST: Today went out at 4 P.M.. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop. I bought a bottle of CVS mouthwash for $3.50. I drove down by the water and checked out the weather. I went by Egghead and bought a surge suppressor strip for $4. I went by Staples and picked up a ream of copy paper for $3.15. I picked up three packs of buy two get one free of Merit Lights for $16.20. Hopefully I will be able to keep cutting back on smoking. Last month I spent $35 on cigarettes. I updated Scott's Index, which was up a bit today mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I am roasting a Purdue chicken for dinner which should be ready in 45 minutes. I will surf the net this evening. CIO

Note:<888> 2/04/98 Wednesday 2:45 A.M. EST: I just posted a Winter Olympics

Directory mrscott.com/olympics.htm , be there in spirit. CIO

Note:<888> 2/04/98 Wednesday 1:15 A.M. EST: I posted a text file Text File of Scott's Random Notes from start June 1997 thru January 1998 about 151 pages or 457,176 bytes , so that one can print out or review all of Scott's Random Notes since I started posting them. I was able to do it by "selecting all text" in each Note's web page, with my web browser and "copying" it and then "pasting" it to the WordPerfect 6.0 Word processor in one long file, and saving it as an ASCII DOS text file. I also printed out the entire file with the HP 500+ printer with Microsoft Font Cartridge in about a half hour for 151 pages, setting the word processor for Adobe Roman Font 12 which the Microsoft Font Cartridge on the HP 500+ accepts, pretty good trick. Unless you have a lot of paper and toner cartridge life to use, I advise reading the files in Scott's Previous Random Notes, instead of printing out the text file. Back to surfing the net. CIO

Note:<888> 2/03/98 Tuesday 10:50 P.M. EST: Last night I surfed the net. It was slow and I finally figured out that my TCP and Modem software were corrupted. I reinstalled the modem with my special init string in the setup. I also reinstalled the Microsoft DUN 1.2 and Winsock upgrade. I deinstalled the active desktop of Internet Explorer 4.0 to save on memory. I got up at noon today missing my noon appointment since the alarm clock did not go off. I surfed the net. I installed the Adobe fonts from Win 3.1 that go with my HP Microsoft Fonts Cartridge into my Win95 fonts file. Now I have about four fonts that download instantly with the HP 500+ printer when I run WordPerfect 6.0. If I ever need to print out a lot of text I am setup. After dinner this evening, I went out for a short walk. I filled up the car with $10.85 of premium at the Exxon gasoline station. Exxon premium is $1.53 a gallon. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought another three 12 packs of Marcal toilet paper for $2.99 all together on sale, and a box of Grand Union raisin bran for $2.19. I returned home and filed this most interesting report. It is quiet out tonight as is the status quo for this time of year. Scott's Index is at an all time high up over $10,000, look at mrscott.com/scopor01.htm .CIO

Note:<888> 2/03/98 Tuesday 12:30 A.M. EST: I wrote mother a letter this evening. I fiddled with the HP500+ printer drivers, the Microsoft font cartridge won't work with WordPerfect. The printer is about 10 years old. It prints out True Type fonts fine at the expected speed. I only recognized two Adobe fonts that print instantly Courier 12 and Line 16. I might try to find some others, but I think that is the only fast fonts it will work with. If I put Microsoft Word on it would work with the printer font cartridge. It is fine as is for now, since I don't really print that much. I noticed today that my 80 year old RCA radio at the Hospital thrift shop is $35. The IBM, Laser 4120 printer I gave them is postscript downloadable. It needs a new $70 cleaning cartridge. They are trying to sell it for $75. I put the memory card back with it, since the shop had separated them. They also have an older IBM PS/1 486/SX computer with 2 megs of memory and 80 meg hard drive with monitor and accessories for $75 there. I suspect more used equipment will be showing up there, as people upgrade and need a tax write off for what they donate. I went out to mail my letter and it is slow downtown on Monday night. Bargains this week at the Grand Union galore. Marcal is practically giving away its products. Three 12 packs of toilet paper are $3 all together, 400 napkins package is 99 cents, 4 boxes tissue are $2, three paper towels are $1. Also Purdue roasting chicken is 79 cents a pound, cans of mandarin oranges or mushrooms are 3 for $1. Basically I stocked up. I will do a little net work this evening and check my font situation. However, it is really not important. Hopefully the net will be faster. I have a 3 P.M. appointment tomorrow and the rest of the week free to be up at night. Back to surfing the net. CIO

Note:<888> 2/02/98 Monday 6:10 P.M. EST: Today I paid my bills, and had a quiet afternoon doing a little reading at the local library. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm , it was a good day for the market. Bill Gates wealth has gone up a bit Bill Gates Personal Wealth Clock . CIO

Note:<888> 2/02/98 Monday 5:00 A.M. EST:I updated the "Government, United States of America" category mrscott.com/026.htm ,and mrscott.com/u2.htm . I also added a few links to bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . To update the directory just save those two pages. Have a good "Ground Hog's Holiday". CIO

Note:<888> 2/01/98 Sunday 11:15 P.M. EST: Today I was up at noon and chatted with family members on MCI's five cents a minute plan on Sunday for long distance. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants. I went out at 4 P.M. . I stopped by the Bruce Museum. They have a new exhibit there on very nice paintings. I was looking for coasters in the gifts shop. I stopped by the Bush Holley house, and I found a nice set of six coasters with Christmas trees on them for $7.50 half price. I noticed a television crew leaving the place. I told the delightful young gal at the museum about the Scott family history around the area. I stopped by Stables in Old Greenwich looking for a telephone battery for my old GE portable but did not have one. The memory I mentioned yesterday is $40 for two 8 megs making 16 megs. I went by Egghead which is going out of business at the end of this month. All hardware is 10% off, software is 20% off, and accessories are 30% off. I stopped by Caldor's and bought a shower curtain liner for $3.50 and a new GE 25 channel remote portable telephone with 25 channels for $30 plus tax down from $50. I returned home and installed the shower curtain liner. I started doing my laundry. I installed the GE telephone which takes 12 hours for the battery to charge up. I put it by the computer which is next to my couch potato couch. I finished the laundry. The battery for the old GE portable would have been $12 at Radio Shack, so after dinner I dropped it by the hospital thrift shop along with my old "gum ball" machine. I went downtown and had my trusty thermos of coffee with me and drank it front of the senior center. I chatted with a local representative that advertises the University of Alabama, and he told me the Darien library has the internet. I walked around the bottom of Greenwich Avenue, and then went to the Grand Union. I chatted with a nice young Danish couple there about Danish people I have met. I bought a 12 pack of Pepsi for $2, a half gallon of 2% percent milk, a Tony's frozen pizza, and five pound bag of sugar. I returned home and updated this page and will do a little net surfing. CIO

Note:<888> 2/14/98 Saturday 9:40 A.M. EST: I updated the Recent bookmarks file mrscott.com/bmnow.htm with a lot of links from IBM, Lotus www.lotus.com which hopefully at the end of the month I will include in the IBM Long list mrscott.com/ibm01.htm . CIO

Note:<888> 2/14/98 Saturday 6:20 A.M. EST: Happy Valentine's Day. I went to bed last night at 5 P.M. and got at midnight. I did some system maintenance. I deleted the Norton Utilities demo to free up hard disk space. I now have 170 megs free plus a 33 meg swapper. I had one minor annoyance deleting the Norton demo when I rebooted the registry gave an error message that it was looking for "symevnt.386" in the c:\program_files\symantec\ directory an gave the error message and finished booting up. I restored the files in the Symantec directory and the system booted normally. However, it appears that Norton is leaving what I believe is its "events" program installing and running after a complete uninstall. I could not find the file in the registry to delete it either. I also updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I will probably do a little surfing this A.M. and then go out in the morning. I have to do some car repairs next week like getting my exhaust resonator repaired, new tires, battery, and replace the fuel filter, so Tuesday after the President's holiday I hopefully will be on a day schedule to make the rounds of the repair garages and stores. I have to keep the old Volvo running. Have a Happy Valentine's Day. CIO

Note:<888> 2/13/98 Friday 2:30 P.M. EST: I went out at 8:00 A.M. after doing some maintenance on my system. I stopped by the Hospital thrift shop and bought a ten year old IBM graphics printer for a $1 for a friend who said they needed one. I drove by the Exxon station and filled up the tank with $11 gasoline. I then went to Darien to the Connecticut Department of Motor Vehicles Connecticut Department of Motor Vehicles for my annual emissions test on my 21 year old Volvo. Since I have an older car it was $10, but for newer cars it is $20. I passed with flying colors and there was no wait at 9 A.M. in the morning. I then returned to Greenwich and Egghead was not open yet, but their going out of business sign advertised 25% to 50% percent discounts on the remainder of their inventory. I went by the Old Greenwich Thrift shop and bought a nice complete set of 8 place settings of orange Royal Dalton china made in Japan for $12. I also picked up a coffee thermos for a $1 with Olin TQM written on it. I went out to Tod's Point and it was quite busy but chilly. I next headed to the Greenwich Library which is very busy with construction foundation pouring and finishing also working on the parking garage. They seem to be making good progress on the foundation pouring and lots of trucks are there. I chatted with library security about the weather. I read the computer press and said hello to a German pilot from the area. I returned home and unpacked the china and packed up the old china. I washed the new china and put it in the cupboard. I checked out the IBM printer, but I am not sure if my friend will find it useful since it is the old feeder carriage model and does not take regular sheet paper. It works fine though and came with parallel cable. I next tried to take a nap before receiving a phone call, so I decided to post this message before going to my 4 P.M. appointment. It is a nice day in Greenwich. I am expecting one or two guests this evening. CIO

Note:<888> 2/13/98 Friday 5:50 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I deinstalled and reinstalled my Network system and my

TCP/IP and dialer and MS Dun Upgrade. Now my system does not disconnect from the ISP like it has for the last week. System is working fine and tweaked to perfection. I need to shower and will go out this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 2/13/98 Friday 2:50 A.M. EST: Updated Scott's Index www.mikescot.net/scopor01.htm . Taking time off for some minor system maintenance this morning. I'll probably be out in the A.M.. CIO

Note:<888> 2/12/98 Thursday 12:00 P.M. EST: I updated the download file mrscott.com/download.htm . It now only has 55,000 links since I eliminated about 1425 Microsoft bad links, and 1650 IBM bad links. The IBM, Microsoft, and Volcanoes files have been updated in this download. CIO

Note:<888> 2/12/98 Thursday 10:30 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm with links from Scott's daily work list www.mikecott.net/scotwork.htm . Now it is time to sign off. The net is going fast this morning, and it feels like it is nice outside, but I'm off to bed after a beer. CIO

Note:<888> 2/12/98 Thursday 9:20 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm with a few links and the Volcano links that were deleted that I updated. Still tired. CIO

Note:<888> 2/12/98 Thursday 7:45 A.M. EST: Good news I found a program from down under in Australia Link Sweeper, that enables one to scan a bookmark and move out all the broken links that don't work. I used it on three key files and about 25% of the links were broken, Microsoft mrscott.com/075.htm , IBM Long List mrscott.com/ibm01.htm , and Volcanoes mrscott.com/058.htm to delete all the broken links. I have updated these files. I did not have time to sift through the list of broken links I have saved to see if any are any good or could be altered, but I think the three key files as they are will be quite useful since they are busy on my server. I am bushed and will log off after updating the files. Have a good day while I sleep. CIO

Note:<888> 2/11/98 Wednesday 10:00 P.M. EST: Today I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop and bought a GMC Delco Jimmy Radio like brand new with tape deck for $7.50 and a book Prince Charles' book a "Vision of Britain" for $2.50. I stopped by downtown and watched the morning commuters. I noticed the monitor of the Christian Science Reading room had a black eye. He was cleaning up all the cigarette butts that people discard on the sidewalks and in the bushes. I had two croissants from St. Moritz in front of the Senior Center. I stopped by the library and said hello to the two regular Burns Security guards. The Greenwich Times was not there. I came home and I received the brochure in the mail from Dell Computer www.dell.com and they have the Pentium 333 mhz computer for $2,500. I slept from noon to 7 P.M.. I then got up and had breakfast I went downtown and it is pouring rain. The parking area below the office park at the Greenwich Train station had about 20 discarded remnants rolls about 5 feet by 10 feet of white carpet up for grabs. I noticed the usual crowd of strollers around town. I updated Scott's Index portfolio mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was up again today about 10 percent in five months. I will surf the net since it is too damp to hang out downtown. CIO

Note:<888> 2/11/98 Wednesday 8:15 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks. mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Off to the Hospital Thrift Shop. CIO

Note:<888> 2/11/98 Wednesday 5:15 A.M. EST: Took a nap until 10:30 P.M. I went out at 11:30 P.M.. It was quiet. I stopped by CVS at the Riverside Plaza and got mother a Valentine's Day card. I also got a half gallon of 2% milk. I purchased a can of Cashews for $2.49, four Deep lighters with dogs on them for $1.79, and a bag of CVS lemon cough drops for $1.99. I noticed a group of thirsty young lads going there for pop. I suppose they were getting off work from McDonald's in Old Greenwich. I noticed when I returned back to town the Greenwich Police in their usual high level of performance were looking for a night prowler. I stopped by the Shell station and bought a three pack of Camel lights buy two get one free for $5.50. I returned home and wrote mom a valentine's message and then made a cup of coffee and went out and mailed the card, and then went down town and drank the coffee out of my trusty thermos . It is very foggy out . I chatted with one of my neighbors on the way out. I stopped by the local police department and told them about my internet directory for DOD. I then went by the Food Emporium and chatted with the skier stocking Gerber baby food about life and purchased one bag each of Bokar, Red Bag, Columbian, and French coffee beans and added them to my Hazelnut blend when I returned home. I now have about six weeks of coffee beans, thus if we have any prolonged night activity around here, I am prepared to stay awake. I have not done much work on the internet this morning. I will try to do a bit. Since I got up later last night I will probably stop by the Hospital Thrift shop at 8:30 this morning unless I get tied up on the net. Greenwich seems quiet as usual and I suppose most people are on a daytime schedule. For those of us trying to cut back and quit smoking, I saw a number from Burroughs Welcome Glaxo pharmaceuticals 1-888-959-STOP for a pharmaceutical prescription one can get from them to quit. After answering the survey they said they would send me the kit. I tend to smoke a bit more when I get frustrated with computer system maintenance, but my system is back up to snuff and functioning properly. CIO

Note:<888> 2/10/98 Tuesday 6:15 P.M. EST: Up at 5 P.M.. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was a good day for the market and IBM. I might watch the Olympics this evening or go to the library and of course surf the net. CIO

Note:<888> 2/10/98 Tuesday 7:25 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Off to dreamland. CIO

Note:<888> 2/10/98 Tuesday 3:45 A.M. EST: Updated DOD directory with a cleaner opening page mrscott.com/dod.htm . Check it out and download if interested. I am not putting the DOD directory into Scott's Internet Hotlist Directory because I feel they are two different areas of specialized interest for diverse computer users. CIO

Note:<888> 2/10/98 Tuesday 1:30 A.M. EST: Went for a quick drive at midnight. It is awfully slow out. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm , obviously the market is no doing much. Either people are at the Olympics or busy down in Florida. My Florida server at mrscott.com ,is busy this morning and I am having trouble uploading the files. I still have the backup server in Ohio at www.rcch.com/hotlist/scotlist.htm and it is working fine. After I upload these changes I will surf the net this A.M.. CIO

Note:<888> 2/09/98 Monday 10:30 P.M. EST: I was up until 9 A.M. this morning and then awoke at 4 P.M. I have put together a new directory for people interest in the U.S. Department of Defense New U.S.A. Department of Defense Downloadable Directory, which has copies of the main DOD military listings, which might be usable in more remote locations. My system is running great with all the tweaking I have been doing. CIO

Note:<888> 2/09/98 Monday 2:45 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm , enjoy surfing the net. CIO

Note:<888> 2/09/98 Monday 12:20 A.M. EST: First things first, the United States Department of Justice is out to lunch telling Microsoft to cripple its Windows 98 operating system by removing the Internet Explorer 4.0. I had an interesting experience, I removed the Internet Explorer 4.0 "Active Desktop" feature, and that caused my TCP/IP connection to constantly disconnect. However, when I restored the "Active Desktop" for IE 4.01 thru Internet Explorer Products Download Add-ons, my TCP/IP internet connection resumed functioning normally without the constant disconnects. Does this mean the DOJ wants us to cripple our systems by removing parts of Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.01. Obviously it is an old fashion shakedown or they're just using negative policy to enhance their position. I wonder if Bill Gates and Hilary Clinton met when they were both in Davos, Switzerland last Sunday. CBS news reported this evening a wealthy individual who is related to the Mellon family and whom I believe happens to have a Pied A Terre in Greenwich, is one of the main contributors to the Republican party to help expose the Democratic party practices in D.C. . I suppose he might consider helping out poor republicans here, before he finances witch hunts elsewhere. One great news report out of the Olympics for me being half Dutch is a Dutchman won the Gold Medal in the Speed Skating. Hooray for Tulip farmers. Today I got up at 6 P.M. which is usual for the New Amsterdam Dutch Night Watch in this neck of the woods. I confirmed with family members in Florida, and they said it was in the 40's in North Florida, which must be a bit chilly. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants while I watched the Olympic events. The Snowboarding is most dramatic and obviously takes years of dedication. About 10 P.M., I went out and bought two big MACS at McDonalds for $2.12 for both. I wolfed them down. I then stopped by the Grand Union for this week's specials. The have lots of buy one get one free items. I bought 2 Aunt Jamima Pan Cake syrups for $2.80 for both, two boxes of Aunt Jamima pancake mix for $2, a box of 30 GU kitchen bags for $2.79, Kraus Spiral Ham for $3.49 a pound for $12.18, two ten pound bags of Idaho potatoes for $2, 2 five pound bags of onions for $2, 2 extra large Kellogg's Corn Flakes for $5, 2 four packs of Bumble Bee chunk light tuna in water for $3.39, and ten packages of Ramen noodles assorted flavors for $1. I also picked up a pack of Marlboro lights for $2.75. The all night operator of our local Shell Service station told me it is rumored that Royal Dutch Shell and Texaco are in merger talks which certainly would create an even larger industrial giant. I am doing two loads of laundry right now and having a cup of coffee. I will then surf the net for the rest of the morning. CIO

Note:<888> 2/08/98 Sunday 8:00 A.M. EST: I updated the Winter Olympics mrscott.com/olympics.htm page with links I found. I tested a few programs this morning and did some minor tweaking. I am bushed. Have a good day. CIO

Note:<888> 2/08/98 Sunday 12:25 A.M. EST: I was up at 4 P.M. yesterday. I had a guest come down. We went for a drive and saw a wrecked black Mercedes by the Mianus River bridge. We stopped by McDonalds across from the Mercedes dealer where they have two "Big Macs" for $2 for both. We came back here and watched CBS's Olympic coverage from Japan until 11 P.M. I guess the best time to watch Olympic coverage is from 5 P.M. to 11 P.M. our time. I will do a little web surfing this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 2/20/98 Friday 10:40 P.M. EST: Today I got up around noon. I had ham and scrambled eggs and English muffins with orange juice and coffee with 2 percent milk and nutrasweet for breakfast. I called up the electric company and my bill is paid up. They said my monthly bill average would now be $130. I called Chris Shays office about the electricity and they were gone for the day. I was told by Connecticut Light and Power that Massachusetts has a hydroelectric facility where they use the excess electricity at night to pump the water in the reservoir upstream at night to run it down in the daytime when power is needed. I told them that the Russians were doing that in the 1920s and that Nord Hydro does that in Norway also. I went out and stopped by the Mews thrift shop and then the Hospital thrift shop then ELDC thrift shop and then St. Catherine's thrift shop. I also stopped by Peabody's garage looking for a low mileage used car for a friend. I went by the Hyatt Hotel and withdrew $20 from the money machine and stopped by Egghead. I was told by one of the Egghead salesman who had met Bill Gates' that he is 5 foot 6 inches tall as published in one of his earlier biographies and he is personally quite frugal. I stopped by Caldor's and purchased 2 quarts of Mobil Oil for $1 apiece, a Revlon cushioned brush for $4, and two six packs of ICB root beer from Dallas, Texas for $1.79 a six pack. If one likes frosted root beer, I recommend keeping frozen mugs in the freezer to pour the chilled root beer into, of course one could do that with any other beverage. I then stopped by McDonalds' in Old Greenwich and had two big Macs for $2.12. I drove back into town to the library. I checked out "Edward and Mrs. Simpson" videotape and read the local newspaper. When I returned home I adjusted the Water Pik I repaired and it works fine. Caldor's wanted $45 for a new Water Pik. Basically the green tubing inside my older model wore out and leaked. I noticed that the green tubing accumulates a lot of bacteria and scum. If Water Pik is still using the same setup in their newer models they should make it more sanitary. I used a black 5/16 inch automotive tubing for the repair and adjusted the pressure dial for higher power. A guest stopped by so we watched the first half of the video. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I noticed Dell computer is doing well. I was wondering if Michael Dell was the fellow I chatted with selling computer parts out of the back of his car at the Knights of Columbus flea market nine years ago. I don't quite remember what I said back then, but perhaps it was him. IBM belatedly is going to start more marketing over the internet, which is about time. I guess they have been worried about upsetting their established OEMs. The car is running fine with the new repairs. It starts efficiently. I guess the fuel filter was interfering with it not starting rapidly. The Greenwich Times reported that President Clinton is making an appearance with Hollywood types up in Westport, Connecticut. I guess he needs their money wherever they really get it from. God only knows the Hollywood types are tied of with some shady financial groups. Let's hope the drug cartel folks are not backing them, perhaps it is just old Roosevelt and Dupont money poaching in this area. However, I believe the dean of Middlebury college former wife has lived in that area, so perhaps she is backing the Democrats to get back at her Republican husband. That is why I prefer to remain the Swiss Chard Guard in this area. Perhaps they all should take up new pastimes like needlepoint or crafts if they are frustrated with political intrigue. It basically comes down to the fact that they are trying to recreate their television realities in their isolated environments. Anyway the kids seem to be having a bit of fun on vacation and lets hope they have more of a sense of humor. Also I replaced one of the broken knobs on a closet door. I will probably do a small bit of web surfing before going out for Orange Juice which is 3 Tropicana half gallons for $5 at the Grand Union this week. CIO

Note:<888> 2/20/98 Friday 4:40 A.M. EST: I noticed that two of the link copies in the DOD Air Force page mrscott.com/dod.htm did not work, so I was able to correct the problem. There was some mysterious coding problem in the mrscott.com/airforca.htm page. I surf the net a bit this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 2/20/98 Friday 1:15 A.M. EST: Yesterday I got up about 2 P.M. and listened a bit to tech broadcasts while I had breakfast. I went downtown and stopped by the library. I took a walk on Greenwich Avenue and chatted with a few people I had not seen in a while. I came home for dinner. I repaired a water pik by adjusting it and installing a clean feeder tube. It works pretty well. I moved the computer in the bedroom to the right side of the desk and put the IBM selectric typewriter on the center of the desk. I made a page mrscott.com/scottdod.htm which can be used with both the DOD and Scott's Directory in the same directory location. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm. Greenwich seemed the same as usual. It is still cool and damp. The car is running fine. It was a good day I did not spend any money except for $10.80 for smokes. I need to look into the Glaxo "Zyban" pills for quitting smoking. Will try to catch up on a little work this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 2/19/98 Thursday 6:30 A.M. EST: Up all night back on a night schedule. I have been up all night trying to figure out why I keep getting disconnected from IBM.net frequently particularly when I use a Real Audio program. I basically figured out the my customized init string in the Advanced Property setting of the Modem configuration was interfering with the connection. It had worked successfully since before Christmas. I tried the Logicode init string, and the IBM init string for U.S. Robotics 3 Com X2, and it still disconnected, I finally deleted the init string completely and the MS Dialer and the IBM dialer both worked successfully without disconnecting particularly to a Real Audio file. I theorize that IBM.net made some sort of change in its ISP to cause this to happen. Now I get a 48,000 baud connect message instead of 115,200 however speed of usage seems pretty much the same. I also reinstalled RealAudio 5.0 since when I installed theDJ beta I might have messed up RealAudio 5.0 even after I had uninstalled theDJ beta. The system seems to be running smoothly, but I am a little burned out after being awake for close to 23 hours on a busy schedule. Time for shut eye. Enjoy your daytime net surfing. The local entrepreneurs won't have my pockets to pick when I am on a night schedule. Hope you all have a nice day. Remember to look at mrscott.com/scotwork.htm for what I normally work on and mrscott.com/stats.htm to see how well my Florida site is performing which should be much the same on the unmonitored site in Ohio. I'm trying to behave like a Swedish or Swiss neutral so don't bring me down with politics. I advise those who are discontent with the world to try meditation, it seems to work for quite a few responsible people or just take a nap and try day dreaming. Enjoy yourselves. Got to remember to take the Tylenol. CIAO, CIO

Note:<888> 2/18/98 Wednesday 11:40 P.M. EST: Today was a busy day for me. I was up at 4 A.M. and had breakfast and went back to bed until 8 A.M.. I signed my yearly lease at 9:30 A.M.. I then took my 21 year old Volvo to Midas muffler down the road. They were not busy since the kids are out of school and lots of people are away. I got an estimate of $362.44 for having the Catalytic Converter replaced and for having the fuel filter replaced. The Catalytic converter was leaking and about to go. I decided to have the work done, so they started and I went for a walk. I stopped by the Hospital thrift shop and said hello. I then went to Putnam Trust Bank of New York and got a money order for $362.44 for Midas' repairs. I normally don't carry large amounts of cash and though it would be safer to use a money order. I then went to the library and read two computer newsweeklies. I paid my respects to some regular internet users and the Burns security guard. I then walked back to Midas and stopped by the Fashion Light center and picked up two 15 watt frosted candelabra bulbs for $2.70. I returned to Midas and they were still working on the car. They had to install a pipe kit to hold the Catalytic Converter which meant welding and fitting. I went to McDonalds' next door for two big Macs for $2.12. I then returned to Midas and my car was ready shortly there after. The total Catalytic Converter repair was $274.47 plus tax. I then went over to Stamford to go to Sears for a new battery. Unfortunately Sears is no longer there anymore and the Ridgeway Center has been completely redone with many new stores. I then stopped by the Goodwill Thrift store in Stamford and bought a set of 6 Chinese demitasse cups and saucers for $4.24. I noticed they had some very old computer equipment for sale there at what I though were high prices. I then went back to Greenwich and stopped by the ELDC thrift shop and while parked there check under the hood and body of my car on the repairs that had been made. I noticed they had forgotten to install the fuel filter I had paid for. I returned to Midas and they quickly ordered the fuel filter from NAPA in Stamford. After an hour it was installed and I was back on the road. The fuel filter replacement was $67.45 plus tax which I had already paid for. I read the Greenwich Times while waiting there and noticed the Greenwich police had identified the dinner time bandit and were looking for him. I also read two PC Magazines while there. I then went to Exxon for $12.25 in gasoline. Premium is down to $1.49 a gallon. I inquired about the price of a battery and they said it was

$84.75, so I went over to the money machine at Putnam Trust and withdrew the funds for a new battery. I purchased a Deka maintenance free battery with five year warranty. Exxon wanted $18.95 to install the battery, so I decided to do it myself. I returned home and it took two hours and a half to install the battery. Complication as usual on an older car. The hold down clamp was not attached on the old battery. I finally freed up the rusted bolt on it with a floating nut on the invisible back side. I broke a 12 mm socket trying to loosen it. One of my neighbors consoled me on the effort. I finally after installing the new battery and securing it with the hold down clamp noticed the cables were not long enough, since the original battery had its terminals in the center, and the new batter had its terminals in the front side. It I reversed the new battery one of the cables would not reach. I thus loosened the hold down clamp, and push the battery as close to the cables as possible. I then stretched the cables a little further by loosening a holder clamp. I finally was able to secure both cables on both terminals and clamp down the battery. I stored my tools and cleaned my dirty hands which received one cut and were very arthritic. I tested the car and all was well with the new battery. I then went upstairs and cleaned my hands. I returned the old battery to Exxon for trade-in. I drove down Greenwich Avenue, and saw quite a few young people floating around with the holiday. I returned home and had ham, chicken, and potato for dinner and then updated my site and filed this report. I also updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . The Tylenol is helping with the arthritis in this cold damp weather doing all these chores. Tomorrow should be more of a normal routine. I decided not to have the tires done, since I probably have at least six months tread left on them. I thus spent funds that I might have used for upgrading my computer system on automobile maintenance which is important particularly when driving an older vehicle. Off to bed. CIO

Note:<888> 2/17/98 Tuesday 7:00 P.M. EST: Updated Scott's Index, mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Four the last three days I have been cleaning house, and doing maintenance on my apartment. I straightened up my closets, sorted out one of my file cabinets, did a complete cleanup of the kitchen, washed all the walls except the bedroom's for twelve hours with Spic and Span, cleaned the mirrors and pictures, polished the furniture, and did a complete cleanup of the bathroom. The apartment looks much cleaner having a lot of the cigarette smoking film removed and doing a thorough cleaning. I also stopped by Tod's Point on Sunday went by the library today and read two computer newsweeklies. I stopped by Arnold Bakery outlet store and a senior elderly lady had hit her forehead on the end of one of the shelves with very sharp edges. Arnold should install side panels on the shelves, so there are no sharp edges on the shelves. I also bought three loaves of Healthnut bread and went by McDonald's and had two big Macs, French Fries, and diet coke for $4.80. It is cold and rainy out and my arthritis is very painful after all the cleaning with this damp weather. Time for the Tylenol. I started using the Microsoft mouse I found discarded. It is much more responsive on the screen. I like it a lot. Tomorrow I have to resign my lease. Up since 4 A.M., time to relax. CIO

Note:<888> 2/15/98 Sunday 7:00 A.M. EST: Updated Recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I finished laundry, made mrscott.com/icetea.htm and had dinner of Kraus ham and potato and mrscott.com/coffee.htm . I will backup my system now and go out for the Sunday paper. CIO

Note:<888> 2/15/98 Sunday 4:00 A.M. EST: Up at 11 P.M. and finished watering plants and cleaning apartment. I am finishing up on laundry. I will surf the net a bit this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 2/28/98 Saturday 11:59 P.M. EST: Today I was up about 1 P.M. after two morning calls. I drove up to COMPUSA in Norwalk about an hour later. I helped a young Asian girl at the entrance of CompUSA load a Toshiba 17 inch monitor into her small car which was on sale for $399, by removing it from the 4' X 4' X 4' box and placing it on the back seat. I hope she was able to remove it when she arrived home. I also stopped by at the Junior League shop called the Yellow Balloon in Darien on the way up. However, they have mostly women's and children's items there. The Southern gal at the desk is always very hospitable. I noticed at CompUSA a number of sale items that end today. 20X cdrom player $69. Compaq 166 Mhz CPU $599. Also they have the Kingston and Cyrix 486 processor upgrades to 133mhz for $99. I was told I might be able to use the 200 mhz processor upgrade in my motherboard which accepts the Pentium Overdrive size which would be $249. I did not purchase any items at CompUSA. I drove down on the Post Road through Stamford and stopped at PC Warehouse at the beginning of Long Ridge and High Ridge Roads. I was told that I could buy a motherboard, 200 mhz processor, and mini tower case for about $300, which might be the way to upgrade the system when I have the funds. I stopped by Egghead in Old Greenwich and purchased a floppy drive cleaning kit for $3.90. Today was their last day and the store is now closed. I went downtown on Greenwich Avenue in a lot of traffic. I noticed quite a few people walking around in hunting and riding outfits. I stopped by Zyn and purchased two buy two get one free of Merits for $11 total. I hopefully will quit the smokes totally when the pills take affect in about two weeks. I sat out for a while and walked around the bottom of the Avenue. I then went to the Grand Union and purchased a Purdue Chicken on sale for $5.88 at about 89 cents a pound, one 12 pack of Lipton tea for $1.99, one 12 pack of Schweppes for $1.99, and a 12 pack of Barq's root beer for $3.99. I also purchased 2 boxes peas at 50 cents each, two boxes corn at 50 cents each, one box broccoli for 99 cents. Also I purchased Mrs. Paul's fish fillets for $3.69, Mrs. Paul's Clams for $1.99, 2% half gallon milk $1.84, two 3 kings bacon at $1.74 each, Purex liquid detergent gallon for $2.49, large eggs 79 cents, for a total with can deposit of $32.95. It was quite a load to carry up to the apartment in one trip from the car when I arrived home. I had the fish cakes for dinner with a potato and afterwards a cup of coffee. I went out at 9 P.M. and walked the bottom of the avenue. I noticed a VIP party going on at Saks. I saw lots of moviegoers exiting in the rain. I returned home at 10 P.M. and tried to find something interesting to watch on television to no avail. I filed this report around midnight. I will post my mrscott.com/stats.htm at the same time. Lets hope tomorrow is sunny. I will be up a while reading the news on the net. CIO

Note:<888> 2/27/98 Friday 6:25 P.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm .

Note:<888> 2/27/98 Friday 5:10 P.M. EST: Today I was up at 10:30 P.M.. I chatted with a neighbor planting daffodils. I had a friend stop by and we stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop to look at the HP DeskJet 500 printer for sale there without the power supply. We checked at Entree computer and they did not have the power supply. We went back to the Hospital Thrift shop and negotiated a fair price of $5 down from $15. When we returned back to my place, we checked with HP and they said a power supply would be $45. He said that he had a friend that worked for HP and he would check with him for an old power supply. I gave him an ink cartridge refill and parallel cable I had lying around. After he left I went downtown and walked around for a while. It did not seem very busy on this 55 F. degree day. I took my smoking withdrawal pill this morning. I had more turkey with mushroom gravy, potato, and green beans for an early dinner. I will do a little internet work after I post this. CIO

Note:<888> 2/26/98 Thursday 10:10 P.M. EST: Today was a glorious sunny warm 50 degree F. day. I was up at 10 A.M. and went out about 11:30 A.M. after breakfast. I stopped by Radio Shack in Port Chester looking for a part they did not have. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop as usual. I drove down Greenwich Avenue. I went for a short walk downtown. I drove through Bruce Park and went to Egghead Software closing their store with 75% percent off all merchandise. I picked up a Travan 3 or 4 Cirttape Tape Drive cleaner regularly $26.00 for $5.20 unfortunately I have a Travan 1 so it won't work. I picked up the 1995 Compton's Encyclopedia Cdrom regularly $10 for $2.50, and I picked up a Egghead Stainless Steel insulated coffee mug regularly $20 for $5. They don't have much left, but one never knows what one might find. While there a sales representative gave me a dealer's Evaluation Edition of Goldmine 4.0 a PIM program on CDROM, which I can't use until I get a CDROM drive. He also handed out to the Egghead employees a version of Linux UNIX program which they eagerly grabbed up. I guess Goldmine Software distributes LINUX on a CDROM. I suppose it would work with the new Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 Unix browser. I chatted with him about tech. I previously stopped by Radio Shack at the Riverside shopping center and bought a Gold Soderless Stereo 1/8 inch mini phone plug for $3. I drove by Tod's Point and it was quite busy on a sunny day. I returned back to town and made my 3 P.M. appointment. I stopped by CVS pharmacy and picked up a prescription for Wellbutrin to help me quit smoking. It is like Zantec. I hopefully will be able to gradually quit smoking. I walked up and down Greenwich Avenue enjoying the day. I noticed a couple of youngsters in Knit caps trying to blend into the crowd inconspicuously. I use to always wear knit caps on cold days, since one loses over 50 percent of their body heat through their head. They were taking photographs outside the Foreign Study Institute. I purchased a can of peanuts for $1.59 and a bag of black licorice sticks for 99 cents while picking up my prescription. I think licorice sticks are an old wives folk remedy for constipation, but I use to like them as a kid. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and returned the videotape and read the paper, and chatted with the Burns Security Guard. I returned home at 6 P.M.. I defrosted some frozen Thanksgiving Turkey and sautéed Grand Union mushroom gravy with chopped onions, olive oil, "I Can't Believe It's Not Butter", two cans of canned mushrooms and a quarter cup of white wine, and a tablespoon of Jack Daniel's Whiskey making a hearty mushroom gravy for the turkey breast to go along with two small potatoes and canned green beans. I then installed the Gold Plug on my cable from the computer speakers to my amplifier by cutting the cord and screwing the three wires to the plug. I got the right configuration on the third try. I believe the black wire is the unique wire in a stereo plug at the high point. I now am able to play the computer audio through my stereo system in full stereo without the bussing sound. It works great. I downloaded the new version of www.thedj.com which sounds pretty good through my stereo system. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . The portfolio was up today with Bank stocks doing well. I filed this report and updated my site day. I have not been doing much web surfing recently doing errands instead. I noticed in the Greenwich Times today a Swedish prep hockey team is visiting the area, so perhaps there are other foreign visitors in the area as usual. After all this is a contiguous part of New York City. I will take a short drive downtown and then do a little web surfing. CIO

Note:<888> 2/25/98 Wednesday 11:45 P.M. EST: Today I was up at 10 A.M.. After a breakfast of Kellogg's cornflakes, Arnold Healthnut bread, Tropicana Orange Juice, A&P coffee mrscott.com/coffee.htm , and my usual mixture of vitamins; I proceeded to scour the five major thrift shops mrscott.com/thrift.htm in Greenwich. Owing to their popularity they seem to have mostly clothes anymore, and less furniture, bric a brac, and other interesting items. However, with Spring Cleaning coming up, I am sure more interesting curiosities will be showing up to amuse the frugal minded of Greenwich and our neighboring communities. I also stopped by Tod's Point and there did not appear to be any flood damage in Old Greenwich. One of our local observers in the library said he was going to attend a reception with the head of the World's largest private military. I stopped by Radio Shack and I need two stereo connectors to replace two mono connectors, I use in my sound card to speakers to amplifier setup, so I can play computer stereo sound through my apartment sound system and not just mono sound. I went up to Wilton at 4 P.M., stopping by Radio Shack there also looking for the parts. I might have to cut a cord and put the proper stereo plug on it. I had a barbeque steak dinner on the gas grill with potato and broccoli and watched the videotape Kissinger and Nixon which showed a lot more than I ever read in the New York Times during that period. I returned to Greenwich and took a short stroll on the Avenue. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was an up day for Wall Street. I also put $10 of premium in my car today at the Exxon station across from the library and put 25 cents in a parking meter on Greenwich Avenue. I never waste my money at Starbucks' since my coffee at home tastes better. Yesterday on Tuesday I picked up a 12 pack of Schweppes Ginger ale and a 12 pack of Lipton Ice Tea at the Grand Union for $2 apiece plus deposit. I also bought a head of broccoli for $1.50, Pepperidge Farm Parmesan Cheese crackers for $1.69, and Tony's 4 cheese frozen pizza for $3. Basically it is the same old routine in Greenwich. I did notice on Tuesday night that the water was within a foot of the top of the Sea Wall at Greenwich Harbor Inn and Greenwich Capital Associates www.greenwich.com which I believe is owned by National Westminster Bank of London, England. I have not had much time to surf the net, but I am sure you will find plenty to explore without my assistance. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888> 2/24/98 Tuesday 5:15 P.M. EST: Updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Today I worked on the wiring to my amplifier that I am able to play my computer sound through. I run a cable from the computer speaker into the phono input on the amplifier. It is a little bit more complicated than it sounds, using different adapters. I can play sound fine, but for some reason, one of the cables can not be plug in all the way just half way, or I get a hum. That I can live with. I also play my television, short wave radio, CD player, tape deck, and record player thru the amplifier outputting to 15 separate speakers around the apartment, so there are a lot of wires to fiddle with, but it all works fine. Occasionally I have to recheck the wires. I did not get much done on the net today. The Hospital thrift shop has a HP inject printer for $15, but I think it would be risky to buy since it is missing the cord and can not be tested, not to mention ink jets can be a little messy. Have a good night, I have a dinner guest coming down, and we will watch the videotape Kissinger and Nixon. CIO

Note:<888> 2/23/98 Monday 4:45 P.M. EST: Up at 9:30 A.M.. I listened to www.ttalk.com weekend broadcast while I sifted through five days of email. I updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was a good day for the market, but not oil. Will be shutting down in about a half hour. CIO

Note:<888> 2/23/98 Monday 3:30 A.M. EST: Read the Winter Olympic Stats. Good Show for the Team, wished I could have been there. Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Have a good day, I'm off to sleep and still have four days email to sift through. CIO

Note:<888> 2/22/98 Sunday 11:40 P.M. EST: Today I stopped by McDonalds' for two Big Macs for $2.12. I then went by the Greenwich Library, but the parking lot was full so I continued on to Radio Shack in Cos Cob looking for a five splitter telephone jack, but they were out. I noticed IBM monitors were on sale. I next went to Radio Shack in the Riverside shopping plaza and they had the five way splitter for $9.99 plus tax. I drove down to Tod's Point beach and it was very busy with all the publicity about the Beach lawsuit. I stayed for about fifteen minutes and drove around the point. I stopped by Radio Shack and they are just about out of merchandise in their store closing. I went by Caldor's and bought a bag of Parmesan Cheese Pepperidge Farm crackers for $1.59. I next drove back down Greenwich Avenue and purchased a three pack of Merit Ultra lights for "buy two get one free" for $5.40. I sat out in front of the senior center and had a smoke. I told the proprietor of Zyn stationary that they were promoting a new Cuban cigar called the "Trinidad" which is suppose to be their new deluxe premium cigar. I noticed a local decorator carrying a broom. I returned home and started my laundry using two machines for 75 cents apiece for the washers. I made a phone call. I started the two dryers for 75 cents apiece. I munched on some of the Parmesan cheese crackers. I folded the laundry and put it away and made a cup of coffee. I remade the phone call to an exhausted friend who still needs a printer. I went out at 9 P.M. I stopped by Grand Union and returned $1.05 in cans. I purchase a dozen large eggs for 79 cents, a 12 pack of diet Pepsi for $1.99, and a half gallon of two percent milk for $1.84. I then walked the bottom of Greenwich Avenue and noticed a few deja vue people strolling around for exercise. I noticed what I believed to be Swedish and Norwegians around town. I returned home at 11 P.M. to file this report. I thought about the rug and room deodorizer and it might work better if one sweeps it into the carpet before vacuuming it up. Anyway the apartment smells better despite the omnipresent smell of cigarette smoke until I manage to quit smoking. I had two IBC root beers in frosted mugs today which were very tasty. I probably should try to do a little internet work this evening, but I have been thinking of taking time off from the internet or at least spending less time on it, since I don't really find it that fulfilling of an experience or an academic enhancement, and it seems to be becoming more addictive activity. Still I will have to think about it. CIO

Note:<888> 2/22/98 Sunday 2:45 P.M. EST: Note while cleaning my bedroom, I noticed that two of my three phone line doublers, those little one to two connectors were defective and causing static noise on my primary telephone and computer phone connection. I remedied it by removing the two. I will look for a one to four connector to use in their stead. I will be out shortly after 3 P.M. CIO

Note:<888> 2/22/98 Sunday 12:50 P.M. EST: Saturday I got up at 9 A.M. and washed the walls with Spic and Span in the bedroom until about 4 P.M.. I also washed the black and white wool Mexican poncho I hang on the wall above my bed and one of the living couch blankets. I use woollite in the washer machine and tumbled dry on low for 20 minutes. I also polished and cleaned the bric a brac around the apartment. Saturday evening I visited a friend's house in Wilton and watched the second half of Edward and Mrs. Simpson. We had rib eye steaks for dinner on the gas barbeque. I went to bed about midnight on Sunday morning. I got up at 9 A.M. this morning and wiped down the bathroom and kitchen with Swiss Pine cleaner. I put Glade Rug and Room deodorizer on the living room furniture and apartment rugs. I then vacuumed them all off so they smell much fresher. I also watered the plants. I will do the laundry later on today. After I surf the net briefly I will clean up and go out for some fresh air. Mother said the www.hboi.edu Harbor Branch Oceanographic Institute has been quite modernized and expanded. They have the underwater submersible used for exploring the Titanic. It is in the mid 40's today and rain is expected for several days during midweek this week. I have been listening to music while doing house cleaning. Enjoy your weekend. CIO

Note:<888> 3/7/98 Saturday 1:10 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Yesterday I did not update the site because I had a dinner guest and also messed up my back tinkering with an old discarded computer for 12 hours to no avail. I was trying to put another 386 motherboard in my backup 386, but I could not get any of the configurations to work, so I just returned the backup 386 to its former state replacing a hard drive cable and adding a numeric processor. Basically I thought if I got the other motherboard to work, it would accept the extra memory I had. Well the old saying goes, "If It Ain't Broken, Don't Fix It !". Today I was up at 6 P.M.. I went out and stopped by the library and read some of the computer press. I noticed a reception going on in the Art Gallery which happens monthly. The library itself was not busy in the evening. Yesterday one of our senior regulars was seen in the library. Basically the staff are more friendly there when one dresses up, instead of showing up in one's old jeans. Well to each his own, I was not planning on winning a fashion show. I checked out classical and march music for a change. After the library I went for a walk downtown and then did some shopping for bargains at the Grand Union. I returned home and wrote Mom a letter and then had a Tony's frozen pizza while listening to the www.dailybriefing.com. I next went out and mailed the letter. I stopped by the Greenwich Harbor Inn to go to the bathroom, and they told me the long time night time receptionist had quit her job for other activities. I went for a walk on Greenwich Avenue and saw the midnight movie crowd exiting the theatres. It seemed to be a quiet night overall. I will do a little net surfing now. CIO

Note:<888> 3/5/98 Thursday 12:10 A.M. EST: Updated Scott's recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm. It was cooler outside this evening. I feel like relaxing for the rest of the evening, I am getting tired of the redundancy of the net. It is like a small group of people that keeps on rebroadcasting the same old nonsense. I think it is time to get rid of some of the dead wood and go with more modern viewpoints, in other words cancel their company American Express Cards. CIO

Note:<888> 3/4/98 Wednesday 9:20 P.M. EST: Up about 5 P.M. this evening. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm. The usual army of busy mercenary business types was out this evening. I am sure judging by the airline noise, it was a good day for the business community. All the parking spots on the Avenue are full this evening, so local night time establishments are making income. I suppose with the economy and market doing well, lots of people are coming here looking for new and unique toys to invest their revenues in. The library was moderately busy this evening. I did not spend much time there. I have heard lots of airline noise for the last 12 hours, so lots of people must be flying in and out of White Plains airport, which is not part of my territory although adjacent to it. I don't feel like paying for parking there, so I never visit when it is busy. I usually park at the Xerox executive parking or International Aviation when it is not busy, and nobody seems to mind. Well when the PC business was first being developed out in California back in 1978, I did some extensive negotiations with the head of Xerox Parc out there surrounded by thousands of students from Cal Tech. Any California types recently moving into the area are forewarned that sooner or later we will have colder winters unlike the recent warm winter. I recommend roofs pitched as steeply as the Second Congregational Church roof, since the old timers knew that the steeper the roof, the less snow would accumulate on it. Flat roofs tend to either collapse or leak with over two feet of snow. Build for the future not for today. I suppose whomever builds ski chalets in ski resorts, might have future income potential in this area as the weather is colder during future winters. Still when we get a mild winter, we all are in a better humor. I use to think by importing Brazilians their warm karma might insure us warmer weathers, but when Nan Nook of the North and their friends show up, it usually gets colder. Still most people are day time people around here, so even if one had funds, there is no place to spend funds around here on a night time schedule except groceries, movies, restaurants, gasoline, lodging, those sort of essential items. Unlike the west coast, Computer Superstores and Malls don't stay open all night catering to the Grave Yard Shift. I suppose one might make income by running a 24 hours operation, but usually it is hard to get reliable help and there is a lot of pilferage. Well back to web surfing. CIO

Note:<888> 3/4/98 Wednesday 5:19 A.M. EST: I went back out at 3 A.M. . I walked around the area at the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. I found a counterfeit dollar bill that a company called Washington Radio Dispatcher is using as a discount coupon offer. It looks like a dollar bill on the front and is blank on the back. Their number is 212-740-4444 and 212-923-2211. It is illegal to print likenesses of legal tender for promotions and coupons, since they can be mistaken for the real thing. However this frequently happens., particularly in third world America. I checked out the cars on the showroom of the Rolls dealership. They have an old model Bentley coupe brand new in that British Racing Green. I guess no one will want it now that the new models are coming out. I walked around the train station. Someone was using the copy machine at Alphagraphics. They have a four foot wide graphics printer for printing color banners and posters I noticed in the window. I noticed at the train station office building that they need to do a little gardening, perhaps install some box wood planters and bulb plants. It is most noisy in the outdoor plaza there next to the turnpike and quite dirty from all the pollution. One drawback to living on the shore in Greenwich is the great deal of pollution that comes off the turnpike and covers all the exposed areas. Also it is quite noisy whenever one tries to sit outside. Walking up the avenue I said good morning to two peace officers. I noticed a skunk prowling around the Sunoco station. I noticed one of our regular early morning walkers. I returned home and filed this report. For broadcasts on Microsoft DOJ hearing try CNET - NEWS.COM - Radio Index . I noticed the daffodils are coming up. The French restaurant on the corner of Grigg street and Greenwich Avenue has set up their outdoor patio furniture, but I think it is still a little chilly for al fresco dining unless you like the cool French Canadian ambience. I spotted another limousine driving the wrong way up Greenwich Avenue. Basically the morning crowd is out now. The train station was closed at 4 A.M. which is the norm. Buckingham Palace according to a morning news report had a piece of ornamental plaster fall on one of its guests during a reception, but I am sure they know how to fix the plaster, I am not sure about the guest. Lots of different people are filing different reports from here, so this my perspective. It is my professional opinion that the Greenwich Police department is highly skilled group of professionals having observed them for 37 years, and some near sighted alcoholic over at the Greenwich Times is probably trying to make trouble over something that happened when he was a kid. I don't read the local paper unless it is available when I am at the library. Years of experience in this town lead me to believe that the law abiding tax payers of this town will win out in the long run. I've been all over the world and from an overall viewpoint it does not get better than Greenwich, if you don't believe me try other places. Particularly for older people we have very professional medical services and a low stress lifestyle once you get out of the fast lane. Over and Out. CIO

Note:<888> 3/4/98 Wednesday 2:35 A.M. EST: I went back out around midnight. I drove around. I stopped by the Shell Station and got $14 premium gasoline, filled the air in the tires, bought a half gallon of Hood 2 percent milk for $1.79 and bought two get one free of Merit lights for $5.50. I parked downtown and walked around for a while. One of our night time visitors was driving up Greenwich Avenue the wrong way and was pulled over. I also before I went out did a cleaning and took out 50 cans of surplus canned food and sorted it, and dropped them off at Neighbor to Neighbor at Christ Church for their donation services. Normally I don't eat much canned food since it has too much salt. I chatted with one of the local night security people downtown about life on the beach in Florida in old day roughing it with Wiley and the gang. Well it was a cold winter down there then. I am cooking a Tony's Cheese pizza for dinner and having a ice tea. I might go out after the Pizza for another thermos of coffee. Rumor still has it that Texaco is interested in merging with Shell Oil. The Skunk patrol is out in full force, but it is a dead slow night with a few disabled cars driving around town. No unusual sightings. CIO

Note:<888> 3/3/98 Tuesday 11:00 P.M. EST: I went downtown at 5 P.M. and picked up two packs of Marlboro Lights for $2.50. I walked downtown. I stopped by the Rolls Royce Dealership and checked out the showroom and conversed about the new model that will be released at the Geneva auto show next Tuesday. I think the new model in a Bentley Coupe with that dark British Racing Green color would be nice to have. It would be about $350,000; but for now I will stick with my old Volvo since I don't need any Swiss bankers knocking at my door. Of course with off shore banking and international business any number of assets can be hidden or kept off shore to avoid the U.S. IRS taxing profits made outside of the country. A great many people do this at certain financial levels. Thus the IBM office in the Cayman Islands might have the new Bentley convertible. I also told the Rolls dealer about 20 old pre 1920s Rolls one collector in Highland Park, Illinois used to have including the 1904 Rolls Roadster with wicker door in Robins Eggs Blue. Vintage cars are more stylish but a real pain to maintain. I chatted with one of the senior British officials in town and gave him my viewpoint. While chatting with him I noticed a Beatles look-alike pass by with four little kids. I then walked up the Avenue and went to CVS. I purchased the Teledyne WaterPik for $41.77 plus tax, two cherry and two honey lemon cough drops for 50 cents a pack of 40, four 75 watt light bulbs for 99 cents, one jar of honey roasted peanuts for $1.59, and two deodorant sticks for 75 cents each for a total of $55.70. I then stopped by the library and read InfoWorld and PC Week and chatted with Burns security on the way out. While driving out of the library one of the perpetual regulars called me an "asshole" while I passed by him. I guess they should send him back to the barnyard in Ohio that he came from. I guess the library regulars are stressed that they are not making money. Another fellow in a suit who drives a Cadillac said that he did not have money for food. I don't know why people bother me with these problems. I think they should visit the Department of Social Services which has funding for these problems unless of course they're illegal aliens in which case the church might give them refuge. I work very hard to maintain appearances in this town and volunteer and for out of town provocateurs to cause problems, they should remember whose families and friends built this town and worked in the area before they start dictating policy. Basically the grass is always greener. After returning from the library I installed the WaterPik which now only comes with two Pik attachments, which is pretty cheap of a friend of mine's brother who owns Teledyne. Must be money in it, since a lot of people seem to have teeth. I had cold chicken with Tabasco drops, steamed frozen corn, and potato for dinner. Afterwards, I took my trusty thermos downtown and enjoyed some of my mrscott.com/coffee.htm in front of the Senior center. I chatted with one friend with sore feet from walking around Manhattan all day. Another acquaintance asked about finding a psychic for raising the dead, so I told him what I knew. I then walked the bottom of the Avenue. I noticed most of the restaurants and bars were fairly empty. Not many cars parked. I chatted with the ticket people at the theatre showing the "Titanic" and it looked slow there too. I suppose Tuesday night is a good night for having a peaceful dead quiet night on the town for those of you whom don't like lots of activity. I noticed a few former neighbors down by the water. I returned home and filed this report. Now for a night of web surfing. CIO

Note:<888> 3/3/98 Tuesday 4:45 P.M. EST: Up at 2 P.M. Backed up computer to tape. I watched the financial news press while doing this. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Time www.time.com is having a 75th birthday tonight with the President in attendance at Radio City Music Hall, so there should be traffic jams around Rockefeller Center in Manhattan. Out here in the boondocks, it is peaceful as usual with the Skunk patrol probably working this evening. Out for a cruise after posting this. CIO

Note:<888> 3/3/98 Tuesday 6:00 A.M. EST: I went to Win 95 System Updates and downloaded and installed Windows Sockets 2 Update . I then downloaded "vtcpup20.exe" and "vipup20.exe" from ftp.microsoft.com Directory of /Softlib/MSLFILES and installed "vtcpup20.exe" which needs to have Windows Sockets 2 Update already installed. I then tried to install "vipup20.exe" which also needs Windows Sockets 2 Update installed first, but installation asked for two files? which I did not have on another disk, so I skipped them and for safety sake reinstalled Windows Sockets 2 Update a second time. The system seems to be working fine with the new updates. Time for bed. CIO

Note:<888> 3/3/98 Tuesday 3:20 A.M. EST: Did not make it outside, kept working on the computer. I posted a NewsWorks Search page mrscott.com/newworks.htm that searches a 130 newspapers. I updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm which should be enjoyable for your surfing doldrums. I noticed on the Buckingham Palace PRESS RELEASE MENU that in the release at Buckingham Palace March Press Releases that on March 15, 1998 the Duke of Edinburgh is heading to the United States and the Caribbean to March 27 for his activities with the Outward Bound Trust. I am about to shut down for the night. CIO

Note:<888> 3/2/98 Monday 9:15 P.M. EST: I posted a message at Symantec tech support about the "Ltnvram" problem \Ltnvram\ starts when I boot after uninstalling 3.0 demo (Michael Scott ). I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Today I went out and paid my electricity bill and rent. I stopped by the Hospital thrift shop where they are having a $30 a bag sale. They have two Chesterfield's there which would be $30. I sat out downtown and the fire department were out for an incident. I stopped by the library and returned a videotape. I came home and worked on the computer trying to resolve the "Ltnvram" problem. Basically I can't figure out how to keep it from loading when I boot. I had cold chicken with a few drops of Tabasco, potato, and peas for dinner. I also made mrscott.com/icetea.htm . I might go out for a short while after I post this. CIO

Note:<888> 3/2/98 Monday 12:45 A.M. EST: I fiddled for quite a while installing and uninstalling a program "ltdvram" from loading when I start the computer. It is possibly part of Norton Utilities Speedstart that keeps trying to load after uninstalling. I can't start it since the program is timed out. The program "ltdvram?" seems to cause my ISP connection to disconnect when opening and closing programs which is a minor annoyance. I guess I will have to call Symantec about the problem. I can of course do CTRL-ALT-Del and close the program, but it reloads next time I reboot. I finished my laundry and cooked a Purdue chicken, potato, and peas for dinner. I am using the init string again in my modem setup since it seems to give faster connections, particularly when the internet is not busy. I will surf a while and update recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm. I will probably quit surfing around 2 A.M. since I have to go out and pay bills tomorrow. CIO

Note:<888> 3/1/98 Sunday 6:25 P.M. EST: I was up at 2 P.M.. I listened to www.ttalk.com while I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants. I still have to do laundry. I updated mrscott.com/music.htm with a few links. CIO

Note:<888> 3/14/98 Saturday 7:20 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . In looking at AT&T WorldNet, I noticed they don't have many 56K baud sites, and neither does Microsoft MSN. I did notice that MSN has three Port Chester, New York dialups with one 56K, and two White Plains. AT&T WorldNet has one in Stamford, Ct., Armonk, N.Y, and White Plains, N.Y.. It is hard to believe they don't support 56 K. Time to sign off the web. I will probably be up until noon today. I think the Hospital Thrift shop has a little merchandise left with their $10 a bag sale, until next week March 18?, when they put out the new merchandise. People named the Meyers put up "missing dog" signs on Greenwich Avenue, for a 18 year old black miniature type sheep dog. Not much else to report. I suggest dressing warmly today. CIO

Note:<888> 3/14/98 Saturday 6:00 A.M. EST: I fixed mrscott.com/defense1.htm , so the links go back to the military server, and not my server; and also fixed the zip file mrscott.com/download.htm for mrscott.com/dod01.zip . CIO

Note:<888> 3/14/98 Saturday 3:00 A.M. EST: Listened to www.dailybriefing.com . While listening through my stereo which I connect to my PC speakers, I made Tuna Helper from Betty Crocker. I put a half cup of wine in deleting a half cup of water. I also added a half box of frozen mixed vegetables and herbs and spices. I baked it in my convection oven in a casserole for 25 minutes. It was a very good alternative for dinner. I changed my www.dailybriefing.com settings to my preferences. I went for a drive and walked around the bottom of Greenwich Avenue after the pubs had let out. The street light across from the train station is burned out again. I noticed it is a high tide at full moon. I saw a couple house lights dimmed in Belle Haven, unlike the other night when one house was lit up like a Christmas Tree. I suppose if you had one of those IBM computers that control the lights, one could turn on all the lights at one time even from another internet site. The marvels of technology. I am going to have a cup of mrscott.com/coffee.htm . Back to web surfing. CIO

Note:<888> 3/14/98 Saturday 12:10 A.M. EST: Updated Scott's Index

mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Went out around 10:30 P.M. and bought a 12 pack of diet Coke and diet Sprite for $2 each. I went for a short walk downtown. It is cold out. I hope the daffodils don't freeze. Usual level of Activity for Friday night. The Yuppies are partying at the DOME. Will be up all night on the net. CIO

Note:<888> 3/13/98 Friday 8:00 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Time to sign off for sleep. When I wake up today I am going to try to quit smoking with the Welbutrin pill I have been taking last two weeks. Remember to watch yourself it is Friday the 13th. Perhaps somebody should register superman.co.uk to save us from the Asteroid. Check out The Real Name System - Central Corporation .CIO

Note:<888> 3/13/98 Friday 5:30 A.M. EST: I changed my modem setup to 57,600 baud and I am not getting disconnects now, although I still connect at 115,200 baud. I also uninstalled and reinstalled my Logicode X2 modem. I use the modem setup defaults, except for setting it at 57,600 baud, and using the init string "&F&C1&D2&K1&M4L2S6=2S7=90S10=7" and I also check "Record a Log File". Also they mysterious program starting when I boot "Ltnvram" which I see when I press CTL-ALT-DEL, it my Logicode modem driver which I should leave going. At these setting I am not getting disconnects when opening and closing Winsock applications while connected to IBM.net or opening and closing any other programs. These setting work just as fast on my test page in OHIO www.rcch.com/hotlist/ibm01.htm , I get 10.4 Kbytes a second, which is pretty dang quick. The best I ever got was on a slow night of 10.7 K. "K1" enables V42 compression in the init string which will only work on uncompressed pages, not compressed downloadables. Now I have to look at mrscott.com/scotwork.htm for my daily work routine. CIO

Note:<888> 3/13/98 Friday 3:00 A.M. EST: New Logicode X2 modem init string "&F&C1&D2&K1&M4L2S6=2S7=90S10=7".Select "My Computer", "Control Panel", "Modems", "Properties", Select Maximum Speed 57,600 baud, Select "Connection", Select "Advanced", In "Extra Settings" place the modem init string "&F&C1&D2&K1&M4L2S6=2S7=90S10=7" without Quotes. Use the defaults for the rest of the settings. My Logicode X2 modem is U.S. Robotics compatible, so the init string, should work with their modems also. I studied the AT Command Reference Index very carefully to come up with the string. I am getting smoother connects, and am not disconnecting when opening and closing Winsock programs. I will have to test it some more. I do connect at IBM.net at 115,200 baud. CIO

Note:<888> 3/12/98 Thursday 6:10 P.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm again at 8:30 A.M. today. Updated Scott's index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I made my 3 P.M. appointment. It is very cold outside in the teens. I stopped by the Greenwich library and read the computer press. I went by Arnold's Outlet store and got two loaves of Healthnut bread for $1.29 each, and they gave me a free box of mini donuts. I prefer to stay warm and comfortable tonight instead of going out in the freezing cold, let's wait and see. CIO

Note:<888> 3/12/98 Thursday 4:20 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I also went to Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.01 Products Download and reinstalled the MS Internet Explorer 4.01 web browser and the Active Desktop. Remember to save your Netscape bookmarks as another file and then delete them to save installation time. One can reopen them later. My system is now working fine again, and the ISP disconnects seem to have quit. I think possibly when I installed theDJ beta of Norton Utilities 3.0 demo, one of the two programs installed files that made my system Winsock ISP unstable. The system seems more responsive and working fine again. I will go to bed early since I have a 3 P.M. appointment today. CIO

Note:<888> 3/11/98 Wednesday 11:15 P.M. EST: Went for a drive and it is very cold out and not busy. A few people out with knit caps on to stay warm. I updated mrscott.com/mci.htm with additional information from a tech call this evening. I guess I will have to wait a week to two weeks for the software to arrive. It seems strange, one can not download the dialer from the net. Back to surfing the net. CIO

Note:<888> 3/11/98 Wednesday 8:15 P.M. EST: Updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Will possibly go for a cruise after showering. It is cold out. On a night schedule, but have 3 P.M. appointment tomorrow, so will be up tomorrow around 1 P.M.. CIO

Note:<888> 3/11/98 Wednesday 7:35 A.M. EST: Updated mrscott.com/news.htm News Page, save it as news.htm in your Scott's Directory to have it on your local hard drive with the rest of the directory. I am bushed, time for shut eye. CIO

Note:<888> 3/11/98 Wednesday 4:55 A.M. EST: Posted mrscott.com/mci.htm separate MCI Internet Access page. CIO

Note:<888> 3/11/98 Wednesday 4:35 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I chatted with MCI about getting my registration number sooner. One can log onto MCI without installing the software by going to MCI Internet Account Registration once one has their access code. To sign up for MCI Internet Access for $14.95 a month if you use MCI long distance go to Special Offer From MCI Internet . MCI support is 1-800-348-8011. MCI Tech Support is 1-800-605-2736. The local MCI numbers from Greenwich, Connecticut are White Plains, New York at 1-914-397-8200 and Stamford, Connecticut 1-203-326-3600. Make sure you have the local telephone service with Bell Atlantic that permits dialing adjacent communities. It is usually a few dollars more a month. Go to MCI 2000 and select MCI Local Access Number Search for other areas. When setting up a dialer for MCI make sure only TCP/IP is used and that the primary DNS setting is 204.70.127.127 and secondary DNS setting is 204.70.127.128 . MCI Tech support said to setup a register dialer use 1-800-779-2966, Username "0001000100000001" and password "internetMCIdial" keep small and caps as I have it, with a secondary DNS setting of 204.70.128.1 and open web page <https://signup.mci.com/register> . They said to open "nph.mine". Thus one can logon to

MCI without having to install their software. However when billing to an MCI long distance account they have to email or send you their access code. I think when using a credit card they give it to you right away. The MCI Win95 3 1/2 inch disks are Microsoft Internet Explorer 3.0 which you probably don't want to install if using MS IE 4.01. The cdrom is MS IE 4.01 customized for MCI. MCI since it is a primary long distance carrier has direct internet lines to their servers which might be faster. Additional Note, I chatted with MCI tech support again, and they informed me that the tech information above is not correct, and I have to wait for the software to arrive with the account information to connect to MCI Internet. Also they said the software will install the dialer and registration information, and one will have the option of installing the web browser or not, depending on whether one already has one's desired web browser. Also Cablevision told me that Cable modem service will not be in Greenwich, Connecticut until the fourth quarter of 1998 at about $45 a month. CIO

Note:<888> 3/10/98 Tuesday 10:15 P.M. EST: Stopped by the library and read PC Week. They have lots of articles on the Year 2000 problem. It is cold out, so I wore my parka. I drove downtown and it is not too busy. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a 12 pack of Minute Maid soda for $2, 12 pack of Diet Dr. Pepper for $2, all Coca Cola product 12 packs are $2, 2% milk for $1.89, half gallon Florida Natural OJ for $2, 4 cans Progresso New England clam chowder for $1 apiece, a quart jar of chopped garlic for $5, and Pepperidge Farm Parmesan crackers for $1.69. I am now cooking garlic herbal boneless chicken breast in white wine, with baked onions, broccoli, and potato. I will surf the net after dinner and coffee. C'est tres froid n'est pas? CIO

Note:<888> 3/10/98 Tuesday 7:50 P.M. EST: Updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm , which I did not do yesterday. I had my teeth cleaned yesterday. I have to remember to use dental floss. I bought a gallon of Olive Oil at the Grand Union for $8, Angostura Bitters for $3, and two Stauffer 20 ounce Lasagna for $3 apiece. I went to bed for a while and had a friend stop by about midnight, so I did not get any work done last night. Logicode www.logicode.com the maker of my X2 modem is going out of business and is trying to sell their modem manufacturing equipment. CIO

Note:<888> 3/9/98 Monday 12:25 P.M. EST: Up at 8 A.M. after five hours sleep. I got my hair cut at Subway Barbers for $13 and chatted about Volcanoes with barber from Naples, Italy. I paid my telephone bill and Cablevision Bill. I noticed quite a bit of flooding around town, particularly in front of the NatWest building on Steamboat Road as usual. Ponds in Bruce Park are full. I stopped by Mews, ELDC, and Hospital thrift shop. Hospital Thrift shop has $20 bag sale. Also they have a HP 300 Laser Printer they just took in the back room. I stopped by the library and construction in progressing but a little muddy. I read the local paper and PC magazine. I returned home for a root beer and have a dental appointment at 2 P.M. . Library said their net was not working. CIO

Note:<888> 3/9/98 Monday 2:15 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Slow night on the net. Finished chores. Went for a drive and walk about 12:30 A.M., and rain seems to be letting up. Suppose to be up to 59 degrees today. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888> 3/8/98 Sunday 11:35 P.M. EST: I had breakfast at 4 P.M.. I had a friend come down. I gave him a Stauffer's frozen 20 ounce Lasagna which is $3 at the Grand Union. We watched a program on the discovery channel on Volcanoes and another program on Egyptology. After he left I cleaned the apartment and watered the plants. I went out for two more Lasagnas and a jar of peanuts. I am cooking some boneless breast of chicken with wine and herbs and potato and broccoli which should be ready shortly. I am also finishing drying my laundry which I will sort after dinner. I then will surf the net during the morning hours. CIO

Note:<888> 3/8/98 Sunday 3:30 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm. I had a guest over this evening for a discussion on Science and Tech in General and he seemed well briefed on current volcano activity and has capability of flying airborne aircraft. I surmise he is better informed on the local networked community than I am, but remember I have a photographic memory of the over quarter of a million web sites I have logged onto in over 3 1/2 years. Also to remedy the 100 hour limit on IBM.net, I have order Special Offer From MCI Internet setup disks. Since I use MCI, I will have unlimited Net Access for $14.95 a month. I assume since MCI has offices down the road in Rye Brook, New York and they will have local X2 access. Still I will probably keep IBM.net too since they have the best service and three local access numbers, not to mention I don't feel like changing all my Email Address information on the net which would be a real pain. I am listening to www.ttalk.com which is always enjoyable a relaxing break from net surfing. I am still on a night schedule but have a 2 P.M. dental appointment on Monday. CIO

Note:<888> 3/21/98 Saturday 9:45 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I was up at 7 A.M. today and had Aunt Jamaima pancakes for breakfast. I will stop by the Hospital Thrift Shop this morning and the library. There is light dusting of corn snow out this morning, but nothing major. CIO

Note:<888> 3/20/98 Friday 8:15 P.M. EST: Uploaded Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I changed my homepage colors. I fiddled with my stereo setup this afternoon, the amplifier seems to be out of balance. I put it as best as I could get it. I stopped by the library this evening and read the computer press. Construction on the steel work on the library addition is progressing. I will watch "Grumpier Old Men" this evening. CIO

Note:<888> 3/20/98 Friday 11:45 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I only got five hours sleep last night, so I think I will take a nap. CIO

Note:<888> 3/20/98 Friday 8:25 A.M. EST: Went to bed at 1 A.M. this morning and was awoken by a call at 6:30 A.M.. I watched a program on the Arts and Entertainment Channel on Queen Victoria which was well produced. I made breakfast of four strips of bacon done in the Microwave for six minutes between two sheets of paper towels on either side to absorb fat. I also had a two pieces of Arnold Healthnut bread, and three scrambled eggs, and a cup of mrscott.com/coffee.htm along with a 12 ounce class of orange juice and my morning 12 vitamins and pills. I will read the morning press at mrscott.com/scotwork.htm while I sip my coffee. CIO

Note:<888> 3/20/98 Friday 12:05 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I backed up the computer and watched Henry Fonda in "Gideon's Trumpet" on the VCR while doing it. I will post my mrscott.com/stats.htm for today at midnight. I will listen to some broadcasts and then go to bed. I listened to Lou Gerstner's Key Notespeech IBM CeBIT '98, Lou Gerstner Keynote Speech while working on the bookmarks. IBM.net seems more accessible during busy times of the day, while MCI goes faster during the lean hours. CIO

Note:<888> 3/19/98 Thursday 7:45 P.M. EST: I updated the entire directory today with the bookmarks. Go to mrscott.com/download.htm for the latest version of 59,000 links. I added a Yahoo mrscott.com/140.htm and Ziff Davis mrscott.com/141.htm Categories. I updated Scott's Index at mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I added a link mrscott.com/scott00b.inv for the daily backup of my Microsoft Investor Bell Weather Portfolio. Remember if you use the Microsoft Investor Portfolio to back it up daily and it is probably a good idea to back it up on a floppy disk also. I will now do a tape backup. I spent all day on the computer and did make my 3 P.M. appointment. Nasty rainy day out. CIO

Note:<888> 3/18/98 Wednesday 5:00 P.M. EST: Updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I also installed the MS IE 4.01 version of Outlook Express to handle my MCI mail account which I probably won't use for now or even check, but the MCI mail address is "mike.scott@mci2000.com". However, one can setup more than one email address in Outlook Express. I will still use the Netscape mail program with my IBM email address "mikescott@ibm.net" since when I click on links with Netscape it brings up my Netscape 3.04 browser with which I do the bookmarks with and is much faster on my system. However, I do strongly recommend Outlook Express for multiple email accounts if you don't mind having MS IE 4.01 open for your mail links. The new Outlook Express will be offered for free around the beginning of April for three months and it promises to be quite an extensive full featured mail program, but will take up about 40 megs on your hard drive. Net has been slow on both IBM.net and MCI this cold rainy day, so I managed to keep busy by switching between them when one is overcrowded. Getting near to dinner time. CIO

Note:<888> 3/18/98 Wednesday 3:00 P.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I tweaked the system this morning and it is running much better and MCI is fast in the day time. I went out at lunch time and stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop Opening Spring Display. There were lots of people there and it was very festive. Parking is limited and they seem to be carrying much more Women's merchandise than the Electronics and Bric a Brac I usually look for. I stopped by the library and noticed a seven foot person checking out a book. It seemed quiet today. The art gallery has a new exhibit. I will listen to the rest of the www.dailybriefing.com . Lou Gerstner is suppose to address CeBIT 98 March Spring 98 at its opening today in

Germany. CIO

Note:<888> 3/18/98 Wednesday 8:30 A.M. EST: I received the MCI installation disks yesterday. MCI is about 30% to 40% faster than IBM.net during non peak hours. Look at mrscott.com/mci.htm for installation information. Below is the same information.

One can log onto MCI without installing the software by going to MCI Internet Account Registration once one has their access code. To sign up for MCI Internet Access for $14.95 a month if you use MCI long distance go to Special Offer From MCI Internet . MCI support is 1-800-348-8011. MCI Tech Support is 1-800-605-2736. The local MCI numbers from Greenwich, Connecticut are White Plains, New York at 1-914-397-8200 and Stamford, Connecticut 1-203-326-3600. Make sure you have the local telephone service with Bell Atlantic that permits dialing adjacent communities. It is usually a few dollars more a month. Go to MCI 2000 and select MCI Local Access Number Search for other areas. When setting up a dialer for MCI make sure only TCP/IP is used and that the primary DNS setting is 204.70.127.127 and secondary DNS setting is 204.70.127.128 . MCI Tech support said to setup a register dialer use 1-800-779-2966, Username "0001000100000001" and password "internetMCIdial" keep small and caps as I have it, with a secondary DNS setting of 204.70.128.1 and open web page <https://signup.mci.com/register> . They said to save "nphmime.ins". Thus one can logon to MCI without having to install their software. However when billing to an MCI long distance account they have to send you their access code. I think when using a credit card they give it to you right away. The MCI Win95 3 1/2 inch disks are Microsoft Internet Explorer 3.0 which you probably don't want to install if using MS IE 4.01. The cdrom is MS IE 4.01 customized for MCI. MCI since it is a primary long distance carrier it has direct internet lines to their servers which might be faster. Additional Note, I chatted with MCI tech support again, I have to wait for the software to arrive with the account information to connect to MCI Internet. Also they said the software will install the dialer and registration information. However, if one already has Internet Explorer 4.01 installed one would not want to uninstall it to reinstall MS IE 3.0 on the 3 1/2 inch disks. As mentioned above, once one received one's account information from MCI, one can log onto <http://signup.mci.com/register> , and enter the account information. Then save the file "nphmime.ins". One can then setup a Win 95 dialer from Win95 and use the account logon and password information from "nphmime.ins" one can read in a text file editor. Also one can setup their email program with the information in "nphmime.ins". Thus one does not need to install the MCI software. One does enable software compression in the dialer. I connect at top speed this way, and my MCI connection is 30% to 40% faster than IBM.net in none busy hours, of course during busy hours nothing is too fast. Remember to save your MCI account information in "nphmime.ins" and also print out a hard copy. The MCI account information is alpha number strings which can not be changed and would be hard to remember. Also Cablevision told me that Cable modem service will not be in Greenwich, Connecticut until the fourth quarter of 1998 at about $45 a month.

End MCI Note:

While setting up MCI dialer, I mistakenly entered the password incorrectly and it did not work. I then went ahead and uninstalled MS IE 4.01 and installed the MCI MS 3.01 software and dialer; all of which was unnecessary because of the password error. I noticed setting up one's own dialer instead of the MCI dialer enables connecting at 115,200 baud with my Logicode X2 modem, instead of 57,600 as the MCI dialer connected. One does enable software compression in the dialer, making sure one sets it up properly as in mrscott.com/mci.htm . I am most pleased with the additional MCI service, but it probably will not be much faster during peak hours. For now I intend to keep both IBM.net and MCI.net giving my five local X2 dialups. MCI does not seem to disconnect me from the net which IBM.net has been doing recently. I will have to investigate further from usage. I also had to redownload and install MS IE 4.01 and some of its components which I had uninstalled and that took a couple of hours this morning after uninstalling MS IE 3.01 from MCI.

Yesterday I also drove up to Yale University at noon with an acquaintance and toured the library which is under renovation. I took him to a meeting at SNET's new modern building on the harbor there. Fujitsu and the Newman's "Hole in the Wall Gang" are also there. I viewed the harbor while he was at the meeting chatting with a retired local longtime citizen. He told me the harbor was 45 deep and one salvage operation on the harbor exported 35,000 tons of scrap metal to Europe once a week. He also knew something about IBM Scrap PCs piled up on trailers. I returned at 4:30 P.M. to Greenwich and worked on setting up the MCI dialer. I also had a guest over for dinner and went to bed about 8:30 P.M. after being awake 22 hours and got up at 5 A.M. this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 3/17/98 Tuesday 7:00 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I also reinstalled MS DUN 1.2 and the new Winsock windows socket 2 update System Updates to make my TCP connection more stable. I changed the virtual memory to 20 meg. minimum and 32 meg. max on a 16 meg memory system. Virtual memory if set instead of letting MS Win95 manage it should be set to at least twice system memory. I also increased my Netscape 3.04 memory to 5000 Kbytes and cache to 10000 Kbytes to hopefully make web browsing run more smoothly. Of course depending on one's system resources, one has to tweak it differently. I think some times any of the three local IBM.net dialups, might be booting people offline. For some reason I get disconnected repeatedly at hours of the night, and at other times I stay connected for many hours at a time. I wonder if IBM is pulling the same sort of nonsense that AT&T WorldNet was doing disconnecting long time users. Also MCI told me the Yahoo MCI comes with Outlook Express and Yahoo's designed interface with MS IE 4.01 and needs a Pentium 90 to run. MCI's original program comes with the MSN setup and a different mail program. Well I am going to possibly sign off soon. Have a good day. CIO

Note:<888> 3/17/98 Tuesday 12:30 A.M. EST: I noticed in Tuesday's The Times that the Duke of Edinburgh is still on the West Coast of the Colonies. I was informed today that he is suppose to attend a reception at the University Club on Fifth Avenue in Manhattan this Thursday. Having observed the comings and goings of the British in Manhattan for many years, here are some notes. First of all the British are major stockholders in Manhattan having heavily invested there over the years and particularly most recently. My father's former employers had extensive dealings with the British. Chemstrand is a division of Monsanto which one of Greenwich's senior town fathers use to serve on the board of directors. Thus many British citizens were in our family homes while I grew up. Other companies that Dad was associated with such as Polaroid, Continental Can, Asea Brown Boveri, and King Wilkinson maintained extensive Euro British business activities. The British American chamber of commerce is headquartered in the Tampa, Florida area where a great many senior British citizens are retired. Thus Dad made many trips overseas to the U.K., although I never visited the U.K. myself. Most schools I attended had British students in attendance. When I graduated from Lake Forest College after a European tour, I used an office of Asea Brown Boveri then Combustion Engineering in Manhattan in the Chemical Bank Building on Park Avenue a floor above British Airways offices on Park Avenue in the 1970s for job hunting. In the larger network traveling around Manhattan a great many people around the Episcopal and Anglican Churches in Manhattan have Anglo American contacts. The United Nations' diplomatic group of course were also in the area. There use to be a British Consulate office on Third Avenue around 52nd Street. Two residents use to be maintained around Beekman Place and East 66 th Street. The senior diplomats were always visible by large polished Daimlers parked in the diplomatic parking areas. British Intelligence maintained a presence in the area having been established by the "Greta Garbo Home for Wayward Boys" during World War II which is located in West Greenwich Village. Of course New York City being a large port, there are always many British seaman around the waterfront bars of the city. The warehouse district in Chelsea use to have the Bermuda Motor Car Company which was a large fleet of Cadillac limousines that would be used for diplomatic visits to the city. Of course Cunard Lines regularly visits the city and having visited on board, they all know Greenwich, Connecticut well. I believe a number of the passengers on the Cunard Line use to find the King Kole room at the St. Regis Hotel along with Polo Lounge at the Westbury Hotel friendly watering holes. The representatives of the British boarding schools offices in America use to maintain an office at 57th and Madison across from the IBM building. The Episcopal church is one of the largest land owners in Manhattan, and a great many followers attended St. Bartholomew's, St. Thomas, and St. John's amongst numerous other Episcopal and Anglican churches in the New York City area. Of course on rainy cold days in Manhattan the Metropolitan Museum was always an enjoyable place out of the elements to watch the visitors. Carnegie Hall has U.K. Scottish roots not to mention many other establishments like the Scott family's original Bloomingdale Farm in the New Amsterdam colony. I believe the Duke of Windsor maintained private apartments in the Waldorf Towers for his many visits. Of course the airline personnel at the British Airways terminals as well as the other Commonwealth Countries' airlines personnel have observed comings and goings for a long time. I suppose there are some British financial institutions in the areas which are off shoots of the British West Indies Companies not to be confused with the Dutch West Indies Companies. I think Faunces Tavern is still down on Wall Street where the Revolutionists conspired against the Tories along with the West India Company offices which are a private Club. Greenwich, Connecticut is of course where many New York City residents maintain suburban retreats since it is only 25 miles away and was at one time part of the New Amsterdam Colony as well as the New Haven Colony always in great dispute. End British message. ---___--- CIO

Other news on Monday I went out at about 7:45 A.M.. There was an elderly gentleman who was knocked down on Greenwich Avenue in front of the Post Office. I suppose the traffic in the morning around here is much too fast with all the commuters. The Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop will have its Spring Opening on Wednesday morning. I chatted with a local high school student down by the water on geology and volcanology. I stopped by ELDC thrift and the Mews thrift. I bought four tea placemats, and a dinner mat with a picture of the White Star line clipper ship. I went to the library twice and chatted with Burns security. Construction on the Peterson wing is progressing with steel girders being erected. Lots of senior Greenwich citizens are seen out and about on a sunny Monday morning doing errands. I went to bed about 2 P.M. with two phone calls that woke me up. People were excited the Vice President was in the area after the President being here last week. I will shower shortly and then surf the net. Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was up today. CIO

Note:<888> 3/16/98 Monday 7:45 A.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Remember all the ** links at the top are the recent financial links which are extensive. I will go for a cruise this AM to get a little day light. CIO

Note:<888> 3/16/98 Monday 5:55 A.M. EST: Downloaded www.mcafee.com PC Medic 97 and Virus Scan. I passed all tests with the latest Virus file. I did notice it scanned 21,032 files on my hard disk, but when I use Cheyenne Backup 3.0 to backup my computer, it only backs up about 15,500 files; I wonder why the disparity. I had a Ello Frozen Pizza at 4 A.M.. I have been doing system maintenance, so I have not much to show for my night's work. I listened to music tonight for a change while on the PC. CIO

Note:<888> 3/16/98 Monday 1:00 A.M. EST: Today I got up about 6 P.M., and made my usual family phone calls for 5 cents a minute on MCI. One of the family members had just purchased a DELL 300 MHZ 64meg. memory, and 6.5 gigabyte hard drive system with 17 inch monitor at the Dell Computer Clearance Center in Austin, Texas for $1,800. I am sure it will be better than the old 486 with Windows 3.1. They had a conference with the President of U.S. Web which has installed Ethernet Modems in the Four Seasons in Austin, Texas and is going to also install them in the Hyatts in the near future. U.S. Web's site is USWeb Corporation . Apparently their Ethernet connections to the internet are as fast as Cablevision, and their main business is Intranets. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants in the early evening. I went out for Marlboro lights and there was an accident in front of the Shell station. I walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue, and there was quite a bit of debris left over from the St. Patrick's Day parade including many empty Coors beer cans which the Port Chester Beer distributor sells for 30 cans for $10. Somebody got a flat tire in front of Starbucks. Radial tires are prone to puncture on the sidewalls when hitting curbs. I came home and did my laundry and made mrscott.com/icetea.htm . I had the rest of the Tuna noodle casserole for dinner. I will surf the net this morning. Despite the Rumors, it does not look like Prince Phillip will be visiting the area, The Times of London says he arrived in San Francisco for dinner at

La Petit Trianon on Sunday Evening. CIO

Note:<888> 3/15/98 Sunday 5:20 A.M. EST: I updated my busiest page at the moment, "Cracks and Hacks and Computer Security Information" mrscott.com/127.htm . It has something for everyone. Lots of geek stuff. I was up at 8 P.M. this evening and went for a drive and shopping, and then listened to www.ttalk.com for diversion until 1 A.M., when I started working on the update of the page. CIO

Note:<888> 3/31/98 Tuesday 4:40 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I have to do some errands. CIO

Note:<888> 3/31/98 Tuesday 5:30 A.M. EST: I was up about 2 P.M. yesterday. I received a letter from the Raven in Germany and he is coming back to the states in Florida on April 17, with his girl friend for a eight week visit. It sounds like he is doing well and keeping busy. I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop and checked out the merchandise. I went out to Tod's Point on the warm day and took the three mile walk around the park. There were lots of mothers and children at the beach. I stopped by the library and read three of the computer newsweeklies. I told a legal official there, there should be more auditing of the government accounts and wall street accounts. I stopped by the dumpster at the office park and picked up an old 286 CPU. I returned home and spend the better part of the next 11 hours upgrading the 286 CPU with a 386 motherboard, floppy drives, 12 megs of memory, and operating system for the fun of it. It still needs a serial LPT port card, so the mouse can work. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I guess the market is weakening. I am bushed, so I will go to bed after posting this. CIO

Note:<888> 3/30/98 Monday 3:25 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I also added a link to my homepage for Scotts Company if you are interested in having a green lawn this summer providing it rains enough. It takes a lot of rain to make Greenwich green, so let the rainmakers work on their cleaver business. I have some interesting links on IBM information in the recent bookmarks like the IBM 97 Annual Report as if anyone in the area is really interested. I suppose amongst the movers and shakers Exxon - Shareholder Investment: Stock Quote is important and I think they are suppose to have an Annual Meeting in Dallas, Texas towards the end of April. If it is really true the net wealth of the oil barons approaches five trillion dollars, then the computer business is just their accounting department. Thus if we have any security problems I think we can afford to hire the mercenaries from up in Canada. They are numerous and start about 6'6" tall to over 7' tall and have a sense of humor about the oil business. Have fun where ever you are in this great big world. Basically it is oil money driving up the computer business. CIO

Note:<888> 3/30/98 Monday 1:05 A.M. EST: Yesterday I got up about noon. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants until about 6 P.M.. I made a family phone call. I had a ham sandwich. I went out for a walk downtown. I came back and watched part of a movie on the television about an Asteroid hitting Dallas. I went back out for a walk during the warm evening. Not much happening around town as far as I can tell. I am finishing up doing laundry. I will do a little net surfing after I fold the laundry. The beginning of this week is suppose to be warm. Reading the reports on President Clinton, I think it is the general consensus of the Republican majority he should have stayed behind at Nelson Mandela's old jail cell. It is an interesting social commentary if the President has been fooling around like many other former presidents, is it the responsibility of the Secret Service to protect the off spring of the president born out of wedlock. I suppose a thorough investigation might yield more Clinton off spring that he has been trying to shelter. However this is not illegal, but an interesting commentary on the way the American society has evolved. Of course such polygamous activity is common amongst heads of state around the world and many royal families. Thus the media is just picking up on what has been the accepted status quo for quite a long time. I dare say the President fooled around in his hippie days and might have sired other off spring. Perhaps from his Oxford days, there is some British aristocrat lurking in the woods waiting to be discovered. Who knows all this scandal must be leading to some place, just like Greenwich used to be mentioned as the real Payton Place of former lore. I suppose some of the back country liberals are hiding stories, they would rather not repeat. Of course this is all speculation, and I suppose the internet is giving such a huge challenge to the established media, that they are trying any stories to gain circulation, not that it is any of my business. It seems tabloid journalism is the rule of the day, so why stop here, why not print all the news that is not fit to print. The real story is the general population has become particularly jaded from the saturation of sensationalized media, and they are waiting for the next chapter in the soap opera comedy of American politics. Who knows what will come next? Enough small talk, back to the net. CIO

Note:<888> 3/28/98 Saturday 10:45 P.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I will listen to www.ttalk.com for a while now if there are still connections available. CIO

Note:<888> 3/28/98 Saturday 4:45 P.M. EST: I am up just about to have breakfast. I tweaked my system a bit and I don't seem to be getting the disconnects. When one installs MS Dun 1.2 it installs Network drivers which I don't think one needs for a modem connection. From Networking I delete the network drivers and just kept "Client for Microsoft Networks, Dialer, and TCP/IP". I also set my modem speed to 115,200. In testing the setup briefly I have not disconnected when opening and closing Winsock and other applications. When deleting the network items, you will be prompted for your Win95 disks and keep newer files. Time to listen to www.dailybriefing.com while making breakfast. CIO

Note:<888> 3/28/98 Saturday 4:25 A.M. EST: I surfed the web and read my email for links. I have not edited them yet. I listened to be BBC World Summary which is now the right Loch on my homepage. I am a bit bushed. I will have to bow out shortly. CIO

Note:<888> 3/27/98 Friday 11:20 P.M. EST: Today I was up at 2 P.M.. It was 80 degrees out today. I drove downtown at 3 P.M. and picked up an acquaintance and drove him up to Ridgefield via New Canaan. I then drove down Route 7 and stopped by a friend's house in

Wilton for a barbeque rib eye steak dinner on the gas grill. While sitting out in the back yard observing the local nature I noticed about 17 crows flying south and about a 100 Canadian Geese flying up North in V formation. I also noticed several trans Atlantic jets coming in from Europe heading out west. I went downtown in Greenwich after returning and had a cup of coffee at Starbucks. I noticed the Avenue was full of cars with lots of people dining and going to the movies. The late showing of the movie Grease had lots of teenage girls lined up to go to it, and later a large group of teenage boys were seen hanging out in front of the theatre. I suppose once the rents get inside the kids go out and play. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Thus I am back to a similar bell weather portfolio tracking process. I will do a little net surfing this evening. I have not read my email in a day. The weather is suppose to be warm all weekend long. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888> 3/27/98 Friday 7:00 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . The old portfolio has been slightly changed to reflect mergers and acquisitions. Since the new version of <http://investor.msn.com> did not recognize some of the stocks in the old portfolio, I had to buy and sell some dozen stocks and also estimate the buy value of 13 stocks that it did not recognize. I have no idea what the net worth of the old portfolio would be in the new portfolio setup. Obviously if I had this problem other users of the new version 5 might be having problems. I am bushed and it is time to go to bed for the day. CIO

Note:<888> 3/27/98 Friday 1:40 A.M. EST: Thursday was a normal day in Greenwich. I went out about 2 P.M. . I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop and everything is once again half price. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I drove downtown and walked around a bit. I went by the library and read the four weekly computer publications I usually read. I chatted with one of our local financial wizards. I gave him my viewpoint of the tech sector and the economy in general. I went back down by the waterfront. I drove over to grass island and observed the harbor. I went by the dumpster at the train station office park. They have lots of office equipment they have tossed out. I picked up a 15 inch Compaq monitor that is probably broken. I will have to test it some time. I went back downtown to CVS and bought two more jars of peanuts for $3 with the dollar off coupon. I went by the senior center and walked around downtown and chatted with a few acquaintances. There seem to be some out of town visitors which is the norm for this area. I came home at 8 P.M. and had Krauss ham, beans, potatoes, orange soda, and coffee for dinner. I listened to the BBC news broadcast . I put links from the Loch Ness Monster icons at the top of my homepage to the BBC news and BBC news audio broadcasts, so click on "Old Loch" for the news. Remember coal miners can dig deep holes. I was informed by the BBC news that Boris Yeltsin is incoherent, and his second in a command a 35 year old fellow is running the show over in Moscow. From a medical viewpoint, it does not sound like he is drinking, it seems like he has Parkinson's or Alzheimer's Disease. I went back downtown at 10 P.M. and the police were maintaining a noticeable presence in front of the movie theatre and train station because there have been narcotics problems in the area and the youth have been unruly. I imagine the Greenwich Police with its reserves have ample time to keep an eye on any suspect areas around town. I stayed downtown until about 11:30 and went to the Grand Union for a half gallon of milk and a jar of peanut butter. I then went over to the food emporium for a bottle of sparkling Concord grape juice on sale for $2 a $1.50 off. I chatted with one of the Alpine Ski patrol working there and advised him that the British were skiing in Whistler, Canada probably because there is no snow in Europe with the warmer weather this winter. He was upset that a million people were killed in Rwanda, and I told him a lot of people are supposedly dying in Albania. Thus the Arkansas news stories in terms of the world perspective actually shows that we are lucky to live in a relatively safe country by worldwide standards. www.vita.org Volunteers in Technical Assistance publish reports on World problems which frequently don't make our local papers. I mentioned to our local ski person that 20 million people starved to death in Russia during World War II and I don't think the Russian people will forget or ever let down their guard despite what various propaganda agencies might say. This is one of the first lessons of Russian studies, so take it from there. <http://investor.msn.com> Microsoft Investor is not working tonight, so I can't update Scott's Index. An acquaintance wants me to visit the Abby Aldridge Rockefeller museum in Ridgefield, Connecticut tomorrow afternoon; but I am not sure I want to face all the traffic going up there tomorrow. I have driven by it many times, but I don't believe I have ever visited it; but I walked by her townhouse on the East side of Manhattan thousands of times. I believe Phillip Johnson designed the townhouse, in the "Rock Modern" motif. I looked at Country Life magazine today, and it was amusing what the Brits are trying to sell. There is a Christopher Wren style house for sale in a suburb that begins with "G" outside of London where the POW makes his home if you want to be their neighbors. I quite frankly would rather be in Marbelia, Spain in the winter and Stockholm, Sweden in the summer with the Spring and Fall in London and Paris and around the Continent. I better be careful I might get my wish. Well off to "Never Never Land on the Internet", lets hope the Feds don't start dictating to the diplomats. I advise any fed to occasionally listen, since they certainly never tell us anything we don't already know. Over and out from the Voice of a European American surrounded by curious visitors. CIO

Note:<888> 3/25/98 Wednesday 11:00 P.M. EST: I updated Quotes mrscott.com/quotes.htm for your financial investing pleasure. I also incorporated it into the downloadable file at mrscott.com/download.htm . That about it for the day folks. Alls well that ends well. CIO

Note:<888> 3/25/98 Wednesday 8:35 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . The <http://investor.msn.com> site has a new portfolio program which is not recognizing 13 of my quotes in the portfolio. Hopefully this will be fixed by Microsoft soon, so I had to approximate the portfolio value based on the existing quotes. I went out at 5 P.M. and went down by the water to enjoy the view. I stopped by the library and chatted with a local financial advisor. I went by the Grand Union and bought two half gallons of apple juice for .69, to GU fresh orange juice half gallons for $1.79, one half gallon GU Ruby Red Grapefruit Juice for $1.79, two "I Can't Believe It's Not Butter" for .99. At the Arnold Bread Outlet I purchased 2 loaves of Branola grain bread for .99 cents each, and they gave me St. Patrick's Day cake. I stopped by CVS and with the circular coupon from the circulars in the front of the store I purchased two 16 ounce jars of Planters Honey Roasted peanuts for $3 for both. The coupon is good for a $1 off two making it $3. I also purchased two 16 ounce bags of jelly eggs or jelly beans for .99 each. I have dinner of Kraus ham, asparagus, potato, ginger ale, and coffee. I think I will go out for a short drive after I post this and then possibly watch a videotape "A Man of No Importance". I noticed in the British Press today that Prince Phillip is in Trinidad, and Prince Charles and the boys are skiing in Whistler, Canada, royal extremes. This week they are delivering the Greenwich Times for free trying to get people to take advantage of the $2 a week subscription offer for home delivery. CIO

Note:<888> 3/25/98 Wednesday 3:45 P.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I will listen to www.dailybriefing.com while I shower and clean up before going outside. CIO

Note:<888> 3/25/98 Wednesday 2:20 P.M. EST: Scott's Free Site in Ohio www.rcch.com/hotlist/scotlist.htm is no longer available. I edited the directory to reflect this. I also edited the directory, so that Titles appear in the top of the web browser for the directory pages. Scott's site in Ohio was free for three years, but all good things have to come to an end. Thanks Kent for the site. Scott's site in Florida mrscott.com will continue. CIO

Note:<888> 3/25/98 Wednesday 9:15 A.M. EST: I updated mrscott.com/software.htm . I uninstalled Outlook 98, but kept Outlook 98 Express. Outlook 98 looks good, but I don't have enough room for it, and also I have a hard time reading the interface with the colors it comes with. CIO

Note:<888> 3/24/98 Tuesday 7:30 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I downloaded and installed Microsoft Outlook Express 98 Microsoft Outlook 98 -- Get Outlook 98 . I did a full install which was about a 19 meg download for me taking about 2 hours. It also reinstalled Netmeeting and other bells and whistles. After configuring Netmeeting and Outlook Express, I will stop by the library this evening. Outlook Express I think is only good for 90 days. CIO

Note:<888> 3/23/98 Monday 7:00 P.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . For some reason the Ohio site www.rcch.com/hotlist/scotlist.htm is not working although, the FTP program shows the files are on the site, very mysterious. I will have to send out the troubleshooter again. CIO

Note:<888> 3/23/98 Monday 5:45 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I went out this afternoon and stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop. They have a 14 inch aluminum French skillet for $22. I stopped by the waterfront on Steamboat Road and it was a nice day out. I chatted with one of my former neighbors. I noticed the somebody had picked up the computer tapes at the office park. I went by the library and the steel construction of the new Peterson addition is still progressing. I think the new wing will be larger than most people envisioned. I went by the Grand Union and picked up groceries, like a Krauss ham, Stauffer Lasagna, Tony's pizza, asparagus, Pepperidge Farm parmesan crackers, apple juice, etc. I came home and relaxed a while and updated my site. CIO

Note:<888> 3/23/98 Monday 6:10 A.M. EST: Another all nighter. I uninstalled Pointcast which freed up a 100 megs of files, MS outlook express, MS Music Controls, and MS Netmeeting and then downloaded Lotus Notes <http://www.notes.net/gold> free 90 day demo which took 2 1/2 hours for the 39 meg compressed file and 160 meg to install. Unfortunately I only have 16 megs of memory which is not enough to run it successfully, so I uninstalled it. While downloading it, I thought about where Atlantis was probably located, and figured out that it was east of San Francisco in the area of the San Jauguin Valley around Antioch. Obviously when the oceans were 400 feet higher, the Valley was the inland sea, and a great nautical civilization existed between the sea and the ocean, under the land between the ocean and the sea was breached by volcano and earthquake flooding out everything in between as the sea rushed into the ocean, and wrecking a lot of good waterfront property. I now have 250 megs of free disk space which is almost enough to install Win98 if I had a CDROM drive and possibly a little bit more memory. I can always use the space for the new Outlook Express out in April. Have a good day, and give my best to the mercenary army. Somebody should check and see if the camper at the board of education is young enough to join the French Foreign Legion. I hear tell they will take you until age 45. Bye now folks. CIO

Note:<888> 3/23/98 Monday 12:10 A.M. EST: I went back to bed after breakfast and awoke at noon, and chatted with family members on MCI's five cents a minute plan. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants while listening to www.ttalk.com's Saturday broadcast. I went out at 4 PM and stopped by the library . I chatted with George Bush's campaign chairman from Tennessee and he said he had a memory chip plant he was interested in selling. He also mentioned that he knew the pilot on Air Force One who would be an Air Force general. I said it costs so much to fly that plane, it would be better to save the money and not use it so much unless Boeing wants to pay for advertising its product. I believe the plane has to be reconfigured every time it flies out of the country. Remember Debeer controls the diamond trade and they would never put all their eggs in one basket. I then went downtown and chatted with the proprietor of computer playhouse about tech. I met up with my dinner guest and we came back here for Turkey Tetrasini and watched Jewel of the Nile which was not as good as the earlier version. I went back downtown and noticed the camper was still at the Board of Ed. I stopped by the police station to see who was on the night shift. Basically they are not too interested in the internet or they would be blind as bats from looking at monitors all the time. I suppose with George Bush Jr. running for the republican presidential nominee during the next election we will have more republican operatives showing up in the area. Remember they represent large groups of people much like the United Nations diplomats and staff. The gentleman from Tennessee spoke highly of Vanderbilt University's Tech facilities. I just finished my laundry and will now probably do a little web surfing and go to bed. CIO

Note:<888> 3/22/98 Sunday 6:50 A.M. EST: Yesterday I went by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop. I drove down by the water. At the loading platform at the Greenwich Train Station office park on the lower level, somebody has disgarded about 200 12 inch computer reel tapes. There is the logo of a British Insurance underwriter on discarded stationary next to the tape reels. I think those tape reels cost about $200 apiece, so that would be about $50,000 in computer tapes; not to mention the information on them might possibly be valuable. Seems rather strange, but there are a bunch of odd balls that work in that office building anyway. I went by the Greenwich Library and chatted with a local attorney. I suggested to him that the town might use the Walden Pond case that another local attorney Vandepool from Harvard tried to use as an example of defending the rights of the town in the Tod's Point beach case. Basically the case was tried I believe in the 1920s when developers in Concord, Massachusetts wanted to develop the land around Walden Pond. There might be some sort of legal president in that case. After reading the computer press I went back home for lunch. After coffee I went back downtown. I was parking across from the senior center and noticed that there is somebody camped out in a sleeping bag at the Board of Education portico. I can't tell whom it is because they were huddled up in the sleeping bag. I went for a walk downtown. I chatted with one locals who was upset that the cablevision is showing a Ukrainian program where contestants fight to the death, and also Asians are murdering children in some sort of primitive activity over there. He said he had heard about some cult that like to kill children and make videotapes of it for redistribution. I guess since I don't watch television I don't get all these gruesome stories. Another local told me that Greenwich has major narcotics problems, and I suggested to them that they should bring a Federal Strike force. I then went by the library and chatted with Burns Security. The library was busy and I checked out a videotape "Jewel of the Nile". I came home and used Ragu Alfredo sauce, chopped garlic, defrosted turkey, canned mushrooms, wine, colored noodles and made my own version of Turkey Tetrasini. After coffee I went down town for another walk. I noticed the computer tapes are still there at the office park loading platform at the Greenwich train station. In walking around the avenue, I noticed quite a few people out and about. I noticed the same person was sleeping in the sleeping bag at the Board of Education building portico. About 10 P.M., I got in and tried to call IBM about the computer tapes, but they were not interested. I chatted with the New Haven FBI office about what was going on around here, and they did pay attention. I suggested that government censors should censor programs like the Ukrainian "Fight to the Death" program.

New Haven, Connecticut FBI Office 203-777-6311

Bridgeport, Connecticut FBI Office 203-333-3512

New Rochelle, New York FBI Office 914-633-6000

For some reason SNET does not list the FBI offices in the telephone directory in the Blue Pages, of government listings.

After chatting with them I went to bed and was up at 6:00 A.M. this morning. I will listen to www.ttalk.com while I clean my apartment after breakfast. There is a powdering of snow out that might have ice outside. CIO

Note:<888> 4/9/98 Thursday 6:10 P.M. EST: I went out today about 11 P.M. after a short nap. It was a cloudy day that turned cold rainy and blustery, typical north sea weather. For any of you who like that sort of weather the "<http://www.royal-navy.mod.uk/>"The British Royal Navy is looking for 5,500 new recruits. Of course some of the Royal Navy gets to serve in more tropical ports of call, I guess it depends on the luck of the draw. I noticed the QE II will return from its around the world cruise to Manhattan soon and leave there April 15 for South Hampton "<http://www.cunardline.com/scripts/cunard/genclsit.idc>"QE II Virtual Cruise Consultant . I noticed Carnival Cruise has made an offer for the Cunard Cruise Line of $500 million including the QE II. I think that is pretty cheap and I would rather see a Norwegian or Holland American cruise line purchase it and keep a mostly European crew and officers on board such an historic group of ships. The investment bankers, Swiss bankers, and other off shore bankers should look into such an arrangement. I think it is important to maintain the tradition of British Seamanship on board the Cunard lines. You know Britannia Rules the Waves and All That. I stopped by the library. I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop and then the ELDC thrift shop and then St. Catherine's Thrift shop and then the Old Greenwich thrift shop and then by Tod's Point when it started raining very hard. I returned stopping by Staples to look at office equipment and then I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop and bought an seven year old Hitachi Color TV with remote cable ready with 181 channels made in China television for $40 to put in my bedroom. I stopped by the Library and read the computer press and checked out the video tape "My American Cousin". I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a seven pound Purdue Chicken for 99 cents a pound, a Tombstone Pizza for $2.99, two boxes of Post Cereal Oats and Almonds for $2.50 apiece, and a half gallon of two percent milk for $1.84. I returned home and put the groceries away and installed the television. It works great and I am running it off the living room cable box, so it gets all the channels when you change them on the living room cable box. I had dinner of rib eye steak, potato, asparagus, ice tea, and coffee. I worked on this report. I updated Scott's Index "<http://www.mkescott.net/scopor01.htm>"www.mkescott.net/scopor01.htm . It was a good day for the market and the Bulls were at it again. I believe today is a religious holiday as is tomorrow and Sunday, however the protestant faith allows one to eat meat during the Easter holidays unlike the Catholic faith which abstains from meat during the Lynton period. I advised a financial advisor in the library that pizza restaurants do very well on Good Friday. I will file this report and go out again in this bad weather that looks like a Northeastern. Lets hope there is no flooding once again along the shore in Old Greenwich which could happen depending on how full the moon is. Enjoy you Easter holidays. CIO

Note:<888> 4/9/98 Thursday 8:40 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . CIO

Note:<888> 4/9/98 Thursday 7:15 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Let's see which way the Bulls go today. CIO

Note:<888> 4/9/98 Thursday 7:00 A.M. EST: I did not get to bed until 4:30 P.M. yesterday because of the racket created by the workman outside my window. I got up about 10 P.M. and had breakfast and then did a little computer work and listened to "<http://www.dailybriefing.com>"www.dailybriefing.com and then went to bed and just got up. Thus I am in a little better mood, and won't have to face trying to sleep through the adjacent racket which I have dealt with for the last three days. The local birds at the housing authority can't seem to find the leak around the roof area outside my window. They have redone the roof and flashing and it still leaks in the apartment below. I tried to tell them that the problem might be that the drain pipes that drain the water off the roof are probably clogged since the outside pipes around the building are definitely clogged since water always overflows out of them whenever it rains. I surmise that the rain patio drain pipes outside my window run through first floor walls and then into a central sump area or other drainage connection which is more than likely clogged. Thus either the pipes from the rain patio roof drains in the middle of the roof are clogged or the pipes that they feed into are more than likely clogged. It could also be that one absent minded tenant across the way is always overflowing her sink, and letting water leak down below. Whatever the case it is not worth making a federal case about it. Basically it is my viewpoint before the DOJ investigates Microsoft, they and the Securities and Exchange Commission should investigate the Wall Streeters here, particularly for their inside trading dealings and other illegal practices. I was told that all they do is sit out at the country clubs drinking heavily and thus they obviously don't have the correct judgment for making sound financial decisions and more than likely are the pawns of more sinister financial forces, thus the robber barons still exist in town; and they have made so much money recently that they are basically non functional from their heavy alcoholic binges. Well that shows why smart clever people make money on Wall Street, since they have the wisdom to do their home work, and not just follow the heard mentality of the heavy drinkers on Wall Street. Thus Wall Street basically has the same atmosphere as a casino, and I remember in the mid 1970s when Wall Street brokers were lucky to get jobs as waiters, and this will probably all happen again, what goes up sooner or later has to come down. Well have a good day. CIO

Note:<888> 4/8/98 Wednesday 11:11 A.M. EST: I took a three hour nap and am having coffee. I was thinking about an interesting situation in town. My family use to have a residence on Cornelia Drive off Husted Lane which was directly adjacent across from a swampy ravine from Mrs. Peterson who donated the recent $25 million donation to the Greenwich Library. It is more than likely the swampy ravine called the "Bird Sanctuary" was a great source of ergot poisoning in the neighborhood as investigated by the Pasteur Institute of France. Thus in dry spells whenever the swampy ravine dried out neighbors were exposed to ergot poisoning symptoms. It is more than likely that Mrs. Peterson was a long time sufferer of Ergot poisoning or some sort of Swamp Dust Fever. Although she did not live in her residence in her latter years, it is safe to believe that her judgment was affected by this condition, and more than likely the bequest to the Greenwich library is invalid and the rightful heirs to her estate should be contacted and the bequest returned to them. It is unfortunate that this chain of events had to evolve and more than likely local authorities were informed of the situation and covered it up so that the community could benefit off the bequest. Obviously such an esteemed institute as the Pasteur Institute is beyond reproach, but the proof of the investigation has been filed in all the necessary legal jurisdictions worldwide, so it is a matter of public record and the local community has no capability of continuing the cover-up. Thus we have the sort of picture of what our respectable establishment really is, and more than likely other similar events have been covered up and rewritten, so as to maintain the image and personal profitable position of the town of Greenwich, Connecticut. Basically nasty little secrets come out sooner or latter. Thus this is the view through the "Looking Glass" as observed over an extended period of time. Have a good day, any more hidden secrets more than likely will be exposed sooner or later. Well, I don't think the Greenwich Library is going to return the Peterson Grant, but any responsible lawyer would win the case, and it is more than likely the town has so much money that nobody really cares anyway. More than likely that explains the case of the homicide by Wilson in that neighborhood recently, and what caused him to behave so irrationally, which was also caused by the same condition of ergot poisoning or Swamp Dust Fever. It could also explain the so called bizarre behavior of some of the other local neighbors in that area, of course it could be just the bad spirits of the local adjacent cemetery coming back to haunt us or the psychic karma of the old folks at Nathaniel Witherall Nursing Home, who knows. In another similar situation the deathbed legal transaction concocted by Roy Cohn in the purchase of Conyers Farm from Lewis Rosenstiel probably has similar underworld or shady dealings involved with it. Basically the Italian Hebrew Mafia establishment in cahoots with the Russian mafia agents are trying to take over the establishment of the town, but before they challenge me, I advise them to take a look at the defense fortifications that the Scott family establishment has built elsewhere around the country, so they know how feeble their attempt really is which is basically why I sit and watch it all come and go, since they don't have a Tinker's Chance in Hell of getting away with it. Once they realize that most substantial property owners in the country are heavily armed and protected by the U.S. military and once they know they are outnumbered considerably by a pejorative force, it is like watching the Russian circus come to town. In other words U.S. government and military intelligence knows the whole truth of the activity and are just waiting to see what happens next. Thus the town motto should not be "Frugality and Cheapness", but lets, "Lets Wait and See What Comes Next." Remember one of the old Czar's grandsons Nicky has visited Greenwich many times, and he and his off spring are very mischievous. And of course we don't know anything about all the Hemp that the town gardeners raise at Tod's Point we all think it is just oceanfront weeds. Of course this all might be an exercise in creative writing, so lets see what you think is the real story. Basically each generation completely reinvents history to manifest its egos, and the sad truth is that where you live and work, is where you're stuck and will be remembered after it is all over. This is why so many old people like traveling all the time, to see what their counterparts have been up to. Basically the old guard is always conspiring against the whims of the younger generation, so as to exercise its influence whether real or ill perceived. CIO

Note:<888> 4/8/98 Wednesday 5:35 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I think I will take a nap. I just had Stauffer's Lasagna for lunch. CIO

Note:<888> 4/8/98 Wednesday 2:55 A.M. EST: I updated Volcanoes Page

"<http://mrscott.com/volcanos.htm>"mrscott.com/volcanos.htm . CIO

Note:<888> 4/8/98 Wednesday 1:40 A.M. EST:

"<http://typhoon.atmos.colostate.edu/forecasts/1998/april98/>"1998 Tropical Storm and Hurricane Forecasts April 1998 Report is available for you folks in Florida and the Caribbean. CIO

Note:<888> 4/8/98 Wednesday 12:30 A.M. EST: Today I went out and checked out the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I purchased a Hallmark birthday card for mother at the card shop across from St. Mary's. I mailed the card at the post office and purchased 20 stamps with artist Merian paintings from Surinam. I sat in front of the senior center and observed the pedestrian crowd. I stopped by the MEWS thrift shop and they still have the billiards cue for $30. I noticed the Daffodils don't look as good this year as previous years, so I decided to take a drive up North Street to see how the crop was doing up there. They don't look as hearty this year, and I think they must have been hit by a Spring frost with this earlier spring. The Tulips should be just about out by Good Friday. I noticed a large new house had been built on Upper Cross Road overlooking Conyers Farm Reservoir. It is another sprawling barn style house. While atop Round Hill Road, I noticed another new stone house across from the Helmsley estate which has gone up. I drove down Round Hill Road and noticed the tree surgeons were at work. I got to thinking about my experience in living in back country in places like Round Hill Road and other more distant back country areas of New England. There has been a phenomena in New England since before earliest European settlement called Ergot Poisoning causing Ergotism.

Definitions: er.got (ur'gat, -got), n. !. Plant Pathol, a. a disease of rye and other cereal grasses, caused by a fungus of the genus Claviceps, esp. C. purpurea, which replaces the affected grain with a long, hard, hornlike, dark-colored, sclerotial body. b. the sclerotial body itself. 2. Pharm, the sclerotium of C. purpurea, developed on rye plants; used chiefly to prevent or check postpartum hemorrhage.

Definitions: Ergotism (ur'e tis'am), n. Pathol, a condition caused by eating rye or some other grain, that is infected with ergot fungus or by taking an overdose of an ergot medicinal agent: characterized by cramps, spasms, and a form of gangrene.

This was the medical condition that caused the Salem, Massachusetts women to be diagnosed as witches in colonial days. I was thinking about the large number of people living near wet lands and tidal marsh areas in this region, when these damp areas dry out during dry spells, it is probably true that the remaining dry spores, fungi, and molds in the swamp like wetland areas can cause and airborne infection in neighboring populations, since the various spores, fungi, and molds would infect the food and water supplies of people living near the infected regions. Basically as opposed to Swamp fever which is mosquito born, one would possibly be exposed to allergy like symptoms from the residual spores, fungi, and molds in these swampy areas whenever they dried out in non rainy times. I believe the French know quite a bit about this phenomena since they have done extensive research in the areas of bacteria, enzymes, molds, and yeasts which are used in their cheeses and wines and other food products. I dare say the Ergot poisoning symptoms can be eliminated by taking Niacin or Niacimide which I believe is basically Vitamin B2 and is commonly added to flour and bakery products for such purpose. However, the "Swamp Dust" phenomena might be another problem totally unrelated, such as the Radon deposits in the area which are constantly monitored. Basically for some people breathing "Swamp Dust" particles of molds, spores, and fungi might have an allergy affect which could produce certain disease like symptoms.

I next stopped by the library and it was not very busy on a sunny day. I came home and went to bed until 9:30 P.M.. I got up and had breakfast of bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, coffee, and orange juice and then filed this report. I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . CIO

Note:<888> 4/7/98 Tuesday 8:20 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Quite a few Australian Government Information links. I will clean up and go out about 9 A.M. this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 4/7/98 Tuesday 5:00 A.M. EST: I updated

"<http://mrscott.com/nasa.htm>"mrscott.com/nasa.htm NASA page to reflect the Space Shuttle STS-90 Columbia Launch on Thursday April 16, 1998 at about 2:19 P.M. EDT at

"<http://mrscott.com/nasa-90.htm>"mrscott.com/nasa-90.htm . I also wrote a couple of letters to be mailed down to Florida. Not much work done on the net yet. I am about to have a pizza for lunch. Maybe NASA might like donating me some old computer equipment or whatever else they have lying around since the frugal people at IBM and Microsoft can't seem to come up with any and prefer to recycle it. CIO

Note:<888> 4/6/98 Monday 10:00 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was a good day for Wall Street up over one percent. I will write a couple letters this evening while listening to

"<http://www.dailybriefing.com>"www.dailybriefing.com and then surf the net. CIO

Note:<888> 4/6/98 Monday 10:50 A.M. EST: I backed up my computer this morning and watched the movie "The Highlander". I went downtown at 8 A.M. and purchased a pack of buy two get one free Winston lights for $5.50. They now just have Winston regular and Camel promotions left. I noticed downtown has a new unsightly attraction, some free Newspaper "Employment Journal" has installed 25 bright purple plastic newspaper boxes downtown particularly concentrated in the Post Office, Senior Center areas. They are most gaudy and clash with the general decor of the downtown atmosphere. Hopefully some civic minded attorney will have them quickly eliminated. It does seem like we have too many newspaper vending boxes downtown, perhaps they should just get rid of them all, since we have plenty of news stands downtown. Downtown is looking particularly derelict, and it is about time the town considered improving some of the features of the downtown area. I stopped by the Hospital thrift shop and they have their usual inventory. I went down by the water and it is slightly overcast on the skyline today. There is suppose to be rain later in the week. I noticed a number of houses along the water are ongoing major renovations. Anyone who has lived along the water knows there are a lot of rats and skunks, so hopefully the new renovations will include anti rat and skunk protection. I went by the Greenwich library and the new parking garage is just about ready to be opened. Construction on the steel frame of the Peterson addition is just about done, and they are installing the metal flooring frames. The Helmsley addition of the Greenwich Hospital is just about closed in. I read in the Greenwich Times that one of Greenwich's foremost yachtsmen Grant Simmons passed away in the Bahamas. The library was not too busy this morning. I checked out a QUE Platinum Edition of Using HTML 3.2 1,500 pages which comes with two CD disks. I stopped by the Arnold Bread Store and purchased three loaves of Healthnut bread for $3.87. I have a 4 P.M. appointment this afternoon. I will try to stay up until then. I might have a rib eye steak and asparagus and potato for lunch. They are doing more flashing and chimney sealing in the roof area outside my apartment today, so there is a bit of noise out there. Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888> 4/6/98 Monday 4:00 A.M. EST: I updated "mlsnote1.txt"Text File of Scott's Random Notes from start June 1997 thru March 1998 about 193 pages or 588 Kbytes , and also printed out a hard copy pages 151 thru 193. I have to reinstall a printer drive which should take a couple minutes. CIO

Note:<888> 4/6/98 Monday 2:30 A.M. EST: I deleted the MSN program, since it asks for the password on an unregistered account frequently. I am finishing up the laundry. I tried to help a family relative setup an MS TCP/IP dialer with AOL this evening, and I guess it can't be done. One must need to install the AOL program. CIO

Note:<888> 4/5/98 Sunday 2:30 P.M. EST: I installed the Microsoft MSN Network software on my computer, to tinker with, but I did not register for an account since I already have two ISP accounts. However, one can use it with the free content on the MSN site. I also noticed the Win95 CDROM and the MSN CDROM have games on them. I have 48 icons on my desktop, I will have to delete one when ever I add another one or create folders, Microsoft should make a way to make smaller icons on the desktop. I am quite bushed, don't know whether I should go to bed or get out and enjoy the sunshine, probably will go to sleep. CIO

Note:<888> 4/5/98 Sunday 10:40 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks "<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Time to log off. Earth Summit run the Grand National. CIO

Note:<888> 4/5/98 Sunday 9:10 A.M. EST: I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants. I had a ham and smoked chicken sandwich with mayo and mustard. I went downtown and had a cup of "<http://mrscott.com/coffee.htm>"mrscott.com/coffee.htm out of my thermos. I had to borrow some half and half from Starbucks because I was out of milk. I picked up buy two get one free Winston lights at Zyn stationary for $5.50. I walked the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. No discarded computer equipment at the train station office park. I went by the Grand Union and bought two pounds of Asparagus at 99 cents a pound for $2.05, a Tombstone Pizza for $2.99, two Velveeta Cheese and noodle mix for $1.50 each, two percent half gallon of milk for $1.89, Kraft low fat mayo for $1.49, two stove top stuffing corn bread mix for 99 cents each, extra large dozen eggs for $1.49, two one pound packages of Oscar Myer bacon for $1.99 each, and a package of two boneless club steaks at $5.99 a pound for $6.65 for a total of $28.86 after $1.15 can return. I am back home and the headlines in today's Sunday paper are about the Tod's Point Beach lawsuit. I was wondering while walking downtown who won the Grand National over in Liverpool. It is a big horse race and there were no reports on the race results in the morning British press, seems rather strange. It is a bit nippy out this morning, and slightly cloudy. The daffodils seem a bit tinged by cold and the tulips still have about a week to bloom. I saw three swans down by the water, so I guess one of them lost their mate unless I did not see it. Swans mate for life, and if one dies they don't mate again. I conversed briefly with the counter attendant at Starbucks about the lack off Canadians visiting the area anymore. Grand Union at 8 A.M. on Sunday morning is not too busy. Maybe people forgot about daylight savings time jumping forward. I have to make my Sunday MCI five cents a minute phone calls. Have a good day. CIO

 Note:<888> 4/5/98 Sunday 3:45 A.M. EST: I updated my stats page

"http://mrscott.com/stats.htm"mrscott.com/stats.htm to reflect the new stats format on the server. I listened to "http://www.ttalk.com"www.ttalk.com . My system updated me to daylight saving time set ahead automatically one hour, now I have to do all my clocks. I still have not cleaned up myself this morning. I was up at about 10:30 P.M. last night, I am not sure whether I should start cleaning my apartment now, or wait until I get up tomorrow night. CIO

Note:<888> 4/4/98 Saturday 5:50 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I want to make a note that when I installed the CDROM player I connected it to my SoundBlaster SW32 card, not the IDE controller, I also used the black and white tip cable for the audio connect part, used the slave dip pin setting on the CDROM player, and the four screws for mounting the drive did not come in the package, but I had some. Also I had a power lead splitter, taking one of the leads from the power supply and splitting it into two leads. One should make sure they have power source lead when installing a CDROM player. I downloaded Music Master Pro from "http://www.mouse.pp.se/"D i g i t a l - U n d e r g r o u n d © 1998 - Fastest updated mp3 resource on the Net! to try with the CD Player. The CD Player has a play button with Music CDs that plays when you push it without starting a software CD player. Time to rest. CIO

Note:<888> 4/4/98 Saturday 1:10 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index

"http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I went up to COMPUSA in Norwalk this past evening. I found a couple of bargains on sale. I purchase a Akamai 24 X cdrom drive for $40 down from $80. I bought another Kensington mouse in a box for $10. I installed the CDROM drive per instructions and Win95 plug and play recognized it no problem. I don't have any CROM software except Win95 and MS Tech Net Demo, and the player works with the SoundBlaster CD Music Player too. I chatted with a relative about her new computer. I had dinner of and ham and chicken sandwich. I am making "http://mrscott.com/icetea.htm"mrscott.com/icetea.htm . If you are interested in the CDROM player at CompUSA in Norwalk, they only had about seven left. I will take a quick cruise shortly. CIO

Note:<888> 4/3/98 Friday 5:35 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I also downloaded and installed Netscape Communicator Professional Edition from the link at "http://cws.internet.com/32newapps.html"New 32-bit Apps at Stroud's CWSApps List . It is about 19 meg download and compared to earlier versions on a 16 meg memory system, it seems a little bit more responsive. I like it and was thinking of using it regularly, but unfortunately the bookmarks sort feature for some odd reason does not work. Seems sort of queer for Netscape, so I will continue using version 3.04 for now. Any Arabic speaking individuals that need an Arabic web browser, it is finally here at "<http://www.sakhrsoft.com/tech/ic-sind.htm>"Internet Products - Sindbad . I hope they keep sending oil our way, not that I plan to use much. Back to the net. CIO Note:<888> 4/3/98 Friday 12:25 A.M. EST: Apparently the local parishioners at the Presbyterian Church decided to get rid of the Norwegian Spruce because it was too tall. They are going to put in a garden there, hopefully not another one of those stone walls full of the deceased peoples' ashes. I drove down by the water and chatted with a local Danish couple who work in the area in the food industry. I told them what I knew about Denmark in the area. I stopped by the library and chatted with one of our local financial gurus, and told him from my viewpoint in Economics, the Microsoft case scenario tends to make me little nervous, because although they may have about six billion dollars or more in cash stimulating their stock value to over $120 billion dollars, I am not sure what Microsoft's actual tangible negotiable assets are, and for all I know they're sitting on a few hundred million dollars in real estate in Redmond, Washington and the gross value of their assets are $120 billion dollars in intellectual capital rights, which are not worth that much if the economy takes a tail spin. I reminded the guru about Allegany Power on the New York Stock exchange right before the stock market crash of 1929, and I said from every economic scenario I have read over the years, Microsoft reminds me of that case. I also stated that sooner or later the economy is due to go down and town funds like retirement funds should look into investing in financial agents like bonds, which might not go down as much. I also stated that even with computers and Swiss banking and international investment, it is hardly unlikely that the sustained financial growth in the economy particularly in the computer and software industry will be sustained. I basically asked him how one would make money off say five million unemployed software and computer engineers and technicians working at home in a depressed economy. I stated that since 40 million Americans work outside the country, one probably could make money exporting their services to where they are needed worldwide, providing other world economies had the funds to pay for their services. Basically the Japanese have been doing this for the last ten years. As I stated before the Japanese give away the hardware and software product and sell the computer services that are needed to operate them. Eventually we might be headed in the same direction on a worldwide basis, particularly as we approach a glut of product in the industry. Well that is my viewpoint from West Greenwich, Connecticut better known as Byram. I went to bed at 6 P.M. and got up at 11 P.M., and I will do a little internet work before sleeping once again this morning. I heard quite a few planes arriving about 11 P.M., so possibly one of our local celebrity visitors is in the area or just the usual business group winding up their weekday workweek adventures. I will update Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm before I post this note. CIO

Note:<888> 4/2/98 Thursday 1:35 P.M. EST: Today a great tragedy befell the town of Greenwich, for some odd reason the Presbyterian Church downtown had the stately Norwegian Spruce at least 100 feet tall chopped down. A local friend of mine told me there was nothing wrong with it and he should know. Since one local family that belongs to that Church donate a tree to Rockefeller center every year, I would imagine that they should find a suitable replacement. Of course tall trees are prone to falling over and maybe the church's insurance company would not cover it. It seems strange that the Town's tree warden did not alert the town and suitable debate taken up. In other news I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York and took out most of my money and went down to the Post Office and got money orders to pay my automobile insurance, electricity, cablevision, telephone; and then I walked around downtown and said hello to Tom Ragland our first selectman and joked they still say that somebody that looks like me lives in Oyster Bay. He also has seen the guy. I suppose coming from an Old Manhattan family I might look like one of those Dutch hill billys around Sagamore Hill, we all do tend to have the same family look. There were only 2,000 people in Manhattan in 1700 so they were sort of inbred and probably still are. One old gal Helen I knew in Oyster Bay was always trying to encourage the youngsters along the sound to sail, so that in traversing the sound youngsters in Greenwich and neighboring communities would meet youngsters in Oyster Bay and neighboring communities, which they have been doing for centuries. A lot of the old grand parents are very traditional, so I have always tried to keep an eye on the waterfront for arriving guests from across the sound, although everyone know I myself am a lousy sailor. Since President Clinton's main supporters seem to come from the North Shore of Long Island, I suggested a way of diplomacy would be to run the Island Beach Ferry from Greenwich over to Oyster Bay and let the citizens from both competing factions conduct diplomacy and see what results. Still since certain families have been running rum off this coast for close to 400 years, we always out maneuver the different competing factions when it comes to nautical trade, commerce, and diplomacy. Thus keep a keen eye to the Sound and remember the old Boston Expression when dealing with the British, "One If By Land, Two If By Sea". I went to the Mews thrift shop and they have a nice personal billiards cue for $30 that spits in half and goes into a smaller case. It does not seem warped. I enquired as to one of their senior guests, who I have not seen in more than a year, but he is a quite formidable gentleman and commands a great deal of respect. I then went asked the local traffic officer about the new police cars, and he said they are taking delivery of the new dark blue Fiords about one a week. I then stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop and most everything is half price. I purchased a nice setting of four game bird place mats for $8.75. I next went by the Union Trust Bank or what ever it is called now, and paid my rent. I then noticed they had cut down the Norwegian Spruce, and everyone there seemed perturbed. I next went by the library and they are working on opening up the new parking garage which is still not open. I read the paper and looked at the art exhibit of flower paintings. I then told a local European citizen I though it would be about three weeks until all the tulips are out in the Netherlands and he should take a group of our traveling citizens to look at the tulips. He said that having a family from Freizeland, there is either West or East Freizeland and Gronigan is in West Freizeland. I told him that a friend of mine that lived with the Krumps said that Frederick's Palace was an artistic delight. I've seen pictures of the restoration and it did seem a place of refuge, much like the Hermitage. I told one of the library's senior patrons about the Norwegian Spruce being cut down. He seemed fit and fine. I returned home and conferred with a local landscaping expert and he said that tree was just fine. O'Brien tree company cut down that tree, and I feel like sending Scott's team of lumber jacks, which if you don't believe they exist check out Canada, over to Ireland to cut down the oldest tree to see what they would think. They Norwegian Spruce was only about 70 years old, but one should not recklessly cut down older trees in landscaped environments without consultation with the experts. Of course Malcom Pray will now save $5,000 a year not having to donate money for the Christmas Tree lights, so if he wants to send it my way, I will gratefully except it, the Presbyterian Church like Christ Church obviously has more money than God, but they like to maintain a low profile. Rumor on the Street has it after all the inflated money on Wall Street collapses, the Bank of Scotland will be the last solvent bank in the World, of course the North Sea Oil helps out a bit there. I have a 3 P.M. appointment and I am getting a little tired. CIO

Note:<888> 4/2/98 Thursday 4:30 A.M. EST: Listened to Loch Ness button BBC news reports. Trying Clicking on the Loch Ness or Dino button icons of my homepage for BBC news reports. With all the old timers in Greenwich, there is not that much news, since most of them are getting ready for their summer gardening and golf games. The daffodils are just about out and should look great with this rain, and the tulips are half way up. Believe it or not in a town the size "Area Wise the size of Washington D.C.", there is a tremendous amount of gardening going on to care for the town and maintain its parks and other natural habitats. It all does not happen by magic. Still it keeps a lot of people occupied. I believe I spent a lot of years here maintaining my family's properties, and most of my friends are competent gardeners. Of course one has to own property to garden, and I recently have not had the good fortune of having my own plot, but I do observe others' endeavors. For a breath of spring downtown, visit the McArdle McMillan greenhouse downtown, or if you are into more heavy duty landscaping Schemins Nurseries on King Street have large amounts of trees, shrubs, bushes, and the necessary items to landscape one's environment. I always enjoy the plantings around the Post Office and the veterans monuments downtown, and Christ Church's grounds were designed by Olmstead of Central Park fame. Of course local experts would know whether certain transplanted items would survive, and more esoteric individuals who can afford the energy costs maintain greenhouses with tropical varieties such as orchids. I still remember visiting Planting Fields Arboretum at Locust Valley, Long Island when the Azaleas were out for a botanical wonder. So lets here it for Greenwich's clever gardeners. The rain was very useful for keeping Greenwich green. CIO

Note:<888> 4/2/98 Thursday 3:00 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Check out

"<http://www.oohoo.com>"www.oohoo.com . CIO

Note:<888> 4/2/98 Thursday 2:30 A.M. EST: I went out at about 11:30 P.M. and bought three three packs of buy two get one free of Winston lights. I still have to quit smoking some time soon. I sat out after midnight and had a cup of coffee out of my trusty thermos and took a walk around downtown. All the office equipment in the dumpster is getting wet with the rain, but who cares. I suppose the elves at IBM can come up with some more. I noticed a new Greenwich police car around town. It looked to be dark blue instead of light blue, so maybe we have a new fleet of cars coming in. I did not see many lights on down by the harbor. I noticed one of our local scuba experts and his wife coming back from an event. The Dome restaurant was not busy, and the yuppie crowd seems to have floated back to Tucson. The water did not accumulate in front of the Nat West building on Steamboat Road as usual, so they must have fixed the storm drain. I will be out about 8:30 A.M. to pay my monthly bills. I will then have to consult with the printing department about printing up more currency, by the time D.C. spends it on all its world travels, it is pretty old money by the time it gets back to us. I voted for the Alumni Trustee at the Taft School that is on the board of directors of the Marblehead Yacht Club. I believe Lipton Tea use to be represented at the Marblehead Yacht Club as well at the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. I have not seen any sites on the America's Cup, so I suppose no one is interested in it anymore. With the economy doing so well, one would think the Wall Street investment bankers could do a better job of trying to win back the cup for Newport, but I hear tell the Newport establishment does not care to have the Americas Cup riff raff messing up their historical village of oceanside cottages. Well it is too early for the summer social season, so don't forget to get ready for the

Easter and plan your Mother's Day adventures. Back to net activity. CIO

Note:<888> 4/1/98 Wednesday 7:20 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I was up at 5 P.M. and listened "<http://www.dailybriefing.com>"www.dailybriefing.com while having breakfast. It is raining outside. I guess I will go out after cleaning up for a short while. I probably will be back surfing the net this evening. CIO

Note:<888> 4/1/98 Wednesday 9:00 A.M. EST: I have been updating the OS/2 and Win 3.1 dialer and web browsers on the backup 386 machine. I have the dialers updated and working. I installed the OS/2 Netscape 2.02 web browser on the backup OS/2 386 system. I setup the other 386 which is missing the serial LPT card on the left side with the primary backup 386 on the right. I put my directory on the primary 386 backup. I am a little bushed and will go to bed shortly. Today looks like it will be a nice day. CIO

Note:<888> 4/1/98 Wednesday 2:45 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . CIO

Note:<888> 4/1/98 Wednesday 12:20 A.M. EST: Today I went out and stopped by Entree Computer Store. They did not have the computer serial - LPT card which runs about $8. I will have to check out COMPUSA later for it. I drove down by the water and met up with my dinner guest. One the way back I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a half gallon of 2 percent milk and a dozen eggs for $4.29, talk about no inflation. We came back home and I fixed him a ham sandwich. We watched a videotape of Paul Newman in "Nobody's Fool". I went out at 9 P.M. after my guest left and walked around the train station and the full length of Greenwich Avenue. I noticed a telephone call center computer in the dumpster at the train station. They have a nice white Bentley Convertible in the Roll Royce showroom. I noticed a couple having a domestic dispute at Lewis Street and the avenue. I stopped by the Food Emporium and bought a Swanson Hungry Man Dinner Sirloin Tips for $3.69. I also purchased two Tropicana Grove Style half gallons for $1.69 each, two Bournier Dijon mustards for $1.79 each, Ruffles Barbeque potato chips for 99 cents, Birds Eye pearl onions $1.29, two buy one get one free Hormel cold cuts for $2.99. I also noticed they have London broil for $4.69 a pound, buy one get one free. I stopped by the Shell station for a pack of Marlboro lights for $2.75. I was told while down town that the Clinton scandal is much more extensive, and that he openly admits to over 300 affairs. It seems rather odd the Justice Department special prosecutor is wasting $50 million on the Paula Jones case. At that rate per gal, it will cost justice $15 billion to investigate the Clinton sex scandal. The real scandal is the way the government employees are wasting the tax payers money on such nonsense. Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888> 4/16/98 Thursday 11:40 P.M. EST: Dinner guest departed 8 P.M.. I went by the library and checked out the video Rasputin. I mentioned to one of the tech regulars that the computer hardware manufacturers need to develop a universal ethernet type connection for laptop computers, so that the traveling and the mobile public can hook up to an internet connection wherever they go at T10 speed or better. Possibly a universal wireless connection might be the way to go, but whatever the way, we should keep the rate for overall usage at about $20 a month, which might be possible as prices for the more advanced services come down. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a can of smoked almonds and a bottle of Grand Union lemon juice. I came home and watched the movie Rasputin while eating the smoked almonds and a bag of microwave popcorn. I am now making a batch of

"<http://mrscott.com/icetea.htm>"mrscott.com/icetea.htm . I will surf the net for a while and catch up on my email. CIO

Note:<888> 4/16/98 Thursday 5:40 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I went out for a walk last night. I watched Bonfire of the Vanities. I went to bed about 2 A.M.. I got up at 10 A.M. and had breakfast. I listened to "<http://www.dailybriefing.com>"www.dailybriefing.com . I slept a little more until 2 P.M.. I tinkered with my system a bit. I am having a dinner guest down for dinner of chicken sandwiches, broccoli crowns, and potatoes. CIO

Note:<888> 4/15/98 Wednesday 5:55 P.M. EST: Updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . The sun is out and I think I will listen to "<http://www.dailybriefing.com>"www.dailybriefing.com while I cook boneless breast chicken with garlic and wine for dinner with broccoli and potato. CIO

Note:<888> 4/15/98 Wednesday 4:25 P.M. EST: This early A.M. I watched a little of the Titanic special on MSNBC channel 77. I was up about noon finally and went by the Hospital Thrift Shop and dropped off an old nine pin IBM printer. I went down by the water and checked out the weather. It is a damp overcast day. I went by the library and read Computer World and InfoWorld. I checked out "Teach Yourself C in 24 Hours" and "Official Microsoft HTML Help Authoring" both of which come with Cdroms. I went back down the avenue. I stopped by the Grand Union and purchased .70 broccoli crowns at .99 a pound, Sun and Earth Dishwashing liquid detergent $1.29, Tony's four cheese pizza $2.50, Maine 10 pounds of potatoes $2.99, Jumbo dozen eggs $1.59, 2% half gallon milk $1.84, and buy one get one free two packs of Purdue boneless chicken breasts for $4.99 or with the free one $2.50 a pound for both packs $5.64 plus $1.05 can return for a total of $15.58. I put away the groceries and will post this note after I update Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm .

Note:<888> 4/14/98 Tuesday 11:55 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I tinkered with CGI Search scripts this afternoon and this evening to no avail. I will take a rest now for a while. I have not been out or cleaned up today. CIO

Note:<888> 4/13/98 Monday 11:10 P.M. EST: I went downtown and walked around for a while in the full moon light. Lots of youngsters were out to see the new movie "Lost in Space". It was not too busy at Starbucks or any of the local cafes, basically a quiet Monday night. I noticed Starbucks has refurbished itself with comfortable living room style upholstered furniture instead of the hard metal chair stools of the past. Thus one can sit around and be a lounge lizard, but still I prefer the bench in front of the senior center for star gazing and one can always sneak a smoke. I have noticed the new sports model of Mercedes around town. I am not sure if it is the $130,000 model or $45,000 model, they all look the same to me. Also there are a few of the new VW beetles floating around. I saw a Rolls Royce coupe today painted army green, it might be the new model, it was hard to tell. People in Greenwich either drive new cars or older models, there is usually not much in between. Basically the Euro Style individuals like foreign cars and the practical people drive American cars. I suppose it really depends on how much driving one does. I did stop by the library again this evening for about a half hour and read some of the computer press. There is an article by Lou Gerstner in Computer World on encryption technology and IBM. They have temporary lights on the second floor of the new library structure which they leave on at night. It look very surreal at night, I suppose it will look more uniform once it is all finished in about a year and a half. Lets hope the present entrance elevator lasts that long, it is getting a lot of use. Well back to net surfing. CIO

Note:<888> 4/13/98 Monday 8:10 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I went out at 3 P.M.. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I went down Greenwich Avenue and checked out Long Island Sound. I made my 4 P.M. appointment. I went by CVS drugstore on Greenwich Avenue and bought Gillette Shaving Gel for $1.99, ACT II popcorn 2 boxes of three for 88 cents apiece, and sugar candy gumdrops for 88 cents. I went by the Greenwich Library and read the local paper, not much in it as usual. I went by the Grand Union and bought a 12 pack of diet Sprite for $1.99, Tony's 4 cheese pizza for $2.50, 2% milk half gallon for $1.84 for a total of $7.05 with can deposit. I went by the Food Emporium and purchased a bag of 8 o'clock red bag coffee for $3.49, a bag of French Roast coffee for $3.49, a bag of Bokar coffee for $3.79, a bag of Columbian coffee for $4.49 and a box of "I Can't Believe It's Not Butter Light" for $1.69 for a total of $16.95. I next went by Dunkin donuts and bought a pound of Hazelnut coffee beans for $6.99. I returned home and mixed the four A&P coffees and the Hasslenut coffee beans together with the rest of my existing mixture to make my coffee blend,

"<http://mrscott.com/coffee.htm>"mrscott.com/coffee.htm . I noticed there was lots of scandalous gossip in the supermarket tabloids. I next made dinner of cold chicken breast, pasta fraiche, corn bread stuffing, green peas, diet Coca-Cola, and then I had a cup of the new coffee blend. I guess I will go out for a breath of fresh air after I file this report. CIO

Note:<888> 4/13/98 Monday 2:10 P.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I am about to clean up and go out. CIO

Note:<888> 4/13/98 Monday 12:00 P.M. EST: Yesterday I got up at 2 P.M.. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants after breakfast. I went downtown about 6 P.M. and walked around for a couple of hours and enjoyed the cool evening. I came home and had cold chicken breast, pasta fraise, corn bread stuffing, green peas, and diet Coca-Cola for dinner. I went downtown at 9 P.M. and sat out and had coffee out of my thermos. I returned home at 10 P.M. and started doing laundry. While downtown I found the county brochure for Highland County, Michigan that one of our visitors had left in the park. I gave it to the desk sergeant on duty at the police station. I noticed Pontiac, Michigan is in Highland County. While doing laundry I started watching the video "Independence Day". I folded the laundry half way through and also received a telephone call concerning a tech problem. I went to bed a 3 A.M.. I was up at 11 A.M. this morning and had bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, orange juice, and coffee for breakfast. I will shower shortly and maybe do a little web surfing or go out. I have a 4 P.M. appointment this afternoon. CIO

Note:<888> 4/12/98 Sunday Easter 3:00 A.M. EST: I listened to

"<http://www.ttalk.com>"www.ttalk.com . I updated Exxon

"<http://mrscott.com/122.htm>"mrscott.com/122.htm and Exxon Promo page

"<http://mrscott.com/exxon01.htm>"mrscott.com/exxon01.htm and Royal Dutch Shell

"<http://mrscott.com/138.htm>"mrscott.com/138.htm . I also updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I think I will call it a day. CIO

Note:<888> 4/11/98 Saturday 10:30 P.M. EST: I went back to bed. I went out about 11 A.M.. I dropped off my old RCA color television at the Hospital Thrift Shop. I went by Exxon and filled up the tank with $10 premium. Exxon next to the library sells liquefied natural gas for vehicles. I noticed on the internet Buckingham Palace is going to convert part of its fleet to natural gas. I hope they leave the Daimlers and Rolls gasoline fueled since the resale value would be higher if they were gasoline fueled. I am not sure how much of the Queen's fleet this directive extends too, I assume it is just the household vehicles and not all of her majesties worldwide vehicles such as military transport, etc. I next went by the library and checked out "Independence Day" video. I drove down to Tod's Point and took the three mile walk around the park on a nice moderately cool sunny day. Quite a few other people were out there. I noticed that they are going to replace some of the stumps along the roadway with new trees. Caution should be exercised when selecting trees to be placed along the roadway since the area is prone to flooding, so any tree that might die from saltwater flooding should not be used. I drove home and had two tuna fish sandwiches. I went back downtown and had coffee out of my thermos at the French park or the town green. I noticed quite a few people strolling. I walked around a bit and sat in front of the senior center. I drove down to Grass Island and observed the waterfront. I returned home and listened to a two hour opera on television and had a dinner of cold chicken breast, pasta fraiche, asparagus, and ice tea. I went downtown and sat in front of the senior center and had coffee out of my thermos. I walked around downtown. On the way back home I noticed the fire engines and police had blocked off the block west of Greenwich Avenue on Putnam Avenue. I will relax for the rest of the evening. CIO

Note:<888> 4/11/98 Saturday 7:10 A.M. EST: I had a couple of friends come over yesterday. I checked out an HP printer that one of them brought to test. It needs a little round rubber roller to keep the printer from jamming, but works otherwise. I fixed a Purdue chicken for dinner and watched "Our American Cousin". I went to bed about 9 P.M. and was up at 6 A.M. this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 4/23/98 Thursday 5:55 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was down about 1% today. I was up at 1:30 P.M.. I had breakfast and made it to my 3 P.M. appointment. I found a $5 bill outside my appointment place. I went by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop and they have a recent wide carriage Panasonic KPX printer in the back room not on display yet for $40 and a nice 17 inch Toshiba color television in the back room. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and checked out the rainy day over Long Island Sound. I stopped by the Greenwich train station office park lower parking lot dumpster, and they have about 200 or more brown bricks without masonry on them in the large dumpster. They would make a good patio or garden liner. They also have an Exit sign in the dumpster. I went by the Greenwich library and checked out "The Bridges of Madison Country" video. I mentioned to one of our financial wizards that if Microsoft were split up in several parts by antitrust action, the separate parts would be worth much more in value than the entire company now. I also stated Microsoft's real value is determined by the amount of cash it holds not to mention expected profits. I also stated that intellectual property rights in the computer industry are usually short term as the technology changes. I also stated I don't think the antitrust action against Microsoft is warranted since the Windows 95 and Windows 98 operating systems along with its other software, supports tens of thousands of hardware devices and their manufacturers along with software developers which no other operating system does. Thus Microsoft by supporting a large number of hardware devices and software programs in its operating systems has expanded the Computer and Software industry tremendously and encouraged its growth, not to mention the general public seems to find it a user friendly product at a reasonable price. The mass appeal of the MS Windows product is ample proof, they have listened to the general public and developed their product so as to be desirable and useful to the average user in much the same way Henry Ford developed the Model T. There is nothing wrong with success and the alleged antitrust practices of Microsoft are just its useful attempt to maintain the standards of its products as they are incorporated into the resale marketplace. It is the profits of the successful products that have enabled the MS developers to continually upgrade them to even better platform quality. Just after I finished that lecture, I stated I do not own any stock and that is my opinion is from 9 years of research on the matter. I also stated that the Securities and Exchange commission should look into "Inside Trading" on Internet stocks, since whenever a news story is released such as an AOL deal the stock is usually bought sometimes before the news story is released. I am well aware that Wall Street gossips all the time and by the time we read the news on the internet, it is just the final result and the trades have already been made. I said hello to one of the Library's senior patrons and he mentioned he had bought a MAC computer, but does not have it hooked up to the internet yet. I read InfoWorld. The library's elevator is broken today, so people have to enter by the garage through the cafe. I noticed a copy of the 1997 GE annual report on one of the desks in business research area which I did not read. One can not do much better than General Electric, particularly if one wants to keep the lights burning at night. Well back to net. CIO

Note:<888> 4/23/98 Thursday 9:00 A.M. EST: I'm still at it. I put a few more links in recent bookmarks "<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I listened to Bill Gates Comdex address. I changed the format of my broadcast page

"<http://mrscott.com/sound.htm>"mrscott.com/sound.htm . I use the Plug in feature of FrontPage express and named the RealAudio file with a *.rpm extension to get the MS IE plug in to play real time, unfortunately with Netscape you have to wait for the entire file to load, and one can only have one file to a page or more than one plug in would try to load simultaneously with a Netscape browser, but with MS IE its fine. I also made a Scott's library page of my personal library "<http://mrscott.com/scottlib.htm>"mrscott.com/scottlib.htm which is sadly neglected with all the time I have spent on the computer the last eight and a half years. I dare say I have not read many books in the last three and half years on the internet either. I will now try to rest and be up at 1 P.M. for a 3 P.M. appointment. CIO

Note:<888> 4/23/98 Thursday 4:30 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I received email from Yahoo that they are going to finally update my link for "Scott's Internet Hotlist" at their site after two years of trying. I submitted the form ten times this time, maybe that makes a difference. I will listen to some tech news and try to relax a bit, I might be awake this morning if I take a nap soon. CIO

Note:<888> 4/23/98 Thursday 2:15 A.M. EST: I had dinner of sautéed in olive oil center cut pork chop with onion and garlic in white wine, potato, spinach, and diet Coca-Cola. I took a shower and cleaned up. I went out with my trusty thermos of

"<http://mrscott.com/coffee.htm>"mrscott.com/coffee.htm . I sat downtown and noticed the late night crowd clearing out. I noticed one of the downtown regulars coming back home, and I noticed a regular departing the Dome restaurant in a black Ferrari convertible. I walked the bottom of the Avenue and saw the band at Thataways disbanding. I sat out for a while, and drove down by the water and observed the darkened harbor. I began to get a little indigestion from the olive oil in the pork chop mixed with the coffee for the second night in a row, so I returned home quickly to relieve myself. Greenwich does not provide public facilities for visitors at night, so one can use Starbucks until they close or Ben and Jerry's fairly easily and the Lexington Harbor

Inn down by the water has a public bathroom. The restaurants tend to be less friendly to non patrons. I have recommended that the town install a public lieu for all the night time visitors, but I suppose they don't want the transients trying to sleep in it, so they don't provide that service. The train station is also usually closed at night and frequently on weekends. Thus for the older generation that has to relief themselves more frequently, Greenwich can be a user unfriendly type of place. I have noticed quite a few chairman of the board types galloping off into the park downtown in the evening to relieve themselves by a tree, not to mention we have thousands of visitors a day. I suggested they put a public lieu behind the senior center in the vest pocket park across from the police station entrance, but I am not sure anyone would fine it there. Of course in the day time the library is always handy. I remember when I lived in Nantucket originally they did not have any public facilities downtown for the tourists except the bathroom in the ice cream parlors. With thousands of families day tripping they finally put in a public facility. Generally municipalities don't address this problem until somebody considered important addresses the need. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888> 4/22/98 Wednesday 11:35 P.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . There are lots of new IBM links from IBM's new homepage. I will work on the bookmark a bit more tonight. Microsoft has posted "<http://www.microsoft.com/msft/html/earnq398.htm>"Microsoft Third Quarter 1998 Earnings. I am about to cook the same dinner as last night, I am hungry. CIO

Note:<888> 4/22/98 Wednesday 8:15 P.M. EST: Rip Van Winkles finally awake here. I updated

Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I have been told internet stocks have been taking off recently. I look at Mecklermedia Internet News

"<http://www.internetnews.com>"www.internetnews.com every day, and they have been mentioning N2K which took off, by the same token if you looked at my bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bookalph.htm>"mrscott.com/bookalph.htm or recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm , the internet companies that have repeats would be more than likely be the ones mentioned by the Internet news and the Internet media, which one might consider for investing. Let me caution, that there are tens of thousands of internet companies, so before investing in them, find out what their actual assets are and what their profits are not to mention what product or technology that they offer. I dare say the giants we hear the most about will be the most profitable since they have the capability of delivering a product to market and not just producing a site. I will post the update listen to

"<http://www.dailybriefing.com>"www.dailybriefing.com while I clean up and possibly go out and wait until the internet speeds up depending how fast it is going now. CIO

Note:<888> 4/22/98 Wednesday 6:40 A.M. EST: I fiddled with the demos on the MS MSN 2.5 cdrom and also did a full reinstall of all the MS IE 4.01 programs on the cdrom. I had to reset my MTU speed setting to optimize, MTU = 1152 and Multiplier = 6 after doing the full reinstall. I also updated the Music Controls from the MS IE 4.01 update link. The system seems a little smoother and quicker, since over time certain key files might have been changed or altered by other programs. Remember when doing an MS IE 4.01 update, one should not have long Netscape bookmarks or it will take forever to import it. I also got an error about the Java files not being installed, but the java previously on the system has it all working fine. I am off to bed. CIO

Note:<888> 4/22/98 Wednesday 12:40 A.M. EST: I went out and drove down by the water and checked out the weather. I checked out the computer dumping spot and there is a only a case there with power supply for the last few days. I went by the library and read three weekly computer publications. I still have to read InfoWorld. I noticed that in the back of one of them, you can get a new 200 mhz tower system with 32 megs ram, 2 gig hard drive, 24X cdrom player, X2 modem, and 3 1/2 floppy drive, I assume with some sort of video card or chip for $500 without the operating system. Sort of goes to show it does not pay to upgrade with parts. I checked out "XML Complete" and "Jumping Java Script" both with Cdroms. I went home and read some of XML complete and then cooked dinner of sautéed center cut pork chop with garlic and white wine and onions, asparagus, and potato. I went out at 10 P.M. and had my coffee downtown out of the thermos. I walked around the bottom of the Avenue. It was pretty much deserted downtown per usual on Tuesday night. I came home and finished the second chapter of XML complete. I don't think I will try to learn XML, but just familiarize myself with the concepts. I assume some sort of XML editor will be available in the future with common java libraries and templates for the average user. I have a MS MSN cdrom version 2.5 that I received today which I will install, but not register to MSN to see if there are any new improvements or possible system upgrades. I noticed in the press that the University of Illinois is connected with the new high speed internet link, I can't imagine what they need all that band width for. It is about 5 billion bytes a second, or the entire Encyclopedia Britannica in one second. I will then do a little of my regular net activity. CIO

Note:<888> 4/21/98 Tuesday 5:15 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was up quite a bit in the last two days with all the dividends and stock splits. I also updated Scott's broadcast at "<http://mrscott.com/sound.htm>"mrscott.com/sound.htm for my infrequent commentary on the internet. It is a nice day and after I upload the files, I will clean up and go outside and enjoy the evening. CIO

Note:<888> 4/21/98 Tuesday 6:30 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Time to call it a day. Ciao, by the way today is Earth Day, I believe, so take a Holiday. CIO

Note:<888> 4/21/98 Tuesday 2:00 A.M. EST: IBM's first quarter 1998 results should be available from this link today "<http://www.ibm.com/Investor/1q98earnings.html>"IBM announces first-quarter 1998 results. CIO

Note:<888> 4/21/98 Tuesday 1:45 A.M. EST: I did not get a chance to update Scott's Index today, since I tried it at 1:30 A.M. which was too late to record changes. I suppose one has to do it before midnight. I went downtown at about 9 P.M. this past evening and had Cafe Au Lait at Starbucks. I sat in front of the senior center and drank it and walked around the bottom of the avenue for a little exercise. I came home about 10:30 P.M. and had dinner. I got to thinking while I was relaxing after reading Sunday's paper about the tropics. I was wondering how big Caymans get in the tropics. The Encyclopedia says that average is about 15 feet, so I was wondering if there are giant Caymans about 50 feet long, and whether they ever bother individuals living around waterfront properties in the tropics. One hears a lot of fish stories, but it is impossible to tell what the real story is. Greenwich was very quiet this evening and not much was going on. I have not done much net surfing yet. I played classical music all day today while I was sleeping since they had a big front end digging machine tear up the front of the building for drainage again today, when I went out this evening it was all finished and the blacktop was put in over the repair. It was a little noisy, but I managed to sleep fairly well. They are going to have a mock hurricane Janet disaster drill this week, where the area prepares for a category three hurricane. Let's hope it does not happen anytime soon. The new Perot Library addition for children in Old Greenwich is supposedly open now. It was in the mid 50s this evening, not quite warm enough to be comfortable sitting outside for long periods of time. The tulips look great.

Off to webville for a while. CIO

Note:<888> 4/20/98 Monday 5:20 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I am a bit bushed, so I will call it a day. CIO

Note:<888> 4/20/98 Monday 2:40 A.M. EST: I went out at 12:30 A.M. after dinner for a walk in the rain with my umbrella. It gradually quit raining and no one was out. I stopped by and chatted with the regular night clerk at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. She had a recent tragedy in the family. I noticed they have redecorated the lobby and they put in a light Burberry carpet with Empire furniture which shows all the dirt from traffic, they probably need to put in the same pattern with the dark brown Burberry pattern, so as not to show the traffic. While chatting a long black Lincoln Continental limousine pulled up with a passenger all dressed in black that looked a little bit like a priest. I was given a free copy of the Sunday Greenwich Times that has headlines about the Moxley investigation that has been going on for about 25 years. I will have to read it when I have the time. I am back home and the laundry is done. I guess the old guard won't be coming north until about the third week in May, since it is still cool up here. The tulips look great in the cold damp rain. The tulips should be out in full force next week in the Netherlands, since they are about a week to two week behind us in the weather. I dare say there are millions of Dutch Americans who have planted tulips all over North America, and in the old days when the Dutch were short of money, they used tulips for currency. Thus institutions like Williamsburg, Orange Universities like Princeton reflect the House of Orange and William and Mary. The Dutch are obviously well represented in the Americas. I heard disturbing news today that Robert Schuler's wife of the Crystal Cathedral in Garden Grove, California had a heart attack while visiting the Pope in Rome and she is recovering. Let us all pray for her speedy recovery, not to mention all of the other closer dear friends and relatives. It is peaceful and quiet this morning. Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888> 4/19/98 Sunday 11:55 P.M. EST: I went downtown yesterday and walked around Tod's Point with a guest. I fixed chicken with garlic and wine along with herbal rice and broccoli for dinner and then watched the movie " Time Machine". It is interesting that Rod Taylor the actor in the movie looks a lot like Robin Williams the more recent actor. I went for a walk downtown after my guest left and bought a jar of peanuts for $2.99. I returned home and watched a Romance classic movie on Channel 91 on Optimum TV about the RAF bombing Monte Carlo during World World II. I went to bed about 3 A.M. and was up around 2 P.M. today. I made Aunt Jamaima pancakes with Log Cabin Syrup for breakfast. I chatted with family members and friends on MCI five cents a minute. I chatted with one young friend who has returned from teaching English in Germany. He said it is very peaceful and safe in Germany and plans to return to live there. While chatting with him he mentioned two police officers had been shot in Daytona today during spring break. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants. I was told while chatting that a CITGO gasoline station is very busy in Florida selling premium gasoline for $1.07 a gallon when we pay $1.47 a gallon here at Exxon. I went out for a walk in the evening about 9 P.M. It was pouring rain out heavily and not many people were out. I saw a GMC from Vermont with PGA for a license plate. Starbucks closes at 10 P.M. on Sunday night. I went by the Grand Union which closes at 11 P.M. on Sunday and bought a gallon 2% milk for $2.29, GU 9 slices pizza $2.29, GU fresh orange juice $1.99, boneless center cut pork chops for $3.05 @ $2.99 a pound, gallon Purex detergent $2.50, I Can't Believe Its Not Butter for $1.29, pint of Strawberries for 99 cents, and Early Morning bacon $1.79 for a pound and asparagus for $1.49 a pound thus $1.65. I noticed that the Vidalia Onions at 89 cents a pound are awfully soft probably because of the frost down around Georgia a month ago. Also they have sirloin steaks for $1.99 a pound which I will get later in the week. I stopped by the laundromat and saw a friend of my friend back from Germany and told him that he is back. They were trying to avoid the heavy rain. I noticed the laundry mat proprietor was removing many pounds of lint from the dryers which might be recycled into something like felt. I came home and put the groceries away and started my laundry and am now doing the drying. I noticed at the Grand Union laundry it is now $1.50 a machine which shows how prices have gone up unlike what the birds at the Department of Commerce say about the social security cost of living index which they are trying to reduce by about 2 percent. I think the Federal government has lost touch with prices and they should take a close look at what things really cost. Obviously there has been substantial inflations and the shysters in Washington D.C. are trying to cover it up. I imagine a great many people on Social Security will be up in arms when the Federal government tries to reduce them by about 2 percent. Basically they should look at what things really cost, not what some near sighted accountant wished things cost. If it weren't for sale items, a great many of us would have a hard time breaking even. I will have some left over chicken and rice for dinner with broccoli. I will then fold the laundry and then surf the net a bit. Have a good night and I hope no one got too wet this evening in the pouring rain. CIO

Note:<888> 4/17/98 Friday 5:25 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I also added links to the recent bookmark "<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm this morning on Lanzerote for those who need to get away. I also did key word searches on my search engine

"<http://mrscott.com/search.html>"mrscott.com/search.html to see the results that were returned. It is a little slow but returns accurate results. I can not use a server search engine since I don't control my server at "<http://www.valueweb.net>"www.valueweb.net . I was to bed at 6 A.M. and up at noon. I had breakfast of Oscar Myers bacon, scrambled three eggs, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins. I watched a little of CNN and at 2:19 P.M. I recorded the NASA

"<http://mrscott.com/nasa.htm>"mrscott.com/nasa.htm Space Shuttle launch on my VCR. I went out shortly there after and stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York, the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop, ELDC thrift "<http://mrscott.com/thrift.htm>"mrscott.com/thrift.htm and then drove down by the shore and checked the weather. It was overcast, but now the sun is out now. I stopped by the library and read the local paper, and they have an article on model rocketry. I checked out the video "Time Machine". I went down the avenue and by the Arnold bakery outlet store, and bought two loaves of Healthnut bread for $2.58 and a Entenmanns Raspberry Danish for $1.29 and I got a second one free. Apparently the I-95 turnpike North in Byram, "West Greenwich" was backed up last night at about 7 P.M. when a trailer truck started leaking and fuming fumes from a Hydrochloric Acid load it was carrying.

"<http://www.scorecard.org>"www.scorecard.org has information on EPA problems and if you want a vacation to Ireland check out "<http://www.shamrock.org>"www.shamrock.org for travel this summer. Not much happening. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888> 4/17/98 Friday 2:10 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . Time to call it a day.

CIO

Note:<888> 4/30/98 Thursday 9:30 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks
"http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I will go out shortly for a spot of daylight. I have to stay up today since I have a 3 P.M. appointment. CIO

Note:<888> 4/30/98 Thursday 6:15 A.M. EST: After dinner I had coffee and watched the "Bridges of Madison County" and then took an hour nap. I suppose I will have to face the daytime people today who think they know it all, but I think it is suppose to rain anyway. Back to the Net. CIO

Note:<888> 4/30/98 Thursday 2:15 A.M. EST: I reorganized my desktop icons into folders to cleanup the desktop. I wrote the letter and cleaned up. I went by the Grand Union and bought two 12 packs of Minute Maid orange soda for $1.99 each, a spray container of Windex window cleaner for $1.99, and nine different varieties of Ramen noodles from .16 to .35 for a total of 9.47 with can deposit. I noticed a fancy gray Mercedes sports car in the parking lot. They seem to be popular around here. I went downtown and walked around. I noticed at the other dumpster at the train station office park, they have a bag with about 100 soda cans on top of it that would be worth about $5. I found a Wilson Pro Staff number 8 golf ball. I had a smoke in front in front of the senior center and some idiots shinned their headlights in my face for a half hour. I noticed a number of the young kids like looking at the video game on the bar at the Sundown Saloon after it closes. I picked up a five pack of buy four get one free of Marlboro lights at the Shell station for $11.19. I noticed the usual night attendant is not on. I came back and started the same poached salmon dinner as last night. In the garlic wine herb sauce in a Pyrex dish, I put the cut slices of zucchini with Vidalia onion quarters along with the salmon. I put a little Dijon mustard on top of the salmon along with the chopped garlic. I made a quick bowl of ramen noodles to starve off hunger until dinner. I make ramen noodles by putting the flavor packet in the bottom of a quart Rubbermaid container press in the dried noodles and put in a cup of water and microwave it all on high for five minutes. It is quick inexpensive snack. I also noticed at the Grand Union the fellow from the Motley Fool "<http://www.fool.com>"www.fool.com is going to speak at Christ Church according to the poster at the entrance. Well back to net after dinner. CIO

Note:<888> 4/29/98 Wednesday 10:00 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index
"http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I was up at about 8 P.M. and had breakfast. I will write a letter and then go out and mail it and take a walk in about 1 1/2 hours to 2 hours. CIO

Note:<888> 4/29/98 Wednesday 11:20 A.M. EST: I reencoded the IBM Lou Gerstner's 1998 Annual Meeting Speech, "<http://mrscott.com/ibmlvg98.htm>"mrscott.com/ibmlvg98.htm with the Real Encoder 5.0 in the 28,800 mono format. It should be in the latest audio codex. I also was able to adjust the recording volume a bit while encoding since the Real Encoder 5.0 has a sound bar that one can monitor from across the room and adjust the stereo amplifier volume output as the tape recording volume varies as it is fed into the computer. Of course as an *.rpm file, it works as an Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 plug in real time play, but with Netscape one would have to set up their browser to recognize the *.rpm file as a RealAudio file, and also download the entire file before it starts to play. The file may also be save by right clicking on the link and saving it. Well I am bushed, so it's time to go to bed after a small snack. CIO

Note:<888> 4/29/98 Wednesday 5:40 A.M. EST: I put together a mirror page of IBM Lou Gerstner's 1998 Annual Meeting Speech,

"http://mrscott.com/ibmlvg98.htm"mrscott.com/ibmlvg98.htm . I had poached Salmon in wine and garlic with zucchini, Vidalia onion, and potato for dinner. Back to bookmarks. CIO

Note:<888> 4/28/98 Tuesday 11:10 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index

"http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . This morning before going to bed at noon I added IBM and Microsoft logo advertising to my homepage since they are the busiest categories. I will listen to Lou Gerstner's broadcast at the IBM annual meeting now. I was up at 6:30 P.M. and had breakfast after watching ABC evening news. I went back to bed until about a half hour ago. I will go out after listening to the broadcast for a little fresh air. CIO

Note:<888> 4/28/98 Tuesday 7:35 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . CIO

Note:<888> 4/28/98 Tuesday 4:35 A.M. EST: I listened to

"http://www.dailybriefing.com"www.dailybriefing.com after breakfast yesterday afternoon. I was tired and went back to bed at 6 P.M., and was awoken by a phone call from a friend at 9 P.M.. I surfed MSN for about two hours, and then I organized my ME IE favorites into separate folders which took about an hour. I then had the same dinner as last night. I then cleaned up, and went out with my thermos of coffee at about 1 A.M.. I bought a five pack of buy four get one free of Marlboro lights at the Shell station for $11.19. I then went downtown and drank my coffee on the bench in front of the senior center. I then walked around downtown on lower Greenwich Avenue. I noticed in the infamous office park dumpster there is a bunch of construction remodeling debris. I noticed a new street cleaning machine I think called a "THEYA". There was the usual police presence downtown, and over half the new dark blue cars seem to be on patrol. I chatted with one officer about the lack of internet news this evening except for the stock market. I went by the Grand Union and bought two three packs of GU paper towels for .99 each, one 12 pack diet Coke $1.99, one 12 pack Diet Sprite $1.99, $1.20 can deposit, GU half gallon 2% milk $1.84, 2 Stauffer 20 ounce frozen Lasagna $2.99 each, 2 Stauffer 16 ounce frozen chicken pies for $2.50 each, fresh green zucchini at .99 a pound for .93, two buy one get one free Salmon steaks at $7.99 a pound actual $4.00 a pound thus $4.00 for both, a Vidalia onion at .59 a pound for .38, two buy one get one free of 3 Kings Bacon for $3.49 for both for a total of $29.14. I returned home and put away the groceries rotating the stock of my 12 packs of soda, so the newer ones are on the bottom. The net seems quiet this morning, so I will surf it a bit. CIO

Note:<888> 4/27/98 Monday 4:45 P.M. EST: Scott's Index

"http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was down 2.4% today. I wonder if the market will hold tomorrow. I slept thru my 4 P.M. appointment and was awoken by a telemarketing call about 4 P.M.. I will have breakfast and listen to

"http://www.dailybriefing.com"www.dailybriefing.com while eating. It looks to be very sunny and nice outside. CIO

Note:<888> 4/27/98 Monday 9:00 A.M. EST: I updated Microsoft Chat 2.0, and Microsoft Netshow 2.0, and I also reinstalled Microsoft VM for Java to make sure it was installed properly. I did this from the software update button in MS IE 4.01 on the Help pull down. I also looked at MSN for about two hours, I was favorably impressed with it. I think Microsoft should give it away with Windows 98 and if you have an ISP. Also they should think of providing Slate and MSN Investor advanced content for free. Well that's it for this morning, I will take a five hour rest before getting up at 2 P.M. CIO

Note:<888> 4/27/98 Monday 6:15 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I will check out Microsoft Network for a while and then go to bed. CIO

Note:<888> 4/27/98 Monday 3:55 A.M. EST: I added a Java Clock to my homepage. I went out at 1 A.M. for a walk. I walked the lower part of the Avenue and stopped by the Greenwich Harbor Inn. The night clerk told me that Deutsche Bank had bought Nat West and they had moved it back to Manhattan. However, Nat West still owns Greenwich Capital. It has cleared up and it looks like it will be a nice day today. I returned about 2:30 A.M.. The tulips survived the rain. I noticed the new Greenwich Police Cars now have large numbers on their roofs to identify them from above. Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888> 4/27/98 Monday 1:00 A.M. EST: I finished dinner and the laundry. All my chores are done for the week. I will do a little net surfing now. No point in aggravating my arthritis by going out in this cool damp weather, let's hope today is a sunny day. I have a 4 P.M. appointment this afternoon. CIO

Note:<888> 4/26/98 Sunday 11:50 P.M. EST: I installed the MCI software from their cdrom on my computer this morning. It updated my MS IE 4.01 software with a slightly different interface, "gray" instead of "yellow" on the tool bar. I had to register with a new name I got from MCI tech support maintaining the same account parameters except the password which changed for logon. I also installed the MSN software and registered with them, but I have not had time to look at it much. I also installed Vdonet 3.1 on the system. I went to bed at 12:20 P.M.. I received one phone call from a family member at 3:00 P.M. and went back to bed until 6 P.M. when I chatted with another couple of family members. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants. I made ice tea. I went out for groceries at the Grand Union at 10 P.M. . I bought a Tony's 4 cheese frozen pizza for $3.69, two pine glo cleaner at .99 each, two Tropicana half gallon orange juice at $2.50 each, one dozen large eggs .79, I Can't Believe It's Not Butter Light $1.29, a five pound bag of sugar $2.09, and two 12 packs of Barq's Root Beet for $1.99 each, and net can return and deposit plus .10 for a grand total of $19.28. I then drove down by the water and looked at the darkened Long Island Sound. I stopped by the Shell station and got $12.51 of premium gasoline. I returned home and started my laundry. I will have dinner of sirloin steak, asparagus, potato, root beer, and coffee while I am on the dryer cycle. I don't think I will go out this evening, since it is cold and damp and rainy out. I will probably do a little net work. I heard a lot of jets today, so it was probably busy. I learned from MCI tech support, one can use CTL-C to cut and CTL-V to paste the passwords into the highlighted MCI dialer password space. Off to do drying. CIO

Note:<888> 4/26/98 Sunday 5:30 A.M. EST: I was up about 6 P.M. yesterday. I watched ABC evening news. I had cereal, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins for breakfast. I chatted with MCI and AT&T about my long distance plans. AT&T offers a plan which gives you .10 a minute calling all the time for a $5 fee they waive the first six months, and it is .09 a minute if you use AT&T Worldnet Internet Access for $20 a month maximum 150 hours, they can be reached at 1-800-CALLATT . I will continue to use MCI long distance 1-800-888-7737 which is .25 a minute from 7 A.M. to 7 P.M. weekdays which I never use, and .10 a minute from 7 P.M. to 7 A.M. weekdays and Saturday which I occasionally use, and .05 cents a minute all day Sunday, plus one can order MCI Internet for $15 a month with unlimited access. Also if you don't have a credit card like me, MCI will bill you for the charges by mail on your long distance bill. Moreover, today I received the MCI internet CDRom and they said I can reregister with my 3 1/2 inch disk id numbers, and I will be able to use the features which MCI supposedly offer for free with their service which includes the Microsoft Network, so I will finally be one of "mailto:billg@microsoft.com"mailto:billg@microsoft.com Bill Gates MSN clones all for the cost of MCI $15 a month connection. I will find out if it is true when I logon at 6 A.M. our time with their CDROM since right now the MCI computers are down and one needs to have them working to reregister. I listened to "http://www.ttalk.com"www.ttalk.com from 10 P.M. to 1 A.M. and Ken was in New Haven headed thru here today back to New Jersey. I emailed him to stop by Starbucks and deja vue Greenwich on his way down. I doubt if I will be awake before late afternoon when a friend is suppose to stop down. I am sort of in a funky mood since, I have not seen much daylight recently. I did go out for a walk about 1:30 A.M. and a few kids were getting out of the DOME. I heard somebody bellow at the top of their lungs behind the office building across from the west bound entrance of the train station about 2:15, they probably had too much too drink, it sounded like the Hulk or something. I came home and had a smoke and gossiped with one of my neighbors. I chatted with one of the MCI tech guys in Sacramento, California. They're always very friendly and chatty out at MCI. I mentioned one of my roommates in college was named Cerf and he was an environmentalist and last time I saw him he was working in the mailroom of Time Life. I recall going to school with his girl friend in Italy. We were trying to figure out why Champaign, Illinois needs the T10,000 (10 billion bits a second) internet connection which is part of the new $600,000,000 dollar network, and why they're the only sideline off the nationwide circular loop. What in the world do they have going on there that requires so much baud width? My grandfather and father were from Champaign, Illinois and as far as I can tell NCSA or whatever is there must be doing a lot of data transferring to be using, so much bandwidth. It is rather curious they get all the super fast connection speed, and what else are they connecting to that goes that fast. Remember the Pentagon only has T165. Most curious goings on in the Midwest, or perhaps they got there numbers wrong. Well I guess us folks stuck with two paper cups and a string will have to get by until the government throws a few crumbs our way. Basically if my father Lou Scott or his father Clarence Scott are still alive out there, you better make sure it is really them and not some Chinese or Russian clone or duplicate. I know there are some cleaver people out there, but whatever it is they are working on, I think the general public has begun to suspect something is up. Well it can't be anything hidden deep underground there away from prying satellites, since once you go down more than about 20 feet you would hit ground water. Most curious to know what they are doing with the NCSA supercomputer, as it relates to the other supercomputers around the globe. We all know the Fermi Lab is nearby in Batavia, Illinois and it was originally connected with the internet with the other Super Collider Laboratories in CERN and Grenoble, which is where the World Wide Web started. Well at least the lights are still working here, so they are not draining all the electricity along with the baud width. I just hope it is not some college fraternity of jock idiots using T10000 for watching a 1000 sports feed simultaneously, and it is some sort of serious scientific endeavor. Well I guess all of us computer novices will just have to sit here and wait and see what comes next. MCI computers should be running in about 30 minutes. I will double check with their number at 1-800-348-8011 to make sure the MCI computer is running before trying to use their Cdrom program setup to reregister which should take a while. I have not worked on the bookmark or read my email in about a day. Well back to the net, or I might just wait for MCI's computer to be back up and running, it is rather curious that it would even be down. Over and out. CIO

Note:<888> 4/25/98 Saturday 3:50 A.M. EST: I tweaked the colors on the Great Britain page

"<http://mrscott.com/gb.htm>"mrscott.com/gb.htm . CIO

Note:<888> 4/25/98 Saturday 3:05 A.M. EST: I put Queen Elizabeth II's 1997 Christmas Broadcast "<http://mrscott.com/queen01.htm>"mrscott.com/queen01.htm in real time play format for Microsoft Internet Explorer users, Netscape users will have to wait to download the entire file. Make sure your RealAudio *.rpm files are recognized by your Netscape setup, if it does not play, by inserting *.rpm extension with the *.ra *.ram extension in the Netscape programs setup. I think both MS IE 4.01 and Netscape 4.04 defaults are setup this way when you install RealAudio. Thus with Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.01 you can play non delayed RealAudio file clips without waiting to download the entire file, just have it named with the *.rpm extension and with Microsoft FrontPage Express create a plug in to recognize the *.rpm file, however one can only have one file to a page since Netscape's plug in would try to load more than one plug in at a time, although Microsoft Internet Explorer plug in would wait until you clicked on the files. Thus one does not necessarily need a RealAudio server to play non delayed RealAudio files with Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.01. CIO

Note:<888> 4/25/98 Saturday 1:45 A.M. EST: I posted some music from some old deja vue hippie friends, linked from the homepage

"<http://mrscott.com/hippie01.htm>"mrscott.com/hippie01.htm . CIO

Note:<888> 4/25/98 Saturday 12:25 A.M. EST: I went out and drove down the Avenue and checked out downtown. I stopped by the library and read PC Computing about Windows 98. I also read the local paper. The library elevator for the temporary entrance is still broken, and they're waiting for parts since it is an old elevator. One enters through the downstairs basement cafe. They have a new art exhibit of stainless steel modern sculptures. I parked in front of the senior center and walked down to the bottom of Steamboat Road. There were a number of moving vans in front of the old General Reinsurance building on the harbor. Apparently Deutsche Bank is moving its offices out of there back to Park Avenue in Manhattan. I suppose they got tired of looking at the sewer plant across the way. Well we have plenty of Germany cars here, so they must have been doing something while they were here. I dare say the local German community plans to continue living here. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a 12 pack of Barq's root beer for $3.99 plus .60 deposit, GU raisin bran $1.99, Stauffer French bread double cheese pizza $2.50, GU premium Orange juice $1.99, Seviroli cheese tortellini frozen $1.99, a sirloin steak at $1.99 a pound for $3.34, Asparagus $1.49 a pound for $1.58 for a Grand total of $18.71. I returned home and had a root beer in a chilled frozen mug, and then watched a channel 91 program on the Roosevelts, and then cooked the Stauffer French bread pizza for dinner. I made a thermos of coffee and went downtown and drank it in front of the senior center. I walked the bottom of Greenwich Avenue and then the top. It was moderately busy and it started to rain as I came in at midnight. Back to the web. Then tenants association of my building needs a new copier machine, so if any one has one they want to donate, please contact the tenants association of 71 Vinci Drive. CIO

Note:<888> 4/24/98 Friday 4:45 P.M. EST: Well Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was up a few dollars today. That is pretty good since the overall market was down today. I had bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee for breakfast. I will clean up and cruise around the town. I am thinking about driving up to CompUSA in Norwalk, but I don't really have any spare cash at my disposal for computer supplies. Perhaps I will just hang out downtown or go to the library. It looks like it is nice out. I believe this time of year, they are having the Little League baseball in the back of my building practicing, I am not sure if they are out this evening. Well off to the showers. CIO

Note:<888> 4/24/98 Friday 3:30 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I had two slices of GU pizza for dinner and threw out the rest of the garlic pork chops. I am a bit bushed since I only had four hours sleep yesterday. Well time to rest back for the weekend, yeh sure; well let's see what tomorrow brings. If any users or promoted groups on Scott's Internet Hotlist want to help him out with some equipment or software to keep him up to date, please email me. Basically a lot of services are offered on the Internet like Bartered services, so figure out what I'm worth if anything, and let me know. I might just give it all up and start writing an ebook for posterities sake. Well "Publish or Perish" as they use to say. Coming to think about it with 6 1/2 billion people in the world, the net has a rather limited viewpoint surrounding us techno geeks. Maybe the rest of the world will rise up and come up with something better, who knows what the future will yield. Off to rest. CIO

Note:<888> 4/24/98 Friday 12:25 A.M. EST: Speed Up Your Internet Connection this way.

<http://www.mjs.u-net.com/home.htm>

"<http://www.mjs.u-net.com/home.htm>"Mike Sutherland's Software MTU Speed Site
MTU Speed Download

start MTU Speed program after uncompressing select "optimum settings"

check "rwin"
Set MTU to "1152"
When you check "rwin"
the Multiplier slide bar should move
Set Multiplier to "6"
Select "Update Registry" Close MTU Speed
Reboot

Your should go twice as fast on the web during speedy periods like the early morning hours when there is not too much traffic.

My modem init string is for X2, so you don't need it with K56 but for your own information it is:

&F&C1&D2&K1&M4L2S6=2S7=90S10=7

Place it in the

Select "Control Panel"

Select "Modem"

Highlight Your Modem

Select "Properties"

Select "Connection"
 Select "Advanced"
 Place Init String in "Extra Settings Box" Init String for X2 Modem is:
 &F&C1&D2&K1&M4L2S6=2S7=90S10=7
 check "Record a Log" click "OK"
 click "OK"
 click "Close" for K56 you need to find the init string for your modem, try

<http://www.modemhelp.com/>
 "http://www.modemhelp.com/"ModemHelp: Support for modem installations, modem upgrades, Explorer and Navigator internet browser MTU speed will have you going about twice as fast, and with the right "Init String" with V42 compression enabled you should go even faster on uncompressed pages and files.

In the bottom of my Netscape browser window, I have gotten 10.7 k/sec on IBM.net
 13.8 k/sec on MCI

These settings work with the Microsoft Dialer, I am not sure whether they will improve the AOL other dialers, but I think they should work just as well with it, since they both rely on the same registry settings.

However during the early evening hours when the internet is busy around here one only goes about half as fast.

Note:<888> 5/5/98 Tuesday 11:15 P.M. EST: I went out about 1:30 P.M.. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop and bought a Borun plunger coffee maker for $4 that I gave to a friend. I went by the ELDC thrift and bought a Scoville Hamilton Beach 17 speed blender for $10.60. I went down Greenwich Avenue and paid my telephone and cablevision bills at the Greenwich post office. I drove down by the water. I went by the library and read two of the weekly computer publications I normally read. I drove over to CompUSA in White Plains about 5:30 P.M. and toured the store. They don't sell WebTV at CompUSA anymore. They have 16 meg and 32 meg memory chips on sale this week for $29 and $59 final after instant discounts and mail in rebates, but they were all sold out in White Plains. I might check Norwalk later in the week. CompUSA in White Plains is also selling factory refurbished computers at a discount this week. MarketPro computer fairs are going to be at the White Plains Civic Center this Saturday, which I might check for memory. I stopped by Val's liquor pantry and bought 2 one liter bottles of dry white French wine for $14.92 to use for cooking. My dinner guest arrived when I got home at 7 P.M.. I made sliced ham, corn on the cob, and steamed asparagus. We watched the video movie "Junior" and then I filed this report. I will go to bed about midnight. CIO

Note:<888> 5/5/98 Tuesday 11:25 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . It is just about time to cleanup and face the Russian Army. CIO

Note:<888> 5/5/98 Tuesday 9:25 A.M. EST: I worked on the bookmark a bit yesterday, but I have not edited it yet. I spent quite a bit of time using MSN yesterday. Unfortunately on my machine which is slow and during the day time when the net is slow, it is painfully slow; and it crashed quite a bit. I set it up to work with MS IE. I went to bed last night at 7 P.M., and did not get up until 8 A.M. this morning. I guess I was tired. I found an interesting link

"<http://www.youbet.com/>"You Bet Racing Network. Online horseracing and real time interactive wagering. for you horse players, which seems to have plenty of interactive content, once it is up and running. Well back to the net. No sign of Russian paratroopers landing yet, but I have several acres in the backyard baseball field where they might fit in. I have not cleaned up in two days, so I probably smell like last weeks garbage. Once I finish the bookmark I might go out for a spell. I have a 4 P.M. appointment this afternoon. Back to the web, I wonder if Jack Webb or Peter Weston Webb have internet companies, not to mention Webco. CIO

Note:<888> 5/4/98 Monday 11:25 A.M. EST: Well, I am up and have had breakfast. It seems that we have survived any attacks from Russian Subs. Rumor has it that the survivalists if there are any in a future attack are planning to setup emergency headquarters at a "New Age" cult site in Sadona, Arizona. Well they did not invite me, so I will have to stay here and fight it out with the Russians. Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888> 5/4/98 Monday 1:15 A.M. EST: Well today was an exciting day. I got up and chatted with a family member, and had breakfast and then went back to bed. I then woke up and cleaned my apartment and watered the plants and listened to the first two hours of "<http://www.ttalk.com>"www.ttalk.com . I went out about 5 P.M. and stopped by Tod's Point and chatted with a young French fellow about Anglo French policy. I then returned downtown and observed the crowd. I noticed quite a few out of town visitors. I also heard quite a few Russian accents which is the norm for Sunday afternoons and evenings. I walked around a bit. I stopped by the Grand Union about 9 P.M. and bought GU raisin bran for $2.19, 2% milk gallon $2.29, Tropicana OJ half gallon $1.79, Lite and Lively Cottage Cheese $1.99, Kahn's Ham at $3.99 a pound for $6.98, two ears yellow corn .40, box of 100 Lipton tea bags $1.99, Asparagus at $1.49 a pound for $1.01, I Can't Believe It's Not Butter $1.29, and a 75 cent off coupon off the cottage cheese for $19.93. I went home and put away the groceries, and then returned to the Exxon station and filled up the car with premium at $1.45.9 a gallon for $13.00. I returned downtown and had a slice of Sicilian pizza at Planet Pizza for $1.70. I returned home after walking a bit and stopped by Grand Union again for a dozen eggs for $1.39. I then returned home. I was thinking about the Russian submarine problem we have been having and came up with a recording of one which I placed at "<http://mrscott.com/russsub1.htm>"mrscott.com/russsub1.htm . There is no evidence that the reason that both the President and the Speaker of the House evacuated the Capitol because they were worried about Soviet Launches. Realistically there are just as many Russian submarines on the west coast of America as the East Coast. No notice in the press about it. I suppose they have imposed military censorship. I suppose if the star wars program really works, they could fake a successful hit by igniting a large amount of flash powder in the intended target. We have no real communications here, so we just as well must maintain ordinary routine and regular work schedule. Well I have to go fold my laundry. I think I will go to bed shortly. I also noticed the power was out between the Food Emporium and the Mobil station in Byram.

CIO

Note:<888> 5/2/98 Saturday 10:35 P.M. EST: I went out at 10 A.M. this morning. I drove up to Norwalk and stopped by Computer Renaissance in Norwalk down from the WIZ. I noticed not many people were on the highway. I chatted with the proprietor that runs the store with his family and he is a gentleman from Austria. He admitted that not many people were making much money in the computer resale business. I did not see anything I could afford in the store. I next went to CompUSA and I noticed that they had sold out of the special on Microsoft Office 97. They did not have any sales on. I was given a demo of the new Canon printer for $400 that prints photographic quality documents. It costs $2 a sheet for the paper and $45 for the ink cartridge, but it prints a glossy photograph type document. I was also given a Demonstration of the 8X8 camera telephone device for $350. It works pretty well and one uses it over regular telephone lines if the party at the other end has the same device. I then did something foolish. I went to OTB in Norwalk and bet on the Kentucky Derby. I bet $10 to win on the number 8 horse Rock and Roll which was 30 to 1. I also bet on six other long shots. I put $2 each to win on 1, 4, 5, 9, 13, 14 all of which were over 20 to 1 for a total of $22 bet. I had hoped to win, so I could upgrade my computer equipment. I then returned back to Greenwich and walked around Tod's Point the three miles. It was a cloudy warmish day. I noticed one young gal on Roller Blades that looked like my niece, but I don't think it was her since she was taller than I am. I then returned home and had some Ramen noodles and Pineapple Cheese Cake for lunch. I then went out with my thermos of coffee to the library and read the article in the Greenwich Times about the Derby. Apparently the favored horse to win Indian Charlie was suppose to be number 8, but a horse was scratched. Thus for the last two days the numbers of the horses in the Greenwich Times did not match the actual numbers of the horses in the Derby. I then went downtown and bought three buy two get one free of Camel lights for $16.80 . I sat out in front of the senior center and observed the shoppers and drank my coffee. I mentioned to a couple of people the numbers in the Derby were wrong. I mentioned it to the desk sergeant at the police station, and he said everything is being run by the mafia. I then went down by the water on Steamboat Road and noticed the Indian Harbor Yacht Club was having its opening season ceremonies. All the senior members were out on the patio raising the Yacht Club pennants and saluting the flag. I noticed Congressman Christopher Shays in the crowd along with First Selectman Thomas Ragland, along with a great many other dignitaries as I observed from the Steamboat Road wharf. I chatted with a former neighbor who has worked at the Yacht Club for 40 years, and he seemed to enjoy the opening ceremonies. I also noticed in today's Greenwich Times people have been abandoning boats and sailboats at Grass Island and several of them will be destroyed if not claimed. They showed the picture of a nice sailboat that is going to be destroyed since its owner has abandoned it. I then returned home and my dinner guest had arrived down from Wilton. We watched ABC evening news to find out that none of my bets had won. I cooked a dinner of poached salmon steaks in garlic, herbs, and wine with poached onion quarters, steamed zucchini, and herbal white rice. We chatted a while and then he left, and I did the dishes and then filed this report. I will update my final monthly stats "<http://mrscott.com/stats.htm>"mrscott.com/stats.htm shortly after filing this report. CIO

Note:<888> 5/2/98 Saturday 4:10 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . For some reason for the first time in a long time the program actually balanced. I guess the program has that capability, but it usually does not balance. I went out at 8:30 A.M. this past morning. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I went down by the post office and paid my electricity, MCI telephone, and GEICO insurance. I got my hair cut at Subway barbers for $13 plus $2 tip. The Italians there seem to know a bit about volcanoes. I went down and sat down in front of the senior center, and had some coffee out of my thermos. It began to rain a bit, so I went down by the Sound on Steamboat Road and had my coffee. I chatted with a nautical fellow about the oceans, basically wondering if a Tidal Wave ever struck on the Atlantic Coast. I also mentioned the map of Magellan does not show Long Island. I went uptown and paid my rent at First Union Bank. I drove by the Hospital Thrift Shop and bought a Pyrex pound cake dish for $1. I went by the library and read the paper. I drove by ELDC and toured their inventory. I went by St. Catherine's Thrift and they have an old 486/30 there. I went by Old Greenwich thrift. I drove out to Tod's Point and in the overcast weather, it was not busy except for six busloads of little kids studying the Pilgrims and the Indians which seemed unusual for May Day. I chatted with one of the Indians. I returned and toured Staples. I went downtown by the Mews thrift and toured it. I returned to the library and chatted with three regulars. One of them said the Bessemer Trust has not performed well recently, but Wilmington Trust and Northern Trust has. He also said the United States closely monitors the thousands of Russian submarines. I went by the Grand Union and bought two half gallons of Tropicana Orange Juice for $2.50 each, two Salmon Steaks for $4.55 for both, and a $1.33 of fresh Zucchini. I went by the Arnold Bread Store and bought two loaves of Healthnut Bread, three pineapple cheese cakes, and one raspberry strudel for $6.17 most of which I put in the freezer when I returned home. I had some ice tea and a bowl of noodles. I went to bed at 5:30 P.M. and got up at 2:30 A.M. this morning. Well off to the net. CIO

Note:<888> 5/1/98 Friday 5:00 A.M. EST: I updated recent bookmarks

"<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm . I noticed the United States Coast Guard has a military extension "<http://www.uscg.mil>"www.uscg.mil , however last I heard it was still part of the Department of Transportation. Shows how up to date I am. Well I might take a long nap since I only got five hours last evening. CIO

Note:<888> 5/1/98 Thursday 1:45 A.M. EST: There were two reports on the internet yesterday that were largely ignored by the printed media, they both relate to the possibly of a Nuclear Threat on the Americas from Russia as reported to the internet press by a group calling itself the Physicians for Nuclear Responsibility in Boston, Massachusetts . The two links are

"http://news.bbc.co.uk/hi/english/world/americas/newsid\_85000/85881.stm"BBC News | Americas | Greater risk of accidental nuclear strike and

"http://dailynews.yahoo.com/headlines/top\_stories/story.html?s=z/reuters/980429/news/stories/nuclear\_6.html"Yahoo Risk of accidental nuclear attack said rising . Having grown up in the cold war era and having read dozens of books on Cold War Atomic strategy in the 1950s and early 1960s, it is my synopsis that the reports are probably accurate. Moreover the fact that the U.S. Navy has placed many of its fleet of Trident submarines carrying Nuclear weapons off the coast of Russia has lead the Russians to retaliate by placing many of its Nuclear Submarines off the coasts of the Americas on constant standby, which indeed could lead to a nuclear accident as stress reduces morale and judgment. Moreover it is common knowledge that both sides through their surveillance operations with sonar and satellites knows the exact location of their various fleets. It has been my general understanding for the last thirty years, the Russian Empire has maintained a fleet of nuclear missile equipped submarines off our shores about fifty to a hundred miles offshore fully combat ready and constantly serviced, maintained, and repaired. I believe they all come out of some hidden underground facilities off the northern arctic coast of the Russia, which because recently U.S. submarine fleets have been invading their home territory, they have increased the amount of their fleet operations off our shores. More than likely there are over 100 a hundred nuclear missile equipped Russian submarines off U.S. waters with each having 100 to 200, 50 to 500 megaton missiles on board, which would be sufficient fire power, to eliminate the entire North America infrastructure as we know it. The U.S. efforts off their shores are more modest about a tenth the Russian capacity. I am not sure of what the specific classes of Russian submarines are off our shores, but if one studied Jane's in the Greenwich Library or looked at their site, you might learn more. At my age, I am not too worried, since all the tiny kids and grandparents seem to still be here, and generally the government would evacuate them if they thought there was a real threat. Well back to net surfing. CIO

Note:<888> 5/1/98 Thursday 12:15 A.M. EST: Happy May Day. I posted Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . The market was up quite a bit yesterday. I went downtown at about 9:30 A.M. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrifts Shop. I noticed a nice used IBM typewriter and a Panasonic wide carriage printer for $35. I went down the Avenue and surveyed Long Island Sound. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the four regular computer newsweeklies and the Greenwich Times. I noticed IBM is advertising a lot in the four computer newsweeklies. The Greenwich Times had a very good article on the Kentucky Derby "<http://www.kentuckyderby.com/>"ChurchillDowns - VirtualChurchill . I noticed the number 8 horse Indian Charlie is favored, but it's odds are only two to one. I also noticed four horses were going off 50 to 1. If I were betting one $2 ticket I would bet on the number 9 horse Rock and Roll which is at 50 to 1. If I could spare $8 I would bet on all four 50 to 1 horses. I was doing something and the number 9 came up twice, like the number 8 golf ball I found last night. The psychic projections get a little confusing. I suggested to one horse person, ask a little kid and see what they think. I chatted with a fellow with Connecticut License Plate "KEN" or "KENNY" several years ago who was a timer on the backside of Belmont and he told me "Go For Gin" was going to win then, but I have not seen him around recently. I believe he use to drive a blue Cadillac and have a beer occasionally at the Homestead Bar in Port Chester, New York. After the library I came back home and received a birthday card which is May 9, which had a nice picture "The Long Leg" by Edward Hopper which is in the Huntington Library in San Marino, California in the Virginal Steele Scott collection. I believe Virginia Scott might have been married to the actor Randolph Scott and was Pierre Dupont's daughter and inherited 25% of the entire Dupont Fortune. I guess only the Wilmington Trust Company knows for sure. I had a tuna fish sandwich for lunch. I went out to Putnam Trust Bank of New York at 2 P.M. and I noticed one of the senior clients was driving a thirty year Oldsmobile wagon which still has the New York blue and orange license plates, probably somebody "Old Guard" from Bedford, New York. I chatted with the receptionist and she was excited that Bank of New York had tried to buy Mellon Bank last week. I explained to her that both Bank of New York and Mellon Bank represented only branches of certain families. Basically from what I know the Bessemer Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania holds the lion's share of the old Carnegie, Mellon, Frick, and many other industrial age fortunes, and they are so conservative they don't give interest or take accounts off the street. It is basically like Northern Trust, but probably more stogy. I next made my 3 P.M. appointment. I went back by the library and checked out the videotape "Junior". Greenwich was out in Full Force today with a large contingent of the "Old Guard" and tiny grandchildren out and about town today. I toured the Art Gallery in the Greenwich library and they have a great modern stainless steel sculpture of a wolf that might scare the Coyotes away in back country. I also noticed some young dudes in the library today wearing what seems to be the occasional fashion. I think it is derived from sailors in the British Navy who use to sport ear rings depending on which of the various oceans they had sailed. Yeh pretty much like the pirates on the Spanish Main not to mention I think Gypsies still sport ear rings, so you can tell Greenwich gets a diverse crowd as usual. I went to bed about 6 P.M. and was up at 11 P.M.. I still need to have breakfast. CIO

Note:<888> 5/14/98 Thursday 9:10 P.M. EST: Well I have my new computer system up and running now. It is running without any problems. I reinstalled the system and key programs, and restored from backup the data files. Below is a summary of what I went through.

Well, I just about have the system up and running normally again.

However, I still only have 16 meg memory, but 32 meg EDO are about $55 when I can afford them. It is working pretty great. I just had to fix a sound file that was corrupted. I have an MMX Pentium motherboard and IBM Cyrix 233 processor for $209 all together and a new case for $30 from Chinese vendors in North Haven, Connecticut named Ming. I have been working on the system since last Wednesday when I purchased it.

The first main problem was the onboard video does not work properly, possibly since I only have 16 meg memory, and it kept my floppy controller from working properly to install software for setup. I fixed it by using my old Diamond

SVGA card which only has one meg memory. Possibly Win95 does not recognize onboard video properly. I next got the CDRom going in DOS to install the Win95 software and other programs. The free MSN disk that one gets from Microsoft has Internet Explorer 4.01 on it, and with my MCI ISP besides IBM.net, I get the Microsoft Network for free. I also have onboard sound but my SoundBlaster SW32 card is better. I tried to enable both, but there were not enough IRQs. I also had plug and play recognized my X2 modem on IRQ 9 and it did not work, so I put it on IRQ 5. I also changed my memory setting in the cmos setup to 7ns instead of 6ns for my two 8 meg. 72 pin SIMMs. I started installing software on Monday morning, and Netscape Communicator 4.04 brought down my whole system, so I uninstalled it and last night and I had to reinstall Win95 again to fix the corrupted files. I am not sure what the problem is. I restored the data files from my tape backup after downloading Colorado Backup 3.11 from HP. For some reason I could not find my version on floppies. I edited the system today, and everything seems to be running fine. I do not plan to work on the bookmark anymore, since it is too time consuming. I might incorporate the existing bookmark, sometime in the future to finish off the project. Of course I will continue using the internet for diverse activities. I will go out for a walk shortly. CIO

Note:<888> 5/9/98 Saturday 4:00 A.M. EST: I had to delete some sound files to free up space on my server. Just about done and off to bed. CIO

Note:<888> 5/9/98 Saturday 3:30 A.M. EST: This is what I can remember from the last few days. First I updated Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . On Wednesday I got up about 2:30 P.M.. I drove up to North Haven, Connecticut to HM Computer Consulting, 355 Sacket Point Road., Unit # 13, North Haven, Connecticut 06473, telephone # 203-288-9568. I purchased a Pentium MMX motherboard TX Pro II Chipset w/512K with Sound, Video, and Controllers on Board plus and IBM Cyrix M2/233 VGA, with CPU fan for $209, plus Mini Mid Size Case for $30, with tax of $14.34 for a total of $253.34. I drove back and began the long tedious job of upgrading my system. I took some parts from my 486 system like the SoundBlaster SW 32 card, Diamond Speedstar Video Card, and 3 1/2 Floppy Drive, and two 8 meg 72 pin memory chips. I configured them in with the new parts. I had trouble for about a day getting the floppy disk drives working, so I bought a new floppy drive for $40 from Stables in Old Greenwich on Thursday and on Friday a floppy comptroller cable from Computer Super Center for $7.95. I eventually installed both 3 1/2 inch floppy drives. The problem was caused by the onboard VGA which I disable when I put my old video card in. I also had to install DOS Cdrom driver, so as to install Win95 on Cdrom and MCI MS IE 4.01. Basically it took a lot of fiddling around to diagnose the problems. Once I had the system up and running on Friday about 6 P.M., I noticed my Logicode X2 56,000 modem was not working. Apparently something is keeping it active when it should not be so as to startup. I finally put in my old Zoom 28,000 to get on line. I updated the Win95 updates and Networking and TCP updates. I still have a lot of system tweaking to do, and downloading and installing software. I have a tape backup of critical files that I will have to restore sooner or later. Thus I have a lot of work ahead of me for the next week. Hopefully I will figure out the modem problem. The system also needs more memory when I can afford it. However it is a great responsive system, and I think it is a worthwhile investment. Today is my birthday, so I plan to go to sleep soon to get some well deserved rest. I have had little sleep for the last three days, and I am very tired. Have a good day. CIO

Note:<888> 5/20/98 Wednesday 6:20 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Let's go with ABC news at 6:30 P.M.. I hear thunder on the horizon, possible heavy downpours on the way, not sure but possible. CIO

Note:<888> 5/20/98 Wednesday 4:30 P.M. EST: I went out at 2:30 A.M. yesterday and had my coffee out of my trusty thermos. I walked around downtown and chatted with a group of people out of Brooklyn who were waiting in line for Power Ball. I also chatted with a local policeman. Apparently yesterday the local traffic pattern in town had three strikes against it. The previous mentioned sewer repairs downtown, the truck wreck on I95 and all the thousands of Power Ball users lining up to purchase their lottery tickets. I walk around downtown until 6:30 A.M. and then went to the Grand Union. Also the Greenwich Policeman told me they were getting $45 an hour overtime. Three days ago at the Grand Union I bought 2 half gallons Florida Natural

Orange Juice $1.99 apiece, 2% half gallon milk $1.55, five boxes GU frozen vegetables .65 each, two 20 ounce Stauffer frozen lasagna for $2.99 each, Stauffer's Chicken Fettuccini $2.50, two ears corn .25 each, 13 bags Ramen noodles from .16 to .29, 2 I Can't believe it's not butter at .99, Skippy peanut butter $1.79, two Tony's Four Cheese Pizzas for $3.00 each and $1.74 worth of squash at .99 a pound for a total order of $32.50. This morning I bought 24@ 6 for a $1 bags of Ramen noodles for $4, 2 I Can't Believe It's Not Butter @ .99, half gallon Florida natural orange juice $1.99, and two 1 pound packages of Oscar Meyer Bacon for $1.99 for a total of $11.95 on that order. I noticed in reading the British Press, everyone is attending the Chelsea Flower Show this week. I noticed in today's news Pan AM Sat of Greenwich satellite network is down and almost all pagers in America don't work along with media feeds. I believe this problem like my recent computer problems might be caused be Solar Flare activity on the sun recently which can disrupt all communications of any type and electronic activity. I also notice I believe the new Greenwich police cars have 6 antennas on the roof. I also chatted with the U.S. Military academy at West Point today and Secretary of Defense Cohen will be speaking at Graduation on Saturday May 30 this year which I might attend if the weather is descent and I have the money to drive up there. So remember if something electronic has malfunctioned recently it might be because of solar flair activity. I also have to report that one of our retired locals who taught Physics at Columbia University and had a PHD in physics from Harvard and volunteered here at the astronomy club where this whole operation started passed away two years ago. I had not seen John out at night in a while, now I know why, we will all miss him. Well time for "<http://www.dailybriefing.com>"www.dailybriefing.com and off to make breakfast. Apartment is cooled down to 70 degrees, but it is a little noisy with the air conditioner going. I suppose lots of people will be lined up for Power Ball again today for the last day. CIO

Note:<888> 5/20/98 Wednesday 2:05 A.M. EST: Well this evening after checking my email. I had a system malfunction. I thought I had lost the whole system. Before I made the backup earlier, I had saved my system.ini, user.dat, and system.dat files in a separate folder. When I had the malfunction I eventually restored the three files, after saving the current versions. The system almost worked with the earlier system.dat and user.dat files, but I had to keep the current system.ini. However I got a memory error message on Safe Boot. About 8 P.M. I thought I would run up to CompUSA and get a new 32 meg DIMM? chip for about $79, however it turned out that is the price for 32 meg SIMM, thus I could not afford a new chip. I have two 8 meg 72 pin Simms. I encountered wall to wall slow traffic going up to Norwalk, and I exited and drove through Darien to get to CompUSA before closing. The store was empty. I returned to Greenwich empty handed and noticed all the gas stations with lottery machines and stationary stores like Zyns were inundated with hundreds of people at each location waiting to buy Powerball Lottery tickets. Thus it was nearly impossible to buy gasoline because of the long lines. I returned home dejected about the computer and had dinner. I went out about 11 P.M. and filled up the car at the Shell Station where the local attendants were exhausted from selling Power Ball $150 million lottery tickets. I went for a short walk downtown and the police officer on duty at the sewer construction project at the bottom of the Avenue, told me it would be at least a week before the $1.2 million dollar project was finished. I sat out in front of the senior center where lots of the potted plants have been set out for sun. I noticed the ever efficient Greenwich Public Works Department was efficiently cleaning up the downtown area after all the garbage and bottles left by the lottery purchasing lines all day. Today is the last day, so it should be even worse. I was told the lottery machines open at 6 A.M., so early risers might avoid lines at Zyns or the Shell Station then. When I returned home I opened up my computer case and switched the two memory SIMMs around and reset them firmly but carefully. I also changed my CMOS setup to 60 Nanosecond memory instead of 70 Nanosecond memory. Yes I have 60 Nanosecond memory, it says so right on the chips in small print. I then booted the machine and it started right up with the restored files, I mentioned earlier. Perhaps with the warmer apartment 76 degrees recently, my machine might be running a little bit warmer; so I turned on the air conditioner. In the old days computer engineers use to always keep computer rooms cool at least 68 degrees or cooler, I don't know if that still applies. I also reinstalled the JAVA for MS Internet Explorer 4.01 which I obtained from the software updated icon in the help file. I think when I installed the MS IE 4.01 the JAVA did not completely install. I have had this problem before. Right now the system seems to be running great, but I have not really put it through it paces yet. I might surf a bit and got out for coffee in about a hour after I also clean up. CIO

Note:<888> 5/19/98 Tuesday 4:50 P.M. EST: Well after about three weeks work, I finally have my new system installed with all the Microsoft Programs and upgrades. I had problems with Plug and Play installing the Win95 Operating system, and I had to remove the sound card and modem when I installed it, and then add the sound card and let plug and play recognized it, and then the same for the modem. I also had to set up my modem on a different IRQ than the automatic IRQ9. I put it on IRQ3 by letting it be on Com Port 2. I have my Colorado T1000E tape drive going with Colorado HP Cheyenne 3.11 backup going. I have made two backups of the new setup. I put the CMOS setup for the LPT port on EPP 378, and I set the Colorado Tape LPT IRQ to IRQ7 3C. Thus the tape backup works fine. I have over half my 1 G. hard drive free. I also have all the MS updates stored on my hard drive along with a few other programs. I also updated all the MS software update downloads. I put the latest version of DirectX also on. I did not install any Netscape programs or my copy of WordPerfect 6.0. The only major non MS programs I have on the system is the Cheyenne backup, RealAudio, and a few small programs. Thus hopefully I won't have any out of date or incompatible files in my Windows directory. I restored all my data files. The system all seems to be running fine and fast. I was getting 6.5 Kbytes download speeds last night. It has been a lot of work, so I plan to get out in the daylight this evening. I also updated Scott's Index
"http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888> 5/16/98 Saturday 4:25 A.M. EST: I went back to bed last evening until 8 P.M.. I got up and listened to Frank Sinatra music on my CD player after watching some television programs on him. The link to the Frank Music page is "http://mrscott.com/frank1.htm"mrscott.com/frank1.htm . I went out about 9:30 P.M. and walked around at the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. The sewer project is still underway. It will cost $1.2 million to make the repair. They have a semi truck trailer full of 24 inch iron sewer pipes and have installed a temporary repair above the surface on the roadway. The usual Friday night pedestrian traffic was out coming and going from the cafes, movies, ice cream parlors and coffee shop. I chatted with one local about the internet. About 11:30 P.M., I came back home and did a little news reading on the internet from my page at "http://mrscott.com/scotwork.htm"mrscott.com/scotwork.htm . The British press is most informative on world affairs and I enjoy reading quick summaries including the Court Circular in the Times of London. I guess the Royals keep quite busy which the American press never covers. I had dinner of reheated chicken breast in wine and garlic, steamed corn, and baked onion with

Ramen noodles. I wrote Mom a letter and went out at 2 A.M. to mail it. I parked on the Avenue and walked down towards the bottom, and the police were out diverting traffic, but it did not look like much night construction was going on. I walked up to the top of the Avenue and east on Putnam Avenue and studied the shops. Horseneck Liquors has a picture of Walter Cronkite in the window. I noticed a shop with Japanese antiques which has a very tasteful appearance. On the south side of Putnam Avenue between Greenwich Avenue and Mason street are a number of specialty shops for designing tasteful homes including Sotheby's real estate if one wants to purchase one. There is one shop that specializes in library paneling which I am sure is used for their resources. I noticed another antique flooring shop. I walked on down the Avenue and noticed the ski shop has Norwegian flag backpacks and the Outdoor Traders sport shop is in Mike's old barber shop part of Outdoor Traders now. I continued on down the Avenue and noticed the patrons exiting the Dome restaurant had left a number of Colt 45 quart beer bottles on the street where they parked. I guess they did not want to carry open containers while driving. I entered the car and drove down Arch street and noticed the Arts Festival is today Saturday and Sunday at the Bruce Museum, and they have all their tents up for displaying the art work. I noticed a couple of lights on at the houses on the harbor. It was a warm evening and quite enjoyable walking and getting the fresh air. Steamboat Road remains closed between Arch Street and Railroad Avenue for the Sewer repairs. I suppose today while I sleep it will be a busy day for the weekenders in Greenwich. I read a story and received email about all the smoke in Texas from the Mexican and Latin American fires caused by drought, so a few Texans should come up here for a dose of New York City smog before it gets worse on the hotter days. I am about to have another serving of Ramen noodles for my last meal of the day and a diet Coke. Well you day time people have a good day. CIO

Note:<888> 5/15/98 Friday 5:55 P.M. EST: I was up at 4 P.M. and had breakfast. I tweaked my system a bit earlier this morning before going to bed. I am going to post Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm just at the end of the week now. I also updated "<http://mrscott.com/scottpc01.htm>"mrscott.com/scottpc01.htm about Scott's computer setup. Well it is nice out, so after I shower, I will probably go outside for a while. CIO

Note:<888> 5/15/98 Friday 5:55 A.M. EST: I updated the MS fonts, MS type clearer, MS IE toy, and I also downloaded and installed Outlook 98, which I think is great. With my new system it is all working great. I can run about three programs and have about 50% resources free which once I update memory, I won't have to think about that. I went out this past evening about 10 P.M. and returned $1.60 in aluminum soda cans. The big disaster story in town this week has been the sewer pipe that broke at the bottom of Greenwich Avenue by the train station. They have been working on it with a big hole for the last several days. One local night walker said he found a $100 bill in front of the train station. Greenwich was very quiet yesterday afternoon. I made my usual appointment. The Hospital Thrift Shop has a Canon Bubble Jet Printer for sale at "Make an Offer" price. My viewpoint of my overall system with a new restored setup on the new system is that it is all running great. Once I upgrade memory and try the onboard video with four megs memory, I might even have a better system. Of course when Win98 is released, it will probably be even better. Maybe "<mailto:billg@microsoft.com>"mailto:billg@microsoft.com will send me a free copy. I chatted with young Chinese fellow on Friday night who claimed his family bought Microsoft stock when it was first offered for 28 cents a share. I think the original offering price about ten years ago or more was around $22 a share. I have been munching on Ramen noodles recently which are a light snack food for losing weight. I put them in a cup of water in a Rubbermaid container and microwave them on high for five minutes. My respects to the Sinatra family during their time of grief. See "<http://mrscott.com/frank.htm>"mrscott.com/frank.htm . Have a good day. CIO

Note:<888> 5/30/98 Sunday 7:50 P.M. EDT: I watched the NBC evening news about the tornado in South Dakota. The PGA on ABC was cancelled because of thunderstorm warnings in Ohio. At the end of the NBC news at 7 P.M., they said that a tornado hit near Albany in Mechanicsville, New York. I just picked over the Purdue chicken and made chicken salad. I am cooking some Ramen noodles and corn on the cob in the Microwave right now to go with the chicken salad. I might go out after dinner if the weather is not too bad, I will have to keep a weather eye to the weather. CIO

Note:<888> 5/30/98 Sunday 6:40 P.M. EDT: I drove downtown and drove over to Tod's Point. I went out to the Southeast point and enjoyed the view. There were about a 100 ducks on the water, that I was not sure what type they were. I then drove by Staples in Old Greenwich and purchased a mouse pad for $2.11 . The new mouse pad is soft rubber as opposed to the hard plastic pad I use to use. Hopefully it will not be so hard on my palm wrist bone as the old one. I returned home and watched a little television. I will go with ABC evening news at 6:30 P.M.. It is bright and sunny out and not too hot, but we're suppose to have severe thunder showers coming in this evening, and the television advises people to stay indoors to avoid the heavy rain and thunderstorms with tornado warnings. We're expecting at least an inch of rain. CIO

Note:<888> 5/30/98 Sunday 3:30 P.M. EDT: I was up at 7 A.M. this morning. I watched Robert Schuller of "<http://www.crystalcathedral.org/>"Crystal Cathedral while I had breakfast. Let's pray that his wife recovers from her recent surgery and wish them the best of our prayers. I went back to bed until 11 P.M.. I then went out and stopped by downtown, and then went by the Grand Union. I purchased two half gallons of Grand Union not from concentrate orange juice for .99 a half gallon, a quart of lemon juice $1.99, GU 2% milk $1.55, two ears yellow corn for .50, a pound of squash for $1.01, and a dozen large eggs for $1.39 for a total of $8.42. I also picked up a discarded Compaq monitor downtown at the train station office park that did not work, so I discarded it. I noticed the Connecticut young file makers event at Roger Sherman Baldwin Park is under way. It was overcast and sultry downtown at noon. I made a phone call to a family member. I cleaned my apartment after having dinner of chicken breast, Ramen noodles, and corn of the cob. I listened to "<http://www.ttalk.com/>"www.ttalk.com weekend broadcast while cleaning. The sun is out now, and I am sure it is warm, but my air conditioner is keeping me cool. I will go out in about ten minutes and face the heat. CIO

Note:<888> 5/30/98 Saturday 11:00 P.M. EDT: I rested most of the day. I worked on trying to post a Real G2 *.smi file, but at the moment, don't think it is possible to post a Real File in G2 *.smi format. I noticed the G2 file did not install the Real Plug in for playing real-time *.rpm files which RealAudio 5.0 had, so I reinstalled RealAudio 5.0 to have that plug in activated. I am listening to "<http://www.ttalk.com/>"www.ttalk.com Saturday broadcast at the moment. I posted a new sound file, Maurice Ravel's Bolero "<http://mrscott.com/bolero.htm>"mrscott.com/bolero.htm . CIO

Note:<888> 5/30/98 Saturday 3:05 A.M. EDT: I went downtown and about 9:30 P.M. and sat out in the rain in front of the Senior center and had a cup of coffee out of my thermos. Downtown was quiet for a Friday night, I guess it was because of the rain. I took a walk around the train station area, and observed the sewer project which looks completed and the black topping is done, and now they have to stripe the road. I walked through the train station underground parking and noticed they had a discarded 14 inch color Compaq monitor there, which I did not retrieve, since at the moment I don't need another. I will look tomorrow to see if it is still there. I chatted with acquaintance about life in Greenwich in general. I stopped by the Greenwich Police station and reported to them about a five billion dollar crime I had heard about on the internet from "<http://www.ttalk.com>"www.ttalk.com. Apparently software pirates in Thailand have procured a copy of Windows 98 and are selling it in Microsoft boxes with the holograph security code label "exact duplicates" for $8.69 to $9.00. I guess they somehow obtained a prerelease copy of the software which is not due out for another month. Basically one could call this a classic case of industrial espionage, and I have advised World Bank and Monetary officials to take appropriate economic sanctions against the offending countries and parties involved. If I stole a 100 Boeing 747s and parked them in my country, I am sure there would be a big Hell a Bellou, but the economic community seems to have been slow to respond to this incident, and it shows that not only the United States Department of Justice is out to lunch on the Microsoft antitrust case, but it is encouraging economic sabotage of the vital corporate materials in the computer industry by not protecting their intellectual property rights in the world community. I knew the Asian community here was being incredibly sneaky and tight lipped, and I think it is now safe to assume they're involved in a great deal of economic and industrial espionage and sabotage in their activities. The proof is on the streets of Thailand. Remember once you steal from somebody, they will be far less likely to help you out when you have a real emergency in the future. Once burned thrice shy. I think the Chinese groups who are using Thailand for computer software piracy should be censured, and if I were Microsoft and IBM; I would remove all commercial Chinese versions of my software from general distribution until this case is ironed out. First thing I would do if I were Microsoft is remove the Chinese character code for Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.01 from my web server and if another country in another part of the world did the same thing, I would remove their language characters from the server. Sooner or later what may seem like innocent crime will lead to other major misjudgments in the international community, and what we have learned from conventional wisdom over long periods of historical engagement still applies as far as I am concerned. - - - _ _ _ - - - CIO

Note:<888> 5/29/98 Friday 7:40 P.M. EDT: I downloaded and installed "<http://www.microsoft.com/liquidmotion/shop/beta.asp>"Microsoft Liquid Motion Free Beta animation designing program. It looks promising, but it did crash on me once, so if you try beta testing, it remember to save your work frequently when designing a cartoon with it. Well the monsoon rain storm finally came. It is raining cats and dogs outside, so I guess once it is all over, we should have some fresh air for our evening strolls. I suppose this the normal effect near the ocean on unusually warm days, one gets a moisture buildup in the upper atmosphere, and generally around sunset or shortly before, one gets a heavy thunder shower. I hear quite a bit of thunder at the moment. I watched Peter Jennings on the ABC evening news, and besides covering Barry Goldwater's passing away, he mentioned there are over 200 million cars in the United States, so people are not easily impressed by them since, they're as common as horse manure. In fact having been a pedestrian for a great deal of my life until ten years ago, I actually notice pedestrians more than drivers. Still in the unfriendly weather that we frequently are not use to encountering an automobile can afford us protection, but conversely it can also take us to locations where the weather is more inhospitable than what we're use to encountering. I remember driving through the Colorado Rockies in December during an over two foot blizzard at night in a Subaru without heat or snow tires with no place to pull over or no money to afford to stop, until I picked up some used snow tires at Vale and continued on to Stapleton airport where I called a relative and they thought I was deranged, needlessly to say I never called that relative again. Thus being a clever mechanic and fairly good on driving on snow and not minding too much cold, I made it through that blizzard when all the snow hot dogs were comfortably drinking their beers at the local ski chalets. I think a few truckers were watching over us. See you all on the rebound. CIO

Note:<888> 5/29/98 Friday 5:55 P.M. EDT: I went out for a short spell. Today is definitely a major air pollution day. One can hardly breathe in the ozone carbon monoxide filled environment of the area. I guess all the automobile traffic along the Interstate 95 trying to escape to more friendly environments compiled with the smoke from the fires in Mexico have created this condition. What we need is a good soaking cool rain shower to put the environment back in order. I stopped by the library and chatted with a fellow from Illinois who has a sense of humor about our predicament here. I mentioned to him that Winston Churchill was in the visitors gallery with J.P. Morgan when the stock market crashed in 1929. I stated that since the British are the largest investors in American they can effect our financial prospects. I read the Town and Country article about Prince Charles collecting petrified wood for his garden. I also thought they had enough dead wood over there in England, but I guess he is going for anything over a 100 million years old. I was upset to read about Barry Goldwater passing away, since I campaigned for him against Nelson Rockefeller while at Greenwich Country Day. Of course he is a pilot and any pilot knows lots of places to hide out where people won't bother them. I also read the Nantucket Magazine, and it showed Reverend Anderson fighting the fire when Prestons Airport Bar and Grill burned down. I suppose the Nantucketeers could never afford to replace it after it burned down. They're so poor with nothing but their scallop money that I doubt if they would know what to do. Realistically there once were a few old guard New England families in Nantucket, but when the new money New Yorkers started showing up, they retreated to more sedate family retreats in the mountains. Of course once you start heading to the mountains, there is a lot more territory around you than on the tiny island of Nantucket. I suppose one could escape to the Rockies, the Alps, the Canadian Rockies, or some Alpine summer wonderland. I here tell they have very good windsurfing on the Northern Netherlands coasts and in the lakes of Austria. I suppose one could go up to Scandinavia and enjoy the all day sun of the summer, and walk around the beaches starkers like they tend to do. Of course the Victorian crowd have a network of retreats that are well remember in literary folk lore, and I suppose although they are in somewhat disrepair, they are probably still usable. I here tell the wealthy industrialists of the Midwest shunned the shores of the Coasts which are over populated to enjoy the more sedate areas like Mackinaw Island or some of the great old Railroad Tycoon lodges in the Mountains of Idaho or Canada. For the real adventurer, I suppose one would not be too crowded in with the grizzlies in Alaska. Well I am can't even afford to visit West Point tomorrow for graduation, so I guess they will have to come down here and visit me. I know the army likes walking, so they can all walk around Greenwich as much as the feel. If you see anyone in blue jeans, they're probably just pretending to be in the Navy while they collect hay for the horses in Back Country. Of course Back Country probably goes all they way up to the Artic circle. I suppose Montreal or Toronto this time of the year offer outdoor entertainment in less hectic surroundings, not to mention the down Easterners in Maine who are only four hours away if you're lucky ride from here. The hottest I ever was in New England was camping out in a tent in June in Hanover, New Hampshire besides the dishwashing duties in Nantucket. I have not checked my Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm yet, but I will post it with this once I retrieve it. I also noticed some people in rented Rolls Royces are putting on the Connecticut young film makers show in Baldwin Park, to try to attract more young people in the business. However unless one is Hebrew, I would avoid that crowd since they tend to be like gypsies trying to feast off the gullibility of younger people. I dare say they're probably not even paying for the park, fly by night crowd if I've ever seen one. Remember not to screw up where the boss lives, or it could be your job or your livelihood. CIO

Note:<888> 5/29/98 Friday 2:25 P.M. EDT: I worked until 8 A.M. this morning on routine system maintenance. I had the Purdue chicken for dinner. I went to bed and got up about 1:30 P.M.. It feels like it is hot out. I was told the normal temperature for this time of year should be in the mid 70s. I looked at "<http://www.forbes.com/tool/toolbox/rich97/index.asp>"1997 Forbes Four Hundred Query Page , unfortunately they keep forgetting me. I added

"<http://www.microsoft.com/ntserver/netshow/download.htm>"Download NetShow 3.0 beta Services to my computer. It looks like a promising alternative to RealAudio. I added

"<http://www.winmag.com/software/wt97.htm>"Software Library: Wintune 97 to my system and ran it. It recommended changing one item in the properties from a Desktop to a Network System for faster performance on my system. I added Logtime 2.0

"http://www.newapps.com/appsttopics/Win\_95\_Online\_Timers.html"NewApps.com - Category: Online Timers to my system and startup to monitor my ISP connect times since MCI limits one to 150 hours, but yet does not provides away to know when one has reached the limit. I installed the Cyrix 6X86 Control Panel to tweak my IBM Cyrix 6X86 233 processor

"<http://www.sysopt.com/fastutil.html>"CPU Performance Enhancing Utilities . Be sure to save your original setting before making any changes with this utility if you use the Cyrix 6X86. It seems to have done its thing all right though. I also looked at the usual tech stories this morning. Well I guess I should clean up and have something to eat. I don't know if I want to face the hot weather, but I suppose I will go out for an errand. By the way I have 400 megs free on my hard drive with another 150 megs of stored Microsoft Updates and program downloads stored on the drive. CIO

Note:<888> 5/29/98 Friday 4:10 A.M. EDT: In process of cooking 7 1/2 pound Purdue chicken, it should be ready in 1 1/2 hours. Having a Minute Maid orange soda. CIO

Note:<888> 5/29/98 Friday 3:30 A.M. EDT: Yesterday I went out in the morning, and Greenwich was not yet busy. I made some of the usual rounds. I made my 11 A.M. appointment. I stopped by the library and came home for lunch. I went back out about 1:30 P.M. and walked around downtown a bit. I chatted with a chap trying to sell lottery tickets on a Red Jeep Cherokee Wagoner for $50 apiece in front of the post office. The lottery benefits GEMS the local Emergency Medical Service. They are finishing up with the sewer construction. Lots of people were out shopping. I stopped the library again and chatted with some locals. I chatted with one of my neighbors about English gardening, and she showed me her garden. I went to bed about 5 P.M. and woke up about midnight. I have been having a quiet morning on the net doing some minor adjustments of the system, and reading some tech messages. Today is suppose to be in the 90s, so if one has not acclimated to the summer heat, it is cooler in the morning. My air conditioner is working fine, and I am cool and comfortable on these warmer days. CIO

Note:<888> 5/28/98 Thursday 7:30 A.M. EDT: I email IBM this message:

To: ISOURCE

Subject: RE: Scott's mrscott.com/ibm01.htm page IBM directory.

5/28/98

Scott's IBM page

<http://mrscott.com/ibm01.htm>

The IBM page is taking quite a few hits

<http://mrscott.com/stats.htm>

I might try to finish what I have in the bookmark.

<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>

I am quite burned out after maintaining the directory for 3 1/2 years and well over 30,000 hours.

Over the last year when I realized the Microsoft and IBM pages were busy, I gave them prominent display on the homepage.

On May 5, 1998 I installed a new motherboard and IBM Cyrix 233 processor. However until this past Sunday I had to keep reinstalling the Win95 operating system. I thought the problem was the recent Solar Flares on the Sun.

It turned out that my old memory was faulty in the new system.

I purchased a 64 meg DIMM at CompUSA in Norwalk on Monday for $119, and ever since then the system has been running flawlessly.

To make the directory I have to use Netscape 3.04 for its bookmark capabilities. I have yet to reinstall it, since I am worried it might corrupt the Win95 operating system with outdated *.dll files and other changes.

I subscribe to about two dozen email tech news letters from Netscape Inbox Direct

http://form.netscape.com/ibd/html/ibd\_frameset.html

I also subscribe to IBM's email newsletter.

I also look at the IBM and Lotus pages everyday.

I collect the links in the Netscape 3.04 bookmarks, editing each link to be uniform in my directory structure.

I start each IBM link in the bookmark with "IBM,".

As you can see I start certain subcategories with user friendly IBM subheading to bunch them together.

After about two months of collecting all the latest IBM links,

I have to take the Netscape bookmark, and with a text editor

I use the OS/2 editor since it does not put in line spaces, and edit cut and paste the IBM Netscape bookmark links from the page and place them in a separate file.

I also take out the top headings installed by Netscape and the bottom heading in the page, if they're still there, so it is just the links.

Then I use the OS/2 Boxer editor to Search and Replace the Netscape link code on the page, leaving simple HTML code of the links.

Note: the Search and replace string for the boxer editor is AD*"*"*"*"*"*" for search and replace with nothing "no code", this takes out all the Netscape date code.

I then "select all" and unindent and left justify the code.

I save it and put then add it to the existing ibm01.htm page.

Then I put in <h1>*</h1> at the top of the page and save it.

I then open the file in the Netscape 3.04 bookmarks and sort if alphabetically.

I then save it.

I then go through the same Boxer OS/2 progress again to remove the Netscape date code with Search and Replace and unindenting.

Once I have the clean file,

I put my ibm01.htm page header information code and bottom header information at the top and bottom of the page.

I usually take the top dozen links from the original ibm01.htm page that have primary links and financial links and once again place them at the beginning.

When you have the IBM list in the Netscape 3.04 bookmarks for sorting alphabetically you can use to remove outdated and broken links.

LinkSweeper

<http://www.lss.com.au/lss/windows/lss/linkssweeper.htm>

I did this once and it did a very good job removing about 1,500 outdated links.

Thus you should have an updated "ibm01.htm" page.

However a great deal of the work is surfing the email newlinks and web pages for IBM links to add to the directory. Since I worked on a lot of different categories, I kept a lot of different links in the bookmark as I compiled them since IBM links pop up all the time surfing various other sites.

It is important to edit the links so that links like IBM, Networking links appear in groups together, by opening the Netscape bookmark properties to edit the link, and also to reenter the link in different subcategories, like IBM, Ebusiness etc. Thus duplicate links appear under different names.

Anymore questions let me know.

Remember I have spent up to 30,000 hours on the site in the last 3 1/2 years constantly, and I am quite burned out from it all, and I have depleted my extra financial resources on the activity.

You are the first person from IBM to email me, except John Patrick at the Internet division who links the site. I have let the site go by word of mouth to keep it perspective, since it is all done on a shoe string budget.

Anymore questions let me know.

Yours Truly,

Michael Louis Scott
71 Vinci Drive
Apt. # 206
Greenwich, Connecticut
06830
203-531-6754

> -----Original Message-----

> From: ISOURCE [mailto:isource@us.ibm.com]

> Sent: Wednesday, May 27, 1998 9:57 AM

> To: mikescott@ibm.net

> Subject:

>

>

> Thank you so much for all the hard work and effort you have put > into your Web > site. I have looked at it and bookmarked it for my records.

> Will someone else > be updating the site? If not, I would like to know how it can be > updated since

> I am interested in keeping it going. Please send a response to > tracisal@us.ibm.com. Thank you.

>

>

> IBM iSource, your electronic source for the latest IBM information.

> Send e-mail to: iSource@us.ibm.com.

> To view, modify, or update your subscription , visit our web site:

> <http://www.ibm.com/iSource>

>

End of Message

Time for another nap until 9 A.M.

Note:<888> 5/28/98 Thursday 6:00 A.M. EDT: NYPD in process of arresting someone in Queens? on "Supreme Court Mental Hygiene Warrant". I guess we better dress up and clean up when visiting New York. CIO

Note:<888> 5/28/98 Thursday 5:45 A.M. EDT: I downloaded Lotus Notes 4.6 while I took a nap from 2 A.M. to 4 A.M., but I could not get it to install properly since I don't have a Lotus Notes server, so I deleted it. IBM should get its act together at Lotus and make software installation a no brainer for the general public. I suppose we could move Lotus out of Academically backwards Cambridge, Massachusetts and put it in some intellectual zone like Beverly Farms, Massachusetts. Back to the net. New York City Police broadcasts should be picking up. Lots of traffic I am sure. CIO

Note:<888> 5/28/98 Thursday 12:55 A.M. EDT: I went out at 11 P.M.. I linked "<http://www.policescanner.com/>"policescanner.com - live police & fire broadcasts from my homepage. Right now a 100 motorcycles are doing over 100 miles an hour on the Grand Central Parkway. I went for a walk when out. The sewer project is still underway, but just about done. I noticed a distinct smell of methane sewer gas in the air. I hope it all does not blow up. I guess if the present temporary line blew up, it would take out the railroad bridge, and then we would have quite a bit of traffic congestion. Tonight was really quiet. I noticed three discarded computer shells at the train station office building. Most of their parts had been stripped. I did pick up a sliding keyboard drawer for my backup bedroom computer. I took out the two four meg chips out of the left side 386 and put eight one megs. I put the two four megs in my sound card on the main computer. Thus I should have superior sound. I suppose more people are not eating out with the market down, so they're feeling poorer. Well back to net. CIO

Note:<888> 5/27/98 Wednesday 8:45 P.M. EDT: I was up at 3 A.M. this past morning. I surfed the net. I updated my system with a few shareware program. They are "<http://www.download.com/PC/Result/TitleDetail/0,4,0-24582,501000.html>"DOWNLOAD.COM -- RAS Professional if you have multiple ISP dialups, "<http://www.download.com/PC/Result/TitleDetail/0,4,0-48273,501000.html>"DOWNLOAD.COM -- CD Streamer to encode CDs, "<http://www.download.com/PC/Result/TitleDetail/0,4,0-48504,501000.html>"DOWNLOAD.COM -- vTuner for listening to broadcasts. I also downloaded the Real G2 beta "<http://www.real.com/g2/index.html>"Real G2 which has some very interesting features and works fine on my system. They recommend that you keep Real version 5 and install into a different directory. I also already have "<http://www.lss.com.au/lss/windows/lss/linksweeper.htm>"Link Sweeper which is useful for proofing ones bookmarks. I updated Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm which has not been doing well the last couple of days. Well it's only a demo portfolio, I am not lucky enough to have that net wealth. One of the interesting happening on the net this week is "<http://www.events.broadcast.com/edu/harvard/conference/>"Second Int'l Harvard Conference on Internet & Society . I slept from 1 P.M. until 6 P.M. this afternoon, and had a rib eye steak for dinner and am now having my coffee. I have a 11 A.M. appointment Thursday morning. I have not been out today yet, and I still have to shower and cleanup. I updated "<http://mrscott.com/scottpc01.htm>"Scott's Computer Setup . This past morning from 3 A.M. to 6 A.M. I installed my old two 8 meg SIMMs in my backup 486 computer along with the Diamond Stealth memory card. I am only running Win 3.1 on it and OS/2 since it has two slow hard drives. I am finishing up listening to "<http://www.ttalk.com>"www.ttalk.com and "<http://www.dailybriefing.com>"www.dailybriefing.com . The new Real G2 has interesting setup presets. I guess more audio will be appearing on the net. Well lets finish the coffee and clean up.

CIO

Note:<888> 5/26/98 Tuesday 5:10 P.M. EDT: I went out about noon. I stopped by the Putnam Trust Office on Mason Street and got money to fill up the car at Exxon with $11.50 of premium at $1.43 a gallon. I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop and they some new furniture offerings. I went down by the harbor at Grass Island and sat out in the sun from 12:30 P.M. to 1:30 P.M. and observed the harbor and got a little daylight. I did not notice much nautical traffic. There is a sporty sailboat at the Greenwich Harbor Inn from the Guernsey Islands that has been here before. I went up town to the library. The library parking lot was full, and I eventually found a parking space. I read the Greenwich Times and the four weekly computer publications I usually read from last week. I will still have to read this weeks when they come in. I went by the Food Emporium and purchased 2% half gallon Sealtest milk for $2.05, a Purdue chicken at .99 a pound for $7.51, two ears of corn for .50 for a total of $10.06. I went by the Arnold Bakery Outlet in Byram and purchased 3 loaves of Healthnut bread for $3.87. My purchase card was filled up, so I got two free French cheese cakes, and also a breakfast ring pastry. I returned home and had a light dinner of peanut butter sandwich, Ramen noodles, cheese cake and soda. I updated Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm for you investment research, it was down a bit today. Perhaps nice warm weather brings out the Bears. I noticed the usual air traffic today. Lots of prop planes instead of jets. CIO

Note:<888> 5/26/98 Tuesday 10:45 A.M. EDT: Surfed the net until now. All systems go. Enjoying exploring the net instead of working on the bookmarks. I have had breakfast and will now shower and go out. Looks to be a sunny day. CIO

Note:<888> 5/26/98 Tuesday 7:00 A.M. EDT: System has run fine all night without any problems. I guess it is all back up and running fine now. I did install the HP Colorado Cheyenne Backup 3.11 and made a full backup. I also installed my copy of WordPerfect 6.0. I did notice when I installed the Cheyenne backup, it slowed down my system a little bit on starting up by about 5 seconds, but everything once they system is up and running seems to going great. I have not had any system errors or crashes all night, so I think I am back to normal work routine. I will go out for a little daylight this morning. CIO

Note:<888> 5/26/98 Tuesday 1:25 A.M. EDT: I was up at 9:30 A.M. yesterday. I watched the Memorial Day ceremonies on TV from Arlington. I had a friend come down at 1:30 P.M.. We went to CompUSA in White Plains. They had 32 meg DIMMs on sale for $59, but they were out. We had them check the store in Norwalk, and they said they had them. We went up to the store in Norwalk, and apparently the report of them having them was false, but based on the inventory at the beginning of the day. The manager Aaron was very helpful, he offered to let me have the 64 meg DIMM at the 32 meg sale price of two for $119 plus tax. I got it and thanked Aaron. We drove home and I installed the 64 meg DIMM changing my motherboard setting to 3.3 volts for DIMMs. It was hard getting the 64 Meg DIMM installed since the motherboard had a little flex, so I removed my peripherals in the slots and lowered the motherboard from the bottom of the case. With the motherboard exposed, I was able to install the DIMM no problem in slot one. The system booted fine, and I opened the CMOS to recognized the memory. I accept the CMOS default of 10 ns and automatic for memory. I then removed my one meg memory card and activated the onboard memory setting it at 4 megs when the system booted in the CMOS. I installed the driver from the Cdrom that came with the motherboard for the onboard memory. The system seems to be working great, and I have not had any problems. I guess my old memory was a little buggy. Everything is working fine so far. I gave my friend dinner and we watched the History Channel until 8 P.M.. I went to bed and got up just now. I will probably go back to bed shortly for a while after testing the system for a few minutes. CIO

Note:<888> 5/25/98 Monday 3:00 A.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm and Scott's Stats

"<http://mrscott.com/stats.htm>"mrscott.com/stats.htm . CIO

Note:<888> 5/25/98 Monday 2:30 A.M. EDT: I was up at 2:30 A.M. Sunday morning. After breakfast I cleaned the apartment and watered the plants. I did a little computer work tweaking the system. It all seems to be fine. I went out at 7:30 A.M. and had two croissants from St. Moritz and ate them in the park in front of the senior center. I walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue. I stopped by CVS and purchased two boxes Kellogg's raisin bran for $1.50 each, CVS antacid pills $2.99, European Mystique Coco Shampoo and Conditioner both .99, CVS mouthwash $2.39, CVS toothpaste 1.39, Edge shaving cream $2.39, Licorice twists .99, CVS disposable razors $1.79, CVS peanuts $2.29, CVS gum drops .99 for a total of $19.87. I sat in front of the senior center and watched the morning Starbucks crowd until 10 A.M.. I drove down Steamboat Road and observed the water. The sewer project is still under way. I drove by Grass Island and observed the harbor. I notice a gal in a new white Ford Escort with a driver who looked a bit like Queen Elizabeth. I returned thru Bruce Park and drove west on the Post Road back home. I chatted with family members. I went to bed until 2:30 P.M. when a guest showed up. We drove back down to Grass Island and sat for a while observing the harbor and the nautical traffic. We went for a drive up North Street and down Round Hill Road looking at all the new housing construction. On Close Road I noticed two homes that look like they have been abandoned for some reason. We returned home for a slight rest at 6 P.M. went to the Hunan Gourmet for dinner. I had the spicy Shrimp and Scallops with vegetables on rice. We returned home and watched 60 minutes. I fell asleep and my guest left. I went to bed until 1 A.M. and got up and started my laundry, and I am doing drying now. I had Ramen noodles for a light breakfast and ice tea. I will surf the net this morning. The computer system seems to be running fine. The only non Microsoft program I have on the computer is RealAudio 5.0. My Cheyenne backup 3.11 program does not work, but would if I reinstalled it, however I think it might write older files to the operating system, so I won't restore it just now. I have the key data files on tape. Well back to surfing the net. CIO

Note:<888> 5/23/98 Saturday 11:00 P.M. EDT: I finally got the system up and running since I had made backup copies of system.dat user.dat and system.ini. To make backups of them or replace them when restoring a faulty registry one needs to use the attrib command. I have updated all the Microsoft updates. The system seems stable, but I have yet to put it through its paces. I have not been out today. I had a dinner guest down for dinner. I slept five hours this afternoon, and I am back up to bed shortly. Have a good night. CIO

Note:<888> 5/23/98 Saturday 9:30 A.M. EDT: I downloaded the updated version of Microsoft Internet Explorer 4 available today, however when it went to install it crippled my system and kept it from booting Windows. I had just made backup copies of my system.dat, system.ini, and user.dat files, so I restored them and reinstalled windows and set it up. When I tried to install the cdrom version of Windows 4.01 it would not install, acting as if I had the updated version on my system, which I may have, but it would not start. I finally put the Internet Explorer files in the recycle bin along with the *.cab files, to be restored if needed. The iresetup.exe file for installing IE 4.01 for downloading would not work. The Outlook 98 setup.exe does work, and right now I am downloading a minimal installed of IE 4.01 and Outlook 98 which will take about an hour and a half. This is real pain, and I hope it installs, so I can do a proper update of IE 4.01 and the other updated programs. I will let you know in about two hours. At the moment I don't have a web browser. Maybe it was my system, and not MS, who knows. What a pain. CIO

Note:<888> 5/23/98 Saturday 2:00 A.M. EDT: I was up at 10 P.M. this past evening. I was up until 2 P.M. yesterday. The Greenwich family crowds were out in full force yesterday. Lots of mothers and tiny tots strolling around. We had a sunny day for a change, so the library construction was busier. I noticed a 727 jet with Blue and Gold tail fin landing about noon. Perhaps some VIP flew into the area, it was not the usual green plane, maybe it was a U.S. Navy executive jet. Greenwich Avenue sewer project is suppose to be finished yesterday, so maybe the Avenue traffic patterns will be back to normal. I noticed a retired Greenwich resident checking out the Windows 98 book from the library. I guess I should have looked for it first. I will have to check and see if there is another copy tomorrow. I chatted with a young Greenwich high school teacher about life in general, which I am sure he found interesting. I heard rumors about Tall Ships on the Hudson yesterday and this weekend. The Indian Harbor Yacht Club has a sail boat the Windsong, which I believe was the name of Marjorie Post's Yacht. I am still trying to remember the name of Czar Nicholas' Yacht, I believe it began with an "S". Well the next three days are a holiday weekend, so I am sure people are trying to relax. Hopefully we will have some decent weather for a change. Thrift shops have the usual assortment of goods. Greenwich seems to be getting back to normal after a confusing week. Well have a good holiday. If anyone spots the Norwegian sailing vessel the "Viking" in their travels, please email me its location. CIO

Note:<888> 5/22/98 Friday 7:55 A.M. EDT: I caught up on my sleep on Thursday. I chatted with friends and family members on Thursday, and they seem to think the country is being invaded. Perhaps it is because so many people here have prospered recently, they are all traveling overseas, and we are receiving visitors back. I strongly urge visitors to observe the universal rules of etiquette when they travel, and if they have any questions to consult with their travel advisors. Besides West Point graduation next Saturday, we have Yale University's graduation exercises this coming Monday up in New Haven. I was advised the Greenwich Harbor Inn is pretty busy. I noticed the night before last, it looked like all the lights on Long Island were out, but maybe they were just in the fog over there as usual. I did see the North Shore lights blinking this morning as usual. Traffic congestion on Greenwich Avenue will continue to be the rule, since sewer construction is still underway at the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. Visitors at the Greenwich Harbor Inn will have to walk via the Train Station overpass or around on Arch Street. The guests who visited us recently in large number to purchase Powerball lottery tickets seem to have all dispersed. I checked with Wells Fargo security about whether their services are available in this area. Their alarm company is in New Jersey. We generally use Wells Fargo Security or Burns Security in Greenwich since they are old family friends and tend to have a professional attitude particularly Well Fargo security. However Well Fargo seems to have disappeared, so perhaps Wackenhut Security is still in the area. Needless to say the Greenwich Police know a lot more than they tell the citizens. I did not get yesterday's 65 email messages since my email program crashed and ate all the messages. I noticed that MCI provides account information on the internet about people's telephone records which might not be very secure and outside intruders could possibly check other people's telephone records. We tend to be an established community here, and have a fairly well developed infrastructure with the New York Metropolitan area, and I suppose newcomers who think they know it all might not be aware that we have a highly skilled group of professionals in the area at our disposal. Well hopefully Greenwich will be a bit quieter this morning, and I will get to see a bit of daylight for the first time in about a month. The computer seems to be running all right. I have not been paying much attention to tech recently since I hope to get a little exercise like I did last night while the weather is descent. I did noticed Rib Eye Steaks are $2.99 a pound at the Food Emporium. The night before last all the Grand Union computers were down possibly because of solar flares, so I explored the Food Emporium. Somebody has started some nonsense rumor that the White Siberian Tiger has escaped from the Bronx Zoo, and is on the prowl, but I did not see any evidence of it around last night. If it should approach you I would advise you stay calm and hope your beeper works. Perhaps you could try to lure it into a local grocery store and show it the meat counter. Tigers tend not to be a threat except when they're hungry, so hopefully the Tiger is finding plenty to eat if it actually did escape. I did not know the Bronx Zoo had a Siberian Tiger since I rarely go to Bronx except for when I use to travel through it on the way to Manhattan, but I have not been to Manhattan in six years. Last time I went there I went surfing at a local pub in Chelsea on a Sunday night. Yeh, they use to call me "Moon Doggy" at the Beach. I don't surf, I just have an interesting Karma around the oceans having lived near them for a number of years. Perhaps an alligator or dolphin adopted me years ago in the early 1950s down in Florida. I do remember a number of strange fish and reptiles. Well off to see the daytime powerful people make their financial decisions. See you on the rebound. By the way this Sunday is Queen Victoria's 179 birthday, so the Anglophile community should have some sort of party at the Greenwich Country Club where the replica of the Queen Victoria Golf Trophy has been displayed for quite a few years, I believe the original melted when the Club burned down a number of years ago. Of course one would have to be invited if there were such a party or be related to Queen Victoria or Prince Albert or one of their relatives. Well we're all dirt poor here, so I guess we can't afford to put on the old feed bag and entertain. No evidence of the Cicadas showing up in the food chain yet, but their basically a grub, so I guess you could eat them. I missed my Thursday appointment, since I needed my rest. CIO

Note:<888> 6/07/98 Sunday 11:00 P.M. EDT: I finished drying my laundry. I chatted with one of my neighbors while doing the laundry. I folded the laundry and put it away. I noticed the Daytona community is getting a lot of publicity over the fires down there. They should try doing a rain dance, some times that works. I noticed about 10:20 P.M. the 727 jet from the Southeast flew over my building like it does every Sunday evening about this time. It might be coming off Nantucket, or from McArthur airport on Long Island, or from Bermuda, it is sort of hard to tell where it is always coming from and going to. I've done my chores for today, so I though I might sit back and enjoy surfing the net. I still have not watched "Nell", so I will return it to the library tomorrow. Over the last number years, I have noticed two long stretch one black and one white Lincoln Continental Limousines coming and going opposite each other in and out of New York City. I suppose they are in communication on their opposite comings and goings. We have lots of Blue Cadillac limousines around here that are also coming and going all the time. Realistically so many people around here are poor drivers having grown up in the City, they always use livery service for safety reasons. Basically they are just big taxis. Anyway Greenwich seems quiet for a change, so I suppose the movers and shakers are over in Paris. There was an interesting article about Paul Allen and Tim Berners Lee in this report yesterday
"http://www.abcnews.com/sections/tech/Silicon/silicon26.html"

Silicon Society: Paul Allen To Marry Monica Seles? . I thought Paul was blond, so I am not sure that is really a picture of him. Well I am not going to bother going out and haunting the town this evening, since it is no fun sitting downtown when one is trying to invent some work to do. I like these slow periods, since one can sit back like one is at a retreat and do some brain storming about the future of this technology, like the Rand Corporation use to have the "Think Tank" up on Nantucket working for the Department of Defense in the old days. Well let me know if the Spruce Goose tries to fly into Westchester Airport out of Seattle, and I suppose you will realize the status quo has not changed very much. Basically we all know this is basically a company town, depending on what company one works for. Well enough of Constant Comment, back to looking for news. One can always check out "<http://www.nantucket.net>" www.nantucket.net to see if you recognize anyone downtown there in the morning on their camera, but lots of people there grow facial hair and wear fishermen's caps, so they all tend to look like a bunch of beached whales after a while. In Florida, people who blend in are called Chameleons, I suppose around here they're called village idiots, and up in Nantucket they're called Blues. Well off to the netsurfing, over and out. I will try to keep an eye out for the jet tomorrow morning, but I am not promising anything. CIO

Note:<888> 6/07/98 Sunday 9:20 P.M. EDT: I was up at about 12:30 P.M. today. I chatted with a family member. I had breakfast. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants, while listening to "<http://www.ttalk.com>"

www.ttalk.com 's weekend broadcast over my stereo. I had dinner of Stauffer's frozen lasagna about 7 P.M. and then cleaned up. I went downtown and walked around the bottom of the Avenue. I noticed a number of strollers. The town seems quiet, I guess with the cooler weather not many people from the city are coming out. I noticed quite a few youngster like riding the bronze statue Yak in front of the senior center for brief entertainment. I returned home and am now doing my laundry. I plan to have a quiet night for the rest of the evening. CIO

Note:<888> 6/07/98 Sunday 3:10 A.M. EDT: I went downtown about 10 P.M. this past evening. It was not to busy, just a large number of young yuppies out on the town. They seemed fairly well behaved. I noticed one chauffeur in a Black Lincoln Continental kept putting bottles in the trunk of the car while he was parked. I was not sure whether the chauffeur or some unknown occupant of the Lincoln in the car might have been drinking out of the bottles. It was hard to tell what type of bottles they were. I walked the entire length of the Avenue. I noticed many of the pubs up and down the Avenue seem to be playing vintage 1970s music. I suppose the young yuppies can't afford to buy any new music with all the money they're spending at the pubs. This past afternoon I listened to some classical music for a diversion. I suppose my amplifier has just about had it. The balance is way out of whack, I have to put it all the way to the right to get just a little sound out of the right speakers. I guess I will have start looking for used amplifiers in the thrift shops. Presently at the moment I am on limited expenses having expended money on upgrading my computer system in May. I guess those that go down on Greenwich Avenue for entertainment must find it interesting since there are obviously a lot of other places in the New York area. One local pedestrian advised me the Stanley Cups were still going on, so there is no outcome yet. I have not seen any stories in Yahoo Reuters about the Stanley Cup, it just goes to show the Yahoo boys from Japan are a little out of touch with America, although they have some expertise in computers. Of course Stamford University was never a hockey power, but it is rumored up in Canada one or two individuals seem to have a small interest in hockey when they aren't planting flowers to decorate the cities. I remember out in Illinois standing out in minus fifty below zero Fahrenheit weather watching college hockey matches at the Winter Club was enjoyable entertainment on quiet weekends. I guess now that we have so much electronic entertainment, people don't like many live events, so we will probably have to surrender our season passes that have been handed down from generation to generation for comfortable pastimes like 50 inch flat screen televisions in couch potato atmosphere. Well I guess we're getting too comfortable in our old age, but at least it is nice and peaceful in town for a change. We all like a quiet town. Well off to read a little of today's news. CIO

Note:<888> 6/06/98 Saturday 5:25 P.M. EDT: I listened to net broadcast until 2 P.M. when I went back to sleep. I awoke at 4 P.M. and listened to more broadcasts. The BBC links don't seem to be working from my Dino heads, so I changed them. The one on the left works from "<http://www.broadcast.com>"

www.broadcast.com , but the one on the right is waiting for an industrial action over in the U.K. to be resolved. The way I figure it with the President of the U.S. at the United Nations on Monday along with another dozen heads of state, this area is going to be busy this weekend and Monday. I am spending more time inside to relax, but probably will go out a little bit this evening. CIO

Note:<888> 6/06/98 Saturday 12:45 P.M. EDT: I surf the net and listened to tech news until 1 A.M. this morning. I downloaded, installed, and ran "<http://www6.zdnet.com/cgi-bin/texis/swlib/hotfiles/info.html?fcode=000E3I>"

ZDNet Software Library - Microsoft RegClean . I went out about 1 A.M. and walked around and sat out until about 3 A.M.. I came back and relaxed and had a Coors. I stayed up relaxing until 6 A.M. I got up just now. CIO

Note:<888> 6/05/98 Friday 10:15 P.M. EDT: I took a four hour nap and then listened to a little bit of tech news. I still have to clean up, unless I decide not to go out. Well it is sort of fun to stay inside all day, when one is use to going out everyday. I suppose not much is happening outside, since people are in their summer doldrums waiting for their summer plantings to come up. President Clinton visited MIT today, so maybe he has some better ideas about how to improve this technology, particularly since his plane was lost on radar traffic control today. I suppose not much else exciting is happening since, I have not bothered to go outside. If I don't go outside, I might get up early tomorrow, but since I just had a cup of coffee, I might be up all night. Well who knows what is happening, I guess we are all still prisoners in China, it just looks like America. Beware of Chinese paper dragons. Realistically all the net content on the internet represents less than one percent of the world's population, so you all are really a minority. Well at least I have not turned on the television yet, but we all know it is reruns, but since I have not watched much television in ages, it is all fairly new to me. I suppose there will be some midnight rendezvous and parties tonight, but who knows, in Old Vienna the party always starts at midnight. Of course I am too young to show up at midnight balls. Yet still somewhere in the world, somebody is probably throwing a good party. Maybe we should have a site "<http://www.elegantparty.com>"

www.elegantparty.com or "<http://www.whitetie.com>"www.whitetie.com or "<http://www.oldguard.com>"www.oldguard.org . Still I don't think they're be waltzing on the streets of Greenwich, since they basically seem to have lost track about the old world aspect of life. We're all in the brave new modern world, for what it is all worth, but I suppose somewhere in the world it is still old world rules. Well have a good evening, and enjoy yourselves whatever you do this evening. CIO

Note:<888> 6/05/98 Friday 5:00 P.M. EDT: I upgraded my Server Stats

"<http://mrscott.com/stats.htm>"

mrscott.com/stats.htm . There seems to be quite a bit of interest in

"<http://mrscott.com/note01.htm>" Scott's Internet Hotlist Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 beta Installation Note and "<http://mrscott.com/mlsnote1.txt>" "<http://mrscott.com/mlsnote1.txt> my text file of Scott's Notes this past May. CIO

Note:<888> 6/05/98 Friday 4:40 P.M. EDT: I was up at 9:30 A.M. this morning after a good nights sleep. I spent all day surfing the net looking at news and tech information. I finally got around to putting some newsgroups in my News program. I found an interesting Cyrix 6X86 configuration control program which costs $20, but at the moment I can't tell any difference

"<http://www.sysenhance.com/>"

Systemhance 6x86 Configuration Control . I read an interesting Windows 98 story about setting up the new OS "<http://www.winmag.com/library/1998/0701/Cov0076.htm>" Cover Story: Win98: The Essential Upgrade Guide - July 1998 . I noticed that Slate's

"<http://www.slate.com/code/todaypapers/todaypapers.asp>" Slate - Today's Papers is still for free. "<http://www.digitext.co.uk/conf98/>" On-line Help Conference - Europe '98 is ending today.

"http://volcano.und.edu/vwdocs/current\_volcs/" Update on Current Volcanic Activity has all the latest Volcano news. "<http://memento.ieor.berkeley.edu/index.html>" Memento Mori has the latest on Silicone Valley faults. "<http://www.spacezone.com/nasavid/85vid.htm>" SPACEZONE •

NASA TV has the NASA shuttle video. The June 1998 Hurricane Season forecast is available at "<http://typhoon.atmos.colostate.edu/forecasts/1998/june98/index.html>" "<http://typhoon.atmos.colostate.edu/forecasts/1998/june98/index.html> . Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>" mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was up quite a bit today. Well I still have to shower and eat lunch or dinner, and then go out for a little sunlight. Have a good weekend. CIO

Note:<888> 6/05/98 Friday 12:15 A.M. EDT: I did a little net work, and I added

"<http://home.microsoft.com/default.asp?zipcode=06830&citycode=&ClientTime=1428>"

Scott's Microsoft Internet Start to the homepage. CIO

Note:<888> 6/04/98 Thursday 10:30 P.M. EDT: I got up at 11:30 A.M. this morning when the housing authority called me about my rent. It was straightened around. I listened to the NASA Shuttle docking maneuvers on RealAudio "<http://mrscott.com/nasa.htm>"

mrscott.com/nasa.htm . SpaceZone has live VDO feeds. I also watched it on CNN. I went out at 2 P.M. and stopped by the Housing Authority, and then paid my rent at First Union Bank at Lafayette Place. I noticed they had bought new IBM equipment being brought in at the bank. They are building a new wall in front of the Presbyterian Church. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I mentioned the should put tornado warnings on the beeper systems. Apparently a lot of people use them. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. The IBM laptop sold. I drove down by the Sound. I went by the library and read the local paper. I met up with a friend who came down for dinner. We had boneless rib eye steaks, Ramen noodles, and zucchini along with ice tea and coffee. We watched ABC evening news and a film on the history channel about the Korean War. I went out to Port Chester after he left and stopped by Odd Job and bought a package of Shampoo and Conditioner by St. Ives for $1.99. I browsed Staples. I went to Caldor's and purchased two polyester firm queen size pillows two for $21.35 with tax. I figured since the sleep cycle takes a good portion of ones life, one might as well have new pillow, I left the down pillows on top of the new pillows for the feather feel. I drove back downtown and walked around the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. They now have a pair of stop signs in the middle of Greenwich Avenue at Elm Street. I noticed lots of Ryder Rental trucks being dropped off at the Sunoco station by graduating college students who seem to be moving here. Lots of new young faces around town. Scott's Index is at

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Well I will do a little net work and go to bed before midnight and be back on a day schedule. CIO

Note:<888> 6/04/98 Thursday 8:00 A.M. EDT: I have been up all night again. I went out at 4:30 P.M. and mailed a birthday card. I found a discarded Mitsubishi 14 inch monitor at the office park about five years old. I brought it home and tested it, and it worked. I cleaned it up, and put it with the backup 486 computer in the bedroom. I had dinner and went out about 9 P.M.. I walked around downtown for exercise. It was not busy for a Wednesday night. I came back about 11 P.M. and started tinkering with backup 486 computer. I decided to delete Win 3.1 in the C: drive and install Win95. After completing installation I installed the updated files and configured the dialers. I am using the Opera software to download Netscape 3.04 which I will put on the system. The C: drive only has 80 meg, so I limited to what I can put on it. I have OS/2 on the D: drive. I am having trouble bringing up the bootable OS/2 disks to reactivate the OS/2 D: drive with Fdisk. I will try once again once I finishing downloading Netscape 3.04. I should have room for RealAudio also. Although it is small C: drive, the rest of the system is up to snuff with older parts. Netscape installed fine and working. I will also install RealAudio 5. I should have a reliable backup system, I just need to get OS/2 going. Well I finally activated the OS/2 boot manager, by dabbling the cache cmos while I boot the two boot disks, and reactivated the boot manager with fdisk. I am really bushed, time to go to bed. I have a 3 P.M. appointment. CIO

Note:<888> 6/03/98 Wednesday 4:30 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index
"http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm"

mrscott.com/scopor01.htm , the portfolio made a little money today in a down market. I am out of here again shortly. CIO

Note:<888> 6/03/98 Wednesday 4:05 P.M. EDT: I went out and stopped by the bank. I went by the Greenwich Housing Authority because they had made a mistake on my rent bill. I went by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop and they have an older IBM PS/2 laptop with printer for $300. I don't think it is even worth half that price. I went by the Exxon station and filled up the car with $12.50 of gasoline. I went by the Grand Union purchased four half gallons of Lucky Leaf Apple Juice at .75 each, 4 half gallons of GU orange juice @ .99 each, two Ragu parmesan cheese sauce @ $1.50 each, Angostura bitters for $2.99, two boneless rib eye club steaks @ $4.99 a pound for $6.95, 2% half gallon milk for $1.55, two Tony's pizza @ $3.19 with $1.00 off coupon for two, 20 packs of Ramen noodles at 8 @ 4 for a $1, and 12 @ 6 for a dollar, for a total of $4, for a total of $31.81. I returned home and put away the groceries. I wanted to watch Barry Goldwater's funeral at 3:30 P.M., but it must be on at that time in a different time zone either 4:30 P.M. here or 5:30 P.M. here on CNBC. Stock market is down 87.44. CIO

Note:<888> 6/03/98 Wednesday 1:35 P.M. EDT: I had lunch of Ramen noodles and diet Sprite. I made "<http://mrscott.com/icetea.htm>" mrscott.com/icetea.htm . I took a shower and cleaned up. I listened to "<http://mrscott.com/nasa.htm>"mrscott.com/nasa.htm NASA's shuttle RealAudio broadcast while doing this. CIO

Note:<888> 6/03/98 Wednesday 12:25 P.M. EDT: NASA shuttle feed is at
"http://www.spacezone.com/sched.htm"

SPACEZONE • Schedule of SpaceZone's Audio/Video Broadcasts or at "http://mrscott.com/nasa.htm"mrscott.com/nasa.htm . CIO

Note:<888> 6/03/98 Wednesday 12:20 P.M. EDT: If you use MCI long distance, you can go to MCI's homepage "<http://www.mci.com>"

www.mci.com and if you have a credit card, you can sign up for MCI's 9 cents a minute long distance all the time and 5 cents on Sunday. Of course to get this offer you need a credit card and internet access. CIO

Note:<888> 6/03/98 Wednesday 11:55 A.M. EDT: There is a new UK News site
"http://www.newsnow.co.uk/"

NewsNow: NewsFeed and also "<http://khepontheweb.epfl.ch/>"KhepOnTheWeb: Visual Remote Control of a Khepera Mobile Robot. CIO

Note:<888> 6/03/98 Wednesday 11:35 A.M. EDT: Windows 98 review
"http://www.cnet.com/Content/Reviews/Compare/Win98/"

CNET Reviews - Comparative Reviews - Windows 98 performance preview . CIO

Note:<888> 6/03/98 Wednesday 11:30 A.M. EDT: I was up at 9:30 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast and listened to the NASA shuttle while they were trying to upgrade a computer system onboard the system. I wrote a letter and then went through "<http://mrscott.com/scotwork.htm>" mrscott.com/scotwork.htm Scott's Daily Work List. I listened to yesterday's "<http://www.ttalk.com>"www.ttalk.com daily broadcast. I will read my email and then probably go out. CIO

Note:<888> 6/02/98 Tuesday 11:30 P.M. EDT: Lots of thunder in the distance, I guess we have a thunder shower coming into the area. My barometer is at 30.4 down .15, well I paid 50 cents for the Jansen barometer set at the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. CIO

Note:<888> 6/02/98 Tuesday 11:20 P.M. EDT: CNBC is covering Barry Goldwater's funeral tomorrow at 3:30 P.M. EDT. I made a tape backup of the system. I watched an hour of television while making the tape backup. I suppose the television media covers a lot of different stories than the internet does. I noticed Microsoft's Windows 98 event is in the Copacabana in Manhattan across from CBS broadcast center where I use to work. I threw a party at the same location during the winter of 1975 when we had a severe snowstorm. It was for the "Once Gallery" with a mixed crowd of dignitaries including the Crown Prince of Japan who said he was a concert pianist. I recall one my friends at the partying reminding me of the blizzard of 1888, when Manhattan had ten feet of snow. I believe the same location also had a General Motors showroom and once had the nightclub the "Red Parrot". I have seen news shows recently about an inexpensive tornado alert radio one can buy, which must be handy. I suppose one also has to think about a "safe" location one could evacuate to. I guess I would go in my bathroom since it does not have any windows. Unfortunately we don't have a basement here, but it is a fairly strong brick building. I remember one of my parents best friends from Champaign, Illinois was the Godmother of Barry Goldwater's children. I believe if she is still around she lives out in Lake Tahoe, where a lot of pilots live. I think the U.S. Air Force should do a full scale alert formation fly over Barry Goldwater's funeral like when they have a Red Alert. One of my neighbors' son is an Air Force general apparently. She likes viewing the sound from Steamboat Road, and that view also offers a vista of air traffic in the area like the Southwest corner of Tod's Point, for you fellow sky watchers out there. I remember people living in Manhattan penthouses in the old days use to be Air Raid wardens, so I guess since this is the highest level of our two story building, I can appoint myself honorary "Air Raid Warden". Well enough random thoughts for today. Lots of walkers and joggers were out this evening. I don't sit out on the bench until midnight when I get up in the morning. Remember I am usually on a night schedule, so frequently the day time schedule for me is a little strange. If you want to experience a gourmet treat in the area, try shopping at the Food Emporium or Grand Union at 3 A.M. in the morning when they are open all night on week days, but not on weekends. Well I guess it is time to start relaxing. CIO

Note:<888> 6/02/98 Tuesday 8:55 P.M. EDT: I installed Iphone 5.0 from "http://www.vocaltec.com"

www.vocaltec.com . It works pretty well. I chatted with a pilot from Southern California. He told me about the Microsoft Windows 98 launch site

"http://events.microsoft.com/isapi/events/multi\_site.asp?ss=14"Microsoft Events - - Corporate Events Windows 98 Launch . I had a problem with the Iphone 5.0 sound test freezing the program on my system, but it all works fine when one does not do the test. I went out at 4:30 P.M.. I stopped by a new store on Greenwich Avenue "Omnipoint"

"http://www.omnipoint.com/"Omnipoint What's the 'Point? that offers Cellular devices and service. They sell a laptop cellular modem there for $359. I drove down by the Sound on Steamboat Road. I chatted briefly with the fellow off the sailboat from the Guernsey Islands, and he said they were headed down into the Caribbean. I went over to Grass Island and viewed the harbor. I stopped by McDonalds and had two double cheese burgers at .99 each with tax at $2.10. I went by the library and read P.C. Magazine. I chatted with a regular and explained I was busy working on my computer for the last month, which is why he had not seen me. He said he like Gulf Steam, Florida. I went back downtown and walked the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. I sat in front of the senior center, and one of the regulars said there were a lot of fire engines last night when I was not out. I walked to the top of Greenwich Avenue and purchased two boxes of Kellogg's Raisin Bran for .99 each at CVS for a total of $1.98. I walked back down to the bottom of Greenwich Avenue and around the train station and returned to the senior center. All the restaurants were moderately busy with the fine weather we have this evening. Lots of Alfresco diners. I noticed a long horse trailer from Greentree Farms stopping by Starbucks for coffee. The horses looked to be in good shape. One of the British regulars at the Greenwich Harbor Inn said that it would be an adventure for the Guernsey Island sailboat to sail down into the Caribbean during the hurricane season. I returned home and filed this report. I will also update Scott's Index
"http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I might watch a movie "Nell" for the rest of the evening for a change of pace. CIO

Note:<888> 6/02/98 Tuesday 12:55 P.M. EDT: I found the IBM Lou Gerstner Harvard Conference link from last week

"http://www.events.broadcast.com/edu/harvard/conference/index\_daytwo.html"

Second Int'l Harvard Conference on Internet & Society . There is a link to RealAudio of his speech. I also read my fifty email messages. CIO

Note:<888> 6/02/98 Tuesday 12:45 P.M. EDT: I was up at 11 A.M.. I listened to "http://www.dailybriefing.com"

www.dailybriefing.com . I also listened to IBM's link of Lou Gerstner's speech last week at Harvard. Unfortunately IBM deleted it before I could link it. I found a new link for the kids "http://www.ibm.com/News/ls/1998/05/ki\_4.phtml"IBM News Games . I read my email. The net seems quiet, I guess with summer coming. I downloaded Netscape 3.04 which I will keep on my machine for occasional use, if I am not using Microsoft IE 4.01. I hope it does not corrupt my system files. Don't forget to listen to "http://mrscott.com/nasa.htm"mrscott.com/nasa.htm launch this evening at around 6 P.M. .CIO

Note:<888> 6/01/98 Monday 11:25 P.M. EDT: I am downloading and installing the Bible on my computer. It is available from "<http://www.onlinebible.simplenet.com/>"

Free ONLINE BIBLE Software for download. CIO

Note:<888> 6/01/98 Monday 11:00 P.M. EDT: I stayed in this evening. After watching ABC news, I napped until 8 P.M.. I did laundry and sat outside talking to my neighbors until 10 P.M.. I now have my chores done for the week. I chatted with my neighbors about local gossip. Some of my neighbors are worried about getting New York City medical treatment quality at the Greenwich Hospital. I explained most the New York Hospitals are specialized and certain ones offer better care in certain fields than other ones. I personally have to quit smoking and try to lose some weight. The Welbutrin does not seem to have helped to quit smoking. I have to check with my doctor about quitting the Welbutrin and trying the nicotine patch which worked for me before. I picked up a bottle of Niacimide at the Greenwich Health Mart today on Greenwich Avenue for $8. I have a bit of indigestion this evening from drinking sodas. I suppose I will be on a day time schedule tomorrow. It is cool out this evening. I got to see some of my new neighbors. The Little League is out in full force in the playing field in the back yard in the evenings this time of year. I received an invitation to a fund raiser from a high school classmate for Connecticut State treasurer event in Manhattan. I will not be able to attend. I basically lead a pretty simple life like a trappist monk, so I don't really travel long distances into Manhattan. My main routine is driving a mile downtown and back several times a day. I think I am allergic to highway fumes from I95 nearby, because when I am in Nantucket, Key West, or Kennebunkport along the ocean in fresh air, I feel much better. Perhaps I am allergic to something in my apartment like the 50 year old horse hair sofa, who knows. It could be I am just getting a little bit older. Well all quiet on the Western Front in Greenwich. I suppose I will turn in about midnight. CIO

Note:<888> 6/01/98 Monday 6:10 P.M. EDT: I updated "<http://mrscott.com/nasa.htm>" mrscott.com/nasa.htm and "<http://mrscott.com/nasa-91.htm>"mrscott.com/nasa-91.htm NASA STS-91 Discovery for tomorrow's launch. CIO

Note:<888> 6/01/98 Monday 5:55 P.M. EDT: I was went out at noon today. I stopped by the bank and withdrew funds. I went down to the post office and purchased and mailed money orders for my Geico Insurance, MCI long distance, Cablevision, and Electricity. I still have to pay my rent and Bell Atlantic phone bills. I went by the Mews Thrift shop and purchased four New York Yacht Club 40 meter cocktail classes and one Indian Harbor Yacht Club class all for $4.24. I sat in the park downtown and enjoyed the beautiful weather today. I went down by the water and observed the Sound. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop and found a fellow thrift shopper a Nautical Compass for his boat. I went by the library and read the local paper and the four weekly computer publications I usually read. I checked out the video "Nell". I made my 4 P.M. appointment. I came home and had chicken salad, Ramen noodles, green beans, diet Sprite, and a cup of coffee. I will post Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>" mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I will probably go out for a while and enjoy the evening. This morning I also changed my MCI dialing plan to 12 cents a minute all the time and 5 cents all day Sunday. One get this plan if you have over $15 a month on MCI long distance which I do with MCI internet. CIO

Note:<888> 6/01/98 Monday 10:30 A.M. EDT: I went out last night before the thunder showers. I walked downtown. I noticed somebody looking at some animal that looked like a baby porcupine. I watched the Hallmark television movie. It was thundering all night. A friend stopped by to celebrate his birthday. I gave him the Readers Digest Atlas first edition and the Leonardo DaVinci book. I have a 4 P.M. appointment today. CIO

Note:<888>6/13/98 Saturday 10:50 P.M. EDT: I updated my Scott's Broadcast "<http://mrscott.com/sound.htm>"mrscott.com/sound.htm . I post it every two to three months. I recorded it with the Creative Wave editor with Beethoven 9th playing in the background while I broadcast putting it in the lowest format. I then encoded it with the Real G2 encoder for 28,800 at RealAudio 4 or above. I hope you enjoy the broadcast, not much new to talk about; but that is typical for Greenwich. CIO

Note:<888>6/13/98 Saturday 6:25 P.M. EDT: Listening to the BBC World Service, click on left of right dinosaur heads on my homepage "<http://mrscott.com>"mrscott.com , I think I heard that today is Queen Elizabeth II's official birthday. Thus we should have the usual celebrations tonight. CIO

Note:<888>6/13/98 Saturday 5:40 P.M. EDT: I was up at 4 P.M.. It was raining and thundering a lot at noon, so I disconnected my computer from the wall socket and telephone jack. I had bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, orange and grapefruit juice, vitamins, and coffee for breakfast. I am listening to "<http://www.answerguy.com>"www.answerguy.com 's Saturday broadcast. I removed some of the background music clips from some of my main files, so people can use them in a quiet environment. I will be out in about 45 minutes for a little daylight. CIO

Note:<888>6/13/98 Saturday 3:05 A.M. EDT: I went out for a walk at 10 P.M.. I noticed a Tommy Hillfinger Yellow Bus parked across the street from the Greenwich Harbor Inn. It was raining, so I walked a short distance around the bottom of the Avenue. There was a moderate group out in the rain. I noticed at the Train Station Office Park dumpster area, there were 8 Compaq 386/25 computers discarded, with most of them stripped of memory and drives. They might yield some spare parts, once they dry off. I also saw two discarded Dell 14 inch monitors. The computer equipment is not in direct rain, but covered by the upper deck about six feet from the outside rain. I also salvaged an IBM 486 DX 66 which had its floppies and memory gone. However the motherboard without some cards and 486 DX 66 processor intact are still there. It had a Western Digital Caviar 345 meg hard drive, so I removed it when I got it home. I also picked up 3 half gallons of Tropicana Grapefruit Juice for $5 at the Grand Union. Tropicana Orange Juice is the same price. I also got a half gallon of 2 % milk, and a large 20 ounce package of Stauffer's Lasagna for $2.99, for a total of $9.52. When I returned home I logged onto Western Digital and got the setup parameters for the new used second drive. I put it in my primary machine making it the second D: slave drive. I had to open up the bedroom 486 backup and take out an extra power Y splitter. I put in the second drive below the primary C: drive in the 5 1/4 inch bays. I happened to have spare mounting bars. Since my motherboard IDE controllers are at the bottom or left of the motherboard, I had to switch IDE controller cables to one that was a half inch longer to get the cable to have enough length just barely. I had removed the CDROM drive and put it in the uppermost 5 1/4 inch bay, and the old CDROM space is where I put the new second hard drive in the bottom most 5 1/4 inch bay with the primary C: in the middle 5 1/4 inch bay between the D: drive and the CDROM player. I also put on a longer second IDE cable for the Cdrum player since it stretches the full length of the computer. I setup the new drive in the CMOS and booted the computer and plug and play recognized it and installed it without having to use Fdisk. I though that was pretty good. I formatted the new used D: drive and renamed the Volume and just for backup I ran the SYS command on it, to have it available as a possible boot. I ran thorough Scandisk on it. It all seems fine. I now have an extra 345 meg free on the D: drive, which I will use for storing my *.cab files and download files, that I might have to install in an emergency. I will leave my primary operating and program files on the C: drive. Thus I should have about 500 meg free space altogether on the C: and D: drives. I will not know how much space I have left on the C: drive until I transfer to the D: drive. Well that all took about three hours, but I guess it is worth it, since I can't afford to buy a second hard drive, and I don't really need that much space yet, since I don't have that many programs. My primary computer is mainly a dedicated internet web browsing machine with a few other programs. Also the system is basically setup for when I do install a second large drive in the future, but one would have to copy the C: drive to a new D: drive which can be done with Xcopy, loot at Western Digital's site for information on this procedure if interested. Well I think I need to relax after I put away my tools. The backup bedroom 486 is back together without the redundant Y power cable that I used for the installation in the Primary machine. Well that's what I have been doing, and I think I will have a bite to eat, possibly Ramen noodles and cheese cake. I will also go to bed probably in the next hour. I am tired. CIO

Note:<888>6/12/98 Friday 9:50 P.M. EDT: I tinkered with the AP Associated Press News Ticker and posted it on my homepage "<http://mrscott.com>"mrscott.com . It does not have News Links just the News headlines, but that keeps one on the homepage. I just had dinner of Stauffer's Chicken Fettuccini and Ramen noodles, and I am now having coffee. I will go out in about 45 minutes for a break. CIO

Note:<888>6/12/98 Friday 5:50 P.M. EDT: Bill Gates replies in the Economist "http://www.economist.com/editorial/freeforall/current/index\_sf1077.html"The Economist Bill Gates replies CIO.

Note:<888>6/12/98 Friday 4:40 P.M. EDT: I was up at 4 P.M.. I had breakfast of raisin bran, healthnut toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins. I listened to "<http://www.dailybriefing.com>"www.dailybriefing.com. I updated Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was a milk toast day on the market. Good news, my stereo amplifier fixed itself, and the output is now balanced again. Let's hope it stays that way. It must be good gremlins in the system. Well, I guess I will go out after I shower. It feels like it is a little cool and damp out. CIO

Note:<888>6/12/98 Friday 5:30 A.M. EDT: Note the keystroke "CTL-I" when Microsoft Internet Explorer is open, sets it to open in a full window, when you reopen it in the future. CIO

Note:<888>6/12/98 Friday 5:25 A.M. EDT: Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 beta seems slightly slower. However, it is working fine so far and has not crashed. Of course I have 64 megs memory on the IBM Cyrix 233 MX. I did notice when saving HTML pages, it refetches the page instead of taking it from cache. I also can not remember the keystroke command for setting Internet Explorer to open in a full window, not the full large window. They should have that setup in the preferences. I have been through my daily work routine

"<http://mrscott.com/scotwork.htm>"mrscott.com/scotwork.htm without any problems. I noticed the Outlook Express beta imported all my 150 saved files which Outlook 98 did not for a lack of memory, and I was able to then import the Outlook Express saved files into Outlook 98. I might be tired and there might not be any difference in web browser speed. However, so far I don't see many changes between Internet Explorer 4.01SP and Internet Explorer 5.0. It does say it has 128 bit encryption, but that might be from my earlier install of 128 bit encryption on IE 4.01 SP. Overall I am relieved there does not seem to be any problems with it, and perhaps once I build up images in the cache it will be as fast the current IE 4.01 SP version. I am tired, and am just about to go to bed. I have 200 meg on the hard drive free, but I can easily have another 200 meg of files I could remove if necessary. Well good luck in your efforts if you try to install Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0, it will obviously be my primary browser for the near future. I hope it does not interfere with installing Microsoft Windows 98, if I should be able to afford to buy it. Well off to bed. CIO

Note:<888>6/12/98 Friday 3:45 A.M. EDT: Guess what I was able to install the old version of FrontPage Express that works. I had a copy of "Fpsetup.cab" on my MSN disk. I saved the new version and put the old good version in the Internet Explorer 5.0 Setup folder with the other cab files. I had already uninstalled the bad new version of FrontPage Express, when I ran the install program "ie5setup.exe" after rebooting to eliminate the old file recognition, I checked to install FrontPage Express in customize, it went to download the new file once again, but after downloading it, I had a copy of the old file in my "copy" buffer, and as soon as it went to install the new file again after verifying the file signature, I quickly pasted the good old file over the bad new file in the Internet Explorer 5.0 Setup folder. Also the new file install is bad any way since it prompts for a disk, which I also answered by prompting it for the "Fpsetup.cab or Fpsetup.inf" file on the MSN cdrom. I know it sounds complicated but it worked, and I now have my working version of FrontPage Express up and running, which is why you once see the long page, and it works real fast as usual. Well back to beta testing. CIO

Note:<888>6/12/98 Friday 2:25 A.M. EDT: Please See "note02pr.htm" Scott's Previous Random Notes for earlier explanation of what I have been doing. I downloaded and installed Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 beta and it seems to work fine. I did the Standard Installation Download and then Install. I also went to the Internet Explorer Software Updates and downloaded Netmeeting 2.1 beta, MS Wallet, and Microsoft FrontPage Express. I had a problem with FrontPage Express I could not get it to recognize my earlier pages, so I saved the previous pages and started a new page. Possibly there is a memory leak in FrontPage Express beta, or it does not handle pages as long as before. Thus this is an entirely new page created with the New FrontPage Express beta. It seems quite slow still, but at least I can work with it this way, since I can't put the old version page on. Everything else with Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 seems to be working all right. I recommend not updating FrontPage Express if you try the beta. CIO

Note:<888> 6/11/98 Thursday 11:41 P.M. EDT: I have successful installation of Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 beta and it is up and running, now I have to test Outlook Express and see if there are any other add-ons. CIO

Note:<888> 6/11/98 Thursday 11:20 P.M. EDT: Well I had dinner and read my email. I received notification from Cnet about

"<http://www.cnet.com/Content/Reviews/JustIn/Items/0,118,405,00.html?ibd>" CNET Reviews - Just In - Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 developer preview beta . I chose to download the entire group of files with ie4setup.exe which are 18.5 which took about 1 hour and fifteen minutes on a 56,000 baud connection. Thus I have them save on the hard drive. I am just about ready to install the beta. I hope it does not mess up my system. I have not heard any complaints about it in the internet press. I deleted my Netscape bookmarks, so it does not try to import them. If deleting Netscape bookmarks remember to save them as another file name. Well within a half hour or less I should know if the installation went all right. If it does I will of course have to test it bit to see if it is worth keeping. Keep your fingers cross. CIO

Note:<888> 6/11/98 Thursday 7:10 P.M. EDT: I got up at 1 P.M. and had breakfast and made a 3 P.M. appointment. I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I went down by the ELDC thrift. I went down by the water at the bottom of Steamboat Road. I went by the news stand across from the train station and got a replacement of PC Computing Magazine with a good Cdrom. I saw 7 police cars responding about 5 P.M. to an incident going west on Railroad Avenue around the Train Station. I went by the library and read Computer world and InfoWorld. I also read the Greenwich Times. I stopped by the Arnold bread store and got two New York cheese cakes for $1.89 each, and four loaves of Healthnut bread for 50 cents each. I returned home and put away the bakery goods. I browsed the PC Computing Cdrom and they have quite a few demos and games. I installed the AltaVista Local Search Engine on my PC from the Cdrom. It works great for searching your local hard drive and is free. I updated Scott's index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was down quite a bit today, and as usual the differences don't match. I don't know why this happen except maybe it reflects difference exchange closing times. I think it might rain, so I don't know if I will go out this evening yet. I have checked out two books "Windows 98 for Busy People" and "Presenting Windows 98 One Step at a Time" with a Cdrom. I will have dinner shortly of Stauffer's Lasagna. CIO

Note:<888> 6/11/98 Thursday 6:55 A.M. EDT: I found an interesting MS page about creating a system properties OEM local and support information files at

"<http://www.microsoft.com/ithome/itcycle/helpdesk/oemhooks/oemhooks.htm>"Microsoft TechNet ITHome - Use OEM Hooks to Customize Support Info . CIO

Note:<888> 6/11/98 Thursday 4:45 A.M. EDT: The kids might be interested in this

"<http://whis.ec2.edu/index.html>"White House Internet Summit 1998 . CIO

Note:<888> 6/11/98 Thursday 4:40 A.M. EDT: I just ordered this free Cdrom

"<http://www.software.ibm.com/data/busn-intel/cdrom.html>"IBM Data Management: Request the Free Business Intelligence Solutions CD-ROM . I am in the process of sifting through my email, but I think I should eat something shortly. For those of you interested in Mount Etna's current eruption check out "http://volcano.und.edu/vwdocs/current\_volcs/etna/"Etna, Sicily, Italy . It is a nice quiet morning, and I am relaxing on the net. CIO

Note:<888> 6/11/98 Thursday 2:10 A.M. EDT: I just finished talking with a young computer engineer in Ajabajan. He kept yelling, and had a hard time understanding me, although I heard him fine. CIO

Note:<888> 6/11/98 Thursday 1:45 A.M. EDT: I rested until 10 P.M. ate dinner watched a little bit of the history channel on the Manhattan project until 1 A.M., and then took a shower. I don't think I will bother going out this morning, since I will relax on the net. Right now I am in General 01 of Iphone 5.0 if you want to chat. CIO

Note:<888> 6/10/98 Wednesday 6:00 P.M. EDT: I went out this past morning and walked around from 1:30 A.M. to 3 A.M.. I came back and relaxed until going to bed at 6 A.M.. I got up at 5 P.M.. I had breakfast, and am now listening to

"<http://www.dailybriefing.com>"www.dailybriefing.com . I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . The index has a big discrepancy since one part of it says it is down $11,000 and another part says it is down $20,000. Microsoft's investor program frequently does not match simple arithmetic. Well it is nice out, so I might go out in a little while. CIO

Note:<888> 6/10/98 Wednesday 12:45 A.M. EDT: I sifted through my email. I found in Outlook98 Inbox, if you check "Preview Panel" you get the half page text of you email in the window below you messages list. Not a whole lot happening on the internet, I suppose everyone has unplugged their modems and taken a vacation for the next few months. Remember the old rule of wisdom, when it is the most quiet is always when something happens out of the ordinary, so don't be fool by the lull before the storm, if any should arrive. Well as far as I can tell, it's all quiet on the Eastern Front, and the town is pretty much the same as always for this time of year. It is too bad the Greenwich Times is not on the internet, so out of town residents could keep abreast of the local news, I am sure the local residents would continue to subscribe to it. I have seen one Indiana plate, a couple of Texas plates, and about a half dozen Florida plates in my travels around town. Well back to the net, I will try to stay up for a while. CIO

Note:<888> 6/09/98 Tuesday 11:00 P.M. EDT: I went downtown and had my coffee in front of the Senior center at 7:30 P.M.. walked down Greenwich Avenue, through the train station parking garage. I then walked by the teen center which was open and through Baldwin Park which is set up for music concerts. I stopped the Greenwich Harbor patrol and chatted. I walked around down by the Greenwich Harbor Inn outdoor patio. I noticed a large sailboat from St. Croix. I walked down in front of the old General Re building and down Steamboat Road. I stood out in the moon light chatting with one of the fisherman about Long Island sound and the ocean in general. I walked up Steamboat Road and used the bathroom at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. I walked back up Greenwich Avenue and sat in front of the senior center for a while. I drove back and I noticed when coming into my apartment road one of my neighbors in the family houses had caught about a four foot 50 pound sea bass. I guess they're running this time of year. They use to get $8 a pound for bass filets in Nantucket 15 years ago, and they're awfully good eating. My right knee cap is bothering me a bit. I noticed a car with a "B" sticker down on the end of Steamboat Road which I believe stands for Belgium. Well, it's Tuesday like that old movie, "If It's Tuesday, It's Belgium". The kids were out this evening, but I don't believe the local schools are out quite yet. The town was actually fairly busy for a Tuesday night. I suppose a lot of the younger families which take their vacations sometimes earlier are already heading up north. It is a bit cool out, and I would advise people heading further north to bring a sweater or jacket for the cool evenings, particularly if one had been down in Florida. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888> 6/09/98 Tuesday 7:40 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index
"http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I went downtown for a while this afternoon. I found the PC Computing magazine at the news stand across from the train station, but when I got it home the Cdrom was defective. I did notice it does not have Outlook98, just the setup.exe download program. I walked around downtown. I went by the library and read two weekly computer publications. I returned home and I am cooking Stauffer's French bread pizza. I will go out with my thermos after dinner and have coffee. CIO

Note:<888> 6/09/98 Tuesday 2:10 P.M. EDT: I am up at 2 P.M. after breakfast I will go out to the bank in about an hour. I found an interesting story just now about Solar Flares "http://dailynews.yahoo.com/headlines/technology/story.html?s=z/reuters/980609/tech/stories/solar\_1.html"Solar Flare May Disrupt Worldwide Communication .

Note:<888> 6/09/98 Tuesday 4:55 A.M. EDT: I finished reading my email. If anyone needs help from IBM in a government this a useful link "http://www.government.ibm.com/GOV/Global.nsf/?OpenDatabase"<http://www.government.ibm.com/GOV/Global.nsf/?OpenDatabase> . I am just about to go out for some morning air and look for the PC Computing magazine with the Cdrom of Outlook 98. I enjoy listening to the British point of view since it is in English, and I might one day visit there, since I have never been there. I suppose we all have our pipe dreams. Well enjoy the day, I need a break from the net. The night time net activity really goes by quickly. I always think the daytime people slow me down, and when they're asleep at night I go much faster. Of course having been on a night schedule since about 1965, I have certain instincts at night from experience, which day time people probably don't have. I basically find day time people demanding me to adapt to their schedules annoying. How would you like it, if I called you up at 3 A.M.. Of course I always have to see a little day time sooner or later. I suppose I should get out and get some sun while it is pleasant and maybe do a little walking. Well give my best to the daytime people, I will see a few morning people this morning. Over and Out. CIO

Note:<888> 6/09/98 Tuesday 4:15 A.M. EDT: For those of youngsters who feel the need to get away from it all, here is a faraway alternative "<http://www.navy.mil.nz/>"The Royal New Zealand Navy . I am listening BBC radio Five , the right dingo about the need for the general public to curtail their alcoholic intake. CIO

Note:<888> 6/09/98 Tuesday 4:00 A.M. EDT: For those of you who want to bet on United Kingdom Sporting Events or the World Cup 98 this site might interest you, "<http://www.sporting-life.com/>"Sport News and Results from U.K. . I also stumbled across this more Sedate Canadian fishing site while I was looking for the other "<http://www.sportinglife.com/>"The Sporting Life Home Page . Well I just had Stauffer's Chicken Chow Mein for dinner and am about to eat Ramen noodles. Remember to click on the left or right dinosaurs on my homepage "<http://mrscott.com>"mrscott.com for U.K. media feeds from the BBC. CIO

Note:<888> 6/09/98 Tuesday 3:30 A.M. EDT: I read the news at "<http://mrscott.com/scotwork.htm>"mrscott.com/scotwork.htm . I downloaded the additional components of Outlook98 from "<http://www.microsoft.com/outlook/enhancements/addcomp/addcom.htm>"Outlook 98 Components . I read at the MS site that the Outlook 98 program is on a CDROM in PC Computing this month. Outlook 98 is suppose to be included in Windows 98, but the download site is only good for three months, so a copy of it on the PC Computing Cdrom might be handy, see "<http://www.microsoft.com/outlook/outlook98/outlook98.asp>"How to Get Outlook 98 about the information about the Cdrom. Maybe Microsoft has decided to make it available for download after three months. I tried to setup my Symantec Fax that comes with it, but I can't test it since I can't call myself. Well it's a quiet night and I still have to read my email. CIO

Note:<888> 6/09/98 Tuesday 12:20 A.M. EDT: I went back to bed and got up at 7:30 P.M. I was awoken by a call from a friend in Wilton who decided to sell his house. He will now be looking for an inexpensive two family house, possibly in Banksville, New York or Kennebunkport, Maine. I went by the library at 8:30 P.M. and read the local newspaper. I did not have time to read the computer newsweeklies yet. I got to thinking that since Prince Charles is objecting to Genetic tomatoes, we might pull a little joke on him and broadcast the all time worse movie of all times on all U.K. media feeds, "Revenge of the Killer Tomatoes". I happen to have kept a synthetic polymer coffee cup by my computer for many years next to the George Bush for President Cup with pens in it, that says "Monsanto". Having grown up around Monsanto since my father worked for them, I know it is a clever group of individuals with pretty good resources. One does hear very much about it around here, but Stillman Rockefeller use to be on the Board of Directors of Monsanto in the old days, so there is definitely a local connection. After the library I went downtown and walked around and it was quiet. I went by the Grand Union and bought two Stauffer pizzas @ $2.50 each, two Stauffer Chicken Chow Mein @ $2 each, two Stauffer Chicken Fettuccini @ $2.50 each, two Stauffer Lasagna @ $2.99 each, Italian Cavatelli .99, 1% GU half gallon milk $1.55, a dozen large GU eggs $1.39, two ears corn @ .20 each, two packages of 3 Kings Bacon @ $1.79 each for a total of $29.58. I went home and put the groceries away and had one of the chicken fettuccini, Ramen noodles, corn on the cob, orange soda. I went back out at about 10:30 P.M. and had a thermos of coffee downtown and walked around. I heard young teenagers upset that not much is going on. I drove down by the water and came back at midnight. Tonight seems to be a full moon with a ring around the moon, which I think means good weather. I suppose the witches and warlocks will be out prowling the town. Well off to netville for a while. CIO

Note:<888> 6/08/98 Monday 5:40 P.M. EDT: I was up at 4 P.M. this afternoon. I read the tech news. I updated Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm. It did quite well today. I noticed in the internet press that Prince Charles is upset with Monsanto "<http://www.monsanto.com>"www.monsanto.com over genetically engineered foods being introduced in the U.K.

"http://news.bbc.co.uk/hi/english/health/background\_briefings/food\_safety/newsid\_108000/108630.stm"BBC News | Food Safety | Food minister defends genetic crops . I can understand his viewpoint in light of recent food scares they have had in the U.K. like Mad Cow disease, etc., but I believe the Monsanto genetically engineered tomatoes have been adequately field tested in the States, before their introduction to the U.K.. I also believe the Royal Horticultural Society has been experimenting with different cross breeding techniques for hundreds of years in their botany explorations around the world, so as usual this seems to be a tempest in a teacup. Of course traditionally we defer to Royal prerogative, but perhaps some other member of the Royal family would have their personal viewpoint on this matter. Since the old Monsanto network includes a great many senior Anglophile individuals, I suppose someone could remind young Prince Charles of the need for agricultural experimentation after World War II when virtually all of his country was starving to death. How soon we forget over relatively short periods of time. Perhaps the Queen Mum should remind him how things were after the War when there were mass food shortages, and virtually the whole country was starving to death. Well I am still eating here. I will go out shortly. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888> 6/08/98 Monday 3:45 A.M. EDT: I have been a laid back mood this evening, reflecting on the state of my situation as it relates to my present environment. I guess I am hooked on the net. I bet I could get Bill Gates

"mailto:billg@microsoft.com"mailto:billg@microsoft.com to send me a free copy of Windows 98, if IBM sent him a free copy of "<http://www.newsbytes.com/pubNews/98/112993.html>"IBM To Unveil Via Voice 98 Today, Speech For All Apps which I would like to have too, so I don't have to type so much. Basically I think the local capitalists are out of touch with the volunteers, so I recommend that all 8,000 volunteers go on strike today, and lets the capitalists see how much gets done when they don't keep active. Yes the volunteers should go on strike today. If you see VIPs floating around, tell them to send money, and in lieu of payment, tell them not to expect too much, we're highly overrated in this neck of the woods. I also noticed that IBM does not list itself in the Yahoo listing for Armonk, New York. I have not been up that way in over a year, so maybe they all flew the coop after getting tired of hanging out down on Steamboat Road like wharf rats. I will admit wharf rats in Nantucket and other places around the ocean have more fun. Well off to the think tank for a little self meditation, and if anyone seems to think I am a IBM fellow, tell them I never signed a contract or ever received a check from the company IBM. In fact I have never cashed a payroll check in Greenwich, although I did once receive TIPS when I worked in a restaurant. Well over and out for the curious. CIO

Note:<888>6/21/98 Sunday 7:50 A.M. EDT: I cleaned the apartment and watered the plants. I have cleaned up and will go outside in ten minutes once I finished listening to "<http://www.ttalk.com>"www.ttalk.com 's weekend broadcast. Happy Birthday to Prince William "http://news.bbc.co.uk/hi/english/uk/newsid\_116000/116472.stm"BBC News | UK | Many Royal returns! Happy Birthday Prince William . Well it looks like a nice day. CIO
 Note:<888>6/21/98 Sunday 5:00 A.M. EDT: I was up at 4:00 A.M.. I had breakfast of bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, orange juice, and coffee. I went out for smokes. I am just about to clean my apartment for the next couple of hours. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>6/20/98 Saturday 5:20 P.M. EDT: I went out at 7:00 A.M. this morning, and while I was viewing the harbor, I mentioned to one of the fishermen that I had pulled a muscle in my heel walking with new shoes. He said I should use the old shoes, since a pair of new shoes can strain muscles in one's foot. I went by the Grand Union and purchased two one pound boxes of Strawberries for $1.69 each, over two pounds of seedless grapes @ .99 a pound for $2.63, a rib eye steak for $3.67, two pints of blueberries for $1.50 each, and two ears of yellow corn for .40 for a total of $14.66. I went home and mixed all the fruit together and added two jiggers of Mount Gay Rum, two jiggers of white wine, and two tablespoons of Angostura bitters to make a tropical fruit salad. I had a bit of it. I went back out at 8:30 and stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop and bought two Putnam Trust coffee cups for .50 and said hello to the courteous staff. I then drove down Greenwich Avenue and parked in front of the senior center and walked around the Town Green. One local representative suggested I take the Island Beach Ferry, but I said with the bad heel, I would probably be at risk if I fell overboard, and could not swim. Lots of families were out enjoying the day. I drove back down to the water and quite a few people were fishing. By the way I put on the older Reeboks. I then went by Bruce Park and saw energetic joggers circling the park. I then returned by the train station and stopped by the Greenwich Farmers Market in the west parking lot by the thruway and checked out the excellent looking produce. I noticed lots of local chefs buying their produce there. I bought a cookie for .75 and noticed two Africans in the parking lot with broken down cars. I then drove out to Grass Island and toured the waterfront. Several people were sunning themselves and a young Mexican and his son were fishing. I told them about the 50 pound stripe bass one of my neighbors had caught. I then returned up town and stopped by the Library and read the newspaper, which did not say much new as usual. I chatted with the library security guard about the future of computers and the nature of the business. I then returned home at noon and had some more fruit salad. I tried to rest, but did not fall asleep. I got up about 3:30 and previewed the IBM Business Intelligence CDROM that I had received in the mail. I guess it was lightning that struck the building at 7 P.M. on Wednesday night causing my doorbell to go off. It knocked out the downstairs intercom and also caused the electronic sliding door to malfunction. I suppose these things happen when one has lots of thunderstorms. I have a feeling that the overall state of things in Greenwich is pretty much the same while the economy holds. However recently, I have mentioned to several individuals that when the micro asteroid belt that comes around every 35 years hits in the first week of November, supposedly 50% of the world's satellites will be knocked out. This could affect all communications systems including defense systems like Norad and other strategic communication systems, not to mention many of the satellites cost billions of dollars. I suppose if the market is going down at that period there could be financial turmoil, not to mention that is when the United States has mid term elections. It will be interesting to see what happens in the general scope of things, as opposed to the constant barrage of suspect propaganda on the television. I have a feeling quite a lot is happening once one tunes off the tube. The Glass on my automobile is getting dirty, and sometime soon when I am on a day schedule, I might try to clean up the car, but not when I have a bad heel that causes me to have a slight limp at the moment. Really a very peaceful quite day in Greenwich. I hope the gang across the Sound has a fun time this evening, wish I could be there. Enjoy the rest of the day. CIO

Note:<888>6/20/98 Saturday 4:00 A.M. EDT: On Thursday I was up at noon and made my appointment after stopping by the Hospital Thrift Shop. It was a nice day, so afterwards I went by the library and read the computer press. I then went downtown and walked around a bit and chatted with a few local deja vue people. I went back home at 7 P.M. and had a rib eye steak for dinner, along with corn on the cob, ramen noodles, ice tea, and a cup of hot tea. I tried on my new pair of Nike Air Jordan's and decided to break them in. I then went back downtown about 8:30 P.M. and walked around for some exercise. One resident told me the most popular horse at the track now is called "Steamboat Road". There was an ambulance call at the Greenwich Train station. I mentioned to the owner of planet pizza, that a wood fired pizza place was being built across the street. I walked around up to the top of the Avenue. I chatted with someone about an alternative place at Brumos Porsche Mercedes in Jacksonville, Florida about where they could get a better deal on Mercedes, since they have first choice off the boat. I walked back down the avenue. I rested on the bench. I started walking down the avenue. I stopped and chatted with another Greenwich resident who is smaller and looks like a kid, and was concerned about having been mugged and beaten up in front of the boys club by two Africans. I continued and walked down the Avenue and it was after 2 A.M. and everything was closed. While chatting on the avenue a couple stopped by and asked how to get to I95 which is the most common question on Greenwich Avenue. I drove down Steamboat Road and chatted about the ocean with a young officer on patrol. I returned home about 3 A.M. and sat up relaxing until 6 A.M. when I went to bed. I was tired and did not get up until 8 P.M. the following evening. When I got up I noticed I was lame and could barely walk. I suppose I had walked too much the night before. I made a couple of phone calls and went back to bed until about 2:30 A.M. this morning. I went out briefly for smokes at the Shell station and returned home and filed this report. I updated Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I suppose with the sore heel from all that walking in the new Nike Air Jordan's, I will have to stay off my feet for a while other than from moving around to the car. Well it is back to the net, and I am totally rested. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>6/18/98 Thursday 5:20 A.M. EDT: I think I will catch up on my rest a little bit. CIO

Note:<888>6/18/98 Thursday 3:40 A.M. EDT: I got the hard drive in the Dumpster 486 DX/66 going by setting up the CMOS with the proper parameters. I did go out about 1 A.M. for a half hour. I also put the temporary dumpster computer memory back in the primary backup system. The dumpster computer needs two 72 pin memory SIMMs to work. I have all systems assembled. And I fdisked, formatted, and sys.com the dumpster computer before removing the memory. I have the serial and LPT ports working on it too. The IBM 486DX/66 CPU in it did not have a fan just a heat condenser, I would use a CPU fan with it, if I ever used it. I also straightened up. It is a little warm and damp in here, so I turned up the air conditioner. I will do a little of my regular net surfing now. Well enjoy the early morning hours. CIO

Note:<888>6/18/98 Thursday 12:40 A.M. EDT: Well I tried sleeping until noon on Wednesday morning. I then started working on the dumpster 486 DX/2 computer. I worked on it until 6 P.M. when I went back to bed. Eventually by temporarily putting in the backup 486 DX4 120 mhz computer two eight meg SIMMS in it, I got it booting from the A: drive. I reset some of the motherboard settings. I setup the CMOS in failsafe mode to get it working smoothly. However FDISK although it works from a boot A: disk does not partition the 80 meg C: drive. It is an older Compaq Prolinea dumpster hard drive I put in, so I have to check Compaq site to see if there are better CMOS setup settings at the site than what someone had written on the drive. Well at least the overall system is working with the second motherboard I have had lying around in a pizza box for two years. The fellow I bought my 486 DX4 120 AMD processor from gave me the second motherboard with the one I used for two years, since Bank 2 of 32 pin memory has broken memory chip hooks for installing that type of memory. However using the two 8 meg 72 pin chips, it all seems to basically work. Once I get the C: drive going I will put the memory back in my primary backup. I am using the IBM 486DX2 66 mhz processor in it from the IBM dumpster computer setup as Intel 486/DX 2. The IBM dumpster computer was not salvageable yet, since it had no DRAM. I used its 520 meg hard drive, as my D: drive on my primary computer. I am using my old 3 1/2 floppy drive on the dumpster system, a dumpster salvaged 5 1/4 floppy drive, a Acton desktop case, dumpster floppy comptroller, dumpster Trident memory card, dumpster port card, I need to get it to recognize the mouse COM port, a generic modem network card that I don't know anything about, I am running it off the left bedroom desk computer monitor. Once I get the C: drive on the dumpster computer going, I will put the memory back in the 486 DX4 backup bedroom system, and put the dumpster system cover on, and keep it in reserve until I come with memory for it. I have a fourth monitor for it in the closet. Thus I basically have my primary IBM 233 MX system, my backup AMD 486/DX4 120 mhz system, my 386 SX system, and the almost complete dumpster 486/DX2 66 mhz system. Well this is the type of hobby one takes up during rainy weather when one is on limited income. I conceivably could network the three lesser computers to my primary computer, but I would need to know how to figure out how to use and find network cards, not to mention the cable. I don't think it is necessary; but in the exercise of setting up an emergency communications post, with the right expertise and necessity behind me that is an alternative, if a small group wanted to use the primary computer as a server. After going to bed at 6 P.M., all Hell broke lose with lightning and thunder at 7 P.M.. It was as intense as I have ever heard it with heavy showers. I heard the door bell ring at 7 P.M. too, but no one was there. I disconnected the primary computer from power and telephone during the storm. A friend from Long Island called to tell me his brother in law and fiancée had arrived for their wedding and honeymoon from Scotland. I also had a friend call from Wilton, but I was so tired, I am not sure what he said. I slept until 11:30 P.M. and had breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, coffee, and orange juice. I updated Scott's Index, it was a dang good day on Wall Street,

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . After posting this message, I will go out in about 45 minutes for smokes, and a little fresh air. CIO

Note:<888>6/17/98 Wednesday 8:30 A.M. EDT: Well I went out at midnight and walked around downtown the full length of Greenwich Avenue. I noticed in the train station office park area, there was more computer equipment. They discarded a tower case with a Pentium motherboard but no memory, processor, or drives. When I returned an hour later it was gone by 2 A.M., so somebody else is cursing the computer dumpster area at the wee hours of the morning. I did pick up a Compaq 386 which had a 80 meg hard drive. When I walked the full length of Greenwich Avenue, I studied the excellent masonry wall being built at the Presbyterian Church. They obviously have a group of master craftsmen working there. I am sure it is difficult building a curved stone wall. Obviously the Presbyterians know something about Masonry. I studied the Sotheby's Office, they apparently aren't doing too well, because they can't afford a stand for their receptionist's computer, but simply have it sitting on the floor with laser printer next to the desk. Some sort of matching end table or stand would do. I saw a gal in Jaguar driving down the Post Road East with only her parking lights on. I studied the OmniPoint store, they look pretty pricey. I noticed as I walking back down the Avenue, they were taking in a delivery at Knapp Funeral Home, I guess they needed late night supplies. I got in my trusty Volvo and drove back by the computer dumping area, and I saw the tower case gone, and I retrieved the Compaq. I drove down to the end of Steamboat Road and shined my lights on the water. I did not notice any aquatic life, and the wind was dead calm. I suppose occasionally we get Tiger Sharks swimming into the Harbor. I saw the Yacht Club Night Watchman shine the spot light on the water, and I hailed him and welcomed him to his post. I stayed about a half hour studying the harbor and the skyline. I noticed the house with the big flag is fairly well lit, while most the other houses seem to be dark. I have not chatted with Joe McDonald over in Belle Haven in several years, maybe I'll go over and say hello some time. The Greenwich Times is headlining the Moxley case, so I guess nothing new is happening around town. I returned back over towards Byram stopping at the Shell Station for smokes. Richard the night proprietor wanted to know something about computer viruses, and I suggested to him to check out the library computer books. He said Shell Oil needs to revamp its computerized cash register accounting procedures, since they are out of date. I drove back downtown and down around thru Bruce Park and I came back via the Post Road and went down the Avenue and back down by the water and I returned home about 4 A.M.. For the next four hours, I assembled various parts from various discarded computer systems together, unfortunately when I started the machine, the dumpster system did not work. I was trying to put an IBM 486/66 DX chip I believe in a motherboard that might not take it although it did fit in. I changed the settings from Intel 486 DX to Cyrix and then the system power quit working altogether, even when I returned the setting to Intel 486/66. Perhaps I blew the motherboard or processor. Well I had enough parts to put a another system together anyway. I used the same motherboard as in the back up 486 in the bedroom. I happened to have a second one. Who knows it is all a mystery, but it keeps me in practice assembling and testing computer systems. Maybe I should pass it on to some unknowing computer dumping area prowler, but I suppose it would be quite a hassle, but it has a number of useful parts. Maybe some time in the future I will fiddle with it. Well it was a perfect night weather wise last night and I enjoyed being outside for a while. I guess I will go to bed shortly, so all of you daytime people make sure nobody steals the sun. Bye for Now. CIO

Note:<888>6/16/98 Tuesday 11:20 P.M. EDT: For those of us from the Western Hemisphere in the Good Old United States of America the left dino is the Star Spangled Banner by Francis Scott Key composed during the War of 1812 click the left dino on the homepage or "<http://mrscott.com/usanthem.rm>"mrscott.com/usanthem.rm . CIO

Note:<888>6/16/98 Tuesday 10:40 P.M. EDT: I changed the Russia Imperial Anthem to the two outermost dinos on the homepage "<http://mrscott.com>"mrscott.com . CIO

Note:<888>6/16/98 Tuesday 10:20 P.M. EDT: I went to bed at 4:30 P.M. for a nap and got up at 9:30 P.M. and had a small rib eye steak for dinner, corn on the cob, Ramen noodles, ice tea, and coffee. I posted Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm which was up a bit today. I have not been out today, so I will cleanup and go out in about an hour. CIO

Note:<888>6/16/98 Tuesday 4:30 P.M. EDT: I added a sound file to "<http://mrscott.com/gb.htm>"mrscott.com/gb.htm . I also added a sound file link next to the Dinosaurs on the homepage "<http://mrscott.com>"mrscott.com , click "ria.rm" for the "ria.rm"Russia Imperial Anthem . CIO

Note:<888>6/16/98 Tuesday 2:40 P.M. EDT: I put the IBM 6X86 processor image on my homepage "<http://mrscott.com>"mrscott.com with a link from it to their site "<http://www.chips.ibm.com/products/x86/>"IBM x86 Microprocessors . CIO

Note:<888>6/16/98 Tuesday 2:00 P.M. EDT: I did a little disk maintenance on the hard drives, I have 300 megs free on the C: drive up to 350 megs when the Microsoft Internet Explorer cache is cleared. I have 180 megs free on the D: drive. I am using the D: drive to store my *.cab and download files. It seems like it is a nice day out, so maybe I should go out and see if any guests are in the area. I suppose besides guests, we might have the usual cross section of stockholders showing up in the area, while they are on their northern migration for the summer holidays. I like the local Alta Vista Search engine on my hard drive, it sure helps find lots of hidden resources, I have built up over the years. To use it, one has to first start the Query Dispatcher. I am sort of in a funky mood since I have not been out much in the sun recently with all the rain we have had. I suppose with PC Expo in Manhattan some computer tech types will be visiting the area. I can recommend the IBM Armonk Visitors Center which last time I checked a couple years ago, was a security guard who looks at you on a remote camera, and says there is no visitors center, or as an alternative one can contemplate the view of Greenwich Harbor from the bottom of Steamboat Road, which might have some relevance to IBM's outlook in the area. Please don't crash any private clubs. I suppose the local kids are trying to find summer jobs, perhaps some local entrepreneurs could use them as beta testers, but it is my personal point of view, they should get outside and enjoy the warmer weather and get a little exercise, after all the time spent at the computers. Well any questions, please give me an at

"mailto:mikescott@ibm.net"mailto:mikescott@ibm.net , or sign my guest book "<http://mrscott.com/guestbook.html>"mrscott.com/guestbook.html . Well I hope everyone is enjoying their self. CIO

Note:<888>6/16/98 Tuesday 11:55 A.M. EDT:

{\rtf1\ansi\ansicpg1252\deff0\deflang1033{\fonttbl {\f0\fswiss\fcharset0 MS Sans Serif;}}{\colortbl ;\red128\green0\blue128;}uc1\pard\cf1\ulnone\f0\fs20 The history of your ancient British name can be found by a simple trace into your surname roots. You can get your ancient parchment traced from the 10th century Doomsday book or capture your family achievements from your own impressive Coat of Arms. Now take a glimpse of your family manuscripts at the World's First and Finest Collection at,\par \par "<http://www.freeyellow.com/members2/heritage22.htm>"Free\par Search\par (if the above link is busy please use...)\par "<http://members.tripod.com/~hbrown5/heritage22.htm>"Free\par Search\par \par Here you are able to find your British family heraldic creations from ancient histories recorded from the 11th and 12th century and see your wonderful family treasures. The Hall of Names will be apart of the great 20th celebration and your heritage will be shared forever throughout the millennium. Your special gift will be a beautifully compiled text manuscript with heraldic color Coat of Arms radiantly displayed on 11 x 17 parchment scroll. With each history you will receive a Free Family Coat of Arms Keychain. \par \par Come and join the celebration!\par \par }

Note:<888>6/16/98 Tuesday 11:45 A.M. EDT: I had a friend stop by this past morning to study some cartography maps I have. I made a fruit salad out of blueberries, strawberries, and diced cantaloupe, which I mixed with a couple of jiggers of Mount Gay Rum and a tablespoon of Angostura Bitters. I let it sit about six hours while I took a nap until now. I will do a little routine net work and then go out and enjoy the day. I guess I am back on a day schedule. I have noticed that President Clinton has dropped from media attention for the last several days. I suppose he is on vacation again or maybe he is hiding out from the media attention on one of those Trident submarines out in Oregon. CIO

Note:<888>6/16/98 Tuesday 1:15 A.M. EDT: Well if you have the password, you can download the Win98 beta from this link "<http://www.focus-asia.com/home/jeffreystwest/windows98.html>"Windows98 . CIO

Note:<888>6/15/98 Monday 11:55 P.M. EDT: Well I downloaded Internet Explorer 5.0 last Thursday and it still has not crashed. I'd say it is a pretty stable developer beta. CIO

Note:<888>6/15/98 Monday 8:00 P.M. EDT: Well, Wall Street finally took a bath today. I guess the old guard in their Blue Monday suits have made their decisions. Scott's Index was down over $20,000 or over 2%. Scott's Index is at

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I was up at 6 P.M.. Before I went to bed at noon I chatted with a Microsoft Sales person up in Buffalo about my view of what's going on the internet. Bob seems knowledgeable. I remembered the University of Buffalo has the United States seismological headquarters, I believe. Well if I have to shuffle off to Buffalo, I will probably zoom through and check out the shop in Toronto. Yes Microsoft has a major office in Toronto, and I dare say the security looks like lumberjacks about 7 feet tall or more, who don't seem to mind the cold weather. Well bring your stilts if your planning to join me at World Internet Summit 98 in Toronto this week. I suppose I will have to take one of my Canada Air private Jets at Westchester Airport which are good in cold weather and seem to know how to find their way to Canada. Remember any short ladies in sneakers might be the boss. Well, I just might be kidding, but anything could happen. I remember last time I came down from home in Toronto, I road the Amtrak down and there was a nice retired lady in the back of the Pullman car having a LaBatts beer with her young great grandson. I believe she looked like the Queen Mum and I suppose the tiny little tot was Willie. I remember the Courtly gentleman railroad conductors seemed to have a sense of humor. I stepped off the train and made a brief phone call to Charlie Cary in East Aurora, New York to find out his son George was out in Sands Point, Long Island. The train continued its adventure down to Manhattan. Needless to say I don't think any railroad tycoons feel like selling any property at the moment, and remember the first thing you were taught is "Never to Sell Your Mineral Rights". Well, I will shower and venture out downtown. PS: The golf cottage in Greenwich is not for sale. CIO

Note:<888>6/15/98 Monday 11:20 A.M. EDT: Well I finally got through my daily 20 automatic email messages. I was thinking I should instruct the legal department to go sailing, and the financial department to play golf, and the anyone else that is left, to go on strike like General Motors. Who knows, we all could use a good long vacation for about 10 years, and I'm not talking prison. Of course sooner or later as usual we'd all get bored, I suppose. CIO

Note:<888>6/15/98 Monday 10:30 A.M. EDT: For the record as far as correspondence with William Gates "mailto:billg@microsoft.com"mailto:billg@microsoft.com , I found the email address in September 1994 in the Internet Yellow pages at the Greenwich Library. I have sent him perhaps 50 messages since then, mostly to do with computers, software, internet, and Greenwich, Connecticut. Nothing to technical, just on general principals. I have received only two email message back from him shortly after I originally emailed him on Volcanoes, NASA's radar imaging project which was going on when I first got on the internet, the shuttle was photographing the Kamchatka Peninsula volcano that was active. I received an email back from that address saying not to send such long messages. About a month latter I received email from the same address using PGP encryption, which I still do not know how to use, so I never unscrambled it. I don't save my correspondence, so I have no record of any correspondence, except a couple of minor messages of no relevance to anyone. Of course, most geniuses with similar backgrounds tend to think the same. In a town like Greenwich, I am sure there are quite a few reclusive geniuses or at least moderately successful people. Well back to the grind. PS, I admit my spelling errors are horrible, but remember I have poor vision and don't use glasses while on the computer. It is a bit blurry. CIO

Note:<888>6/15/98 Monday 10:00 A.M. EDT: I went downtown at about 6 A.M., but I stopped and talked with one of my neighbors for a half hour. I then went down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and chatted with another one of my former neighbors about the French World Solo Sailor that was lost at sea. I suppose one should wear life vests with homing beacons when on deck in the ocean. I walked around downtown. I noticed a nice German Shepard sitting in front of the Senior Center. I noticed the benches on the Greenwich Common are still in disrepair. Someone kicked out many of the slats. I noticed while sitting in front of the Post Office, someone had either kicked or knocked out the middle solid 1 1/2 inch solid iron middle arm rest of the southwest bench. They had to break it in two pieces. It looked like someone took a sledge hammer to it, or it was one very powerful individual that kicked it. I walked around the bottom of the Avenue and walked through the train station, and chatted with one of the senior members of the business community on the train station platform in his blue summer suit. He usually wears a Stetson, I guess it is too warm today. The sun was out this A.M., but it is clouding up. I then walked back up the Avenue, and went by the Hospital Thrift Shop, and they seem to be lean on merchandise, but most everything is half price. I then went by the Grand Union and chatted with one of our local shoppers about the gigantic strawberries they have there from Watsonville, California. I bought a pint for $1.29, two shell steaks at $4.99 a pound for $7.68, a pint of blueberries for $1.50, 4 ears of corn for .80, for a total of $11.27; plus a $1.45 in returned aluminum cans. I came home, while the town is just getting to get busy. One usually sees the "Old Guard" out in force on Monday morning. I will go to bed shortly, I don't have any appointments today. Well have a good day, day time people, I also noticed two Canadian geese on the harbor with three half grown goslings. There were a few young kids fishing on the pier. Thus Greenwich wants to get into its summer routine, but the rain keeps coming, so this week might be another wash out. Well we'll see, but my bones feel like rain. CIO

Note:<888>6/15/98 Monday 5:50 A.M. EDT: Report from the Elephants' Grave Yard, you might be interested in this link "<http://www.seniornet.org/>"Welcome to SeniorNet! Bringing Wisdom to the Information Age . I just had dinner of peanut butter sandwich and ramen noodles and ice tea.

I still need to lose weight. I am going out for a morning walk on Greenwich Avenue, now that the sun seems to be up. I enjoy listening to BUSH House BBC left Dino or right Dino (little sea serpents on my homepage ) on homepage "<http://mrscott.com>"mrscott.com . Well my chores are done for the week, let's hope it does not rain too much this week. CIO

Note:<888>6/15/98 Monday 5:20 A.M. EDT: I updated Greenwich page

"<http://mrscott.com/greenw.htm>"mrscott.com/greenw.htm and Greenwich Real Estate

"<http://mrscott.com/gwreal.htm>"mrscott.com/gwreal.htm . CIO

Note:<888>6/15/98 Monday 4:30 A.M. EDT: "<http://www.sunday-times.co.uk/news/pages/tim/98/06/15/timrcrct01011.html?1789999>"The Times: Court Page: Trooping of the Color on June 13, 1998. CIO

Note:<888>6/15/98 Monday 4:25 A.M.

EDT:"<http://www.discovery.com/cams/keiko/keikomain.html>"Discovery Online -- Animal

Cams: Keiko Cam Free Willy Cam. "http://www.thirdage.com/news/archive/980613-

02.html"Third Age - News & Opinion - Archive - JUNE 13, 1998 - Advances in Prostate Cancer Protection .CIO

Note:<888>6/15/98 Monday 3:55 A.M. EDT: I finished the laundry and also put the shower curtain and liner in a separate washer with a quart of bleach to remove the mildew. I chatted with a fellow up in Denmark about Greenland and the World Cup which he is broadcasting to Thailand over his cable modem at 30 meg a second with the RealAudio server. I guess that means once we all get cable modems, we all will be able to broadcast our own content any where in the world. Everyone will be a Star, of course you will have to know how to run and afford a computer. Beam Me Up Scotty. We also discussed how Denmark and the Netherlands being low lying countries, would be at jeopardy if the Antarctic Ice Cap or the Greenland Ice Shelf melted raising the World's Oceans level, they would be amongst the first to feel the effects along with southern Asia along the Indian Ocean and a great many low lying islands. I think there might be a big dormant volcano underneath two miles of ice in the interior of Greenland. Well back to the net. I think I am about 20 feet above sea level here on the second floor, but I don't notice much elevation change on the way over to Byram Beach, but the Byram River down the road is a good 70 feet beneath me. I wonder why that is. CIO

Note:<888>6/15/98 Monday 2:25 A.M. EDT: I had a Vodka, orange juice, grapefruit juice, and Angostura bitters before going to bed Sunday morning to celebrate the Queen's birthday. I was awoken by a family member at 9 A.M. for a tech support session. Another friend called at 4 P.M., and I made a couple of calls then. I went back to bed until 8 P.M.. I had breakfast at 4 P.M. of cereal, toast, orange juice, and coffee. I cleaned my apartment from 8 P.M. listening to the BBC News World report, click the left dino on my homepage. I also watered the plants. I backed up my computer, and it all barely fits on one tape. I made

"<http://mrscott.com/icetea.htm>"mrscott.com/icetea.htm . At 12:30 A.M. I went out for a short walk. I came back at 2 A.M. and started my laundry. I will do a little net work this morning if anything is happening. We had a lot of rain this weekend. I think the Buick Open is on in Westchester. I heard there was an oil spill by a tanker on I-95 at the Stratford Milford line that they will be still cleaning up this morning. One lane North bound was open at 11 P.M. and no lanes southbound. I might go out for another walk at sunrise this morning. I also added the lines to my config.sys:

files= 40

buffers=30

these two lines might make the system go a little faster. CIO

Note:<888>6/15/98 Monday 1:30 A.M.

EDT:"http://news.bbc.co.uk/hi/english/uk/newsid\_112000/112109.stm"BBC News | UK | Grey skies fail to wash out Trooping the Color CIO

Note:<888>6/30/98 Tuesday 10:15 P.M. EDT: I tested my Iphone 5.0 and Netmeeting and they seem to be working in full Duplex, so the grayed out full duplex boxes are just a false errors. No need to call tech support then. Tech support does not begin until first call, so why not wait until something serious comes up, then you have three months. CIO

Note:<888>6/30/98 Tuesday 9:50 P.M. EDT: Since I am using 32 bit FAT on my hard drive, I setup my CMOS for my hard drive C: with 32 bit access "on" instead of the default "off". CIO

Note:<888>6/30/98 Tuesday 9:15 P.M. EDT: I did not go out. I downloaded Microsoft Outlook 98 again and reinstalled it after uninstalling it. Outlook 98 seems to be working fine now. I watched a little television while doing this. I also put a book underneath my ergonomic keyboard and centered it better, and it seems to be a little easier to use. CIO

Note:<888>6/30/98 Tuesday 7:10 P.M. EDT: I had an inquiry today from a library employee about how to boot a computer from the Win95 or Win98 boot up disks, so that one can access the CDROM player to install Win98. I made up this page

"<http://mrscott.com/cddos.htm>"mrscott.com/cddos/cddos.htm on the procedure. I hope Microsoft does not mind. I went out about 2:30 P.M. after testing my new system. I have two minor annoyances, one on Netmeeting and Iphone 5.0, I can't get the full duplex boxes highlighted to check. I tried reinstalling the SoundBlaster 32 drivers both Win98 and Creative Labs, to no avail. I might have to check with Microsoft tech support, and I assume the programs are not working in full duplex. I have the full duplex option checked in "My computer", "Sound", "SB 16 Plug and Play", "Options". The other minor problem is in Outlook 98 when I download mail, it disconnects from the ISP after a few mail messages, and might lose the rest of the mail on the server. I have not checked it enough to be sure. I went out at 2:30 P.M. and stopped by the bank. I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I filled my car up with $15 premium at Exxon. I went downtown and walked around. One British couple asked me where they could get a beer and watch the world cup, I suggested the Sundown Saloon or Thataway. I chatted with another British lady that had been caught in the rain earlier. I drove down by the water. I went by the library and read the computer weekly press. I noticed the main elevator was broken again, so people had to enter from the rear of the building. I went by the Grand Union and bought GU raisin brand $2.19, Pint Blueberries .99, two Vlasic Kosher dill pickles $3 for both, Tombstone pizza $3.50, GU 2 % milk $1.67, two ears yellow corn .40, and a package Purdue boneless chicken breasts @ $2.99 a pound for $3.26 for a total of $15.01. I returned home and put the groceries away, and fixed a ham sandwich, corn on the cob, ramen noodles, coke, and coffee for dinner. I updated Scott's Index "<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I then filed this report. I might go out in a while, but maybe not since I hear thunder out. I am having trouble with the ergonomic keyboard missing the keys, I might have to go back to the old keyboard. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>6/30/98 Tuesday 11:50 A.M. EDT: I ran the maintenance wizard this morning and the defrag process that put the more used programs in the fastest part of the hard disk took quite a while. I was not done until about 7 A.M. and went to bed. I had to get up early this morning, so I can make it to the bank and check out what went wrong. System is running great. I took off the Route 98 Desktop theme since it made it hard to see the icons. Well I guess Win98 is a worthwhile update and does not cause any problems at least for me. I am most pleased with it. Well time for breakfast. CIO

Note:<888>6/30/98 Tuesday 1:40 A.M. EDT: I went out at about 11 P.M. and I went by the bank and they messed up my account. I was unable to withdraw funds. On the way back home I got a flat tire on West Putnam Avenue. I changed the tire at the Mobil station across the street in about fifteen minutes. I went home and washed my hands. I went back downtown and stopped by the Shell station to check the air on the spare. I went downtown and walked around. Down by the train station office park dumpster, they have about 50 old Dell keyboards discarded. I finished my walk. I noticed now all the intersections on Greenwich Avenue have well marked double stop signs. It is about time after all these years. I returned home and installed the ergonomic keyboard without using the slow mouse touch pad retaining my mouse. I had a snack of raspberry strudel and ramen noodles. I will surf the net a bit before going to bed. CIO

Note:<888>6/29/98 Monday 10:10 P.M. EDT: Good news, I installed Windows 98 on my new system in 38 minutes today, no problems. I think that is great of Microsoft to put such an excellent upgrade together that does not cause any problems. I also installed the FAT32 on my 1 Gig hard drive in about 15 minutes. I gained about 25 % more space. I did have to uninstall the Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 developer beta before installing Win98, but it prompted me to do this. I was up at 9 A.M. today. After breakfast I did some household activity. I went out at 1 P.M. after chatting with a neighbor. I stopped by the housing authority to give them a copy of my yearly electricity bill to hopefully get a better subsidy. I went by the bank for my Win98 money a gift from a family member. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop. I went by Entree computer and they wanted $99.99 for Win98. I went by Computer Playhouse and they wanted $109.99 for Win98. I finally drove up to CompUSA in Norwalk and bought Win98 there for $89.99 plus tax. I also picked up a clearance item ergonomic keyboard with touch pad for $15.99. I will return it since I don't like, it and the touch pad is too slow and does not fit my keyboard drawer. I also purchased 10 CD jewel cases for $5.99. I returned home at 5 P.M. after browsing the store for a long time and checking out Long Island sound down on Steamboat Road. I saw one of our Food Emporium employees at CompUSA. I had a quick ham sandwich and ramen noodles for dinner. I uninstalled Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 beta when prompted by Win98. I then restarted Win98 installation. It went through the progress flawlessly in 38 minutes with about 5 reboots. I had freed up 365 megs space before installing and I put the backup files on the smaller D drive. I spent over an hour viewing the Win98 Demo. I installed the FAT 32 on my 1 Gig D drive in about fifteen minutes. It left 445 megs free on the C: drive. I installed a few additional programs from the CD that installation did not install. Installation installed and kept my Logicode modem settings, but it did prompt me there was a problem conflict IRQ which was a fake error message. The modem worked fine from the beginning. I registered Win98 online. Right now I am downloading a few small newer programs and a new Route 98 Desktop theme. I will go out as soon as I finish this in about ten minutes. I updated Scott's Index "http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm .
"http://www.webho.com/WealthClock/"Bill Gates Personal Wealth Clock is worth over $60 billion today. I think the Microsoft team has done a great job on the development of the product, and I give them my staunches congratulations on a job well done. CIO

Note:<888>6/29/98 Monday 3:55 A.M. EDT: I went out drove downtown. I walked down to the bottom of the Avenue and then back up to the center. I drove my car down to the train station and picked up a discarded 14 inch IBM monitor that did not work and discarded it when I returned home. I drove down Steamboat Road and then parked at Island Beach parking lot. I took the 6:30 P.M. ferry out to Island Beach. There was a small group going out on the smaller boat. A large party was in progress at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. It was a bit windy and the waves were choppy. When we arrived at Island Beach a Coast Guard launch was in position. I did not get off the ferry. I sat toward the rear on the upper deck. I noticed quite a few visitors. The ferry returned at 7:00 P.M. with a fairly full load of passengers. I enjoyed the ride. I drove down Steamboat Road again, and then over to Grass Island and chatted with a couple youngsters and their father fishing. Once I returned downtown, I walked around the bottom of Greenwich Avenue again. I returned home about 8:30 P.M. and sat outside chatting with my neighbors until 10 P.M. I had dinner of ham sandwich and fresh zucchini. I went out at 11 P.M. and had coffee downtown out of my thermos. It was very quiet. I walked to the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. I returned to my car and saw three Greenwich Police patrol units responding quickly to an incident. I then drove down to the Greenwich Harbor Inn which is booked full. I used the restroom. I chatted with the regular night clerk. I suggest to a visitor that the White Elephant Hotel in Nantucket is an interesting destination. I returned to Greenwich Avenue and walked to the top and sat on the bench at the top for a while. I walked back down Greenwich Avenue. A few young teenagers were loitering in front of the Dome restaurant. I sat out for a while and returned to my apartment about 1:30 A.M. Two police units were at my apartment helping a neighbor. I went upstairs and gathered my laundry. I did my laundry until 3 A.M. sitting outside enjoying the night air and watching a rabbit feast on one of my neighbors flowers. I read three tabloids someone has left in the laundry room. I went upstairs and put away my laundry. I used a Canadian quarter with Queen Elizabeth on it for my laundry since I was short one American quarter. I filed this report while I am making Ramen noodles and a hot raspberry Danish for a snack. I will go to bed shortly. It was my usual summer Sunday. I did see a bit of the weekend activity. Well have a good morning, and tell the morning shift to get off their butts to do some exploring. CIO

Note:<888>6/28/98 Sunday 3:35 P.M. EDT:

"http://teraserver.microsoft.com/GetTilesByXY.asp?XId=5106&YId=12565&TileX=3&TileY=3&SrcId=2&ImgDate=06/21/1988&DSize=0"Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page Area of the Russian Consulate Long Island, Kilmarnock Estate across from Harrison House Conference Center full of spies and blond jock jogger types. CIO

Note:<888>6/28/98 Sunday 3:00 P.M. EDT:

"http://teraserver.microsoft.com/GetTilesByXY.asp?XId=9558&YId=3785&TileX=4&TileY=0&SrcId=1&ImgDate=04/12/1991&DSize=0"Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page Indian Harbor Point ,

"http://teraserver.microsoft.com/GetTilesByXY.asp?XId=9558&YId=3785&TileX=6&TileY=1&SrcId=1&ImgDate=04/12/1991&DSize=0"Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page Meads Point , or

"http://teraserver.microsoft.com/GetTilesByXY.asp?XId=9558&YId=3784&TileX=1&TileY=1&SrcId=1&ImgDate=04/12/1991&DSize=0"Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page Belle Haven higher above sea level all in Greenwich, Connecticut USA. CIO

Note:<888>6/28/98 Sunday 2:55 P.M. EDT: Another south facing peninsula

"http://teraserver.microsoft.com/GetTilesByXY.asp?XId=5430&YId=4387&TileX=3&TileY=3&SrcId=1&ImgDate=07/10/1990&DSize=0"Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page

Mercer Island south facing peninsula . Eye in the sky knows all, back in 1958 supposedly somebody's satellite could read the fine printing on a Marlboro box. CIO

Note:<888>6/28/98 Sunday 2:45 P.M. EDT: I was up at 8 A.M. this morning. I had Aunt Jamaima pancakes for breakfast with orange juice and coffee. I made a couple of phone calls to family. I started cleaning my apartment about 10 A.M.. I just finished cleaning my apartment and watering the plants. I listened "http://www.ttalk.com"www.ttalk.com while cleaning the apartment. I still have to clean up and have a bite of lunch, perhaps a ham sandwich. I found this interesting link

"http://teraserver.microsoft.com/GetPageByXY.asp?XId=2777&YId=13076&SrcId=2&ImgDate=06/20/1988&ImgSize=3&DSize=0"Microsoft TerraServer Image Page Mount St. Helen's satellite photo circa 1994 and from this link

"http://teraserver.microsoft.com/GetSearchByMap.asp?Altitude=400&Longitude=-122.7768067&Latitude=46.5899342&PanX=0&PanY=400&DSize=0&ClickAt=?299,124"Microsoft TerraServer Search Page Seattle, Washington, one can find Redmond, Bellevue, and Mercer Island areas of Microsoft focus. Here is an interesting piece of property on Lake Washington, I wonder if it is near Bill and Paul's houses

"http://teraserver.microsoft.com/GetTilesByXY.asp?XId=5430&YId=4395&TileX=3&TileY=1&SrcId=1&ImgDate=07/10/1990&DSize=0"Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page, Peninsula Lake Washington . CIO

Note:<888>6/27/98 Saturday 11:50 P.M. EDT: I went downtown about 6 P.M.. On the way out I noticed the door buzzer system was being repaired, since it was hit by lightning. The repair man said it had been shorted out by the lightning. I told him that when it hit, it set off my 3 volt bell, and mentioned my computer was not effected. I also mentioned that it seemed to have fixed my stereo system, since the balance is once again even. I noticed a cloudy gray sky driving into town. I stopped by CVS and bought B12 vitamins for $2.49. I then drove down by the water on Steamboat Road and there was no parking since it was full. I drove over to Grass Island. On the way I noticed that Baldwin Park had a youth concert going on with perhaps a thousand attendees. I could hear the music from Grass Island and see the concert going on from across the way. At Grass Island, I surveyed the weather as usual. I noticed the entire sky was gray and foreboding, but it was clear in the Northeast. I also noticed there was a strong wind from the Northeast, so I assumed that the concert would not be rained out which turned out to be the case, and it was a very pleasant evening. I noticed at Grass Island the picnic table in the southeast corner by the harbor is covered with fish guts and some fishermen had been defacing and carving the picnic table. I returned to Greenwich Avenue. I chatted with a local fireman about my building being hit by lightning. I walked down to the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. I noticed a oil filler cap was off its pipe in front of a store down the street from Starbucks which I assume is a fire hazard. I returned to the senior center and rested. I then walked to the top of Greenwich Avenue. I studied the stone wall at the Presbyterian Church and it is progressing well. I walked east on Putnam Avenue, and studied some of the store window displays. One store has Asian antiques, another has antique military apparel, another has Hollywood scenes. I crossed the street at YMCA and mentioned to a local officer that one of my neighbors was ill and that she has a son in the military. I walked west back to Greenwich Avenue. I walked down the avenue observing the usual evening dinner crowd. The Avenue was moderately busy and the weather was pleasant. I sat by the veterans monument. I started chatting with a pleasant German couple and told them about growing up around the Germans at NASA and about my endeavors on tracking volcanoes on the internet. I told them about a friend living in Cologne, and they seemed to be enjoying their visit. I gave them my internet homepage address. I stopped by Starbucks to use the facilities. I walked back down the Avenue and back up to the senior center. I chatted with a gentleman from Cuba about life in Key West and Florida in the old days. I walked back down the Avenue and the crowds were beginning to thin out, so I returned back to my car. I drove back down to the bottom of Steamboat Road, and the stars were out. I returned home and said good evening to two of my neighbors coming in with one of their granddaughters. I had a bite of reheated noodles and a root beer and filed this report. All in all it was a pleasant relaxing evening. CIO

Note:<888>6/27/98 Saturday 1:30 P.M. EDT: I was up at 10 A.M. this morning. I had bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, orange juice and grapefruit juice, vitamins, and coffee for breakfast. I did a little internet activity. I fixed a slight problem with my computer. When I installed the new Bios CMOS setup for my computer instead of having a boot sector virus check option I had a "Chipset Antivirus" option in the CMOS setup. I had enabled this option. However, the option was causing delayed read writes on my hard drive, so I finally disabled the option, and the system seems to be running normally now. I will probably be installing Windows 98 early in the week. I don't anticipate any problems, since I have a new system with 5/6/98 American Megatrends bios. I also have just installed Win95 when I put together the new system, so I have a very clean system with mostly Microsoft programs on it. I do have the Microsoft Developer 5.0 version beta of Internet Explorer which has run fine for several weeks. I hope installing Win98 does not upset this program. Well we'll know in a few days anyway. The net says it is about 85 degrees F. out instead of very hot, so I might get out sooner or later, but I am enjoying relaxing at home for a change. Have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>6/27/98 Saturday 12:55 A.M. EDT: I went downtown at 4 P.M.. I touched up the rust spots a bit on the Volvo and it started to sprinkle mildly. I went downtown by the hospital thrift shop and bought a small lamp shade for $4. It unfortunately did not fit the fixture I got it for. I went by the library, but it was closed since the air conditioning was not working. I parked at the senior and walked down the Avenue, and ran into one of my former neighbors. I walked up the Avenue with him discussing Greenwich in general. I showed him my newly waxed Volvo. I walked down the Avenue with him and stopped by the Greenwich Harbor Inn patio and had a Heineken with him. I then walked him home and stopped by the pier on the end of Steamboat. I noticed they had valet parking for a party at the Yacht Club. I walked back up town, and chatted with the security guard at the General Re building. I returned to the senior center and went home for dinner about 8 P.M.. I chatted with my neighbors. I had dinner of ham and corn on the cob and ice tea. I made a thermos of coffee and went back downtown at 9 P.M. and it was still very busy. I drank my coffee. I walked around downtown and it seem a lot of people were enjoying the cooler evening. I noticed that Computer Playhouse is selling Windows 98, so I might get it there when I buy it next week. I noticed a local computer person talking shop around that location. Of course Greenwich has quite a few computer people in the area with the large office community in the area. I went back down the Avenue after my coffee. I also earlier noticed a cruiser the "Artful Dodger" parked at the Greenwich Harbor Inn from the Cayman Islands. I suppose they brought up the warmer weather. I wonder if I parked a Yacht there from Stockholm, if it would get cooler. Of course with arthritis one always feels better in hot weather. I noticed a car this week which is some sort of Porsche convertible, but instead of having Porsche written on it says "Baxter". I noticed young teenagers out in their new convertibles. I hope they drive safely. I returned home at midnight and filed this report. I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Well have a good night, and I guess I will be awake during the warmer weather during the daytime tomorrow or today. CIO
 Note:<888>6/26/98 Friday 3:25 P.M. EDT: Well it is a little hot today about 100 degrees F.. I went out at 10:30 A.M. and washed my car with a hose I keep in the back of the car. I then waxed the car with NAPA auto wax. I drive a 1976 Volvo 244 DL sedan with 100,000 miles on it. I also vacuumed the car. I had already cleaned the windows. The car looks much better. I just need to touch up a couple of small rust spots. I took about four rest breaks while doing it, and when I finished at about 2:30 P.M., I took a short rest and I just showered, so I feel a little bit more refreshed. I guess the Greenwich library does not have air conditioning, since we're having brown outs in the area. My apartment is cool and comfortable with the Sears air conditioner cranking out the cool air. It one needs air conditioners, County appliances over in Stamford has a large stock of Frederick and Panasonic air conditioners right now. I received their circular this week. A friend of mine bought three 25,000 BTU air conditioners from them, but he was doing a new house, so he put in 220 Volts for them. One has to make sure when using an air conditioner that the plug receptacle has enough voltage and amperage for it. Well after I post this report, and finish my hot cup of coffee, I might go out and touch up the paint, if I have any touch up paint, and then go out and come around town. Well I hope you're all comfortable. I remember when I was a pot scrubber in Nantucket for many years, I would frequently work in 130 degree F. environment for over 12 hours a day doing hot heavy work. One gets use to it. Well have a good day. I found 27 cents while vacuuming the car. CIO

Note:<888>6/26/98 Friday 10:25 A.M. EDT: Well today is suppose to be hot as hell, so get use to it. Don't move too fast, slow down take it easy, go at a very slow pace if you must be out in the heat. Drink plenty of fluids, think about taking salt tablets. Air quality today probably won't be so great. Remember hot days near the ocean in the summer can lead to sudden thunderstorms in the evening from heat convection near the ocean. I suppose those of you who have the luxury of staying close to the air conditioning will be out once it cools down in the evening. If I see any Saudi representatives roaming around, I will remind them that those of us who live here year round tend to pay attention to those who we see year round. Well enjoy the heat, and remember to chill out. I believe the Russian Vulcan is sort of like the California Condor, but larger. One can also mistake it for a black hawk or black falcon until it swoops in on you, and it is much larger. I believe they live at high altitudes in the mountains. Many mountain climbers have encountered them. I think the CIA plane the "Black Bird" is meant to remind people of such Audubon activity. If you want any more interesting fish stories go to a dinner at the Explorer's Club on East 70th Street just east of Madison Avenue in Manhattan. CIO

Note:<888>6/26/98 Friday 12:00 A.M. EDT: I went downtown at 8:30 P.M. after finishing my coffee. I chatted with a Cadillac chauffeur for Rudy's Limousine at the Greenwich Library about executive security. I left the library about 9:15 P.M. and went down on Greenwich Avenue. I had mentioned to Rudy's driver, that I had a friend at Brumos Porsche Mercedes in Jacksonville, Florida that might be able to import armor plated Mercedes and knows about executive protection security driving. I walked around the evening strollers and it was a full house out tonight. I noticed a local ABC morning male talk show host. I noticed that people seemed to be in their summer moods less grim and more relaxed. I chatted with the rider of a white Harley Davidson about mechanics and a coastal observer I know about in Denmark, with the handle Black Eagle. I said I thought Black Eagle was the name of a famous ship. When it comes to Eagles black or otherwise, one has to learn to differentiate between Eagles, Ravens, Buzzards, Crows, Vultures, and Vulcans. I believe the imperial symbol of Russia is actually not a Black Eagle, but a very common bird in Russia called the Vulcan which is commonly black. It frequently has a wing span of up to 12 feet and has frequently been known for carrying young children off to its nest. It is an oddity of nature, and Russian folklore. Enough of the Audubon lecture for today. I went by the Grand Union at 11 P.M. and it was not very busy. I purchased Jumbo eggs $1.59, Farmland smoked ham @ $2.49 a pound for $7.07, 12 bags of Ramen noodles at 6 for $1 for $2, 2% Grand Union milk half gallon $1.67, I Can't Believe It's Not Butter Light .99, GU evaporated milk .75, 2 ears sweet corn .40, green squash .93, red pepper $1.07 for a total of $16.47. I returned home and put my groceries away and filed this report. CIO Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 7:50 P.M. EDT: I went out at 2:30 P.M. to Putnam Trust Bank of New York, and I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the Wall Street Journal. I went down by Steamboat Road and watched the young junior sailors coming in from the Sound. They were becalmed today without much wind. There was an article in the Greenwich Times about the 180 sailboats that sailed from Newport to Bermuda in the race, and they all have been becalmed out in a calm flat ocean, only a few of them have made it to Hamilton, Bermuda. I once met a fellow named Dan Bladen who has won that race several times with his sons, and is an experienced ocean sailor. He showed us the Lea & Perrins house from his sailboat in Newport, which is an impressive structure on the harbor there. I believe he use to be an investment banker with White Weld and Company. I then drove over to Grass Island and took out my old rusty folding lawn chair out of the trunk of the car and sat by the harbor observing the water for about 45 minutes. I went downtown and stopped by Zyns for Merits ultra lights buy 2 get 1 free. I chatted with a British economist about the Caribbean economy. I chatted with the evening custodian at the senior center about United States Security. I returned home and had more of the Biftek Alfredo Fettuccini for dinner with defrosted green peas with ice tea. I am having a cup of coffee right now. I will go back downtown to enjoy the warm evening air. It was up to 88 degrees today, and tomorrow is suppose to be 100 degrees. July and August are suppose to be the two hottest months in recent memory, so slow down don't rush, stay cool and drink plenty of fluids, try "<http://mrscott.com/icetea.htm>"mrscott.com/icetea.htm and don't forget a little sodium or salt helps with dehydration. I was thinking about the fires in North Florida, and I got to thinking that if fires break out in the everglades in South Florida, all sorts of swamp reptiles and other assorted wildlife might start showing up in large numbers in human habitats, so if it happens keep a sharp eye out for gators, panthers, moccasins, etc., which most tourists aren't use to seeing. A relative called and successfully installed Windows 98 in a half and hour and said she would finance me to buy a copy, so I will purchase a copy when I receive the funds. Well have a good evening. I posted Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . CIO

Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 2:20 P.M. EDT: Scott's Dutch Trading Post on the Hudson River, Manhattan, New York USA

"<http://teraserver.microsoft.com/GetPageByXY.asp?XId=9542&YId=3761&SrcId=1&ImgDate=03/13/1995&ImgSize=3&DSize=0>"Microsoft TerraServer Image Page Manhattan CIO

Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 2:10 P.M.

EDT:"<http://teraserver.microsoft.com/GetTilesByXY.asp?XId=9899&YId=3828&TileX=3&TileY=6&SrcId=1&ImgDate=03/29/1995&DSize=0>"Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page Newport, Rhode Island USA cottage. CIO

Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 2:05 P.M.

EDT:"<http://terraserver.microsoft.com/GetPageByCoord.asp?Long=-71.298825&Lat=41.474973&Alt=12.000000&DSize=0>"Microsoft TerraServer Image Page Newport, Rhode, Island USA CIO

Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 2:00 P.M. EDT:

"<http://terraserver.microsoft.com/GetPageByXY.asp?XId=9560&YId=3784&SrcId=1&ImgDate=04/13/1992&ImgSize=1&DSize=0>"Microsoft TerraServer Image Page Tod's Point Greenwich, Ct. USA CIO

Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 1:40 P.M. EDT: I went downtown at 9 A.M. and stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. They have lots of lamp shades there for half price. I drove down by the Steamboat Road and chatted briefly with one of my former neighbors. There is no wind today, it is not a good day for sailing. I went to the library and read the local paper. The library construction is progressing and the new addition looks a lot bigger than I think some people though it would be. I drove down to Old Greenwich and stopped by the Old Greenwich Thrift Shop, everything there is half price. I went out to Tod's Point and took the three mile walk around Tod's Point. I saw 50 geese sitting on the harbor side. There were at least a 100 little kids at the Island Beach ferry dock this morning, and probably 300 little kids with their mothers at Tod's Point. Thus I guess Operation Babysitter is in full swing. I returned via Stables in Old Greenwich and they have cases of Microsoft Windows 98 there for $89 for the upgrade, but they looked like they had only sold about 20 copies. I guess people are not running out to buy it quickly, maybe it will move more quickly at rush hour this evening. I noticed that SNET and Bell Atlantic are installing a new heavy duty cable underneath East Putnam Avenue. I also saw a three masted schooner off Stamford harbor trying to sail east in the becalmed seas. I had corn on the cob, ramen noodles, fruit salad, ice tea, and coffee for lunch. Well have a good day and enjoy yourselves. I have a 3 P.M. appointment this afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 8:30 A.M. EDT: "<http://play.rbn.com/?zd/zdtv/live/zdtv-20.rm>"<http://play.rbn.com/?zd/zdtv/live/zdtv-20.rm> ZDTV live 28,800 audio video feed. CIO

Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 8:15 A.M. EDT:"<http://www.disney.com/dig/today/>"Disney's Internet Guide CIO

Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 7:55 A.M. EDT:"<http://www.fbi.gov/foipa/document.htm>"FBI FOIA Documents CIO

Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 7:07 A.M.

EDT:"<http://terraserver.microsoft.com/GetTilesByXY.asp?XId=9548&YId=3793&TileX=5&TileY=3&SrcId=1&ImgDate=04/04/1994&DSize=0>"Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page Main House Rockefeller Estate Pocantico Hills, North Terrytown, New York , drop the nukes there. CIO

Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 7:05 A.M.

EDT:"<http://terraserver.microsoft.com/GetTileByClick.asp?XId=9548&YId=3793&SrcId=1&ImgDate=04/04/1994&ImgSize=0&DSize=0&W=225&H=150&ClickAt=?141,149>"Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page Baseball Field near Rockefeller Estate CIO

Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 6:55 A.M. EDT:

"<http://terraserver.microsoft.com/GetTileByClick.asp?XId=9558&YId=3789&SrcId=1&ImgDate=04/12/1991&ImgSize=0&DSize=0&W=225&H=150&ClickAt=?135,105>"Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page Greenwich Country Club CIO

Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 6:50 A.M. EDT: Click this link for Greenwich Town Hall satellite image

"<http://teraserver.microsoft.com/GetTilesByXY.asp?XId=9558&YId=3786&TileX=0&TileY=2&SrcId=1&ImgDate=04/12/1991&DSize=0>"Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page Greenwich, Ct. USA Town Hall . CIO

Note:<888>6/25/98 Thursday 6:30 A.M. EDT: Well I finally found my building on the

"<http://teraserver.microsoft.com>"<http://teraserver.microsoft.com> , it is

"<http://teraserver.microsoft.com/GetTilesByXY.asp?XId=9556&YId=3785&TileX=7&TileY=1&SrcId=1&ImgDate=04/12/1991&DSize=1>"Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page Scott's Building at Vinci Drive Greenwich, Ct. USA . I am just northwest of the larger baseball diamond. Well it took a while. Time for breakfast. This is a link to the image on my local server

"<http://mrscott.com/vinci01.jpg>"mrscott.com/vinci01.jpg . CIO

Note:<888>6/24/98 Wednesday 4:45 P.M. EDT: For you Windows 98 enthusiasts CompUSA in Manhattan is suppose to be open at midnight tonight for fifteen minutes to sell Windows 98, I don't know whether the stores in White Plains or Norwalk will be open or not. Well good luck on installation if you get you copy of Win98. CIO

Note:<888>6/24/98 Wednesday 4:35 P.M. EDT: Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was up 1% today. Poor Bill was just shy 3/4 of a billion dollars from $60 billion "<http://www.webho.com/WealthClock/>"Bill Gates Personal Wealth Clock . Well I have not really done much today, but goof off, but who cares. I spent quite a bit of time trying to get the satellite photo my location, but for the moment the server is pretty busy. I don't feel like going out just now, because I don't want to lose my pale pallor. Well maybe I will take a nap before going out this evening. Happy to see the Wall Street boys made a few wooden nickels today, I suppose they will be all out for dinner tonight. Well off to dreamland. CIO

Note:<888>6/24/98 Wednesday 2:55 P.M. EDT: Well if you want the bird's eye view of where I live click on this link

"<http://teraserver.microsoft.com/GetSearchByMap.asp?Altitude=1&Longitude=-73.5758328&Latitude=41.0494769&PanX=-23.8362222222221&PanY=-17.3566666666666&DSize=0&ClickAt=?223,148>"Scott's Apartment Building 71 Vinci Drive, Greenwich, Ct. USA Microsoft TerraServer Search Page . CIO

Note:<888>6/24/98 Wednesday 2:30 P.M. EDT: God's Eye view of the earth Bill Gates is watching you "<http://teraserver.microsoft.com/>"Microsoft TerraServer . CIO

Note:<888>6/24/98 Wednesday 1:30 P.M. EDT: I had a quiet morning maintaining my usual routines. Interesting link today is "<http://www.netvote98.mci.com/>"NetVote '98 . I posted a copy of the Microsoft Antitrust Chronology

"<http://mrscott.com/micro003.htm>"mrscott.com/micro003.htm . Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>6/24/98 Wednesday 12:20 A.M. EDT: I had dinner of reheated biftek fettuccini alfredo and corn on the cob. I went out at 8:00 P.M. and stopped by the library and returned two Win98 books and checked out Windows 98 for Dummies. I read two computer newweeklies. I noticed an article in InfoWorld by Livingston about Win98 Fat32 file system. It got me thinking, whether when one installs Win98 Fat32 file system, if one can boot from a boot up disk with Fat32 and if one would be able to do the sys.com to make a drive bootable. I have not read whether it is possible. I do know one can not uninstall Fat32 once it is installed. I went downtown and walked around. I noticed lots of teenagers on the prowl. I returned home about 10 P.M.. I watched a CNN news report with Bill Gates chatting about the Microsoft ruling today with the Appeals Court. I watched a bit of the travel channel on Venice and a bit of the History

Channel on the Civil War. I channeled surfed a bit and filed this report. Have a good night, I guess I am on a day schedule. I think Win98 is released at midnight tomorrow night. One GE computer systems engineer at the library said he was not impressed with the Win98 product, but I am not as advanced as he is. Well Off to Never Never Land. CIO

Note:<888>6/23/98 Tuesday 6:25 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index

"<http://mrscott.com/scopor01.htm>"mrscott.com/scopor01.htm , up today but basically no change for last two days. When I updated the bios the system recognized my second com port as com port 5 leaving the modem on com port 2. It also recognized two unknown devices. Overall the system seems snappier with the new bios and it all seem to be running fine. I thus have a bios that is only about six weeks old. The manufacturer "<http://www.pcware.com>"www.pcware.com recommends against upgrading the bios because it is dangerous, and one has to reset all the settings and when rebooting it prompted for the Win95 cdrom. I noticed that CompUSA in midtown Manhattan is suppose to be open tonight for fifteen minutes at midnight to sell Windows 98, maybe it will be open out here. Unfortunately I don't have the money, so I will have to wait a week or so for a relative to send me a copy. Time to watch Peter Jennings on ABC evening news. CIO

Note:<888>6/23/98 Tuesday 6:10 P.M. EDT: I logged onto my motherboard manufacturer and downloaded the latest American megatrends bios for my motherboard and updated it and also the latest video driver. CIO

Note:<888>6/23/98 Tuesday 4:00 P.M. EDT: Rock doings

"<http://www.rockefeller.edu>"www.rockefeller.edu and

"<http://www.rockefeller.org>"www.rockefeller.org and

"<http://mrscott.com/rock.htm>"mrscott.com/rock.htm . Talk about being stuck between a Rock and a Hard place, of course the Van Whatsys could really give a damn, so if you're bored in South Hampton, Long Island; try Newport, Rhode Island or Nantucket for the same atmosphere or even downeast in Maine. CIO

Note:<888>6/23/98 Tuesday 3:20 P.M. EDT: Click "<http://www.webho.com/WealthClock/>"Bill Gates Personal Wealth Clock to see how much Billy Boy is worth today. I suppose if anyone is interested George Bush Sr. was meeting with Boris Yeltsin yesterday when 300 trees at the Kremlin were blown down by 100 mile per hour winds. I suppose if there were a Czar in Russia his net worth would be substantially more than Bill Gates since the country of Russia is a little bit larger than Redmond and has a few more natural resources. Well if the NORAD defense system goes down during the first week of November, I suggest you all try eating Borscht and keeping a liter of Stolichnaya in the freezer in case any Russian paratroopers drop in. Well who knows what is going on, remember the Internet propaganda represents less than one percent of the World's population, so you really are a minority. All quiet on the Eastern Front. CIO

Note:<888>6/23/98 Tuesday 2:45 P.M. EDT: I went through my work list

"<http://mrscott.com/scotwork.htm>"mrscott.com/scotwork.htm . I read my email about 20 automatic email messages a day on tech. I shut down at 9 A.M.. I watched MSNBC about the Appeals Court ruling in favor of Microsoft bundling its web browser with Windows 98. I watched "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous" about vacationing in Italy. Sophia Loren still looks radiant as ever, and happens to be one of the World's Richest women with over $30 billion in Renaissance Art that she is not allowed to take out of Italy. I believe she has a house at Fisher's Island down in Florida. I am sure her two sons have passed through Greenwich. Also they showed the Agah Khan's palace on the Italian Riviera. I believe a friend of mine is his grandson and he hangs out in Greenwich quite a bit. When I lived in Florence, Italy I was constantly reminded that the Medici family has not run out of money in over 700 years, so I guess there is some old world money still left in Europe. I believe Catherine de Medici was married to Louis XIV, so thus the French Royal family still has access to money through the Medici. The French Royal family is the same family as the Spanish Royal family better known as the Bourbon family. Thus I suppose this is the nature of surviving in the modern world. I believe the Rockefeller family has a villa on Lake Cuomo. I saw Steve Rockefeller playing golf on television this past Sunday in Jamaica. I believe he is Steven and Ingrid's son. Steve's father is Dean of Middlebury college, and thus young Steven is Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller's grandson. With international oil dealings of the Standard Oil company, I dare say the Rockefeller family after over a century of wealth is still probably one of the wealthiest families in the world when you include their offshore foreign assets which are kept separate from the United States assets. The fortune is conservatively estimated at between 2.5 and 5 trillion dollars depending on how one accounts the assets. This is primarily held by the John Davidson Rockefeller family out of North Terrytown, New York although the William Rockefeller family here in Greenwich would have more modest assets. I dare say all those Rockefeller family banks around Lake Geneva have something to do with managing the offshore assets. Yes that type of wealth could keep the stock market up indefinitely are bring it crawling to its knees depending on the whims of the administrators. Of course the family assets are intertwined with a network of long term partners and investors who might be residents of other countries. I believe even Bill Gates wife is a Rockefeller thus the sudden change in his fortunes. Well enough of an economics lesson. If one is interested in Swiss Banking, it helps to know either French, Italian, or German which are the native languages of the Cantons of Switzerland. After watching the "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous" I made lunch of Biftek, Fettuccini Alfredo, by dicing a rib eye steak and boiling the spinach fettuccini for 13 minutes. I sautéed the diced steak with a diced onion and chopped garlic in olive oil with ground pepper and garlic powder, adding a couple of dashes of Wostershire sauce and a few tablespoons of margarine. Once the sautéed mixture was browned I poured in a jar of Ragu roasted garlic parmesan sauce and a quarter of cup of white wine and a jigger of Jack Daniels and simmered the mixture for ten minutes. I then poured the mixture over the spinach noodles and mixed it all together for an enjoyable Italian dish at lunch time. I saved the rest for reheating. I rested after lunch which is the custom in Europe. I was called about 2 P.M. by Lynn from Chris Shays office and she said to call Terry Mardula at the Greenwich Housing Authority 203-869-1138 about my higher electricity costs. I called him and he said to bring in a copy of my yearly electricity bill which should be here in a couple of days. Well I am having my afternoon coffee. I will probably shower and go out in a little while. Have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>6/23/98 Tuesday 6:00 A.M. EDT: Yesterday I went out at 2 P.M. and stopped by Long Island Sound on Steamboat Road. It still seems to be there. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop again. I made my appointment at 4 P.M.. I went by the library and read PC Week. Earlier in the day I received a free year's subscription to PC Week which I registered for on the internet. One knows they've made it in the computer business or any other trade business when the technical publications start giving you free magazines full of all sorts of interesting technical stories and advertising for technical products. I mentioned to one of the library regulars that insurance companies might suffer loses if the desert like weather in Florida changes and a substantial hurricane should arrive, hopefully not. I mentioned to another regular that if the Norad Defense system goes down in the first week of November from the micro asteroid belt, a good place to hide out would be Lake Louise up in Canada, but it might be chilly there that time of year. I returned home tired and had a peanut butter sandwich and ramen noodles. I then went to bed for a good 12 hours sleep. I was awake at 5 A.M. this morning. I listened and read a bit of news on the internet. I had a breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, orange juice with vitamins, and coffee. I will now do some morning net surfing. I have thought about upgrading my directory with my bookmark "<http://mrscott.com/bmnow.htm>"mrscott.com/bmnow.htm ; however there is no rush we have forever. I did not get around to checking Scott's Index in time today, so it recorded no changes. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>6/22/98 Monday 1:45 P.M. EDT: I cleaned the Glass on my car. I read that 300 trees were knocked down by 100 mile per hour winds at the Kremlin. For any hot folks now that summer has begun here, you can chill out on these Antarctic links

"<http://www.abc.net.au/science/antarctica/ingrid/links.htm>"Ingrid On Ice - Antarctica Links .

Well I am cool and comfortable at home, but I think I have a 4 P.M. appointment. CIO

Note:<888>6/22/98 Monday 10:10 A.M. EDT: This is a direct link for downloading Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 developer beta

"<http://www.cnet.com/Content/Reviews/JustIn/Items/0,118,405,00.html?ibd>"CNET Reviews - Just In - Internet Explorer 5.0 developer preview . CIO

Note:<888>6/22/98 Monday 10:00 A.M. EDT: If you want to download the Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 developer beta

"<http://www.microsoft.com/ie/ie5/download/b1/x86/en/download/addon95.htm>"Internet Explorer 5.0 Component Download this is the link for the component download or this from Microsoft "<http://www.microsoft.com/sitebuilder/ie/ieonsbn.htm>"Internet Explorer 5.0 Developer Preview Release on SBN or this. CIO

Note:<888>6/22/98 Monday 9:25 A.M. EDT: I went out at 6 A.M. this morning. I drove down by the water on Steamboat Road and it was quiet. I sat in front of the Senior Center and had coffee out of my thermos. It was pretty quiet at Starbucks down the street. I walked down the bottom of Greenwich Avenue, and they were finishing striping the parking areas across from the train station. I chatted with security across from the train station. I walked through the train station. I went back up to the middle of Greenwich Avenue and returned to the senior center. I sat in front of the senior center for a while. I drove down to the General Reinsurance Building on Steamboat Road and told them the internet said this weekend that Berkshire Hathaway was buying General Reinsurance. I drove down to the water at the bottom of Steamboat Road and watched them raise the morning flags at the Yacht Club. When they tried to fire the Canon, it misfired. I drove back up Steamboat Road and thought I saw a British lady talking to the security at the General Re Building. I went to the Exxon station and filled up the car with $14.96 of premium gasoline. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop and they were opening and bought a small French flag with pedestal for $1. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and went west on Old Track Road to the Arnold Bread Store outlet and bought two half dozen boxes of blueberry muffins and one Raspberry Strudel for $3.25. I returned back to my place and ate two blueberry muffins and froze one box of blueberry muffins and the raspberry strudel. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>6/22/98 Monday 5:50 A.M. EDT: Well if you're in the market for a used car, you might check "<http://www.kbb.com>"www.kbb.com Kelly Bluebook for prices. My 1976 Volvo is worth about $450 and I pay about $8 a year property taxes on it. The sun is beginning to come out, so I might go out for a spell after having a bit of fruit salad and making a cup of coffee.

Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>6/22/98 Monday 4:40 A.M. EDT: Laundry is finally done. I am done with my internet routines for the day. Not I will go through my email. CIO

Note:<888>6/22/98 Monday 3:40 A.M. EDT: I went out briefly yesterday morning. I went back to bed about noon and slept until 1 A.M. this morning. I guess I was tired. A family member said they would send me Windows 98. I suppose it is back to the normal routine. I am doing laundry right now, and my heel seems to be hurting less. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>7/7/98 Tuesday 11:20 P.M. EDT: I went out at 7 P.M. after a Tony's frozen pizza. I had ice tea with it and I took my thermos of iced coffee downtown to enjoy. Today I heard on CNBC the price of coffee is going up. Apparently they plan to produce 35 million hundred kilogram bags of coffee in Brazil this year, unless they get frost. Last year they only produced 23 million hundred kilogram bags. Thus one would think the price of coffee is going down. However no one likes drinking the cheap Brazilian coffee, but all the gourmet coffee freaks prefer the expensive blends from Latin American and Mexico. However with the drought in Latin America and Mexico there is less quantity of gourmet beans, plus there is a huge demand for the gourmet blends from all the gourmet coffee houses and gourmet coffee providers. Thus the price of yuppie coffee will be increasing. I walked around the bottom of Greenwich Avenue three times. I chatted with a fellow walking his hedgehog. I chatted with a Norwegian fellow coming out of Figaros with his family. I asked him if he had run into Rhone in the Canary Islands, but he explained he might be in Iceland. The Norwegian fellow and his family seemed to be enjoying themselves. There is a 100 foot Yacht from Capetown, South Africa at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. Also there is a yacht from Miami that is going to Nantucket. This time of year we get quite a few small pleasure craft pulling in to Greenwich Harbor which is actually quite small, and can not accommodate the large ocean going yachts like one usually sees in the Caribbean and the Mediterranean. It is my viewpoint that we could accommodate motor launches from a 1,000 plus foot Yacht if it pulled into New York Harbor at the West Side Pier, and they could shuttle guests out here. I was told that Long Island Sound can not accommodate 1,000 foot plus yachts. Thus the ship the Viking would have to shuttle launch craft back and forth. I chatted with a member of the Canine Corps about volcanology on the internet. Overall it was a pretty full house downtown this evening for a Tuesday evening, and I spotted quite a few travelers at the Greenwich Harbor Inn strolling up and down Greenwich Avenue as usual in warmer weather. Well back to net. CIO

Note:<888>7/7/98 Tuesday 5:55 P.M. EDT: For those in the know who wonder who were the primary investors in the Key West operation in the mid 1970s. It was the Dupont family who own the main bank in Florida along with the St. Joe paper operation. Gulf Oil had an office on Duval street. Henry Flagler through his operations with the Florida East Coast Railroad represented the Rockefeller family. Desi Arnez was a main stock holder in CBS was down there. Howard Hughes would drift in and out like a hobo. Household Finance Company related to one of my relatives had an office on Duval street. Kress department store was on Duval street, related to the Kress family of Oyster Bay, Long Island. There was a foursome of Izy the Arab who had Saudi wealth, Bob Russell who started pizza franchises at all the big ten universities which became Pizza hut and sold them to Pepsi Cola, Steve Buel who owned a million head of dairy cattle in Wisconsin and sold Fennimore cheese, and Rick Todd from North Terrytown, New York who was another Rockefeller representative. William Marriott restored the Casa Marina using End of the Road Construction Company owned by the Ray family. There were a number of homeless Duponts one of whom claimed he had sold his last share of GM stock and only had his GM seatbelt left which he wore around his waste. There were members of the Cooper family who were related to the Vanderbilt family. There were members of the established Coca Cola families who use to run beverage concessions down there. I recall a peanut farmer from Georgia had a Japanese house down there. Columbia University and Dartmouth college had invested in Mel Fisher's Dive expedition. I recall Equitable Life Insurance financed the Casa Marina venture. A German American family there ran an insurance company that insured the oil refineries in New Jersey. There was old Yankee money from the Joy family GM money and Connecticut wealth from Salisbury, Connecticut represented by their namesake. I suppose there were a few other less notable people there, but obviously there was enough financial capital to rebuild the island into the resort you see today, not to mention the United States government sank a lot of money into the military facilities in the Keys not to mention the 200 miles of four lane highway leading down there. For the record. I recall an older gardener that looked like Ronald Regan that had an air stream trailer there next to the Navy base since World War II. I also recalled seeing some Roosevelts around since they have the same Dutch French look I do, not to mention quite a few retired prominent military figures that have a few family financial resources like Halsey, Moore, McArthur, and Rickover, just to name a few. I assume there was a Pershing there too since I met him earlier at the Wall Street Club. Royalty included members of the British, Dutch, Danish, Norwegian, Saudi, Jordanian, Swedish, Iranian families, and I believe heads of state I recognized besides current and previous presidents included heads of state of Canada and Egypt. God only knows who else was there. CIO

Note:<888>7/7/98 Tuesday 5:25 P.M. EDT: Well I paid all my bills today. I already had paid my rent on Thursday. I paid my Bell Atlantic Telephone Bill, my MCI long distance and MCI access bills, GEICO insurance, Electricity, Cablevision, and the property tax on my Volvo. I also bought a white Black and Decker toaster oven at the Hospital Thrift Shop for $5. I sent in my Win98 travel coupon voucher from CompUSA for redemption. I drove down by the water. I went by the library and read the computer press. I returned home and filed this report and am drinking a Canada Dry gingerale with apple juice to refresh myself on this hot day. I renewed the Win98 books I have checked out. The Connecticut DMV bus is in front of the town hall today, first Tuesday of every month. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm today. Hughes Electronics was down 10% today. Since I think they make satellites, they might actually go up, if as predicted the micro asteroid belts comes into out orbit during the first week of this November possibly crippling 50% of the earth's satellites. I think the micro asteroid belt comes around every 35 years. Well back to the net, and maybe a frozen pizza for dinner. CIO

Note:<888>7/7/98 Tuesday 1:30 A.M. EDT: Custom charted a boat from Key West, Florida & lower keys CIO

Note:<888>7/7/98 Tuesday 1:25 A.M. EDT: Diana Isle Also Burial Site for Pets . CIO

Note:<888>7/7/98 Tuesday 1:00 A.M. EDT: Cheap Supercomputer Avalon: T-CNLS Dec Alpha Cluster why does the DOE need to pay IBM a billion dollars for the same item. CIO

Note:<888>7/7/98 Tuesday 12:45 A.M. EDT: Well enter the contest www.lick101.htm . It sounds like some of Mick's gang are trying to get attention. Limey Rock stars and all that stuff. CIO

Note:<888>7/7/98 Tuesday 12:40 A.M. EDT: I had Ramen noodles for a snack. I put the Ramen flavor packet in a cup of water in a Rubbermaid quart container with a hole in the top. I then push the ramen noodles down into the container and nuke them for five minutes in the Microwave. If you don't like too much MSG or salt use half the flavor packet. Well the truth is we're still a low budget operation here, but I think we'll survive. Remember I weigh 200 pounds, so it takes a little bit more to feed me. CIO

Note:<888>7/6/98 Monday 11:55 P.M. EDT: I ran Regclean 4.1a INFO: RegClean 4.1a Description and General Issues on my Win98 system. It ran fine. The system seems to boot faster. It did not change any of the c:\windows\system.dat and the c:\windows\user.dat registry file lengths, but it did make some fixes to the registry. I add a can of mixed nuts about 9 P.M. and went to sleep for three hours. I still have not been out today. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>7/6/98 Monday 8:40 P.M. EDT: Anyone notice that the Microsoft World Traveler Desktop Theme at Microsoft Windows 98 Update has the same a desktop wall paper that looks like Crater Lake in Oregon in the summer. Crater Lake Volcanic calderas in the winter <http://mrscott.com/crater1.gif> . Try using this for your desktop wallpaper. It is over a mile deep and if it ever went up, we'd be like boiled lobsters. Remember the movie "The Mud People" after Mt. St. Helens went up. Well enough constant comment. CIO

Note:<888>7/6/98 Monday 6:35 P.M. EDT: Microsoft MSN Windows 98 Newsgroups Computing Central CIO.

Note:<888>7/6/98 Monday 5:30 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It is at a all time high up about 30% since I started it last September. It went down by February and actually up 30 % since February. Thus the Wall Street Yoyo effect. Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>7/6/98 Monday 4:45 P.M. EDT: If you have a web site for sale check out ZAP . CIO

Note:<888>7/6/98 Monday 4:20 P.M. EDT: I am finally up after a good days sleep. I ran maintenance wizard while I was asleep. I also have the power savings features enabled in the CMOS and the Power Saving program installed on the computer. I will have breakfast of cereal, toast, orange and grapefruit juice, vitamins, and coffee shortly while listening to www.dailybriefing.com . CIO

Note:<888>7/6/98 Monday 4:30 A.M. EDT: I am downloading World Traveler desktop theme from Win98 updates page. I got to thinking even if one used the electronic shark repeller in the water, it probably would not work against a giant octopus or killer whales, so thus if you go in the water you take your own chances. Of course the undertow can be really wicked after a storm also. I remember one year on Nantucket watching a windsurfer take off from the south shore saying he was going to sail to South Hampton, Long Island but when he sailed off over the horizon in the direction of what he thought was South Hampton, Long Island he was headed more in the general direction of Bermuda or Africa, since the South Shore of Nantucket does not exactly face South. Well live in learn, if I ever get any money I might go into competition with the Chicken Box and Shipwreck Charlie's and open Shipwreck Mikes, but who cares. The kids always seem to have fun out on the Island when they go there, and most seem to survive. I actually enjoy the more sedate quieter venue in Kennebunkport, since I am not really an ocean going rat anymore. Well when you don't travel very much for many years, one becomes a professional arm chair traveler. I don't even surf much around the world on the internet anymore. We have so many people showing up here anymore, it is always fun to people watch in one's own town. CIO

Note:<888>7/6/98 Monday 2:15 A.M. EDT: New SoundBlaster file for Windows 98 Creative What's New on the FTP site . CIO

Note:<888>7/6/98 Monday 1:55 A.M. EDT: Maybe you should not ride a bike. Bike Seats May Cause Impotence . CIO

Note:<888>7/6/98 Monday 1:40 A.M. EDT: I finished reading the Windows 98 manual which is a quick read while listening to tech news. I heard today that President Clinton will be vacationing on Martha's Vineyard this summer in addition to visiting South Hampton. I suppose half the Washington bigwigs will be heading that way. If you are a poor hippie type roaming around Martha's Vineyard, I recommend from my experience on Nantucket to beware of the tall grass in the moors which can contain deer ticks which can give you Lyme Disease which you don't want to get. I also suggest against trying to camp out on the beach since a great many people drive around at night in four wheel drive vehicles and might not see you. Both Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard have excellent youth hostiles, particularly Martha's Vineyard with bunkroom dormitories, but they fill up early, so I recommend trying to make reservations early if interested. There use to be a Christian residence in Bourne on Cape Cod called the Poor House that is a magnificent house run by the Episcopal Archdiocese of Cambridge, Massachusetts. Poor stands for the Standard and Poors family that funded it. I suppose anyone going to the Cape would also need sunscreen if they were going to be outside for long periods of time. Also the South shore of both Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket can have severe riptides depending on the amount of tidal sand washed in and out each year during the winter, so one should swim on the calm sides of the island. I heard on a tech program that there is now a electronic shark repellent device that puts a electronic shock wave in the water around you that is suppose to repel sharks. Of course some of the locals might be useful local guides since they are accustomed to the local waters. Captain Black and Captain Frances on Nantucket use to be excellent deep water sport fishing guides with charter craft on Nantucket. I suppose one should not open a charge account at either of the Henry's liquor stores on either island or the whole island will know quickly that you plan to do a lot of entertaining. Remember the local island people are very tight and clannish and gossip a lot about everything that goes on particularly newcomers, not to mention the summer students working on the island have their own networks. Nantucket use to have at least 500 student dishwashers, so they even had a network. We also use to use to code for different locations on the island in the old days. They Old Navy base on Nantucket up the Sconset Road and down Lyon Farm Road and turn right south at the end driving past the old Navy Quonset huts if they are still there and have not fallen into the ocean use to have excellent surf casting on the south shore in the evening. I once took in 50 blues in about two hours there in October. Of course as tides and currents and weather and the moon changes, so can fishing conditions. I never used a car except once on both Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard, and I generally had moderate luck hitch hiking around the island. Renting bicycles if you plan to stay on the paved roads can be a useful way to get around, but if you plan to explore sandy areas of areas down dirt roads, the gears on bicycles can get messed up with sand. If you should be fortunate enough to find inexpensive accommodations downtown in one of the locations, everyone you ever met from out of town and off island will use it as pit stop while you're away, since they like snooping on each other there. Lots of families use to have dormitory type facilities in their homes, so they could put up a couple of dozens kids, cousins, and friends. If you walk at night wear reflectors and watch out for autos on the roads which might not see you. I suppose one can explore to their hearts contents out there on the islands, but once you're there long enough, everyone seems to know your routine and location of residence soon enough. I use to enjoy watching people come and go off the Nantucket ferries. Remember the locals usually know quite a lot they don't tell you. Well enjoy your holidays wherever you may go, I enjoy staying at home in Greenwich, Connecticut which has extensive recreation facilities, and I find my own apartment more comfortable than camping out on the islands at my age. Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>7/6/98 Monday 12:25 A.M. EDT: I finished my laundry and I will listen to www.answerguy.com . I went through mrscott.com/scotwork.htm . I might instead of surfing the net this evening read the Windows 98 manual to try and find out more about it. CIO

Note:<888>7/5/98 Sunday 11:00 P.M. EDT: I went out at 7:30 P.M. I stopped by CVS on Greenwich Avenue and with the store weekly circular I bought two four packs of GE light bulbs for $3 for both one pack is 60 watts and the other 75 watts. I also got Arid Extra Dry deodorant for .99 and the store cash registered scanned wrong so they had to correct it. Apparently the Arid coupon does not scan properly. I also bought a bottle of 100 500 mg. Vitamin C for $2.99 for a total of $7.40. I then went down by the senior center and drank my coffee out of the thermos. I started to walk down the Avenue and found a sales piece of paper from a store called Computer City. They have one in Scarsdale, New York at 423 Central Avenue, Phone 914-722-8400. They have a lot of comparable bargains to CompUSA. I will stop by there some time when I have money. I only got 4 pages of the 8 page brochure. I see a 17 inch monitor for $249, 32 meg SDRAM $40 and 64 meg SDRAM $100. Their site is www.computercity.com . I suppose one might find something there if you take a look. I am not sure where Scarsdale is, but I think it is somewhere west of here on I95 before Yonkers. It should not be too far away. Central Avenue might run out of White Plains west from the White Plains Civic Center. I then walked down Greenwich Avenue and I saw a local IBM couple feasting at the French restaurant. I noticed a bunch of hot thirsty kids hanging out in front of the movie theatre area. I then returned back up the Avenue. I drove down Steamboat Road and returned home and chatted with one of my neighbors about the old days in Florida. I am doing washing right now and shortly I will start the drying cycle. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>7/5/98 Sunday 6:50 P.M. EDT: I was up at 2 P.M.. I had bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, orange and grapefruit juice, vitamins, and coffee for breakfast. I chatted with a family member. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants. I put drain cleaner in the bathroom sink to clear it out. I listened to www.dailybriefing.com while doing this. I am watching ABC evening news. I will have a bit to eat and make a couple of more telephone calls. They're having a little league baseball game going on the backyard field and it is a very nice day. CIO

Note:<888>7/5/98 Sunday 3:50 A.M. EDT: Well I read the news and checked out my server stats <http://mrscott.com/stats.htm> . About 500 people read my complete notes link mrscott.com/mlsnote1.txt last month. Part of my premise in posting such detailed notes on normal everyday events, is that in a busy area, they help give recall to other events as they may be occurring during the same time. It is sort of like Thomas Jefferson keeping track of the temperature every half hour at Monticello while the Declaration of Independence was being debated in Independence Hall in Philadelphia 222 years ago. I suppose if I were a better historian, I would know more, but as I have said many times from a famous quote, "Man Who Does Not Read History is Bound to Repeat Himself." Well enjoy the rest of the weekend, and please drive safely if you are on the highway this holiday weekend. All quiet on the Northeastern Front. CIO

Note:<888>7/5/98 Sunday 2:30 A.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Notes long text file through June 1998 and made a hardcopy print out. The link to the link is mrscott.com/note02pr.htm . It is close to 300 pages and seems to be enjoying some minor popularity. Well back to checking out the next activity at mrscott.com/scotwork.htm . CIO

Note:<888>7/5/98 Sunday 12:45 A.M. EDT: I went out at 9:30 P.M.. I drove down Greenwich Avenue, and I then drove over to Riverside to CVS all night drugstore. I purchased 15oz. bottle of antibacterial liquid soap for $1.19, a 7 1/2 oz. dispenser of liquid antibacterial soap for $1.19, 2 Mentadent toothbrushes made in Germany for $2.99, and a bottle of a 100 balanced B-50 vitamins for $6.75 for a total of $12.44. I then drove back down to Greenwich Avenue and parked and walked down to the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. It was not too busy. I noticed a two tone tan GMC parked in front of one of the two French restaurants at the bottom of the avenue on the right near Grigg street. I noticed somebody in Figaro who looked like he might be the owner. I dare say he is probably a prosperous rancher. His license plate was Wyoming license plate "G". It made me hungry for a steak. I then walked back to the Senior Center area and sat down for a while. I walked back up the Avenue towards the middle. I noticed that some of the Navy Seals in town for the air show were on Shore Leave enjoying the local color at the Dome restaurant. I chatted with one of the enlisted men and a officer and they were very polite and seemed to be enjoying their stay. They told me they were stationed out of Norfolk, Virginia. I returned to the bottom of the Avenue and then walked back up to the top of the Avenue. I left the Avenue about midnight and drove down Steamboat Road and then returned home. I put the liquid soap in the kitchen for washing my hands, it is easier to keep next to the sink than soap, and is probably more sanitary. I will read the morning reports off the net. The rain held off and I dare say tomorrow will be muggy whether it rains or not. Well have a good morning, signing off for now from Greenwich, Connecticut USA. CIO

Note:<888>7/4/98 Saturday 9:20 P.M. EDT: I had a friend stopped by who is moving at the end of the month. He is moving from Wilton, and possibly looking in Guilford, CT. on the water. He gave me some hobo bread his mother had made. We watched the history channel about the American revolution. I went downtown after he left and stopped by the Food Emporium which is suppose to be open until midnight tonight. I purchased A&P Bokar coffee beans $3.69, Bulk Hazelnut coffee beans at $9.99 a pound for $10.79, French Roast Coffee Beans $3.49, Red Bag Coffee Beans $3.49, and a large bag of Columbian Coffee Beans for $10.99 for a total of $32.45. I went by the bank money machine and then down the avenue and picked up three buy two get one free of Parliament lights 100 for $17.40. I then drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and chatted with some of the local coastal observers. They were having a party going on at the Indian Harbor Yacht Club with a middle age group of adults and young kids. At about 8 P.M. it started sprinkling, so I drove back home and blended the coffee beans together and put them in my glass mason storage jars. I reheated some chicken, ham, ramen noodles, hobo bread with ice tea and finally a good cup of fresh coffee that is equal five parts of the different kinds with a double part of the Columbian beans, it actually tastes better than the equal parts. I now have about another six weeks supply of coffee. I will surf the net a short bit and go out again. A few families around town were looking for the fireworks which were luckily last night. It is too low of a cloud ceiling tonight. I suppose it is another quiet night in town. This evening seemed very quiet downtown. Well enjoy the rest of the fourth weekend where ever you are. CIO

Note:<888>7/4/98 Saturday 2:20 P.M. EDT: Well I passed the Year 2000 test using PC World Today: Is Your Computer Millennium-Compatible? . I just got up and will eat breakfast and go out and enjoy the Holiday, if it is not too hot. CIO

Note:<888>7/4/98 Saturday 4:05 A.M. EDT: Well I am bushed as usual. I think I will have a bite to eat while I listen to the folks in Chicago at www.ttalk.com . CIO

Note:<888>7/4/98 Saturday 3:50 A.M. EDT: NASA Lunar Prospector CIO

Note:<888>7/4/98 Saturday 3:45 A.M. EDT: Althorp - The Official Web Site . CIO

Note:<888>7/4/98 Saturday 3:40 A.M. EDT:PC World Today: Is Your Computer Millennium-Compatible? .CIO

Note:<888>7/4/98 Saturday 2:45 A.M. EDT: Hottest volcanic eruptions yet observed on Jupiter's moon Io . CIO

Note:<888>7/4/98 Saturday 1:00 A.M. EDT: Carribean Satellite photo for viewing Montserrat Volcano activity NRL Satellite Photo goes8_images/trop_atlantic_vis/LATEST.jpeg tropics . CIO

Note:<888>7/3/98 Friday 11:40 P.M. EDT: I went out at 8 P.M. and chatted with my neighbors about the volcano activity recently. I went downtown and chatted and walked down the Avenue with a senior British citizen who was stopping by the Greenwich Harbor Inn. I returned to the senior center about the time the fireworks let out. I chatted with another town citizen. I walked back down the Avenue and returned to the center. I went to the Grand Union about 11 P.M.. I purchased 18 packs of various Ramen noodles at 6 for $1 for $3, 3 half gallons Florida Natural Honey flavored Grapefruit Juice for $2 thus $6, 3 half gallons Florida Natural Orange Juice for $2 each thus $6, a half gallon GU 2% milk $1.67, a six pack diet Coke .99, a six pack diet Sprite .99, 2 Tony's frozen pizza @ $2.50 each thus $5, .60 cent can deposit, and a bottle of Angostura Bitters $2.99 for a total of $27.48. I stopped by the Shell station for a pack of smokes Basic lights for $1.68 on the way home. Well it is a warmer evening out and it was not to busy downtown since most of the town probably were at the fireworks. Well have a good night.

Note:<888>7/3/98 Friday 7:40 P.M. EDT: I was up at noon today. I had bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice, and coffee for breakfast. I worked on the computer looking at information until about 2 P.M.. I uninstalled Colorado Cheyenne Backup and used the Microsoft Windows 98 Seagate backup to make two backups of my system. Each backup took two hours. I had to use two tapes for each backup. I watched a bit of television while making the backups and cleaned up. At 6:30 P.M. I heated some Ramen noodles and reheated the noodles from dinner last night. I also made mrscott.com/icetea.htm which I will put away shortly. I also had Cheesecake for desert. I also noticed in the CompUSA sales brochure which ends tomorrow on July 4, that they have a Hercules Stingray 128/3D 8 meg memory video card which I assume is PCI, for $196.99 with $98 instant rebate for a total of $98.99 which one could use with their onboard video or other PCI card to enable Win98's multiple monitor function, so that you can use two or more monitors at the same time. I don't think I will get it, but it is a neat feature you could use with Win98. I also noticed that the Montserrat Volcano erupted today with a 40,000 foot plume Discovery Online -- Trouble in Paradise, Montserrat - Eruption Cam. I posted the satellite photo which shows a tiny bit of the plume at mrscott.com/montser1.jpg, perhaps there will be a better photo later. I am listening to the BBC radio, third dino on the homepage mrscott.com to have received the report. I will go out shortly after I put away the ice tea and do a little bit more of work. CIO

Note:<888>7/3/98 Friday 3:40 A.M. EDT: Well, I believe President Clinton after his return from China is suppose to enjoy another holiday at the Scott family resort in the Hamptons around South Hampton on Long Island that the Scotts started around 1640, when they were trying to find a cheap rum running port to stop over at on the way to and from the Indies. I suppose the Swamp Club will be full of all the White House VIPs and the locals in the Hamptons will have something new to chat about at their cocktail parties. I believe the favorite pastime of the families in the Hamptons is Charades which helps keep the conversation down for the Old Guard in the evenings. Well who knows, the ocean front beach resort might have some entertainment once one gets tired of people watching. I suggest the Maidenstone Club for golf, and I believe there is a beach club called the "Breakers". Remember the eastern tip of Long Island around Montauk is world famous for Great White Sharks, so I suppose the president won't be going into the Ocean, but just using the pool. Well who knows he could always use the Navy Seals as bait. Any good fish stories would surely pick up the rather dull press reports recently. CIO

Note:<888>7/3/98 Friday 3:25 A.M. EDT: Well tonight on the BBC World Report on the midnight report at 7 P.M. here, the newscaster made the comment that, "Prince Charles is Crazy as a Mad Hatter." I suppose what that means if one is use to trying to decode "Open Coded Messages" from the BBC like they used during World War II, is the Prince of Wales is strongly urging his dominion to be more respectful of his family's persona, and not to try to interfere with their normal everyday life routines, which they seem to have become accustomed to. I believe the Royal Crest has a motto, "Dieu et Mon Droit". Thus those who expect royal privilege will generally receive it by the "Grace of God". Well I suppose the BBC correspondent will be washing dishes at the "Mad Hatter Restaurant" in Nantucket for a quite a long time, until he realizes the "Error of His Ways". The Queen like the Pope has the power of Excommunication for those in her realm. Well lets hope we have pleasant weather this Holiday. Of course the Mad Hatter was a character from Alice in Wonderland which is based on Queen Victoria's reality. CIO

Note:<888>7/3/98 Friday 1:55 A.M. EDT: I went out at midnight and walked around the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. It was very quiet considering tomorrow is a holiday for many. I suppose there were about two dozen people at the Dome and hardly anyone else at the other pubs. I don't think many people stay up late during the nice summer days, preferring to be on a daytime schedule to enjoy the summer warmth. All quiet on the Eastern Front. CIO

Note:<888>7/2/98 Thursday 11:45 P.M. EDT: I went out at 8 P.M. and stopped by the library. I drove downtown and walked around the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. Someone had discarded a half gig Seagate drive at the station dumpster. When I returned home at about 10 P.M., I tried testing it, but it did not work. I also backed up my D: partition and deleted it with FDISK and reinstalled it with FDISK. By using the Win98 FDISK, I now have the newer Win98 FDISK that recognizes large partitions. When using it, one has to make sure not to delete one's primary partition or any other major drives, so if you use it be careful. I formatted the D: drive and returned the backed up files from the C: drive to the D: drive. I use the D: drive to keep my downloads and other files, so I don't have to redownload them. Well the system is all back together and running fine. Have a good evening. I will probably go out for a short walk in a few minutes. CIO

Note:<888>7/2/98 Thursday 6:55 P.M. EDT: I posted this link to the current weather satellite photo See How Bad the Fires are in Florida NRL Satellite Photo . I went out at 2 P.M. and stopped by my bank and withdrew funds and went over to the other bank and paid my rent. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop and picked up a 50 cent computer CD holder. I made my 4 P.M. appointment. I drove downtown down by the water and noticed wall to wall teenagers and college kids downtown along with vacationing families. I guess with the fires in Florida lots of people are coming this way. I returned home and chatted with my neighbor from England about British comings and goings. I posted Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm at my site. I am just about ready to have dinner of baked herbal chicken breast in wine, with baked onion, ramen noodles, and corn on the cob. I think if you have clouds, you can seed clouds for rain by putting a gallon of iodine with a 100,000 gallons of water and dropping it in the higher levels of the clouds from a fire service or air force service fire sprayer tanker. We are suppose to have Fire Works on the Fourth of July or maybe tomorrow night the 3rd, and the U.S. Navy Seals are landing to give a demonstration at the high schools of their advanced talents in combat defense operations. Well enjoy the delightful weather this evening. CIO

Note:<888>7/2/98 Thursday 1:45 P.M. EDT: I was up at noon. I had GU raisin bran, toast, orange grapefruit juice, vitamins, and coffee for breakfast. I did a little net work. I updated Scott's Stats mrscott.com/stats.htm . I have a 4 P.M. appointment. Well it should be another normal day in Greenwich. Enjoy yourselves. CIO

Note:<888>7/2/98 Thursday 2:50 A.M. EDT: Western Digital Corporation (Service/Support) - Tip of the Month (March 1997) Transferring Files From the Old to the New Drive in Windows 95, this might be useful if your lucky to afford one them new fangled IBM 8.5 gig hard drives at CompUSA on sale for $295 with a $95 mail in rebate from IBM for a $200 total, I think it would have been smarter to sell it with a share of stock. Also if you were looking at the above mentioned page, you would want to install FAT32 from Win98 on the drive first, so that it was a FAT32 drive, and you would not need the EZdrive information, since Win98 will recognize a 8.5 G. hard drive. This above procedure worked for me when I installed my 1 G. Western Digital Hard Drive last August. Well the tires were more important than a new hard drive, and quite frankly I am having a hard time filling up the 1 G. hard drive. I think Canadians are allowed to drink Corby's Whisky on Dominion Day, if they're not on duty, and alas the shipment of "OLD COURAGE" seems to have been lost amongst the Old Guard. I believe there are one or two Canuks in the area. Well if you see anyone from the Maple Leaf club, give them my best. CIO

Note:<888>7/2/98 Thursday 1:50 A.M. EDT: Happy Dominion Day, to you folks up in Canada. CIO

How many grains of rice in China? 1.2 billion people, a cup of rice twice a day, about 1000 grains of rice in a cup of rice =  $1,200,000,000 \times 2 \times 1000 \times 365$  days divided by 2 growing seasons.  $1,200,000,000 \times 2 \times 1000 \times 182.5$  or  $1,200,000,000 \times 1,000 \times 365$  = 438,000,000,000,000 grains of rice give or take a few grains. MLS 438 quadrillion.

Note: <888>7/1/98 Wednesday 11:20 P.M. EDT: I went out at 8 P.M., I found a palm fond basket about three feet high and 18 inches in diameter discarded at our dumpster which I put upstairs in my apartment. I use to watch many people make them down in the Key and it is part of native Caribbean Art. It is a larger version of what is used for plant baskets. I then chatted with one of my neighbors, and she told me about living in Westchester County next door years ago, and she seemed to be doing well enjoying the nice pleasant weather today. I went by the library and read the Greenwich Times. It was not too busy on this summers evening. I went downtown and walked around the bottom of Greenwich Avenue and the train station area. The downtown movie, restaurant, pub, and coffee shop venues were quite busy this evening. I saw what looked to be quite a few visitors in the crowd on their summer holidays. It was most colorful and festive, as the summer evenings usually are. I returned home at 10 P.M. after driving down by the water. I suppose with a large amount of visitors traveling through and into the area, a large contingent are enjoying the shore after a very rainy May and June. I will do a little routine internet work tonight, and possibly read the Win98 manual and look at the two Win98 books I have. Well enjoy yourselves. CIO

Note: <888>7/1/98 Wednesday 7:20 P.M. EDT: Also at CompUSA they have a $30 IDE CMOS card that fixes the Year 2000 problem on older PCs, if you're interested. CIO

Note: <888>7/1/98 Wednesday 7:10 P.M. EDT: I was up at 10 A.M. this morning. I had GU raisin bran, toast, orange grapefruit juice, vitamins and coffee for breakfast. I went out about 11 A.M.. I stopped by the bank and withdrew funds. I said hello to a family friend from backcountry. I drove up to Norwalk and stopped off at Town Fair Tire. I purchased 4 General Tire Brigadier 402 185/75R14 All weather tires for $45 each, plus $10 for valves, $31.80 for computer balancing, four wheel alignment $19, Road Hazard Lifetime replacement $12, Tire Casing Disposal Service $4, plus $15.41 sales tax for a total of $272.21. While I was waiting for installation I walked over to CompUSA and toured the store until 3 P.M.. I will give a quick run down of some interesting items that caught my eye. IBM 8.5 gig hard drive $295 with mail in rebate of $95 for $200 total. I noticed they were putting out Compaq color inkjet printers that don't take up much space. I saw they had DVD drives on sale for about $350. One can get two ethernet cards for $10 apiece and a ethernet 17 foot cable for $16, thus one could network two computers together if you knew how to do it. I guess it is somewhat complicated according to the Scottish salesman. He did not know if they were going to have the Highland games in Norwalk or not, they might be somewhere in the state this weekend. They have the Encyclopedia Britannica cdrom set with IBM via voice for $99, so one can listen to the Encyclopedia. They have a $30 IBM joy stick with $20 mail in rebate for $10 total. They have the WordPerfect 7.0 for Windows 3.1 for $30 with $30 mail in rebate for $0. I chatted with a number of customers and staff on general topics, and they seemed quite knowledgeable. I walked back to the tire store at 3 P.M. without making any purchases. I retrieved my car. I checked the Volvo hubcaps to make they were secure. I put hub clips from the spare which is also a General on the fourth right rear tire which is where I had the blowout and mounted the hub cap. I then drove down the post road to Greenwich instead of the turnpike to make sure the hubcaps were secure. They seem to be on securely. The car is running just great with the new tires. I then went by Oil Star Oil Change Center and got an oil change with FRAM oil filter and Castrol GTX 10W40 oil plus other general check up items for $37.02. I then drove down Greenwich Avenue and stopped by CVS and bought 5 cans of mixed nuts for $1.99 each with tax altogether $10.55. I noticed a mother in the store with two huge baby girls in a twin carriage with very full faces. They are going to grow up to be big women. I then drove down to the senior center and chatted with an employee there. I next walked to the bottom of the Avenue and back up. I returned home at 5 P.M. and chatted with two people. I made dinner of ham sandwich, ramen noodles, coke, three kosher dill pickles, and coffee. I filed this report. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was a good day on Wall Street. I will go out shortly to enjoy the great weather we've been having. It is ideal sailing weather. CIO

Note:<888>7/1/98 Wednesday 3:50 A.M. EDT: The party is over, it is time to call it a day. Enjoy counting your sheep. I expect today to be pretty quiet, now the visitors have settled into their place. CIO

Note:<888>7/1/98 Wednesday 3:15 A.M. EDT: <http://mrscott.com/bushsave.exe> , Old George Bush DOS screen saver for your amusement. CIO

Note:<888>7/1/98 Wednesday 3:10 A.M. EDT: PC Week Radio, Listening to Bill Gates Windows 98 Launch at Fort Mason last Thursday . CIO

Note:<888>7/1/98 Wednesday 1:35 A.M. EDT: BBC News | UK | Althorp braced for invasion Princess Diana Memorial Althorp House today, opening life on the internet today. CIO

Note:<888>7/1/98 Wednesday 1:10 A.M. EDT: I went out at 10:30 P.M. and walked around downtown until just now. There was a medical emergency at Thataway cafe while I was walking around. I did not see many people out on the damp night, but the rain had cleared up. There were Tornado warnings in Eastern Connecticut earlier this evening. There is some sort of Trawler parked at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. I noticed they were shampooing the carpet at the entrance this evening. They have a light colored carpet at the entry way and probably need to clean it more often. I suggested once again that they should put carpet on all the hard surfaces, walls, ceilings, doors, shelf sides in the Greenwich Library to reduce sound and improve the acoustics. I noticed a Crescent Moon this evening with a star I believe. A famous symbol in the Eastern Hemisphere. They still have all those keyboards down by the train station. Most of the Greenwich Police fleet seems to be replaced with the dark blue cars. I saw our former first selectman in the bank today. He looks younger now that he is out of that tough job. I hope he is enjoying his golf game. I don't think the Greenwich Harbor Inn is booked up since there are only about thirty cars in the parking lot. I guess it is busier on weekends, and the change of the month when monthly people head out on vacation. I had a peanut butter sandwich and cheese cake and orange soda for a snack just now. I am going to quit taking the Welbutrin red pills since I have not managed to quit smoking, and maybe sometime soon try the patches again. I believe CVS has peanuts on sale this week. Tony's pizzas are on sale at the Grand Union for $2.50, but they weren't stocked this afternoon. I find the way I have the ergonomic keyboard setup on books on the computer drawer tray much easier to use. I have to go up to County Tires on Route 1 in West Norwalk today for a new set of tires. I hope I can get them and mount and balance them for less than $250 to $200. I have over 45,000 miles on the present set. County is competitively priced and they offer one nice service with tire purchase of lifetime tire rotation which helps with the life of the tires. Sears has a Fourth of July tire sale on now, but they don't offer free tire rotation. However, if I were going to be traveling which I won't be in a 21 year old car, Sears would be a better place to buy them, since they can offer nation wide service and warranty. I might look at the 45,000 mile Michelins if that is within my price range. A friend bought Generals at County. I will need to get "All Season" radials. I will go to bed shortly, and go up there when I wake up tomorrow. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 10:20 P.M. EDT: American Hospital Directory - Data, Statistics, & Information about Hospitals . Information on Hospital Stats. I am listening to the dudes at www.ttalk.com . I am in the process of cleaning up and getting ready to go out and maybe do some minor grocery shopping. CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 10:00 P.M. EDT: IBM Opens Its Research Labs to Surprising Results CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 9:50 P.M. EDT: Technology News from Wired News Newhoo Directory Service 1,200 editors . CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 9:35 P.M. EDT: Computing Tips Absolutely Free CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 9:30 P.M. EDT: I saw the black and white Tuxedo cat with four white paws that hangs around the senior center the other morning while out walking. It looks hungry. CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 9:25 P.M. EDT: Win another computer games.net .CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 9:20 P.M. EDT: What's doing in Germany during World Cup Record attendance of more than a million at Berlin's Love Parade . CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 9:00 P.M. EDT: Murder-Kidnapping Questions CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 8:50 P.M. EDT: Cosmetics Counter CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 8:50 P.M. EDT: Expedia Service Center CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 8:45 P.M. EDT: SuperClubs - The Caribbean's Only SUPER-INCLUSIVE Resorts CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 8:40 P.M. EDT: Best condos, villas and rentals by VacationSpot CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 7:45 P.M. EDT: I took a long nap until about fifteen minutes ago. I updated Scott's Index mrsconfig.com/scopor01.htm . It was up quite a bit today. It should be busy downtown this evening with Bastille Day and the market up. Tuesday nights are generally less busy, but with vacationers and with the market up, it will probably be busy on the Avenue this evening. I am just about ready to eat a Tombstone pizza. CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 1:20 P.M. EDT: I called up the GEICO www.geico.com Policy Change number at 1-800-841-3000 and changed my auto insurance policy from $300,000, $300,000, $100,000 to $1,000,000; $1,000,000; $100,000; $25,000. The two $1,000,000 are for personal bodily injury in an auto event, the $100,000 is property liability, and the $25,000 is medical coverage as a pedestrian outside the automobile. The additional coverage is about $200 more a year for a total policy of about $900 a year. I had lunch of Ramen noodles, peanut butter sandwich, and coffee. Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 12:00 P.M. EDT: Microsoft HomeAdvisor - Find Homes and Loans . CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 11:50 A.M. EDT: I downloaded the Real Networks, The Home of RealAudio, Real Video and Real Flash Real System G2 beta. It seems to work fine and kept all my settings from the preview release. I will listen to it while I have lunch. I noticed the "Add" features in the bookmarks now works. CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 11:30 A.M. EDT: I updated Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 and 5.0

beta installation notes mrscott.com/note01.htm . CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 10:20 A.M. EDT: I added the American Red Cross link to my homepage, since there is a national alert that here in the United States we only have a one day's blood supply. We usually like to have 2 weeks to a month's blood supply in reserve. I also added a link to the American Red Cross, Greenwich Chapter in case you're in the area and would like to donate a pint. I updated my Greenwich, Connecticut Real Estate page mrscott.com/gwreal.htm in case you or anyone you know might be able to afford real estate in the area. Coming from one of the original British families settling in the Colonies over 350 years ago, I treat my "Grace and Favor" apartment in Council housing as a pleasant hideaway from the maddening crowd of traffic in the center of town, but we have gotten use to it after all these years. Well I think I should clean up and get ready to face the heat of the day. As Nowell Coward use to say, "Only Mad Dogs and Englishmen Go Out in the Noon Day Sun." plus those of us who occasionally like a little sunshine and like doing a little observation duty. CIO

Note:<888>7/14/98 Tuesday 8:35 A.M. EDT: I was up at 6:30 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of Quaker Oats oatmeal, Arnold Healthnut bread, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice, and coffee. I listened to www.ttalk.com . Apparently the Midwestern correspondent of the show is traveling around the east coast possibly trying to explore what is happening. As usual with a large number of our citizens away on vacation out west in the country, we are receiving a large number of visitors from the Midwest as they head towards east coast ports of call. I dare say once the White House and government take off on their various vacations we will see and increase of tourism during the rest of July and August. You have to remember a lot of the local citizens on the east coast work profitable resort and tourist operations during the warmer months, so they can visit warmer ports of call during the colder months. Remember the grass is always greener in the tourist business. Ultimately the individual that has the largest volume of traffic will be the most profitable tour operator providing that individual can afford the cost of the overhead. The long term residents of this area seem to know how to manage and operate profitable operations based on many years of family involvement. I dare say as the individuals who travel through the area realize that as the area changes every hour of the day throughout the year with the increasing and decreasing volume of traffic, the various local chambers of commerce of this local area are relatively profitable based on many years of continual involvement. Ultimately your friendly local banker seems to ultimately know the long term outlook, but as most local businesses know the established business community in the area knows who is involved and active for the long term. Well, I guess I will bag off listening to the BBC trying to sell Great Britain, so I can see what local individuals are trying to rescue the stranded and visiting travelers in the area. Since I have worldwide communications and local knowledge in this area, the recent message in this area is that the American Red Cross is trying to raise blood since the local blood banks only have a one day supply. I would imagine this is quite an important message for anyone whom knows anything about medicine. Well enjoy your day, and if you see a Red Cross Blood Mobile consider giving blood in your free time. CIO

Note:<888>7/13/98 Monday 10:50 P.M. EDT: I had Ramen noodles and a peanut butter sandwich in the morning. I had a friend come down at 9:30 A.M.. We dropped by a full load of items at the Hospital Thrift Shop that he brought down since he is moving. I salvaged my old brown leather $500 flight jacket size 38 from Brooks Brothers that I had given him, in case I ever lose weight. I bought it in 1983, for it is about 15 years old, and far as I know has never been rained on. I also salvaged some classic Beatles, Stones, and Elvis records. We went for a drive afterwards up King Street. We drove out to Westchester Airport. They have a nice gray black Falconair ? type four engine private jet which would be long range, and hold about 20 people. I like the four engine configuration. Painted on it they had a big Red "N" like Nelson on the tailfin. It was parked next to the Exxon oil tankers. I guess they keep it ready for service at a moments notice. I surveyed the new airport and it looks quite great, sort of like Frank Lloyd Wright. After about a half hour we drove down King Street. On the east side of the road south of the Convent of the Sacred Heart they look like they have sold property and have construction going on. Just north of the Royal Office Park, north of Anderson Hill Road for about a half of mile they have cleared a large track of land perhaps several hundred acres or more with heavy earth moving equipment that sits above the road grade at about a twenty foot level. It is south of the Airport, so I don't know if they are expanding the airport. However if they build a office park or track housing, there it would possibly interfere with airport expansion, particularly in a military emergency situation. I have not read any articles in the Greenwich Times about what is going on there, but it seems to be a massive project going on at the Western Greenwich Border. I also noticed that Rye Brook has a new police and town hall station which I had not noticed before just south of the Merritt Parkway on King Street. I would say just from the size of the property, that what ever development is going on King Street south of the airport would bring in at least another 2,000 cars on the road. I drove down Weaver Street on the way back and it is now posted at 25 miles per hour instead of the higher 35 to 40 it was years ago. I suppose it has made it more livable for the residents. I think it has been that way for a couple of years. I returned home and with my friend and surfed the internet looking for available real estate listings for him. He called up about a few. I made a family call. At about 2:30 P.M., we drove downtown, and I got a haircut at Subway barber from Tony chatting about my Italy adventures 25 years ago for $13 plus $2 tip. I generally don't make appointments, but wait until they are free since I am frequently downtown. We picked up a back copy of the Friday Greenwich Times from the Greenwich Times building with the weekly real estate section in it. My friend read it while I had my hair cut. The headlines were that the Beach Access Lawsuit was ruled on in favor of the Town, but the plaintiff plans to appeal. He checked on a condo on Steamboat Road in a building overlooking the water. I don't know if the condo overlooks the harbor or not. The property was offered by www.country-living.com real estate. It is one of my favorite apartment buildings downtown. A brick 1960s four story building overlooking the harbor with small marina and a view of Grass Island and the new Sewage Treatment plant. On the harbor it has a western exposure. The condo for sale is a one bedroom unit with 850 square feet of floor space plus corner balcony. I don't know what floor or exposure. It is a reasonably priced for Greenwich waterfront of $325,000 plus $739 a month common charge. That is about as cheap as you're going to get on the harbor. The building is set back from the road about a hundred feet with pleasant tasteful landscaping with natural gas outdoor lighting. It is about a 200 yards walk to the Greenwich Train station, if one needed to use the commuter trains to New York City 40 minutes away. Having lived on Steamboat Road in a rental for five years, I know it is a pleasant neighborhood downtown. The General Reinsurance building is next door with a number of corporate offices in it, since General Reinsurance moved to Stamford. The Greenwich Harbor Inn is just up the road and of course Maneros is across the street from the Greenwich Harbor Inn. The brick building condo unit, I believe has indoor parking. At that price it might have a view of the harbor. It is newly listed by Barbara Suthergreen of www.country-living.com Country

Living, 96 Lewis Street, Greenwich, Connecticut 203-869-8100. For lock the door and go away ease of living you could not do better. The Greenwich Harbor Inn also has airport limousine service to the major New York airports. I drove around the area for the millionth time. I then made my usual 4 P.M. biweekly Monday appointment. I stopped by Zyn and chatted with a local British advertiser about the excellent quality of writing in the British press and told him they tell a good story. I returned home with my guest about 5 P.M.. I defrosted and cooked two shell steaks in the broiler, corn on the cob, and Birdseye cream noodles. We ate and had coffee. I went out at 7 P.M. after my guest left. I stopped by the Greenwich library and chatted with one of our senior patrons whom I had not seen in several weeks who was waiting for his ride. He looked fit as a fiddle, but thought the library was too cold. He told me he watched the World Cup in Spanish, since he understands Spanish. He was spending quite a bit of time admiring the new library construction, and he is probably our most informed patron and long time user. I was happy to see him. He told me he is no longer driving, but being driven, which is probably just as well in all the traffic we now have. I went inside and read the Greenwich Times and two weekly computer magazines. The library was not too busy. I next went downtown and walked around the lower Greenwich Avenue area. There were lots of families out for dinners, movies, coffee as is usual this time of year. I said hello to some of my former Steamboat Road neighbors and told them about the Condo available. I guess there are quite a few waterfront rats that go downtown more often in the warmer weather. I told them about the Yacht last week from their native country. I returned back up the Avenue. I chatted with the night custodian at the Senior center. I next walked back down around the avenue and back up to the middle. I returned home at 10:00 P.M. and filed this report. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I don't expect much market activity for a while since lots of people are on vacation. Well have a good night, after I post this, I will probably try to get a good night's sleep since I have been mostly awake since yesterday afternoon at 4 P.M. about 31 hours mostly awake. CIO

Note:<888>7/13/98 Monday 7:30 A.M. EDT: I added the LeMonde www.lemonde.fr headline to my homepage mrscott.com . Well I have to make a call to see when a friend is coming down. CIO

Note:<888>7/13/98 Monday 6:00 A.M. EDT: For the latest on the French party Le Monde: Bienvenue , sacre blue ! CIO

Note:<888>7/13/98 Monday 5:55 A.M. EDT: I went for a morning walk the full length of Greenwich Avenue. They're working on straightening the parking meters that have been knocked off kilter by plowed snow over the years. I only saw several others walkers who are always out there in the early morning. The parking meter collection person was collecting the coins from the meters as usual. I noticed that the Whitney shop has quite a nice collection of handy crafts including hand carved items including decoys. Starbucks was not open yet. I browsed the new cigar shop just west of Greenwich Avenue on West Putnam Avenue. They look to have the largest stock of cigars in town. They are open from 10 A.M. to 6 P.M.. I noticed the Avenue seemed pretty clean, so our summer guests are not littering and are very well behaved. Lots of people do put cigarette butts out on the sidewalks on Greenwich Avenue. I recommend that people throw them in the streets since the street cleaner comes by several times a week, and it would make for a cleaner avenue. There were two fishermen on the bottom of Steamboat Road, not regulars. I noticed one family friend's house on the harbor was well lit up. It looks to be a nice day with pleasant weather today. We have a large inventory of foreign cars on West Putnam Avenue, if you are in the mood for buying a foreign car or a Cadillac or Oldsmobile. As far as I can tell all is quiet on the Greenwich front. Time for some minor network. CIO

Note:<888>7/13/98 Monday 3:50 A.M. EDT: This morning I was up after a four hour nap. I reinstalled Iphone 5.0 which I do every two weeks, so I don't have to buy it. To reinstall, when uninstalling click "no to all" when it comes up about file deletion. Then reboot and reinstall. I noticed this time again, it did not come up in full duplex, but it works in full duplex and seems to eventually get highlighted. I watched a program this morning on the History Channel about Scottish History which was very informative. However, this Scott clan was already over in America dealing with the Indians when most of that history was made. I guess we were always clever at Sea, so we came here rather early. Unfortunately although I am clever around the ocean, I am no good on the ocean. Well one figures all of France has a hangover today and will continue partying for the next two days through Bastille Day. Thus the day after Bastille Day would be a good day to invade France when the whole country is hung over. I have a friend coming down to make a donation to the Hospital Thrift Shop this morning. Also I read that the Red Cross is in dire need of blood, so if you have a pint to spare, give blood to the American Red Cross. Back to normal routine. Remember to take your Sun Glasses when you go out in the early morning. CIO

Note:<888>7/12/98 Sunday 10:30 P.M. EDT: I have cleaned the apartment and watered the plants. I am making mrscott.com/icetea.htm . For Europhiles you might like this link M2-TelevisionMusic . I will do the laundry later in the week. CIO

Note:<888>7/12/98 Sunday 5:15 P.M. EDT: Congratulations France, France 3, Brazil 0. Fait La Bontemps Roule ! CIO

Note:<888>7/12/98 Sunday 6:10 A.M. EDT: I made a special page of the Greenwich, Connecticut Armchair Travelers page, mrscott.com/armchair1.htm .

List of World Cup Advertisers for Sunday July 12, 1998.

Note:<888>7/12/98 Sunday 6:00 A.M. EDT: Commentary on the World Cup. I am sitting in my green, yellow, and blue polo shirt from the Kaluakoi Resort in Hawaii which is similar to Brazilian colors, but being one fourth French although I am blond which the French don't like, I also have blue white and red vertical stripe flag, which I think is the French national flag. It is so long about six years since I have been in France, I am not sure what it is like there anymore. I suppose I could turn on the World Cup and try and watch it tomorrow while I do my house cleaning, but I am not sure when it is on. I think they're about six hours ahead of us there, so assuming it started about 7 P.M. French time or 1 P.M. our time, I could try watching it whenever I wake up, if it is time. I saw a few Brazilians getting their flags ready this evening, and there were Brazilians at Starbucks. Realistically rich French people could hop on the Air France Concorde and probably make it over there in time, but they would probably have to know somebody to get them inside the World Cup arena. I suppose if a number of foreign dignitaries show up, they would have to spend a few more Francs on security, but I doubt if any of the enthusiastic soccer fans would even notice a foreign dignitary, since they would be focused on the world famous footballers. I understand over 2 billion people will be watching the world cup finals, so maybe some minor companies like Shell, Exxon, Elf, BP, General Electric, Phillips, Siemens, Mercedes Benz, GM, Ford, IBM, Microsoft, McDonalds, Florida Orange Juice Growers, South American Coffee Growers, Budweiser, Waste Management, Compaq, Harsco,

Coca Cola, Pepsi, Schweppes, Wilson Sports, Spalding, Scott's Lawn Food, Lever Brothers, Proctor and Gamble, Litton Industries, United Technologies, Pfizer, Mobil, Erickson, Volvo, AT&T, Berkshire Hathaway, American Home Products, Nestle, Honeywell Bull, Rhone Politec, Monsanto, Union Carbide, Time Warner, World Com, MCI, Chase, Banque de Paris, Credit Lyon, French Wine Growers Association, French Needlepoint Association, Swiss Credit, Credit Suisse, United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Raytheon, American Dairy Association, Citibank, Rolls Royce BMW, Volkswagen, Aston Martin Limited, Land Rover, Moet et Chardon, Cunard, Aramco, Lever Brothers, Tungsram, Scotch Whisky Distillers Association, Caribbean Rum Producers, British Gin Distillers, Schinley Liquors, Seagram's, Pennon, French Grape Producers Association, French Farmers Federation, Phillip Morris, R.J. Reynolds, American Express, VISA, Caribbean Cigar producers, Boeing, European Airbus, Lockheed Martin Marietta, Pennzoil, Brown Brothers Harriman, Sony, Futjitsu, Toshiba, Hyundai, Electrolux, Nord Hydro, Stolt Nielsen, Jack Daniels Distillers, Old Hickory, Jim Beam, Reebok, Nike, Addidas, GAP, Lee, Levis, Ralph Loren, Ives St. Loren, Pierre Cardin, Channel, Ritz Hotel, Pierre Hotel, Louvre, Versailles, Chateau Fontainebleau, French Cheese Producer, French Mushroom Producers, Campbell's Soup, Beef Ranchers of the Western Hemisphere, Poultry Producers of the Western Hemisphere, Sheep Ranchers of the Western Hemisphere, Toyota, Mazda, Nissan, American Grain Producers, American Corn Producers, Apple Growers Association, Ski Federation, PGA, Heinz, Kellogg's, Post, Hershey, Nestlé, Quaker Oats, American Brick Producers, American Stone Masons, United States Tobacco, Brown and Williamson, Mars, Sears, Wal-Mart's, Doubleday, Cablevision, Texaco, Sinclair, Getty, Arco, Citco, Quaker State, Zapata, United Airlines, Air France, British Air, SAS, Virgin, U.S. Air, Pan Am, Royal Saudi Airlines, Air Morocco, Varig, Hawaiian Pineapple Producers, Northwest, KLM, Swiss Air, SAS, French Air, TGV, Union Pacific, DeBeers, Beyer, Bristol Meyes Squibb, Johnson and Johnson, Seagram's, Ely Lily, Hoffman La Roche, Holiday Inns, Marriott, Ramada, Hilton, Renaissance, Kimberly Clark, American Gold Producers, American Gemologists, Thomson, Colgate Palmolive, Nantucket Nectars, Disney, Texas Instruments, Motorola, Bell Atlantic, Bell South, Bell Pacific, Lucent, Northern Telecom, Canadian Pacific, Ameritech, Southwestern Airlines, Continental, Kiwi, Lufthansa, Qantas, Japan Air, China Air, Air New Zealand, Cathway Pacific, Fosters, Lea and Perrins, Tabasco, French Dry Cleaners Association, Whitman's Sampers, HP, A&P, Grand Union, Kmart, Burger King, Dairy Queen, Goodyear, General, Bridgestone, Michelin, Cooper, Carrier, Halliburton, Williams Companies, Dupont, American Gas Association, American Utilities, TVA, Las Vegas, TWA, Hughes Electronics, Bushs Baked Beans, American Hemp Producers, American Tobacco Association, American Bakery Association, American Produce Growers, American Red Cross, International Red Cross, Hyatt Regency, Sheraton, Hertz, Avis, Budget, Peugeot, Renault, French Bread Producers, American Film Institute, Monte Carlo, Muried Symphony Orchestras, General Electric U.K., General Motors, Aloha, Reynolds Aluminum, International Paper, Mead Paper, Georgia Pacific, Great Northern Carbide, NEC, Washington Post, New York Times, Times Mirror, Chicago Tribune, Gannett, Coors, Heineken, Tuboug, Molson, Carling, Pabst, Radio shack, Hires, United States Trust, Bank of New York, J.P. Morgan, Morgan Stanley, Stanley Tools, Salomon Brothers, Lehman Brothers, American Hospital Association, General Reinsurance, Lloyds of London, Union Bank of Switzerland, Howard Johnson's, Polaroid, Kodak, Fuji, Westinghouse, Cap Cities, MCA, Fox, Continental Can, American Can, Sealtest, Borden, Bryers, Ben and Jerry's, Baskin and Robbins, Morton Salt, Kennebunkport Tourist Association, Bass Shoes, Rockport,

Timberland, Lands End, Cumberland Farms, Graceland, State Street Trust, First Bank of Boston, Bessemer Trust, USX, American Coal Producers, American Copper Producers, American Nitrate Producers, American Fishing Producers, American Horse Breeders, Riverboat Gamblers Association, Parker Brothers, Life Savers, Staples, CompUSA, Gulf, Woolworth's, Northwest Bell, Canadian Bell, Carnival Cruises, Ship Builder Association of America, Timex, Rolex, Paget, Bermuda Tourist Association, Bahamas Tourist Association, Holland America. Merrill Lynch, Harris Trust, Northern Trust, Barnett Banks, Florida East Coast Industries, First National Bank of Florida, HFC, Fortune Brands, American Brass Producers, American Cement Producers, Navistar, Domino Sugar, Amstar, Hallmark, Baccarat, Saks Fifth Avenue, Macys, Gimbles, Bloomingdale's, Corning Glass, Bausch and Lomb, Kendiscott Copper, American Barracks, Neumont Mining, Bank of Nova Scotia, Bank of Montreal, Royal Canadian Bank, Greenshield Bank, Shawmut Bank, Union Trust, Peoples Bank, Duke Power, American Cotton Association, American Textile Association, Telephone de Mexico, Banco de Brazil, Fuji Bank, Bank of Tokyo, Etna, State Farm Insurance, ITT, Cowles Publishing, Bank of America, Wells Fargo, Transamerica, Georgia Pacific, WestPoint Pepperell, Stevens, Milliken Textiles, Conrail, Amtrak, Bankers Trust, Walgreen's, Safeway, Albertson's, Piggly Wiggly, IGA, Win Dixie, Ellis National Bank, South Pacific Railroad, Norfolk Southern, Illinois Central Industries, Owens, Warner Lambert, Burlington Industries, Radio City Music Hall, Rockefeller Center, Metropolitan Museum of Art, J. Paul Getty Museum, Norton Simon Museum, Mystic Sea Aquarium, Boston Aquarium, Monterey Aquarium, Sea World, Knott's Berry Farm, Roy Rogers Museum, French Quarter New Orleans, Williamsburg, Virginia Beach, Myrtle Beach, Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard, Cape Cod, San Diego Zoo, Columbus Zoo, Philadelphia Zoo, Bronx Zoo, Stone Mountain, Niagara Falls, Yellow Stone, Yosemite, Carlsbad Caverns, Black Hills National Monument, Mackinaw Island, Mt. Desert Island, Bay of Fundy, Mt. McKinley, Rock City, South of the Boarder, Coleman Camping, Rubbermaid, Winnebago, Wrigley's, Oscar Meyer, American Cheese Producers, Hollywood Boulevard, Good Year Blimp, Fuji Blimp, Hilfinger Blimp, Vail, Aspen, Jackson Hole, Telluride, Crested Butte, Steamboat Springs, Smugglers Notch, Stowe, Stratton, Sugar Bush, Mohawk, Canon, Sun Valley, Lake Louise, Bamphe, Calgary Stampede, St. Lawrence Seaway, Great Lakes, Grand Canyon, Death Valley, Pueblos, Cherokee Reservation, Myriad Casinos, Sunoco, Schrafts, L.L. Bean, Freeport, Maine, Kittery, Maine, discount shopping, Fort Kent, Maine, Key West, Florida, Daytona 500, Indianapolis 500, Kentucky Derby, Preakness, Belmont, Queens Cup, Toronto Needle, Belle Aire, California; Grosse Point Farms, Michigan; Lake Forest, Illinois; Shaker Heights, Ohio, Nantucket Island, Massachusetts, Beverly Farms, Massachusetts, Millbrook, New York; Sands Point, Long Island; Oyster Bay, Long Island, South Hampton, Long Islands, Fifth and Park Avenues Manhattan, Greenwich Village, Back Bay Boston, Harvard Yard, Beinike Library, Wright Brothers Museum, Newberry Library, Wordworth Library, Huntington Library, Route 66, Sheridan Road, 22 mile drive Monterrey Peninsula, Big Sur, San Simeon, Hotel Coronado, Harriman State Park, U.S. Military Academy at West Point, U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, U.S. Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, U.S. Coast Guard Academy at New London, FBI Training Academy at Quantico, Secret Service Training Academy at Brunswick, Georgia. Camp Pendleton, Paris Island, Quantico, San Diego Navy Base, San Francisco Harbor, San Francisco Bay Bridge, George Washington Bridge, Brooklyn Bridge, Chesapeake Bay Tunnel, Dupont Winterthur Museum, Independence Hall, Liberty Bell, Lincoln Memorial, Washington D.C., National Gallery, Smithsonian, National Air and Space Museum, Jefferson Monument,

Roosevelt Memorial, Viet Nam Veterans Memorial, Iwo Jima Statue, Grand Canyon, Spruce Goose, Pearl Harbor, Mt. St. Helen, Kilauea, Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, NASA, Los Alamos Laboratory, Oak Ridge Laboratory, New York City Police Academy, Fort Sumter, Gettysburg, Vicksburg, Alligator Alley, TamiAmi Trail, Everglades, Louisiana Bayou, Middleton Plantation, Hilton Head, Bellengrade Gardens, Fairchild Gardens, Bronx Zoo, New York Botanical Gardens, St. Louis Arch, Truck Stops of America, Mel Fisher's Spanish Gold in Key West, Colorado River, Mississippi River, Missouri River, Hudson River, Tennessee River, Ohio River, Washington River, Cedar Key, Thomas Edison Museum, Valley Forge, Hyde Park, Monticello, University of Virginia, William and Mary, Colt Museum, Aldridge Museum, Clark Museum, Eisenhower Museum, Fort Knox, Alcatraz, California Auto Junkyards, Arizona Aviation Salvage Yards, Newport News, Newport, Rhode, Island, Key Largo, Jeckle Island, Mercer Island, Eastman Home, Chrysler Home, Biltmore House and Gardens, Holland, Michigan, Boys Town, Wisconsin and Minnesota Cows, Minnesota Oar Pits, Borax Mountain, Illinois Corn, Great Plains Wheat, Midwest Soybeans, Archer Daniels Midland, Natchez, Vulcan, Margaret Mitchell Home, Martin Luther King Home, National Cathedral, St. Johns Manhattan, St. Patrick's Manhattan, Crystal Cathedral Garden Grove, California, St. Paul's San Francisco, St. Anne's Kennebunkport, Oral Roberts Campus Tulsa, Bob Jones University Greenville, South Carolina, Traveler Rest, South Carolina, Nag Heads, St. Michael's, Maryland, Johnson Space Center, Marshall Space Center, Kennedy Space Center, United Airline Flight Maintenance Center San Francisco Airport, Utah Salt Flats, Great Salt Lake, Great Lakes, Mt. Rainier, Jupiter Island, Palm Beach, Fishers Island, Florida, Fishers Island, New York from New London, Connecticut, Gardeners Island, Ellis Island, Statue of Liberty, Concorde, Massachusetts, Lexington, Massachusetts, Fogg Museum, Gardiner Museum, Mystic Seaport, Sturbridge Village, Massachusetts, Smithtown, Long Island, Notre Dame University, University of Illinois home of NCSA, Alabama Capitol of the Confederacy, Lee Home Virginia, Arlington Cemetery, Beaufort, South Carolina, Little Compton, Rhode, Island, Watch Hill, Rhode, Island, Montauk, New York, Nob Hill, Pensacola Navy Base, Alamo, Chief Crazy Horse Monument, Amish Country, Hershey Chocolate Factory, Kellogg's and Post Cereal Factories, Gerber Baby Food Factory, Chesapeake Bay Tunnel, Verasano Narrows Bridge, Stapleton Airport, Breakers Hotel, Six Flags over Georgia, Great Adventure, Bush Gardens, Disney World, Disneyland, myriad Starbucks, Shinkateek Island, Muscle Shoals, Alabama; Furniture Museum Russell, Kansas and coffee shop, Appalaitian Trail, 64.40 or fight, Ft. Taylor where Geronomo was held prisoner, Pennisacola, Florida beware of snakes, Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, Branson, Missouri; Saturn Assembly plant, Springhill, Tennessee; Jefferson Davis Home, Lincoln Home, Adams Home, Monroe Home, Walkers Point, Kennebunkport, Maine; Pike Peak, Carlsberg Caverns, Wright Patterson Air force Base Air Museum, U.S.S. Intrepid Museum, Manhattan; Staten Island Ferry, Playland, Ocean City, Maryland; Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, New York, Garfield House, Tuskegee Institute, Wall Street and Trinity Church, Mall of America, Truman Homestead, Wilson Homestead, Grant's Tomb, Erie Canal, Dartmouth College, Peak Island, Plymouth Rock, New Amsterdam (Manhattan), Jamestown, Raleigh, Frick Museum, Cooper Hewitt Museum, Brooklyn Museum, Museum of the City of New York, Waldorf Astoria, Trump Tower, Steamboat Road, Mayo Clinic, Sloan Kettering, New York Hospital, Roosevelt Hospital, Albert Einstein, Rockefeller University, Forest Lawn, Pontannico Hills, Tappan Zee Bridge, Palisades, Westchester, Greenwich Hospital, Greenwich Avenue, Greenwich Police Station, Greenwich Train Station, Greenwich Library, Greenwich Beaches, Island Beach Ferry, Tod's Point, Port

Chester Beer Distributor, Greenwich Post Office, Greenwich Town Hall, Greenwich Cemetery, Conyers Farm Polo, Bedford Village, John Jay Homestead, Grant Homestead, Putnam Cottage, Second Congregational Church, Bush Holley House, Bruce Museum, Greenwich Senior Center, Greenwich Orthopedic Surgeon, Greenwich Automobile Dealers, fill up at the Exxon station stop by the Greenwich Library and read about it all with all the other arm chair travelers.

Western Hemisphere is Quarantined. World Health Officer.

List of World Cup Advertisers for Sunday July 12, 1998.

Note: <888>7/12/98 Sunday 1:10 A.M. EDT: By the way I bought two loaves of Arnold Healthnut Bread at Arnold Bread Store today for $2.33. There was a tall African leaving the store that looked like Michael Jordan about 6' 6". I am not sure what size he is, but I read on the internet that he is opening a steak house in Grand Central Station with Chicago 20th Century Limited motif, so when all the cattle barons come to town from around the world, they can have a decent steak. I hear tell that the best steak in the world is Canadian grain fed beef. Apparently when one feeds the cattle with grain unlike corn in the United States you get a better tasting piece of beef. However, any quality butcher would have to tell you that the beef would have to be properly hung and aged at the proper temperature, and like Kobe beef from Omaha sometimes they feed the beef with a mash mixture of grain and beer and other items that create the perfect marbling of the beef. The best eating cattle I know of are Scottish Angus cattle. Don't eat the breeding stock though. Then you have to cook the beef over the proper real barbeque type grill with some type of hardwood charcoal like hickory or mesquite or even oak charcoal. It is really a complicated process coming up with a good steak in a restaurant. I think the Canadians might have it down to a science after years of experimenting on the range. An old gal I have met in Manhattan that has lived in Nowell Coward's apartment building off 1st avenue between 54th and 55th near where the cross country auto rally use to begin claimed to have lived in Manhattan since the early 1930s, and she claimed her Scottish family clan which has the same name of the world's most famous hamburger franchise had the original western Canadian land grant, so I imagine her reserves of beef are still amply stocked. She use to enjoy having a night cap with the New York Times Sports reporters across the street from the Mayfair restaurant in a little pub there. I believe her name was Ema McDonald and she looks enough like the Queen Mum to be her twin. Well here is the link to Mike Jordan's steak house story 98/28/Mon/Michael Jordan Steak House /Bar: newyork.sidewalk. Of course if you're ever in Chicago and daign to stop by the Pump room at the Ambassador East they have 7 foot tall 600 pound plus black Nubians who will wait on you in a very festive atmosphere, but unless you have a few gold coins to spend, it won't be cheap. In other events after my dinner guest left from the spaghetti dinner, he was very tired. I had a cup of coffee after dinner and went downtown. It was a full house packed crowd with wall to wall parked cars. I walked the lower end of Greenwich Avenue twice and the entire length of the Avenue. I chatted with a family while walking who were on a sailboat here, about the marina that John Prince, Olympic Ocean Class Sailor, Lake Forest College circa 1955 runs on St. Johns in the Virgin Islands near Canelle Bay Plantation and the State Park Camp ground on the beach that is open to the general public if you can get a reservation. The state park is delightful. I once visited it in October during a calm hurricane season. On the way back I was driving back according to my speedometer at 30 miles an hour and two tall twin Greenwich Policemen that looked like Raquel Welch's twin boys, stopped me at the Aston Martin dealership and interviewed me. I told them about my experience driving the three similar types of Volvo I am driving over the years. The first was around 1973 a 1968 baby blue 4 door Volvo purchased at Peabody's for $2,500 with about 49,000 miles on it. I smashed up the right side in a blizzard driving from the Darien turnpike gas station when the oil shortage was in full swing and they were the only place with gasoline. I was only driving 25 miles an hour in six inches of snow, but the automatic transmission which is not good in snow shifted and sent the Volvo into a spin into the guard rail causing $750 damage which I never fixed. I sold it to a African who tutored retarded kids in White Plains for $1,250 after only owning it about six months and not putting very much mileage on it during the oil shortage of that period. Around 1980 I bought a burgundy Volvo made in Belgium from John Delia's Subaru dealership after driving the old 1972 Subaru for about 100,000 miles for a couple of years. The burgundy Volvo was a two door model with about 75,000 miles on it which I drove up to Cape Cod, with a Reagan Bush bumper sticker on it and then up to Montreal, Canada and over to Toronto for the Victoria jubilee with a friend and then down to Key West back up Florida and across Route 10 to California. Eventually when we arrived in Santa Cruz, California there were about 2000 old Volkos on the campus of the University of California at Santa Cruz some over 30 years old all in great shape. The king of Sweden was there with the Royal Swedish symphony. I met up with an old Nixon ally. I spent the next three months with my friend driving north as far as Fort Bragg and hour north of San Francisco and south as far as San Diego, camping out in beach and mountain camp grounds. We spent a lot of time around Santa Barbara camping out next to the Reagan ranch with our Reagan Bush bumper sticker. The friend I was with had a grandfather that moved west to Santa Barbara in the early 1930s. The night President Reagan was elected I said hello to the Combustion Engineering Lawyer and his wife at the Montecito Inn in Montecito. They had bought our old house in Baldwin Farms South in Greenwich. I spend the evening down in Laguna at a Reagan Victory party with the likes of William Holden and a lot of the California Old Guard on the beach. About a week later as I was running out of money, a fellow that looked like Nelson Rockefeller named Joel who had a house on the beach in Laguna invited us to stay. He said he was the head of Xerox in California. I discussed my adventures and at certain times during the trip since it seemed like I had a couple of thousand people around me from Cal Tech, I did talk a little tech. Around the beginning of December I sold the Volvo in Anaheim with a bad clutch for $1,250 at a cash for you car place with about 96,000 miles on it. Thus it was over 20,000 miles on the road out west in that Volvo in very hot weather. The only other mechanical difficulty besides the clutch in that very hot weather was I got a flat tire with one of the Mesner tires. The current white 1976 Volvo 244 DL, I bought for $2,500 with 47,000 miles about five or six years ago. It now has 101,000 miles. The only major expenses beside oil changes have been two new sets of tires about $600, new tires on the car now. Weld the gas tank leak $175, starter motor still skip $300 at Exxon, brakes I did myself $50, major lube and transmission and rear axle changes about $150, timing belt and valve cover gasket $300 at Exxon, battery from Exxon $85, replace left front strut support $200 at truck Welding place in Stamford, pair of strut support plates $50, hub cap $25, exhaust system at two different times muffler and then catalytic converter at Midas in Greenwich about $500. Fuel filter twice once recently about $100. Ignition wires $40. Alternator regulator button plug in about $25. Once a year tune-ups I do myself about $40 for parts. Oil change every 3,000 miles or three months about $15 to $30 each time. I also once bought a General spare tire at Sams in Maine for $45, and about three sets of Halogen headlights at about $40 a set and at least $30 in other bulbs. I now have a General Brigadier set of tires on the car. So for the last five or six years the current Volvo with a clutch with a lot of junk adding weight in the trunk has been a good local car particularly on snow. Mom says people up in Maine have the same car with 300,000 to 500,000 miles on it; so I might expect to have it for another 30 to 50 years at the rate I am driving, if Volvo can come with parts if I need them. There are quite a lot of Volkos like mine driving around here anymore. I was told by the high price Volvo people in Stamford, the president of Volvo of North America lives in Old Greenwich. Give my best to George, Brook, or Bob if you see them around some Volvo operation. Of course a good friend of mine drives a 1977 Yellow Volvo sedan with about 120,000 miles; that he bought it for $3,500 with 42,000 miles and has put over $3,000 into maintaining it. However he drives it extensively and harder on longer trips than I do. Well enough of Volvo folklore. I remember in the early 1970s several of my Manhattan friends had the little two seater Volvo sports sedans, and I told them they should preserve them, they were really classic cars. One was orange, one was green, and one was baby blue. Well I better post this. With all the Swedish families in Greenwich, one day the Greenwich police might test out a Volvo. I would say we have at least 2,000 Swedish citizens. My mother gave me the Swedish sticker for my Volvo when she visited Stockholm last year. Also Warren Buffett of GEICO gets about $900 a year from me for my insurance package including towing which is suppose to include a million dollar liability policy. CIO

Note:<888>7/11/98 Saturday 7:35 P.M. EDT: Besides all that other stuff, I also put $14 of premium gasoline from Exxon next to the library in my Volvo. They had about $10,000 in cash sitting on the counter when I was in there at about 1 P.M. CIO

Note:<888>7/11/98 Saturday 7:05 P.M. EDT: I went downtown at noon and stopped by the Putnam Trust Bank of New York that is open until 1 P.M. on Saturday. I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove down to the middle of Greenwich Avenue and walked around for about a half hour on lower Greenwich Avenue. It was rumored that there was a casualty in the apartments on Greenwich Avenue yesterday. I returned to the library. I chatted with the other regular security guard who does not have to eat cats because he worked for a wholesale butcher in Stamford and told him the story. I mentioned that when I lived in Key West there were 500 stray cats around the Casa Marina in the mid 1970s and when I went back for a brief spell in 1983 they had all gone, so maybe the refugees in Key West ate all the cats. A lot of them were the six toed Hemingway cats. I mentioned to a couple of people that the Indonesian volcano was active Hot gas spews out of Indonesian volcano . I also mentioned to the library security guard and our top legal council that according to Phillip Ziegler's, the press secretary in his book on Nixon that when they made there first trip to China, the secret service lost track of Nixon for four hours. I got to thinking that from this story Clintons stuck in elevator for 10 minutes about the Clintons stuck in an elevator in China for ten minutes that maybe the clever Chinese replaced Nixon with a duplicate when he was visiting and maybe the Clinton elevator party were replaced with duplicates when it was supposedly stalled for ten minutes. I hope they have a way of verifying the real people returned from China since you figure it would not be too difficult to come up with duplicates since the first family looks like many average Americans in the Midwest. Maybe I grew up watching too many spy stories and episodes of Mission Impossible, but if one can think of it another clever group of people could probably pull it off. The way to make sure if it is the real President, a audio expert could compare voice prints and see if they match up. A voice print is harder to match than a fingerprint. Obviously there are enough recordings of the real president, so you could compare certain keyword with his most recent Saturday radio address RADIO ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT to see if they match up. Let's hope we got the right goods back from China and not a Chinese copy cat . Well Greenwich has a modest group of families out today enjoying the beautiful weekend weather. I am expecting a dinner guest in a half hour. My father's old boss at Monsanto who lived in a nice old house in Stamford, Connecticut has retired to Pensacola, Florida where a few other people I know about seem to be moving. Well enjoy the evening. CIO

Note:<888>7/11/98 Saturday 7:35 A.M. EDT: More email ezines TipWorld . I am bushed taking a nap. CIO

Note:<888>7/11/98 Saturday 7:15 A.M. EDT: Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page House near Knapp Tree Service in Wilton, Connecticut that was sold recently . CIO

Note:<888>7/11/98 Saturday 6:15 A.M. EDT: Maybe I will go down Steamboat Road in around 7 A.M. Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Steamboat Road Image Page . CIO

Note:<888>7/11/98 Saturday 6:10 A.M. EDT: I put together this Geo Satellite and Life Cam Photos Link page Geo Satellite and Life Cam Photos . CIO

Note:<888>7/11/98 Saturday 5:50 A.M. EDT: Live Volcano cam from Johnston Ridge Observatory -- Mount St. Helens National Volcanic Monument . CIO

Note:<888>7/11/98 Saturday 5:45 A.M. EDT: I took a little time for out for light netsurfing and rested yesterday. I found this interesting link you volcanophiles might be interested in SSEC - Volcano Watch Satellite Images . Basically a lot of the weather phenomena recently might also have to do with volcanoes along with El Nino. I might make it out this morning once I clean up, but as you know when you start surfing the net, it seems to go on forever and forever, I basically have been looking at tech stories on Windows 98. As far as I can tell we have to maintain the usually high level of security in the area, since the simple fact of a large number of people traveling through town every day, means that many people are unfamiliar with the town, and are not familiar with the traffic and pedestrian traffic patterns, thus it is not we are paranoid, the locals tend to be safety cautious since we do live a busy area like any urban environment. Let's face it we're not down on the farm here. CIO

Note:<888>7/10/98 Friday 4:45 P.M. EDT: What's doing on the other side of the pond Yell UK Web Awards 1998 . CIO

Note:<888>7/10/98 Friday 4:35 P.M. EDT: Well I was up at 3 P.M.. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was down quite a bit more today than the Microsoft Investor program reported. I have not been out today, but not much is happening, so I thought I'd sit back and relax at home. Well enjoy your weekend. CIO

Note:<888>7/10/98 Friday 5:00 A.M. EDT: Well I checked my email and read mrscott.com/scotwork.htm . I guess all the newsmakers are so prosperous, they aren't trying to make news, but hopefully they are trying to enjoy the quality of life a bit while they still have some to enjoy. A great many older people in this area enjoy seeing and visiting with their grandchildren. Well not much to report on the home front. I guess I will be on a later schedule today. I have not been paying much attention to those back east in Old Greenwich this summer after many summers. I spend a lot of time in the middle of Greenwich the Midwest, while living out here on the west coast of Greenwich with a beautiful west coast view of Port Chester. As the local scout in this area, I can assure you that Port Chester at it two beer distributors has more beer at a reasonable price for all those visitors from the North Sea who imbibe it in quantity by the pint. At the moment I am aging my beer supply, since I have no inclination to have a drink. Well lets hope the hospitality department in Greenwich has a chance to show what it can do during the next couple of weekends. I dare say, more goes on in the residential areas of town than the rather small inconspicuous downtown area. Let's face it Greenwich is primarily a residential town, and the residents usually don't pay too much attention to what happens down town, unless they happen to live downtown. I can assure you some of the hosts and hostesses in back country or along the shore know how to put on the old feed bag, when it comes to hospitality, but it is hard to tell who is in town and who is away on diverse travel plans. From my viewpoint today, the Grand Union the food looked a bit old, so lots of people are away and the grocery stock is not turning over as fast as normally. However, for security reasons we don't divulge the travel plans or the nature of the town's occupants, but for all I know it is the same as always, since in the day time the town particularly in the morning, the town is quite busy with the usual old guard. Well time to shut down. CIO

Note:<888>7/10/98 Friday 2:30 A.M. EDT: I went out at 11 P.M. or shortly thereafter. I parked down at the center of the Avenue and walked down around the bottom of the Avenue. It was very quiet out. I walked up towards the top of the Avenue and observed the wall the masons are working on at the Presbyterian Church on the top of the Avenue. They are doing a fine masonry job of building the curved wall. I walked back down Greenwich Avenue. There was a small group of youngsters at the Dome restaurant. One of the visitors was driving a venerable 30 year old bronze Buick Riviera with black and gold California license plates. It had the folding headlights. I believe people in California who have black and gold license plates are long time residents, and they generally have not been issued in that format since the late 1960s. Thus we have old guard Californians in our midst. I drove down by the Greenwich Harbor Inn and used the restroom. It was quiet. I noticed a couple of Canadian license plates on automobiles in their parking lot, so that is about number 22 and 23 Canadian license plates I have seen in town in about 15 years since I have been back. I chatted with one of the Canadians checking in and he was down from Toronto on a sales run. I noticed that somebody had broken a Dos Equis Beer bottle at the front of the Greenwich Harbor Inn with a lime in it. I told a little time to remove the glass shards that were lying around the entrance. I guess some people who drink can be a little reckless. I drove down by the Sound and only a couple of cars were there. I returned to the middle of Greenwich Avenue and the Greenwich Police intercepted a car driving up the Avenue the wrong way, and held it for investigation for about an hour with three cruisers around it. It looked pretty routine. I drove around and back down by the water, and there were a couple people out enjoying the full moon by the water. The evening was quite pleasant and there is really not much to report. It was one of the slowest Thursday nights I had seen in a long time. I had a bite of blueberry Jell-O and some ice tea when I returned home. I will do a little net work when I return. CIO

Note:<888>7/9/98 Thursday 11:00 P.M. EDT: I did a little computer work and cat napped through the morning. I was up at 2:30 P.M. and made it to my 3 P.M. appointment. I went by the hospital thrift shop. I drove down Greenwich Avenue, and there lots of people around from the tropics. I noticed one young fellow from the tropics in an orange shirt had the train station parking garage on watch like he was a lookout. I have read dozens of police reports in the Greenwich Times over the years about vandalism and automobile electronics stolen from that garage. I hope he was not involved in that activity. I drove down to the end of Steamboat Road and there was a 300 pound African fellow trying to stake out turf down there all afternoon along with the usual group of coastal observers. I stopped by ELDC and they had their usual assortment of goods there. I mentioned to shop proprietor there and to the local parish priest on

Greenwich Avenue that I always see sneaking cigarettes that there was a short about 5 foot older white haired Italian fisherman slightly balding in Key West in the mid 1970s that was deeply tanned and bared an uncanny resemblance to Pope John of previous generations. This was after Pope John had supposedly passed away, so it must have been another look alike. However the local Spanish catholic parish seemed to respect him, and I would frequently see him around the whole wheat pizza parlor. Of course having lived in Italy a few years before, I saw thousands of people with the same look. After chatting with the parish priest, I stopped OmniPoint and briefed them on local telecommunications. I stopped by CVS and bought a $1.39 box of Cheesit Party Mix. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and chatted with the senior center night custodian about local activity and mentioned some of the problems in the U.K. and Ireland might be from the fact they drink too much. I heard a report on the BBC recently it is not uncommon for a citizen to drink 200 pints of beer and stout a week, so I guess they get in a bad mood when they run out of beer. I chatted with a decent fellow from England about World Economics and while we were chatting a sharp looking gal showed up in a new Aston Martin convertible with a dealer plate on it to buy a cigar at the cigar shop across from the police station. I mentioned to the British chap that of all the places I have eaten in the area in the last fifteen years since I have been back, the Roger Sherman Inn in New Canaan is my favorite place. I picked up two buy two get one free Merit Ultra lites at Zyns for $11.60. I went to the library and read the paper. I chatted with a few of the regular users. The library was not too busy. The elevator is still broken. I chatted with the Haitian security guard and told him the story about seeing a six foot high gray panther in Florida in the mid 1970s near the Polo Fields in Boca Raton one winter morning at sunrise when I was waking up in my old Subaru. I was with a friend, so I had another eye witness. Thus I guess those old swamp cats steak out the polo fields in Florida looking for a morning breakfast snack. He explained to me that Haitians like the Chinese like eating cats. Thus if anyone is missing any of their cats or there are less stray cats around than normal, it could be because members of the Chinese or Haitian community are dining on them. I next went to the Grand Union and bought GU 2% milk $1.67, GU evaporated milk .75, a three pound bag of onions $1.99, two ears of yellow corn .40, and 90% fat free ground beef at $2.99 a pound for $3.95 for a total of $8.76. I then returned home and started making spaghetti. I chopped up the ground beef into little squares and put them in a heated Griswold skillet with a little hot olive oil. I browned the chopped meat. While it was browning I chopped up four medium to large onions and one red pepper. I strained the browned ground beef and put it in a 2 gallon revere pot with olive oil on the bottom. I added the chopped pepper and onion along with a cup of white wine. I put in about three tablespoons of chopped garlic, Italian spices, basil, pepper, thyme, hot curry, Chinese five spice, a tablespoon of worstershire sauce, a tablespoon of horse radish, a teaspoon of Tabasco sauce, three tablespoons of French Dijon mustard, and a quart can of Italian crushed tomatoes and a quart can of Italian whole tomatoes with juice and two 4 ounce cans of chopped mushrooms. I mixed all the ingredients together and simmer for an hour. I set another three gallon revere pot going with hot water and seven minutes before the sauce was done, I put in a package of thin spaghetti. I put a little parmesan cheese on my spaghetti and it was a filling enjoyable dinner. I saved most of the spaghetti noodles and froze one container of the sauce and put the other container in the refrigerator. I am drinking my coffee after dinner and filing this report. I noticed the stock market was down a bit according to Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Well I think I will go out for an evening stroll shortly. CIO

Note:<888>7/9/98 Thursday 1:40 A.M. EDT: Bed & Breakfast - Connecticut - North Stonington

- High Acres Bed and Breakfast .

Note:<888>7/8/98 Wednesday 7:20 P.M. EDT: I read my email and some Win98 Newsgroups Computing Central Win98 Newsgroups . I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I guess I should have a bite to eat and clean up and go out in about a hour and ten minutes around 9 P.M.. Well I will listen to some tech broadcasts for a bit while I cook another pizza. CIO

Note:<888>7/8/98 Wednesday 6:00 P.M. EDT:PC World Online August 1998: Top of the News - Test Drive - AMD Goes 3D With a Speedy Pentium II Competitor and WebShopper > Storage / Drives > Hook-up a New Hard Drive .CIO

Note:<888>7/8/98 Wednesday 5:50 P.M. EDT: Tour 98 Live - Tour de France ( 11th July - 2nd August ) , maybe these dudes should worry about becoming sterile. CIO

Note:<888>7/8/98 Wednesday 5:35 P.M. EDT: Internet World Summer Live July 8, 1998! CIO

Note:<888>7/8/98 Wednesday 5:35 P.M. EDT: Intel NY Music Festival CIO

Note:<888>7/8/98 Wednesday 5:30 P.M. EDT: Windows Media Showcase CIO

Note:<888>7/8/98 Wednesday 5:00 P.M. EDT:I had a clever idea last night, from the Las Alamos report on the supercomputer with 48 DEC alpha chips. Why couldn't a computer class of say 50 students with Intel PS II 400 chip workstations, use boot manager to boot their entire network from Win98 to Linux to form a network supercomputer, if they felt like it. MLS

Note:<888>7/8/98 Wednesday 3:10 P.M. EDT: I am awake about to have breakfast. I am downloading new Microsoft Media player Media Player linked from Windows 98 Keynote . I also downloaded Chat 2.5 from Microsoft Chat Home . I can't figure out why the Win98 update page does not update these files. Off to breakfast. I'm not going to install beta of MS IE 5.0, I like having a stable system. Before, it's bookmarks did not work. CIO

Note:<888>7/8/98 Wednesday 1:50 A.M. EDT: I made a Jell-O mixture. I used two packs of Jell-O either sweeten of nonsweeten, I used one of each and any flavor, I used mixed fruit and cranberry. One boils a cup of hot water for each Jell-O container, and adds it to a bowl or container that can hold all the ingredients. One stirs it 2 minutes. One then adds an equal amount of cold liquid. For two packets, I added a cup of wine and a cup of orange and grapefruit juice with a half teaspoon of angostura bitters. I mixed it all together and then added a pint of fresh blueberries which have been in my fridge for a week. In four to six hours I will have a Jell-O desert. Tell Bill Cosby if he is still working at General Delivery in Key West, Florida to forward any mail I might not have received in fifteen years. I just got to thinking that the fellow on the boat at the Greenwich Harbor Inn might be senator Clay Shaw from Florida, and he is like the Don Johnson character of Miami Vice and probably keeps a pet 14 foot alligator on his boat to help protect his natural environment. He is pretty much an old swamp hand, having grown up in the swamps in Louisiana until he went gator poaching with Wiley the swamp fox from South Carolina. He is in direct communications with Florida via his cell phone, so have the harbor patrol keep an eye on the craft. If anybody sees Chris Craft around, tell him to check with NASA about using 1 part iodine to 100,000 parts water for cloud seeding. I think that was the formula in the old days. One would have to spray it at the highest altitude available from sprayer aircraft. I think Mosquito control planes or tanker planes properly configured would do the job. I would not recommend dumping a 100,000 gallons of water directly, since that would way 800,000 pounds and might cause property damage. There might be one side effect to using the iodine for cloud seeding in that in hot atmospheric conditions when it is tried, it might cause a faint violet tinge on the sand or any other white surfaces like houses or cars. One has to make sure it is 1 to 100,000 parts give or take about 2 percent, since you basically are iodizing the clouds, and that formula use to work. They do much the same in the northern resorts for snow making at higher colder altitudes. I think you can simulate the effect. If you have a sauna bath, go in and heat it up to high temperature that you are comfortable in. In the three gallon wooden bucket of tepid water add about three drops of iodine. Once the sauna is steamed up, add the water iodine mixture to the rocks, and watch what happens. Thus you will need a second bucket of clear water to steam it up. That small amount of iodine will not cause iodine poisoning, when you think how much of it one use to use as kids. Well its worth a try. I don't know if it would work in the middle east, one does not necessarily need cloud formations, but any area like the Canaries or Western Sahara that have lots of vapor moisture in the upper atmosphere, even without clouds, it should produce rain. It basically iodizes the h2o molecules by having them collect additional free floating hydrogen and oxygen molecules combining them together to make them heavy enough to rain. Well I hope it rains, but as I have said before, I have forgotten so much, it is hard to remember after all these years. The computer aspect I am focused on takes a lot of time and tech reading to make it seem simple with the cooperation of a large team of experts who know this technology better than I do. Well enjoy your visit to the north country, I hope I see you all down south some day. CIO MLS

Note:<888>7/21/98 Tuesday 7:00 P.M. EDT: www.michaelscott.net Artist down east. Try Computing Central Newsgroups to surf Microsoft Newsgroups CIO

Note:<888>7/21/98 Tuesday 6:15 P.M. EDT: Michael Scott Band: acoustic music contemporary folk acoustic folk rock acoustic singer songwriter acoustic duet , probably some Russian from Nantucket that use to hang out around JT. CIO

Note:<888>7/21/98 Tuesday 5:30 P.M. EDT: I was up at 7 A.M. this morning. I went through my usual daily routine and worked on my email until noon. I rested until 5 P.M.. I suppose it is hot out, so I have avoided the heat of the day. I have the Windows 98 Resource Kit book to look at this evening after dinner. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm , it was a down day. CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 10:10 P.M. EDT: Forbes Digital Tool Year 2000 Problem in Russian Missile Defense System . CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 9:45 P.M. EDT: I went downtown at 5 P.M. and parked in the center of Greenwich Avenue. I walked down by the Greenwich Harbor Inn. There were lots of youngsters on the harbor terrace having beverages. I walked further down the waterfront down to the end of Steamboat Road. I chatted with some fishermen down at the end. They were catching bunker again and blues and stripers. It was a pleasant evening around the water and I reminisced about Key West in the old days. I walked back up the road and back by the waterfront terrace at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. I returned to the center of Greenwich Avenue seeing lots of Powerballers. I sat out for a while and chatted with the senior center custodian about life in general. I returned at 9:30 P.M. and filed this report. I am a bit bushed and will retire for the evening. CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 5:00 P.M. EDT: IBM announces second-quarter 1998 results CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 4:30 P.M. EDT: I went out at after the last report. I drove down to Radio Shack in Cos Cob and bought the stereo male plug to male plug cord for $4.23. I now have speakers on the backup computer in the bedroom. I chatted with the two clerks at Radio Shack about tech. The one young fellow said he had beta tested Windows 98. I went back to central Greenwich and stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop and did a quick tour. I went downtown and parked off the upper part of Greenwich Avenue and bought 1 hour 15 fifteen minutes on the meter for 25 cents. I walked down the Avenue and stopped by the Greenwich Hardware Store and bought two red spicket handles for .79 each plus .09 tax for a total of $1.67 which I gave to my neighbors when I returned home for fetching water for watering the plants. I walked on down the Avenue and passed the Powerball lines at the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. I walked underneath the lower train station parking lot to cool off. I walked around by Island Beach Ferry docks and the ferry is not running since the beaches are closed because of pollution. I walked by the Greenwich Harbor Inn docks and the Yacht "Mercedes" from the Georgetown, Cayman Islands was pulling out for a cruise. I walked down in front of the General Re building and chatted with a fisherman about Steamboat Road. I walked back uptown. I chatted with another downtown resident. I continued up the Avenue in the heat with lots of pedestrian traffic. I got in the car and drove across the street to the Greenwich library. The elevator is broken again. I chatted with the dayshift security. I went inside and the weekly computer weeklies are not in yet. The library was cool and pretty busy for a summer afternoon since it is cooler. I returned home about 3:45 P.M. and had a diet Pepsi and ramen noodles and filed this report. I will update Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm before I upload this report. Well have a good evening. No sign of rain. If one has the funds and wants privacy a great getaway resort in Maine is "Biddeford Pool" which has only one Lobster milk store and a private golf club and direct ocean front houses, with a very rough ocean which would be difficult for children or frail adults or even experienced swimmers. Still for hermit types it might be enjoyable. Of course Maine has lots of places for vacation retreats along its long rugged coast, you just have to find your way around up there, and remember the Maine State bird, is the giant mosquito. Well enough Constant Comment. CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 12:30 P.M. EDT: I went out at 8 A.M. and chatted with one of my neighbors. I went by the Bank of New York Putnam Trust on Mason Street and as usual their money machine was out of cash after the weekend. I went over to Greenwich Avenue, and there was a red head look alike of a Computer Software executive ahead of me at the money machine at the Chase branch. I joked about the Bank of New York Putnam Trust money machine always running out of cash on weekends. I drove over to the Exxon Station next to the library and put $13.25 of premium in the car and the station proprietors told me the powerball sales were interfering with their filling station operations since people can't get into the lot. I went by the Hospital Thrift shop and bought a set of Labtec speakers for my backup computer for $2.50. They are missing the power transformer which I have another of and also the male to male stereo jack which I will buy in a little while when I go out. I went over up North Street and got on the Merritt Parkway East and went to get off at Highridge Road and went to the Appliance Service Center of Stamford and dropped off the Braun coffee maker to be repaired. I chatted with the proprietor about my mrscott.com/coffee.htm recipe. I also mentioned that outfits like Starbucks probably don't know how to maintain their expensive European Espresso and Cappuccino machines properly and one of these days one of them will explode. He agreed with me. I returned to Greenwich by the same direction. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and down Steamboat Road and noticed quite a few people fishing at the bottom of Steamboat Road as is usual for the summer. I drove through Bruce Park and somebody had abandoned an old Oldsmobile by one of the noticeable houses on the park. I drove by ELDC thrift and they did not have any goods I was interested in. I went by the Radio Shack and advised a foreign customer that if he bought a PDA he should get one he could back up to his computer. I notice another fellow walk into the shop that looked a bit like me, but younger. One always does a double take when one sees somebody who looks like you. However in the Midwest and Scandinavia, Northern Europe and Russia my look is as common as dishwater. I purchased a power Y splitter to have in reserve for computer upgrades there for $3.99 plus .24 tax for a total of $4.23. I drove by the Greenwich Library and read the local newspaper. There were a lot of new faces there. I checked out a $60 book called the Microsoft Windows 98 Resource Kit which comes with a tools Cdrom. It is about 1765 pages long, which should make enjoyable summer reading. I chatted with a Norwegian resident about the Danish 300 foot Ferry making it from New York to South Hampton in 2 1/2 days. I also mentioned that any look alike might not have my local knowledge of the area and expertise from the library after 40 years. There was one fellow sleeping in the lounge chair there who had spread newspapers over him like a blanket, so you could not identify him. I chatted with library security about trying to lose weight and I told him I was not being successful. I returned home and chatted with one of my neighbors. I was told that there is a hose for watering the flowers in the copier room but one needs a faucet key which is less than a dollar at the hardware store. Most gardeners water in the early morning or late evenings, not during the heat of the day which can sear the plants greenery. It is a warm sultry day with possibility of showers, and lots of Powerball Players lined up downtown. I had peanuts and Ramen noodles for lunch along with Sprite and coffee. I will go back to Radio Shack for the Labtec male to male speaker cord. Well it is another busy day in wonderland, so let me get back to the routine. CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 7:10 A.M. EDT: Shutting down and cleaning up. I will go out sometime this morning and probably go over to the Appliance Service Center of Stamford on 15 Cedar Heights Road left west High Ridge Road in Stamford 1-203-322-7656, to take the Braun Cappuccino Machine with one year warranty for free repair. I guess the pump on it is not working. I guess the Germans have lowered their quality control standards.

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 5:55 A.M. EDT: John Patrick - 07/20/98 05:47:03 AM , JRP's Favorite Places , JRP Hardware and software environment . CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 5:40 A.M. EDT: There is a large group of people who loiter downtown observing the early morning arrivals at the newsstands and coffee shops, not to mention the early morning walkers. However, just because they think they get up early to observe, they may not even be local within the community, they just happen to know other people's early morning routines. Since I revolve around the clock 24 hours a day, I have to remind these early morning risers, just because they see somebody in responsibility or authority, they do not have designated authority themselves. CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 5:35 A.M. EDT: U.S. Senate to grill Bill Gates again this week Senate Judiciary Committee readies another round on Microsoft (InfoWorld) . CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 5:20 A.M. EDT:PC Week Radio John Patrick Internet World Summer 98 Rebroadcast Link. CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 4:55 A.M. EDT: Win a hot trip to Paris Air France/City of Light, Speed of Sound Sweepstakes CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 4:50 A.M. EDT: IBM News: Daily guide Listening to John Patrick's Internet World Summer 98 Broadcast. CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 4:30 A.M. EDT: The Times: Britain: Princes' cunning plan is spoilt CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 4:30 A.M. EDT: The Times: Britain: Oxford plan for degrees on

Internet CIO

Note:<888>7/20/98 Monday 3:30 A.M. EDT: I went out yesterday morning at 8 A.M.. I got my Braun Cappuccino machine sales slip updated at the Coffee Tree at the top of the Avenue. I chatted with a Swedish resident. I walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue and bought two croissants at St. Moritz. I ate them in front of the senior center. I observed the usual Sunday morning Starbucks crowd. I chatted with a Hurst Newspaper representative who carries a gold star from Palm Beach Country about the earth quake tidal wave in New Guinea wondering if it would sent out an opposite tidal wave towards the east which they frequently they do threatening Guam, the Marshal Islands, Hawaii, and the West Coast with a much higher tidal wave. We both observed that the Pacific Trench just off the Monterey Peninsula around Santa Cruz is very deep and there could be hit by a mile high tidal wave there since the trench is over a mile deep. He seemed to know quite a bit about the West Coast and since he represents Hurst News he obviously knows the west coast perspective. We reminisced on different points of perspective, but since he was older we did not know that many of the same contacts. He was wearing one of those mafia pinky rings like Prince Charles wears. He asked my about Lake Tahoe and Palm Beach, and I chatted about Key West, Fort Lauderdale, Santa Cruz, Laguna, Nantucket, Manhattan, and a number of places that have changed over the years. He obviously is a smart person to have on the job. I returned home and got a tired spell and basically fell asleep from noon yesterday until 3 A.M. this morning. It was good to get a good nights rest. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>7/19/98 Sunday 7:50 A.M. EDT: I went downtown yesterday morning at 4:30 A.M.. I parked in the center of town and walk down Greenwich Avenue to the bottom of Steamboat Road. I chatted about the shoreline with a visitor. I walked back up to the top of Greenwich Avenue chatting with a couple of people and returned to the center of town. I returned home at 8:30 A.M.. I then drove home and found out my new Braun coffee machine was malfunctioning. I fiddled with it a while. I went downtown about 10:30 A.M. and picked up a receipt for the coffee machine so I can have it fixed under the warranty, and walked around a couple of blocks during the sidewalk sale. I went home at received a phone call their party would be arriving to change at 3 P.M.. I opened up the window and aired out the cigarette smoke from the place with a fan. The family party and friends arrived to change at 3 P.M.. We chatted for a while and they departed at 4:15 P.M.. It was good to see them. I chatted with one of my neighbors downstairs for a while and came upstairs and had a bite to eat at 6 P.M. and went to bed at 8:30 P.M.. I got up this morning at 4:00 A.M. and cleaned the apartment and watered the plants after breakfast. I chatted with a friend just now, and I will go out for a little while this morning. It looks like it will be anther hot day. CIO

Note:<888>7/18/98 Saturday 12:20 A.M. EDT: Microsoft FY 1998 Earnings Release and if you bought a Powerball Ticket checkout www.powerball.com . I guess today will be a little busy. I will stay up a bit this evening, and then go back to sleep and be up by noon. CIO

Note:<888>7/17/98 Friday 4:45 P.M. EDT: I was up at 6 A.M. this morning. I had bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, vitamins, pink grapefruit juice and orange juice, and coffee. Coffee would set the pace for the rest of the day. I went out about 8 A.M. after chatting with a friend. I drove down to Greenwich Avenue, and I parked in front of the foreign study institute. I went across the street to CVS and bought 2 cans of honey roasted peanuts for $1.59 each for a total of $3.18. I ordered a prescription to be filled. I went for a walk while waiting. I walked up the Avenue. I noticed the Coffee Tree Coffee Bar at the top of the Avenue had a Braun E600/E650 Espresso Cappuccino Pro Machine in black color for sale regularly $165 for $40. I bought it and chatted with Carlos from Columbia about coffee. He was very congenial. I then put the machine in the car and walked back down the street to Greenwich Hardware and toured it. I chatted with the owner. I then walked up to CVS and picked up my prescription. I then drove down the Avenue to the Senior Center area and parked. I walked down the Avenue and purchased three pairs of light blue acrylic Burlington socks for $5 at Richards. I chatted with a fellow prep school colleague about general topics. I walked down the Avenue. I stopped by the lower avenue stationary store to observe the morning crowd. Not many Powerball people yet. I chatted with one back country landscaper about my golfing skills thirty years ago. He seemed to have a sense of humor. I walked back up the Avenue and chatted with another fellow from Columbia about coffee. I walked further up the Avenue and chatted with a former neighbor about general topics. I walked back to my car. I drove by the Hospital Thrift Shop and toured the shop. I drove home and unpacked the Braun Espresso Cappuccino Pro machine. It had everything but it was missing the four cup carafe. It came with two large black coffee cups and saucers. It is a very fancy machine. I decided to go back downtown and see if they had the carafe. There was a lot of traffic about 11:30 A.M. with sidewalk sales. I finally parked behind the foreign study institute. I walked back to the Coffee Tree and they did not have a carafe, but they said they would try to get one. They sold me a Italian MDF Gaggia Coffee grinder which they thought was broken for $8. It is a heavy duty coffee grinder like used in espresso bars. I put it in the car. I stopped by the Gourmet Gallery kitchen shop down the street and toured their stock. They have Krups on sale. They gave me a card for "Culinary Parts Unlimited" where one can call 1-800-543-7549 for all sorts of culinary parts if I wanted to order a carafe. I went by Lectors and they had the four cup Espresso carafe. I walked down the Avenue and to the Greenwich Hardware store and they did not have a four cup carafe. I walked down to Starbucks and they did not have much in the way of coffee appliances. I walked to the bottom of the Avenue, and the Powerball people were all lined up at the two stationary stores. I chatted with another retiree at the bottom of the Avenue about Greenwich in general. I walked back up the Avenue to and around St. Mary's it started to sprinkle. I went to Putnam Trust Bank of New York and withdrew funds. I noticed lots of tall bankers entering the building. I chatted with congenial security guard for a quite a while about living in Switzerland and he said Lagano is one of the nicest places. We talked for quite a while. At 1:30 P.M. I had to feed the meter. I went by Lectors and they wanted $22 for the Krups carafe, which I decided not to buy. I went by the library and read the local paper and chatted with another regular. I went by the Grand Union and bought 48 packs of Ramen noodles of various types for $8, and a half gallon 2% milk for $1.67 for a total of $9.67. I returned home and fiddled with the new coffee grinder disassembling part of it to get it work. However, it turned out it has settings from 1 to 34, and on setting 1 it does not work, but on higher settings it works fine. I ground some coffee at setting 34, I don't know if lower setting are finer or courser. It did not come with a manual. I set up the Braun Espresso Cappuccino Pro machine and made a cup of coffee by filling the larger espresso basket with ground coffee and heated two thirds of a cup of water in the machine, and once the light came on I ran the water through to make a cup of coffee. I tried frothing milk, but I only had 2% milk and it did not froth, I think one needs whole milk or half and half. I drank the coffee with the hot milk and it was all quite delicious. I put the new coffee grinder where the blinder is, and moved the blender on the stacked up soda cases. I emptied the hot coffee grinds and cleaned up the counter and washed the coffee cups. I happen to remember I had an older in disrepair Krups coffee machine in my ceiling hideaway, and sure enough it had a new 4 Espresso cup carafe with it, so I put the Krups four Espresso cup carafe with the Braun coffee machine. I then filed this report. I will update Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm shortly. Well I might rest since I am a little tired and need to slow down shortly. CIO

Note:<888>7/17/98 Friday 1:39 A.M. EDT: Microsoft TerraServer Image Page Westchester County Airport Satellite Photograph 1991 area in question about south of airport development project, project seems to be mostly level dirt on the area south southeast of the runway with heavy road grading equipment on the site grading and leveling the development zone. CIO

Note:<888>7/17/98 Friday 1:00 A.M. EDT: My house guest was up at 5:45 A.M. this morning. I saw him off at 6:30 A.M.. I went to bed until 1 P.M.. I got up and had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, orange and pink grapefruit juice, coffee, and vitamins. I went out at 2:30 P.M. and stopped by Bank of New York Putnam Trust on Mason Street. I made my 3 P.M. appointment and afterwards stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove by Entree Computer and shot the bull about tech. They don't have any sidewalk sale items. I went downtown to see a full house at sidewalk sales people. I stopped by the Computer Play House store and they had a few cd items on sale. I decided not to purchase them, since they're Win 3.1 and DOS CD items and might install incompatible files on my system. I stopped by Zyns and got 2 buy 2 get one free of Merit Ultra lights. There were about 5 people lined up for the $95 million power ball. I had parked in front of Richards, so I browsed their sidewalk merchandise. They have men's calf dress socks 3 pairs for $5. I decided not to get them, since I walk a lot, I need a thicker sock to absorb the perspiration on my feet. I find a thick wool sock is best for walking particularly in the hot weather since, the wool fiber breaths. All cotton socks with a little bit of Dacron for elasticity usually are just as good, but not as warm in the winter, and wool absorbs more moisture, and probably breaths better. If one's sneakers get too damp from long periods of walking, it is frequently recommended to have second pair to let them rest for a day to cool off, and air out, and dry out. Most people who walk a lot never wear the same pair of shoes two days in a row. They'll last longer if you alternate your shoes. I next went by the Greenwich library, and discussed equine security operations. I also mentioned that the track housing property south of the airport runway, encompassing several hundred acres should be reserved for airport emergency expansion as per order of the Department of Defense directive #8987868584838281 signed by Brigadier General Marshall this date 7/17/98. Thus until the case is resolved by the chief judge military advocate, it will be necessary to continue excavation and leveling the surface, but the ultimate foreseeable use of the property would be for a rather flat golf course, so that in times of national emergency the Army Corps of Engineers could rapidly expand the runway length, so that heavy Starlifter C5A aircraft could take off and land if necessary. It is my viewpoint that some clever group has procured the Defense Operations Long Standing Plan for this area, and given it to parties whom are using to build facilities to undermined that plan. More than likely there are a lot of similar instances of this sort of activity around the country, so I advise all military personnel to maintain the existing status quo of current facilities, and not to change them so as to effect their defensive nature. Proper military authorization would be needed by the proper command authorities and review by military architects to figure out how to augment these procedures. I received email last night that the United States embassy in Copenhagen, Denmark has been abandoned and it is not open, there is just an answering machine saying they are away. When I returned from the library, I had dinner of Stauffer's Lasagna. I then had coffee. I went out and chatted with one of my senior neighbors who is also a coast observer, and she seemed fine. I went downtown about 8:30 P.M. and it was very busy with a formidable group of Midwestern vacationers out east on summer vacation. Lots of families were walking around enjoying the restaurants, movies, Starbucks, and other facilities in the area. I walked down by the harbor and chatted with the General Reinsurance Building security personnel. While chatting with one desk clerk, a yacht in the harbor backfired three times and some of the personnel check out the situation. It sounded like a loud gun, but generally a rifle shot produces an echo, if it does not have a mussel or silencer, so I don't think it was a terrorist incident. There was a large party of individuals enjoying beverages and music on the Greenwich Harbor Inn terrace, and they seemed to be enjoying themselves. I returned back up the Avenue and bought a Power Ball ticket at Zyns and walked back up to the center of the Avenue and rested for a short spell. I then walked up to the top of the Avenue and back down around. I observed an older gentleman wearing the timeless classic hat of the tropics, the Panama Hat, and I said, "Good Evening Sir." I then continued down the Avenue and sat outside until about 11:30 P.M. when the youngsters started showing up after the adults had cleared out. I returned home and filed this report. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm. I have noticed quite a few personnel like wearing white denim jeans, I would advise people around the water that white denim jeans look fashionable, but if one wears them on the water and fell overboard white denim painters pants would be easier to get off if one had to shed them to try swimming. Just like the folks in the Navy use to wear bell bottoms since they are easier to change and to shed if one had to swim. I suppose us poor folks wearing shorts are always prepared to swim, but with my pot belly I would probably sink like a stone. I observed somebody down around the Harbor that has a pet Orca, so I would advise people to be cautious in their swimming habits. Orcas tend to be friendly to their trainers, but can be skittish around strangers. If the Orca is around, I dare say Flip and his colleagues are in the area too. Thus if you see any unusual sightings on the water, I suppose they marine life aquarium up in Norwalk would be interesting in knowing. Thus we probably need the services of a golf course designer like Robert Trent Jones, to come up with a compatible design for the new golf course south of the airport. I checked with a number of pilots and aircraft mechanics in the area, and none of them would live at the end of the runway, so I don't think any civilians will want to live there, particularly when the insurance company won't insure the project or anyone who would try to live there. Well back to the net, and enjoy your morning. I advise the Security Forces to maintain the status quo, and keep a sharp lookout. CIO Note:<888>7/16/98 Thursday 5:40 A.M. EDT: Computer Answer Guy Downloads Cache Adjust for Windows 95. CIO

Note:<888>7/16/98 Thursday 5:00 A.M. EDT: Russia's Last Czar Finally Buried CIO

Note:<888>7/16/98 Thursday 3:00 A.M. EDT: House guest arrived at 11:30 P.M.. We chatted I showed him a few things on the net. I let him get to bed because he has to be up at 5:45 A.M. for a 7 A.M. appointment. I went out at 12:30 A.M. and walked the full length of Greenwich Avenue and down by Steamboat Road around the Greenwich Harbor Inn. It is very slow out with the usual security present. I noticed that they have the tents set up for the sidewalk sales this morning for the next three days. I guess we will have a lot of early morning shoppers. I have a 3 P.M. appointment today, so some time I will have to get some sleep. I will be up on the net this morning. I am just about ready to eat a hot Tony's Pizza. CIO

Note:<888>7/15/98 Wednesday 10:40 P.M. EDT: I chatted with my neighbors and a friend showed up at 1 P.M.. We chatted, and I drove up King Street to Westchester Airport and showed him the new construction south of the airport. It looks like some sort of residential development at the end of the runway up there. I showed him the airport since he had not seen it. He took off at 3:30 P.M. and I went to bed. Another friend called at 9 P.M. and woke me up. I received another call from the friend here earlier and he is coming out here to stay this evening, since he has an appointment out here tomorrow. I said he could use the bedroom since I will probably be awake again all night again as usual. I have to be awake on Saturday afternoon for a family visitor. I have a 3 P.M. appointment tomorrow afternoon. I suppose it will be fairly slow again this evening. After my house guest goes to sleep, I suppose we will talk a while or do something, I will probably do computer work as usual and go out for a walk during the cooler morning hours. I think it is a little hot in the day time, but it does not bother me since I seem to acclimate fairly easily. Well I will wait for the house guest to arrive. I will also update Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . CIO

Note:<888>7/15/98 Wednesday 9:55 A.M. EDT: I went out at 5:45 A.M. and walked around downtown until 9 A.M.. I chatted with local observers who seem to see more. I chatted with a commuter from Virginia who has a similar name to me. I chatted with the Bank Security guard watching the stationary store. I chatted with Maneros parking attendant about Steamboat Road. I chatted with a French gal about the French. I chatted with a Philippine dry cleaner about Volcanoes. I chatted with a New York weatherman look alike about Volcanoes. I chatted with a couple of senior gals about watching out for gas in the senior center. I chatted with a commuter on the train station platform, that Clinton's Secret Service agent should say "That He Sees from 10,000 to 100,000 people a day, so he can't remember every face". I chatted with a sportsman about Tod's Point Beach situation. I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop and chatted with the staff about the need for blood donations. I went home and received a phone call from one of Queen Victoria's honor guard's relatives who is on his return trip to Long Island from Boston and stopping by here about 1 P.M.. I will take a three hour nap until he shows up. Well there was a big nine A.M. rush hour into town. People are worrying that we might have another Powerball invasion during the Sidewalk Sales coming up soon. Well it looks like it will be hot today. I am still in my 72 degree F. mood. Well have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>7/15/98 Wednesday 5:37 A.M. EDT: Discovery Online, Discovery News Brief Burial of Czar Nicholas II and family. CIO

Note:<888>7/15/98 Wednesday 4:50 A.M. EDT: I posted my Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 Favorites bookmarks, it is linked from the bottom of the download page mrscott.com/download.htm . I also deleted my Broadcast sound file mrscott.com/sound.htm since the Winmedia and G2 players don't support a real time broadcast without downloading the entire file unless you have a server. I use to be able to do it, maybe when I have time, I will find a way. It was not a busy page, and I needed the server disk space. CIO

Note:<888>7/15/98 Wednesday 2:45 A.M. EDT: I went out at 10:30 P.M. and walked around the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. There was a barricade on Benedict Place to keep people from turning left off Greenwich Avenue. I asked an officer and he said they were doing gas line maintenance around the police station. I walked up to the top of the Avenue and sat on the bench across from the Presbyterian Church. They look like they have finished the curved stone wall on the front of the church. I guess they will now landscape it. I walked back down the Avenue. The Dome restaurant had a few people. That same old gold Buick with the black and gold California plates was there. I guess they gave up their homestead in California when they heard it might fall off in a billion years. I returned down to the bottom of the Avenue. I noticed about a 100 youths coming out of the late night showing of the movie theatre at the train station. I returned to the middle of the Avenue and sat out a while. I noticed that my Air Jordan's have reflectors on the heels, so they can be seen from behind in the dark at night. I drove down by the Greenwich Harbor Inn. There were a lot of Massachusetts cars there. I noticed the black and white Tuxedo cat prowling around the Greenwich Harbor Inn car park. I chatted with the regular night desk attendant about events in Greenwich. I advised her she should replace the light Burberry carpet in the lobby that gets dirty fast with the dark chocolate pattern that does not show the dirt as much. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat and there were a few kids down by the pier viewing the stars. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought two Tony's frozen 4 Cheese pizzas for $4.99 off with a dollar off coupon, Virginia maple cured bacon $1.79, Stauffer's frozen lasagna $2.99, GU raisin bran $2.19, GU 2 % milk $1.67, a large dozen eggs $1.39, for a total of $15.02 plus a $1.10 can return. I returned home and put the groceries away and started my laundry. I am doing the drying now. I will do a little net surfing after I fold the laundry in about 35 minutes. As you can tell Greenwich is pretty slow on Tuesday nights. I guess it is like a busman's holiday. Don't worry from many years of experience I am sure we will be a little busier in the day time tomorrow. CIO

Note:<888>7/31/98 Friday 6:35 P.M. EDT: I went out at about 3 P.M. after doing a bit of internet work. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop. They have some new solid mahogany office furniture that somebody has donated, which is not yet priced. I went by the library and read the computer weekly press and the local Newspaper. I checked out two videotapes, "Shadow Warriors" and "Mission:Impossible". I drove down Greenwich Avenue down by the water. There seems to be a number of young families visiting in town. I drove down by the water and there was the usual amount of waterfront activity. I returned home and a friend will be down at 9 P.M. to stay after finishing work. I had dinner of cold chicken with Tabasco, peas, Ramen noodles, ice tea, and coffee. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I then filed this report. CIO

Note:<888>7/31/98 Friday 1:35 P.M. EDT: I went out for a walk last night at 8:30 P.M.. I chatted with the night custodian at the senior center about observing that deluxe truck parked downtown the night before with "The Associates" written on the side. I told him a good place to hide out in America would be "Truck Stops of America" on Route 90 up in Montana. I don't think there is anything for 500 miles in either direction. The ultimate rest area on the North American continent. Of course it might be a little cold up there in the winter. There were lots of families on vacation walking around downtown. I suppose today is cooler weather, so people are enjoying their vacations more. I observed a local Norwegian motorcycle rider who use to look a bit like James Dean until he seems to have put on more weight. He now looks like a Royal Norwegian Marine. I guess all that fresh Salmon in bulk builds bulk. I observed a local hippie type medical personnel walking down the Avenue with duffle bags to move his sailboat to a safer port in case a hurricane works its way up this way in a week. I commented to a local officer on patrol that the ABC news stats on the odds in the Power Ball said that one has a 1 in 5000 chance of being killed if one drives, and only a 1 in 25,000,000 chance of being killed if you fly. Thus I would assume it is safer to walk around. We had a full force of diners, strollers, movie goers, coffee sippers, and a few youth out observing for their internet reports. The Old Guard seemed to be out in numbers too, since Thursday is usually the cooks night off, so they usually go out to dinner. Well today is suppose to be in the mid 70s. I suppose it will be a good day for the beach. The Hospital Thrift shop had an older Hitachi stereo amplifier that was a pretty good model in its day. I returned back home about 10:30 P.M. and sat up until about 3 A.M.. I was thinking about the Greenwich reservoir system, watershed system, and the original water drainage routes in the town of Greenwich from my local familiarity. I suppose if the Conyers Farm reservoir dam ever gave way in some sort of activity like a minor earthquake, most of the water would run down across upper Lake Avenue down the western side of upper Lake Avenue towards Porchuck Road and down the valley along Riversville Road eventually flowing into the Byram River gorge and down through Glenville, and eventually flooding most of downtown Port Chester before entering the Sound. If the Greenwich Water Company reservoir dam east of Lake Avenue and west of North Street ever gave way most of the water would run down along the creek bed just east of Lake Avenue down through the center of town down to the Sound and also probably run down the along the valley east of the cemetery into the Hosted Lane area running by the Greenwich Academy playing fields and passed the Hospital and down Greenwich Avenue into the Sound. If the reservoir north of the Parkway overflowed I don't think it has a dam, but flows into the Water Company dam reservoir, but that might actually divert its contents into the Sandwich Valley area running down long the gorge west of Stanwich Road into the lower Greenwich Country Club area flooding the high school and the Millbrook area before emptying out into the Bruce Park area into the Sound. If the Mianus River dam gave away, its escaping water might have enough force to take out the U.S. 1 bridge over the Mianus River flooding the Mianus River harbor area, and theoretically the escaping water might have enough force to dislodge the I 95 Joseph Morano Bridge over the Harbor along with the railroad bridge. Thus though I assume the local reservoir dams are maintained and in good shape in the area, one should survey what major water reservoir properties lie upland from property one owns or are interested in purchasing in Greenwich. Moreover the Conyers Lake reservoir I believe is fed by underground spring or river that might be connected with the reservoir system up along I 684 which hold substantial water for the New York reservoir system, all of which is held back by the formidable dam in Valhalla, New York made of substantial masonry blocks. If that ever gave way, I believe most of that reservoir systems water would run down the existing river bed north of White Plains into Terrytown, New York where KLM and the Marriott and other office parks exist along the access route. I am not sure about these observations, one would have to look at a proper geographical survey of the area, to see where the natural water and river drainage areas are. Of course the reservoirs up around 684 are fed by the extensive drainage area north of it. Thus if the Conyers reservoir is fed by an underground River theoretically it could have much more water behind it if water were allowed to flow naturally releasing the contents of that entire reservoir system north of 684. When I use to swim in Conyers reservoir in my mid 20s in the mid 1970s, there were large cold spots coming up in the center of the reservoir where the water was entering into the reservoir. Thus since the existing Conyers Farm reservoir and dam prevent the high water reservoirs from relieving their contents into the underground river or spring, they drain towards Valhalla. However, if the Conyers Farm Dam ever gave way, conceivably the contents of the upper reservoirs along 684 might drain underground into the existing drainage area into the Byram River gorge. Yes it would be a lot of water flowing down into Port Chester, New York. I sit about 45 feet above Port Chester, so I guess I am relatively safe in that eventuality. Well it is a nice day, so I might read the internet news and go out in the afternoon after I clean up. CIO Note:<888>7/30/98 Thursday 7:55 A.M. EDT: I stayed up until 8 A.M. this morning doing a little system work. I went to bed and got up at 1 P.M.. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop and they have a variety of new merchandise. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I returned home directly and met up with a friend who will be staying for a while until he relocates. I drove up to Wilton with him and picked up one of his cars and returned it here. He is moving down here tomorrow. I drove back and had cold chicken with Tabasco sauce, Ramen noodles, corn on the cob, ice tea, and I am now drinking a cup of coffee. I updated Scott's Index today, it was up a bit mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I will go out shortly after I finish my coffee. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>7/30/98 Thursday 5:45 A.M. EDT: Downloading The Banking Insider CIO

Note:<888>7/30/98 Thursday 3:40 A.M. EDT: After a delicious dinner of Purdue chicken, corn on the cob, Ramen noodles, and ice tea; I went out about 2 A.M.. I sat out in front of the senior center. Bette Davis is now driving another car a black Lincoln and is camped out there still. I drank my coffee in front of the senior center, and I am a bit wired, but I will have to go to bed by 6 A.M. to be up at 1 P.M.. I chatted with one of the two Power Washers steam cleaning the front of Starbuck and the sidewalks in front of the place. They should do that to the rest of Greenwich Avenue. It is looking really filthy. I chatted with the two janitors getting out from cleaning the movie theatre, and I suggested that they have the owner steam clean the front of the railroad movie theatre. I also suggested to them that the owner of Planet Pizza deposit his garbage in the dumpster on the side of the movie theatre instead of in front of the building which unsightly or use Waste Management brown dumpster containers like some of the other merchants do on Greenwich Avenue. Leaving garbage out in plastic bags attacks rats and other vermin. I drove down by the water and chatted with two chauffeurs in front of the General Re building, so I guess Greenwich Capital is working late tonight. I drove down by the water and a couple of fisherman were still out there. The IBM house on the water is well lit up. I noticed a black or gray and white two tone 1956 circa Chevy Coupe driving down the Avenue. I noticed a long dark blue stretch Lincoln livery vehicle run the Stop sign in front of Starbucks. I guess a lot of our regular drivers have to get use to the new signage on Greenwich Avenue. I noticed the black and white tuxedo cat earlier this evening around the Greenwich Harbor Inn. I noticed another black and white partially Tuxedo cat with half white face checking out the garbage in front of one of the apartment entrances around Zyn stationary. I returned home wired on coffee and filed this report. I really should not have had another cup of coffee, it will mess up my sleeping schedule. Well the usual patrols are out, and it seems to be a quiet night in town. Not much to report on the New Amsterdam night watch from the Byram observer on Greenwich Avenue. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>7/30/98 Thursday 1:00 A.M. EDT: News Item: SEC Creates Office of Internet Enforcement for any young yuppies contemplating net fraud, and don't want to serve time in the French Club Med Resort called "Devil's Island", one should study up on the SEC rules governing stock trading commerce and inside trading and other minor laws some group of government regulators seem to think are sort of important. Well in the long run, the lawyers always seem to make a penny or two. CIO

Note:<888>7/30/98 Thursday 12:25 A.M. EDT: I put the Dolphin background wallpaper on my computer desktop Royceart Wallpaper . I went out at 10 P.M. and drove downtown. The Power Ball lines were all cleared out, but about 7 television trucks were still around town. I saw the Chief of Police smoking a cigarette in front of Zyn stationary. I drove down by the water and there were a few people enjoying the sound breezes. I went back up town and sat in front of the senior center and drank a Sprite. I walked down Greenwich Avenue, and the police had dispersed the crowds in front of Zyns, and the television trucks were doing their wrap-up news stories. I went around town and it was very quiet for a change. I returned up toward the center of town and returned to the car and drove down to the Greenwich Harbor Inn and used the restroom. I drove back down by the water and there were a couple of fisherman there. I drove to the Grand Union and returned a $1.20 in cans. I chatted with a local proprietor of a pizza parlor that had a store across from a lottery stand. I purchased a dozen eggs for $1.39, Early Morning Bacon $1.50, and a Purdue Chicken at .69 a pound for $4.60 for a total of $7.49 less $1.20 can return for a total of $6.29. I returned home and started the Purdue chicken and it should be finished at 1:30 A.M.. I turned on the midnight channel 12 local Connecticut news and they gave out the Power Ball numbers

07/29/98 Date

08

39

43

45

49

PB 13

www.powerball.com . They had the usual news stories about Greenwich Power Ball, and the Connecticut Lottery has decided to terminate Power Ball in Greenwich for the remaining of this Power Ball game if by a 10% chance somebody has not won. They will not know until the computers sort out the numbers in the morning. Well I will do a little net work before having dinner in a little over an hour. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>7/29/98 Wednesday 8:55 A.M. EDT: I was up at 9 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast and sifted through my email. I went to bed at 1 P.M. until 5 P.M. while running "Maintenance Wizard" on my computer. I started a complete backup which just finished. I had a light dinner of pasta fraise and ice tea and coffee for dinner and watched ABC evening news. I posted Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I will go out shortly to see the remains of Power Ball in the area. The Power Ball stores are suppose to close at 10 P.M. Well have a good evening. I have to drive up to Wilton tomorrow afternoon with a friend to retrieve a car and return it down here. It is warm, buggy, and muggy out this evening. Tomorrow is suppose to be cooler and Friday is suppose to be much cooler about 75 degrees F.. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>7/29/98 Wednesday 1:15 A.M. EDT: Download complete. I have been studying this link which might be of interest to people along the ocean in the Caribbean, lets follow it over the next week and see how it develops NRL Monterey Tropical Cyclone Homepage , I could feel it in my bones. CIO

Note:<888>7/28/98 Tuesday 11:30 P.M. EDT: I restarted the previous mentioned download twice, it is still going with about 1 1/2 hours to go. I went downtown at 8:30 P.M. and returned Peter Norton's Win98 book and Win98 for dummies at the library. The Shell Station had the usual Power Ball lines. I read the local paper. I went downtown at 9 P.M. and bought a buy four packs get one free of Marlboro 100 Lights for $11.60. I drove down Steamboat Road and noticed the sailboat from the Guernsey Islands is back in port. I parked in the center of Greenwich Avenue and chatted with the night custodian at the senior center. I walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue and the Power Ball stores were all closed, so it was the usual quiet evening in Greenwich. Tomorrow night hopefully the last night of Power Ball the Power Ball stores are scheduled to close at 10 P.M.. We are suppose to have an observer from Governor Rowland's office in town, and I saw a car with a Rowland bumper sticker on it. I noticed lots of State Police departing town. I exchanged casual conversation with some of the regulars downtown. I drove back down Steamboat Road and observed the weather for a spell, and it finally dawned on me this is perfect hurricane weather. It feels like a low pressure system drawing in a tropical depression off the Ivory Coast of Africa. One would have to look at my page of Satellite Photos and Life Cam Links to see if there is a satellite photo out there, I believe GOES 8 has a photo of the west coast of Africa where the hurricanes form. I returned back up town and mentioned it to a few people. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a half gallon of 2% milk for $1.67. I returned home and told my suspicions to a couple of neighbors and filed this report. Thus I don't plan to go out tomorrow until after 10 P.M.. It was suppose to have been really bad today with wall to wall traffic. Well have a good evening, while I go back to downloading. CIO

Note:<888>7/28/98 Tuesday 6:25 P.M. EDT: 3 to 4 hour download for the MS STG MS SAPI SDK 4.0 Suite Development Kit Download 45 meg. CIO

Note:<888>7/28/98 Tuesday 6:10 P.M. EDT: Microsoft Speech Technology Links STG , Speech Technology Group CIO

Note:<888>7/28/98 Tuesday 5:00 P.M. EDT: I was up at 8 A.M. this morning and had breakfast of bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, orange and grapefruit juice, and coffee. I watched a little morning news and made a couple of phone calls. I heard that the Power Ball is expected to be worse today and many people are sleeping on the streets overnight in Greenwich waiting for the Power Ball stores to open in the morning. About 12 stores are selling up to 50,000 tickets a day. I heard on the local news that the town was thinking about closing down the turnpike entrances into town, and encouraging the PowerBallers to drive further east into the state of Connecticut. I have not been out in two days. I went back to bed and was up around 12:30 P.M. and had more pasta fraise. I watched a Channel 91 Romance Channel with Richard Chamberlain about espionage in Switzerland. It was discontinued after one part, so I guess the next part will be showed tomorrow. I went back to bed and was awoken about 4:30 P.M. by a relative who was visiting with other relatives in Idaho and it is raining there. I asked the relative to pick me up a Power Ball ticket there if they sell it there. I don't know if I will venture out, since it is the end of the month and as usual I am low on funds, so I don't have much to do but sit on a bench on Greenwich Avenue and watch the PowerBallers or go to the library. I will do a little computer work for a while. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm today. It was down over 1.8%. Microsoft took a big hit Bill Gates Personal Wealth Clock with Bill Gates losing a couple of billion dollars. I guess the local financial community is sizing up the PowerBallers on the street and they are selling their portfolios. Well have a good day, and enjoy the evening. I might go out after 10 P.M. when most of the Power Ball stores close. CIO

Note:<888>7/28/98 Tuesday 12:20 A.M. EDT: No I wasn't kidnapped by PowerMad PowerBallers. I took an hour nap after the last message. I then checked out some of the featured programs on the Microsoft Windows 98 Resource Kit Book Cdrom that I checked out of the library. There are two dictation programs on it, and it took a while to go thru voice training the programs. They seem to work quite well, but I am not sure whether I will use them. There are also a lot of Microsoft utilities for Win98 and an excellent design program on the Cdrom. I am a bit bushed, so maybe I will go to bed without having ventured outside today. Well have a good night. CIO

Note:<888>7/27/98 Monday 4:35 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm

. I had a light snack. Time to take a nap. CIO

Note:<888>7/27/98 Monday 3:25 P.M. EDT: Microsoft Windows Update fix for Outlook Express Attachment Problem available on Win98 update. CIO

Note:<888>7/27/98 Monday 3:20 P.M. EDT: Sherlock Holmes deductive reasoning. If we have about 10 lottery sites and each sells about 15,000 to 10,000 tickets, that is $100,000 to $150,000 lottery sales. Divide average customer purchase into say 10 tickets, that is 10,000 to 15,000 people lining up each day to buy tickets, which is one fourth the size of the town of Greenwich, not to mention the lottery sites are in busy areas, so one can figure one would need to increase the police force and other public safety services by about 25% town wide, however we get at least an equal number of people coming through looking at lottery sites and going further east to less busy locations, which creates additional traffic. Overall I would say that the town would have at least a 50% increase in traffic from the Power Ball activity, not to mention the usual increase of summer traffic this time of year. CIO

Note:<888>7/27/98 Monday 3:15 P.M. EDT: I created a second IBM mail account alias besides mailto:mikescott@ibm.net , I also have mailto:mikescott1@ibm.net . Well I don't get that much email anyway. I hope all the visitors in town are having a fun time. I am just hanging in the old apartment kicking back on the internet doing my thing. Not much to report on when one is inside. Time for a bite to eat of reheated pasta fraise. CIO

Note:<888>7/27/98 Monday 1:15 P.M. EDT: For $250 Million, Convenience Stores Beat Day at Beach Greenwich, Connecticut Power Ball Story New York Times . CIO

Note:<888>7/27/98 Monday 12:50 P.M. EDT: Lotus SmartSuite Millennium Edition by Lotus Development Corporation - $396.95 CIO

Note:<888>7/27/98 Monday 12:10 P.M. EDT: RADIO ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT Saturday, July 25, 1998 President Speaks on Global Warming. CIO

Note:<888>7/27/98 Monday 12:10 A.M. EDT: I went out at 9 P.M. and parked downtown in the middle of the Avenue. I observed a new black Audi lose its front bumper and have its radiator bust when the driver pulled out of their parking place at the last parking spot on the left side in front of the senior center across from Starbucks. Apparently the new cars with their lower front end spoilers have them catch on the higher curbs when people park on a angle on Greenwich Avenue. A German American Steamboat Road resident also observed the incident and we chatted about technology in America. I have frequently observed the diagonal parking on the Avenue also damages the left front or right front radial sidewalls on tires when they hit the sharp edges of the curbs, thus creating a time bomb situation for the residents jeopardizing their safety over time since either of the front tires could have sidewall failure on a highway from a curb cut anytime. A family member had their Mercedes bumper damaged last weekend while they were here, possibly from the same type of hazard. Thus the quaint folk of Greenwich who think they know it all, but don't know anything about proper safety systems engineering should probably fork over some precious Greenwich Green for a safety evaluation in the town. Moreover, since Connecticut is one of the primary insurance locations in the nation, it would seem that insurance people are not doing their proper job on evaluating safety hazards in this area. I guess so much is right in front of us, no one every notices it. After chatting with the German American I finished my coffee out of the thermos, and walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue and chatted with Kennedy Security across from the train station. The movie theatre across from the train station was closed, but the Greenwich Avenue Movie theatre was showing "Saving Private Ryan" which seemed to be busy and should let out about midnight. It was not too busy this evening and it seems like a lot of people would prefer to be on an earlier schedule. Bette Davis is resting on a bench in front of the senior center now. I returned back up the Avenue and about 11 P.M. the tow truck arrived to tow the Audi and its occupants departed. A younger brother of one of our local heroes who moved to Virginia a number of years ago showed up downtown to buy a newspaper. His older brother asked me to keep an eye on the younger brother 23 years ago. He seems to have grown up and is close to 40 now, so I guess he and the rest of their clan are still around. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and there were a few wharf rats out. I returned back home about 11:45 P.M. and filed this report. Not much more to report on the local scene. I suppose the next three days will be Power Ball Days. I think the Connecticut Towns to the east of us are less busy at their lottery sites. If one is looking to get a Power Ball ticket the best option might be the Food Emporium in the morning whenever their machine goes online. There were about 500 people lined up at the Shell Station when I went out this evening at 9 P.M.. Well as far as I can tell Greenwich is still in its summer swing with a number of visitors and city folk and regulars going about their normal routines. Of course with a million people traveling through town every day, anyone could show up in the crowd, so be vigilant and keep a sharp eye out for government officials from other states who might be checking out on the way the local government money is being spent, not to mention foreign observers whom might be trying to learn from us. Well have a good night, and I will probably do a little net surfing this morning, before going to bed. CIO

Note:<888>7/26/98 Sunday 8:55 P.M. EDT: I went out at 3:30 P.M. and drove downtown. The PowerBallers were out in force. I parked at the Island Beach parking lot and took the 4 P.M. ferry to Island Beach. I enjoyed watching the people enjoy themselves on the waterfront. As we entering into the outer harbor, I heard either two or three shotgun type blasts about 4:10 P.M. coming from the terrace of a former IBM executive's house who use to be Jimmy Carter's ambassador to Russia. I noticed a cloud of smoke around the terrace. The flag was not flying, so I don't think they were home, so perhaps a housekeeper or gardener was using some sort of device to scare the geese off the lawn on the harbor to prevent their droppings from messing up the lawn. There was a flock of geese on the lawn. I road the rest of the way out to Island Beach, and remained on board while the rest of the passengers departed. I was on the top deck. On the ferry boat filled up with returning passengers, we returned to the harbor with a full load. I departed the ferry dock and returned to my car and drove down the waterside roads to Tod's Point. Tod's Point was busy and I walked around the three mile walk enjoying the cool to moderate evening air. I returned to the concession area and saw a fellow with a little of my look speaking Portuguese. I departed the beach saying good day to a British sounding lady in a Black BMW with a handicap parking sticker on it. I noticed a Dutch lawyer leaving the beach. I drove back west on the waterside roads and returned to downtown Greenwich and bought a buy four get one free of Marlboro lights for $11.60 at the stationary store on the left at the bottom of the Avenue. The Power Ball lines were gone on the Avenue because the vendor, Zyns and the one across from the train station had closed. It was the normal evening strollers and diners. I drove down by the Greenwich Harbor Inn and they looked like they were having a large party on the Harbor. I returned and I saw Power Ball lines at the Food Emporium on West Putnam Avenue and the Shell Station also on West Putnam Avenue. I returned home and boiled three types of pasta and made a Ragu Parmesan cheese sauce mix with a jar of it and a half cup of wine, chopped zucchini, onion, and herbs and spices. After they were ready I mixed the pasta with the sauce and have enough for several days after having dinner. I made coffee and put it in my thermos and will go out and enjoy it shortly. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>7/26/98 Sunday 3:30 P.M. EDT: I was up at 11 P.M., and I did my house cleaning and watered the plants. I checked with the White House Secret Service Intelligence Division and gave them a briefing about what is going on up here, but they said they are busy down there. There number is 1-202-435-5000. Somebody from Greenwich use to answer that phone, but I guess the government people are not worried about people who live in Greenwich. They said they would check with the State Department to make sure any of their protectees are all right. I guess they are overwhelmed with summer tourists down there. A family member told me other family members traveling through some Canyon out west with Belgium Tourists were given German camouflage fatigues when it started to rain in the canyon area they were visiting. The Belgium's did not feel like wearing German camouflage rain gear for protection. Well, I have done my house cleaning, and cleaned up, and now I will go out to see what is going on. A family member wants me to buy $5 in Power Ball lottery tickets. I will drive over to Old Greenwich and see if it is less busy, and then maybe stop by Tod's Point. Well have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>7/25/98 Saturday 9:00 P.M. EDT: Nearby Massive Star Cluster Yields Insights Into Early Universe (PR98-25) Great Star Photograph. CIO

Note:<888>7/25/98 Saturday 8:55 P.M. EDT: Capitol shooting suspect was ex-mental patient Interesting Point in Weston Capitol murder and Theodore Kacynski both lived in a few miles of each other in cabins in an old mining area 30 miles south of Helena, Montana. It is interesting to wonder if there is any connection between them or any other parties there. It might be a possible cause of their irrational behavior that it is frequently the case that old Gold Mining Towns have environmental poisoning from large amounts of Cyanide used in Gold Mining. Perhaps both of them were suffering from Cyanide Poisoning in their water which gave them Paranoid Delusions to cause their irrational behavior. It is an interesting point and should be looked into, since it would seem if they lived so close to each other, there is more than a likely chance that there is some common link to their irrational conduct, unless some other parties up there are involved. Well I am bushed and time to relax a bit. CIO

Note:<888>7/25/98 Saturday 8:30 P.M. EDT: Today I was up at 9 A.M.. I drove up to Wilton and helped a friend who is moving put furnishings in a storage locker. I returned at 6:30 P.M. While at the Exxon Station next to the library filling up at 7 P.M., they were having difficulty with a customer and four officers responded. I walked the lower length of Greenwich Avenue and the Power Ball customers were still out. Let's hope somebody wins this evening to reduce the amount of traffic in town. I returned home at 8 P.M. and I will relax and go to bed in a while after doing a little net surfing. CIO

Note:<888>7/24/98 Friday 8:10 P.M. EDT: I will probably go out briefly after 10 P.M. once the Power Ball visitors clear out. Going offline for now. CIO

Note:<888>7/24/98 Friday 7:05 P.M. EDT: I went to bed at 1:30 P.M. and got up at 5:30 P.M. The phone rang once, but nobody was there. I reheated some spaghetti and had ice tea with it. I drank a cup of coffee. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Not much seems to be happening, and since it is hot and crowded out, I am not bothering to go out with all the PowerBallers in circulation. Yes I know about the Capitol Hill Report, but at the same time when one sits inside all day not much is happening here. They had to order a new pump and valve assembly for my Braun Cappuccino Machine, so it won't be ready for two to three weeks. I suppose one can not let other outside events, effect ones perspective of maintaining a level headed perspective, particularly since it is necessary to keeps ones senses tuned around here. I might have to go up to Wilton tomorrow morning to help move some pictures. Well have a quiet evening. CIO

Note:<888>7/24/98 Friday 1:10 P.M. EDT: Trump Hotels & Casino Resorts hit the net. CIO

Note:<888>7/24/98 Friday 12:55 P.M. EDT: 'CDA II' Passed in Senate CIO

Note:<888>7/24/98 Friday 12:45 P.M. EDT: Political News from Wired News Dutch Investigate CIO

Note:<888>7/24/98 Friday 12:40 P.M. EDT: Up at 9 A.M., I had bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice, and coffee for breakfast. I am surfing the net and working on my email. This interesting site came up for career minded government employees whom might have the right skills CIA Computer Employment Opportunities . CIO

Note:<888>7/24/98 Friday 2:20 A.M. EDT: If you see any of these darlings in the lottery lines, please don't invite them back for tea FBI's Ten Most Wanted Fugitives CIO

Note:<888>7/24/98 Friday 2:20 A.M. EDT: Prince looks for family's lost tea, try Marblehead, Massachusetts Prince Andrew touts Internet access for everyone CIO

Note:<888>7/24/98 Friday 1:20 A.M. EDT: Melting glacier could raise sea level , look for ocean front property at 20 foot higher elevation, there goes the Manhattan, Nantucket, Key West, and Greenwich ocean front property. Problem with the story they don't tell how soon it will happen, or for a curious Dutchmen whether there will be time to transfer the contents of the Netherlands to higher ground. Well maybe the Dutch will make a fortune on building Dykes off this environmental nightmare if it happens. Invest in Dutch Dyke Enterprises. I went out after the last message, and around 10 P.M. and Royal Dutch Shell down the street had about 300 people lined up to buy tickets as they were closing. I thought it would be good free advertising for the oil companies if the local media covered the oil station Power Ball sites giving them a free publicity after they have been so generous in lowering oil prices recently. If some oil guru I know raised gasoline to $8 a gallon like in Europe, I am sure a number of locals and neighbors would not waste so much money and oil buying lottery tickets, and more over they would learn to have more respect for pedestrians and other people who don't drive too much or at all. I remember a Renault behind the Palace in Amsterdam that was a nice green color that got over 65 miles a gallon, and the entire four days I was there before the winter Olympics in Albertville, it never moved. The Dutch know a bit about conservation, and would prefer to save their energy for staying warm in the winter, as opposed to wasting it on foolish adventures. Well, lets see what happens next. I went downtown and walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue, I chatted with a couple whom are frequently downtown. I noticed quite a few young kids downtown. Bette Davis is still camping out. I suppose she will do the same to anybody showing up in her home town. Let's hope not the whole Confederacy. I noticed a few young yuppies as usual chowing down at the local restaurants. I would give advise to them to learn to cook, because if you can afford food, you can reward yourself several times a day with an enjoyable meal without the bother of going out in the general public and eating hamburgers all the time. Once your gourmet talents become more advanced, you might have the advantage of more dinner guests. Having helped serve 250 meals a night in the old days, I have certain talents, which many of the other seniors in town have in putting on the feed bag too frequently, and thus I find it frequently necessary to walk in hope of losing a few pounds and to stay in shape. Generally recreation walkers wear sneakers, since they are more comfortable. The fat slob in the bars will be the first to be reconditioned by the new order in the salt mines that we have plenty of in this world. Have you every noticed how many people you once heard of keep disappearing and are never seen again. However, maybe they are just leading quiet family lives in more private areas of the country and enjoying local community activities, and don't want to be bothered by the broadcasters of tourist destinations from around the world. Still we all like to travel sooner or later, so I imagine when the group that passed us going east passes us going west, we will see them more tanned and relaxed and less stressed out. However maybe they plan to keep going further east if they are originally from European origins, and won't need to come back this way again. The long term residents here, seem to survive off the ebb and flow of activity out of the New York area, so they can occasionally afford to go into Manhattan and assault little old ladies in the street, terrorize wall street commuters, kidnap diplomats, litter posh neighborhoods, threaten figures in authority, etc. Remember the road of diplomacy runs two ways. I have tried to be diplomatic, I would recommend our visitors to try the same tactics, and remember some of the services and professions the residents of Greenwich have offered over the years, when they had to time to study and learn their professions in the more quiet environments of the suburbs. Remember smaller people are frequently involved in the medical profession, and they don't pretend to be professional athletes. After walking the entire length of Greenwich Avenue, I drove down by the water, and on the way down the Avenue, I noticed quite a few youngsters coming out of the movie theatres, all very well behaved. The most common people seen on Greenwich Avenue walking around late at night are Greenwich Hospital Personnel who reverse commute coming and going from the train station and the hospital. Remember medical personnel don't look like movie stars, but your ordinary cross section of the general population, but frequently are much more tired and burned out since they frequently put in long days in the medical profession. Well time for some shuteye on this side of town. Over and out. CIO

Note:<888>7/23/98 Thursday 9:35 P.M. EDT: I folded the laundry, and I put it away. I received the Microsoft Windows 98 Discount Coupons today, I might be able to use the fourth night free Marriott coupons up in Maine, but I don't know if there is a Marriott hotel in the Kennebunkport area, but I believe there is one in Portland, Maine. There is a Days Inn next to the Biddeford exit of the Maine turnpike which might be reasonable. Also the Wells area south of Kennebunkport, might have less expensive motels $60 a night along Route 1. They usually advertise their prices on the motel signs. Kennebunkport can be a little pricey, and I don't believe a lot of the posh hotels have Air Conditioning which might be necessary if you're use to cooler weather. Well I am going to leave the BBC internet playing through the stereo while I go out for a stroll, in case any Anglophiles sneak in. CIO

Note:<888>7/23/98 Thursday 8:35 P.M. EDT: I got up at 2 P.M.. I showered and made my 3 P.M. appointment. I went over to the Hospital Thrift Shop and they have the usual cross section of merchandise. We had a shower while I slept and it soaked the PowerBallers. I drove downtown and observed the Power Ball lines. About 100 to 300 people in each of the two lines on the Avenue, the stationary store on the bottom left had side of the Avenue quit selling them. I drove down by the water. I went by the library and read the local newspapers and the two of the computer newsweeklies. I was advised by a local professional observer that the local Town Hall is up in Arms about all this Power Ball activity that is draining the town resources. I went back up town and walked around the Power Ball crowds, and I noticed we had not brought in the military police, but it is the same people, but they are just wearing baseball caps which make them look like military policeman or SWAT team members. The look meaner in the baseball caps. I guess they use to wear the pith helmets from the old days in Bombay when the British served in the overseas corps. The baseball caps are suppose to be cooler and have better shade over the eyes. I never wear a cap usually myself, because it messes up my natural senses. I do wear an Icelandic knit cap in the winter when it is down below 10 degrees F. usually. I did not observe many out of families traveling today, I guess they are mostly at their eastern points of destination. I drove down by the water and chatted with a Cuban fisherman who is selling sodas at the bottom of Steamboat Road. A local law enforcement officer might check to see if he has a vendors license. However, he wears a New York City Policeman's hat and I think he is good presence down there, since he does mind sitting out in the heat all day. I doubt if many people would want to do it. He does not seem to understand the Kings English very well, since English is his second language. He told me the bunker are back, and I told him something bigger than the bunker like a "Killer Whale" might be out there, but it is my personal opinion that the waters of the sound might be two shallow for such a large mammal. I guess one would have to check with the Norwalk Aquarium about what the largest predator species is in Long Island Sound, probably pollution, or hypoxia. As I finished chatting, it started downpouring for a half hour. I will have a house guest for a few weeks starting next Wednesday, and may travel up to Maine for a few days during the second week of August to visit family members. The conventional wisdom around here is that our older summer residents are major stockholders, but also the people who live here year round have the best viewpoint in terms of local activity and the ebb and tide of the town. Many daytime commuters are use to dealing with the large pedestrian crowds in Manhattan, and I have seen longer lines at subway kiosks than at the Power Ball lines, however, the downtown merchants are losing substantial business revenue, and I would advise the town fathers to terminate all Power Ball activities in the Town of Greenwich, Quid Pro Quo. Ultimately the taxpayers of the town of Greenwich run the town, not the Out of Town Neighbors, it is within the jurisdiction and jurisprudence of the town to terminate such activity any time they may deem it fit and proper. I returned home and made mrscott.com/icetea.htm and had reheat spaghetti for dinner. I chatted with my neighbors coming in. I am doing my laundry and I am on the dry cycle with about a half hour to go. I once visited Newport, Rhode Island this time of year besides living on Nantucket, and there are always particularly in Newport, a large party of people on the wharfs having a good time enjoying summer beverages, and the ocean breezes with an ample marine view of the waterfront activity which is part of the Newport scene. Well back to the net. I will post Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm when I post this brief message. CIO

 Note:<888>7/23/98 Thursday 10:25 A.M. EDT: Time for a short nap before my 3 P.M. appointment. CIO

Note:<888>7/23/98 Thursday 9:40 A.M. EDT: The Times: Court Page: Prince Andrew meets with WWW consortium in Boston, winging his way through Connecticut chopper factory yesterday CIO

Note:<888>7/23/98 Thursday 8:00 A.M. EDT: I went out yesterday afternoon about 2:20 P.M.. I walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. I ran into a young Dutch traveler returning from soccer camp in Pennsylvania who came out here to have his ticket adjusted. He was going to take the train back into New York and catch the bus to JFK airport. Instead I helped him carry his luggage and walked him down to the Greenwich Harbor Inn where he caught the 4:40 P.M. airport limousine to JFK for $33. He was catching a 10 P.M. British Airways flight to Shiphol Airport in Amsterdam. He road in the limo with another student from England. His name was Mark Harmon from Hendahoven in the Netherlands and he spoke English very well. He was kicked out of soccer camp for punching another camp attendee. He stuck out as a Dutchman since he was wearing a football jersey from the World's largest electronics company Philips. It was good to see another fellow Dutchmen in this next to the woods outside of New Amsterdam. He was very cheerful and a little hot carrying about a 100 pounds of luggage. He looked at hockey jerseys at the local sports store Rink and Racket, but they were too expensive. One of the Fox television people covering the Power Ball mania here along with six other networks followed us down to the hotel for some odd reason. I dare say with all the security at the airports, they had just enough time before their departures. I walked back up the Avenue and the media had three television tower trucks with towers erected to cover the Power Ball out here at Zyn stationary. We had additional security downtown that looked like military policemen. I chatted with a visiting Russian in the park about Tectonics, he had the same look as Bill Clinton, but with a long beard. I told him where the CIA headquarters were in New York along with other points of interests for Russian travelers. He said he want to visit Hartford. He was carrying one of those large square briefcases like government employees carry, and like what the security people are always worrying about that could carry one of those miniature Russian briefcase Nuclear bombs, they make for about $250,000 apiece. He said I looked like a lot of Russians, and if I went to Red Square I would blend right in. We discussed tectonics and volcanology for quite a while, and he was quite knowledgeable and well educated. I noticed the Bette Davis look alike sleeping on the bench next to the veterans monument, and the custodian at the senior center said she could sleep inside there for a while. I returned home at 7:30 P.M. and went to bed at 9:30 P.M.. Lets hope Power Ball is over for now. I will surf the web this morning, and I have a 3 P.M. appointment this afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>7/22/98 Wednesday 2:10 P.M. EDT: Bill Gates memo to staff Microsoft - Press Pass Feature Story Bill Gates Memo to Employees 7/21/98 CIO

Note:<888>7/22/98 Wednesday 2:00 P.M. EDT: Russians launch new moon to help them see the light , Russians steal the night. CIO

Note:<888>7/22/98 Wednesday 12:55 P.M. EDT: I went downtown last night at about 10 P.M.. I walked around as the Powerball crowd was thinning out. It was hot as Hades and still is. I noticed a few young yuppies having dinner at Thataway. I chatted with a local observer from Florida. I saw about 20 youngsters coming out of the movie theatre. I chatted with a senior gal who was downtown observing the crowd that looked like the famous actress Bette Davis. She was dressed up in white like a nurse and driving a white Cadillac. Whomever she was waiting to see, probably would have liked to see her. She said she lived up the road in Bridgeport and there was not much theatrical work available there. He hair was in a blond page boy look, and she did looked like Bette Davis in real life if you have ever seen her. I told her about various Davis family activities I know of, such as Jefferson Davis, Nancy Davis Reagan whose father Dr. Liola Davis was the top neurosurgeon in America, Ziff Davis Publishing, Davis Street in Greenwich, and as any in attorney in Manhattan would tell you the second largest law firm in Manhattan, I believe is Davis, Polk, Wardwell. Thus the Davis families have a few minor resources at their disposal. I believe Bette Davis was also Howard Hughes favorite on the old RKO lot. When I returned home at 1:30 A.M., I called 203-869-1000 and chatted with Kennedy Security and told them they should make sure she is all right. I went to bed shortly thereafter and got up at 7 A.M. this morning. After breakfast of bacon, scrambled eggs, healthnut toast, orange and grapefruit juice, vitamins, and coffee, I went out without showering since it is so hot. I stopped by the

Arnold Discount Outlet store in Byram and bought two loaves of Healthnut bread for $2.58 for both. I drove downtown on Railroad Avenue and swung down Steamboat Road. The morning fishermen were out. I parked at the middle of Greenwich Avenue and walked down to one stationary store that was not yet selling Power Ball tickets and bought one buy two get one free Parliament lights for $5.80. I returned to the center of Greenwich Avenue and told the Fox Channel Five news casters he should keep a sharp eye out for a Dark Blue Bentley Sedan with a Paul Allen look-alike that that look like Jerry Garcia with long dark hair driving it, that is a better news story. He told me I mispronounced Medellin Drug Cartel, I say it like a short e he says like a long a. I know quite a few Columbian citizens work quite hard in this area, at the Greenwich Library, Exxon Gas Station, Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop, and the Coffee Tree Coffee Bar, The Food Emporium, and I would imagine a florist since they are the second largest exporter of Flowers in the world after the Dutch. I write this as I enjoy my coffee. I sat outside at the Senior Center and told a couple of volunteers there how Wiley Middleton with Claude Pepper had started the "Grey Panthers" political lobby down in Florida a number of years ago, and it is the largest political lobby in the country. I walked back down the street and returned. I notice somebody that looks like a former president who is a famous actor. I noticed a dude that looked like me 20 years ago. It might be a relative. I went by Putnam Trust Bank of New York and withdrew funds, and told the floor manager about a friend of mine who wants a job in Corporate Security. Another floor officer told me that since the money machine always runs out of cash on weekends and holidays, they're going to start using $50 dollar bills in it instead of $20s. I guess we have a large cash community in town, since nobody likes paying high credit card rates. I told him they have advanced ATM machines that issue not only cash, but stamps, and money orders and much more, but knowing that bank, they don't want to invest in a new machine. I guess we will see a lot of $50 "Grants" floating around. The Grant Homestead is up in South Salem, New York I believe. I have driven by it many times. Mark Twain published Grant's biography to pay for it. I would imagine members of the Grant family are still around. I told the bank security guard I would never sell IBM or Microsoft stock while about 5 people were standing around me. I also told them that one can transfer a trillion dollars to Switzerland for less than the cost of a postage stamp, with modern wire services. I went over to the Hospital Thrift Shop and they were not busy. They were just taking in a Cuisine Art Machine but it looked like it might be faulty and risky to use. I don't know that much about them, but they use to be another local company. I saw some old typewriters, word processing machines, old computers, lot of bric a brac, and of course they have a large complete selection of women's clothing, if you are not too large. Greenwich women tend not to be too heavy compared to the rest of the country. I then went by the Greenwich Library and the newspaper was not there. I decided to read the weekly computer publications later. I went by the Grand Union and was asked where to buy a Power Ball ticket by a fellow in a Cadillac, and I told him the Food Emporium. I also chatted downtown with a Greenwich maintenance man who was trying to get rid of all the cigarette butts on the Avenue. I suggested the town buy a water canon like they use in Europe to clean the streets. They hose down the first story, the sidewalks, the cars, water the greenery all in one sweep. They usually use them in the early morning hours when not many people are walking around, but they keep a clean street. I also told him I tell people to throw their cigarette butts in the street since the street sweeper comes by regularly in the evening. I saw a former senator's former wife in the Grand Union along with many other locals. I bought GU raisin bran for $1.99, GU large eggs $1.39, Armour Bacon $2.29, GU lemon juice $2.19, GU whole milk half gallon $1.67, I Can't Believe

It's Not Butter $1.29, two Tropicana Orange Tangerine Juice for $2.50 apiece, two ears of corn for .50, one 12 pack diet Sprite for $1.99, one 12 pack diet Coke for $1.99, plus $1.20 deposit for $21.74. While returning my cart, one local volunteer was blocked in by another car, so local citizens when they park should make sure they don't block the driver's door of an adjacent car. He was really ticked off trying to squeeze into his car. I returned home and put the groceries away and had a Diet Dr. Pepper, and Ramen noodles for lunch, ice tea, and I am now having coffee. I checked with some friends to make sure the Bette Davis look-alike is all right. Well I am sure it is hot out still, I did notice the Island Beach Ferry Boat is running every hour on the hour if you want to brave the heat of the day. I noticed one prominent structure in town had a vehicle parked in front of it last night that said "ARMY" in the window, so I guess we are well protected. Well enough Constant Comment, back to Netville, USA. CIO

Note:<888>8/7/98 Friday 9:00 P.M. EDT: I was up until about 10:30 A.M. this morning. I received one family call and also a call from the Greenwich Police Athletic League soliciting funds for kids to keep them off the streets. I explained at the moment, I needed my spare funds for food. I was back up at 2 P.M.. I had breakfast of raisin bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I did not go out and just relaxed around the apartment. My house guest arrived here at 6 P.M.. One of my neighbors left a pot on the stove while she was sitting out having a beer, and it set off the fire alarm. The canary in her apartment survived, and there is the faint smell of burnt aluminum in the building. I went out with my house guest at 7 P.M.. We toured the waterfront. The Greenwich Harbor Inn had the usual Friday night Yuppie party on the harbor. I noticed one sailboat from Mystic, one from Oyster Bay, and a large cigarette boat from Oyster Bay. I asked the Oyster Bay yachtsman on the sailboat if they had seen anyone whom looked like me in Oyster Bay, since people along the waterfront are always telling me someone looks like me in Oyster Bay. They said they had. They said Sagamore Hill was still there. I told the Oyster Bay yachtsman, I had not been in Oyster Bay in fifteen years, although I was last on Long Island a few years ago. I went to the Grand Union with my house guest and he bought us roast beef sandwiches already made up in the deli department, and pasta salad. I also bought 3 Hagen Daz for $3.09 together with the coupon from the managers desk, 3 Whisk Liquid detergent for $3.99 for all three, and two John Morrell bacon packages for .99 each for a total of $9.30. We returned and had the sandwiches and pasta for dinner. We are having coffee now. I will go out for a walk a little while after coffee. My house guest wants to retire early. I have tentative plans to travel up to Kennebunkport, Maine area next Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Coke was up 10% up seven points today. Well have a nice evening. CIO

Note:<888>8/7/98 Friday 6:35 A.M. EDT: Worst Case Scenario CIO

Note:<888>8/7/98 Friday 5:50 A.M. EDT: IBM Web Sphere Software CIO

Note:<888>8/7/98 Friday 4:10 A.M. EDT: mrscott.com/weather.htm I added a few links to my weather page. CIO

Note:<888>8/7/98 Friday 3:45 A.M. EDT: Atlantic Season Hurricane Forecast CIO

Note:<888>8/7/98 Friday 3:40 A.M. EDT: NASA GHCC Interactive Global Geostationary Weather Satellite Image Viewer CIO

Note:<888>8/7/98 Friday 3:35 A.M. EDT: NASA/MSFC GHCC - Interactive Global Infrared Satellite Data Selector CIO

Note:<888>8/7/98 Friday 3:25 A.M. EDT: University of Colorado Current Satellite Photos and

Hurricane Formation Area Satellite Photo CIO

Note:<888>8/7/98 Friday 3:20 A.M. EDT: I cooked dinner for my house guest of boneless breast of chicken, corn on the cob, green beans, ice tea, and coffee. We went out for a walk about 8 P.M. and walked the full length of Greenwich Avenue. We returned at 10 P.M., and I watched a Channel 13 PBS program on the Queen Mum while my house guest had retired. I went to bed at 11 P.M., and awoke at 2:30 A.M..

Note:<888>8/6/98 Thursday 4:30 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . The market is not doing much, since everyone is out to lunch. Time to clean up. CIO

Note:<888>8/6/98 Thursday 4:05 P.M. EDT: Cheats and Codes Online! CIO

Note:<888>8/6/98 Thursday 3:30 P.M. EDT: TROPICAL PREDICTION

CENTER/NATIONAL HURRICANE CENTER CIO

Note:<888>8/6/98 Thursday 3:25 P.M. EDT: When I using the new Alta Vista search tool this past morning, it left a half inch blank space in my web browser when it opened where the Alta Vista tool bar goes. However when I reopened the web browser without Alta Vista, the tool bar space was still there without the tool bar. Also one could not move or maximize the web browser. By changing the options in Alta Vista search tool bar, I got the web browser maximized, I believe pressing "CTL-Y" sets the web browser to open at its current setting. I was up at 1 P.M., and I had bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, tangerine juice, and coffee for breakfast. After my coffee I will clean up and go out this afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>8/6/98 Thursday 4:08 A.M. EDT: Welcome to Chin Ho! Web Central dudes know about snow. CIO

Note:<888>8/6/98 Thursday 2:45 A.M. EDT: I was thinking since the old Portofino Pub where all the yuppies use to hang out is closed and for rent. The location is across from the United Way. It might make a nice 24 hour a day Internet Cafe. I don't think it would make money, but it would be a novel way to attract weird night owls into town, for the security forces to keep an eye on. Well it is just a thought, for anyone needing to loose money. Yeh that old dive on West Putnam Avenue, just west of the top of Greenwich Avenue. Well Nantucket I believe has an internet cafe, for you webaholics at the beach. So if you get tired of reading Moby Dick down on Nantucket stop by www.nantucket.net and see why so many people forgot their sun screen this summer. Having dwelled on that far away island for extensive periods of time, I suppose, one would have to forgive the longtime residents for being somewhat backwards and antiquated and out of touch with modern practices of communications. Well back to Netville, USA. CIO

Note:<888>8/6/98 Thursday 2:35 A.M. EDT: I studied Windows98.org - The Best Windows 98 Information . I also took my old D: drive 345 megs with no data on it, and made it my swapper file for Win98, setting it up with my 64 meg memory system as a minimum swapper file of 160 megs and maximum 345 megs. This is suppose to make Win98 run faster, but since the swapper drive is older and possibly slower, it might not make a difference. CIO

Note:<888>8/6/98 Thursday 1:05 A.M. EDT: Blame pollution not Mother Nature for wet weekends CIO

Note:<888>8/6/98 Thursday 12:55 A.M. EDT: My house guest returned at 8 P.M.. We had dinner of imitation crab seafood casserole and Romaine lettuce, with olives and onion with herbal dressing, ice tea, and coffee. From 9 P.M. to 10 P.M. we watched the History Channel on the July 9, 1988 Scottish Oil Platform disaster and how it was caused. My house guest retired at 10 P.M. and I went out for a walk down the bottom of Greenwich Avenue and back up to the top and back down to the bottom returning to the center about midnight. I drove down Steamboat

Road and there was a State Department license plate parked at the bottom. I went by the Grand Union and bought 3 Hagen Daz pints of ice cream for $3.09, a half gallon of 2% milk for $1.67, and a pack of 2 GE night lights for $1.79 for a total of $6.66. I commented to the cashier that 666 is a common reoccurring mathematical number, and during the era of Christian persecution in Roman times, it was the Hebrew symbol for the Emperor Nero. The Grand Union does not have any circulars with the coupon for Hagen Daz available, so they gave the discount at the cash register. There were about 20 containers of Hagen Daz left at midnight. I noticed that Greenwich Avenue was quiet. The Avenue pubs were not busy, and the most cars seemed to be at Tucson's on East Putnam Avenue across from the Second Congregational Church. There was no unusual activity to report. I saw the cat with the half black and half white face. I returned home and set up the night light with a fixture in the kitchen, so my guest can see in the dark. I am using a 40 watt fixture by the computer to see while working mostly in the dark. I had a half of pint of Hagen Daz after returning home. Well have a good morning, I will do a little net surfing. CIO

Note:<888>8/5/98 Wednesday 6:40 P.M. EDT: Judge Delays Microsoft Hearing CIO

Note:<888>8/5/98 Wednesday 6:05 P.M. EDT: Web Cam Central CIO

Note:<888>8/5/98 Wednesday 5:30 P.M. EDT: I went out about 2 P.M. today. My Thursday appointment has been cancelled. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York on Mason Street and the place was deserted. I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop. They have a $30 bag sale going on. They still have the usual assortment of merchandise. I went down by the water and there were a bunch of young kids out fishing with their mothers for a change. I drove by the Exxon station next to the library and got $12.25 of premium gasoline. I went by the Greenwich Library and read two of the computer newsweeklies. I commented to one of our local observers that the Russian diamond smugglers should use the Russian diamonds for collateral for World Bank Loans. I also commented that a lot of the so called British investment in the New York area is being fueled by Scottish North Sea Oil, and that the United Kingdom is self sufficient in oil. Also Scottish banks tend to be very conservative. I noticed that they were installing four new computers and monitors and one laser printer on the north side of the periodical reading room. I believe those are the computers with the Cdrom data bases, and not online to the internet, but they certainly could be. I noticed that the library is asking for donations of 500 page of reams of paper to supplement their laser printer output. One can stop by Staples and buy $3.59 500 page reams of paper to donate to the library. I got to thinking they should charge 1 cent a sheet of paper for printouts from the laser printers, and have the honor system with a secure kitty box next to the print out laser printer to collect the funds. I next drove by the Grand Union, and bought two Post Shredded Wheat squares for buy one get one free for $2.99, one Stauffer's Lasagna $2.99, two Celantano 6 ounce pizzas for $1 each thus $2, a package of Purdue boneless breast of chicken for $2.99 a pound for $3.95, a pound of Early morning bacon for $1.79, two Prego quart jars of mushroom spaghetti sauce half price $3.49 both, Romaine lettuce .99 cents a pound for $1.19, three I Can't Believe It's Not Butter .99 each, two ears yellow corn .25 cents each for .50, three Hagen Daz ice cream various flavors with the circular coupon from the managers desk $3.09 for three, a pound GU sugar $2.09, two 5 pound bag Maine Eastern potatoes for $1.99 for both, for a Grand Total of $29.04. Remember when getting the Hagen Daz, you have to ask the manager for the circular coupon since they are out of circulars, but they have coupons in reserve. I returned home and put away the groceries. My house guest will not be back for dinner until 8 P.M.. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening, it was quiet downtown today. I suppose it will cool off a bit after the sun goes down in the western sky which tends to happen regularly. CIO

Note:<888>8/4/98 Tuesday 11:40 P.M. EDT: The Times: Britain: Thousands hail Queen Mother CIO

Note:<888>8/4/98 Tuesday 11:35 P.M. EDT: The British Monarchy Guest book, wish the Queen Mum Happy Birthday . CIO

Note:<888>8/4/98 Tuesday 11:30 P.M. EDT: Birthday cheers for a sprightly Queen Mother CIO

Note:<888>8/4/98 Tuesday 11:15 P.M. EDT: This evening I chatted with my house guest and had dinner of Stauffer's frozen lasagna and chicken salad, ice tea, and coffee. We went out at 7 P.M. and I returned videotapes at the Greenwich library. We went downtown and strolled the lower avenue and I bought a buy four get one free of Marlboro Lights 100s for $11.60. We drove down by the water and went out to Grass Island. We sat by the water viewing the harbor until about 8:30 P.M.. We went back downtown and walked the upper part of Greenwich Avenue and returned down to the center. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought GU 1% milk half gallon $1.67, two GU Premium orange juice half gallon $1.69 each, a pound of early morning bacon $1.79, with circular coupon buy one get two free GU dozen large eggs $1.39, buy one Hagen Daz get two free with circular coupon various flavors $3.09, buy one Seafood Chunks get one free $1.32, GU noodles sauce mix .89, for a total of $15.72. We returned home and I put away the groceries, and we split a pint container of Swiss French Vanilla Hagen Daz. I chatted with my house guest and he retired at 11 P.M.. I will do a little net work before reading some more the Win98 Developers Resource Manual. Well have a good evening and morning. This evening was warm and sticky, so tomorrow should be hot and sticky. I might go out during the day tomorrow. CIO

Note:<888>8/4/98 Tuesday 4:50 P.M. EDT: Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was down quite a bit today, about 3.2 %. I uninstalled the Microsoft Speech and Voice dictation programs, and installed Digital AltaVista Search Engine and indexed it. I will have dinner about 5 P.M. and go out about 6 P.M.. CIO

Note:<888>8/4/98 Tuesday 2:30 P.M. EDT: AltaVista Discovery new search engine software download for free. CIO

Note:<888>8/4/98 Tuesday 1:10 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Stats mrscott.com/stats.htm . CIO

Note:<888>8/4/98 Tuesday 12:50 P.M. EDT: BBC News | UK | Queen Mother keeps step on 98th birthday CIO

Note:<888>8/4/98 Tuesday 12:40 P.M. EDT: mrscott.com/qmother2.jpg Queen Mother photo. CIO

Note:<888>8/4/98 Tuesday 12:35 P.M. EDT: Microsoft caps Gates' pre-trial testimony CIO

Note:<888>8/4/98 Tuesday 11:45 A.M. EDT: USNews: The FBI and a Moscow cop stopped the looting of Russia (8/3/98) , I guess this is where the New Russian Mafia in Greenwich is getting all their money. CIO

Note:<888>8/4/98 Tuesday 11:25 A.M. EDT: Fans cheer Queen Mother on 98th birthday walk . I went to the Grand Union last night for a roast beef sandwich, and cold salad. We returned here and ate it. We watched "Shadow Warriors" which was not too good, but does have backgrounds of the Ukraine. I read the 130 pages of the Windows 98 Resource Kit. It has information on installing Win98 on large networks. Well off to breakfast. CIO

Note:<888>8/3/98 Monday 7:30 P.M. EDT: I was up at about noon today. I had breakfast of GU raisin bran, tangerine juice, healthnut bread, coffee, and vitamins. I went downtown about 2 P.M. and paid all my bills for the month. I sat out in front of the senior center and saw a local politician. I made my 4 P.M. appointment. I went by the library and read the local paper. I returned home at about 5:30 P.M. and my house guest arrived about 6:30 P.M.. We will go out for a sandwich shortly after I post this. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . CIO

 Note:<888>8/3/98 Monday 12:25 A.M. EDT: shayler.com U.K. MI 5 Secrets CIO
 Note:<888>8/2/98 Sunday 11:30 P.M. EDT: I finished cleaning the apartment and watering the plants and went out with my house guest about 4:30 P.M. We stopped by CVS on Greenwich Avenue and I bought 3 jars of Planters Peanuts for $1.99 apiece, 3 jars of one each of Garlic Powder, Italian Spices, and Oregano for .99 each, one quart container of Palmolive anti bacterial dish washing liquid for $2 for a total of .12 tax and total of $11.06. We went down by the water and surveyed the harbor from the Greenwich Harbor Inn. The visitors were having their usual cocktail party on the waterfront. We went over to Grass Island and surveyed the harbor for about an hour. We returned about 7:30 P.M.. I made dinner of chicken salad, Ramen noodles, and green beans. We had coffee afterwards and watched television until 11 P.M.. I did my laundry at the same time. I went down and folded the laundry at 11 P.M. and my house guest went to bed on the couch. I am now working on the computer without the major room lights on. I will wake up on my own time tomorrow. I have a 4 P.M. appointment tomorrow. My house guest said that four of his acquaintances have gotten Lyme disease from their cats. I also was told by the Poison Control Center that Lyme disease is up this year, since this past winter was mild and there are more deer tick around. I did get a spider bite three days ago on my right leg calf, which the mark has gone away. I am pretty sure it is a Deer tick bite since they leave a different type of bite pattern. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>8/2/98 Sunday 3:30 P.M. EDT: I checked with the Connecticut Poison Control Center at the University of Connecticut 1-800-343-2722 and they agreed it is probably some sort of Iroquoit Mold Poisoning going around in our environment in Connecticut due to the dry spell this month causing more molds and spores to be released into the environment than usual. They suggested drinking beverages out of sealed containers, particularly in public places. Well back to house cleaning. Taking Niacimide is a good remedy for mold poisoning that I use. CIO

Note:<888>8/2/98 Sunday 3:10 P.M. EDT: Yesterday my house guest and I drove up to Guildford and toured around the waterfront area. They have very nice homes on the water and it is a very scenic waterfront area. Guildford looks like it has not been restored, but maintained in a continual historical perspective. I saw a lot of the usual Connecticut family names posted up there as down here. It looks like it was a major rum running smugglers port in the old days, and it might still be today. Thus hippie type sailors could smuggle drugs into the Guilford harbor and sell them to the nearby students at Yale University. There is some amble evidence of the CIA running a front town in Guilford with all its dirty tricks. I went to lunch on U.S. 1 with my house guest to an outdoor restaurant called "This Is It" opened since 1971, and had corn on the cob, and rib eye steak on the outdoor barbeque grill, along with a paper cup of iced tea. I noticed after drinking the iced tea and leaving, I felt like I had been drugged, so maybe one of George Bush's CIA types is peddling iced tea with "LSD" up there. I know Yale has a very good chemistry building, and we have had a number of reports of similar incidents coming out that area over the years, so it is my perspective that somebody is up to dirty tricks in that neck of the woods. I noticed a couple of the older people working at "This is IT" my age looked like people I had seen in Nantucket when I lived there. They look like they might be from Vermont judging from the decor of the restaurant with its outdoors motif. I suppose people could be smugglers in Guilford harbor and be running their contraband through Yale university and back and forth up into

Vermont up into Canada. After lunch feeling like I had been drugged we drove up to the next town east, I think it was Milford harbor and looked at the beach waterfront. There was a lot of traffic returning with wall to wall traffic going east on I95. I have been told that 50,000 cars arrive at the Foxwoods Casino every day. I believe that is over 100 miles of cars on a two lane highway. Well I returned at 6 P.M. and rested until 8 P.M.. I had dinner of cold chicken, peas, and Ramen noodles. I went out for groceries about 10 P.M. and got GU Raisin Bran $1.99, Stauffer's Lasagna $2.99, GU 2% milk $1.67, and NutraTaste Sweetener $4.49 for a total of $11.14. I returned home. My house guest was using the internet, and one site he logged onto seemed to have messed up my password dialer settings which has never happened before. I fixed it and went to bed at midnight. My houseguest left for work at 9 A.M. this morning, and I got up at 2 P.M., and had breakfast of bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, orange and tangerine juice, and coffee. I then filed this report. I have to clean my apartment this afternoon. Well have a good day. CIO

Note: 8/14/98 Friday 8:20 P.M. EDT: I was up at 3:30 A.M. on Tuesday and departed for Maine with my house guest at 4:30 A.M.. We drove up 95 East to 91 North stopping at the rest area to 84 East to Mass. Pike to 284 North to 495 North stopping in Lawrence, Mass. at the Exxon station for gas to 95 North to New Hampshire Turnpike to Maine Turnpike, stopping at Kittery, Maine for shopping at 9 A.M.. I stopped by J. Crew, Ralph Lauren, and Brooks Brother factory outlets. I bought a blue Brooks Brothers polo shirt for $20 at their outlet. We arrived Oconquit, Maine at 11:00 A.M. and registered at the Stage Line Motel for $109 one night. We ate lobster rolls at a Seafood Stand drive in down the road east in Wells. We rested and went to Kennebunkport at 3 P.M.. We stopped by Aeillo real estate to check on current status of real estate. I met with family members. We toured around the town. It rained most of the way up to Maine and rained most of Tuesday and Wednesday while up there. Tuesday night we ate at the Wayfarer restaurant in Cape Purpose. We returned to Oconquit and rested. We went out for a Poland Spring drink at Oconquit at the Front Porch on Tuesday night. We went to bed about 11 P.M.. We went down the street slightly east of the Stage Run to a local dinner for breakfast on Wednesday morning. We rested and at 10 A.M. drove down to Kennebunkport. We toured around in the rain. We drove up to New England University and had lunch on the beach of crab roll. We returned to Kennebunkport and checked into the Rhume Line Motel east of Walkers Point for the next two nights. They charge $118 a night. They have an indoor pool and health club. They are not on the water but in the woods. We toured around town and drove out by Parsons beach. I bought two Kennebunkport lighters $2.99 each, two KPT auto stickers $2.99 each, and one KPT can holder $3.99 at the store on the left before the bridge going to Kennebunk. Wednesday night we had dinner at the bar at the Breakers. We returned at 9 P.M. and went to bed. My traveling companion went out for a night cap. I was up on Thursday morning at 5:30 A.M.. I had Continental breakfast at 7 A.M.. I drove downtown and stopped by the Bakery in Kennebunk and got pastries. I returned to motel and departed with traveling companion at 10:30 A.M. for beach in front of the Colony Hotel. We sunbathed there until 1:30 P.M. meeting up with family member at 12:15 P.M. having lobster rolls on the beach from the lobster stand next to the Colony for lunch. Thursday was a clear sunny day. We drove around Cape Purpose and around Kennebunkport and Kennebunk. It was not too busy in Kennebunkport on a clear weekday. We toured the area looking at real estate locations. We drove by the Kennebunk beach, which is pretty much gone at high tide. I chatted during lunch with two young

Swiss travelers with Canadian license plates. I also chatted with the artist painting Sea Scapes in front of Walkers Point again. There was the usual summer activity in Kennebunkport with less French Canadians this years, since the Canadian dollar is weak. There were a few look alikes of people. On Thursday night I had another seafood dinner at the Captains across from the Wayfarer in Cape Purpose and celebrated my traveling companions birthday. We retired at 9 P.M.. On Friday we were up at 7 A.M. and had a continental breakfast and visited with relatives. We drove up to Kennebunk to get a car wash and then departed. We had lunch at the same Seafood stand in Wells. We departed onto the Maine turnpike in south Oconquit at noon. We stopped at the first rest area on 495 south which only had portable johns. We stopped in Acton, Mass. at the Mobil station next to Digital shipping for gasoline. We stopped at the Mass. Turnpike rest area before Sturbridge exit. We stopped at the Connecticut Welcome center on 84 West and picked up a Connecticut map, and Connecticut vacation guide. We stopped at the rest area on 91 south between Hartford and New Haven. We arrived home back in Byram at 5 P.M. after stopping by the Arnold bread store for bread. We unpacked. I defrosted a 2 1/2 year old steak and we had dinner. I posted this note after watching the evening news. I had an enjoyable visit to the state of Maine, and they needed the rain the first two days. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>8/10/98 Monday 7:25 A.M. EDT: Welcome to Virtual Personalities, Inc CIO

Note:<888>8/10/98 Monday 7:15 A.M. EDT: Hometown of New Presidential Candidate
Go2orlando.com - Makes your Central Florida vacation better! CIO

Note:<888>8/10/98 Monday 7:10 A.M. EDT: Check out your family tree International Black Sheep Society Homepage CIO

Note:<888>8/10/98 Monday 7:05 A.M. EDT: Morning Crow just called out. CIO

Note:<888>8/10/98 Monday 7:05 A.M. EDT: Museum of Menstruation and Women's Health For Women Only. CIO

Note:<888>8/10/98 Monday 7:00 A.M. EDT: I remember in the "Old Days" in Greenwich about 12 years ago, the senior citizens in Greenwich use to have a block party dance on Greenwich Avenue outside the senior center. I guess since the Avenue slopes downward, they had a hard time keeping an even balance while they danced. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>8/10/98 Monday 6:55 A.M. EDT: Oppikoppi Index page (Pretoria Online) South African Music Festival. CIO

Note:<888>8/10/98 Monday 6:25 A.M. EDT: Well it has not rained in over a month and is dry as the Sahara here, with my luck it will rain while I take a break in which case I will just sit inside and read a book since I won't have the internet. I remember once in Key West when it rained fifteen inches in one hour, I got a little bit wet; I happened to stumble on a damp paperback called "Henderson the Rainmaker", of course that reminded me of Skitch Henderson's old band on television, not to mention I once met somebody in Boston named Ian Henderson that looked a bit like Richard Chamberlain who was involved in South American diplomatic activity during the Viet Nam War era. He one made the New York Times about 1973, and has dropped from site for a number of years, but I suppose he could be found around Henderson Harbor, New York where the Sunday New York Times printed a story yesterday to which the link to just disappeared. I suppose the drought elsewhere in the country is much worse, probably because of El Nina; but for now we are not at water rationing levels yet, and I suppose there is a drop or two of water left in the Great Lakes, but I am not sure whether Hudson's Bay is Salt Water or Fresh, probably a bit of both. However those International Jet Set types tend to hang out at where ever the current fashionable IJS watering holes are in the World, which tends to be a new crop of places that most people don't even know about, since lots of people like to remain private anymore for a little bit of peace and quiet as opposed to the fast pace of the "Fast Set". Well back to my literary efforts, but I don't think I will make the Summer's Ten best reading list with the "Windows 98 Resource Kit" book at over 1700 pages. Well maybe if you try taking a speed reading course in your spare time, you might get through a lot more information to digest a more even handed view of the world. Well back to net reading. CIO

Note:<888>8/10/98 Monday 4:45 A.M. EDT: I rested until just now and made a cup of coffee which I am having now. CIO

Note:<888>8/10/98 Monday 12:35 A.M. EDT: New Shell Oil Link Shell . CIO

Note:<888>8/9/98 Sunday 11:15 P.M. EDT: I was up at 4 P.M. this afternoon. I had breakfast of GU Raisin Bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I made a couple of phone calls and listened to www.ttalk.com weekend broadcast. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants. I made mrscott.com/icetea.htm . This time I put in a jigger of Mount Gay rum into the three gallons of ice tea mix. I am doing my drying cycle on the laundry. I am making dinner of baked herbal boneless breast of chicken in white wine with potato and onion, ramen noodles, and romaine lettuce with olives and onion with herbal Italian dressing which should be ready in ten minutes. The laundry will be ready in about 40 minutes. I will do a little internet work and try and take a nap at about 1 A.M. until 4 A.M. and get back on a day schedule, so I can go to bed at 6 P.M. tomorrow evening, and be up at 3 A.M. Tuesday morning to leave for Maine at 5 A.M. on Tuesday morning for a few days. Well enjoy your evening. CIO

Note:<888>8/9/98 Sunday 1:55 A.M. EDT: I went out after the last message and walked around lower Greenwich Avenue for a while. They had traffic patrol at Grigg street to monitor the pedestrian traffic for people crossing the street. Maybe they should put stop signs there too. At 9:30 P.M. I drove down to Maneros and got a steak sandwich with onion rings for dinner and Snapple Ice tea for $5.80. Manero's meat department is open until 10 P.M. on Saturday night. I returned to the senior center and wolfed down the ice tea and sandwich. I stopped by Starbucks and bought a coffee for $2 and drank it on the bench at the senior center. I returned to Starbucks and used the facilities. I chatted briefly with one gentleman about Boy Scout Jamborees and told him I thought it would be a good idea to have one on Lanzerote. I walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. I chatted with a local folk singer about happenings in general. I walked back up to the top of Greenwich Avenue. I returned down the Avenue, and observed a younger crowd than usual at the Dome restaurant. I suggested to the local folk singer I was trying to think of more ways to make money on Greenwich Avenue. I suggested that if they moved the Harley Davidson shop from Stamford over to the location where Drinkwaters is at the bottom of Greenwich Avenue, it might attract many European tourists whom seem to be interested in that particular motor sport. I also suggested that from my reading that Truck Stops of America in Montana would have a large cross section of visitors coming and going since there is not much for 500 miles in any direction. It probably is a profitable Truck Stop. I returned down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and the usual fishermen were out in the morning fishing during the full moon and high tide. I believe besides Bunker, Blue Fish, Sea Bass, Flounder, and Mackerel; one occasionally might catch other types of fish in Long Island Sound. I believe the Norwalk Aquarium says the Tiger Shark is common in Long Island Sound, however not being an experienced Long Island Sound fisherman; I am not sure what the real case is; I just observe the Waterfront activates. However, as I recall on a full moon during high tide, it is usually good fishing. I use to see tens of thousands of people out fishing at night in the Florida Keys up and down the Florida Keys bridges when the conditions were right. From this link Hurricane formation area off the west coast of Africa satellite photos of cloud tropical depressions <http://www.ccc.nottingham.ac.uk/pub/sat-images/DTOT.JPG> one can look at the formation of Hurricane weather fronts off Africa that move into the Caribbean. At the moment there are two large formations one off the west coast of Africa and one over central Africa moving towards the west along with a number of smaller tropical depressions ahead of them. It will be interesting to see if any of them develop into Caribbean tropical depressions and move their way up into Florida or the Gulf of Mexico. With El Nina supposedly the hurricane activity is suppose to be slightly heavier this season according to the Colorado State report Colorado State Atlantic Seasonal Hurricane Forecast August 6, 1998

<http://typhoon.atmos.colostate.edu/forecasts/1998/aug98/index.html> . It would take about ten days to two weeks for any moisture from such activity to reach the New York City area if they moved this far up north. Well back to the net. This might also affect the usual flow of oil tanker shipping traffic from East to West. CIO

Note:<888>8/8/98 Saturday 8:08 P.M. EDT: I did some system maintenance. I also put on a minor update version of Iphone 5.0 www.vocaltec.com . I watched a Channel 13 program on PBS about Whale watching in the Azores, about Tom Gordon discovering a new baby albino whale called Moby Dick. I am on my way out for the evening walk. CIO

Note:<888>8/8/98 Saturday 5:00 P.M. EDT: Happy Birthday to a certain family member. I went out about 9:30 P.M. last night and walked around Greenwich Avenue until about midnight. I returned and slept until 3 A.M., and then went out and walked around Greenwich Avenue until about 4 A.M.. I finally fell asleep when I returned and got up at about 4 P.M. today. I had bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, vitamin, orange juice, and coffee for breakfast. My house guest left this morning for the weekend, and will return Monday evening. We will be up early Tuesday morning to travel up to Maine. CIO

Note:<888>8/21/98 Friday 7:10 P.M. EDT: I updated mrscott.com/download.htm the Microsoft Favorites file with about 700 links for your Microsoft Internet Explorer Favorites folders. CIO

Note:<888>8/21/98 Friday 5:45 P.M. EDT: I worked on the net until noon today and took a cat nap until 2:30 P.M.. I went out at 4 P.M. after having a bowl of Ramen noodles. I read the local paper in the library and PC Magazine. I drove down by the water. I returned home about 5:15 P.M. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It is very quiet downtown, and not much to report. Have a good evening. I checked with Optimum TV today and Cable modem service will not be available at my place in Byram, Ct. west Greenwich until about December 1998 for $40 a month with cable modem rental Optimum Online: The Revolutionary Cable Modem Internet Service from Cablevision. Greenwich Times reports a Kansas City hotel operator is going to build a hotel in Rye Brook, New York on the Greenwich border with one and two bedroom executive suites for visiting executives staying two days or more. Well progress is at our borders. Also 75 units of the development south of the airport runway have been sold for $450,000 to $600,000 and there is also suppose to be a senior citizen community in that development which is just undergoing excavation now. Both projects will take at least two years. CIO

Note:<888>8/21/98 Friday 11:05 A.M. EDT: I was up at 10:30 A.M.. I had shredded wheat, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee for breakfast. I am looking at CNBC tell the story of the

Wall Street Decline today. It is down 173.73 right now. I guess Wall Street is headed for a Rocky Road today. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>8/20/98 Thursday 10:40 P.M. EDT: I went out at noon today. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove down by the water. I went by the Greenwich Library and read the local paper and a computer newsweekly. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I drove home and had a root beer and Hagen Daz ice cream float. I took a nap until 6 P.M.. I fixed dinner of baked Scrod, steamed peppers, potatoes and ice tea for my house guest. We went out at 8 P.M. and walked around the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a gallon of 2% milk for $2.99. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I anticipate the market might be down tomorrow with the recent political turmoil. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>8/20/98 Thursday 10:10 A.M. EDT: I had breakfast of bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, vitamins, and coffee along with my house guest. My house guest went out this morning and stopped by Imported Autos Mercedes. He said they have a nice silver gray 1995 Mercedes Benz station wagon with 22,000 miles on it for $37,000. We were thinking about going to West Point today or touring Pocantico Hill in North Terrytown, New York. John D. Rockefeller's house is open for touring by the general public, however I have a 3 P.M. appointment; so I don't think we will do that. Well my house guest is taking the day off today, so I will be doing some touring. Have a nice day. CIO

Note:<888>8/19/98 Wednesday 10:20 P.M. EDT: I went out at 4 P.M. today. I stopped by the Greenwich Library. I read the local paper and another computer newsweekly. I chatted with two regular library senior patrons. I chatted with a couple of library staff members. I went downtown and walked around a bit. I went by the Grand Union and bought Romaine lettuce at .99 a pound for a total of $1.40, a Tony's 4 cheese pizza $3.00, a rib eye steak for $3.91, a 12 pack of Barq's Root Beer $3.99 plus .60 deposit, a half gallon of GU orange juice $1.49, for a total of $14.63. I returned home and had rib eye steak, potato, broccoli, and diet sprite and apple juice for dinner. I made coffee and went downtown and drank it and chatted with the night custodian at the senior center. I walked down Greenwich Avenue and walked by the waterfront of the Greenwich Harbor Inn. There are harbor yachts there from the British Virgin Islands, Vero Beach, Florida, Cayman Islands, and one other place I forget. I chatted with two gals about my waterfront observations around America. They said they were from Marblehead, Massachusetts and had only recently visited Nantucket for the first time. I walked over to Roger Sherman Baldwin park and listened to the evening band concert. There were only about 100 people there. I walked by the Greenwich Harbor Inn afterwards and they were playing more sedate music there for a change. I walked back up the Avenue and noticed a young 20 year old Bill Clinton look alike about his size walking towards a local pub. I chatted with the Lowe's movie theatre manager and asked him if he had seen any older movie stars that nobody recognizes. I also picked up a movie earlier today at the library "Murder in the First Degree" with Kevin Bacon. I returned home and my house guest had arrived home from work, and I made him a small Celeste pizza for dinner. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I filed this report. I will do a little net work and go to bed. CIO

Note:<888>8/19/98 Wednesday 2:10 P.M. EDT: I changed my top scrolling bar on my homepage from speed 20 to 8. I got email saying it was hard to see in Netscape 4.06, but since I proof it with Netscape 3.04, I might to have check the colors with another machine, I don't want to put Netscape 4.06 on my machine, and I don't have the disk space anyway. I think Netscape might mess up some of the Microsoft files. I also finished my email and corrected some URLS in my directory. I will eat and clean up and go out enjoy the rest of the day. Open Heart Live , Live Open Heart Surgery on the net today. CIO

Note:<888>8/19/98 Wednesday 12:10 P.M. EDT: By way of random comments, I happened to find my reading glasses behind the front seat in the car yesterday, so I now have two pairs of reading glasses. CIO

Note:<888>8/19/98 Wednesday 12:00 P.M. EDT: I update my personal address page mrscott.com/mike.htm . I added a photo to the page of myself. I don't think I have to worry about any terrorists since I am commonly viewed in Greenwich, Connecticut. CIO

Note:<888>8/19/98 Wednesday 10:30 A.M. EDT: I was up at 9 A.M. this morning and had cereal, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I served my house guest breakfast also. I went out at about 7 P.M. last night with my house guest after a tuna salad for dinner. I walked Greenwich Avenue with my house guest. I stopped by CVS and picked up my photos for $14.66. I paid an extra $5 to have the photos put on computer disk. We returned home and I watched the video Prince Brat which was very cleaver. I did some computer work and checked out the photos on the computer disk. I emailed copies to a relative. I retired about 11 P.M.. CIO

Note:<888>8/18/98 Tuesday 2:20 P.M. EDT: I was up at 9 A.M. this morning. I saw my house guest off. I had breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I pattered around the house for a while. I went out at 11 P.M.. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I looked at the computer they have priced for $250. It is only a 386 computer with an older vga 15 inch monitor. I told them the computer is not worth anything, and the monitor might fetch $50. I went by Putnam Trust Bank of New York and the place was virtually empty. I went by CVS and bought a bjeep lighter with a parrot on it for $1.90 and some 50 meg Zinc vitamins 100 count for $3.49. Zinc I believe according to Nan Rockefeller in the Greenwich Times is suppose to be good for removing Copper from your system, however somebody else told me that wearing a copper bracelet is good getting copper in your system, so you don't feel arthritis. I guess the old guard have to cross check their Ps and Qs on medicine. I noticed for any cigar smokers at CVS in the 50% off section at the middle of the center aisle on the left end, they have a five packs of 12 inch hand rolled cigars regularly $24, for half price for $12. I also noticed they have Salton and other electronic items on sale, such as an iron for $9.99. I noticed quite a few old guard walking around and youngsters getting ready to go back to school. I drove down the Avenue and down by the water and then drove by ELDC and I did not see much on sale. I went by the library and one of the Construction Engineers said they hoped to have the building closed in by winter. He said they are having a hard time getting construction personnel on the library addition, and I suggested they look up in Canada. I read the Greenwich Times and two computer newsweeklies. I chatted with a local citizen about the Power Ball event recently, and we both agreed it should not happen again. I returned home and had Ramen noodles and chocolate cake for lunch. I will do a little net surfing. Microsoft is suppose to offer an update to Windows 98 today, so I will have to click the update button. Well it is a nice day, so enjoy yourselves. CIO

Note:<888>8/18/98 Tuesday 1:10 A.M. EDT: I checked my email until 12 Noon yesterday. I slept until 3:45 P.M.. I cancelled my 4 P.M. appointment. I had some Ramen noodles and chocolate cake for a light snack. I had my house guest return at 4:30 P.M.. I went out at 5 P.M. and stopped by the library and read the local paper and said hello to a few regulars. I checked out the videotape "Prince Brat". I went by Val's liquors which is now run by people from Peru. I bought a 12 ounce bottle of Angostura bitters for $5.99. I went by the Grand Union and bought 3 half gallons of apple juice for $1.99 for three, one half gallon GU orange juice for $1.49, a half gallon GU 2% milk for $1.67, 2 limes for .10 each for .20, 7 plum tomatoes for .10 each for .70, 2 green squash for .25 each for .50, 3 green peppers for .10 each for .30, a bag of onions for $1.99, two boxes of #2 coffee filters 40 count for $1.19 each for a total $11.36. I returned home and cooked dinner for my house guest and myself of shell steak, broccoli, potato, ice tea, and coffee. I did my laundry and made ice tea for the week. I went out at 10 P.M. and drove downtown. I walked around lower Greenwich Avenue. I drove down by the water. I noticed another small yacht at the Greenwich Harbor Inn called "Audacity" from Georgetown, Cayman Islands. The reason so many small yachts show up at the Greenwich Harbor Inn from the Cayman Islands, is that first Greenwich Harbor is a very small harbor. The reason for point of origin from the Cayman Islands is that it is a convenient off shore tax haven for sheltering off shore funds and they offer convenient corporate shells for a nominal fee. Thus the off shore folks from the Cayman Islands might represent real or imagined assets depending on who keeps track of the books. I once read a note in the Economist that said most offshore offices in the Cayman Islands are vacant in the summer. The Queen's Treasury office keeps a sharp eye on offshore banking and assets, and a ruling last January by the Finance Office of the Crown United Kingdom said that most off shore havens are no longer tax exempt and they would have to pay tax on British income to the United Kingdom. However, I suppose one could avoid such prosecution by never returning to the United Kingdom, and if the off shore visitors represented assets from other sources, the point would not be relevant. Needless to say dozens of craft over the last few years have arrived and departed from the Greenwich Harbor Inn with Georgetown, Cayman Islands logo on their stern, so I would imagine the coast guard has a complete inventory of all their comings and goings. I chatted with a new resident of Steamboat Road who works for a tobacco company and he was upset that certain parties had started building another condo in front of his waterfront condo, obviously certain unscrupulous real estate people are breaking the rules, he should probably check with town zoning, and any construction on the water needs approval of the Army Corps of Engineers if it involves pilings, land fill, sea walls, docks, mooring, and other nautical alterations. We have enough experts here in town, I can't imagine people would overtly try to swindle a foreign resident or subvert the town ordinances. I returned to the center of town after chatting with another local waterfront resident. I chatted with a lady from a neighboring town camping out on Greenwich Avenue, and she said she had bronchitis. I suppose the grass is always greener. I explained to her I have no legal authority, but can only observe. I returned home about midnight, and filed this report. Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was up a bit today, but I have recently been advising people to watch the stock market and it is probably better to be in a cash position, since I foresee the stock market declining sharply by the end of November. I guess one could invest cash in short term treasury bills. Well have a good morning. I will probably go to bed soon. CIO

Note:<888>8/17/98 Monday 10:30 A.M. EDT: NameStake for domain name lookup. I sifting through about 150 email messages mostly automatic news messages accumulated through last week. CIO

Note:<888>8/17/98 Monday 7:50 A.M. EDT: I made a mistake the concert this past weekend was at Loran Air Force Base up in Maine with a group called Pish. I read a news report that the White House forces are going camping on Martha's Vineyard this afternoon. I suppose they will have to watch out for Lyme disease which is common on the Cape Islands. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>8/17/98 Monday 6:50 A.M. EDT: I had dinner last night with my house guest of Greek salad with flaked salmon. I went out about 8 P.M. and walked around downtown. I toured down by the water on Steamboat Road and chatted with various waterfront observers and residents in that area. I mentioned that there was no hurricane activity at the moment in the Caribbean. I noticed a yacht at the Greenwich Harbor Inn from Las Angeles along with another yacht from Capetown. I noticed a musical group was leaving the Greenwich Harbor Inn. There were fishermen down on Steamboat Road and along the waterfront in front of the General Re building. I suppose people like keeping an eye on the waterfront looking for rum runners and other nautical activity. I returned to the center of town and headed back home at 11 P.M. and went to bed. CIO

Note:<888>8/16/98 Sunday 5:50 P.M. EDT: I went out after the last posting. I stopped by Exxon and purchased $10 in gasoline. I went down to the stationary store across from Figaro on Greenwich Avenue, and they have Merit Ultra Lite 100s for buy 2 get on free for $5.95 thus six packs of cigarettes were $11.90. I down by water and then drove over to Tod's Point. I contributed a $1 to the MS firemen's fund. I parked at the beach and walked out to the point. There were a number of beached whales at the Point along with the usual weekenders and there seemed to be a heightened level of security with six patrol cars on the point, but they probably were just killing time Babe watching. I noticed there were a large number of cars parked at the Clam Bake area for some function. I walked out to the point and returned. I left my car windows open because it was a hot day, and some trespasser lifted my reading glasses. I have a spare pair. Thus when one parks around town, one should lock ones car, or persons unknown will abscond with materials left in the car. I possibly lost them at the next stop after I departed at Stables. I drove around Tod's Point and then out and stopped by Stables. They have the usual assortment of products, but nothing to write home about. I returned to central Greenwich and walked around lower Greenwich Avenue. There were the usual visitors walking around town. I chatted with a couple wearing a UNH polo shirt. I also chatted with a gentleman from La Joila with his family about ecology in the area. I returned up the avenue and chatted with a local retired citizen and gave him a briefing. While sitting in the park in front of the senior center a young couple from Korea asked me about Greenwich commercial real estate. They want to open a beauty salon. I told them that the store just south of the Lowes movie house was vacant and they should inquire about renting it. I also told them that William Pitt might rent commercial real estate. They spoke broken English but seemed to understand me. I walked back down the Avenue and while returning up the Avenue the movie theatre operator told me to send the Korean couple down. I walked down to Starbucks where they were reading the phone book and gave them the information. I gave them my phone number. I noticed one young blond dude in Starbucks pounding away on his laptop computer. A gang of three dark haired dudes showed up on their choppers while I was departing. Greenwich had the usual cross section of summer Sunday visitors for this time of the year. Well it is hot and sultry out today, and I guess I will have to procure another pair of reading glasses. I suppose the prescription has changed a bit too. I returned home and had peanuts and ice tea. I checked my car again for the glasses to no avail. Well back to the net until my house guest returns for dinner. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>8/16/98 Sunday 12:15 P.M. EDT: I finished cleaning the apartment and watering the plants and listened to www.ttalk.com broadcast while doing my chores. I will go out in a little while for some R&R. CIO

Note:<888>8/16/98 Sunday 9:30 A.M. EDT: I was up at 8 A.M. this morning and had scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee for breakfast. My house guest had GU raisin bran and black berries, orange juice, and coffee. He picked the black berries last week which are plentiful up north. He advised when picking black berries one has to keep a lookout for bears which also like black berries. I will clean my apartment now and go out around noon. I noticed yesterday there were a lot of song birds around more than normal. I suppose the weather down south if a hurricane might be forming might cause the song birds to use their natural instincts and possibly migrate in larger numbers further north. I suppose maybe yesterday there was less pollution and possibly more were around. Well back to house cleaning. CIO

Note:<888>8/16/98 Sunday 12:15 A.M. EDT: I made a mistake the concert for 50,000 people is at Ekland Air Force Base in Maine, somewhere north of Portland, Maine. I verified that fact with a local from Elgin Air Force Base in Florida. My house guest brought home Salmon steaks for dinner this evening which were on sale through today at the Grand Union. Broccoli was $1.69 a pound which he also brought home along with Potato salad and cold slaw. I went out at 4:15 P.M. this past afternoon and stopped by the library and in the last 20 minutes read three computer newsweeklies. I chatted with library security about sale items at the Grand Union while they were closing. I went down town and chatted with a young French student from Vergennes, France near the Swiss boarder about French activity in the area. He is visiting with his girl friend here and then going to Boston. His English is at about third or fourth year level. I noticed lots of song birds today, so the pollution level must be down. I returned home and made my house guest dinner about 7 P.M.. I had coffee and went back out at about 8:30 P.M. and chatted with a local visitor from Florida. The man is a former employee of a former President's family in Florida and he told me a little of the local gossip about golf in Florida. I was informed by a legal expert in the library everybody is just look alike wherever I travel, therefore the real people must have all taken off on vacation and left the look-alikes behind to handle business. I chatted with the local DOD observer in town and told him about my travel exercise. He said the concert is probably at Ekland Air Force Base in Maine, but as I recall there use to be more than one Air Force Base in Maine. While in Maine I heard a report on television that the retired Pease Air Force Base facility is going to be used to maintain the new Pan American Fleet which mostly does Florida travel anymore in its smaller fleet. I advised the DOD observer that one can probably buy a dairy farm in Canada with a 1,000 acres for about $10,000 but that probably would not be a prime location. I noticed a former Russian ballet star who lives in the area out on an exercise walk. Not many people recognize him anymore since he is retired, but from years of walking in cold weather in Manhattan I know he is an experienced cold weather person. I walked back up the Avenue and chatted with a local businessman waiting for his family and I told him usually around 3 P.M. on Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Years; when everything is closed; one occasionally sees interesting visitors in the area. I recall seeing a senior Spanish official about that time during one of those holidays. Since close to 2 billion people speak Spanish, a senior Spanish official might know a thing or two which an English speaking official might have forgotten or never been told. I advised the French speaking student that this area use to be called Nova Francia until some English pirates showed up and took procession from a friendly Dutch trading post a few years back. Well back to bed and beware of bilingual residents looking to pull the wool over your eyes. Lets face it more people get around today. Back to slumber land. CIO

Note:<888>8/15/98 Saturday 3:45 P.M. EDT: My traveling companion to Maine was a minor contributor to the Republican Party. He paid for the traveling expenses up and back to Maine in lieu of being my house guest this month. Lobster Rolls at the Seafood Stand in Maine were $7.99. At Mabels lobster on Ocean Boulevard in Maine they are $5.99 for a slightly smaller lobster roll. Grilled Swordfish at the Captain's was $12.99 for a 6 ounce portion. Baked 6 ounce Halibut stuffed with Crab Meat at the Wayfarer was about $13.95. Baked 6 ounce Scrod at the Brakers was $8.99 and Bar B Que Sandwich was $5.99. Coffee downtown in Kennebunkport is about a dollar a cup. Premium gasoline up in Maine is $1.24 a gallon. Poland Spring Water at restaurant runs about $2. Mass. Pike Toll each way is .50 and New Hampshire Turnpike is $1 and one does not pay toll if you get off in South Oconquit. I noticed two bicyclers with camping gear riding into town the last night I was in Kennebunkport. Elgin Air Force Base in Maine is suppose to have a concert this weekend with 50,000 people. Today I went by the Putnam Trust Bank of New York and saw a local Connecticut politician departing. I went by the Hospital Thrift shop and bought a file cabinet hanger for $4. I noticed a used computer for sale for $250. One needs a double plug adaptor to test it, there is only a single plug in the back room. I notice a printer for sale not marked. I went downtown and mailed a birthday post card. I walked up the Avenue and bought Edge Pro Gel shaving cream for $2.53 at CVS. I mailed in my photos to be printed up in double 4 inch prints for $8.99 and for $4.99 I get them on Computer disk, so I might post some of them, if they come out. They should be ready Monday afternoon. My Braun cappuccino coffee maker is still not repaired. I went down by the water and noticed some dude driving around his German Shepard in the back of a pickup truck. I went by the library and chatted with the polar extreme diplomats and the library security. I read the local paper. I did not get a chance to read the computer press yet. I went by the Grand Union and bought an Elo Pizza for $1.99, bag of Frozen pepper strips $1.39, Frozen Green peas $1.29, 3 half gallons of Florida natural orange juice for $1.99 each or $5.97 total, three GU small pitted olives in cans for .89 each or $2.67 total, two shell steaks at $3.99 a pound for $7.66 total, Romaine lettuce at .99 a pound for $1.27, two green peppers at .99 a pound for .73 total, plum tomatoes at 1.79 a pound for $1.56 total for a Grand total of $25.82. I picked up two packs of generic basic light 100 cigarettes at the Shell station for $3.57 and I returned home and put away the groceries. I had a Hagen Daz nut vanilla ice cream float for lunch with diet Coke. The file hanger does not fit in my file cabinet. I posted this message and will do a little net surfing. Have a good afternoon. It is a little warm out for me today. CIO

Note:<888>8/15/98 Saturday 6:40 A.M. EDT: I was up at 6 A.M. this morning. House Guest is still sleeping. I read the back news at Yahoo. I found this link on the Round the World Solo Balloon Flight Solo Spirit Round the World Balloon Flight . CIO

Note:<888>8/31/98 Monday 10:10 P.M. EDT: I went out at 8 P.M. with my house guest on his last night. We stopped by the stationary store on the lower left of Greenwich Avenue, and I bought 3 buy two get one free of Merit Ultra lites for $17.70. We walked down to Planet Pizza and my guest had a slice of pizza. It was a fairly busy Monday night with lots of people out on a pleasant evening. We returned home and my house guest did laundry. I had a peanut butter sandwich and made a Lime Rickey like I use to drink in Boston. A lime Rickey is very easy to make. Squeeze the juice of one lime in a glass by cutting it into quarters and squeezing it. Then had a teaspoon and half of sugar. Then take chilled seltzer water or soda water and pour a little in and stir the mixture. Then continue adding all together about 8 to 10 or 12 ounces of the seltzer water or soda mixing with ice if desired and stir lightly. Then you have a lime Rickey. One can combine the ingredients to taste, depending how strong one wants the lime or sugar or use a sugar substitute. Well I will go out for a stroll, once my house guest retires. It is a very pleasant evening, and judging from the news reports on the television from London, they not only have a dry spell here, but also in London. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>8/31/98 Monday 6:55 P.M. EDT: I went to bed at 10:30 A.M. this morning. I was up at 5 P.M.. I had breakfast of cereal, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. My house guest arrived back about 5:30 P.M.. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . It was another blood bath on Wall Street today. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>8/31/98 Monday 6:15 A.M. EDT: I went out again. I dropped off a Barq's root beer and Diet Coke to our visitor downtown at the Veterans monument. I drove down by Steamboat Road and it was quiet this evening with no fishermen for a change, owing to the fact the Red Tide killed off a lot of the bunker in the harbor, and made for poor fishing conditions. I drove up to the Post Road and drove by Christ Church which was quiet as usual. I drove over to CVS in the Riverside Shopping Area. I spent a bit of time there picking up some basic necessities. CVS in Riverside is open 24 hours a day. I bought four rolls of paper towels on sale for .50 each for $2 total, CVS Epsom's salts are $2.29 but I paid $1.49 since they were mismarked. I also purchased a bag of Pretzels for .99, a four pack of Yardley Rose soap for $1.99, a large bottle 50.7 ounce of CVS yellow mouthwash for $3.49, WD 40 $2.99, Glade Country air freshener for .99, 48 oz. of Welch grape juice $1.89, 3 cans of Tuna fish for .89 for a total of $2.67, a bag of black licorice twists for .79, and .82 Connecticut sales tax of .82 for a total of $20.11. I chatted with the pharmacist on various subjects about chemistry and the internet. I chatted with the check out clerk and pharmacist about arthritis. I departed the store and chatted with the morning chauffeurs in the parking lot. I returned to the center of town and use the restroom at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. I chatted with the regular night clerk at the desk. I observed one thin fellow coming in with my same look. I observed the same young couple down on Steamboat Road on the return. I returned home and rested a while but did not sleep. I then decided to file this report, since my house guest will be getting up soon. Well have a good morning. I did notice an unmarked half size semi trailer this evening pulling another trailer having mechanical problems by the Mobil station next to the train station, and there was a service vehicle in attendance. Not much to report, but it was a nice quiet evening, and I probably should remember to buy a quart jar of chopped garlic at the Grand Union, so my arthritis might feel a little better after all the exercise walking. I did lose four pounds this past week, so I am down to about 200 pounds. Well NO NEW IS GOOD NEWS. See you all later. CIO

Note:<888>8/31/98 Monday 2:00 A.M. EDT: I finished house cleaning, but I forgot to water the plants. I made ice tea. I did laundry. I fixed dinner of baked chicken in wine with herbs, broccoli, corn on the cob, ice tea, and coffee. I went out at 10 P.M. and bought smokes at the Shell station 3 packs generic basics 100 lights for $5.35. I parked in the middle of Greenwich Avenue and walked down to the Greenwich Harbor Inn to use the restroom. They have a deluxe inboard speed boat there from Vero Beach, Florida called Camelot. I went to the middle of the Avenue and sat around the Post Office. I went to the top of the Avenue and said good evening to a resident from Cape Town, South Africa. I went to the top of the Avenue and sat for a while. I started down the Avenue and chatted with a golfer from Sao Paulo, Brazil for about a half hour about economics and business. He spoke English very well. I told him about all the Brazilians in the area. He is not on the internet, but I told him a bit about volcanology and chatted about the coffee business and what was happening around here. I returned down the Avenue, and the police were investigating a call around St. Mary's. I sat at the bottom of the Avenue for a while. I returned back to the center of the Avenue, and chatted with a local night time observer. I told her I would bring her a Root Beer since there are no places this time at night besides the dinner to get refreshment on Sunday downtown. I returned home and filed this report and had some apple juice. I noticed a long white stretch limousine about as big as they get cruising in this area. I don't think it would make it around the narrow winding curving roads in this area. I chatted with a couple in front of 64 Greenwich Avenue, and they did not know who had won the Travers horse race. It is a warm sultry night here, and I think our visitors are enjoying the area. I will go out shortly with the Root Beer for our observer at the Veterans monument. She said to keep and eye out for any old geezers who might be interested in her. Well back to the Mean Streets of Greenwich Avenue. Over and Out. CIO

Note:<888>8/30/98 Sunday 6:25 A.M. EDT: I bought Saturday's Greenwich Times while I was out earlier. I went back out at 2:30 A.M. and walked around until 4 A.M.. I kicked two condoms off of Greenwich Avenue that somebody had carelessly left on the street. I also found a baby's pacifier that I left on the news box by the post office. I noticed our visitor from Bridgeport is still sleeping next to the veterans monument on Greenwich Avenue. I walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue and stopped to chat with Kennedy Security at the building across from the train station. He was complaining about a dog barking. I told him I had no legal authority to interfere in civic affairs and was simply a volunteer. I returned to the top of Greenwich Avenue. I sat in the middle for a while. I drove down by the Greenwich Harbor Inn and used the restroom and chatted with the alternate night clerk who told me he was from the Bronx. I noticed about a half dozen people sitting on the pier on Steamboat Road. I mentioned earlier in the evening to a Scout leader that Lord Batton Powell's grandson had shown up in Key West when lots of people thought they were homeless, and he tried to explain their predicament by saying they were camping. I noticed the Greenwich police pulling over a pickup truck on Lewis Street with youngsters in it. I returned home and munched on Goldfish crackers and ice tea and read Saturdays paper with the headlines about Griff Harris. I also noticed that over 5000 Viet Nam Prisoners are being released this week. I also saw an article that the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Vicar of the Church of England is speaking at Christ Church Episcopal Church here in Greenwich at 10 A.M. this morning to a congregation of about 900 parishioners. I guess they expect a full house of the Old Guard for this occasion and lots of little kids. I also noticed somebody with big ears sitting in front of the YMCA yesterday, that nobody seemed to notice. I don't think it was Mickey Mouse, but nobody ever knows. I also said hello to a gal earlier in the evening arriving from California with her Lap Top and luggage, and I told her to watch her laptop and also mentioned that they put on an addition to the porch to the Greenwich Country Club after one of my memorable trips to California before the Reagan election and Mt. St. Helen's eruption, when I parked my Subaru at the Greenwich Country Club to fly quid pro quo to the coast and on to Hawaii to alert some laid back volcanologists, surrounded by most of the leading legal professionals in America. Sorry to let you know, but I am trying to keep track of current events, not ancient history. Well back to the net, and maybe sleep, if I ever get any this week. Over and Out. CIO

Note:<888>8/30/98 Sunday 2:00 A.M. EDT: Another IBM freebie shopibm - netcomm_cd_form CIO

Note:<888>8/30/98 Sunday 1:55 A.M. EDT: A freebie from IBM shopibm - domino_form . Unfortunately IBM's cgi script does not work, IBM needs to get its act together, or start scraping the bottom of ships in Diego Garcia for recreation. CIO

Note:<888>8/30/98 Sunday 12:50 A.M. EDT: My house guest arrived back here about 5 P.M.. We chatted and at 8 P.M. I drove with him with one of his two cars to drop it off in Redding, Connecticut at his temporary residence. We stopped by at Boston Market on Route 7 for a sandwich on the way down. I made coffee when I returned. I went downtown about 10:00 P.M. for a walk. I stopped by the Shell Station for smokes and said hello to a new resident from Arkansas stopping by there. I went by the Grand Union and bought two bottles of Lemon Pine cleaner for $1.79 each for a total of $3.79 with tax of .21. I went for my usual walk downtown. It was a nice evening and not too busy. I chatted with a few local residents about various topics. I noticed the local newspaper had a headline that former First Selectman Griff Harris had died at age 76. He was a golfing buddy of former president Gerald Ford. I chatted with one couple, the fellow who I believe who is a software engineer, about the fact that when the Pope visits in St. Louis this January, it will probably be a former Polish Greenwich resident planning the tour based on his experiences of selling Remy Martin for Pepsi Cola. He is a clever enough person that when I visited Paris right before the Albertville Olympics, he showed up out of no where and took my picture coming out of the Louvre. I recognized him because by Parisian standards he is a very tall man. I stopped by the Greenwich Harbor Inn to use the rest room and said hello to a traveler coming in from California. I drove down by the water, and it was a clear night with a few lights on the houses on the water. I returned home and filed this report. Well have a good Sunday morning, I will be doing my house cleaning when I wake up tomorrow. CIO

Note:<888>8/29/98 Saturday 5:40 P.M. EDT: I was up at 3 P.M. and watched a program on the History Channel about Howard Hughes the reclusive American Billionaire, <http://mikescott.net/hughes.htm> . I noticed in this article BBC News | Health | Young homeless men 40 times more likely to die about homeless youth in Great Britain, there was a picture of a man that looked a little bit like Howard Hughes. I checked with the British Embassy at 1-202-462-1340 and they explained that many student travelers sleep out in the Rough when they come to visit England, particularly those from France who take the Channel Ferry or Chunnel over to England. I explained to the duty officer that I was part of the Old Guard who were around the Duke of Windsor and my father 15 years ago, suggested that I stay in Greenwich, Connecticut for the rest of my life, or until "Hell Freezes Over". Thus I don't try to travel anywhere anymore except a few minor trips. I have maintained a public address here for 15 years along with a telephone number when I can afford it, and no one has ever bothered me or invaded my privacy except for a few close friends, I have known most of my life. My basic attitude is that if one leads a boring sedate life, no one is going to bother you; unless it is a real emergency. I suppose if I took off traveling after all these years, it would be like the Czar of Russia leaving the Kremlin and all sorts of people would come back at Greenwich. I have explained many times, I am part of a large family network, that has been here close to 400 years, so there is no need for me to travel around to represent the family. If anyone has any questions, I have made myself available to the general public, lived publicly, and maintained public address and telephone for most of my life, so I don't think there is any reason to confuse the issue with a bunch of hog wash about invading people's privacy, since most private people I know here frequently go out in public and are well networked within the community. If anyone is seeking access to my apartment to check out my domain or use my communications setup, they can call be in the evening around dinner time, and I might consult with them, but basically everything on the internet is public information, public relations, and nothing of a private or secure nature. Well have a good day, I am still getting started in my day. I had scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, vitamins, coffee, and orange juice for breakfast. I need to buy generic Pine Sol cleaner at the Grand Union for cleaning my apartment. The new Braun Cappuccino machine is working fine, but I need to buy a small metal pitcher for frothing the milk. I suppose everyone is enjoying themselves today, but basically as night time person for most of these 33 three years, like the person who wrote the book "25 Years of the Night Watch, A Very Peculiar Business", at the moment I could write "33 Years of the Night Watch, A Very Peculiar Business". Well back to my creative writing on the internet. Enjoy Greenwich for what it is, not what you expected it to be. Have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>8/29/98 Saturday 2:10 A.M. EDT: Just about a year of mourning is over for Princess Diana's, so I changed the mrscott.com/gb.htm Great Britain page, and added a link to it to separate page for Princess Diana mrscott.com/diana.htm . Well this Sunday night about 5 P.M. our time a year ago the tragedy occurred a year ago. Rest in Peace, Pax Vobiscum. CIO

Note:<888>8/29/98 Saturday 1:40 A.M. EDT: MSNBC - Scot has world's first `bionic' arm CIO

Note:<888>8/29/98 Saturday 12:35 A.M. EDT: I went out at 10 P.M.. There was a NBC New York news truck in front of the detective division of the Greenwich Police Department reporting on a suspect that they are looking for involved in car jackings in the area. I walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue. It was not too busy. I noticed the Dome Restaurant was in full swing with late night group of young people partying on Friday night. I noticed the NBC news truck crew went into the Dome restaurant I guess for relaxation. I noticed while driving down Steamboat Road the Greenwich Harbor Inn was packed to capacity in its parking areas. There did not seem to be many people out for movies or dinner. I was told by a Greenwich Police officer that the accident at the Round Hill store was minor, and there were no fatalities. I returned home and made some Ramen noodles and a glass of soda. There were a lot of people around speaking foreign languages mostly Russian. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>8/28/98 Friday 9:40 P.M. EDT: I was up at 12:30 P.M. today. I worked on the internet and installed Money 99 Trial . I called about my Braun Cappuccino machine and it was ready, so at 4 P.M. I drove over to Stamford and picked it up on Cedar Heights road. I encountered rush hour traffic on the Merritt Parkway at Long Ridge Road before my High Ridge Road exit to Cedar Heights. I returned with no traffic. I went by the Greenwich Library and saw it closing for the day. I stopped by Exxon and filled the car with $10.75 premium gasoline. I drove down by the water on Steamboat Road giving one of my former neighbors a ride. I chatted with a local fisherman about the storm. There were clouds forming overhead, but apparently the storm is going to pass by to the south of us, probably hitting Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard. I went to the Grand Union. The police were there. One resident thought she had lost her purse, but she had just misplaced the cart. She told me there was a major wreck in front of the Round Hill store. Apparently somebody had robbed the bank in Southport, Connecticut and fled west on the Merritt Parkway west and up Round Hill Road and collided with two other cars opposite the Round Hill Store. Round Hill Road was closed and traffic was being diverted up Porkchuck Road. I was told after three hours they had not been able to extradite the accident victims from the automobiles and that more than likely they were probably dead. I guess it was a really grizzly accident. I noticed the lady who thought she lost her purse was buying fresh orange juice with the aid of another gal. I bought Post toasted oats with Almonds $2.99, GU 2% milk $1.67, boneless breast of chicken at $2.99 a pound for a total of $3.92, Tony's four cheese pizza for $3.69 a pound, and Broccoli for $1.69 for a total of $13.96. I returned home and set up the Cappuccino machine. My house guest had returned. According to the local news, the tropical storm was going to pass us up. I napped and at 8 P.M. made the Tony's four cheese pizza for dinner. I then made a cup of Cappuccino for myself without frothing the milk. The Braun

Cappuccino works well, but I think they forgot to give me back the instruction book. I just heard on the news that the Southport bank robbery was still being investigated and it did not have anything to do with the Round Hill wreck. I just finished my coffee. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm, it was down 3% today. I will shower and go out shortly while my house guest goes to sleep. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>8/28/98 Friday 4:55 A.M. EDT: Lowe's Storm98 Hurricane Central: Latest Reports: Strike Probabilities report on hurricane strike locations and probabilities. Off to bed. We still will probably get lots of rain. CIO

Note:<888>8/28/98 Friday 4:50 A.M. EDT: I started downloading Money 99 Trial at 2:30 A.M.. I went out for a walk and checked out the water on Steamboat Road. Two fishermen were down there and the remains of about 24 bottles of beer from the astronomy club. I chatted with one Arabic fisherman from Brooklyn and he said he was not catching any fish before the storm which was unusual. I returned up the road and told one officer about the sun spots might disrupt communications. I walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. One young fellow was resting on a bench in front of the Grigg Street restaurant. I noticed coming up the Avenue four discarded cummerbunds various colors in a bag which I dropped off at the Greenwich Police station. They took down my name, address, and telephone. I noticed the sleeper walking around. I went back down to Steamboat Road and noticed the harbor patrol patrolling the harbor checking the moorings on the sailboats before the storm. I don't think anyone has taken in their sailboats, so they don't expect a bad storm. I noticed one lit up house on the harbor as always. I noticed the auroeoborialis type affect in the southern sky from the solar flares which is an unusual astronomical event to observe. I returned to the center of Greenwich Avenue and chatted with the sleeper. He was a Swiss employee of the best restaurant in town and lived across the street from my families first house in town years ago, staying with friends. I talked his ear off driving him back home, he was very tired. Unfortunately Greenwich does not have all night taxi service, so I told him I was a Red Cross volunteer in different capacity, since I had met the head of the International Red Cross in Athens, Greece with my college roommate in 1972. You finally get the picture of my red and white letters on Scott's Random Notes. I also lived down the street from the Red Cross headquarters in Manhattan, and I lived across from the Red Cross headquarters in Chicago for spell. Thus we call it a Red Cross volunteer day. Hopefully the storm won't produce any local difficulties for us, so we don't have to have a major Red Cross action in the wake of any flooding. Well time for some shut eye, and I'll try not to keep waking up my house guest moving around. Over and out. CIO

Note:<888>8/28/98 Friday 12:50 A.M. EDT: August 28, a day that was popular during the Nixon administration. Well I fixed dinner for my house guest of sirloin steak, corn on the cob, mixed vegetables, ice tea, and coffee. I watched the weather reports on the tropical storm to the south of us, and at 7 P.M., tropical storm watches were posted from Atlantic City, New Jersey to Watch Hill, Rhode Island. I suppose starting this morning depending on the path and speed of the storm we can expect 5 to 10 inches of rain for the next two days, so have you umbrellas handy. For travelers with the urge to travel, the recent sun spots mentioned yesterday could cause major electrical malfunctions in all sorts of electronic components. I discussed this, this evening with a pilot down at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. Basically all sorts of electronic components of any sort could fail, so one has to exercise caution when traveling. I went out after dinner at 8 P.M. this evening and stopped by the Greenwich Library. I discussed the fact with a local legal representative that yesterday Thursday, the Microsoft Investor portfolio said Coca Cola was up 1

1/2 points, and CNBC said it was down 4 1/2 points. These are major discrepancies, and it should probably be necessary for the Securities and Exchange commission to look into the discrepancies in stock quotes in the Microsoft Portfolio manager quote server. He seemed confused since he does not understand computers. I read the local paper, and the library was quiet with a few people who are foreign guests using the internet servers. I suppose they like keeping in touch with their homelands happenings. I went downtown to the Greenwich Harbor Inn and they had their usual outdoor music bar happenings. I used the restroom which is convenient to use when one is on Steamboat Road at all hours of the day. I chatted with one of the residents while driving down. I returned to the center of town and stopped by the stationary store on lower Greenwich Avenue and bought a white BIC lighter for $1.50, since my new Bjeep quit working after two weeks. I suppose the decrease in barometric pressure caused by the tropical formation caused the butane in the lighter to malfunction from lack of pressure. The opposite is the worse when on an aircraft the pressure can increase and cause the lighter to flair up, which can be a hazard; which is a good reason not to smoke in aircraft with butane lighters. I guess a Zippo lighter would be more practical in an aircraft, and I believe local cigar stores sell electric lighters which probably would be safer, but might not work in wet weather. Of course a Zippo lighter puts out a wider flame, and in the trenches in the old days at night a Zippo lighter would mark an opposing marksman, and frequently the second flick of the lighter was one's last. Well enough of history stories I have read. I admired a local yellow green Mercedes convertible 300 circa 1951 to 1957, similar to a sedan I use to have. It was in new condition with the top down, and brought back old memories of restoring the old Mercedes 300 in my college years. I chatted with another passerby about it. He inquired about the weather and what was to be expected, and I told him to expect 5 to 10 inches of rain on Friday and Saturday. I also mentioned somebody use to have a 1926 chocolate Mercedes convertible on Nantucket. I chatted with one German resident about other visiting Germans in the area. I walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue with a break to return to the Greenwich Harbor Inn to use the restroom since Starbucks closed earlier. I chatted with the Terminex people who had three trucks for a job behind Ralph Laurens. I noticed a few strollers and the Dome restaurant had a small group of people out for the evening. At midnight I drove down by the water and there were about a dozen teenagers out enjoying the stars on a pleasant clear evening. I guess it was the lull before the storm. Well I returned home and am having ice tea and gold fish crackers for a snack while I file this report. Have a good morning and be prepared for rain in the morning. CIO

Note:<888>8/27/98 Thursday 5:45 P.M. EDT: I had breakfast of Post shredded wheat squares, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I went out at 2:45 P.M. and the local school was just letting out, so Greenwich public schools are now back in session. It is a beautiful clear sunny day, with ominous clouds on the southern horizon. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I went by the Hospital Thrift shop. I drove down by the waterfront on Steamboat road and surveyed the clouds on the southern horizon. I drove by ELDC thrift and chatted with a red cross volunteer driving a vintage Mercedes. I drove to the middle of town and sat out in front of the senior center observing for a while. I went by the local library and the local paper was not available. I returned home and we had just had a false alarm on the central building fire alarm system. I updated Scott's Index and it looks like it was a blood bath on Wall Street today with my bellwether portfolio down 4.3% today, see mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Well I am waiting for my house guest to return from Vermont. I hope the clouds on the southern horizon move east, but we actually could use the rain. My house guest just returned. Time for dinner. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>8/27/98 Thursday 2:50 A.M. EDT: I have been doing my usual net work. I noticed these two stories are probably connected in that the solar eruptions probably caused the launch failure of the PANAMSAT Satellite Solar eruption causes geomagnetic storm on Earth and New U.S. rocket explodes in $225 million fireball . I would imagine the electronics on the rocket were messed up by the solar flair, and other similar events could happen. Let's keep our fingers crossed. CIO

Note:<888>8/26/98 Wednesday 11:10 P.M. EDT: I went out at 4 P.M. and toured the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop and bought a Starbucks travel mug for .50. I drove by the harbor on Steamboat Road and observed the waterfront with ominous storm clouds on the horizon. I stopped by the Greenwich library and chatted with a few regulars about hurricane activity speculating it was going to come up this way. I stopped by the Grand Union in Glenville for a change and bought a sirloin steak at $2.99 a pound for $4.79, a Tony's Pizza for $3.39, a gallon box of Pepperidge Farm cheddar cheese goldfish crackers for $5.29, a half gallon of 2% milk for $1.67, four ears of yellow corn at .20 each for .80, a 12 pack of Seltzer in cans for $1.99, four Bananas at .99 a pound for .80 for a total of $19.43 with .11 tax. I returned home and put away the groceries and munched on some goldfish crackers. I got to thinking about my hurricane investigations on the internet, and I remembered two stories from the Caribbean reported I believe in The Times, about three murders in the Caribbean in the past year. I believe in one story last July down in Mustique a wealthy French widow was murdered possibly by a crew member of a yacht on the small island of Mustique where there are usually less than two hundred residents and at the time Princess Margaret was a guest. I also read about two weeks ago that there have been two murders recently in Bahamas of a British and American women tourists. I got to thinking that some crew member of one of those Caribbean Yachts calling at British Ports of Call might be doing in female visitors, and with the hurricane season upon us, that crew member might be headed into northern waters like Bermuda or even possibly into American waters. I have seen a number of small sailboats and yachts from the Caribbean even pull into the 500 foot dock at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. I suppose we will have to be vigilant as to the movements of our visiting crew members. I next went by the Greenwich library and sipped my coffee out of the Starbucks traveling mug. I checked out two movies "School Ties" and "Outbreak" to have during rainy hurricane weather to watch in case I don't get to take my evening strolls. I went for an evening stroll on Greenwich Avenue and mentioned the Caribbean murder story to a couple of local old timers. I then drove down by the water and surveyed the harbor. I stopped by the Greenwich Harbor Inn and discussed the hurricane with the owners and captain of the Yacht Mercedes out of Australia. I told them from my studies I thought that the hurricane was coming right up this way, because I did not feel any winds out of the Northwest pushing it offshore. I told them that the harbor John Scott-Paine built in Stamford, Connecticut; "Yacht Haven" was a better protected harbor than Greenwich Harbor. I mentioned I believe it was in 1988 Hurricane Bob sent water up to the entrance of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club and flooded the entrance of the Showboat now the Greenwich Harbor Inn. I did mention they have built the sea wall higher since then. I discussed other harbors and marinas I have lived around and told them one fellow in Oklahoma bought three lots on the Indian River in John's Island, Florida just to moor his boat. I asked them if they have ever seen the Yacht "Viking" that is suppose to be the world's largest private yacht built in Norway. I also mentioned that the General

Reinsurance Building next to the Greenwich Harbor Inn is now owned by Berkshire Hathaway and that since Microsoft is chummy with Warren Buffett, Paul Allen could park his 200 foot yacht which he sailed up the Amazon at their dock, and it might fit in, if the Island Beach ferry had room to cruise by. I also told them that Landfall Navigation west of McDonalds on West Putnam Avenue has all the nautical navigation charts that one might need for this area. They were very friendly and conversational as the Australians usually are. I told them that IBM in the area would probably be sending about 5,000 people to Australia for the Olympics. I also mentioned the only espionage going on in the area revolves around the Indian Harbor Yacht Club and their secret plans with the New York Yacht Club and Newport, Rhode Island to try and win back the Americas Cup and they are probably plotting the cup challenge upstairs at the Yacht Club in the second floor board room. This was by way of letting them know I was a waterfront rat around Steamboat Road for 15 years this time around. I also mentioned Bill Albertson one of Eisenhower's Secret Service Agents at Camp David use to live at 700 Steamboat Road before he retired to Florida and passed away from skin cancer. They informed me they did not have internet access since they did not have a telephone line. I next returned home and filed this report. I also updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening and morning, and keep a weather eye to the weather. I suspect whether or not we get Hurricane Bonnie, we will have two days of soaking rain on Thursday and Friday. Good Night. CIO

Note:<888>8/26/98 Wednesday 3:45 P.M. EDT: I was up at 12:30 P.M.. I had scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee for breakfast. I received a call for an appointment next Monday at 4 P.M.. I updated Atlantic Coast Cams North America Scott's Internet Hotlist with a few more links for surf and weather watchers. I have to go out shortly after I shower. CIO

Note:<888>8/26/98 Wednesday 5:05 A.M. EDT: I put together a new page Atlantic Coast Cams North America CIO

Note:<888>8/26/98 Wednesday 2:05 A.M. EDT: I went back out at midnight. It was lightning a bit. I walked a short distance on Greenwich Avenue and had coffee out of my thermos. I chatted with a few other pedestrians. I stopped by the Greenwich Harbor Inn. They are booked up, and I chatted with the regular night clerk. It looks like we might have a little bit more lightning and thunder, but I suppose by tomorrow we might get some moisture from hurricane Bonnie. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>8/25/98 Tuesday 11:15 P.M. EDT: I slept until 6 P.M. this evening. I had some Ramen noodles and peanut butter for lunch. I watched the ABC evening news saying they are going to evacuate the outer banks in North Carolina because of Hurricane Bonnie. I was thinking that Bimini the island is somewhere out there where Hurricane Bonnie is, and we have heard no reports from Bimini. I went downtown and bought 2 buy 2 get one free of Merit Ultra lites for $5.80 each three pack for $11.60 total. I went by the Greenwich library and read three computer newsweeklies and one computer magazine Yahoo. I briefed the internet librarian on some internet activity. I was sneaking a smoke outside by the front entrance and chatted briefly with a young 21 year old visitor from Berlin, Germany Johan who likes keeping track of his family in Germany with the internet in the library. I told him normally there are more Germans here and around the library, but lots of people are away on vacation. He said he is here only for a short stay. He seemed to know English fairly well. I went downtown and there were lots of Russians walking around. Possibly with the new change of government in Russia, we have a new delegation of Russian diplomats attached to the United Nations. I chatted with one long time Russian resident in the area, and told him that the new Monsanto drug Celebrex might help some of us with arthritis get outside more in the cold weather when it comes out early in 1999, especially since one of the senior patrons of the Greenwich community is the senior director of Monsanto. He seemed to agree and I know he has arthritis with all the strenuous work he did in his career. I chatted with a local Outward Bound participant about the nice pink petunia flowers in the area around the post office. I advised her take refuge in the library on Thursday when it rains. She asked me to keep an eye out for any elderly gentleman who needed a companion. I chatted with a Political Science major writing in the park in front of the senior center about political observations in Greenwich and to be sure to pay attention to any nobility seen roaming around. I returned a Stop Sign to the police department that had fallen off the saw horse supporting it opposite Starbucks. I walked the lower area of Greenwich Avenue a second time and mentioned to the local Laundromat operator that the people who don't want to be bothered in Bimini might be interested in the hurricane that should have passed over them. I drove down by the waterfront on Steamboat Road and the usual coastal observers were there. I chatted with employees at the Greenwich Harbor Inn about possibly getting ready in case it should flood around the waterfront in Greenwich. I advised them they should move the furniture to the second floor if it looked like it was going to flood if any heavy rain or tidal events occurs around here. I mentioned I use to know David Lloyd who I believe his family was involved with the Lloyd's Names underwriters syndicate involved for centuries in Maritime Insurance Underwriting and they might possibly take some financial losses in this latest group of hurricane activity. I chatted with one employee from Ecuador about antique cars in South America. He said they have quite a few of them in Columbia. I observed a prominent member of the Greenwich community arriving back from China aboard the Connecticut Limousine service and calling a taxi to take him to his Greenwich home. Of course his main home is in North Terrytown, New York. I guess he is worried about flooding at his Greenwich home in case of hurricane activity. He was looking a bit more Chinese than usual which happens when you visit another country, you begin to look like their citizens. Of course since he founded the Asian Institute on Park Avenue in New York, he and his associates know quite a bit about Asia. I returned home and filed this report and updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Well back to the net after I have a salad for dinner.

CIO

Note:<888>8/25/98 Tuesday 12:45 A.M. EDT: EarthTuner - The Global Media Receiver - RealAudio at its best CIO

Note:<888>8/25/98 Tuesday 12:40 A.M. EDT: New breakthrough arthritis drug may debut soon CIO

Note:<888>8/25/98 Tuesday 12:20 A.M. EDT: Well I went out at 5 P.M. this evening and stopped by the Grand Union. I bought two quart bottles of Arm and Hammer liquid detergent for .79 each for $1.58, four half gallons of GU orange juice from concentrate for .79 each for $3.16, 4 GU half gallons of Ruby Red grapefruit juice in jars for .59 each for $2.36, a quart jar of B&G kosher dill pickles for $1.35, 3 packages for sugar free Jell-O for $2.01 total .67 each, two GU small pitted olives for .89 each for $1.78, a quart of Parmalat 2% milk for .99, 4 jars of GU crunchy peanut butter .59 each for $2.36 for a Grand total of $15.68. I also returned .85 in cans. There was the usual rush hour festive crowd of shoppers at the Grand Union at rush hour. I stopped by the Exxon station and bought $13.25 of premium gasoline next to the library. I returned home and put away the groceries and watched the ABC evening news about the weather events. The ABC evening news said the Hurricane watch was from Savannah, Georgia to Nags Head, North Carolina. I thought it was supposed to be from Wilmington, North Carolina to Virginia Beach, Virginia. I fixed my house guest and myself a dinner of Tony's four cheese pizza and mixed salad with Russian dressing, ice tea, and coffee. I made a new batch of mrscott.com/icetea.htm while preparing dinner. After coffee my house guest left for Vermont until Thursday to help with the summer chores. He needs to help out putting in 500 bales of Hay for a family members' Lamas for the winter which is a volunteer group effort. He said it is very strenuous work. I received email from Microsoft Expedia telling me I could take a round trip Caribbean Cruise on Carnival Cruise from New York for about $750, but I don't think it would be too enjoyable this week during hurricane season. I guess it shows Microsoft attitude towards IBM personnel lingering around here. I also thought that since Hurricane Bonnie might strike Newport News, Virginia the Chief of Navy Operations should direct the Newport News Fleet to Sea for the duration of this hurricane if they think it might affect their area. After dinner I stopped by the library and read the local newspaper. I went downtown for my evening walk and walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue. I chatted with a local resident from Peru about ancient civilizations and the possibility that their ancient ruins might record the events of ancient tectonic or other natural phenomena. He said it might be so, and he is descended from the original Peruvian Incan Indians. We also discussed the volcano on the Peruvian Chilean border. He was not on the internet, but he was very knowledgeable. Downtown was very deserted and not much was going on downtown. It was a very quiet hot sultry night, and it definitely feels like hurricane weather. Well have an enjoyable morning. CIO

Note:<888>8/24/98 Monday 4:35 P.M. EDT: I worked on the net until 2 P.M.. I altered my weather page mrscott.com/weather.htm . I took a nap until 4 P.M. while making a complete backup. I had a snack of Ramen noodles and peanut butter sandwich. I updated Scott's index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Well I have to shower and do a couple of errands and go out and face the heat. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>8/24/98 Monday 11:25 A.M. EDT: PC Weather Products - 1998 Tropical Cyclones in the Atlantic Basin and PC Weather Products Professional Hurricane Tracking Product and PC Weather Products - Current Systems CIO

Note:<888>8/24/98 Monday 10:50 A.M. EDT: I was up at 9 A.M. this morning. I watched the morning weather about the hurricane Bonnie. It is just sitting out there making up its mind. I would recommend coastal area residents in this area to think about hurricane precautions, since this time of year, it pays to be cautious. I had scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee for breakfast. These links might be of interest WeatherNet: Weather Cams , Bermuda Triangle [WebCam 1] , An RSN Resort Cam Picture - Cape Hatteras - Resort Cam images, worldwide snow conditions, weather forecasts, ski travel packages, ski trips, lodging, accommodations, ski, skiing, snowboarding , Current WTOC Savannah Sky Cam, Buddha the Surf guru - Daily WaveCams, Melbourne Beach, Florida, East Coast Connection - Buddha's Surf Reports from Florida, Buddhacam, SURFCAM.NET Melbourne Beach, Florida, Kennedy Space Center Video Feeds, Lowe's Storm98 Hurricane Central: Your news source for hurricane and storm information. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>8/24/98 Monday 1:20 A.M. EDT: I upgraded my bios for my S-571 PC Ware motherboard www.pcware.com to 7/28/98. It seemed to fix the hard drive hesitation problem I was having since I installed the 5/6/98 bios from AmiBios. This is a great improvement for a minor nuisance problem. I also noticed that my motherboard will take a Cyrix 300 mhz processor, which I don't think I need for web browsing, but there is room to grow. I think I will shut down shortly. Hurricane activity seems to be in limbo. CIO

Note:<888>8/23/98 Sunday 10:40 P.M. EDT: I finished cleaning house and watering the plants at 5:30 P.M.. I did my laundry while preparing dinner of center cut pork chops baked in wine with herbs, potato, onion, green peas, ice tea, and coffee. I chatted with my house guest awhile. I went out at 8 P.M. for a walk downtown until 10 P.M. and returned. I noticed somebody walking around with an IBM polo shirt while out for my walk. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>8/23/98 Sunday 12:30 P.M. EDT: I am up at noon and had breakfast of shredded wheat, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I now have to do my daily house cleaning while I listen to www.ttalk.com weekender broadcast. CIO

Note:<888>8/23/98 Sunday 12:30 A.M. EDT: I had dinner with my house guest of center cut pork chops baked in wine and herbs with potato, zucchini, onion, ice tea, and coffee. We went out for a walk of the entire length of Greenwich Avenue this past evening. There was the usual group of evening strollers. It smelled like they had a minor smoke fire in a garbage can in front of the post office. It was a nice cooler evening. I returned home and update my weather page mrscott.com/weather.htm with a mirror page link from the NOAA National Hurricane of their other weather links page NOAA National Hurricane TPC Meteorological Links Mirror at Scott's Florida Site which will display the other weather links if their server is overwhelmed. However, since my server is in Florida in Deerfield Beach, it could conceivably be a casualty of any hurricane activity. At the moment I can not afford another server, but this low cost site is available in San Jose, California 123 Bizweb Special . Well have a good morning, I have to get to bed, so I don't disturb my house guest. CIO

Note:<888>8/22/98 Saturday 5:50 P.M. EDT: I was up at 10:30 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I went by the library at noon and read another computer news weekly. It was not too busy. I went out to Tod's Point and took the three mile walk around Tod's Point and chatted with a couple from Wilmington, North Carolina about my waterfront adventures. They told me they were worried about Hurricane Bonnie hitting their area like the one did last year. They told me Al Gore vacations at Figure Eight Island, North Carolina which would be possibly in the path of the current hurricane activity. I returned stopping by to browse Stables. I went back by the library and read PC World. I have observed a youngster using the internet this past week at the library who seems to be on a "Outward Bound Safari British Style" which is the custom of the British travelers in this area. I drove down by the water and returned home. My house guest just arrived home. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>8/22/98 Saturday 12:40 A.M. EDT: I fixed dinner for my house guest of mixed salad with tuna, ice tea, and coffee. I went out at 8 P.M., and walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue and then the upper part of Greenwich Avenue. I then stopped by the Grand Union and bought 3 Mardi Gras paper towels for $2, boneless center cut pork chops at $2.99 a pound for $3.80, two bags of GU frozen mixed vegetables for $1.19 apiece for $2.38, GU frozen peas for .75, GU frozen Spinach for .59, a quart of Borden Real Lemon Juice for $1.99, Pepperidge Farm Parmesan Goldfish crackers for $1.50, a box of GU 30, 13 Gallon clear garbage bags for $2.79 for a total of $16.09. I then returned home and put away the groceries. I then went back downtown and walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue again. I noticed that they were playing interesting new music at the Dome Restaurant which seemed better than what I have heard there before. I noticed there was a sedate crowd at 64 Greenwich Avenue. I saw quite a few younger people at the Sundown saloon and Thataways. There was a moderate group of people out this evening with quite a few visitors about. I got to thinking about the Racing Colors Black and Yellow on 64 Greenwich Avenue and it reminded me that the Travers Race is at Saratoga next Saturday, August 29th, which should bring out a few of the Sportsmen in the area. If you want to place a bet on it try Horse racing and betting from OTB . I returned home after my walk. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/7/98 Monday 6:25 P.M. EDT: Well my computer is still working. I fell asleep after the last message. With my low blood pressure we had a severe thunder storm come through with lightning, and in this quiet building I did not even hear the lightning strike. My neighbor downstairs in the wheel chair called me up at 5:30 P.M. and his computer was out, so I guess his CPU was hit by lightning. I went down checked it with another monitor I have in reserve. His CPU is not booting. It is a Gateway and should be covered. I did notice he has a ground fault interrupter strip, but he did not have a power control panel, and thus the telephone line to the CPU was not on ground fault interrupter. Thus he has to call Gateway and have them come fix it. Well I still feel woozy with my low blood pressure, so I will probably go back to sleep. Maybe we will have more lightning, so I will disconnect my CPU and telephone cord while I sleep. CIO

Note:<888>9/7/98 Monday 12:35 P.M. EDT: I went out at about 7:30 A.M. this morning and walked around until about 10:30 A.M. I chatted with some of the local downtown residents and advised them on the threatening weather forecast for sometime today. I noticed that there is always the same regular crew downtown in the morning when people start their days, exchanging pleasantries and local town gossip. This is much the pattern of country life in New England Villages, thus when you spend a great deal of time up on a night schedule, it frequently is necessary for people to go on into the daytime. I chatted with somebody that was in the Duke of Windsor's Honor Guard in Newport, Rhode Island years ago. I noticed a few old time military hands who like to keep an eye on local comings and going around town. Basically this town is like Peter McGowan's Television series "The Prisoner". Thus one gets use to same village routine of never going or coming, but maintaining simple routines around the village and other adjacent areas. The morning fisherman were out. I guess because it is a typical morning, around here but still a holiday, we don't have much to report. Still one should keep a weather eye today, in case any heavy thunderstorms occur in the area and cause substantial lightning or hail. Hail can also cause damage on expensive cars if it does occur, so automobile dealers should consider putting their cars inside or putting foam rubber over them. I chatted with a family member, but not much else is happening. I guess everybody is trying to keep busy, with their multitude of holiday activities around town, and be prepared for a busy work week come Tuesday morning. Hopefully with the extra days rest, people will have a better perspective on ordinary daily events in this area, as it relates to this area, as opposed to other areas in the media. Well have a good afternoon, I took a Tums, because I have a little acid stomach, from trying to reduce my calorie intake, so as to loose a few pounds. No news on the internet front to report. CIO

Note:<888>9/7/98 Monday 7:15 A.M. EDT: I finished making mrscott.com/icetea.htm . I made a call to the local Gendarmes about the inclement weather today, and advised them to keep a weather eye for rogue weather. I would imagine a number of people will be trying to enjoy outdoor weather, and if a sudden front comes in when people are on the Island Beach Ferry, a remote part of the beach, or a golf course; they might be in for lightning. Three local officers that I have seen many times before, stopped by to see my internet setup, and how the apartment is setup. I guess they know why I feel a little bit claustrophobic and take walks a lot. However, I have always lived in a small apartment and room, so this place actually seems quite large and grand to me. I explained to them some of my internet terminology, such as "888" is use universally in volcanology warning systems and "CIO" means "Chief Information Officer". I also mentioned that since this an improvised place, it is a makeshift "Octagon" house of my own improvisation, which is why I keep the Octagon table in the front entry way. The apartment is spacious with 450 square feet, with 8' by 6' foot kitchen, 16' by 20' living room, 4' by 10' hallway to bath and bedroom, 10' by 10' bedroom, and 4' X 10' bathroom with bath shower stall with an admiral's shower head and indoor plumbing, such as is commonly found in the Americas. For people use to large accommodations it might seem claustrophobic, but since I learned from working in small kitchens in French restaurants, that the less space one needs to walk, the more work one gets done in a confined environment, thus it is also like my home office. I keep everything orderly, and I thus know where everything is when I need to do something. However, as I get older I end up hiding things from myself, which frequently happens in your older years. After giving the officers the grand tour, they commented on my grandfather's portrait, and I explained Granddad Bovan was born in 1849, and my maternal grandmother was his second wife, and my mother was his second youngest child, and he passed away in 1928. Thus I have a lot of much older relatives than most people, and I have lived around older people most of my life, and I enjoy the peace and quiet around older people, particularly as I get slower in my advancing middle age. Well enough of old duffer talk, and reminiscing about ancient history. My grandfather's portrait looks a little bit like "Prince Albert" of England, Queen Victoria's diseased husband, who died in his younger years. Of course everyone back then tried to look like Prince

Albert since that was the current fashion. He is in White Tie in the photograph probably taken around 1870 with color highlights which were painted in. Of course back then Dutch people were not too big. Recently about 8 years ago, I saw a Dutch person selling cheese at the Food Emporium dressed in Dutch Pantaloon and size 30 wooden shoes who was about 7 feet tall and about 500 pounds, but not fat; so I guess the tulip farmers have some big friends in reserve. Of course a Dutch gentleman that big, would probably have larger children providing his wife was a large woman. Thus as I always say, I am supposedly one of the runts in the family, since the family genealogist advises me that a lot of Dutch Boven males are over 6' 6" and their children are over 7' feet tall, so I guess they might feel a little claustrophobic in my apartment if they ever stopped by, but perhaps the Greenwich Housing Authority would let them pitch a sleeping bag in the community room, if they could not fit into my Pied A Terre in America. Well the officers departed knowing they had seen me thousands of times, and I mentioned to them it would be nice for somebody to tell the government we need to have our heat paid for in the winter. If that was the Sultan of Brunei walking around yesterday, which I think it was, I am going to vote for him for President, and hopefully we will have a little bit more heat in this place in the winter, subsidized by the government like it was the first eight years. With arthritis a warm apartment over 72 degrees is much more comfortable, and also one needs to keep a couple of humidifiers going with the dry heat from the electric radiators. I think the Grey Panthers should have some sort of political convention in Greenwich, and voice their grievances to the political system. Of course most of the Grey Panthers are probably content to stay down in Florida and the rest of the south, and not come storming up here by the tens of millions. Well I am a victim of my creature comforts. I have been up since 10:30 P.M. last evening, so I think I can make it out for a little bit of a morning stroll. I figure the officers that stopped by won't be worried about me too much. I do keep a symbol of my Swiss neutrality in my apartment, a William Tell type cross bow, that I found at the ELDC thrift shop that Tess sold me, knowing exactly where I was coming from. Unfortunately, I don't think I need any arrows. I also have a four inch Swiss Army knife, and I keep a ten inch Old Hickory chef's knife for my gourmet French cooking which I occasionally throw together, when I am not trying to lose weight. I just had a peanut butter sandwich and Ramen noodles. Well I have been dragging my butt around this town for fifteen years since I came back this time around, and if there are any terrorists out there, they have not bothered me, probably because of all the garlic that I eat which might make me stink along with the putrid smell of cigarette smoke, that you get use to if you smoke. Well have a good morning. Off to raise my dopamine level in the morning sun. CIO

Note:<888>9/7/98 Monday 4:10 A.M. EDT: Weather Underground: New York, New York Weather Forecast severe thunder storms, hail, and heavy rain predicted for today. I would advise air travelers to exercise caution. Also check New York, New Jersey and Connecticut Weather and Climate Information from the National Weather Service Forecast Office - New York City, Upton, Long Island, New York City, Lower Hudson Valley, Southern Connecticut and Northeast New Jersey, .CIO

Note:<888>9/7/98 Monday 3:20 A.M. EDT: I received a call from a family member this evening about 10:30 P.M.. I had breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon, orange juice, toast, and coffee. I checked with the Champaign, Illinois police department if there were any unusual events happening out there. They said there is nothing unusual happening out there, except the harvest time is coming up soon to bring in the corn and soy beans. I suppose the University of Illinois will be back in session soon, if it is not already. I went for a walk at midnight. I parked in the center of town. I walked down to the Greenwich Harbor Inn, and I then walked up to the center of town. There were a few people coming out of the Dome restaurant. I chatted with the night clerk at the Greenwich Harbor Inn, and told her with the internet, it is slower downtown, with less people going to the movies. I left downtown about 3 A.M. stopping by the harbor. There were the usual group of fisherman down by the water. Not much to report on a quiet weekend holiday night. Well tomorrow is a holiday, so I will probably be resting most of the day and going out in the afternoon or evening, depending on how my sleeping schedule evolves. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/6/98 Sunday 3:05 P.M. EDT: I downloaded and installed Railroad Tycoon. I will now take a break from the computer and see how the Labor Day Holiday is progressing for our residents and guests. Not much news to report, since downloading a 45 meg program, does not provide a lot of excitement these days. Well hopefully some adventurous young kid, will be able to figure out how to play the game, in case they ever want to ride on a train. Well back to town watching. CIO

Note:<888>9/6/98 Sunday 1:20 P.M. EDT: Words of conventional economic old guard wisdom are that the, "Stock market Usually Does Not Crash Until After the Hurricane Season, When the Old Guard Decide to Go Back to Florida, Providing It is Still There.", got the picture. CIO

Note:<888>9/6/98 Sunday 12:50 P.M. EDT: The Free Willy Keiko Foundation: Keiko's Official and Music Trial and GameSpot: Railroad Tycoon II - Download it now and Shared Vision - Community Bridge Project and The Doll Art Company - Figurative MixedMedia Sculpture - It's not what you think... and Amazon.com: A Glance: Terra Incognita : Travels in Antarctica and The Shebeen and Australian Native Flora and The Sand Hill Challenge and remember the good old days when Greenwich use to have a "Soap Box Derby", well I suppose if you take an old "Soap Box" and nail some wheels on it, you might have a chance of winning, providing some local entrepreneur is not too cheap to sponsor it. Of course most of the local young dudes still like sneaking out late at night on their skate boards, once we clear the Avenue of all Pedestrian Traffic. CIO

Note:<888>9/6/98 Sunday 10:50 A.M. EDT: I went out for a walk this morning at 6 A.M.. I drove down by the water and checked out the usual group of fisherman. I parked in the center of town and walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue one and half times. I noticed a Dutch couple out for an early morning walk. I noticed a few young families are early morning risers. I saw people going to church as usual on Sunday morning, and I saw quite a few people still buying the Sunday papers and morning coffee at Starbucks. I noticed the birds seem to be flying a bit south already. I drove back down by the water and chatted with some of the fisherman. There are a lot of dead bunker in the water I guess caused by hypoxia when the blue fish drive them in and the bunker die for lack of oxygen. I chatted with some of the morning regulars downtown. I drove by the Greenwich Harbor Inn and chatted with some of the sailors about the current hurricane season, and suggested it would be sound advise to wait it out until the end of October before going to Florida when the hurricane season is suppose to be over. I chatted with a young fellow from Barington, Illinois about the Retreat, the Archdiocese of Chicago maintains in Mundelein, Illinois which was built for evacuation of the Vatican during World War II, in case hostile forces evicted them from Vatican City. I also complimented him on the quality of students I had seen here from Illinois over the years. I returned to the center of town, and I bought two croissants from St. Moritz bakery for $2 and while eating them I complimented a lady on her two Standard poodles. She was gossiping with the morning crowd at the laundry mat.

I chatted with a gentleman in the park about the current state of economics in this country. I suggested that the stock market might be down by 25% by the end of November. It really depends on whether the foreign investors decide to keep their money in this country or invest it elsewhere. I suggested that we are the safest haven for investing money at the moment, but I think values are over valued, compared to real world prices. I basically spent about four hours out walking around, so I won't be going to the beach this morning or afternoon for a walk. It is time for me to begin winding down my day. It is fun to get a little day light for a change. I saw quite a few early morning walkers and travelers getting an early start. Of course most of the town is probably still asleep now with just the kids in residence watching cartoons. I suppose the early morning yuppie rush is just beginning to occur. Well enjoy yourselves this morning, and remember those of you just getting up have a long day ahead of you. The computer sale fair is still on in White Plains again today. Well enjoy yourselves. CIO

Note:<888>9/6/98 Sunday 5:50 A.M. EDT: I finished the laundry and my coffee, I guess I will quit rocking out to Radio Dingold, and go out for a morning breath of fresh air. I still have a jug of ice tea, so I won't make ice tea just yet. CIO

Note:<888>9/6/98 Sunday 5:25 A.M. EDT: I also said good morning yesterday to a gentleman from Barbados and asked him "If Burt's Bar is Still There". They use to chat with me on the internet from there. I also said good morning to local volunteers from Ecuador. CIO

Note:<888>9/6/98 Sunday 5:10 A.M. EDT: I have finished cleaning the apartment and watering the plants. I am still listening to Radio Ten Dingold, I am on the dry cycle with my laundry, and it should be done in about 20 minutes. I am making coffee right now. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/6/98 Sunday 2:15 A.M. EDT: I'm rocking out listening to Radio 10 while doing my house cleaning Dutch Radio Stations, Scott's Internet Hotlist . CIO

Note:<888>9/6/98 Sunday 1:50 A.M. EDT: I went to bed at noon yesterday. I got up at 5 P.M. and had breakfast and then went back to sleep until 12:45 A.M. this morning. I listened to last 15 minutes www.ttalk.com. I took a look at the Microsoft "Running Windows 98" CD Rom, and they have file I copied from the book which is about 15 megs. It is an electronic copy of the book, which I am keeping on my hard drive for Win98 reference. Well it is Sunday morning, so I have to do some house cleaning as usual. Enjoy yourselves, if you are still awake. Today I also received the free Cdrom pack from !Welcome to Auto Europe! for my later viewing pleasure. CIO

Note:<888>9/5/98 Saturday 11:10 A.M. EDT: I went back out this morning at 2:30 AM and drove down by the water. It was very slow out, so I came back home and thought about the Swiss Air disaster from what I have read in the media. At the time of the plane's takeoff from Kennedy Airport on Wednesday evening, I would say around 8 P.M. EDT, we were having a strange weather phenomena that increased here throughout the evening, of light to heavy rain showers with moderate to heavy lightning and thunder. It has not rained much this summer, so I noticed it and did not take my usual evening stroll. I came in about 8:45 PM and while walking the short distance from the car to the building, I was worried about being hit by lightning. Since the Swiss Air Jet would have been flying through the same storm front, I think it is safe to assume that the Jet might have been hit by lightning, causing a delayed malfunction an hour later over Nova Scotia. Another likely scenario is that some maintenance or food service or cleaning worker had access to the Jet in the last year, and they might have planted a radio wave activated device that could have been triggered by remote control at the right time when the terrorists wanted to perpetrate the crime. However, any potential targets on the jet were public figures, so it does not seem likely they would have been the target of terrorists' attack. In the insurance business "ACTS OF GOD" are frequently attributed to certain events, and it is not unlikely that LIGHTNING might have caused the Swiss Air Aviation accident. I went out at 6:30 A.M. and chatted briefly with a local fisherman down on Steamboat Road, asking if he knew anything about any large type fish like Great White Sharks in Long Island Sound, and he said he had not heard any such reports. I suppose the Norwalk aquarium might know if any are out there. I noticed a young family from Asia also fishing. I returned to the center of town and chatted with the fish store next to Zyn stationary if they knew anything about any large fish sightings, they did not. I went down the street to the News Stand across from Quinn's going out of business and bought 3 three packs of buy two get one free of Merit Ultra lights for $17.70 total. I walked up the Avenue and told one can lady from Jamaica about a large collection of cans beneath the train station office park. She was driving an old Volvo with a large collection of cans. I walked up the street and gave a former French resident of Park Avenue Manhattan one of my packs of cigarettes. I sat in front of the senior center, and chatted with a local former town politician about events around town. I noticed a few regular morning people as always as well as lots of dog walkers. I stopped by Subway barber and Frank said he could take me in fifteen minutes, so I walked down the street to one of the money machines and took out $20 and noticed Quinn's going out business grocery, the Quinn's liquor is staying, has a nice old grocery store coffee machine in their window, that would make a good fixture in a gourmet coffee place. I returned and waited for two customers, and Frank who had just gotten back from Rome gave me a very good hair cut. I chatted about living in Italy in 1972, and told him back then that there were 565 lire to the dollar. I also said about the most expensive thing I bought in Italy was Marlboros for about $5 a pack or about 2,700 lire. I said I did the whole six month trip of Italy and Greece for about $1,500. I also mentioned from what I know Banco de Milano is very good bank, and I once read that the Medici family in Firinze, Italia has not run out of money in 800 years, so they are the old feudal merchant princes from way back when. Of course all their money could not keep the Arno from flooding Firinze in a devastating flood back in 1971. Hopefully they have instituted better flood control projects since then. I chatted with a few other locals. I drove by the Hospital Thrift Shop and toured the offerings. I returned home and had a banana and gold fish crackers and ice tea and relaxed a while. I then filed this report for your inspirational reading. Well off to bed. See you later alligator. Yesterday's Greenwich Times besides covering the Swiss Air disaster mentioned on the third page in a small column that there was an attempted kidnapping of a 12 year old boy by two white male 20 year old boys at Western Middle School earlier in the week. I suppose one never knows what is going on locally, but I usually can't afford to buy the local paper. CIO

Note:<888>9/5/98 Saturday 2:20 A.M. EDT: I had a Tony's pizza for my lunch, and I will go out shortly to check out the remains to the day. Try Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's Website-Welcome for information on the Swiss Air flight disaster as the Canadians are reporting it. CIO Note:<888>9/5/98 Saturday 1:00 A.M. EDT: I got up and had breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, coffee, vitamins, and orange juice and grapefruit juice at 2 P.M. today. I went back to sleep and got up and watched the ABC evening news at 6:30 P.M. I went back to bed until 9 P.M.. I showered and made a cup of coffee and went out at 9:30 with my thermos. I stopped by the Shell station and bought three packs of Basic Lights 100s. I drove downtown and drank my coffee. I chatted with a local Christian Scientist about technology. I walked down with him at the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. I noticed a Greenwich Policeman who looked like a former Buffalo Bills football player who was charged with a west coast homicide last year. Well I guess the Greenwich Police will hire anyone. I went down by the harbor at the Greenwich Harbor Inn and chatted with a fellow on a deep sea fishing yacht from Dover, Delaware about deep sea fishing. He said Key West has been taken over by Gays from Provincetown, Massachusetts and is not the same. I noticed a cigarette boat from Vero Beach with Camelot as its name on it. Lots of people were drinking and listening to Jamaican Reggae music. I noticed a lot of Chris Dodd campaign posters in the back of one station wagon. Perhaps that is why the drunk democrats don't think I need heat up here in the winter, since they all have Caribbean hideaways and are being bought off by either the oil sheiks or the drug cartel folks. Anyway it is none of my business. I returned back up the Avenue and chatted with a local observer who likes recruiting for big 10 college football teams. I returned to the Greenwich Harbor Inn and bought a copy of today's Greenwich Times. I wanted to look at the casualties of the Swiss Air flight in Nova Scotia. I guess there were a number of local casualties from this area. One older banker on board was related to the Harriman family. I mentioned to a young gal coming in on a plane that it is not safe to fly during this period of Solar Flair activity, since sun spots can disabled anything electronic like the Swiss Air plane, the Titan rocket nine days ago, or even Air Force One coming back from Ireland. Basically the sun spot activity still could be going on. I had the same problem with my computer last May while installing the new motherboard during Sun Spot activity. Well they seem to be behaving themselves at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. I also chatted this evening with one couple walking their Doberman Pincher about the time a friend of mine gave away 24 Doberman Pincher puppies at the Cambridge common while he was living near Harvard. He dropped from sight years ago, because he was trying to date the present wife of a senior middle eastern official who at the time he thought she would be a free ticket on Pan Am. Since his parents worked in China in the 1930s, he is probably hiding out in China where no one pays attention to exiled Americans. The gal that looks and sounds like the former wife of a Greek shipping magnate except with blond hair is still sleeping the bench in front of the veterans monument. I guess she does not like the guests showing up at her house in Florida. Well sleeping out at night you don't get tanned unlike some people in the day time. I heard that an Arab Prince was on the Swiss Air flight, so maybe he was a target in some sort of Arab family feud. Arab Princes are very common since Arab Sheiks have many wives and sire thousands of sons, not to mention a few daughters. Apparently some enterprising youngster has posted a site similar to mine at www.michael-scott.com trying to cater to women's fitness. Since it comes out of Ohio, I would imagine some of the fathers of the daughters he was trying to do in got down on his case. Well Michael is the most common American male name and Scott is a very common family name, so we all have a sense a humor about such teenage pranks. Since I live around IBM we try to maintain a moderate level of decorum and dignity so as to set a good example for company shareholders, employees, and customers. I basically figure what is good for IBM is good for Greenwich. So it was a full house of labor day weekend night people ending their summer. Come Tuesday we will be back into our more sedate downtown activities. There was an ambulance call at the Mews retirement home this evening, and I saw one fire truck go out on a call. Well back to internet activity, and I will probably make another tour of downtown later this morning. I saw a few people walking around with nap sacks, so maybe we have other happy campers paying visits to our community. Well I advise people to practice diplomacy, since you never know where or whom a visitor might be. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm also. Well back to my usual night routine. Also MarketPro www.marketpro.com have one of their computer fairs at the Westchester County Center in White Plains, New York today and Sunday September 5 and September 6 from 9:30 AM to 4 PM with lots of wholesale computer and software vendors for you techies looking for discounts. However, one frequently has to go to more remote locations if one needs to return any or the merchandise that one buys. I might browse it this morning for fun, but I don't need to buy any computer items and can't really afford to, since more money is going into entertainment than technology around here these days. Over and Out. CIO

Note:<888>9/4/98 Friday 7:00 A.M. EDT: I added some advertisers to my Dutch Radio Stations, Scott's Internet Hotlist page, and have been enjoying the Dutch music from across "The Pond" this morning. Time to log off and get some shuteye. CIO

Note:<888>9/4/98 Friday 4:44 A.M. EDT: Dutch Radio Stations Page mrscott.com/dutchrad.htm . People making noise by clonking their wooden shoes for the Tulips folks. CIO

Note:<888>9/4/98 Friday 4:30 A.M. EDT: Dutch Music Welkom bij Radio 10 Gold , NPS-WEBRADIO, ARROW Classic Rock Radio - Music on the Net , Radio Noordzee National, Sky Radio 100.7 FM , You're about to enter the Radio 538 Website , Concertzender Nederland . New Amsterdam Dutch Music from the Netherlands. CIO

Note:<888>9/4/98 Friday 4:00 A.M. EDT: Welcome to Maui's Heartbeat and KPOA Maui , well if we're all prisoners in China, we might stop by and visit the Chinese version of Maui, remember Maui Wowie and Moon Dogie, see you on the rebound. CIO

Note:<888>9/4/98 Friday 3:10 A.M. EDT: Well, as one person once said "Knowledge is Power", a different philosopher if he could spell might have said, "Knowledge is Freedom". Of course the key to successful use of the internet worldwide is an understanding of languages and international skills, which the bureaucrats tend to ignore due to political manipulations. Well enjoy yourselves. As a secretive individual who lived a hermit once said, "Pay Attention to the Living, the Dead Will Take Care of Themselves." CIO

Note:<888>9/4/98 Friday 12:00 A.M. EDT: Swissair - Information about the accident of SR 111 Swiss Air Crash Victims Names. CIO

Note:<888>9/3/98 Thursday 11:55 P.M. EDT: I did some system tweaking until 6:30 A.M. this morning. I went to bed and was up at 1 P.M.. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I toured the Hospital Thrift Shop and I paid my Bell Atlantic appointment. I tried to get a hair cut, but they were busy at Subway. I might try the barbers in Old Greenwich. I stopped by the library and read another computer newsweekly. I checked out the Microsoft "Running Windows 98" with a cdrom it came with. I returned home and worked on the system until 7 P.M. when my former house guest stopped by. We chatted, talking about six degrees of separation. His office mate's son's fiancée's brother was on Swiss Air flight returning home to Switzerland. My friend left at 9:15 P.M. and I was tired and slept until 11:45 P.M.. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/3/98 Thursday 3:45 A.M. EDT: I posted a Scott's Media Player Demo at mrscott.com/scotdemo.htm . Time for bed. CIO

Note:<888>9/3/98 Thursday 12:50 A.M. EDT: I downloaded the Microsoft Media Player Netshow Encoder and posted a broadcast on my Broadcast page mrscott.com/sound.htm . It works really easily real time, and I will not be able to post broadcast when I have server space. I did it at 10 kbps at 56 K. baud. Well enjoy the broadcast if you have the Microsoft Media Player on your computer. CIO

Note:<888>9/2/98 Wednesday 11:40 P.M. EDT: I am downloading Downloads: NetShow Services for Windows NT Server Netshow Tools, hoping to find an encoding tool for MS Media Player. CIO

Note:<888>9/2/98 Wednesday 9:20 P.M. EDT: I rested from 2 P.M. until 6 P.M.. I watched the ABC evening news. I went out at 7 P.M. and read two computer newsweeklies at the Greenwich Library, PC Magazine, and the Greenwich Times. I drove down by the water on Steamboat Road. Five vans with www.theshark.com were in residence at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. I went by the Grand Union and bought one Cantaloupe at .29 a pound for .95, two bananas at .69 a pound for .58, two ears of yellow corn for .34, a quart jar of chopped garlic for $4.99, 20 oz. of Pepperidge Goldfish crackers for $4.29, 15 packs of Ramen noodles for $3, a Tony's pizza $3.39, GU frozen green beans a 12 oz. bags for .79 each for $1.58 for a total of $18.79. I chatted with a priest from Harlem about Italy while shopping. It started raining as I left the store heavily. I put away the groceries and am making herbal garlic baked in wine boneless breast of chicken with potato and onion and broccoli which should be ready in fifteen minutes. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>9/2/98 Wednesday 1:30 P.M. EDT: I went out at 9 A.M.. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop. I went by the bank. I paid my rent. I went by the post office and paid my cablevision and electricity. I also bought ten stamps. I have paid my MCI bill, but still have to pay my Bell Atlantic bill. I went up to CompUSA in Norwalk and returned the video graphics card. I came down and stopped by the Old Greenwich thrift shop. I drove around Tod's Point, and there were a few people there on an overcast day. I went downtown and stopped by the library and returned videotapes. I went by Exxon for $11.05 premium gasoline. I stopped by the Food Emporium and bought 2% half gallon milk $2.05, 1.23 pounds at $9.99 a pound of hazelnut coffee for $12.29, 13 oz. Bokar $3.89, 13 oz. French roast $3.69, 13 oz. 8 o'clock $3.69, 30 oz. Columbian $10.99 for a total of $36.60. I stopped by the Arnold Bread store and got 3 loaves of Healthnut bread and one free loaf of Arnold Nutty grain for $3 total. I returned home and mixed the coffee beans together and put them in the container jars. I made Ramen noodles and a peanut butter sandwich with ice tea for lunch and then had coffee and filed this report. I received my Bell Atlantic bill and will pay it this afternoon. Well have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>9/2/98 Wednesday 7:25 A.M. EDT: Good Morning sunrise Bermuda Triangle [WebCam 1] . I upgraded my stats mrscott.com/stats.htm . When trying to use more than one monitor with my www.pcware.com S-571 onboard video, with a PCI ATI video card it, it loaded the Onboard SIS video driver, but it kept having a conflict. Thus to use dual monitors with my system, I would have to use two PCI cards and disable the onboard video. Well I am through my email, and I just finishing listening to the weekender broadcast www.ttalk.com . It is nice to get a little work done with the lites on for a change. I also changed my screen resolution to 640X480 with my homepage at the same resolution. It should be better for laptops users. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/2/98 Wednesday 6:15 A.M. EDT: I was up at 5 P.M. yesterday. I had breakfast of cereal, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. My house guest has departed. I went up to CompUSA in Norwalk at 6:30 P.M.. I bought an ATI graphics card which I will return today, since it will not work in dual monitor mode with my onboard video. It took quite a while to test it. I went to be bed at 2:20 A.M. and got up at 5:30 A.M.. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Well I will pay bills this morning and return the video card to CompUSA. Have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>9/14/98 Monday 5:10 P.M. EDT: I fell asleep from 9:30 A.M. to 11 A.M. while listening to www.ttalk.com 's weekender broadcast. I surfed the net until about 1 P.M. and had a light lunch of goldfish crackers and mixed nuts. A friend stopped by and we chatted for a while, while I had Cappuccino. Another friend is stopping over to spend the night since he has an early morning appointment tomorrow. The earlier visitor and I went out at 3 P.M.. I replaced the burned out right headlight on his Volvo which is fairly simple. We drove by the Hospital Thrift shop which is slow and pricey recently. We drove down by the Island Beach Ferry which I believe has its last day tomorrow. We did not take it, since it would have been $7 for my guest. We sat in Roger Sherman Baldwin park which has lots of goose droppings, like the well lit out on the harbor also has lots of geese and probably droppings. I noticed the United Way is having their annual festival in Roger Sherman Baldwin park this weekend, and they are charging $25 a head, or $20 if you purchase tickets early. We drove down Steamboat Road. I went by the lower Greenwich Avenue newsstand and bought 2 buy two get one free Camel lights for $11.80. It is hot and sultry out with poor air conditions today. We returned home, and I plan to have a salad for dinner of Avocado, olives, ham, onion, kosher dill pickle, and dressing. Well my houseguest for the evening is suppose to show up between 7 P.M. and 8 P.M.. Well it is a busy Monday. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>9/14/98 Monday 8:10 A.M. EDT: I was up at 7:30 P.M. and had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and am drinking my cappuccino right now. One can run the coffee through and part way through flip the lever and froth the milk and then finishing running the coffee through. One needs to add about an ounce more water for the frothing steam. Well time for morning net surfing. CIO

Note:<888>9/13/98 Sunday 10:05 P.M. EDT: Time for Shut Eye. CIO

Note:<888>9/13/98 Sunday 9:35 P.M. EDT: Printing out copy of President Clinton's second rebuttal 9/12/98 for my hard copy printed copy of the report and rebuttals. Well I still have to sift through my email. CIO

Note:<888>9/13/98 Sunday 9:15 P.M. EDT: I updated the ASCII Text DOS file of the Starr Report with both of President Clinton's Rebuttals included in the file available at mrscott.com/starrrep.txt . This file can be imported into a Word processor for manipulation of fonts and settings. Since I created most of the file from the CNN posted files of the Starr Report which were small enough to import into Microsoft FrontPage for cutting and pasting into my WordPerfect 6.0 Word processor and saving them in ASCII Text DOS format for importation into other word processors like Microsoft Word, the formatting may not be the same as the original report which has too long of files for importation into Microsoft FrontPage. The need to cut and paste from Microsoft FrontPage, prevents the HTML coding that would appear in cutting and pasting directly from the web browser version, which would be confusing. Thus the text of the file is accurate providing the CNN version was accurate, but the format is not the same at the original published version, plus I added both of President Clinton's two rebuttals. CIO

Note:<888>9/13/98 Sunday 8:40 P.M. EDT: I updated United States House of Representatives Report of the Independent Counsel, Starr Report page with this format United States House of Representatives Report of the Independent Counsel, Starr Report , with links to both of President Clinton's two rebuttals and the text of the Starr report from Thomas Library of Congress Reports to Congress and made another completely downloadable file group of the report and rebuttals to download from mrscott.com/starrrep.zip . I will now edit the ASCII Text File to include the second rebuttal. CIO

Note:<888>9/13/98 Sunday 7:00 P.M. EDT: Hot Florida Getaway Wyndham Safari CIO

Note:<888>9/13/98 Sunday 6:45 P.M. EDT: I had Morrel sliced ham for dinner with Ramen noodles, green beans, broccoli, iced tea, and for dessert I made Cappuccino learning how to froth the milk with my Cappuccino machine with the metal frothing container. One probably can froth the milk while making the cappuccino, but I frothed after making the cappuccino. It tastes pretty dang good for a first try, and I just happened to have a wee bit of cinnamon to put on top. I have to go to CVS for cinnamon some time. Well enjoy the evening. I won't be going to bed early, since the cappuccino will keep me awake. CIO

Note:<888>9/13/98 Sunday 5:45 P.M. EDT: I rehung my shower curtain and put my bathmat back on the bathtub rim. It is important to use a good Rubbermaid bathmat in the bath tub when showering or bathing in the bathtub. I went back out at 2 P.M.. I stopped by Lectors and returned the larger frother and bought a 10 oz. metal frother for $4.99 which fits underneath the frothing spigot of my Braun Cappuccino Machine. I also bought a set of four piece measuring spoons for $1.99, and a cloth tape measure for .89 for a total of $8.34 with tax. I drove down to the Island Beach Parking lot, and went out to the ferry dock to wait for the ferry. I chatted with four young German visitors and complimented one on his back pack. I told him I used one like it when in Europe in 1972, and I thought it was a French Infantry Nap Sack from World War I. He told me it is a Swiss Pack. They have a light metal frame, and leather bottom, and are tear shaped and draw at the top and with a flap that goes over the top. I bought mine for $2 in the Florence Flea Market. It is like a large book bag, very comfortable to wear, and I enjoyed traveling with it in Europe. Maybe it is a Mountaineers Day Pack. I don't know what happened to mine. I told the young German visitors they have Octoberfest in Melbourne, Florida and a few other German short stories. I traveled out on the Island Beach Ferry at 3 P.M. and commented on one gal's Margarettaville T-shirt. I mentioned, while waiting for passengers to board at Island Beach to one gal, that a relative in Maine had said that it is an extremely low low tide recently. I noticed the same phenomena out at Tod's Point. The relative said usually in the fall there are lower tides. I was thinking if that was an asteroid I observed around the moon the other night, maybe it impacted with the moon, and knocked the moon closer producing wider tidal extremes. Well enough science fiction. I returned on the Island Beach Ferry without leaving it. I surveyed the houses along the waterfront. I saw one man who must have weighed 600 pounds fishing on Steamboat Road with his son. I saw one young fellow zooming around Island Beach on a Jet Ski and head out to Tod's Point. They move across the water very quickly, but one should usually travel in pairs in case one malfunctions or keep a waterproof cell phone handy for emergencies, and be careful not to disturb fishermen. I noticed they have built a very large home next to the Belle Haven Club, along with almost finishing the remodeling of a large home on the South East point of Field Point Park. I noticed moderate harbor traffic. When I returned to the town ferry dock, I departed with the large crowd. In the Island Beach Ferry dock, I mentioned to one gentleman wearing a Crested Butte ski hat, that I knew of someone out there, but it is very cold out there in the winter. I said some people with arthritis prefer the warmer weather. I then went to Grass Island and surveyed the harbor briefly. I returned to the center of town, and sat for a while. I noticed the northern tree with the weeping leaves at the Senior Center has a sapling growing. I noticed two long stretch white Lincoln Continental Limousines cruising around town in formation. I mentioned to a G. Gordon Liddy look-alike but much younger about the oil drum shooting at Tod's Point. I then walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. I said hello to one of the senior Texas citizens in town. Also at the Island Beach parking lot, I chatted briefly with one of our regular town observers. I returned home and am having some goldfish crackers and ice tea. I used the cloth measuring tape to measure the widest part of my waist at the upper belly and it is 41 inches, but lower down the waist I feel comfortable in the 38 inch shorts I am wearing. I guess I will have a hard time fitting into my size 34 inch jeans this fall when it gets cooler. I observed one fellow downtown who looks like one of the representatives from Massachusetts in this area, and he has a similar weight problem to me. Well I guess we all keep hoping to loose weight, but for all I know with all the walking I have done, it only increases my appetite. Well have a good evening, and enjoy the rest of the nice day. CIO

Note:<888>9/13/98 Sunday 1:50 P.M. EDT: I went out for my coffee in my thermos at 11 P.M. down by the Senior Center. I walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue for a while. I drove up by CVS and bought 4 cans of mixed nuts for $1.99 each, $7.96 total and a half price package of Contac for $2.49 for a total of $10.45. I chatted with one of my former neighbors from Steamboat Road which was an enjoyable diversion. I stopped by Lectors for a metal steamer pitcher for my Cappuccino machine for $10.59, which I have to exchange for a smaller one since, it does not fit underneath the frother spout. I went by the Grand Union and bought a half gallon of whole milk for coffee for $1.67, a quart of Quaker State synthetic oil 10W30 for $2.29, a head of broccoli for .99, 2 cans of jumbo pitted olives for .89 each, $1.78 total, and a Avocado for .99 for $7.86 total. I returned home and put a half of quart of oil in my Volvo. I put my shower curtain and bath mat in the washer machine with a half gallon of bleach to clean off the mildew. They should be done shortly. I have to remember to leave the shower curtain closed to let it dry after showers. I am having ice tea and gold fish crackers. Well have a good afternoon. I will go out after I make a telephone call shortly. CIO

Note:<888>9/13/98 Sunday 11:00 A.M. EDT: I finished the laundry and making the ice tea. I had a peanut butter sandwich for lunch and Ramen noodles and ice tea. I am just about ready to go out with a thermos of coffee and sit outside and stroll around for a while downtown. Well have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>9/13/98 Sunday 9:15 A.M. EDT: I finished cleaning the apartment and watering the plants. I am doing laundry and making mrscott.com/icetea.htm . I should be done in a little over an hour. I listened to Radio Dingold linked from mrscott.com/dutchrad.htm while I was doing my house cleaning. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/13/98 Sunday 5:40 A.M. EDT: I am up back on a day time schedule and was up at 4:30 A.M.. I had scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee for breakfast. I am just about to start my house cleaning. I made a separate Starr Report page mrscott.com/starr.htm . Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/12/98 Saturday 5:20 P.M. EDT: I added President Clinton's Second Rebuttal to the Starr Report mrscott.com/clinton2.htm , and I also incorporated it into the downloadable group of files mrscott.com/starrrep.zip . I will not add it to the text file, it can be printed out separately. CIO

Note:<888>9/12/98 Saturday 4:50 P.M. EDT: I went out at 1:30 P.M. and drove down Greenwich Avenue, and stopped by Grass Island and viewed the harbor for an hour. I noticed a large cabin cruiser about 70 feet from New York, New York coming into the harbor called Klondike Gal?. It moored at the General Reinsurance Building. There were a number of other small craft on the water. I returned about 2:45 P.M. and rested a bit watching a bit of the "History Channel". I cleaned my air conditioner filter and its frame, and set it onto the air conditioner properly, so it does not vibrate anymore. It was getting to be a bit noisy. Well I am a bit pooped having been up since about 3 A.M.. My site is a bit busy with people trying to download the Starr Report. The Fox News service said there is nothing impeachable in the Starr report. They said the White House released another point by point reply to it today. Well I will try to stay up a while. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>9/12/98 Saturday 1:25 P.M. EDT: I went out at 9:30 A.M. and stopped by the Greenwich Library. I told them about my internet efforts mirroring the Starr Report, and the reaction was general yawn. I read the local paper which has lots of Starr Report information. I went by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I told one of the Saturday volunteers about my Starr Report efforts, and he is not pleased with the present administration. I mentioned for the cost of the Starr Report, they could have bought a Presidential Yacht. I also mentioned during our winter, there is a very nice resort recently built in South Africa called Sun City which is one of the premier resort destinations in the world particularly during our colder weather. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and parked. I bought another blue binder at Meads for $2.23. I noticed quite a few early morning risers going about their Saturday morning business. I drove over to Old Greenwich and noticed they have the Sidewalk Art sale going on in Old Greenwich during this beautiful day. I drove out to Tod's Point. I did the complete three mile walk around Tod's Point which is walking the entire outer perimeter. On the South Shore by the second bridge, I noticed at low tide the tidal pond along the shore has thousands of sand crabs. The tide was about as low as it ever goes, and the beach was at least 150 yards wide. I sat in the Picnic area for a short spell before completing my walk. I noticed by the freshly painted pair of picnic benches facing Indian Harbor and Island Beach, that the green steel drum trash can had from six to eight 45 caliber bullets fired through it, entering one side and exiting the other. I can't imagine any walkers or picnickers firing a firearm at the Picnic area, so I imagine it must have been a law enforcement officer killing a rapid raccoon or other animal in the trash barrel. I was thinking it must be awfully hard to lift the metal barrels, and I noticed they have started putting in green plastic barrels, which are more prone to being blown over by the wind, except a couple have frames at the base. There were quite a few walkers out in the late morning as usual during good weather, and frequently during colder weather. I chatted with one gentleman about the old days in Nantucket from 1975 to 1983 when I use to walk and jog from seven to fifteen miles a day. I would walk or jog from the center of town frequently out to one of the shore points at the Airport beach, Surfside Beach, or Mount Vernon Farm Beach, frequently taking dirt roads to the first two off Fair Grounds Road through the Pine Forest to the beach, and of course the access to Mount Vernon Farm then was dirt. I would then walk or jog along the beach and come back one of the alternate routes previously mentioned. I sometimes if full of energy would continue on back through town out to the Jetties Beach before returning. Some other walking and jogging excursions were out from town to Sconsset on the Sconsset Road and then return the longer route along the Polpis Road. Another route was out to Madaket and then return through town via a different route. Of course one could always walk around downtown a bit too. I remember local Nantucket kids like taking several days to walk around the entire perimeter of the island, which might seem like a short distance, but when one looks at all the bays, coves, and jagged shore line of Nantucket, it can take a number of days so bring provisions. After my walk at Tod's Point I returned back home and had a Tony's 4 Cheese Pizza, gold fish crackers, ice tea and coffee. I then filed this report. Well it is a beautiful day, so I think I will go back out downtown. Enjoy the afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>9/12/98 Saturday 9:25 A.M. EDT: I am just about done printing out the 307 page report. I printed out the first half on my HP 500+ which started malfunctioning halfway thru. It might have overheated. I will have to test it later. I printed out the rest on my NEC 890 which is about half as fast as the HP. Both are postscript printers, which are faster. I have two blue Oxford Binders that I bought yesterday at Stables for $6. They each hold half the report with the side clip. As soon as I put the second half together, I will go out for a little fresh air and roam around town for a while. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/12/98 Saturday 5:30 A.M. EDT: I put together ASCII Text Dos Printable Version and Word processor Importable Version of Starr Report with President Clinton's Rebuttal "starrrep.txt", 300 Pages, 888,640 Bytes . CIO

Note:<888>9/12/98 Saturday 4:00 A.M. EDT: I slept from 9 P.M. to 3 A.M.. I updated the Starr Report listing by adding the individual pages of the report to my server which is low on space, United States House of Representatives Report of the Independent Counsel, Starr Report, Read in HTML Format. I also added President Clinton's Rebuttal mrscott.com/clinton.htm to the group of files in the individuals pages and the downloadable file. I am still tired and will go back to bed. CIO

Note:<888>9/11/98 Friday 8:45 P.M. EDT: I download the html pages of the Starr Report from CNN and edited out the CNN info out, and posted United States House of Representatives Report of the Independent Counsel, Download Starr Report, "starrrep.zip" 300,104 bytes and Open File "starrrep.htm" to download and unzip to have your own downloadable version of the Starr Report on your hard drive for your own leisure reading. Just unzip it into a folder and open the file "starrrep.htm" to read the report with your web browser. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>9/11/98 Friday 6:30 P.M. EDT: I took a short nap in the morning. I had a peanut butter sandwich and goldfish cracker, ice tea, and coffee for lunch. I did a little internet work. I had a visitor come down for an errand. I went out and stopped by Zyns and bought 3 buy 2 get 1 free of Camel lights for $18 total. I stopped by Meads, but they did not have the binder I needed for my Random Notes print out. I went by Stables in Old Greenwich and bought 2 blue binders for $5.82 with the binding clip on the side. I drove by Tod's Point and viewed Long Island Sound from the Picnic Area and there was a storm coming in, but it seems to have cleared. It was a nice blustery day, and I could see a number of sailboats across the Sound. I returned home about 5 P.M., and read today's Greenwich Times which I bought at Zyns. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . CIO

Note:<888>9/11/98 Friday 9:10 A.M. EDT: I upgraded Text File of Scott's Random Notes from start June 1997 thru August 1998 about 376 pages or 1,194,114 bytes with July 1998 and August 1998's text, and printed out those two months. The file can be imported into a word processor and reconfigured into a more user friendly format for printing. CIO

Note:<888>9/11/98 Friday 7:10 A.M. EDT: I am done with my daily internet routines. I am listening to BBC from mrscott.com/ukradio.htm . Well back to net activity. Watch the stock market today. CIO

Note:<888>9/11/98 Friday 5:45 A.M. EDT: I was up at 5 A.M. and had bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee for breakfast. This is the link for the Independent Council Report to be released this afternoon United States House of Representatives - Report of the Independent Counsel . Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/10/98 Thursday 8:10 P.M. EDT: A friend stopped by at 2:30 P.M. while I was just finishing up my email. I went for my 3 P.M. appointment, but it was cancelled. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop again. I returned and I went out with my guest to view the harbor from Grass Island. I returned home and we relaxed and I made dinner while watching the financial news. I fixed ham, corn on the cob, green beans, broccoli, and ice tea. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm which is just about where it was when I started it last October, in other words all the profits are gone. Well have a good evening, I need to get to bed soon. CIO

 Note:<888>9/10/98 Thursday 1:25 P.M. EDT: I went downtown at 11:30 A.M. and mailed my letter. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop and they have a Braun coffee machine tea maker in the housewares, they have a Chinese tea chest for $125. They were just taking in a three component stereo system that looked fairly new that should be around $50 to $75, but it only has one tape cassette drive not two. My system is working fine, so I don't need another one. I went down Greenwich Avenue and viewed the lunch hour crowd. I did not drive down Steamboat Road, because it is the same weather pattern. I would say that last week's minor volcanic activity up in Alaska sent down a cooler cloud formation that has caused this cooler weather. I suppose weather watchers in the Gulf of Mexico might be worrying about the offshore oil platforms in the Gulf of Mexico and their security during the present hurricane season. If a major platform like the Shell Oil platform were taken out by a hurricane, we could lose 25% of the U.S. oil, which would make for a cold winter up north. I went by the Greenwich Library and read the three computer news weeklies and the local paper. It was very slow in the library, and I suppose now that the cooler weather is here, we will have less visitors and less merry makers out from the city. Of course we always get Indian Summer in about another six weeks. Well it really is not that cold, only mid 70s, but it is a sudden change. I returned home and made a cup of coffee. I have a 3 P.M. appointment. Well keep enjoying the afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>9/10/98 Thursday 11:25 A.M. EDT: I rested from 7 A.M. to 9 A.M. and I got up and had a Tony's Pizza and wrote a letter after cleaning up. I tweaked the United Kingdom and Ireland and Northern Ireland Radio Stations page adding descriptions to the BBC Radio links. I also reduced my auto insurance from a million dollar liability to the state allocated amount, since I really don't drive that much. Well have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>9/10/98 Thursday 6:45 A.M. EDT: I tweaked the United Kingdom and Ireland and Northern Ireland Radio Stations page. CIO

Note:<888>9/10/98 Thursday 4:50 A.M. EDT: I put together a new radio links page United Kingdom and Ireland and Northern Ireland Radio Stations CIO

Note:<888>9/10/98 Thursday 3:35 A.M. EDT: I was up at 2:30 A.M. and had breakfast of Grand Union raisin bran, toast, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice, and coffee. I had a good nights sleep. I am listening to BBC Radio News at <http://www.bbc.co.uk/radio5/live/stub/output28.ram> for the British Perspective of the World. I did not make it out yesterday, but I have a 3 P.M. appointment this afternoon, so I suppose I might go out earlier today. It is cooler here about 70 degrees here, but it is suppose to warm up for the weekend. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 4:25 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm , well I guess it Ups and Downs in the stock market, well have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 4:20 P.M. EDT: Webshots - Download the Ultimate Screen Saver and Wallpaper Today! CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 3:50 P.M. EDT: I worked on the internet until about 10:30 A.M., and I then took a nap until about 2 P.M.. I watched CNN a bit about President Clinton's trip to

Orlando Speech. I think CNN should give Jeb Bush equal time on their evening newscast to expound on his viewpoint in the Florida governor's race. I think the President should view McDonald's outside Disney World and tour some of the new Disney attractions and tour some of Florida's hurricane disaster preparation sights. Maybe he should tour the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Florida and possibly stop by some Old Folks homes and the Grey Panther's headquarters. I believe Michael Vanderbilt has some property in Florida and Brumos is probably still pushing German automobiles. I suppose NASA has some activities for VIPs and one could tour Busch Gardens and Sea World and visit the Rapid Deployment Force at McDill Air Force Base and tour the East and West coast shores of the state of Florida. Once you've started doing a lot of that, his term would probably be over in about two years. Well I sure wish I could afford to go down to Florida this winter, but you know on a limited budget I don't know if I will be able to get away. I have been told that IBM was think of building some sort of facility in Orlando or at Disney, but I am so far off sight from Florida, it is hard to tell what is really going on down there anyway. Well give my best to the kind folks in Florida, and I appreciate all the reasonably priced Florida Orange Juice they have been sending up North over the years. CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 8:35 A.M. EDT: I put the World Wildlife Fund link at the upper right of my homepage <http://www.wwf.org> and I found this link to download their screensaver Action Kit: Free Stuff which you should logon from the primary link. Well maybe we can do some environmental observation today somewhere around town. CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 8:20 A.M. EDT: Death Threat Received Against Whale Star CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 8:00 A.M. EDT: News on pets Lexington Herald-Leader | September 6, 1998 CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 7:50 A.M. EDT: I posted another broadcast for my broadcast page at mrscott.com/sound.htm . Well have a good day, I should be out drifting around town about 9 A.M., after I shower and cleanup. CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 6:35 A.M. EDT: The Speedtrap Registry CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 6:25 A.M. EDT: I am impressed with this new search engine from Microsoft MSN Internet Search CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 6:20 A.M. EDT: When Win98's power management doesn't agree with your PC (InfoWorld) Windows 98 Bios Update Information. CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 6:15 A.M. EDT: Grand Union Coupons ValuPage brought to you by SuperMarkets Online brought to you by ValuPage sponsored by SuperMarkets Online CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 6:10 A.M. EDT: MP3.com - The MP3 resource on the Internet . I was thinking yesterday after the electrical storm the day before, that when Cable Modems are commonly installed, that although Cable Systems are suppose to be grounded, it would be useful if some internet tech people checked as to whether the ethernet cards used as cable modems are grounded against lightning, so as not to short out CPUs during an electrical storm. Thus the ethernet cable modem should have a ground fault interrupter or there should be a ground fault interrupter on the cable leading to the cable modem. CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 5:30 A.M. EDT: Additional note, I had bacon, scrambled eggs, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee for breakfast; tomorrow will be cereal. CIO

Note:<888>9/9/98 Wednesday 5:25 A.M. EDT: I went out at 3 P.M. yesterday and had coffee downtown. I chatted with a couple who use to live on Steamboat Road about Harry Truman and being interviewed at Spirit Lake before Mt. St. Helens exploded last time. I mentioned that my father had given me President Harry Truman's autograph in the mid 1950 when we lived in Alabama and Harry visited our local chamber of commerce. I also mentioned that thru Harry's daughter being married to the Daniels family that there was probably some connection to Daniels construction company in the old days. I made my 4 P.M. appointment just as a major downpour occurred. I stopped by the library and told a couple of regular internet users to check out my internet as far as the weather is concerned. A lot of people frequently forget in doing their economic research that the weather is key factor in economic forecasts, just as oil futures and off shore Gulf of Mexico oil production is effected by hurricane activity, or crop forecasts as opposed to frost or energy consumption as opposed to average temperature, or average temperature as opposed to amount of tourism. Thus the weather effects some major economic factors in the economy, and since the United States governments spends over 50 billion dollars a year on weather forecasting and weather research, there is a lot of weather information to sift through. Also if one is around a military group or security group that has large numbers of personnel outside for extended periods of time, or even any outdoor activity group the weather can be a frequent factor which also affects outdoor recreational activities, concerts, picnicking, maintenance, travel plans, and a myriad of other activities. Thus a smart individual keeps an eye to the weather in their daily activities. Well there was one brief rain shower during this period of discussion. I checked out the waterfront again. I walked around downtown a brief period, and one local citizen was somewhat suspect of the intentions of certain out of town observers who come here to linger for long periods of time. I advised him that there are professional troublemakers who show up in every community particularly wealthy communities hoping to profiteer in their adventures. I also advised him a great many foreign visitors come here without resources, and they usually work, and most generally don't cause any problems; and we enjoy having them since it helps in the International makeup of the community. Thus I am still taking my Swiss neutral position and not taking sides on any major issues, since as far as I can tell there really is not much to report on. I suppose if some clever researcher compiled a list of the other internet sites coming out of this area, one might have a better viewpoint of the over all consciousness of the entire area. Well I returned home and chatted with some of my neighbors. I relaxed for a while and went to bed at about 9 P.M. after having dinner of peanut butter sandwich and goldfish crackers and ice tea. I did not get a chance to update Scott's Index before the 3 A.M. update deadline at the Microsoft Investor site. Well have a good morning, and remember the squirrel in the tree might know more than you do. CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 2:40 P.M. EDT: I went out at 9 A.M.. I found two TV tables discarded by a neighbor. I chatted with a couple of my neighbors about the storm. I drove west on West Putnam Avenue and noticed an ambulance by a yellow bicycle in front of Putnam Olds Cadillac and next to the body shop. There was an ambulance there, so apparently a bicycler was hurt in a mishap. I hope they are all right. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop and surveyed the merchandise. I went by Putnam Trust Bank of New York and withdrew funds from inside at the cash machine, since there were about 10 people in line. I drove downtown and noticed they had yellow tape in front of the catholic church where the storm and knocked down a large limb. I parked at the Board of Education adjacent parking lot next to the French Park, which is cheaper. I walked to the stationary store on the lower left of Greenwich Avenue and bought three buy two get one free of Camel lights for $17.70 total. I stopped by the Mews thrift shop and toured the merchandise. I chatted with a fellow thrift shopper and he told me he was moving into the Mews. I offered to help him move some book cases, but he said he had a dolly. I drove down on Steamboat Road, and chatted with the fisherman. I chatted with somebody that look like the son in law of a former president and grandson of a five star general with his two sons about fishing conditions in Nantucket around the old Navy Base on Lyons Farm Road saying that they are good in October there, but it is much too dangerous to swim there because of the rip tide along the south shore of both Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard. I mentioned somebody from Blue Eye, Missouri had showed me where to fish there. I also said that day in October before heading to California the first time in the yellow Subaru around 1978, I had caught about 28 blue fish and two bass in about two hours with a Hopkins Lure. I then went down to the Greenwich Harbor Inn and advised the cabin cruiser personnel from Vero Beach that all the weather information on the internet to do with weather forecasting is available, and I said IBM has internet access in Vero Beach. I advised them against going down to Vero Beach until the end of October when the hurricane season is officially over. I drove over to Grass Island and surveyed the waterfront where there were other people fishing. I noticed the cabin cruiser from Vero Beach leaving the harbor and the Island Beach Ferry coming in. I noticed the Greenwich Parks service was emptying the trash cans, and they are big strong dudes with Army T-shirts doing the work. I chatted with another fisherman about weather conditions in the Keys this time of year. I returned to central Greenwich and toured the Hospital Thrift Shop and told them about meeting an International Red Cross Head years ago in Constitution Square in Greece, and that my roommate in college and I both shook hands with him. I also mentioned that the International Red Cross has many duties besides blood donations. I advised them that I believe I am O+, and another family member is B- the universal donor. I also chatted with a couple of the shoppers and staff about random subjects. I went downtown and stopped for one of the local library patrons from Norway and offered him a lift, and told him about recent weather activities on the internet. I went to the library and briefly chatted with one regular. I left the library and went to the Grand Union and purchased Green Beans at .99 a pound for .58, Kellogg's Corn flakes large box for .99, Cheerios $2.50, two Tony's Pizzas for $2.50 apiece for $5, Tetley Tea Bags $1.49, 3 Tropicana Orange Juice half gallons for $5 total, three MyTFine Pudding Mix $2, a gallon of GU skim milk for $1.99, 2 I Can't Believe It's Not Butter packages for $1.29 each, a gallon of Goldfish crackers for $5.29, a Morell ham for $2.99 a pound for $4.99, a pound of Virginia bacon for $1.99, two 18 egg boxes for .99 each box for a total of $36.37. I chatted with one nice local couple about the fact that the gentleman was on the plane with me when I returned from my father's funeral in Illinois years ago. I noticed quite a few of the Monday morning senior citizen crowd out and about this Tuesday after Labor Day. I paid for my groceries and while putting them away, I chatted with a pilot about general topics to do with aviation and computers. He has good military sense from experience. I returned home with my groceries and put them away. I had some Ramen noodles. I filed this report. I will try to relax for a while and I have a 4 P.M. appointment today. Well enjoy your afternoons. CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 8:00 A.M. EDT: I have been doing some net work, and also listening to www.ttalk.com 's weekender progress. I guess the weekday capitalists are circling their wagons for the day's venture. It will be interesting to see what the Stockmarket thinks today NYSE Market Information . I will start cleaning up and continue listening to www.ttalk.com , I have 1 hour 10 minutes until the broadcast is over, so I guess I will be out on the town for viewing the storm damaged citizens about 9 A.M. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 5:40 A.M. EDT: MobileWord Web Site CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 5:40 A.M. EDT: Reference Sites Ask Jeeves! and Answers.com - Question and Electric Library Personal Edition for a few quick and easy answers to the world of Information. CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 5:30 A.M. EDT: Bill Gates Website CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 5:25 A.M. EDT: Microsoft PressPass - PC Empowerment Grants
Open a World of New Opportunities to Older Americans CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 5:20 A.M. EDT:<http://www.lotus.com/98/lotusphere.nsf>, IBM
LotusSphere Berlin, Germany, September 22 -25, 1998 CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 5:15 A.M. EDT: I would not have wanted to be out in that weather yesterday at the US Open 1998 - Official Site by IBM . CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 5:10 A.M. EDT: Handy PC reference material IBM News New World Book PC Cdrom Set CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 5:00 A.M. EDT: Look at the Satellite Photo from 8:45 P.M. 9/7/98, picture will change soon, NRL Satellite Photo goes 8\_images/trop\_atlantic\_vis/LATEST.jpeg
tropics CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 4:55 A.M. EDT: I add a few more links to Tropical Weather Scott's
Internet Hotlist CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 4:35 A.M. EDT: Forbes Digital Tool: E-Business - Hurricanes and the web CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 4:30 A.M. EDT: MSNBC Bronx teen dies, thousands lose power in strong storm CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 4:25 A.M. EDT: Exxon Executive Cary Freed Kidnapped American
Had Long Marches CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 4:15 A.M. EDT: New York Times Violent Storms Kill 3 in New York CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 4:10 A.M. EDT: Words of Weather Humor. Yesterday morning while sitting in front of the Senior Center, the squirrel in the tree was going ape shit and basically ran me off, with its intense chattering focused right at me, so that pretty much confirmed to me, that the squirrel in the tree new exactly what was going to happen yesterday and this morning, I think somebody should give more nuts to the squirrel for being so vigilant. I have been observing that squirrel for quite a long time the last few years, the few in the trees there are usually out in the morning, and they frequently dump debris on me in the evenings, when I sit out. CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 4:00 A.M. EDT: New York National Weather Service Index of /text/severe/damage/ CIO

Note:<888>9/8/98 Tuesday 3:30 A.M. EDT: Well I am finally up after the deep sleep. I woke up for a bite of breakfast of cereal, toast, orange juice, vitamins earlier, but fell back asleep. I also received a call from a friend out on Long Island and he said the whether had been bad out there, and I had chatted with his wife earlier. Well I am not sure how much rain we had, but when you have low blood pressure and a storm front comes in, you tend to get sleepy, so I usually sleep through storms. Have a good morning. Also the night before last, when the full moon was waning, I noticed what looked like a star at about 2:30 P.M. o'clock on the face of the moon about one tenth of the diameter of the moon away from the moon, I don't recall seeing a star there, a downtown observer said it is "The Star of David", but I think at about 2 P.M. two nights ago, it might have been the morning star "Mercury", but it is so long ago since I studied the stars, I forget a lot. I think the "Star of David" is an asteroid of metiorite, that comes around every thousand years, and creates havoc on the planet. Well it might be due soon, and maybe that is it.
CIO

Note:<888>9/21/98 Monday 6:25 P.M. EDT: I finished cleaning the apartment and watering the plants. I still have to do laundry and shower and clean up. I chatted with my new ISP in California www.123bizweb.com , and I will not have the new site accessible until Internic logs on the new name. I can't access it through the IP address since, they use the Netscape server which has multiple accounts on the same IP address. The new California West Coast, San Jose, California address for Scott's site will be www.mikescott.org which should be working in two or three days. I will be able to upload the files to the site tonight though, although they will not be accessible until the domain name is active. I will have to fix any cgi scripts once the site is active. Well have a good evening, I have been watching the weather channel on Channel 54 here, and I will watch the ABC evening news at 6:30 P.M.. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm also. CIO

Note:<888>9/21/98 Monday 4:40 P.M. EDT: Weather Underground: Tropical Weather CIO

Note:<888>9/21/98 Monday 4:35 P.M. EDT:FEMA Hurricane Watches and Warnings <http://www.fema.gov/hu98/AL0798w.gif> . I was up at 10:30 A.M. and watched President Clinton's United Nations Speech. I had breakfast of Cheerios, Toast, Orange Juice, Vitamins, and Coffee. I went back to bed until 2:30 P.M.. I started house cleaning. I checked with the California ISP, they said they would email me the IP address. I checked with my Florida site, and they said they would upgrade me today to 50 megs in the next 24 hours. I will go back to housecleaning shortly. With the Clinton Starr Report information and video released today, the internet is very slow, and it is hard to get the weather links working off my Tropical Weather page mrscott.com/weather.htm . CIO

Note:<888>9/21/98 Monday 3:00 A.M. EDT: I finished a bit of web surfing, I noticed in

<http://www.nds.coi.gov.uk/coi/coipress.nsf/ec99f27fdec7ef20802564da002d9e0f/f017f572240ae5638025668100412f77?OpenDocument>, Buckingham Palace Press Release, November 11, 1998 that Queen Elizabeth II is going to pay a visit to Paris on November 11, 1998 to unveil a statue of Winston Churchill there and also visit Belgium the same day. Well I have finished my daily internet routine. Well if you are fortunate enough to own Microsoft Office 97, there is an update to it at Software downloads for Windows 95/98/NT. New 32-bit Apps at Stroud's CWSApps List . Well give my best to the VIPs and other visitors, while I pursue my housework tomorrow. Words to the wise, "Don't even begin to think you are pulling the wool over my eyes, I have seen it all before." If you are interested in what is happening with my site, check my stats at mrscott.com/stats.htm . CIO

Note:<888>9/21/98 Monday 1:25 A.M. EDT: I went out at 11 P.M.. I drove down by Steamboat Road, and there was a State Department License Plate parked by the General Reinsurance Building. I drove down to the pier at the end. I returned to the center of Greenwich Avenue, and parked. I walked the lower end of Greenwich Avenue. I walked up to the top and I heard vintage Beatles Music coming from the band at the Dome Restaurant. I sat on the bench at the top of the Avenue at the Post Road. I observed two Hadassah Jews walking down Lafayette Place with a mother and a young baby in a baby carriage. They have a school up in Bedford. They look a bit like the Amish. I sat on the bench for a half hour. I noticed a black and white Tuxedo Cat, you know black cat with white belly and white paws and white stripe on forehead crossing Lafayette Place and going into the First Presbyterian Church property. While on Steamboat Road, I observed a lot of vintage circa 1950s Ford Automobiles some from Michigan with other vehicles that seem to be part of some sort of rally. They all seemed to be partying a bit. While back to the bench at the top of the Avenue, I noticed the fire department head out on a mission. I noticed the old Talbot's store at Lafayette Place is for rent, since they moved down to the Avenue. I noticed a few midnight cruisers. I returned back down to the center of the Avenue. I observed two young gals and a fellow say the music at the Dome was lousy. I heard different version of older Beatles music being played at the Dome by a young band as I walked by. I returned to the Center of Greenwich Avenue by the Senior Center, and observed our observer down from Bridgeport is still camping out. I suppose their karma in always camping out keeps it from raining, like Arabs praying to the sun. I suppose if the hurricane comes up here, it might get a little wet. I noticed on the hurricane Georges report that if it is suppose to head towards San Juan about 5 P.M. today. I got to thinking it might hit St. Croix before and possibly damage the Aramerada Hess refinery which refines lots of Venezuelan Crude Oil which the United States has been consuming in large quantities recently. If the Hess Refinery were hit, it would possibly cause a significant decrease in the United States oil sources. I verified this with an oil expert down in Texas. I suppose hurricane activity in the Caribbean can cause significant problems with the Gulf of Mexico platforms as well. Well I drove back down Steamboat Road and observed a interracial couple making out in front of the Jenkins building, but possibly one of them was just tanned. I noticed Police on patrol investigating the general area, and that they are maintaining the usual patrols in the area. I returned home and made a seltzer water, angostura bitters, and orange juice drink. I filed this report. I will do a little light net cruising this morning. While out I observed somebody walking on Milbank Avenue that looked like somebody I know from Brazil. Well maybe the coffee barons are converging on the town and brought this hot weather. It was warm and sultry out, and overcast and humid. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/20/98 Sunday 10:05 P.M. EDT: I took a nap yesterday afternoon until 6:30 P.M. when the phone rang and woke me up, but nobody was there. I watched the NBC evening news. Around 7:30 P.M. I had cooked and eaten a 20 oz. Stauffer's Lasagna. I had a house guest arrive about 8:30 P.M.. We went out downtown, and he got a steak sandwich at Maneros butcher which is open until 10 P.M. on Saturday night. We sat down on Steamboat Road while he ate it, and listened to vintage music coming from the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. We then went by the Grand Union and I bought two frozen petit peas at $1.09 each for $2.18, 2 GU frozen Green Beans .50 each for $1, a Stauffer's frozen 20 oz. Lasagna for $2.99, GU whole milk half gallon $1.67, GU 2% milk half gallon $1.67, a 2 pound bag of onions $1.99, a Tony's four cheese pizza $3.39 for a total of $14.89. We returned home and watched a little television until 11 P.M.. I got up at midnight and logged onto 123 BizWeb ISP California $13 Special and signed up for a year's internet site on the west coast in San Jose, California for $154.50. The order should be processed tomorrow. I will thus be able to reduce my internet site extra charges in Florida, by having unlimited transfer time in California. I will also have a site that faces out from the other side of the Continent to make access from Asia and Australia easier. I will also have a backup site in case either site ever goes down. Since I was being charged about $5 to $7 extra transfer fees a month on the Florida site, and the California site is $13, it will only cost me about $6 or $7 more a month. I will have 50 megs storage, just as the same as the Florida site, and I will try to have the site up and running tomorrow once I receive the information from the site provider. I went back to bed and got up at 7 A.M.. I fixed breakfast for my houseguest, and got a tired spell and went back to bed until noon. I chatted with a family member, and they told me the minister in Maine is very down on President Clinton's misconduct, and should be interviewed on CNN. I went out at 1 P.M. with my houseguest who had gone over to the skating rink and watched them ice skating. Speaking of Cold, I got a post card from a Danish pen pal, who was up 200 miles north of the Arctic circle in Finland with his family on vacation up there. It is already fall up there, and the trees are changing. I went downtown with my houseguest, and we stopped by Maneros butchers again and each got steak sandwiches and beverages. We sat on the harbor on the steps of the General Reinsurance building overlooking the harbor watching the boats, and listening to the music coming from the Greenwich Harbor Festival. There seemed to be a large crowd at the Greenwich Harbor Festival. We then drove over to Tod's Point, and walked the entire walk around Tod's Point, and sat in the Southwest Picnic area, viewing the harbor on an overcast day. There was plenty of wind, so there were lots of sailboats out on the Sound. We started to return home and on Sound Beach Avenue, they had called an ambulance for a female bicyclist whom was hurt in a bicycle accident. I assume she is all right. I rested at home until 6 P.M. We then went out for a drive down by the water and stopped by CVS on Greenwich Avenue. I bought a jar of Cinnamon for .99, 6 CVS air fresheners for $3.57 total, and two Gillette deodorant sticks for $2.98, with .39 Connecticut sales tax for $7.82 total. I returned home and started cooking dinner of baked sirloin center cut pork chops with chopped garlic and herbs and wine, baked potato, baked onion, petit peas, and ice tea. I made up a batch of mrscott.com/icetea.htm while cooking dinner. After dinner I fixed coffee for my houseguest and made Cappuccino for myself. We watched a bit of CBS 60 minutes. My houseguest left about 9:30 P.M. and I filed this report. Well have a good evening. I suppose I might be uploading the files tomorrow, while the internet is busy with the Starr video of President Clinton. He is suppose to be speaking at the United Nations tomorrow, and I believe Prime Minister Blair of England is also due there. Well enjoy you evening. I will do house cleaning and water the plants and laundry when I get up tomorrow whenever that is. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 4:20 P.M. EDT: I finished my email and web surfing, it is time to take a nap. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 4:15 P.M. EDT: I updated my Greenwich, Connecticut IBM.net or Cable and Wireless Internet Access page. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 4:05 P.M. EDT: Cable and Wireless took over MCI Internet Access on 9/14/98.

{\rtf1\ansi\ansicpg1252\deff0\deflang1033{\fonttbl {\f0\fswiss\fcharset0 Arial;}} {\colortbl ;\red128\green0\blue0;\red0\green0\blue255;} \uc1\pard\cf1\ulnone\f0\fs20 On September 14 1998, Cable & Wireless officially acquired MCI's\pard\cf1\ulnone\f0\fs20 Internet service business. As an MCI Internet customer, your service\pard\cf1\ulnone\f0\fs20 has been automatically transitioned to Cable & Wireless, a world-leading\pard\cf1\ulnone\f0\fs20 provider of integrated telecommunications services. We want to welcome\pard\cf1\ulnone\f0\fs20 you to Cable & Wireless and assure you that we are committed to satisfying\pard\cf1\ulnone\f0\fs20 your Internet needs today and in the future.\pard\cf1\ulnone\f0\fs20 Over the next few days we will be contacting you regarding your Internet\pard\cf1\ulnone\f0\fs20 service. In the meantime, please visit our new Internet home page at\pard\cf2\ul http://cwix.com\cf1\ulnone .\pard }

<http://cwix.com>
I added to my dialer setup the two new Cable and Wireless Telephone Numbers in Stamford, Connecticut and White Plains, New York.

Stamford, Connecticut Cable and Wireless Internet Access (203) 326-3600

White Plains, New York Cable and Wireless Internet Access 914) 397-8200

The old MCI numbers still work because they are the same as the New Cable and Wireless Numbers, so All You Really Need to Do is Rename Your Icons.

See Cable and Wireless Local Access Number Search Results

Also they offer more competitive long distance rates than MCI. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 3:10 P.M. EDT: The Industry Standard: IBM Envisions Net Services in Cars, Airplanes CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 3:00 P.M. EDT: HOTSPOTS -University of Hawaii CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 2:55 P.M. EDT: Court TV Online - Clinton in Crisis CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 2:50 P.M. EDT: Clinton Video Testimony Site on Monday

RealGuide: Presidency In Crisis CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 2:50 P.M. EDT:

Exxon Corp (XON)

EXXON CORP. said its production of oil and gas in the Gulf of Mexico had not been disrupted by a tropical depression brewing in the central Gulf. It said its inshore production facilities and its Baton Rouge refinery were also operating normally. (Reuters 12:31 PM ET 09/18/98)

CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 2:35 P.M. EDT: Special $13 a month Special Internet Site in California. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 2:20 P.M. EDT: NRL Satellite Photo

goes8_images/trop_atlantic_vis/LATEST.jpeg tropics Hurricane Georges is on the satellite map at this link. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 2:10 P.M. EDT: Also various Aviation Groups life commercial carriers and the United States Air Force should consider evacuating to safe havens until this hurricane has passed. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 2:00 P.M. EDT: Georges, Now Major Hurricane, Races For Caribbean . Well the French are sending Hurricane Relief supplies down to the Caribbean in anticipation of major storm damage on some of their islands. I guess we might get people like Lowell Weicker fleeing from south of the Virgin Islands where he hides out, and possibly surfacing in Greenwich where he also lives. He might be very tan, and people might not recognize him. He once told me last summer around August he has a house south of the Virgin Islands. If he is living down there some of the time, possibly other residents of Greenwich might be down there also. Well it is a category 3 storm, and will probably increase to a category 4 storm. I suppose the hazards of Caribbean Property ownership are readily apparent. I guess they should secure Reese's Liquor Store in St. Thomas, The World's Largest Liquor store servicing cruise ships with duty free liquor. I once talked to Mike at Marriott Corporations' Caribbean Resort Operations, and he has been through this before. Also Club Med personnel living in Lotus Land Reality might be in for a rude change of reality. I also think the Happy Campers on St. Johns in the Virgin Islands should think about folding up their tents along with Caneel Bay Plantation. I suppose the Amerada Hess Refinery in St. Croix might be threatened. Also Offshore Oil Platforms in the Gulf of Mexico might be threatened. More than likely Low Lying areas of Florida or the Gulf of Mexico might be threatened. I would advise residents in those areas, to be prepared to evacuate in a couple days as the Hurricane moves north. Possibly places of refuge would be the Orlando, Florida Disney World complex which has lots of hotel space and is on the interior of Florida. Anyone considering coming up north to this area for evacuation this time of year, we're still having warm comfortable weather for this time of year, but the area tends to be expensive. Any volunteer coastal observers should consider taking shelter in case of major storm activity. I know of John Prince in St. Johns at the Marina, and he has experience with this sort of Hurricane. I suppose a few people on boats in the Caribbean are looking for safe ports to sail into. I would advise sailing away from the storm to the nearest port of call, and not to sail towards the storm, even if there is a nearer landfall. Be prepared with emergency kits and contact with the Coast Guard, in case you have to evacuate or be rescued. I suppose off the top of my head, the safest port might be Jamaica, since they might have a larger protected harbor, that is based off second sight off the top of my head. I don't know. I suppose Burt's Bar down in Barbados might be a convenient place for a Hurricane party, since it is south of the Hurricane. Any homeless kids down on the beach in Florida might consider taking refuge at the Bahia Mar Yacht Basin in Fort Lauderdale, Florida which has an experienced group of sailors use to dealing with homeless coastal observers. If you have time you could hitchhike to Disney World and sleep in the game room of the Disney Hotel. I know of a group of Seminole Indians on the Reservation at the Truck Stop West of Fort Lauderdale whom run a 24 dinner and might offer refuge to stranded homeless hurricane refugees. The Homestead, Florida Rest Area on the Florida Interstate is a fairly secure facility. One can always seek shelter in a community center, school, salvation army, red cross facility, or other emergency facility in the state of Florida. If any of these season's hurricane hit down in Florida, you don't want to be stuck outside. In an emergency seek higher ground and shelter away from would be debris blowing around in high winds. I suppose if you are rich, you could abandon port, and fly up north for shelter. I suppose a church might could be a good refuge since they tend to be solid structures. Well I don't have the answer, I am doing this from second sight. I suppose one could also fly down south in South America, south of the hurricane, if one has access to air transportation. The United States Caribbean Command should send all its ships out to sea along with the British Navy or any other Navies in the area. I suppose any resort visitors and personnel should consider evacuating their locations. I suppose the Caribbean Red Cross should be in touch with the other various Red Cross organizations to be prepared for the impending emergency hurricane situation. I suppose the Rocks should secure their home on St. Bart's and the Watson's should secure their home in Antigua. The British Montserrat force should consider taking refuge on high ground in Antigua. Keep and eye out of any hippie type surfers in remote beach areas, that might know that a hurricane is heading into the area. Well I suppose you can also watch the native birds and wildlife to see how they are reacting and to see if they are moving towards shelter. If the Pelicans disappear, you might consider taking shelter too. Well we will continue to follow the hurricane activity down south, but I assume people are adequately prepared. Well the broadcast is over, so have a good weekend. Il y'a beaucoup des personnes a de Caribbean, qui parle de Francais, aussi. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 1:20 P.M. EDT: I was up at 11:30 A.M.. I had Cheerios, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and Cappuccino for breakfast. I am listening to last weekend's Weekender broadcast from www.ttalk.com from Australia. They are talking about the Australian Internet activity, and mentioned some information on preparation for the Sydney, Australia Olympics in the Year 2000. Well I have about another 45 minutes to go, and then I will clean up and go out about 2:30 P.M.. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 5:30 A.M. EDT: Of course there is another major league conspiracy going on today, that a few people in town have been informed about this week. This weekend in Roger Sherman Baldwin park down by the Harbor with all the Goose Shit droppings, they're having the United Way Harbor Festival. Anyone is invited for a modest donation of $25 or $20 earlier if you buy your tickets ahead of time. Of course if you know the waterfront area well, anyone knows it is easy to sneak in by walking around down by the Ferry dock and entering by the Greenwich Police Harbor Patrol Dock. Thus I suppose a number of local bigwigs and other community types and families and citizens will be there enjoying themselves during the next two days. Beware of any terrorists dressed like clowns. I would imagine that for $25 one gets to have some sort of fun. I can't afford it, and quite frankly I generally let the bigwigs in town do their own thing while I sit back and be private as usual. If you see any suspicious characters down at the United Way Party, we could setup a mock jail and arrest them and keep them in the jail until they call up somebody for bail. I have also seen Americares personnel lurking around the Island Beach Ferry Dock area last time I took the ferry on Sunday, but I am not sure whether the Island Beach Ferry is still running. Well enjoy yourselves today. I am going to rest. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 4:40 A.M. EDT: It is my personal point of view that all this nonsense about whom politicians sleep with is all totally irrelevant, since politicians for thousands of years have been like Traveling Salesmen or Sailors with a ship in every port. The real story that should be looked into is what they're doing with the taxpayers money. I also think the stock market is not being properly regulated, and the SEC oversight is not being properly regulated. The real important story to the millions of stockholders whom have major or second homes in Florida and the southeast and Gulf Coasts is the current hurricane season mrscott.com/weather.htm . Well that is my personal point of view. Much to do about nothing, except what is important, if you think like a life guard, you try to help out the most people, not pay attention to a bunch of egotists who are trying to distract the general public attentions away from what might happen during the coming hurricane season. I am not saying ethics are not important, I am just saying the general group of people not involved in politics but whom are the voters, probably have a higher morality, since they lead less complicated lives and have less associations. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 4:25 A.M. EDT: I am printing out a copy of the Governor's email, and my HP500+ printer does not work, it still leaves a blank white area down the center of the page, the cartridge might be going; so I am using the NEC printer to print it out. Also I think the Camel Lights cigarettes I am smoking recently, might have chemicals in them that are causing irritation compared to the Merit Ultra Lites. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 4:15 A.M. EDT: I received a letter from Governor Roland of Connecticut's Aid in reply to the heating subsidy in my building. Below is a copy. CIO

Dear Mr. Scott,

Thank you for your e-mail letter to Governor Rowland, which has been\par referred to me for action and response. I have checked with Pamela Yates, resident manager, and learned that the utility bill allowance in McKinney Terrace, currently $93 per month, is being reevaluated and may be raised by the end of the year. I hope this will be of help to you.

Sincerely, Nancy Ahern, Constituent Services, Governor's Office

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 3:50 A.M. EDT: Technology News from Wired News, IBM Wearable PC . I copied this file group to my hard drive for reference. CIO

Pop your Windows 98 installation CD in your CD-ROM drive, click Browse this CD, and navigate your way to the tools\reskit\help folder. Double-click rk98book.chm and start reading!

(It's set up the same as the regular Windows 98 Help--navigate your way through topics in the left pane; read them on the right.)

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 3:15 A.M. EDT: IBM Garlic CIO

Note:<888>9/18/98 Friday 3:10 A.M. EDT: Political News from Wired News Child Protection Internet Legislation CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 3:10 A.M. EDT: This what government research is doing to monitor volcanic and forest fire activity GOES 8/10 Hotspot Images: Monitoring Lava Flows and Fires Around the World the World CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 3:00 A.M. EDT: Tired of shopping in Thrift Shops, well Welcome to Brooks Brothers , of course if they're too expensive and you're heading up towards Maine, there is a Brooks Brothers outlet in Kittery, Maine; and I believe another one in Freeport, Maine where prices are up to 75% off the big city prices. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 2:40 A.M. EDT: Hurricane Georges Aims For Eastern Caribbean , Well it looks like it might be time to batten down the hatches in the Caribbean and Florida again. I hope Scott's Internet site in Deerfield Beach, Florida survives any hurricane activity. You have to remember on a limited budget, I can't afford the $13 a month backup site in San Jose, California which does not seem to be available anymore at Index of / . Perhaps the Chinese are practicing their own form of psychological warfare, since they have a cleaver hand in this technology. I have a feeling there is more to the mischief in the area than meets the eye. It is funny how whenever things go wrong in the area, the entire Asian community seems to disappear, as if they were informed ahead of time or were involved and tried to get out of the way. Well I suppose we will have to wait for the next bit of nonsense, as any veteran New Yorker, we get use to these events all the time, and I suppose the dayshift will come up with diplomatic explanations which is usually a pile of BS. Beware of chemists who are up to mischief. Yes the United States of America has pharmaceutical laws unlike other countries like Spain. From what I can tell, you can't get blood from a stone, so don't try and do in the volunteers or the whole show will go down like the Titanic. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 1:55 A.M. EDT: Point of view from Greenwich, Connecticut to any mischief makers in the area. The truth about Greenwich, Connecticut from many years of experience, is that over 80 percent of the population of the town, probably spend over 80 percent of their free time reading, and with the internet, there is much more to read. For the uninformed or workers from other areas, you better try reading more to know what goes on. I doubt if anybody whom has known me most of my life, would say anything else, we were trained to read as much as possible, and at the moment I am focusing on current events and mostly technology information. Well any idiots with a keyboard who have not done their homework, I advise you to start catching up on your reading. There are hundreds of millions of books in the world, so the local library is only a small token of the vast literary heritage in the world. I suppose once you get tired of reading what is available there and on the internet, you can always travel; but from experience Greenwich is as good as it gets. If you get tired of reading tech on the internet, try reading some ordinary recreational fiction. It would be fun for some enterprising merchant marine seaman to post logs of days at sea onto the internet if that were possible. I remember as a kid in the pre computer days, I use to enjoy reading sea novels, a lot of which were written by writers traveling on freighters to avoid the high cost of passenger steamers. One of our local senior writers who knows French frequently takes Freighters instead of traveling on Passenger ships. Well I don't have the answer, but things seem calmer locally at the moment. CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 1:20 A.M. EDT: Rainy night down on the strip in Fort Lauderdale, Florida Bermuda Triangle [WebCam 1] CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 1:15 A.M. EDT: Atlantic Hurricane Tropical Formation Area, Thanks to Nottingham University <http://www.ccc.nottingham.ac.uk/pub/sat-images/DTOT.JPG> CIO

Note:<888>9/19/98 Saturday 1:10 A.M. EDT: Forever Fishing for those of you who want to goof off from work and go fishing. CIO

Note:<888>9/18/98 Friday 11:45 P.M. EDT: I took a long nap until 11:30 P.M. and had a peanut butter sandwich and Ramen noodles and diet Sprite with apple juice. I will have some coffee shortly and do a little net surfing. Perhaps the whole community is suffering from Iroquois poisoning which is common around the swampy areas of North America. Well maybe they all just watch too much television or spend too much time glued to their internet monitors. Maybe they have all been massively hypnotized by some super magician. Well it all waits to be seen some day in the future. CIO

Note:<888>9/18/98 Friday 5:05 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Well let the cow chips fall where they may lie, and give my best to Baby Face Nelson and the gang. CIO

Note:<888>9/18/98 Friday 4:30 P.M. EDT: I chatted with Daniel down at ValueWeb again, and he said it would be 24 hours before I have 50 megs of disk space. I deleted the Starr Report Text file mrscott.com/starrrep.txt and the Queen Elizabeth Christmas Speech mrscott.com/queen28.htm and the long bookmark mrscott.com/bmnow.htm until I can reupload them again once I get the extra space. Daniel at www.valueweb.com told me that they have emergency backup plans in readiness in case Deerfield Beach, Florida should be hit by a hurricane anytime. Well I got these messages up, so I can continue my work. Have a good afternoon, I need to cleanup and go out sometime soon. CIO

Note:<888>9/18/98 Friday 3:20 P.M. EDT: We have had ample evidence of the Russian Mafia working this area in the last five to ten years, really ever since Thomas Watson became Jimmy Carter's ambassador to Russia. One interesting incident revealed in yesterday's Greenwich Times is that Putnam Trust Bank of New York opened a safety deposit box yesterday in its bank vault on Mason Street that had not been paid for in 15 months, and they found a vial of Cyanide like that is used for killing people in the safety deposit box. This matter has been turned over for investigation. It would seem that persons unknown in the area are seeking to do in various former or present residents of the community through various subterfuge in the area. It does not surprise me considering the large number of people who constantly lurk in the town and take jobs here, in order to perpetrate other activities. If any individuals or groups of individuals are found to be part of a conspiracy here against the establishment, I am sure they will be prosecuted to the full extent of the United States Law Code of Criminal Justice. It would seem that so called alien groups of visitors constantly visiting and lurking in the area are up to mischief and have probably been involved in such mischief for extensive periods of time, and that since they have been constantly successful; they have continued this pattern of activity. I would advise area residents to drink out of sealed containers, and be careful when accepting food or drink from strangers or in public facilities and to make sure that food or drink purchased in public places like Grocery stores or other places like restaurants has not been tampered with. It would seem to me that there is an orchestrated conspiracy against certain parties within the town, owing to either political or financial activities in other parts of the world, that has come back to haunt the long term residents of the town. Thus beware of Greeks baring gifts and anyone whom interjects themselves into your daily routine, whom might seek to cause problems. Well I know this is New York, but it reminds me of the old story of, "The Jews Poisoning the Wells" in biblical history. Well it will be interesting to see if the local media pursues the story, or continue to be part of a public relations cover-up in this area. As far as I am concerned, I would take all the United Nations personnel and foreign diplomats and other resident foreigners and pack them off to the Geneva headquarters where they could continue their subterfuge without bothering the local population. We also have had reports of Iranians in the area involved in heroin drug dealing which was common amongst that immigrant group of people down in South Florida years ago. Well this is all rumor and not substantiated, but it gives investigators material to work with and provides them with leads on where to start investigating. I will post this group of messages once the server is up and working in Florida. CIO

Note:<888>9/18/98 Friday 2:40 P.M. EDT: Well when the shit hits the fan in your office, try Shit Central CIO

Note:<888>9/18/98 Friday 2:10 P.M. EDT: I checked with <https://www.valueweb.net/> ValueWeb my internet service provider, and they said they would give me another 25 megs. free space, for a total 50 megs server space, on my site down in Florida. Their telephone numbers are:
Sales:

800-934-6788

954-428-3871 for International callers

Fax 954-428-7977

9:00am - 10:00pm (EST)

Customer Service:

800-934-6788

954-428-3871 for International callers

Fax 954-428-7977 9:00am - 5:30pm (EST)

Technical Support:

954-429-3449

9:00am - 10:00pm (EST)

I Chatted with Daniel down there from Aurora, Illinois and he told me they have over 100 people working there. He told me if you call them up, and are an existing account holder, they will give you the extra 25 megs space. I explained they have an excellent site down there easily open to access to the South American, African, and Middle East market access not to mention the growing sunbelt. Well let's hope the new free space opens up soon. CIO

Note:<888>9/18/98 Friday 1:25 P.M. EDT: I took a day off from the computer. On Wednesday I stayed inside all day. I watched a little news on television and thought for a while. I was to bed on Thursday morning about 6 A.M. and I got up at 11:45 A.M.. I went by Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I went downtown and bought 3 by 2 get one free of Camel Lites at the Newsstand at the bottom left of Greenwich Avenue. I went by the Hospital Thrift shop and toured the shop. I stopped by CVS and spent $36.05 on vitamins. I bought garlic pills, B50, B12, Zinc, E400, C, and CVS Multiple Spectrasite. I walked across the street and spent $7.95 on 500 Mg. Niacimide. I then made my 3 P.M. appointment. I stopped by the local library and the local paper. A local attorney advised me that Andrew Rockefeller was selling some of his property on the 1500 acre estate off Glenville Road. I think it would be great for Bill Gates to buy the entire property and turn it into a Microsoft Office Park. He could probably buy it for around $100 million dollars. I went to the Grand Union in Glenville and bought a gallon of goldfish crackers for $5.29 and a package at $2.99 a pound of sirloin porkchops for $2.50 for a total of $7.79. I returned home and a visitor had arrived and let himself in. He was totally lost in CNBC and the television wonderland of news. He said George Bush the III had confessed to using lots of Marijuana and alcohol when younger, so if he runs for president it will already be public knowledge. I commented that we're trying to raise a professional group of young professionals here, and I did not think it right for young people to abuse drugs and alcohol, as I puffed on another cigarette. The visitor lives mostly in the country with the wildlife, so television tends to be his reality. He bought a 1990 Toyota 4 wheel drive Wagon with 46,000 miles from Peabody's for $6,900 for his sister in Vermont. He had to go to the Department of Motor Vehicles three times yesterday in Norwalk to get its papers to be driven up to Vermont, so he was quite exacerbated. He is looking at a 1989 White Volvo Wagon with 65,000 miles on it at Peabody's for himself for $7,900 that has not sold in a year, but he still wants to shop around. I thought it was a good deal, but he is thinking about waiting a couple of weeks, and if it is still there, he might consider it. George Peabody usually keeps a good stock of used cars in his garage on Church Street downtown. George told me one of his favorite jogging points is over at Pontannico Hills in North Terrytown, New York where they have the beautiful state park that the Rocks gave to the state. He must have known them over the years, since he has one of the original Exxon garages in Greenwich. I bought my first used Volvo from him back around 1973, and shortly there after all the Arab oil was turned off coming to America. Of course back then the Exxon station in back country at the Round Hill store always seemed to have enough gasoline. I guess some Rocks here rule the roost. We have a number of Rock look-alikes in town, so they must have played around a lot over the years living here. Of course a look-alike might not control part of the family fortune. I had to put up with my visitor watching lots of television. He asked me to check on Amtrak comings and goings from Vermont, so he could return after delivering the car. I checked later and Amtrak leaves from Essex Junction and Burlington, Vermont on September 24 and 26 at 8:30 A.M. and arrives at Stamford, Connecticut at 4:58 P.M. for a one way fare of $56. Thus it runs fairly regularly, so one would have to call 1-800-872-7245 for Amtrak and find out the specific time for a specific day, and make a reservation for the train. When going north anymore from Burlington to Montreal, I think you have to take a bus the rest of the way, since the corridor was not that profitable, but I do think there is a train that runs out of Manhattan all the way up New York State to Montreal. It is a fun train ride, and the Canadian dollar is about .65 to the U.S. dollar, so there is value up there for visitors. After my house visitor left about 9 P.M., I took a walk downtown and chatted with a petitioner trying to get people to sign a Clinton impeachment petition, and I told him I did not sign anything without reading anything, and I did not have my glasses. I also commented on the Lindbergh Law which forbids kidnapping across Interstate Lines, and thus if a 16 years old fellow drove a 14 year old fellow against his will across the state line to Port Chester, it could legally be Kidnapping. I guess this is the nature of being a borderline neighborhood. I sat in front of the Senior Center and had a smoke and the visiting observer from Bridgeport, Connecticut sleeping on the bench in front of the Veterans Monument for the last six weeks screamed out my name across the street saying she had not seen me in a while, which is not the general Greenwich decorum. I also saw a young skinny blond fellow who is in his 30s but looks much younger named Billy that I had not seen in quite a long time. I guess he has been traveling again. He does look like a kid although I think he is over 40. I returned home and sat up until 3:30 A.M. and went to bed and got up at noon today. I had scrambled eggs, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and Cappuccino for breakfast. I was thinking that although I am a loyal Republican, the democrats should look into whom some of the Republicans have been sleeping with down in Washington D.C., it might make for interesting news.

Obviously some clever investigators know quite a bit more than what is being seen on the local news. I suppose if the full list of Whom the Washington Politicians fool around with were made available, not one of them would be able to be elected Dog Catcher for a long time. I bet some clever investigative group has that list, and they will probably release it over the internet soon. Well so much for family values on this side of the pond. I will do a little net work this afternoon, so have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>9/16/98 Wednesday 6:55 P.M. EDT: Other Words to the Wise, "Don't Get Involved in Other People's Family Disputes, or They Will All Turn Against You" and your only refuge will be with the Queen of England's people if you speak English, or with the Sultan of Brunei if you like staying warm. Thus I treat Greenwich like the U.S. Navy, "Don't Make Waves". Got the message. CIO

Note:<888>9/16/98 Wednesday 6:55 P.M. EDT: Words to the Wise, You go against the Boss whomever that may be, and you won't even be able to get a job on an offshore oil platform up in Prudoe Bay, Alaska. Latest reports from Texas are that Low Grade Crude Oil is going for less than $8.50 a barrel, somebody is making a bit of a markup on the sale of energy. Save your fuel now to stay warm in the winter. CIO

Note:<888>9/16/98 Wednesday 6:50 P.M. EDT: If any Rocks are still in charge anymore, this Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page Rock House is where they're officially in residence in this area, when they are not visiting their hundreds of other homes around the world, got the picture. CIO

Note:<888>9/16/98 Wednesday 6:45 P.M. EDT: Gallery picture from Bill Clinton's private collection. CIO du Plessix, Francine. "Anatomy of a Collector: Nelson Rockefeller." Art in America (April 1965) pp. 27-46.

Note:<888>9/16/98 Wednesday 6:45 P.M. EDT: Only reference in Alta Vista to "Nelson Rockefeller Art" .

CIO

Note:<888>9/16/98 Wednesday 6:35 P.M. EDT: Nelson Rockefeller gives the finger CIO

Note:<888>9/16/98 Wednesday 6:30 P.M. EDT: AltaVista: Simple Query \Nelson Rockefeller\ food for thought. A relative in San Antonio, Texas told me on Sunday there is a new Nelson Aldridge Rockefeller Art Museum in San Antonio, Texas. I guess since he speaks Spanish he decided to fund an Hispanic Art Museum. Well That's All Folks, I will look for its internet site. CIO

Note:<888>9/16/98 Wednesday 4:40 P.M. EDT: I took a nap from 1 P.M. to about 3 P.M.. I checked out a number of sites linked from Welcome to hacker.org and looked at one interesting site RAND which is know for paying people to think and brainstorm. However when I showed up at their headquarters the day Ronald Reagan was elected president while I was out in California around Santa Monica, I was surprised that the key ring to the entire building with about 200 keys were hanging from the front door, and the entire facility was deserted, and anyone could roam around the deserted building which did not seem to have any activity going on it as far as I could tell. I guess it was an eccentric whim of some government bureaucrat to house underemployed west coast intellectuals during times of prosperity. Well I guess they shifted with the political fortunes of the country. I guess they enjoyed getting paid for living at the beach. Well back to internet wondering. See how the French Underground has been wiped out Welcome to hacker.org Links , of course they are well known for liking the sun in France, so maybe they all headed for warmer ports of call. I also noticed all the Warez gaming sites, now seem to be professional porn sites, sort of shows how they target children. Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm was up a bit today. CIO

Note:<888>9/16/98 Wednesday 12:40 P.M. EDT: Well I finished sifting through my email. It is time for lunch and to clean up, before possibly going outside. Have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>9/16/98 Wednesday 11:40 A.M. EDT: I updated some links of my Great Britain Category mrscott.com/024.htm . Well enjoy the day. CIO

Note:<888>9/16/98 Wednesday 9:40 A.M. EDT: I was up at 8:45 A.M. and had breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I listened to a bit of CNN while having breakfast. I am listening to www.ttalk.com while I do my daily work. It is fun being on a day schedule. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/16/98 Wednesday 12:35 A.M. EDT: I went by the local library at 8:30 P.M. this evening and returned "Running Windows 98". I read the local paper. It is a bit warm and sultry out this evening with a smoggy haze in the air. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue, and it seemed to be a quiet evening. I returned home about 10 P.M. and watched a television show called "Maximum Bob" that had a funny picture of an Alligator in a Swimming Pool at the end. At 11 P.M. I surfed the internet, and went through some interesting links The British Monarchy, The British Monarchy, Windsor Castle Restoration, Britain in the USA , Britain in the USA: The Duke of York visits Boston , Queen Elizabeth II 1997 Christmas Broadcast , Britain in the USA: British Connections , British Magazines Direct - The Home of Great British Magazines! , Buckingham Palace Press Releases , Buckingham Palace PRESS RELEASE MENU , Central Office of Information , NewsNow: Quality news headlines updated every five minutes, every day - C . This evening while I was out I noticed a couple of classic rum running cabin cruisers moored at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. I believe these vintage cruisers were what were used in the old days of prohibition for rum running on the Great Lakes or the Detroit River from Windsor, Canada to Detroit or visa versa depending on what cargo they were hauling. Well Prohibition is over and my house guest last night enjoyed three Rocky Mountain Coors beers for refreshment after a hot day putting up the family swimming pool. Well enough gossip from the quiet side of town. I heard a few people speaking either Dutch or German, it was hard to tell. Hope all is well on the far side of the planet. I should go to bed or I will be back on a night schedule again. CIO

Note:<888>9/15/98 Tuesday 8:30 P.M. EDT: I slept from 2 P.M. to 4:30 P.M. today. I made a backup of my computer system which took about 3 hours, and deleted some unnecessary files, I happened to find stored on the system. I had dinner of ham, broccoli, Ramen noodles, ice tea, and Cappuccino. I watched the ABC evening news. I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Well I am off to return the "Running Windows 98" book to the library. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>9/15/98 Tuesday 1:50 P.M. EDT: Well I worked all morning putting together a new broadcast Scott's Internet Hotlist Broadcast . I discovered while looking at Great Britain Scott's Internet Hotlist that the Queen Elizabeth II 1997 Christmas Broadcast page did not work. I changed the name of the plugin file from *.rpm to *.rm and discovered that it played real time with the Microsoft Media Player installed on my Win98 system. I tinkered most of the morning with the Real G2 beta 1 and Real 5.0 encoders to find out they did not produce a file that worked with the Microsoft Media Player. I then remembered I had encoded the Queen Elizabeth Broadcast with the Download RealAudio RealEncoder 3.1 that I use to use last winter. I tried encoding the same type file with the RealAudio RealEncoder 3.1 for my broadcast and indeed it did work fine. I am able to post one file now that works on my broadcast page with both the Microsoft Media Player and any RealPlayer, but with the RealPlayer one needs to download the entire file, before listening to it. Well a bit of tinkering and something old and new, and I have a viable broadcast page. I had some mixed nuts and ice tea for lunch. This morning with my houseguest, I had Cheerios, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee before he departed. I received a free copy of Mecklermedia "Internet World", "A Special Report" in the mail this noon, which I will read some time soon. Well I still have to clean up and make my bed, before maybe going out in a little while. Have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>9/15/98 Tuesday 8:15 A.M. EDT: I also put tuna fish in with the salad last night. My visitor left about 7:30 P.M. after dinner. I had another house guest show up about 9:30 P.M. and we chatted until midnight on random topics. I got him up at 7 A.M. this morning, and he departed at 8 A.M. this morning. I also chatted with a family member on tech support items last evening while waiting for my houseguest to show up. Well another hot day in store for us today in Greenwich. I will do some internet work, and then maybe go out later in the day. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>9/27/98 Sunday 10:20 P.M. EDT: Well it seems as the story goes, when God was fooling around he had two sons, one Jesus who was a showoff and eventually got crucified, and his older brother Mohammed whom was more low key and did not feel like being crucified by the Roman Legions, so he has been hiding out in the desert for millennium only responding in time of crisis to bring world peace. Sooner or later I will have to go back in the time lock. CIO

Note:<888>9/27/98 Sunday 10:00 P.M. EDT: Well if you are not one of those rich bigwigs like the Rockefellers and the Melons that have laid siege to the Casa Marina, and you happen to be a high ranking official of the United States government, the United States Government owns all the shore line perimeter of the island of Key West, and only leases the property. Also in the leases at any time it deems fit the United States Government may occupy those facilities for any purposes it deems fit. Also if you don't want to disrupt the perceived private property rights of the residents, the United States Government own an old run down historical fort that is a small garden next to the Clarence Higgs Beach which has no structure, but on nice nights I use to climb up on a piece of the Fort structure and relax enjoying the fresh air from the ocean which would make me feel better. One night a fellow that looked like John James Audubon when he was younger asked me to smoke a marijuana cigarettes and I humored him pretending to a mystic from across the ages. The following morning a local Key West Policeman whom is no longer one the Island accused me of being a Nazi, and the funny thing is he is the one that looked like the Nazi, and I was just the local representative of the Audubon Network. The nice old African American man that maintained the garden would look through the fence to make sure I was all right in the morning, and the only problem was with lying on the bed of pine needles enjoying the ocean breeze, it smell like urine from a certain type of animal like a white wolf, that the Local K-9 Corps were afraid of. So if you ever camp out and pick up a friendly animal scent in the wild, that scent might protect you from other predator type animals in the environment. It is sort of like wearing garlic and eating garlic in the old days, but at the moment I still enjoy my hospital room environment. Yes It is Mohammed. CIO

Note:<888>9/27/98 Sunday 9:40 P.M. EDT:I am just trying to be diplomatic, but for the uninformed; about 5 million to 10 million citizens of the United States suffer from severe pollen and ragweed poisoning this time of year. The best place I ever found to escape pollen and ragweed poisoning was Lanzerote in the Canary Islands, since there is hardly any vegetation and there is lots of fresh air. Of course one has to worry about the dang volcano. I suppose the next best thing would be Key West if you don't mind hurricanes this time of year. The Casa Marina and particularly did not have much pollen around it with all the fresh air coming off the Atlantic Ocean. Of course you have to constantly monitor the weather. I expect the severe pollen particularly goldenrod and ragweed conditions we have had this year, have made Key West even more popular; and I suppose despite the hurricane season, a large number of people are trying to escape the extremely high pollen and ragweed count this year not to mention automobile pollution, by living in their hospital homes there. Well for you idiots that do nothing but watch television and claim to be environmentalists, think about what is in your environment that you don't pay much attention to, and can't see. Thus the well meaning individuals whom send out dry flower arrangements are just doing in some of their friends. Well back to house cleaning and dusting which is important in trying to maintain my hospital room environment. Of course that old cow tail Scott family sofa that everyone loves to hate, is probably full of Anthrax and every pollen and spore and mold from around the world that the Scott family has dealt with its many years of diplomacy. I don't think granny hid the family jewels in the sofa. Well back to housecleaning and dusting. By the way I had Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee for breakfast; and talking about the major league terrorist in the area from years of gardening experience which is allergies and hay fever from goldenrod and rag weed. I remember during World War II when Aunt Eleanor was trying to defend the Country from invasion, we decided to plant poison ivy around all the religious institutions, and we put in lots of Golden Rod displays in all the major public buildings of importance, so that when the foreign invaders tried to take over, they would be done in by all the pollen, ragweed, and spores. Well back to the net. Of course after it rains the air is a little fresher. CIO

Note:<888>9/27/98 Sunday 5:25 A.M. EDT: I worked on the computer until 6 A.M., this morning and I sat back and reflected. I did not go out, and I went to bed at noon and awoke again at 4 P.M.. I posted a message for the democrats to think about as they dwell upon this Republican Community. I have seen Eleanor Roosevelt many times in my life and she would not approve of the actions of the current Democrats in Office, since they are using the good family name to advance their causes without first consulting with the senior members of the family. I have a feeling certain members of the Roosevelt Clan have spent so many years down south bird-dogging and pretending to be in the Navy, while they're on a never ending cruise, they might think about paying attention to some of the family homesteads and see what has happened to them over the years, instead of poaching on other people's farms which they seem to think they own. I suppose we all like the ocean, but those of us whom have lived near the Ocean most of our lives have a firm and fond respect for it as a fickle mistress. Many men have gone to the sea in ships for centuries and never have returned. The real story will never be told, just old sea shanty gossip from the past about storms and travails at sea, that never were told properly, because they never had the time to listen, since they were too busy trying to impress other foreign visitors, and not paying attention to local people whom might know a think or two about the oceans and other ports of call from minor experience. The ocean in Greenwich or Long Island Sound as we prefer to call it is rather peaceful, but even that calm body of water can turn hazardous. How many real estate people in Manhattan tell the real story of the highest storm surge in Manhattan since European settlement. If the truth were known, not many people would want to live in Manhattan. It is probably why the Mohawk Indians I believe exchanged the rights to trade in Manhattan to Dutch Settlers in return for the Dutch providing certain farming skills that the Mohawk Indians were having trouble with. Basically the Indians did not live on Manhattan, but they camped there in the summer when the weather was nice because it was good fishing, and it was a defensible position from other earlier arrivals to America that they tried to come to terms with. After a long term of confrontation with various seafaring groups, they were amused that the Dutch wanted to settle year round, when the Mohawks had traditionally migrated with the seasons going north and south and dealing with other Indian Tribes depending on the weather during specific seasons. Thus the Dutch agreed to maintain the trading post for the Mohawk Indians while they went on to other Happy Hunting Grounds. When the Mohawk Indians returned annually and found out how they were prospering, they became more interested in European Affairs, and what was happening across the Great Pond, so they instructed a clever Scottish Sailor doing maintenance work for the Dutch to build a fleet of large canoes made of the Iron, Steel, and other precious metals the clever Scotsman used and found, and the next thing you knew all sorts of people were going back and forth across the Great Pond. Of course cheap Scotsmen are never in a Rush until they are paid, so they withheld certain key information until the Indians and the other Settlers came to Peaceful agreement, and remember since their primary mission was to keep the West North watch for the Eastern Hemisphere, they established an Eastern Watch for the Western Hemisphere with cooperation of a lot of curious local individuals whom wanted to know what all the fuss was about. Of course some of the old time Eastern Hemisphere people during cold spells would walk over on the frozen ice, if they were strong enough, but the trips were long, and the ice was frequently broken up, and they would have to turn back. Thus after continual perseverance and weather changes over the course of time, they learned secret routes back and forth from both hemispheres, which to this day, no one has ever discovered. It is still rumor, but certain people go back and forth all the time, as if some secret time lock existed that transported them back and forth through time, and they just occasionally stop by here to see how we are doing, since in their continual voyages, this is only a minor port, in an ever expanding horizon that they constantly maintain. Well I don't have the answer, but the locals are familiar with the foreign business community, and if you want to see certain key products you have become use to disappear from the free market, it could possibly happen. Thus I don't have the answer, but I constantly advise people to be diplomatic, and not judge a book by its cover. Meanwhile after I updated my homepage, I had a guest stop by, but I was too busy to deal with him. I went out at 9 P.M. and walked around with the regular group from the United States Navy that enjoys frequenting Greenwich, and I have seen many times before along with a number of local individuals whom seem to enjoy the business from the Government. I observed the usual Saturday night crowd. I told a proper local couple where lots of old time observers sit, had been hit by lightning a number of times and to watch out for lightning, which can be a hazard when you are outside in weather like we presently have. I returned home and thought until 2 A.M. I went out and bought a 3 pack of Garcia Vega lite cigars at the Shell station for

$3.55 and I bought two packs of Doral 100 Lites for $3.57. I observed the usual group of oversexed teenagers heading towards Port Chester, which seems to be a Saturday ritual for certain factions of town. I went downtown and said good evening to a local veteran, and I started to smoke one of the Diego Garcia Cigars, I mean Garcia Vega cigars, and just about then it started to lightly drizzle. I had just advised the local fisherman on Steamboat Road, that I did not know what the local Connecticut weather would be, since I had been busy focusing on Florida weather. I had checked earlier with the Casa Marina in Key West and they told me they are booked solid for the next two weeks, which seems curious. I guess God's Advertising with the Hurricane, probably confirms the Bones of the Scottish Saint, Saint Margaret are lost at sea off of Key West having been stolen by Spanish Pirates during one of those European family feuds. Well for all I know the Pirate Skull and Cross Bones were fashioned after the Bones of St. Margaret, and for all I know some Buccaneer is planning to Shang Hai that new ship in Manhattan the Sovereign Princess and use it for a Hospital Ship for Old People whom need a Little Rest and Relaxation, but this is all in the minds eye. Remember when you board a ship, the Captain is in Charge, unless some Admiral of other VIP passenger has a little experience. I still would wait to sail off to the Caribbean until after the Hurricane Season after the end of October at the Earliest, or You might rename the "Sovereign Princess" the "Vomit Comet" or the "Upchuck Bucket of Bolts". Needless to say I don't have my Sea Legs, I remember the Nantucket Ferry in 20 foot waves use to be a little fun, but that was when I was younger. It sort of felt like one of those kids rides in Amusement Parks, spinning and churning. Well back to the local scene, after most of the cigar and the drizzle let up, I walked down the Avenue and saw a proper young backpacker returning from some adventure, and for all I know not much is happening after I returned home. Well I have to go to bed soon, and today when I wake up, is house cleaning day. I suppose any weather watchers might volunteer funds for local weather observers to monitor weather on the internet. Of course if you get hit by lightning, don't blame me, that is why old German boot makers use to put nails in British Calvary Boots, while they the Germans mucked around with spikes on their heads. Enough of foreign intrigue, and ancient history. I have a feeling the local adversarial forces are plotting their various propaganda strategies. I have traveled around the United States of America, and Greenwich, Connecticut is as good as it gets, if the United States Government cooperates. Of course other substantial people and ordinary citizens might have simpler homes elsewhere. Well over and out from the "Oasis Rest Home for the Aged and Infirm". CIO

Note:<888>9/26/98 Saturday 4:25 A.M. EDT: I was up at midnight and had cold chicken with Tabasco sauce, mixed vegetables, potato, ice tea, and Cappuccino. I went out about 1:30 A.M. after showering. I bought three packs of Basic Ultra Lites at the Shell Station for $5.67. I chatted briefly with the attendant and a regular customer. I drove down by the Harbor on Steamboat Road and chatted with a fisherman from Biloxi, Mississippi and we chatted about the hurricane formation down in the Gulf of Mexico. I walked around the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. I heard a young couple coming out on the last train chatting about problems with Email with Eudora and Netscape. I sat in the Post Office Circle and surveyed the area. I returned home about 3 A.M., and read weather reports from around the country with Xenocode, Inc. Weather Warnings Program . It gives the National Weather Service Warnings and Forecasts, for example it is in the mid 90s in Kansas. I suppose you might want the weather forecast for Southern Connecticut, so here it is.

FPUS51 KOKX 260802

ZFPCT

ZONE FORECASTS FOR SOUTHERN CONNECTICUT
NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE NEW YORK NY
400 AM EDT SAT SEP 26 1998

CTZ009-010-261700-
SOUTHERN FAIRFIELD-SOUTHERN NEW HAVEN-
INCLUDING THE CITIES OF...BRIDGEPORT...STAMFORD...NEW HAVEN
400 AM EDT SAT SEP 26 1998

.TODAY...MOSTLY SUNNY AT FIRST. INCREASING AFTERNOON CLOUDS. HIGH IN THE MID 70S. SOUTHWEST WIND 10 TO 15 MPH.
.TONIGHT...CLOUDY. A CHANCE OF SHOWERS. LOW IN THE MID 60S. SOUTHWEST
WIND AROUND 10 MPH. CHANCE OF RAIN 30 PERCENT.
.SUNDAY...A MIX OF SUN AND CLOUDS. BREEZY. A CHANCE OF AFTERNOON
SHOWERS OR THUNDERSTORMS. HIGH IN THE LOWER 80S. CHANCE OF RAIN 30 PERCENT.

$$

CTZ011-012-261700-
SOUTHERN MIDDLESEX-SOUTHERN NEW LONDON-
INCLUDING THE CITIES OF...OLD SAYBROOK...GROTON...NEW LONDON
400 AM EDT SAT SEP 26 1998

.TODAY...MOSTLY SUNNY AT FIRST. INCREASING AFTERNOON CLOUDS. HIGH IN THE MID 70S. SOUTHWEST WIND 10 TO 15 MPH.
.TONIGHT...CLOUDY. A CHANCE OF SHOWERS. LOW IN THE LOWER 60S.
SOUTHWEST
WIND AROUND 10 MPH. CHANCE OF RAIN 30 PERCENT.
.SUNDAY...A MIX OF SUN AND CLOUDS. BREEZY. A CHANCE OF AFTERNOON
SHOWERS OR THUNDERSTORMS. HIGH AROUND 80. CHANCE OF RAIN 30 PERCENT.

$$

CTZ005-261700-
NORTHERN FAIRFIELD-
INCLUDING THE CITY OF...DANBURY
400 AM EDT SAT SEP 26 1998

.TODAY...MOSTLY SUNNY AT FIRST. INCREASING AFTERNOON CLOUDS. HIGH IN THE MID 70S. SOUTHWEST WIND 5 TO 10 MPH.
.TONIGHT...CLOUDY. A CHANCE OF SHOWERS. LOW 60 TO 65. LIGHT

SOUTHWEST WIND. CHANCE OF RAIN 40 PERCENT.
 .SUNDAY...A MIX OF SUN AND CLOUDS. BREEZY. A CHANCE OF AFTERNOON
 SHOWERS OR THUNDERSTORMS. HIGH 80 TO 85. CHANCE OF RAIN 40 PERCENT.

$$

CTZ006>008-261700-
 NORTHERN MIDDLESEX-NORTHERN NEW HAVEN-NORTHERN NEW LONDON-INCLUDING THE CITIES OF...MERIDEN...WATERBURY...MIDDLETOWN...NORWICH
 400 AM EDT SAT SEP 26 1998

.TODAY...MOSTLY SUNNY AT FIRST. INCREASING AFTERNOON CLOUDS. HIGH IN THE UPPER 70S. SOUTHWEST WIND 5 TO 10 MPH.
 .TONIGHT...CLOUDY. A CHANCE OF SHOWERS. LOW 60 TO 65. SOUTHWEST WIND
 5 TO 10 MPH. CHANCE OF RAIN 40 PERCENT.
 .SUNDAY...A MIX OF SUN AND CLOUDS. BREEZY. A CHANCE OF AFTERNOON
 SHOWERS OR THUNDERSTORMS. HIGH 80 TO 85. CHANCE OF RAIN 40 PERCENT.

$$

WOOLDRIDGE

Well it was a quiet pleasant morning, and one can get work done in the peace and quiet for a change. CIO

Note:<888>9/25/98 Friday 6:05 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well I think it is going to be a real quiet evening, and I think the youngsters should try to do some homework for a change, and maybe a little reading for a change. This town is suppose to be a real quiet town, so the quieter the better. If nobody goes downtown except for the skeleton crew, we might have a little bit more peace and quiet. Well let's make the town, so quiet you can hear a pin drop.
 As far as I can tell, it will be a cold winter this winter, and while the weather is reasonable, it is advisable to get ready for winter, and not try to pretend we're all living down in South Florida. I feel Old Man Winter creeping up to our doorsteps, so think about winter preparations. I suppose whatever happens with the economy, it is safe to assume quite a few people live up in the north country whom will have to deal with a colder winter, and most of them won't be able to escape to the tropics for winter relief, which is really not all that great down there, since conditions constantly change, and there is a more advanced infrastructure up in this neck of the woods. Well I am just doing a little net work, and I don't suppose much really happened today. Any communications from this neck of the woods is just based on maintaining the usual routine. CIO
 Note:<888>9/25/98 Friday 3:50 P.M. EDT: I checked with the United States Secret Service
 White House Intelligence Division 1-202-435-5000 and advised them the storm in Key West did not seem too severe, and gave them the telephone number of Marriott's Casa Marina 1-800-626-0777 which is not working at the moment, but they could probably give one a quick summary of the situation down there. Other numbers I keep handy and have not checked recently are the CIA 1-703-482-1100, FBI 1-203-777-6311, Champaign, Illinois Police Department 1-217-333-8911, Lake Forest, Illinois Police Department 1-847-234-2601, and the Secret Service has another number 1-202-395-2020. I chatted with Officer McCormick at the Lake Forest Police Department, and briefed her on the Key West Situation. She said they did not bother with the internet, and a lot of that area has been developed. Well I had breakfast of scrambled eggs, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and Cappuccino. I am now sipping my Cappuccino and doing a little internet work. CIO

Note:<888>9/25/98 Friday 3:00 P.M. EDT: The Weather Channel Key West, FL Satellite Photo. I have noticed that a local company at 600 Steamboat Road in Greenwich which is on the waterfront recently made the news for losing about $5 billion dollars in their hedge fund Fear Of Wider Damage Fueled Long Term Bailout. Well I suppose in Multi Trillion Dollar World Economies, $5 billion dollars is not that much to lose. Needless to say, none of those Old Fashion American Greenbacks Seem to be Coming My Way. Well time for breakfast. CIO

Note:<888>9/25/98 Friday 4:40 A.M. EDT: CyberConch Zine Key West-Florida Keys News , What are Key West and the Florida Keys like RIGHT NOW? , Intellicast - Miami NEXRAD Base Reflectivity Image , Intellicast - Miami Satellite Image , Caribbean Satellite Image , <http://www.nhc.noaa.gov/ftp/pub/forecasts/discussion/MIATWOAT> , <http://www.solar.ifa.hawaii.edu/Tropical/Gif/atl.latest.gif> , latest Cybercouncil links. Signing Off. CIO

Note:<888>9/25/98 Friday 4:00 A.M. EDT: Any military personnel who are not essential should evacuate the Florida Keys. Any Old Retired Duffers hanging out at the Brass Money Bar in Marathon, Florida who have seen 200 mile an hour Typhoons at sea, and are not worried about Hurricane Georges should think about the personnel around them whom will not leave until, the senior officers leave. I suppose keeping the hurricane in perspective, one can always rebuild. Still I suggest informed local sober individuals whom have local experience best know the local situation, and I advise you to get on any available aircraft left in the Florida Keys and if weather conditions permit, fly the heck out of there to a safer location up north. If pilots are not available in the Florida Keys, perhaps a trucker in a sturdy truck might make it out of the Florida Keys. I am not briefed on the local situation in the Florida Keys, and all I know is the New York media reports and the internet weather reports. I suggest any strong willed individuals whom may not worry, might learn from experience if they survive this lower category 2 at present hurricane. Needless to say depending on the tide and timing there will be a storm surge that will make the Florida Keys non operable, and any personnel whom think it advisable to leave with their essential equipment are free to do so, and should be ready to return PDQ at a moments notice. I suppose we can chalk this one up to experience, and remember the hurricane season is not over. If I were stuck in Key West with no shelter, I would consider taking refuge in any place even possibly the Monroe Country Jail by the Truman Annex, but not on the ground floor, and remember that the rights of private property do exist, and I suggest any place on higher ground away from the South East Shore might be safer in a higher story of a structure, but one does not want to be stranded in a structure by a locked entry or exit or faulty electronic devices like elevators or other security devices. Possibly the Key West Hospital which is on the Northwest of Key West although low, might have emergency facility. I am not that familiar with Marathon, but it is possible that the airport would have transportation, but more than likely all serviceable aircraft have evacuated. I suggest that people in the Keys seek shelter, and not try to ride this storm out in a non secure environment. Also I suggest that U.S. Military personnel in the area might make certain military facilities available for relief, if the Military Bases are not flooded. Well this is all from the Mind's Eye, and I am not sure what the actual situation is presently in the Keys. Well I am completely tired, and am at present non functional until I get some rest. CIO

Note:<888>9/25/98 Friday 12:50 A.M. EDT: I went out at 9 P.M. when my guest departed. I noticed that somebody had ripped off the "U" off his license plate, which is against the law. I stopped by the lower avenue news store and bought a Robert Burns cigar for $1.35. I walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. I chatted with a couple of young New York City gals, and they said they were developing townhouse condos on East 64th Street for $3,000,000 apiece. I told them about a few other New York City real estate properties I knew about. I chatted with a local racehorse enthusiast and he said the horse racing business in New York is down the tubes, and nobody is going to the racetracks anymore. I sat in the Post Office plaza and smoked the Robert Burns cigar. I don't think I will smoke many more since they are expensive and make me dizzy. A Phillip Morris representative from Germany stopped by to chat, and I chatted with him about the tobacco business and other business items. I walked up the Avenue and chatted with a veteran. I chatted with two French patrons of Citron and Versailles about French matters. I surveyed the young crowd at the Dome restaurant and they seemed to be enjoying themselves. I drove down Steamboat Road, and noticed one fisherman down there, and a few quiet lights glimmering on the water. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought two Tropicana Ruby Red orange juices for $1.99 each, $3.98 total; GU whole milk half gallon $1.67, I Can't Believe It's Not Butter Light .99 for a total of $6.64. I chatted briefly with the English butcher and Jamaican cashier. I wanted a gallon box of Pepperidge Farm goldfish crackers, but the Grand Union only had smaller boxes. I drove up to the Grand Union in Glenville and they close at 11 P.M. on weeknights. I drove down to the Food Emporium and chatted with the usual courteous night staff there about general matters. On the upper shelf in the Goldfish Crackers section, they have lots of gallon boxes of Pepperidge Farm Goldfish crackers for $4.99 each. I reminded the staff that the A&P Food store chain have lots of valuable warehouse properties down in Key West, and whatever stocks are in the Key West's A&P warehouses are at risk from the hurricane when it strikes this morning. I suppose valuable merchandise could be preserved. For all I know they have gallon bottles of Angostura Bitters down there. I told one of the internet staff users, I originally started my directory for people who are ice bound in the Antarctic Research facility during our summer, their winter. I told him the site had expanded in scope. I told him I did not know about the winter snow season yet. It is cooler now in the 50s, so it might be a colder winter. My arthritis is bothering me a bit. I chatted with a local youth observer whom seemed thirsty downtown, and I told him about my college where I went at Lake Forest College, and he said he was thinking of majoring in social work at the University of New Mexico. It was a relatively quiet night for a Thursday night, and I got a few errands done and a short walk done. Well back to a little net surfing, but since I only had six hours sleep this morning, I might bow out earlier. CIO

Note:<888>9/24/98 Thursday 6:25 P.M. EDT: I fell sleep about 6 A.M. and was up at 12 Noon. I had breakfast of Cheerios, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I went out at 2 P.M. after watching a little weather news. It is a very nice day here. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop before. I went by the Greenwich Library and PC Week and the Greenwich Times. I check my two internet sites on the library internet terminals, and the site in Florida comes up five times faster than the California site, so it shows how much traffic is between both sites. Hopefully people out west and in Asia and Australia will be able to access my west coast site faster now. I drove down by the Greenwich Harbor Inn and they were setting up for a wedding. I chatted with two British fellows on a Italian Cabin Cruiser from Jupiter,

Florida about South Florida. I drove through Bruce Park and I saw about a hundred young fellows jogging from the Windward School. I drove over to the Stamford Train Station and arrived at 4:50 PM. I chatted with the Burns Security Agent there, and he told me that Burns Security bought Wells Fargo Security, and that Burns Security is owned by Borg Warner. I picked up a friend at the Amtrak at 5 P.M. coming down from Montpelier, Vermont. He said the train was not busy until New Haven. It arrived on time and was going to Washington D.C.. He said the leaves are just beginning to change. I returned home with my guest, and I am cooking a Purdue 8 pound Chicken that should be ready in about an hour. I also updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Well I will chat with my visitor for a while. CIO
 Note:<888>9/24/98 Thursday 4:50 A.M. EDT: I am bushed, time to go to bed. CIO

WWUS31 KMIA 240657

HLSMIA

FLZ063-066>078-241000-

HURRICANE LOCAL STATEMENT
 NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE MIAMI FL
 3 AM EDT THU SEP 24 1998

...HURRICANE WATCH FOR MOST OF SOUTH FLORIDA...
 ...MANDATORY EVACUATION OF THE FLORIDA KEYS...
 ...EXTENDED FLOOD OUTLOOK FOR ALL OF SOUTH FLORIDA...

THIS STATEMENT RECOMMENDS ACTIONS TO BE TAKEN BY RESIDENTS OF DADE...BROWARD...PALM BEACH...COLLIER...MONROE...GLADES... AND HENDRY COUNTIES OF SOUTH FLORIDA IN PREPARATION FOR HURRICANE GEORGES.

A HURRICANE WATCH IS IN EFFECT FOR MONROE...COLLIER...DADE...AND BROWARD COUNTIES OF SOUTH FLORIDA. A HURRICANE WATCH MEANS THAT HURRICANE CONDITIONS ARE POSSIBLE WITHIN THE NEXT 36 TO 48 HOURS.
 HURRICANE WARNINGS MAY BE NECESSARY FOR A PORTION OF THE WATCH AREA
 LATER THIS MORNING. NO WATCHES ARE IN EFFECT FOR PALM BEACH...HENDRY OR GLADES COUNTIES AT THIS TIME.

ALTHOUGH PARTLY CLOUDY SKIES WILL PREVAIL ACROSS SOUTH FLORIDA
 THIS MORNING...THE OUTERMOST RAIN BANDS ASSOCIATED WITH GEORGES WILL LIKELY BE MOVING INTO THE KEYS LATER THIS AFTERNOON. TROPICAL STORM FORCE WINDS COULD BE APPROACHING THE KEYS AND EXTREME SOUTH FLORIDA
 TONIGHT. A HURRICANE WARNING LIKELY WILL BE ISSUED FOR A PORTION OF THE WATCH AREA LATER THIS MORNING.

ONE OF THE MOST ADVERSE CONSEQUENCES OF GEORGES WILL BE THE VERY HEAVY RAINFALL. BECAUSE THE GROUND IS ALREADY SATURATED FROM RECENT RAINS...ADDITIONAL 5 TO 10 INCHES OF RAIN WILL CAUSE SERIOUS FLOODING AND PERSONS SHOULD TAKE MEASURES TO KEEP POSSESSIONS DRY.

A FLOOD WATCH WILL LIKELY BE NEEDED LATER TODAY FOR ALL OF SOUTH FLORIDA. RESIDENTS WHO OWN IN-GROUND POOLS SHOULD AVOID LOWERING THE WATER LEVELS. THE PRESSURE OF THE WATER IN THE SATURATED SOIL SURROUNDING THE POOL WILL CRACK THE POOLS FOUNDATION OR LIFT IT OUT OF THE GROUND IF THE WATER LEVEL IN THE POOL IS LOWERED TOO MUCH.

A HIGH WIND WATCH WILL LIKELY BE NEEDED LATER TODAY FOR INTERIOR PORTIONS OF SOUTH FLORIDA WITH INLAND HURRICANE WARNINGS POSSIBLY REQUIRED ON FRIDAY.

IN ADDITION...THE FORECAST TRACK OF GEORGES PUTS MUCH OF SOUTH FLORIDA IN THE PORTION OF THE STORM THAT FREQUENTLY SPAWNS TORNADOES.

AT 2 AM EDT...HURRICANE GEORGES WAS LOCATED NEAR 20.7N 76.0W OR ABOUT 450 MILES SOUTHEAST OF KEY WEST...MIAMI AND FORT LAUDERDALE AND 525 MILES SOUTHEAST OF NAPLES. GEORGES HAS A VERY RAGGED CENTER WHICH HAS BEEN MOVING WEST-NORTHWEST. CONTINUED WEST-NORTHWEST MOTION AT AROUND 12 MPH IS EXPECTED DURING THE NEXT 24 HOURS.

MAXIMUM SUSTAINED WINDS ARE NEAR 75 MPH WITH HIGHER GUSTS. LITTLE CHANGE IN STRENGTH IS FORECAST UNTIL TONIGHT WHEN THE CENTER OF GEORGES IS FORECAST TO MOVE BACK OUT OVER OPEN WATER.

AT 11 PM...THE PROBABILITY THAT GEORGES WILL PASS WITHIN 65 NAUTICAL MILES OF SOUTH FLORIDA LOCATIONS WITHIN THE NEXT 72 HOURS IS AS FOLLOWS...

CITY	STRIKE PROBABILITY
MARATHON	34 PERCENT
KEY WEST	31 PERCENT
MIAMI	29 PERCENT
MARCO ISLAND	28 PERCENT
WEST PALM BEACH	22 PERCENT

MONROE COUNTY ACTIONS...

MONROE COUNTY OFFICIALS HAVE ORDERED A MANDATORY EVACUATION FOR ALL PERSONS IN THE FLORIDA KEYS. NO SHELTERS WILL BE OPENED IN THE KEYS. EVACUEES SHOULD FOLLOW SIGNS TO THE DESIGNATED SHELTER ON THE CAMPUS OF FLORIDA INTERNATIONAL UNIVERSITY IN WEST MIAMI.

ALL COUNTY AND STATE PARKS IN THE KEYS ARE CLOSED.

MARINE INTERESTS IN THE KEYS SHOULD KNOW THAT BRIDGES AT SNAKE CREEK AND JEWFISH CREEK ARE LOCKED DOWN.

IMPORTANT TELEPHONE NUMBERS IN THE KEYS...

RUMOR CONTROL...800-955-5504
TOURIST REQUESTS...800-771-KEYS

COLLIER COUNTY ACTIONS...

A HURRICANE WATCH IS IN EFFECT AND A HURRICANE WARNING MAY BE ISSUED LATER THIS MORNING. CURRENTLY NO MANDATORY EVACUATIONS ARE IN EFFECT AND NO SHELTERS ARE OPEN. HOWEVER...VOLUNTARY EVACUATIONS FROM ALL MOBILE HOMES AND RECREATIONAL VEHICLES ARE STRONGLY RECOMMENDED.

DADE AND BROWARD COUNTY ACTIONS...

NO MANDATORY EVACUATIONS HAVE BEEN ORDERED AT THIS TIME AND NO SHELTERS ARE OPEN. THOSE IN EVACUATION ZONES SHOULD HAVE AN ESCAPE ROUTE IN MIND.

ALL TRI-RAIL SERVICE WILL BE SUSPENDED UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE...EFFECTIVE THIS MORNING.

MIAMI INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT WILL BE CLOSED IF SUSTAINED WINDS AT THE AIRPORT EXCEED 55 MPH.

PALM BEACH COUNTY ACTIONS...

NO HURRICANE WATCH IS IN EFFECT AT THIS TIME...BUT RESIDENTS SHOULD MONITOR THE SITUATION CLOSELY AND HAVE A HURRICANE PLAN IN MIND. NO EVACUATIONS ARE PLANNED AT THIS TIME AND NO SHELTERS ARE OPEN...

HOWEVER...IN ANTICIPATION OF LOCALIZED FLOODING...THE EMERGENCY OPERATIONS CENTER IS PREPARED TO OPEN SHELTERS IN THE BELLE GLADE/PAHOKEE REGION.

ALL TRI-RAIL SERVICE WILL BE SUSPENDED UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE...EFFECTIVE THIS MORNING.

GLADES AND HENDRY COUNTY ACTIONS...
NO WATCHES OR WARNINGS ARE IN EFFECT AT THIS TIME...BUT HIGH WIND AND FLOOD WATCHES MAY BE NECESSARY SOMETIME TODAY. NO EVACUATIONS ARE PLANNED AT THIS TIME...BUT RESIDENTS...ESPECIALLY THOSE IN MOBILE HOMES OR IN FLOOD PRONE AREAS...SHOULD HAVE A PLAN TO EVACUATE IF NECESSARY.

BESIDES THE WEB SITE AT THE NATIONAL HURRICANE CENTER...ADDITIONAL WEB SITES FOR HURRICANE ADVISORY INFORMATION CAN BE ACCESSED THROUGH FLORIDA WEATHER SERVICE OFFICES THROUGH THE FOLLOWING ADDRESSES:

MELBOURNE...HTTP://SUNMLB.NWS.FIT.EDU
TAMPA BAY...HTTP://WWW.MARINE.USF.EDU/NWS
JACKSONVILLE...HTTP://WWW.NWSJAX.NOAA.GOV
TALLAHASSEE...HTTP://WWW.NWS.FSU.EDU

THE NEXT STATEMENT WILL BE ISSUED AROUND 600 AM TODAY.

NNNN

Note:<888>9/24/98 Thursday 3:15 A.M. EDT: I finished initial proofing of my new site at www.mikescott.org . I probably still have to check items like stats, etc. CIO

Note:<888>9/24/98 Thursday 12:55 A.M. EDT: Hooray, Scott's Site in San Jose, California at www.mikescott.org is up and running. Thus we have hurricane backup unless San Jose gets wiped out by an earthquake. CIO

Note:<888>9/24/98 Thursday 12:50 A.M. EDT: I put together a page of IBM Frequently Asked for URLs at mrscott.com/ibmfreq.htm . CIO

Note:<888>9/24/98 Thursday 12:10 A.M. EDT: TipWorld Email Subscriptions, use Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 format for "HTML" format , I subscribe to these email news stories.

You will be added to the following lists:

PC WORLD's Daily Computer News Alert (HTML)

Microsoft Internet Explorer Tip of the Day (HTML)

New Product Gossip of the Day (HTML)

The Internet Daily Internet Industry News (HTML)

MarketWatch (HTML)

Microsoft Internet Explorer 4 Tip of the Day (HTML)

PC World Watch (HTML)

Hardware Upgrade Tip of the Day (HTML)

Microsoft Windows 95 Tip of the Day (HTML)

Microsoft Windows 98 Tip of the Day (HTML)

Wired News Daily (HTML)

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 11:25 P.M. EDT: I played with the Weather Warning IWIN Downloads program for a while after dinner while drinking my Cappuccino. It works great and sends out warning whenever there is a whether emergency anywhere in the USA. However, about 9 P.M., its server was busy, so I had to quit using it. I went out downtown and walked the lower area of Greenwich Avenue twice. I bought two Robert Burns Cigars at the lower Avenue stationary store for $2.75 and gave one of them to the night custodian at the senior center, and enjoyed the other one in the post office bench area and walked the lower avenue while smoking it. It was about the first cigar I have had in about 20 years, and it was a good smoke, but made me a little woozy. I noticed they also sell Monte Cristo Cigars there, which were a favorite of my fathers in his Corporate Days. I noticed quite a few people out enjoying the nice cool evening in the 50s. I did not see any tan refugees up from South Florida or the Caribbean. I suppose there is a lot in between that might be warmer. I told the movie theatre manager he should show "Key Largo" for all the hurricane interested people. I mentioned that my roommate in New York in the old days looked a bit like Lauren Bacal. Well as far as I know not much is happening around here, and it is very quiet. I have to pick up a friend up at the Amtrak Train station in Stamford, Ct. tomorrow coming down from Burlington, Vermont about 5 P.M.. Well lets keep track of the South Florida Hurricane situation at mrscott.com/weather.htm . I guess by tomorrow noon they should exactly where the hurricane is going to hit and what intensity. I suppose most people up north having never been down south, don't appreciate the situation down there; but it is a severe situation that I am happy not to deal with. I upgraded Scott's Index which was up quite a bit today at mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . Enjoy your night. CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 7:35 P.M. EDT: On a conservative note, assuming South Florida and the Florida Keys will be hit by Hurricane Georges, people evacuating might consider what will happen if electrical power fails. Beside the usual outages, more than likely Gasoline stations will not be functioning, so keep a full tank of gasoline. Also since ATM Cash machines, and credit card machines might not work, one should probably have some extra cash on hand for expenses. I suppose the Federal Reserve Bank in Miami of Atlanta will have to inject extra amounts of cash into the local South Florida economy to meet the demand for the enormous amount of extra cash users after a severe hurricane. Of course some of the locals might be able to get credit based on their long time experience in the area, and the barter economy will probably be in full force. I read a note in Yahoo News Florida, Remembering Andrew, Preps For Georges that certain locals in Key West are preparing to weather it out in Captain Tony's and are sandbagging the joint. As I recall on a good night Captain Tony's can hold about 100 people, so remember the old "Key West Library Committee of 100". I use to hang out in Captain Tony's not drinking since I did not have much money enjoying the warm fireplace on cold 40 degree winter nights. The Cistern where the pool tables are is also a good place because it is cooler on hot humid evenings. I suppose what is left of the sunset crowd got a view of the old saying, "Red Sky in Morning Sailor's Delight, Red Sky at Evening, Sailor Take Warning". Well the local color in Key West will be more sedate for a while. I saw a Jamaican couple down on Steamboat Road this evening enjoying our clear blue skyline this evening. Greenwich was busier this afternoon with lots of people going about errands. Remember to tell any hurricane survivors without electricity that you can use sterno to heat water in an open air environment, providing you have instant coffee, and instant milk or cream, and sugar for your coffee to keep you awake. Hurricane lanterns can cause fires if not properly attended to. I suppose all copies of the movie, "Key Largo" have been checked out of the local video store. Well I suppose Key West will survive this Hurricane Georges, there will be just more work for snowbirds this winter to clean up after. Well lets wait and see, and wait and see what comes next, remember the hurricane season is not over until the end of October usually. Well time for my Stauffer's frozen lasagna dinner in 15 minutes in the microwave oven, and 5 minutes to cool. One of my medical friend's mother passed away this week at age 101. CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 6:20 P.M. EDT: I went out at 4 P.M., and toured the Hospital Thrift Shop. I stopped by the Exxon station and filled up the car with $13.10 gasoline. I went by the Greenwich Library and read PC Week and last week's PC Week and Infoworld. I also read the local paper. I told the Internet Information directory about my internet mrscott.com/weather.htm page. I went down by the water, and one local resident is back in town, since the flag is flying. I am still running the Weather Program. I will watch the ABC evening news at 6:30 P.M. CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 3:40 P.M. EDT:

WWUS31 KMIA 231855

HLSMIA

FLZ063-066>078-232200-

HURRICANE LOCAL STATEMENT
NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE MIAMI FL
3 PM EDT WED SEP 23 1998

...HURRICANE WATCH FOR MOST OF SOUTH FLORIDA...
...MANDATORY EVACUATION OF THE LOWER AND MIDDLE KEYS...
...EXTENDED FLOOD OUTLOOK FOR ALL OF SOUTH FLORIDA...

THIS STATEMENT RECOMMENDS ACTIONS TO BE TAKEN BY RESIDENTS OF DADE...BROWARD...PALM BEACH...COLLIER...MONROE...GLADES... AND HENDRY COUNTIES OF SOUTH FLORIDA IN PREPARATION FOR HURRICANE GEORGES.

A HURRICANE WATCH IS IN EFFECT FOR MONROE...COLLIER...DADE...AND BROWARD COUNTIES OF SOUTH FLORIDA. A HURRICANE WATCH MEANS THAT HURRICANE CONDITIONS ARE POSSIBLE WITHIN THE NEXT 36 TO 48 HOURS. HURRICANE WARNINGS MAY BE NECESSARY FOR A PORTION OF THE WATCH AREA

LATE TODAY OR EARLY THURSDAY. NO WATCHES ARE IN EFFECT FOR PALM BEACH...HENDRY OR GLADES COUNTIES AT THIS TIME.

PERSONS SHOULD NOT BE FOOLED BY THE FAIR WEATHER THAT WILL OCCUR ACROSS SOUTH FLORIDA TODAY...TONIGHT AND EARLY THURSDAY. THE OUTERMOST

RAIN BANDS WILL LIKELY BEGIN AFFECTING SOUTH FLORIDA THURSDAY AFTERNOON. ONE OF THE MOST ADVERSE CONSEQUENCES OF GEORGE WILL BE THE VERY HEAVY RAINFALL. BECAUSE THE GROUND IS ALREADY SATURATED FROM RECENT RAINS...THE ADDITIONAL 5 TO 10 INCHES OF RAIN WILL CAUSE SERIOUS FLOODING AND PERSONS SHOULD TAKE MEASURES TO KEEP POSSESSIONS DRY. AN EXTENDED FLOOD OUTLOOK HAS BEEN ISSUED FOR SOUTH FLORIDA WHICH MEANS THERE IS A POTENTIAL FOR SERIOUS FLOODING IN THE NEXT 36 TO 48 HOURS. FLOOD WATCHES AND WARNINGS MAY BE REQUIRED AS THE HURRICANE APPROACHES.

A HIGH WIND WATCH WILL LIKELY BE NEEDED ON THURSDAY FOR INTERIOR PORTIONS OF SOUTH FLORIDA WITH INLAND HURRICANE WARNINGS POSSIBLY REQUIRED ON FRIDAY.

IN ADDITION...THE FORECASTED TRACK OF GEORGES PUTS MUCH OF SOUTH FLORIDA IN THE PORTION OF THE STORM THAT FREQUENTLY SPAWNS TORNADOS.

AT 2 PM EDT...HURRICANE GEORGES WAS LOCATED NEAR 19.5N 74.7W OR 585 MILES SOUTHEAST OF KEY WEST AND MIAMI FLORIDA...600 MILES SOUTHEAST OF FORT LAUDERDALE AND 650 MILES SOUTHEAST OF NAPLES. GEORGES HAS BEEN DRIFTING WESTWARD WHILE THE CENTER IS REFORMING. A GRADUAL TURN TO THE WEST NORTHWEST AT ABOUT 15 MPH IS EXPECTED DURING THE NEXT 24 HOURS.

MAXIMUM SUSTAINED WINDS ARE NEAR 75 MPH WITH HIGHER GUSTS. SOME STRENGTHENING IS POSSIBLE AS THE HURRICANE MOVES AWAY FROM CUBA.

AT 11 AM...THE PROBABILITY THAT GEORGES WILL PASS WITHIN 65 NAUTICAL MILES OF SOUTH FLORIDA LOCATIONS WITHIN THE NEXT 72 HOURS IS AS FOLLOWS...

CITY STRIKE PROBABILITY

MARATHON 34 PERCENT

KEY WEST 31 PERCENT

MIAMI 29 PERCENT

MARCO ISLAND 28 PERCENT

WEST PALM BEACH 22 PERCENT

MONROE COUNTY ACTIONS...

MONROE COUNTY OFFICIALS HAVE ORDERED A MANDATORY EVACUATION FOR PERSONS IN THE MIDDLE AND LOWER KEYS. NO SHELTERS WILL BE OPENED IN THE KEYS. EVACUEES SHOULD FOLLOW SIGNS TO THE DESIGNATED SHELTER

ON THE CAMPUS OF FLORIDA INTERNATIONAL UNIVERSITY IN WEST MIAMI.

IN THE UPPER KEYS...MANDATORY EVACUATION OF MOBILE HOMES AND RECREATIONAL VEHICLES HAS BEEN ORDERED.

NON-RESIDENTS THROUGHOUT THE KEYS ARE URGED TO LEAVE. ALL COUNTY AND STATE PARKS IN THE KEYS ARE CLOSED.

MARINE INTERESTS IN THE KEYS SHOULD KNOW THAT BRIDGES AT SNAKE CREEK AND JEWFISH CREEK ARE LOCKED DOWN.

IMPORTANT TELEPHONE NUMBERS IN THE KEYS...
RUMOR CONTROL...800-955-5504
TOURIST REQUESTS...800-771-KEYS

COLLIER COUNTY ACTIONS...

A HURRICANE WATCH IS IN EFFECT AND A HURRICANE WARNING MAY BE NECESSARY LATE TODAY OR EARLY THURSDAY. CURRENTLY NO MANDATORY EVACUATIONS ARE IN EFFECT AND NO SHELTERS ARE OPEN.
HOWEVER...VOLUNTARY EVACUATIONS FROM ALL MOBILE HOMES AND RECREATIONAL VEHICLES ARE STRONGLY RECOMMENDED.

DADE AND BROWARD COUNTY ACTIONS...

NO MANDATORY EVACUATIONS HAVE BEEN ORDERED AT THIS TIME AND NO
SHELTERS ARE OPEN. THOSE IN EVACUATION ZONES SHOULD HAVE AN ESCAPE ROUTE IN MIND.

PALM BEACH COUNTY ACTIONS...

NO HURRICANE WATCH IS IN EFFECT AT THIS TIME...BUT RESIDENTS SHOULD MONITOR THE SITUATION CLOSELY AND HAVE A HURRICANE PLAN IN MIND. NO
EVACUATIONS ARE PLANNED AT THIS TIME AND NO SHELTERS ARE OPEN.

GLADES AND HENDRY COUNTY ACTIONS...

NO WATCHES OR WARNINGS ARE IN EFFECT AT THIS TIME...BUT HIGH WIND AND FLOOD WATCHES ARE POSSIBLE EARLY THURSDAY. NO EVACUATIONS ARE PLANNED AT THIS TIME...BUT RESIDENTS...ESPECIALLY THOSE IN MOBILE HOMES OR IN FLOOD PRONE AREAS...SHOULD HAVE A PLAN TO EVACUATE IF NECESSARY.

BESIDES THE WEB SITE AT THE NATIONAL HURRICANE CENTER...ADDITIONAL WEB SITES FOR HURRICANE ADVISORY INFORMATION CAN BE ACCESSED THROUGH

FLORIDA WEATHER SERVICE OFFICES THROUGH THE FOLLOWING ADDRESSES:

MELBOURNE... HTTP://SUNMLB.NWS.FIT.EDU
 TAMPA BAY... HTTP://WWW.MARINE.USF.EDU/NWS
 JACKSONVILLE... HTTP://WWW.NWSJAX.NOAA.GOV
 TALLAHASSEE... HTTP://WWW.NWS.FSU.EDU

THE NEXT STATEMENT WILL BE ISSUED AROUND 6 PM.

LUSHINE

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 3:20 P.M. EDT: I downloaded the two files from Weather Warning IWIN Downloads of about 5.4 megs and 3.4 megs and installed the programs and the plugin. The program is good for 30 days, and I will see if it expires, or try reinstalling it. I am downloading the information files with the weather program right now. Their site is Xenocode, Inc. - Your Homepage For Weather for the complete site information. I watched a little news while downloading mostly on the weather. It is a nice day out, so I will go out shortly. I have cleaned up and am ready to go after the Weather program downloads all its information. CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 1:15 P.M. EDT: Weather Warning IWIN Downloads

New! EMWIN ByteBlaster Internet Data Broadcast(beta)

New! WeatherNode 4.0

New! Digital Atmosphere version 2.1

IWIN/EMWIN Download Page

CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 1:10 P.M. EDT: Interactive Weather Information Network CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 1:05 P.M. EDT: NOAA United States - Hurricane and tropical storm reports , NOAA National Warnings Area CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 12:40 P.M. EDT: CyberConch Zine Key West-Florida Keys News Florida Keys Evacuation Notice. CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 12:30 P.M. EDT: Intellicast - Key West Satellite Image CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 12:25 P.M. EDT: Happenings in Key West during better weather Key West, Florida USA, Scott's Internet Hotlist and Key West Weather

<http://www.bridge.net/~toddsing/weather.htm> . CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 12:20 P.M. EDT: Somebody ought to make sure that nobody steals the gold out of this museum in Key West Mel Fisher Museum Discover: Key West - Museums and Tours . CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 11:40 A.M. EDT: Florida Keys ordered evacuated starting with Key West Lowe's Storm98 Hurricane Central: Atlantic Storm Season '98 CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 3:00 A.M. EDT: I am bushed, time to call it a day. CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 2:55 A.M. EDT:NOAA Interactive Weather Information Network CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 2:45 A.M. EDT: National Weather Service Hurricane Season '98 CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 2:35 A.M. EDT:GHCC - Interactive GOES-8 Visible 1 km Satellite Data Selector CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 2:35 A.M. EDT:SoFla.com - Your Guide to South Beach and

South Florida CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 2:25 A.M. EDT: FEMA: La Niña 1998-1999: An Extreme Climate Pattern Expected to Bring Unusual Winter Temperatures and Precipitation to the U.S. CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 2:15 A.M. EDT: <http://www.fema.gov/hu98/AL0798p.gif> CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 2:15 A.M. EDT:FEMA -- TROPICAL STORM AND HURRICANE WATCH INFORMATION CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 2:10 A.M. EDT: <http://www.fema.gov/hu98/imgs/geo0922e.gif> CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 2:10 A.M. EDT: FEMA: Mercer Island Approved For $1.3 Million Problems Could Happen Near Paul Allen's Home. CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 1:45 A.M. EDT: Personal AccuWeather(tm) Hurricane Center CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 1:35 A.M. EDT: Personal AccuWeather Main Weather Page - KEY WEST , I think they have the weather wrong. CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 1:30 A.M. EDT: NRL Monterey Satellite Imagery with Model Overlays CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 1:20 A.M. EDT:NRL Florida Satellite Photo goes8_images/miami_vis/LATEST.jpeg g8_nh , NRL Satellite Photo goes8_images/extnh_ir/LATEST.jpeg g8_nh , NRL Vapor Satellite Photo goes8_images/extnh_vapor/LATEST.jpeg g8_nh , NRL Monterey Tropical Cyclones . Updated mrscott.com/weather.htm . CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 1:00 A.M. EDT:NRL Satellite Photo goes8_images/trop_atlantic_vis/LATEST.jpeg tropics I think the Old Sea Lords in the Old Days called the area between Cuba and the Bahamas in the ocean "Hurricane Alley", it looks like Georges is going to go right up Hurricane Alley intensifying, and making landfall in the center of the Florida Keys around Marathon with highest winds around Key Largo. Current winds of 80 mph will intensify while the hurricane is over the water mostly for the next two days. It looks like it will cut right over the center of the keys and go up the west Coast of Florida, right up past Tampa towards the Pan Handle of Florida. CIO

Note:<888>9/23/98 Wednesday 12:15 A.M. EDT: I posted a Hurricane Warning Broadcast at mrscott.com/sound.htm . Let's hope it is not as bad as it looks like it will be down there in Florida, The Keys, and the Caribbean. I advised people they should leave the Keys and South Florida, if at all possible, or take cover in the interior up north at higher elevations, or even fly out of the area entirely. Keep tracking it at mrscott.com/weather.htm . All military personnel should pursue maximum hurricane plan. I think the government should airlift out any personnel military of civilians out of the Keys and other low lying areas who have not evacuated. Better to be safe than sorry. CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 10:55 P.M. EDT: I went out and stopped by the library and read the Greenwich Times. I also read InfoWorld and Computer World. I still have to read last week's computer newsweeklies. I noticed one of the library patrons has a 1995 Nissan Altima GX2 GXE 4 door with front wheel drive, black color, with 38,500 miles on it for sale for $10,500 this link for value Kelley Blue Book - Used Car Report dealer trade in value $6,656 and Kelley Blue Book - Used Car Report Retail Value $10,752 thus they're trying to ask too much . Their number is 203-869-8608. The car looked to be in decent shape, and not to flashy. I went downtown and walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. I saw a John Scully look-alike. I heard on www.ttalk.com yesterday, that a company in Korea is coming out with a $600 clone of Apple's new $1,300 IMAC. I chatted with the observer from Bridgeport. She said she will probably need a place once it gets cold. I noticed all the flowers are out in full bloom. I went by the Grand Union and bought a Purdue Chicken at .79 a pound for $6.05. I chatted with one of the local library researchers about the hurricane weather effecting oil prices. He mentioned next week after the hurricane in Florida if it strikes and causes major damage, he might invest in insurance companies after their stock goes down. He also mentioned that Royal Dutch Shell is in business in over 150 countries around the world. I mentioned to him that despite Microsoft's large and deep pockets, once the internet technology gets to be much larger scale that IBM sells a lot of the more expensive equipment and software that large players will need. I also mentioned that some recent IPOs like www.broadcast.com loose more money the busier they are, since they don't always have advertising. Thus the real bottom line is yet to be realized. I heard that there is a Condominium next to the Breakers Hotel in Kennebunkport for sale for $179,000 at Kennebunkport Realty Kennebunk Beach Realty linked from this page Kennebunk Beach Realty - Condominiums. I also saw this today that John D. Rockefeller is the richest man in the history in America accounting for current dollar values and Bill Gates is only number five linked from this story Gates No. 5 among richest Americans of all time (9/20/1998) . Thus like Aladdin said, there is more money in oil, particularly in the long run, but at the moment it is not as profitable as Microsoft. Well I returned home with the Purdue chicken and poured a glass of ice tea and put some goldfish crackers in a bowl. Well it is back to the net. Remember to keep following mrscott.com/weather.htm . Maybe some of the senior stockholders will get out of their rocking chairs and come pay us a visit if hurricane conditions get too bad in South Florida or across the Gulf of Mexico. Well enjoy the evening. CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 7:55 P.M. EDT: I finished my laundry, while down in the Laundromat I chatted with one of my neighbors, who told me about her recent trip to Louisiana. Well time to stop by the library, and maybe go for a walk downtown. CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 7:25 P.M. EDT: Maimi Beach South Beach <http://www.justsurfit.com/southbeach/webcams/cam1.shtml> ,WTMI's CocoCam! , mrscott.com/atlbeach.htm more South Florida surf cams. CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 7:15 P.M. EDT: Bermuda Triangle [WebCam 1] Fort Lauderdale Beach, Florida surf cam, watch the waves during the hurricane. CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 6:25 P.M. EDT: Welcome to Internet World Fall '98 . I had a Tony's 4 cheese pizza for dinner, ice tea, and cappuccino. My visitor left. I am doing laundry and should be done with it, in about an hour and a half. CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 5:05 P.M. EDT: I reinstalled the original CMOS Bios 11/20/97 that came with the motherboard, and that cured my drive hesitation problem. I suppose I could use the CMOS update from 7/28/98, if I were installing a new hard drive, but since the existing hard drive was Fdisked and formatted with the original CMOS, the system needed to have the original CMOS. Well the system is working fine again without drive hesitation. A friend came down to pick up the used Toyota that he bought for a relative at Peabody's and will drive up to Vermont, and while he was there the used Volvo Wagon sold. I went downtown to the lower Avenue stationary store, for three buy two get one free cigarettes for $17.70 total. I stopped by the Arnold Bread Store outlet, and got two loaves of Healthnut Bread with my Arnold Coupon card that they stamp. I returned home, and updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . I also got a copy of Internet World and WindowsPro magazines. Remember to track the hurricane heading towards the Florida Keys at mrscott.com/weather.htm . Well have a good evening, my visitor is still here. CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 2:05 P.M. EDT: Well time for a rest or a nap. CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 1:35 P.M. EDT: Information on the Microsoft Windows 98 Easter Egg Tips on Task Bar icons, MIDI players, and Easter in September (InfoWorld)CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 12:55 P.M. EDT: I updated mrscott.com/favorite.zip which is linked from mrscott.com/download.htm . It has over 1,300 links for adding to the Windows Favorites directory. CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 12:25 P.M. EDT: St. Michael's Abbey, Farnborough, England, Monk Site CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 12:15 P.M. EDT: I updated mrscott.com/current.htm . I had Cheerios, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee for breakfast. CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 10:50 A.M. EDT: I updated the Music page mrscott.com/music.htm . CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 9:50 A.M. EDT: I am up now, and still have to eat breakfast, and will do laundry later on today. I now have 50 megs of disk storage in Florida at mrscott.com , about half of which is used. I have uploaded the files to the site that I temporarily removed. Well have a good day, lets hope Key West, Florida USA, Scott's Internet Hotlist is not hit by the hurricane. They are not very high, and from what I hear tell, a number of Greenwich people now have homes there. Well time for breakfast. CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 2:05 A.M. EDT: Time to call it a day. I had Ramen noodles and a peanut butter sandwich for dinner. Remember to follow the tropical storm activity at mrscott.com/weather.htm . See You Later, Alligator. CIO

Note:<888>9/22/98 Tuesday 12:25 A.M. EDT: I transferred all the files to my second site in San Jose, California at www.mikescott.org . Since the Internic name won't be active for 2 or 3 days, I will have to wait to proof the site. I have to eat and start my regular internet routine. I won't be going out this morning, and will probably go to bed soon. CIO

Note:<888>10/07/98 Wednesday 4:55 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I am doing some system maintenance. CIO

Note:<888>10/07/98 Wednesday 3:15 P.M. EDT: I slept from 8 A.M. to Noon. I updated mrscott.com/nasa.htm and www.mikescott.org/nasa.htm . I still feel questionable about the Caribbean and South Florida weather, there is a storm front out there, that has not developed into a hurricane Possible Large Hurricane Formation Area Satellite Photo In The Mid Atlantic , so it still bears watching, not to mention since the Shuttle Discovery is probably on its launch platform, it hopefully will not have to be moved back into the Vehicle Assembly Building, if the weather changes. I would imagine looking at the weather formations east of Africa in the India Ocean Area, might give on a hint of the long term weather patterns. Anyway take your best guess NRL Monterey GOES-8 Satellite Photos and Products . As far as I can tell, it is pretty much the same conditions here, as expected for this time of year. I suppose there are a number of internet gurus at Fall Internet World Live! 1998 this week. Well so much for the status quo. CIO

Note:<888>10/07/98 Wednesday 7:30 A.M. EDT: I proofed the links and reuploaded the Department of Defense Directory, it is available at www.mikescott.org/dod.htm and mrscott.com/dod.htm . CIO

Note:<888>10/07/98 Wednesday 2:30 A.M. EDT: I went out at 1 P.M. yesterday. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I stopped by CVS and bought a 500 tablet bottle of acetaminophen for $9.99 and Lemon Pine Cleaner for $1.75. I went by Zyn's and bought buy three get two free of Marlboro Lights for $9 and a five pack of Garcia Vega miniature cigars for $1.67. I walked up to the town green or French park, and I smoked one of the miniature cigars. It is a coolish fall day with lots of people out and about their errands. I made my 4 P.M. appointment. Earlier I had stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the three weekly computer magazines and two from last week. The White Owl was entering the library just as I was departing. I returned home and had a four cheese Tony's pizza for dinner, and I went to bed at 5:30 P.M.. I got up at 1 A.M. this morning, and I had three scrambled eggs with fresh mushrooms, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I had a small pipe of tobacco while drinking the Cappuccino. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well back to the net. I was advised not to use the flavor packet that comes with Ramen noodles since it is full of MSG, instead I will use Soy Sauce in the future. CIO

Note:<888>10/06/98 Tuesday 8:40 A.M. EDT: I updated the Downloadable directory mrscott.com/download.htm or www.mikescott.org/download.htm with all the files in the long bookmark. The directory now has 62,000 links in 139 categories. I added four small pages of information, that I had on my servers. Well this will be the last update on the downloadable directory, since I am no longer working on bookmarks, although I will continue to maintain my two sites. CIO

Note:<888>10/05/98 Monday 4:25 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening. All quiet on the eastern front. CIO

Note:<888>10/05/98 Monday 3:50 P.M. EDT: I did a little bit of net work in the morning and went out for a short stroll. I wrote a letter in the morning. I went out again at 9 A.M.. I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop and the Bank. I stopped by the Post Office and paid my Bell Atlantic telephone bill. I drove down by the water. I returned home and slept from about 10:30 A.M. until 3 P.M.. I will do a little net work. CIO

Note:<888>10/05/98 Monday 4:45 A.M. EDT: I sifted through the news reports and email, not much happening. CIO

Note:<888>10/05/98 Monday 3:45 A.M. EDT: I updated my broadcast page mrscott.com/sound.htm or www.mikescott.org/sound.htm . Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>10/05/98 Monday 2:45 A.M. EDT: I finished doing my house cleaning and watering the plants. I did my laundry, so I have most my chores done until I do my ice tea when I run out of ice tea. I checked the skies and it looks like Volcanic clouds floating over the building, so I guess the wind that came around on Thursday 3 P.M., has come back around over the North Pole and is sweeping down our way again. I am still worrying about that Storm Front in the mid Atlantic Mid Atlantic Hurricane Formation Area

<http://www.ccc.nottingham.ac.uk/pub/sat-images/DTOT.JPG> forming into a major hurricane, so people who don't want to risk facing a major hurricane down south, should think about their travel plans, or if they go down there; make sure they have a secure storm shelter for backup protection. Well I will do a little more net work. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>10/04/98 Sunday 11:25 P.M. EDT: Note on communications, if you ever had a atomic or nuclear blast, cable modems using optic fibers would not work, and similarly during extreme cold conditions optic fibers would not work, if one thinks in terms of backup systems, a hard copper line is more reliable for telecommunications than optic fibers since it is more durable. CIO

Note:<888>10/04/98 Sunday 10:50 P.M. EDT: Mid Atlantic Hurricane Formation Area
<http://www.ccc.nottingham.ac.uk/pub/sat-images/DTOT.JPG> , I went to bed at noon and was up at 8 P.M.. I had scrambled eggs with mushrooms, raspberry strudel, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino for breakfast. I listened to a couple of CNN programs. I chatted with family members today, all is quiet. I reduced my automobile liability from $1,000,000 to $300,000 since the auto insurance program does not cover "Acts of God". I imagine lots of other activity is going on. I have house cleaning, and other routine Sunday routines to do. I have a 4 P.M.

appointment on Monday. Rupert Vernon, former first selectman of Greenwich died this past week. As far as I can tell situation SNAFU pretty much the same. Lots of out of towners not consulting with long time residents. I would advise people to look into flood plain areas in case we get major tropical storm activity. Tony Blair is suppose to visit China this week, and he and his staff would obviously notice if any unusual activity is taking place around Beijing, China. I believe a travelers advisory still exists against people traveling out of the U.S.A. on commercial aircraft. As far as I can tell situation in Greenwich is pretty much the same, but I have not been out in 24 hours. Back to house work. Smoking my pipe more instead of cigarettes. CIO

Note:<888>10/04/98 Sunday 10:55 A.M. EDT: Analysis of Volcanic Activity at Datong Volcano 150 Miles West Of Beijing, China Probably Caused By Yangtze River Flooding Overflowing Into Volcanic Lava Beds And Causing Datong Volcano Eruption That Caused Hurricane Wind Activity In East Western Hemisphere Coast. MLS CIO

Note:<888>10/04/98 Sunday 7:50 A.M. EDT: Datong Volcano 150 Miles West of Beijing, China NRL Satellite Photo gms\_images/trop\_vis/g5\_981004\_0832.jpeg gms is emitting smoke or large amounts of smoke are coming out of that area. Smithsonian Information I have is Latitude 40.00, Longitude N-113.28 E, Elevation 1882, Type Cinder Cones, Number 1005-01-, Historical 0450. I took a nap from about 1:30 A.M. to 6 A.M.. I need to start my usual Sunday routines of house cleaning. CIO

Note:<888>10/04/98 Sunday 1:15 A.M. EDT: Somebody emailed me this link in response to my Volcanic Alert Defense Support Program Satellites CIO

Note:<888>10/04/98 Sunday 12:45 A.M. EDT: Copy of Message I sent to 35 Volcanic Research Sites.

Possible Manjuria Eruption

http://www.nrlmry.navy.mil/sat-bin/display4?phot=yes&dir=gms\_images/trop\_vis&nav=gms&type=jpeg China Satellite Photo In Day Time There Does Not Work At Night There\par On Monday Morning, 9/28/98 ? 6 A.M. EDT; I felt a radiation blast come through my apartment because I keep mirrors on my wall and I got that gold dust effect from the radiation blast. I thought it might have been a nuclear blast somewhere in the world, which has not been reported.\par However, the Manjuria Volcano Satellite Photo on Friday Showed about a 50 mile wide smoke plume coming out of the volcano, so I assume the hurricane weather we received was an earlier volcanic eruption.\par I observed the hurricane tornado like winds coming through this area, and saw Chinese Dragon flies in the wind. Something happened that is not being reported. Also I noticed a U.S. Citizen Travel advisory against traveling outside the country on the Yahoo News Two days ago. <http://mrscott.com/weather.htm>

<http://www.mikescott.org/weather.htm>

mikescott@ibm.net

<http://mrscott.com/>

<http://www.mikescott.org/>

Note:<888>10/03/98 Saturday 11:55 P.M. EDT: Global Volcanism Program - Preliminary Notices of Volcanic Activity - Volcano Listserv Messages , Smithsonian Institution - Global Volcanism Program . CIO

Note:<888>10/03/98 Saturday 11:45 P.M. EDT: If Manjuria is erupting one should email <mailto:JONATHAN.FINK@asu.edu> . CIO

Note:<888>10/03/98 Saturday 11:35 P.M. EDT: NRL Satellite Photo gms\_images/trop\_vis/LATEST.jpeg <gms> Manjuria Volcano Link, smoke coming out of Volcano about 1 inch west of the Korea Volcano. I emailed a couple of dozen Volcanic Research Sties around the World. CIO

Note:<888>10/03/98 Saturday 8:50 P.M. EDT:NRL Mid Atlantic Satellite Photo goes8\_images/trop\_atlantic\_ir/LATEST.jpeg tropics , Satellite Oceanography Laboratory: Composite Images Heated Gases In Southern Hemisphere Circling The Antarctic , <http://satftp.soest.hawaii.edu/pub/gms/images/globe/last.gms.vis.md.gif>. CIO

Note:<888>10/03/98 Saturday 4:10 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . CIO

Note:<888>10/03/98 Saturday 3:30 P.M. EDT: I went out Friday and paid some bills. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York and made a cash withdrawal. I went by the bank across from the Presbyterian Church and paid my rent. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and stopped by the Post Office and paid my first installment on my million dollar insurance policy for my car. I also paid my MCI telephone bill. I went by the Tobacconist across from the Police Station and bought two packs of pipe tobacco of Round Hill Mix and Louis Cavendish for $9.85. I stopped by the lower avenue stationary shop and bought 3 cigars, and 2 three packs of buy 2 get on 1 free of Camel lights for a total of $13.10. I went by the Grand Union and bought Ronzoni Green Fettuccini noodles $1.75, Tetley Tea Bag $2.99, two GU Raisin Bran $2.19 each, two white mushrooms for $1.99 both, a Tony's Pizza $3.39, 24 packs of Ramen noodles for $4, two boxes of GU Oatmeal for .99 each, two 2 pound bags of onions for $1.99 each, two 5 pound bags of Russet Potatoes $1.99 both, a five pound bag of Jack Frost sugar for $1.99, two cans GU extra large olives $1.45 each, 3 dozen eggs $1.39 for all, I Can't Believe It's Not Butter $1.29, GU whole milk $1.67, four GU frozen Brussels sprouts $1.09, 2 half gallons of Florida Natural Orange Juice $1.99 each for a total of $43.03. I then went across the street to the Food Emporium for two gallons of Pepperidge Farm Goldfish for $4.99, 12 pack of diet Coke $1.80 plus .60 can deposit, a 3 bottle pack of Perrier for $2.99, and they charged me for "CK DT 12 PK" $4.29 which I did not buy and One bottle of Perrier $1.35 plus .05 which I did not buy for a total of $17.61. While at the Grand Union earlier across the street there was a large blond lady with a 15 inch pointed knife giving small slices of English Stelson Cheese. I consider it a security irregularity for a somebody to hold such a large knife in a public place. I then went onto the Arnold Bread Store and bought 3 Loaves of Healthnut Bread $3.87, and one Raspberry Strudel $1.29 for a total of $5.16. I stopped by the Exxon station for $10.35 premium gasoline after the Grand Union and before the Food Emporium. I returned home and put the groceries away. I thought for a while. I dictated another version of a manuscript to myself until midnight. I was up at about 2 P.M. today and had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, Toast, Orange Juice, Vitamins, and Coffee. I updated some files on the computer and will now check my email. CIO

Note:<888>10/02/98 Friday 8:10 A.M. EDT: NRL Satellite Photo gms\_images/trop\_vis/g5\_981002\_0332.jpeg <gms> Looks Like That Old Volcano In Manjuria

Might Have Erupted, and There Are Lots of Clouds In The Southern Hemisphere Atmosphere, Like Something Might Have Happened In Antarctica. Site for Other Photos NRL Monterey Tropical Satellite Photos MPEG Movies and Products . CIO

Note:<888>10/02/98 Friday 7:45 A.M. EDT: I put up a new page mrscott.com/psynotes.htm . Well back to routine. CIO

Note:<888>10/02/98 Friday 7:15 A.M. EDT: I decided to continue my $1,000,000 liability on the 1976 Volvo 244 DL, I will have to make the first payment $192.68 to GEICO Insurance, I called their policy number at 1-800-841-3000 and they said my present $1,000,000 policy is in affect until October 8, and it will be continued. I discontinued the $25,000 Walk Around Policy, since I have State Medicaid. I feel the fall winds beginning to blow, I am not sure what the long term weather forecast is for the coming winter season. I will also pay my MCI Long Distance Bill, and my Housing Authority Bill. Life Goes On IN Greenwich, Connecticut as Usual. Well I have not had time to check the news or email since about last Saturday. I am maintaining usual routine. One of my neighbors who had heart surgery recently should be checked to see if he is doing all right. Well back to my research routine. I will try to find an article or internet link of Satellite Photographs for the South Pacific Region of That Volcano, That One, One Would Not Want to Be within 10,000 miles of. Well back to morning routine. CIO

Note:<888>10/02/98 Friday 4:55 A.M. EDT: I seem to have lost track of the days, something happened but I am not sure what. Official Time and day here is 04:56:33 Fri Oct 02, 1998 CIO

Note:<888>10/02/98 Friday 4:50 A.M. EDT: I feel like it is very dry and my lips and body system feel very dry, although there is a lot of moisture in the air. I suppose I have to slow down and relax, but as long as maintain my normal routine I feel all right for this morning. CIO

Note:<888>10/02/98 Friday 4:45 A.M. EDT: My personal Budget for the month is starting at $488.88 after buying $13.48 in cigars and cigarettes at the Shell Station. This morning there I saw somebody there that looked like the Pasha of Persia, and flashed on the Ottoman Empire Temple or Mosque of Agahia Sofia with all the rats underneath it.. I think we got hit by a large solar flair or a Star Of David Radiation Impulse on Jan Kippur or St. Michael's Day 9/30/98 Approximate 6 A.M. EDT. I felt like the whole world was pierced by an X-ray shock, like in the Old Manhattan Project Test Films. Of course as I relax without cigarettes and did not shower for three days, I smoked my pipe and tried to reflect through the millennium of various Hollywood Pictures I had seen and I had flashes in my mind of scary pictures. I fell a little better, but that feeling of stress could be the feeling of cold since it is 48 degrees outside and 70 degrees inside for myself. Cold weather change seems to be giving me a crick in my back which causes a neurological flash. I might have been knocked out while thinking I was awake for a couple of days, since I do have a drop panel ceiling with humidifiers stored and maybe something fell out of the false ceiling like a humidifier and hit me on the head and I went into a trance, but when I began coming around yesterday, the ceiling was in place, and everything looked in shape. I am not sure what happened just lots of flashbacks. I made mrscott.com/icetea.htm without the Borden Lemon Juice and instead used the a cup of white wine. Well I am not sure what is really going on, I feel more like the inside routine is better for myself personally. CIO

Note:<888>10/14/98 Wednesday 8:30 P.M. EDT: This afternoon I went out at 3 P.M.. I drove east on Putnam Avenue and headed into Old Greenwich to Tod's Point. I walked the entire three mile walk around Tod's Point. I viewed the weather to the north from the large rock on the South East Point. I viewed the weather to the west from the South West Picnic Area. I had a small cigar there. I viewed the weather to the East from the North East area by the Life Guard Station. I viewed the weather to South by the North, South Facing Bench in the main beach area at the South West. I was able to survey the skies, and there was the usual air traffic that one sees on a nice day. I noticed almost the entire area except to the West had clouds on the horizon. I guess with the winds out of the west we are due for a few good days of beach walking weather, but with the type of winds and clouds one sees, anything could change. I returned west and drove down Greenwich Avenue. I chatted with a Swiss couple about the local environment in broken French English. I told them that the mosquitoes have encephalitis. I mentioned I had been around both the International Red Cross and the American Red Cross. I pointed out the two Swans swimming around the harbor. I mentioned a few homes around the water. I chatted with another local about the Swiss perspective as it relates to Greenwich in maintaining neutrality during times of turbulence. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and chatted with one librarian as to whether they have changed the flight patterns out of Westchester Airport and have more aircraft flying over Greenwich. I chatted with a Swiss Businessman on Swiss trivia. He said Thailand is also neutral, along with Luxembourg, Sweden, and I believe Andorra. I mentioned that the Swiss Computer equipment is about 150% more expensive. I told the Swiss couple about Swiss activities around here including, Swiss Banking, Nestle including Perrier, Roche or Hoffman LaRoche which also owns Genetic. I believe Equinox is also Swiss. I suppose most major international companies have Swiss offices. I suggest that IBM and Microsoft should become Swiss companies since they have such large international presences. I returned home and had some Goldfish crackers and diet Coca Cola, and about an hour after thinking I had a slice of ham, steamed red pepper, broccoli, and onion, and a potato with ice tea and Cappuccino. I mentioned to people I looked for a hurricane heading for Florida last night instead I found a Typhoon heading for China. Well as far as I know it was another normal day in Greenwich. I noticed they were catching Blue Fish on Steamboat Road pier, but I did not see the lone fisherman at Tod's Point catching anything. I noticed about a dozen sailboats on the Sound along with a fast moving Yacht. I saw a tug boat with barges across the sound. I suppose it was an excellent fall day on the sound. Well have a good evening. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm .CIO

Note:<888>10/14/98 Wednesday 2:40 P.M. EDT: In continual test of the medical good faith in the community, I plan to have a flu vaccine shot in the near future, so I don't catch the flu like I did last winter. The weather is nice today, so I plan to go out roaming around town in about an hour. CIO

Note:<888>10/14/98 Wednesday 1:35 P.M. EDT: General comment on Greenwich, Connecticut area. There seems to be a group practicing old psychological warfare techniques in the Greenwich, Connecticut area. If that is the case, medical facilities at Greenwich Hospital, although a first class hospital might have been compromised by saboteurs. I noticed on recent visits that the portable CAT SCAN machine in the truck trailer at the south entrance of the Greenwich Hospital, although it looks like a professional setup, has a high voltage cable coming out of an aluminum conduit to the truck. What looks suspicious is that the extremely high voltage cable has been left lying on the ground asphalt for the last two months which does not reflect a high degree of professionalism. Perhaps somebody stole the machine or it is a fake machine they move around the country. If one perceives medical conditions or records have been compromised, all I can recommend is storing medical records in a National Medical Records center or in a backup hospital such as the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minnesota. I am not a medial professional, so I don't know the real status of overall situation, just my random observations. I will continue to maintain residence in area, since I am accustomed to the present status, although slightly irregular. CIO

Note:<888>10/14/98 Wednesday 2:15 A.M. EDT: Downloading RadioWave.com - It's online...It's interactive...It's the next wave of Radio! CIO

Note:<888>10/14/98 Wednesday 12:55 A.M. EDT: I went out at 9:30 P.M.. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. It was not very busy since it had rained a bit. Basically the whole downtown was empty except for about 50 people working, dining, and walking. I chatted with one local acquaintance whom teaches art that knows about Doug's widow in Manhattan. I suppose she should be moved. I smoked my last White Owl cigar. I did not observe anything out of the ordinary. It seemed to be the usual quiet Tuesday night. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought two Campbell's Clam Chowder for .99 each, GU Mozzarella 8 oz. for $1.59 each in case I want to make my own pizza, and two 12 packs of Diet Pepsi for $1.99 each plus .60 can deposit for a total of $10.58. I returned home and gossiped with one of my neighbors about local town events. I filed this report after having some ice tea and goldfish crackers. I did my laundry last night and I made ice tea. I suppose if the stockmarket goes down a bit, it might be less busy around here, since people will have less spending money. Well I made it through the recession from 1973 to 1983, so I suppose I will survive another recession. I suppose young professionals are worried about being laid off. Well if anything changes the current status in Greenwich, one will have to be flexible. As far I know I will continue my same routines. With my severe arthritis, I am not a very good outside observer on cold damp nights, I just go about my normal routines. Well back to a little net activity or maybe I will read. CIO

Note:<888>10/13/98 Tuesday 8:20 P.M. EDT: I stayed off the computer last night, and reflected on different versions of United States history as it has been written and interpreted. Realistically in the old days, they did not have very good communications so a lot of the facts and history was confused. Ultimately in a democracy the guardians of a country are those whom know how to maintain and defend it, while at the same time encouraging growth and immigration.

Realistically we have a bit of room to grow here in America. I stayed up until about 7:30 A.M., and got up around 1 P.M.. I had breakfast of Kellogg's corn flakes, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. I went out about 3 P.M. and stopped by Putnam Trust, Bank of New York and withdrew a new $20 bill from the money machine, and exchanged it for an old $20 bill. I went up to the four floor trust department and spoke with Nicholas Marcuso about the global volcanic situation and how it might affect world economic forecasts. Basically cooler weather six months from now means cold during the planting season in the northern hemisphere, and cold during the harvest season in the southern hemisphere. For this winter, the clouds we have been getting if it were colder means more snow. However after Mt. St. Helens there was severe minus 20 F. cold in the Manhattan area, but little snow; and after Mount Penatubo, there were about a dozen snow falls including a 4 1/2 foot snow fall in this area. I still have no confirmation on any volcanic activity in the world, so it is all speculation. It would take about six months for global temperatures to drop a half degree to one degree which is significant, if there were any major volcanic activity. I suppose we all just have to wait and see. Today was dark and overcast and damp. I suppose every skier in the area is trying to figure out future ski conditions in the area and northern New England. It is hard to tell. I speculated with Nick that Oil futures might go up. I noticed in Scott's Index scopor01.htm was down today, and Monsanto was down 13 1/2 points after the American Home Products merger failed. I suppose now might be a good time to buy Monsanto stock, if one needed more. I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop and various staff members are planning a cruise down to the Caribbean, and I am not sure what the weather conditions hold for the cruise. I went down Greenwich Avenue, and stopped by the tobacco shop across from the Greenwich Police station, and advised them in the tobacco industry they needed to watch for possible hurricane weather this season. I suppose if the Pelicans in Biscayne Bay, are still there in the morning and the evening, it means there is no bad weather expected, and if they withdraw from the waterfront, then one can expect poorer weather. I imagine migratory birds have the same instincts, and they will not head towards warmer climates until they are sure the hurricane season is over. With El Nina and possible volcanic activity, it is hard to tell what the real story is. I stopped by Zyns and bought a five pack of buy three get two free of Marlboro lights, and a five miniature cigar pack of Garcia Vega Cavendish mild cigars. I had one in the town common, while a local observer was feeding the sea gulls. I drove down by the water on Steamboat Road, and briefed one long time resident about possible weather conditions down south. I chatted with a local fisherman about local weather. I stopped by the Greenwich library and read the local newspaper and read two computer newsweeklies. I chatted with a long time acquaintance about family members around the country, and he was thinking about doing some renovation work up north. I chatted with another regular library user, and briefed him. I mentioned that a lot of the old fallout shelters are probably filled with items like cases of wine, and they are not prepared to be used. I suppose, if one were fortunate to have a fall out shelter or root cellar, one would have to think about means of exit during some sort of disaster. In other words if it were flooded or had an exit blocked one would be trapped. He mentioned one oil company had filled the ventilator pipe of one fallout shelter with oil, thinking it was an oil fill pipe. Of course we don't expect any political military disasters, we are worrying about natural disasters. Remember there are a lot of water storage areas to the north of town filled with lots of water which might overflow into lower lying areas south of them after a heavy rain fall or thaw. I returned home and had another small cigar outside chatting with a few of my local neighbors this evening. I watched the ABC evening news. I made a slice of heated ham, steamed broccoli, onion, and red pepper along with baked potato, and ice tea and Cappuccino. While at Putnam Trust on the fourth floor, a construction crew was doing some partitioning work and firing a nail gun. I suppose not much is really happening around here, so I will do a little internet work this evening and possibly go out for a walk latter. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>10/12/98 Monday 11:30 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I am doing my laundry on the dry cycle. I am having a relaxing day, staying inside for a change as the weather gets colder. It seem pretty quiet. I chatted with one of my new neighbors who moved back from Florida whom is a long time Greenwich resident. It seems quiet and cool in the old neighborhood. I saw lights on at the skating rink, so the young folk must be practicing their skating already. I have not bothered cleaning up today, since I don't plan to go out. Well all quiet on this side of town. My arthritis is beginning to act up whenever I am out in the cool for longer periods of time, it cuts in and out. Well not much happening. I guess nothing happened volcanic wise, since I have received no reports on the internet, unless the field personnel are in the field and not filing reports. Maybe the recent report on Gernica has to do with the fact that the Metropolitan Museum has the Picasso Painting on Loan at the Prado Museum in Madrid, Spain. I think the painting was done to commemorate an event during the Spanish Revolution, it is so long ago I can't remember. Well time to fold laundry. CIO

Note:<888>10/12/98 Monday 1:20 P.M. EDT: Deep-Sea Clues to an Ancient Culture Discovered and Odyssey Marine Exploration CIO

Note:<888>10/12/98 Monday 12:15 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Broadcast mrscott.com/sound.htm or www.mikescott.org/sound.htm for today Monday October 12, 1998, Columbus Day. CIO

Note:<888>10/12/98 Monday 11:15 A.M. EDT: North American Securities Administrators Association (NASAA) , site to report Securities Trading Violations. CIO

Note:<888>10/12/98 Monday 11:05 A.M. EDT: I was up at 10 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of scrambled eggs, ham, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I will do a little internet work now. The bank ATM was working last night. There are a number of aircraft in the Greenwich flyway recently. Today is a holiday when the old guard usually leave Nantucket to discover America. Not much to report on locally. The local librarian is retiring. I do not read the local paper when it is not available in the library. I did see a headline this weekend that the local mosquitoes have incephalitis, so one has to watch themselves when outside. I also saw a report on CNN that one needs to get their annual flu shots. My sympathies to the family of Matthew Shepard whom was recently beaten to death and finally passed away Gay Wyoming College Student Dies After Beating . This report has the email address for sending sympathies Suspect's Father Denies Wyoming Beating Hate Crime . The address is <mailto:MShepard@Libra.PVH.Org> . I traveled through the University of Wyoming once or twice in 1978 to 1980 on the way to California. It was frigid cold in October and people were wearing T-Shirts in 0 degrees F. weather. The people did not look hostile when I stopped by to use the facilities at the local Gym, and I noticed coming out of town, there were a lot of very skinny cowboys whom did not seem to eat much of the beef readily available. I noticed a Sinclair Oil refinery about 2 hours northwest of Laramie, Wyoming with a giant dinosaur; and at the time I did not even realize Sinclair Oil still existed. A family relative once claimed he had the Chairman of the Board of Sinclair Oil's Chair in his office in Tulsa. Well it goes to show when one travels outside of one's neighboring area without security, people can be hostile, which is why I always seem to live around adequate security. The friendliest people when I was traveling around the country incognito were a friendly group of truckers whom kept an eye on me with their CB radios as I crossed the country. One of my favorite old people Bill Westmoreland whom drives a truck has not been seen around recently, I suppose he is out on the road in the vastness of America. Once again give my sympathies to Mathew's family, members of the Shepard family have lived here in Greenwich for a long time. CIO

Note:<888>10/11/98 Sunday 11:45 P.M. EDT: I finished cleaning the apartment and watering the plants about 5:30 P.M.. I chatted with a family member. I had a dinner guest come down for ham, steamed green beans red peppers and onions, potato, ice tea, and coffee. I went out about 8:30 P.M. for a short walk on a quiet night. I had a small cigar at the post office park. I chatted about soy beans with a young fellow from Viet Nam. It was a quiet night with a few citizens out and about town. I went by the Grand Union and bought GU whole milk half gallon for $1.67, I Can't Believe It's Not Butter $1.27, 3 Cans of Campbell's Chunky Chowder at .99 for a total of $5.63. I also picked up a half carton of Marlboro Lights buy three get two free for $9 at the lower avenue news store. The wind is out of the north, so it is cooler. I suppose it might be a cooler winter. I have no idea whether there will be much snow. I was wondering whether Tropical Storm Lisa effected Bermuda or not. I am feeling a bit arthritic with the weather change, but the apartment is comfortable and I don't think the heat has come on yet. I am thinking of taking a few days off the computer and reading George Bush's and Brent Scowcroft's book "A World Transformed". I have always enjoyed reading, and I suppose it is about time I read something besides internet technology. Locals mystics seemed to have withdrawn from the region. As far as I know the winter winds have kept the city folk at home in the city, and the town is quiet as usual for this time of the year. A few die hard observers and walkers were floating about town. Well as far as I know, there is not much to report here from Sleepy Hollow. CIO

Note:<888>10/11/98 Sunday 2:40 P.M. EDT: I can't remember what I did yesterday, I think I tried to relax and enjoy the weekend. I went out in the evening about 7:30 P.M.. I stopped by the ATM machine at Putnam Trust, and although I have funds in my account it did not work for some odd reason. I stopped by Zyns and confirmed on the Datong Volcano with one of its employees. I bought buy three get two free of Marlboro lights for $9. I sat out and had a Garcia Vega light cigar. I chatted with Carlos from Gurnica, Spain about Lanzerote and traveling through there in the old days. I mentioned I knew all about the machine gun bullet holes in the old churches in Europe from my church tours in the old days. I gave him a quick briefing on volcanic activity. He told me he had to chat with the local priest. He withheld his little finger when we shook hands which is an old world custom. I chatted with a local priest of the Episcopal Church about a former church employee whom went to Germany. I chatted with a Professional Caddy from Florida about it might be too soon to go down there. I chatted with a local hard working representative of the German people about elder affairs. I walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue about 1 1/2 times. I chatted with the bouncer of the dome restaurant about Volcanoes, and he was conversant since he is German and Philippine. At the top of Greenwich Avenue, there was a bright I assume lightning flash off in the North West and a muffled thunder sound. I walked hurriedly back down to the bottom of the Avenue mentioning lightning to a few people. I mentioned it to one patron with a cellphone at Versailles Restaurant and a few younger people lingering. After walking to the bottom area of Greenwich Avenue, I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and mentioned lightning to the fisherman. They had a couple of large blue fish they had caught. I heard some of the old guard enjoying themselves on the upstairs terrace of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club watching the weather. I surveyed the cloud formations that looked ominous in all directions. I returned home about 10 P.M. instead of working on the computer, I thought until about 6 A.M. in the morning reviewing various past historical data. I remembered a figure in history Raj Mikan from about 400 years ago when the British first entered into India. I also tried to remember some of the excerpts of the Dorothy Chandler Doomsday Script, and how it might be updated to a more current version. Basically when one starts thinking about other historical items and history, a lot of the current history being written does not seem that important. It was a moderately cool and pleasant evening. I slept until about 1 P.M. this afternoon. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I have to do my Sunday cleaning. Tomorrow Monday is Columbus Day, a holiday in America. I saw it mentioned recently that a descendant of Christopher Columbus is an Admiral in the Spanish Navy. Well back to house cleaning. CIO

Note:<888>10/10/98 Saturday 10:00 A.M. EDT: I rested on Friday from about 9 A.M. to I don't know when. I recall going out about 1 P.M.. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop and chatted with the local staff about quaint village topics. I went down by CVS and bought Lysol Spray for $2.99, Garcia Vega Cavendish Whiffs for $1.77 for 5 pack, two Djeep Red lighters for $1.59 each or $3.18 total, and a black comb for .50 plus .54 Connecticut sales tax for a total of $9.58. While at the Hospital Thrift Shop earlier, I chatted with a local postman about the old glass barometers that somebody had donated to the thrift shop with out the necessary liquid. One would have to research the what liquids one puts in an old glass barometer setup. I also noticed some gift items from India including handmade paper urns and pineapple door knockers. If one looks closely one sees an interesting variety of items in any thrift shop. After CVS I drove down by the water and surveyed the fisherman. One gentleman fishing was from Roma, Italia. I spoke with him in French about the various birds in the area, and if one were interested in whether it is safe to migrate down to Florida during the hurricane season, one can follow the birds in various flyways and see if they have migrated down to Florida yet. A lot of animals like birds seem to have common sense, as regards the whether and know when it is safe to migrate down to Florida. The local birds including sea gulls, crows, comerents, and sparrows were out in the drizzly rain yesterday at high tide. The local fisherman at high tide in the rain were pulling in a bumper haul of large blue fish, so I guess the Blues are running on Steamboat Road at high tide. I saw one hefty fisherman pull out about a dozen Blues on a trout line out of the water he had caught. I stopped by the library and chatted with a local ornithologist about various environmental activities. I mentioned I had seen a number of Red and Yellow license plates from New Mexico in the area. I read the local paper in the library. I chatted with a young blond fellow while leaving the library about Navy attire and I said I did not like taking orders, so I volunteer for the "International Red Cross". I returned home and had a White Owl small cigar. I sat around most the evening and early morning until about 2:30 A.M., not working on the computer and reflecting about other civilizations. I read a couple of paragraphs on the United States Constitution, of course that version is as it was amended up until about 1978 in the Academic America Encyclopedia that I have. I believe Connecticut is called "The Constitution State". I read a little about Carthidge and the Phoenicians, who had barbaric religious practices which lead to the decline of their civilization. I actually enjoy reading encyclopedias since they refresh the memory, and I have not had the time to do that in many years. I meditated on certain acquaintances and what they might be doing in other parts of the world of course it is all in the minds imagination, one never really knows. Well I awoke about 8 A.M., and I made breakfast of ham and mushroom omelet, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. I updated this report. It is nice to take time off the computer and enjoy some of our more traditional routines like relaxing on the weekend, and letting the world pass us by. Well have an enjoyable early fall day. I imagine there might some harvest festivals coming up soon. I also updated Scott's Index mrscott.com/scopor01.htm . CIO

Note:<888>10/09/98 Friday 8:08 A.M. EDT: Swiss Computer Source <http://www.topd.ch/> . If you have the cash, this is a good model at the high end price in Swiss Francs.

Shopping Basket

Name

Unit Price

Total Price

PC Avance Intel Pentium II 450

Icecap Pentium II

Intel Pentium II 450

Fulltower ATX

Asus P2BDS, BX, 100MHz, 2xPII, U2W

DIMM 128MB, 100MHz (+EPROM)

3½ / LS-120MB, int.

2.5GB Quantum Fireball EL Ultra-ATA

Diamond Fire GL 1000 Pro 8MB, SGRAM

Diamond Viper V550, 16MB SDRAM

Logitech Desktop Cordless, mouse & keyboard

Logitech Trackman Marble FX

2 years Bring-In-Service

Eizo F78, 21"

Windows 98, preinstalled/configured

CD-ROM 36Speed & AccelSonic 3D, installed

Askey MagicXpress 56k, ext., voice & Starterkit Swiss-OnLine

The Total system price is: 7'835.00

7'835.00

Welcome to Switzerland and Swiss Bank Index

CIO

Note:<888>10/09/98 Friday 7:15 A.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Downloadable Directory mrscott.com/download.htm or www.mikescott.org/download.htm to include Internet World's Exhibitors List iwfall98.htm . Time for uploading. CIO

Note:<888>10/09/98 Friday 5:55 A.M. EDT: I went to bed at 9 P.M.. I received a call about 9:30 P.M. from a Long Island resident. We chatted for about a half hour about Chinese activities. I slept until 5 A.M.. I had Kellogg's Corn flakes, toast, vitamin, orange juice, and Cappuccino for breakfast. I believe the Kellogg's family are Swiss. Another Swiss company is Nestle which owns Nescafe along with Perrier which has its offices across the street from my residence. Local Swiss Armament that I have in reserve includes a Swiss Cross Bow, but I have no arrows and a yellow and red Swiss Army Knife that I bought last time I stopped by Geneva, Switzerland for about 30 Swiss Francs at a Sportsman shop near the University of Geneva. I authorize local observer on the Continent traveling incognito to enter Switzerland and maintain residence at family residence there, and advise him to volunteer for the "International Red Cross" after he learns his way around the territory. Since he grew up on top of a mountain, he should be very comfortable maintaining the Crow Watch in Switzerland. J'advise, que tu parle du Francais dans Suisse, parce qu'il ya beaucoup du persons du Suisse qui aussi parle du Francais avec, du Allemagne, et de Italiano. Si il ya question, nous avons du counsulate Swiss dans des Capitols des Pays au tout le monde. Pardon L'franglais, je parle de Anglais beaucoup du temps ici. Je pense le person locale connais le situation dans la pays apres Suisse. C'est tout. S'il ya des confusion, le directeur de Crosse Rouge des Internationals connais la raison pour reste a Suisse. CIO

Note:<888>10/08/98 Thursday 7:00 P.M. EDT: I slept from 9:30 A.M. to 1 P.M.. I had some Ramen noodles and soy sauce, ice tea, and a cup of coffee. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove down Steamboat Road and observed the rain storm along the Sound. I stopped by the Library and read the local newspaper. I checked out "A World Transformed" by George Bush and Brent Scowcroft. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought two Tropicana Ruby Red Orange Juice for $1.99 each $3.98 total, I bought a three pack of Diamond wooden safety matches 250 each in a box for $2.39, (they lite a pipe better), I bought 16 packs of Ramen noodles for $4, two boxes of Ronzoni Spinach noodles $1.59 for $3.18 total, a head of broccoli .99, a avocado .99, Ragu Parmesan Garlic sauce $2.19, a box of Salt Sense $1.25, two Stauffer's large Lasagna $2.99 each, a Tobin's First Prize Carvemaster Ham at .99 pound for $3.47, Red Peppers at .99 a pound $1.50, I Can't Believe It's Not Butter $1.29, Green Beans at .99 a pound .96, Tropicana Ruby Red Grapefruit Juice $1.99, a Snickers Bar .55 for a total of $33.67. I returned home and put away the groceries. I went out and had a small Garcia Vega cigar, and watched the rain. I went upstairs and ate one of the Stauffer's Lasagnas. I am watching the ABC evening news. I will update Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well time to relax for the evening, and a dreary raining evening, but at least the rain cleared up the pollen and allergies in the air which were quite bad for the last two weeks. CIO

Note:<888>10/08/98 Thursday 9:15 A.M. EDT: I put together a list of links of the Fall Internet World 1998 Exhibitors Links iwfall98.htm from their links page for handy reference. Time to shut down. CIO

Note:<888>10/08/98 Thursday 4:45 A.M. EDT: I finished backing up the computer about 8 P.M. last night. I went to bed at 9 P.M., and awoke at 3 A.M.. I had breakfast of scrambled eggs and fresh mushrooms, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. I have been snacking on Ramen noodles without the flavor packet which has MSG, and instead adding Soy Sauce. I surfed a few television news stories. I was emailed about a site in Greenwich which is very interesting Wright Research Center . I suppose it is beginning to become that quiet time of year. Well I suppose we could go kidnap all the internet gurus over at the Javits Convention Center and have them come out here and enjoy raking leaves this time of year, once they begin to fall. Well all seems quiet. I saw an interesting news story on the news about how intertwined the Brazilian economy is with the United States economy in terms of international business, but alas I don't speak Portuguese, but I suppose a few bean counters might know a word or two of English. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>10/21/98 Wednesday 4:40 A.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Broadcast sound.htm , well have a good morning to you all you daytime internet warriors, time for rest. CIO

Note:<888>10/21/98 Wednesday 3:50 A.M. EDT: I watched a program on the Rocky Mountains train that runs out to Portland. I went out about 2:30 A.M.. There was an officer parked at the end of the driveway. I mailed a letter. I went down Steamboat Road, and there was a bottle of Dubonnet left in the middle of the road. There was a black Mercedes at the end with its occupant fishing on the pier. It is a cool crisp evening. I went by the Grand Union and bought 2 Tony's Supreme Pizzas for $5.99 for both, GU whole milk half gallon $1.79, a 12 pack of Vintage Seltzer $1.99 plus .60 can deposit, a dozen jumbo eggs $1.59, two boneless Shell Steaks at $3.99 a pound for $6.18 (last of stock until they replenish in the morning), for a total of $18.25 with .12 cents tax. I came home and broiled a center cut pork chop, with baked potato, and steamed broccoli for dinner with a lime Rickey, and chamomile tea with honey. I am also making ice tea with wine instead of lemon juice. I plan on relaxing for the rest of the morning before going to bed. It is plenty warm inside, and I am very comfortable. Hopefully the people in the State House will pay for my electricity, or you might see the price of energy go up for everyone. CIO

Note:<888>10/21/98 Wednesday 12:40 A.M. EDT: I updated audio.htm . I took a nap from 8 P.M. to 11 P.M.. CIO

Note:<888>10/20/98 Tuesday 7:45 P.M. EDT: Microsoft First Quarter 1999 Earnings Release 10/20/98 , I updated Alta Vista Discovery Search Index. I wrote a letter. I had goldfish crackers and ramen noodles with soy sauce for lunch. I watch the ABC evening news. I hope to make it out by 9 P.M.. CIO

Note:<888>10/20/98 Tuesday 4:35 P.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I hope all is quiet in the Sun Belt. CIO

Note:<888>10/20/98 Tuesday 4:15 P.M. EDT:IBM announces third-quarter 1998 results CIO

Note:<888>10/20/98 Tuesday 3:45 P.M. EDT: IBM financial information: Quarterly results IBM, Third Quarter 1998 Results Today. I was up about 1:30 P.M.. I had scrambled eggs, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino for breakfast. I will probably go outside shortly after I clean up. CIO

Note:<888>10/20/98 Tuesday 3:40 A.M. EDT: I posted two new audio files University of Illinois, Computer Music "uoicm.htm" from an old record I bought in the Greenwich Hospital

Thrift Shop about nine years ago for a dime, before my recent PC computer activity of the last eight years. I thought some old time computer people might enjoy it, since NCSA Mosaic has become very popular on the internet, or versions there of. I hope "ASCAP" does not mind. Tonight I slept from about 7:30 P.M. until about 10:30 P.M.. I got up and had a dinner of baked pork chop with wine, garlic, and herbs, baked onion, steamed green beans, baked potato, ice tea, and cappuccino. I watched a Ronald Regan movie circa 1945 something "Judy" until about 2 A.M.. I recorded the above sound files, and posted them during the next couple of hours. I have the space on the server right now, so I will let them remain as a curiosity. The record folder says the music was made on a computer called an "ILLIAC" and composed in "SCATRE (IBM-7094 assembly language) and in FORTRAN". By the way I finally fixed the Braun Cappuccino Machine. The large coffee holder spoon, had its metal stamp cup out of alignment with the plastic handle causing it to misalign when the upper apparatus was closed. Well have a good morning, I will rest shortly. CIO

Note:<888>10/19/98 Monday 6:00 P.M. EDT: I watched a little of "Rebel Without A Cause", last night and turned it off. I went out for a short walk around midnight. I went to bed about 3 A.M.. I was up at about noon today. I had breakfast of Grand Union Raisin Bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I went out about 2:15 P.M. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital and received my annual flu shot very quickly at the outpatient department. I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove down by the water. I made my 4 P.M. appointment. I went by the library and returned the videotapes. I mentioned the nice weather to one of the regular patrons. I suppose today was a perfect Indian Summer Day with clear skies, and temperature in the low 70s. Lets hope it lasts a few days. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm , and I suppose that is all to report. CIO

Note:<888>10/18/98 Sunday 9:25 P.M. EDT: I went downtown about 6 P.M.. I checked with a local horse enthusiast, and he said they should rub horses exposed to fire ants with a mixture of vinegar and water. He did not give the proportions. He said horses have it rough being exposed from all the flies around horse manure all the time. On the way downtown I stopped by CVS and I bought a bag of Mars Three Musketeers Candy Bars for $1.99 and a bag of M&M Peanut Candies for $1.99 which I gave to my neighbor for the local trick or treaters. I also picked up a bag of black licorice for .99 and 2 cans of Ajax cleaner for .88 for a total of $6.20 with .35 Ct. tax. I walked the lower area of Greenwich Avenue and had a Garcia & Vega Cavendish Whiff in front of the Post Office. It was pretty busy for a Sunday night. I stopped by the Food Emporium and bought a gallon box of Goldfish crackers for $4.99, two Florida Natural Orange Juice half gallons for $1.69 each, a jar of Bornier Dijon French mustard for $2.39, and center cut boneless pork chops at $2.69 a pound for $2.77, for a total of $13.53. I returned home and started my laundry which is on the drying cycle right now. I had dinner of baked pork chop in wine and garlic with herbs, baked onion, steamed green beans, and baked potato, with ice tea and I am now drinking Cappuccino. After I fold my laundry and finish my Cappuccino, I plan to watch "Rebel Without A Cause". Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>10/18/98 Sunday 5:30 P.M. EDT: I chatted with a relative last evening living near Fort Sam Houston, in San Antonio, Texas. They had 20 inches of rain there yesterday. They were without power, and the telephone is not working now. I was told by another relative who had spoken with them that the friends of theirs whom are personnel on the base at Fort Sam Houston were having major problems from the flooding with "Fire Ants" particularly covering the horses on base. I advised people I checked with the only remedy that I could think of off the top of my head is to cover the horses with "Liquid Detergent" and that might possibly keep the fire ants away from them. Today I was up at about noon after sitting up until about 3 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I watered the plants and cleaned the apartment until 5 P.M.. I had Ramen noodles just now for a light meal. I will shower and clean up, and go out in about a half hour. CIO

Note:<888>10/17/98 Saturday 9:10 P.M. EDT: I added a new music file Bolero by Maurice Ravel "bolero.htm" . Today I went back to bed about 9 A.M. and slept until about 2 A.M.. I finally caught up on my sleep. I went downtown, and I drove down by the water. I stopped by Exxon and purchased $13.25 of premium gasoline. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read a couple of computer newsweeklies. I went downtown and walked around. I conferred with a traffic officer about the Florida weather and what its forecast might be. I walked the lower area of Greenwich Avenue. I sat in the park a brief spell. It was the usual weekend crowd. It was a very nice day, lets hope it stays that way. I went by the Grand Union and purchased Tropicana Orange Juice $1.99, Tropicana Ruby Red Grapefruit Juice $1.99, a half gallon of GU homogenized milk $1.78, a 12 pack of Vintage Seltzer $1.99 plus .60 deposit, two pork chops at $1.99 a pound $2.44, green beans at .99 a pound $1.13, a head of Broccoli at $1.69 a pound $1.50, five limes $2, 3 cans of Chicken of the Sea tuna $2, 5 cans of GU Mandarin Oranges $2, a box of Chamomile Tea $2.89 for a total of $22.99 with a $1 can return. I also gave a $1 for the Alzheimer's Red Man collector. I returned home and put away the groceries, and made dinner. For dinner I had reheated ham, baked potato, steamed broccoli, green beans, and onion along with ice tea and Cappuccino. I relaxed while and made the recording of bolero.htm . I checked out "Casablanca" and "Rebel Without A Cause" for viewing later tonight while at the library. Putnam Avenue west of me is closed for construction. CIO

Note:<888>10/17/98 Saturday 7:25 A.M. EDT: I just did the dishes, so the water is running again. I updated mrscott.com/stats.htm , which should be double the count since I have a second site. I am checking my email. CIO

Note:<888>10/17/98 Saturday 6:25 A.M. EDT: I went to bed after eating some goldfish crackers and ice tea about 8 P.M.. I got up about 6 A.M., and had breakfast of scrambled eggs, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. I have not been able to do the dishes yet, since for some reason the water is not working. I suppose they might be cleaning out the main pipes. It is hard to tell. They do occasionally flush the pipes this time of year. I will do a little internet work, while I drink my cappuccino. I guess I am back on a day schedule, so I can see all the power mad yuppies in the morning on Saturday. Remember to keep checking the Audubon Network to check the local bird activity. CIO

Note:<888>10/16/98 Friday 6:40 P.M. EDT: I was up until 7 A.M. on Thursday reflecting on the past readings. I got up about noon on Thursday, and I sifted through my last two weeks notes trying to figure out what happened. I made my 3 P.M. appointment without cleaning up or shaving since I got behind trying to realign the Braun Cappuccino Machine plastic parts that were slightly warped. I did not succeed, but earlier this morning today after a couple of hours I succeeded. I think one needs to leave in the coffee grinds cup after using it, so the apparatus cools in a fixed place. It is working fine now. I drove by the bank downtown and made a deposit. I returned home chatting with a local ornithologist about local wildlife. I returned home about 5 P.M. and relaxed for a couple of hours. I chatted with one local resident about having our heat paid for by the state. I had a sense of fear and foreboding all day, for some odd reason. I had dinner of Ramen noodles. I started thinking about various scenarios in history until about 6 A.M.

in the morning. I also started up my humidifier in the living room to add humidity. I set up the Delonghi Oil Filled Radiators and started up the one on low in the living room to had a little heat and humidity to the apartment the way I like it in the cooler weather. Earlier in the evening I toured the outside of the skating rink, and chatted with a White Poodle walker. I also added another pillow to the Queen Anne chair to make it more fuller. I moved a couple of old computer cases into the bedroom closet. I fiddled with the Braun Cappuccino machine, but did not succeed fixing it until about 9 A.M. on Friday morning. I did not turn on the computer on Thursday. I thought about various scenarios of undocumented history. I went out at 6:30 A.M. and stopped by Zyns and bought 4 buy 2 get 1 free of Merit Ultra Lights for $24, and a package of Garcia Vega Cavendish Whiffs for $1.79. The Marlboro lites earlier in the week were messing me up, like they had chemicals or loco weed in them. I think the Cigarette makers should check their quality control. I had a bowl of Ramen noodles when I returned to the warmer apartment. I hope I can afford to keep the apartment warmer this winter, since it is the only way to keep my arthritis from acting up, and it is not really that large of an apartment. I also lowered the light level in the apartment since the bright lights and mirrors were hard on my eyes. I keep on one 75 watt light bulb, and one night light. I figure if I need more light, I can always turn on other lights. I was awoken about 1:30 P.M. by a visitor. I made him coffee and had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn flakes, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I showered while the visitor put in new spark plugs in his Volvo and other tune-up parts. I went for a drive with the guest, and he put in STP fuel injector in the Volvo, but he needs to have the timing checked. He also put in a new air filter, rotor, and cap. We drove down Steamboat Road and chatted with the local fishermen. It was a clear bright sunny day with moderate temperatures. I noticed that at the train station office park loading dock, somebody had dropped off a Black Mercury Outboard Engine Cover for disposal. We drove by the Grass Island and sat out and observed the harbor, the skies, and the birds. I noticed sea gulls, pair of swans, crows, sparrow hawks, a few nesting tree birds which I did not see closely, a few other types of soaring hawks, a few terns. I mentioned the Mercury Engine cover to a Grass Island user. I noticed a cigarette boat on the harbor. We noticed in front of the marshy grassy parking area at the sewer plant, in the tidal estuary between Baldwin Park, and the Grass Island Road, there was a quite large African Grey Herron, that might have blown in with hurricane Georges. It looked to be in good shapes, and seemed to be doing its usual fishing routine. I noticed they are redoing the pointing and masonry on the boys club. I chatted with one gentleman at the Grass Island Park about the observing the Pelicans at Biscayne Bay to see if they are staying in the area or leaving. I also saw about a half dozen Canadian Geese and three black ducks. I noticed a few high flying jets also. Returning through Bruce Park, I saw that a large flock of Canadian Geese had blocked the road, and I noticed the north ponds were full of Cormorants. Thus the birds are flocking into more protective areas, although today was a clear day. We returned home and checked out the Mercedes Benz dealership lot. They have a new 230 Sports Model available. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm , and I file this report. I will have some ham, potato, vegetable, and ice tea for dinner in a little while. Well have a good day, and enjoy yourselves. CIO

Note:<888>10/15/98 Thursday 3:45 A.M. EDT: I sifted through my email. I don't think there is that much internet news from this viewpoint, but one never knows. I heard some noise outside about an hour ago like a truck or something. I suppose when one lives in a quiet environment, one can even hear a pin drop. It is not really that quiet, since the typing makes noise, the old air purifier hums, the air conditioner fan runs, the computer fan runs, the refrigerator compressor cuts in and out, the Jamaican Aluminum studs in the building creak when the temperature changes, but the universal hum in the apartment is what I have become attuned to in my artificial apartment. Quite frankly if you want perfect quiet try living in the country in some remote location. However by urban standards it is quiet. I suppose one could look into noise cancellation, they play reverse imprint sounds to cancel out noise, however I think when one is outside, one should not wear earphones, since it is important to keep ones wits about them, in a busy environment. Too much noise in a quiet environment can be distracting too. Well I suppose we all get use to our environments. There is not really too much to report. I use to play music at night, but it kept me from thinking clearly. I suppose one could get use to the sounds of silence in other more remote parts of the world, until the weather changes. Even at night there is always a hum in the New York City area, from activity at a far distance. Well have a good evening, and give my best to the Swiss delegation as they look into other perspectives in the area. Bon Soir.

CIO

Note:<888>10/15/98 Thursday 2:22 A.M. EDT: I went out about 9:30 P.M. this evening for an evening stroll. I parked downtown and walked around the lower area of Greenwich Avenue. There was a new restaurant "Inferno" opening across the street from the railroad station movie theatre. They have wood fired pizza. I noticed about ten people in the restaurant with white chefs hats. It was not very busy downtown. I noticed that "Inferno" has what looks like a Salt Water Aquarium in it, with white coral and I saw a small white fish in it. I returned to the post office area and had a small cigar. I noticed Starbucks was closing for the evening. Coffee is suppose to be going up in price. I sat in front of the senior center and noticed some local theatre players moving props. I walked to the top of Greenwich Avenue, and noticed a fellow on a bicycle coming from the Laundromat at the Grand Union with his laundry. I noticed two young fellows walking a Corgi dog. I walked down the Avenue, and I noticed a few other walkers mostly medical and hospital staff walking back and forth to the local hospital. I also chatted with the movie theatre manager across from the Sunoco station. I enjoyed the quiet cool evening air, and it did not seem too damp on my arthritis. I noticed a few young strollers coming back and forth to work. I drove down on Steamboat Road and observed the stars on a clear cool evening. I noticed a couple of houses on the water lit up like Christmas Trees. Other homes were darkened. I noticed a few lights twinkling across the way on Long Island. I noticed fishermen have been leaving blue fish remains on the dock. I suppose the sea gulls will retrieve them. I chatted with two young fishermen that showed up about the Blue Fish I use to catch out by the U.S. Navy Base Quonset Hut on Nantucket by Lyon Road on the Road to Sconset. I remember in October I once caught about 28 Blue Fish and 2 Bass with a fisherman from Blue Eyed, Missouri. I suppose with wind erosion, the shore has changed that beach front a bit. The Quonset Hut was tagged with the usual United States Department of Defense Sticker not to enter or disturb. From experience if the United States Department of Defense tags a piece of property not to be disturbed or not to enter or trespass, I would respect that warning. Also in that particular area one would have to watch out for deer tick which might carry Lyme disease. After surveying the stars on Steamboat Road, I returned to the center of town and took a short walk around the Dome restaurant which was empty. I noticed earlier they are still working on the sewer construction on Mason Street. I suppose that causes traffic problems in the day time. I did not see much else to report. I noticed the shops have the usual fall window displays. I drove down by the Greenwich Harbor Inn, and used the restroom. The usual night desk attendant was working. I gave her a quick summary of my viewpoint of local events. I noticed an assortment of visiting license plates in the parking lot. There are no visiting marine yachts that I noticed since it is cooler this time of year. I drove back down Steamboat Road, and heard a yacht club employee driving behind me yell at me for driving too slowly. I advise people when driving on Steamboat Road to drive slowly, since families do live on Steamboat Road along with employees of various operations. I suppose if the local users of the road in the community don't respect a slow speed limit, we could close it off and restrict it to residents and employees; as they have done various times in the past. Anything is possible. I have to remind you the Greenwich Times is not the legal authority in Greenwich. Steamboat Road have various private addresses, and like any area association if the taxpayers on the road wanted to maintain a security box, they probably could; like many other private roads in town. It would be somewhat confusing, but the legal president is already set. I returned home and had a English Corona Cigar that I bought for about a $1 earlier in the month. I hope I did not disturb any of my neighbors with cigar smoke, since I don't think this time of year anyone would be sleeping with their windows open. I noticed on the grass behind the front entry way wall, somebody has left a ladder which could be used to scale to the second story. I suppose some clever maintenance man left it there. I came upstairs and thought for a while and then filed this report. As far as I can tell, it is a usual quiet fall evening in Greenwich, Connecticut USA. CIO

Note:<888>10/31/98 Saturday 11:55 A.M. EST: I was thinking about the ABC news report last night that there was a record harvest of grain out in Midwest this year, the second best this century. They showed large piles of grain particularly corn, they are afraid will go to waste, since the Russians can't afford to buy our grain stockpiles to feed to their livestock. I was thinking what they don't need, we might try feeding to our livestock, or better yet using it to make corn whiskey or other grain alcohols, which would last for a long time and supposedly only get better after aging, so I advise the farmers in the Midwest not to waste all that excess corn and grain, and to get to work fermenting it into good old fashion corn liquor or what ever modern day equivalent might be useful in the future. No point in letting all the corn and grain go to ruin, and I am sure it won't hurt to fatten up the livestock also. Well those are my thought for the day. CIO

Note:<888>10/31/98 Saturday 11:15 A.M. EST: I went downtown about 8 A.M.. I stopped by St. Moritz bakery and bought a croissant for $1. I went down by the harbor on Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor and the weather is very nice today. I stopped by the hospital thrift shop and viewed the merchandise. They have a nice wooden chest mirror in the back room. I went by Peabody's and told them, my friend was not looking for a used car. I went by Putnam Trust Bank of New York and withdrew funds to pay my bills. I drove down to the Greenwich Avenue Post Office, and paid last month's electricity bill, and last month's cablevision bill, and this month's MCI bill, and this month's GEICO insurance bill. I also purchased 20 Yellow Rose stamps for $6.40, and the four money orders were .85 apiece for $3.40. I stopped by the lower avenue newsstand, and bought three, three packs of buy two get one free of camel lights for $17.70. I will have to quit smoking sometime soon, but the reality the largest taxpayer in town is Fortune Brands, the old Duke tobacco, is the largest tax payer in town, along with U.S. Tobacco is another major taxpayer in town, and U.S. Tobacco money is paying for the new Peterson addition to the Greenwich Library, plus a members of the Reynolds family are long term residents and philanthropists in Greenwich, so we can't pretend that tobacco does not exist in Greenwich, plus I believe the president of Phillip Morris lives here, all much to our ill health. I returned home, and smoked a white owl panatela. I had some ramen noodles, soy sauce, and ice

tea. I filed this report, and I will go to bed shortly. CIO

Note:<888>10/31/98 Saturday 7:45 A.M. EST: Happy Halloween. I redesigned the download.htm Downloadable directory "scott004.zip" with rearranged audio.htm, news.htm, quotes.htm, search.htm, adding ibmfreq.htm, and slightly changing the format of a.htm thru z.htm . Well time to upload the changes. I will go out for a little this morning, after I upload the changes. CIO

Note:<888>10/30/98 Friday 11:30 P.M. EST:THE TIMES: WEEKEND, Prince Charles 50th Birthday CIO

Note:<888>10/30/98 Friday 10:25 P.M. EST: Memento Mori, California Earthquake Seismograph CIO

Note:<888>10/30/98 Friday 9:55 P.M. EST: I slept until about 5 P.M.. I had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I had a guest arrive at 6:30 P.M. He just bought a used 1988 Saab 900 moss green with 87,000 miles for $4,500 at a used Saab dealership in Fairfield, Ct. that specializes in selling used Saabs. It is a very clean car in Mint condition, and he hopes to have it over a 150,000 miles. He is very pleased with it. We went out for a test drive about 7:30 and I returned at 8:30 P.M.. I went out after he left and dropped off an old electrolux vacuum cleaner at the Hospital Thrift Shop without the hoses, I found by our dumpster. I walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. My right knee has a bit of arthritis, so I am not walking very much. I returned home and updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which did very well today. I filed this report, well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>10/30/98 Friday 9:30 A.M. EST: I edited the file in download.htm , favorite.zip to take out redundant folders, and make it neater. CIO

Note:<888>10/30/98 Friday 7:35 A.M. EST: I slept from 3 A.M. to 5:30 A.M.. For all you Wall Street Guru types out there, try "Finance, New Links" 139.htm , in my directory to see what I added recently in the Finance area. Well I am surfing through them myself to see what I collected. CIO

Note:<888>10/30/98 Friday 2:45 A.M. EST: I just finished a Tony's Supreme Pizza. I updated stats.htm . Well, I might check my email, and take some rest. CIO

Note:<888>10/30/98 Friday 12:45 A.M. EST: I went for a drive downtown at about 11 P.M.. I drove down Steamboat Road, and checked out the sky and weather. It looks to be clear and cool. I went to the center of town and walked around the lower area of Greenwich Avenue. I noticed a few young people coming and going from the Dome Restaurant. My right knee had a little arthritis pain while walking. I returned to Byram and bought a gallon of whole milk at Cumberland Farms for $2.79. I returned home and started making icetea.htm . I chatted with the fellow at Cumberland Farms from India along with his colleague from Poland, and I mentioned to the fellow from India that Optic Fibers had their origins with people from India. Well back to the net for the morning. CIO

Note:<888>10/29/98 Thursday 10:15 P.M. EST: I posted some of my "Mike Scott Family and Friends" family01.htm photos. CIO

Note:<888>10/29/98 Thursday 9:30 P.M. EST: Well congratulations to NASA nasa.htm and the Shuttle Crew of the successful launch of today's shuttle, I am listening to the shuttle broadcast right now. I went out this morning at 8:30 A.M.. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I went by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove downtown and bought the last pack of buy two get one free of Merit Ultra lights. I drove down by the water and surveyed the sound. I went by Peabody's to see if they have any used Volvos for a friend. I went by the Greenwich Library and chatted with a few regulars. I returned home about 11 A.M.. I chatted with my friend Chris chris.htm, on his 25th birthday. He is doing well in Germany. He is having a hard time finding a job, since he is not a German resident. He is living with his girl friend who is teaching in a kindergarten. He sounded very upbeat. I suggested to him checking out some U.S. offices that might be in the area, to see if they have any work for him. He is thinking about coming back in January to possibly continue his education. He now have his drivers license. He seems to be enjoying Germany. Well I am sure Chris will figure out something to do. I suggested to him, if he saw any signs that said "IBM", to check out and see if they have any work for him. Since Germany charged for local telephone time, and he does not have the internet, one might be able to save money in Germany with the Hughes Communications DirectX television Satellite Transceiver, but since Chris can't afford a computer that would be way over his budget. Anyway Chris is an expert skateboarder and nature enthusiast, so he might enjoy exploring other happenings in Germany. Well the NASA launch spurred the Stockmarket ahead today. Scott's Index scopor01.htm was up quite a bit today. Well have a good evening, I have to clean up, and go out for a stroll in a little while. Thumbs Up to NASA nasa.htm .

Note:<888>10/29/98 Thursday 8:25 A.M. EST: Well done with the net for the day. CIO

Note:<888>10/29/98 Thursday 6:15 A.M. EST: I wrote a birthday greetings to my friend in Germany chris.htm , and went out and mailed it at 4 A.M.. If you need postal rates for foreign mail overseas try www.usps.gov . It cost me a $1.80 for a two ounce letter via air mail to Germany. I enjoy exercising my right to prose in writing, so I enjoy writing letters. After mailing the letter, I stopped by the other main post office downtown and smoked a White Owl Panatela cigar and enjoyed viewing the night sky. I mentioned to one early morning walker, that the old viewpoint "That There Will Always Be An England Providing The Ravens Remain In The Tower Of London" is still my main viewpoint. After walking the lower part of Greenwich Avenue, I sat in front of the Senior Center for a while. I mentioned to another regular morning walker, I had heard from our mutual acquaintance in Germany. They are still for the last several weeks working on the sewer project on Mason Street again, and have a temporary pipe setup along lower Greenwich and Railroad Avenues to divert the sewage. Let's hope it does not overflow into the harbor again this time. I drove down via Steamboat Road pier, and it was a perfectly calm and quiet night without a ripple on Long Island Sound. It looked perfect for walking on water, which is suppose to be an old Indian Vicar Trick, but I did not feel like trying it. Well after viewing the stars in the clearing skies, I surmised it might be a nice day today. I stopped by the Greenwich Harbor Inn and said "Good Morning" to the regular night clerk. They had fans going to dry off the carpet, they had just cleaned. I returned home and had some Ramen noodles, and made a cup of regular coffee and sat down to the computer to file this report. I will have to go out briefly this morning, about 8:30 A.M.. Well have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>10/29/98 Thursday 1:35 A.M. EST: I went to bed yesterday morning at about 8 A.M.. Around 3 P.M. yesterday afternoon, a friend called from Rosrath, Germany where he is living with his girlfriend Inga. I put up a page of the friend Chris Parizo chris.htm , since today is his 25th birthday. The photos were taken about a year ago before he departed Greenwich for Florida and then onto Germany. He told me that while visiting Florida this summer he drove down to Key West with Inga to see what it was like for a day. From my experience it takes more than a day to enjoy Key West. Well the Chris we all knew around Greenwich takes great pride in having a birthday near Halloween, and he is probably getting ready to celebrate Halloween. Any of his friends thinking of calling him, I was advised by MCI, it is $1.25 a minute all the time to call Germany. Chris told me he drew a comic book with Bill Clinton in it pushing the Nuclear button. I reassured him it was not quite that bad over here, and it was pretty dang quiet from my perspective. He sounds his usual upbeat self, and he is still tutoring in Germany. I suppose they have had a few extra Crows show up in the area, but they seem to follow him around for some peculiar reason, like the Ravens Never Leaving the Tower of London. Well for any of Chris' deja vue friends, he seems to be alive and well and doing well. I will write him a letter shortly. He does not have access to the internet, but his girl friend's brother has access to it. Well try to stay in touch with Chris, and at least send him a post card. In other news I went back to sleep until about 8 P.M.. I had breakfast earlier at 4 P.M. of GU raisin bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. After I cleaned up, I went out in the rain about 9 P.M.. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue twice, and the entire length also. I chatted with a young couple about Florence, Italy 26 years ago. They told me somebody was singing opera in DaVinci's Restaurant. I returned home and posted Chris's page chris.htm . I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well back to the old computer to write a letter, and do some net work. CIO

Note:<888>10/28/98 Wednesday 6:15 A.M. EST: I had a little down time and I read the last two months of the Greenwich Post, and I noticed a mention on my site by Log On with Larry , from his site at Accent on Computers . I linked his site from my homepage and also the Greenwich homepage greenw.htm. Sorry to be so late in noticing, but if you read my notes for the last two months, I have been lost in Tropical Weather weather.htm along with the final update of the directory download.htm , which does have the "favorite.zip" file I am still working on. I had a White Owl panatela at 4 A.M., and I might take a morning cruise shortly. CIO

Note:<888>10/28/98 Wednesday 2:45 A.M. EST: Queen Elizabeth II Cunard 1999 Cruise Around the World CIO

Note:<888>10/28/98 Wednesday 2:10 A.M. EST: I have been a bit of routine work. I added a few links to ukradio.htm . CIO

Note:<888>10/27/98 Tuesday 10:45 P.M. EST: I went out at 6 P.M. and stopped by CVS. I bought coconut shampoo and conditioner for $1.49, CVS Fluoride Gel toothpaste $1.39, Edge gel shaving cream $1.99, and two five packs of White Owl Panatelas $2.99 plus Connecticut sales tax .47 for a total of $8.23. I then went by the Greenwich Library and read the usual three computer weeklies. I went down by Steamboat Road, and noticed the large house to the east of the pier was lit up for the first time in about three years. I returned to the lower part of Greenwich Avenue and walked the lower area, and chatted with some locals. I had a White Owl panatela at the post office. I walked the lower avenue again. I returned home about 9:45 P.M.. I broiled a boneless shell steak, steamed green beans and broccoli, nuked a potato, along with ice tea and cappuccino. I updated this report. The weather is mid to lower 50s. The skies are overcast, so it is not time for the harvest moon yet. One of the locals enquired about vacations to the Caribbean, and I told him what I knew from years ago. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>10/27/98 Tuesday 5:50 P.M. EST: I was up until 8 A.M. this morning reading computer tech. I went to bed from 8 A.M. to 4 P.M.. I had breakfast of scrambled eggs, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I have a NASA Shuttle page with all the NASA links nasa.htm . I will shower shortly, and go to the library to return the Bush books and do some tech reading. Have an enjoyable evening. CIO

Note:<888>10/27/98 Tuesday 4:30 A.M. EST: If you want a free subscription to Subscribing to Internet World Magazine , use this link and use the Priority Code "RQW298". I just finished having a Tony's Pizza. All quiet on the Eastern Front. CIO

Note:<888>10/27/98 Tuesday 3:40 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's Broadcast sound.htm . CIO

Note:<888>10/27/98 Tuesday 2:05 A.M. EST: I finished laundry, it might be time for a Tony's Pizza soon. It is slightly overcast and gloomy out, perfect weather for upcoming Halloween night. Anyone's birthday coming up soon should probably wear lots of garlic to ward off evil spirits. Well not much happening this side of the Fish Pond. Well at least I am rested. If you are tired of reading news on the internet, you could always listen to music.htm for a change of pace. CIO

Note:<888>10/27/98 Tuesday 12:15 A.M. EST: I relax until about 8 A.M. Monday morning thinking out loud about various different plot scripts. I went to bed and awoke about 6 P.M. and had breakfast of Raisin Brand, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I went back to bed and awoke at 11 P.M.. I showered and started my laundry. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well time for a quiet morning. CIO

Note:<888>10/25/98 Sunday 9:15 P.M. EST: I went downtown about 6 P.M. after having some Ramen noodles and Soy Sauce. I walked around downtown and for about two hours for a little fresh air. I bought a three pack of buy two get one free of Merit Ultimas Lites for $6. I chatted with a few locals around town. It feels good to get a little exercise on the warmer evenings. There were still quite a few people out on a Sunday evening. Reading the News Stories about the Russians shutting down the cities in Siberia and the artic and letting the tens of millions there relocate for the winter, got me to thinking. Since the ice breakers are not working and there is not enough fuel. I suppose the Russians had to let their entire fleet go to sea, since no sane naval officer would leave his fleet bottled up. Thus local coast watchers around the world will have to keep a sharp eye out for the Russian armada. I was wondering if the have any ships named "Black Eagle". Also it will be interesting to see what tourist destinations they choose on their cruises during the colder weather. Of course this is all conjecture based on deductive reasoning, but it would seem logical if the frozen north of Russia were going to be blocked in indefinitely for the whole winter, they would move the fleet to warmer waters and cruise. Let's wait and see what happens. I had a Garcia Vega lite Cavendish whiff in front of the post office. I chatted with one German Shepard walker about interesting dogs I have walked. I left downtown about 8 P.M. and drove down Steamboat Road and the kids were out fishing. I stopped by the Food Emporium on the way home, and bought a gallon of goldfish crackers for $4.99, a half gallon of Tropicana Orange Juice for $1.79, a five pound bag of Jack Frost sugar for $1.69 for a total of $8.47. I noticed the Food Emporium butcher now sells aged beef. He also told me that they buy bluefish that is caught locally and that bluefish is more expensive than Salmon. I told him that my landlady in Nantucket used to cook deboned whole bluefish filled with Hellmann's mayonnaise and fresh dill at about 350 degrees for as I recall about 40 minutes wrapped in aluminum foil. The mayonnaise would remove some of the oily taste, and the fresh dill added a little flavor. I also told him I heard about somebody in Tennessee whom I believe soaked whole Christmas hams in Jack Daniels and slow smoked them with hickory wood for an enjoyable treat. I also told him Smithfield Smoked Hams like they serve in the Sir Walter Raleigh Tavern in Williamsburg are very good eating hams. I also told him about the hickory smoked barbeque we use to enjoy on the north side of Decatur, Alabama before we moved here in 1961. Thus real hickory smoked barbeque is quite an enjoyable treat alternative to Texas Mesquite smoked barbeque. I must be getting hungry since I have not eaten much since midnight when I started today, maybe I will have another bowl of Ramen noodles and soy sauce. I have plenty of food, I am just trying to watch my weight, since as winter sets in one tends to get more sedentary, and put on weight anyway. Well it was a very enjoyable day, and remember a lot of the original NASA group at the Redstone Arsenal in the old days use to enjoy eating lots of hickory smoked pork and chicken at the barbeque place outside of Decatur, Alabama. You can't drink alcohol there, since it is a dry county. One thing Yankees have not been able to copy, since they don't have lots of hickory wood; but they have tried. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>10/25/98 Sunday 4:15 P.M. EST: I slept from 8 A.M. to 10 A.M.. I chatted with a family member. I went downtown at 10 A.M.. I stopped by CVS and bought four Garcia Vega English Corona cigars for $3.99. I drove down by the harbor on Steamboat Road and quite a few people were there. I drove over to Tod's Point and walked the entire perimeter of Tod's Point 3 miles. There was a large crowd there enjoying the warm day. I stopped by Stables on the way back and toured the store. I drove down Greenwich Avenue, and it was packed full of people. I went by the Greenwich Library and it was also packed full of people. I drove down by Steamboat Road and it was still busy. I drove by Grass Island and viewed the blue horizon with a few clouds. I noticed the 23rd Canadian License Plate I have seen since I returned from Canada 15 years ago. It was a beautiful day, but I am a little tired, so I will go to bed shortly. CIO

Note:<888>10/25/98 Sunday 7:20 A.M. EST: I went out at 4 A.M.. There was one fisherman down on Steamboat Road with a Scottsdale GMC. He had caught one blue fish. I checked out the skyline, and it looks like another clear day. I picked up a discarded Macintosh Two Page Monochrome monitor at the Indian Harbor Yacht Club dumping area, and dropped it off at the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I walked the lower area of Greenwich Avenue. I had a Diego Garcia Cavendish Whiff at the Post Office Bench. I returned home and read four computer publications. It is cooler out, and I will be avoiding spending much time out in the cooler weather because my arthritis tends to bother me when I am outside for more than a half hour. Well enjoy your morning. I am having Ramen noodles with Soy Sauce shortly. CIO

Note:<888>10/25/98 Sunday 3:40 A.M. EST:NRL Satellite Photo
gms_images/trop_vis/LATEST.jpeg gms Honk Kong Typhoon Photo. CIO

Note:<888>10/25/98 Sunday 3:35 A.M. EST: Deadly Volcano Erupts On Japan's Hokkaido CIO

Note:<888>10/25/98 Sunday 3:25 A.M. EST: I went back to bed until midnight. I awoke and had a broiled steak, broccoli, potato, ice tea, and cappuccino for a late dinner. I watered the plants and cleaned the apartment. My computer automatically set the clock back an hour for ending daylight savings time. I reset the other time pieces in the apartment. I was thinking this morning that any New York State or National Politicians seeking office should check out the Valhalla Dam in Valhalla, New York to see how the masonry is holding up after all these years. Well I have done my Sunday chores. I will do laundry tomorrow morning probably, and I still have two jugs of ice tea. I have cleaned up, and, I might go out for a stroll in a little while. It is warm and comfortable in the apartment. It is about 73 degrees F.. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>10/24/98 Saturday 8:00 P.M. EDT: Well I rested a bit from 9 A.M. to 6 P.M.. I awoke and had breakfast of scrambled eggs, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I did a little bit of internet work. I checked out on a family member. Well I will clean up, and go out in a little while. CIO

Note:<888>10/24/98 Saturday 7:15 A.M. EDT: AltaVista Discovery CIO

Note:<888>10/24/98 Saturday 6:15 A.M. EDT: I took a couple of cat naps through out the night and morning. I think Hurricane Mitch bears watching. I chatted with Marriott's 800 reservation number and they said it is suppose to be 80 degrees out in Omaha, Nebraska for the next five days. I guess the weather patterns with El Nina are still playing havoc with the regular weather patterns. I might shower and go out sometime this morning, after I sift through my email. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>10/23/98 Friday 10:00 P.M. EDT: I was went to bed about 8 A.M. this morning. I was awoken about 2 P.M. by a telemarketer call offering me a free trip to Somalia. I was awoken again about 4 P.M. by a friend who had car trouble up in Norwalk. I left at 4:30 P.M. and by the time I got up to exit 40 in Norwalk on the Merritt Parkway, it took about an hour arriving about 5:30 P.M.. Apparently my friend's Volvo which is a 1977 Yellow Volvo 244 DL with about 130,000 miles was having trouble with the thermostat, and it was leaking coolant. Also he had been having trouble with the timing. He had done a tune-up himself and might have messed up on installing a spark plug or cap and rotor. Anyway since he has a second car, and he does not feel like putting any more money into the 1977 Yellow Volvo, he decided to have it towed to La Joy's Junk yard in South Norwalk. He transferred the cars contents to my car. He left the car at the Shell Station on the Northwest corner of Exit 40 on the Merritt Parkway, at old Route 7, not the new Route 7. I suppose some enterprising mechanic could get it from him for next to nothing. He still owns it until he signs the title over for it. He had put in about $3,000 into the car over the last five years and 80,000 miles he drove the car. He wishes he had bought the used Volvo at Peabody's a month ago. After I dropped him off at his room in Redding, I drove down Route 58. I noticed a beautiful farm stand with lots of pumpkins and other fall harvest products on the east side of Route 58 halfway down from Redding to the Merritt Parkway. About 3/4 ths of the way down from Redding to the Merritt Parkway, I saw a for sale sign in the window of about a Yellow 1985 Volvo Wagon with 102,000 miles for at a garage on the west side of the road, several miles north of the parkway. I got on the Merritt Parkway and took Route 102 South from New Canaan to CompUSA in Norwalk. They have a large inventory of Clearance Items particularly CPUs and Monitors. I noticed a HP 15 inch monitor for $99, IBM Aptiva 15 inch monitors $129, IBM Aptiva 17" Monitor for $249, however these clearance items are not that good of a price, since you can't return them if something is wrong. I also noticed CompUSA sells a new 17 inch monitor of their own brand name for $299. There was not much new that I saw. I chatted with a few customers and employees. I returned back to Greenwich. The whole trip on Friday afternoon and evening the highways on the Merritt Parkway and I 95 and US 1 were like Mad Max in traffic. I put $13.30 of premium in my car at the Exxon station next to the library. I gave directions to a fellow from Philadelphia on how to find King Street, he was driving a GMC with a diamond stud in his left ear. I went into the Grand Union and bough two Shell Steaks at $2.99 a pound for $4.54, a half gallon of GU whole milk for $1.78, four Tony's Supreme Pizzas at $3 apiece for $11.98 for a total $18.30. I told the Express checker from Russia about the Moscow choir that was here last Friday night at the Second Congregational Church. I returned home and cooked a Tony's Supreme Pizza and ate it with ice tea, and just finished a cup of Cappuccino. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I will clean up shortly and try to relax for a while. Good evening. CIO

Note:<888>10/23/98 Friday 5:30 A.M. EDT: When I saw the volcanic like clouds for the last month, I thought this volcano had erupted initially, which would definitely make it colder Baitoushan, China/Korea border, Mainland Asia . CIO

Note:<888>10/23/98 Friday 4:20 A.M. EDT: If you thought Greenwich, Connecticut is expensive; check out what those Norwegian Rats are up to Expedia - Travel News . CIO

Note:<888>10/23/98 Friday 2:00 A.M. EDT: Heritage: Hubble Heritage Project: Imaging . I went to bed at 9 A.M. yesterday morning and awoke at 1 P.M.. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove down by the harbor and studied the horizon. I have noticed for the last month that the typical cloud formations are different for this area, and since there is no news of major events; I think it is safe to assume that the different cloud formations are caused by the El Nina weather pattern. They look like Smokey Cumulus Clouds like one would see after a major volcanic eruption, but they also look like snow clouds with a lots of moisture. Thus when it gets colder sooner, there might be quite a bit of snow. I have seen individuals from the colder north country showing up in the area, like they are expecting a colder winter. Since the U.S. Government spends $50 billion a year on weather information, it would be interesting to find a long term weather forecast, but I have not found one. The cloud formations look like what one sees when you drive through the upper Midwest and northwest. It is really hard to tell. I advised one local to worry if you see arctic Snow Geese showing up in our local parks. Last time I saw an arctic snow goose in this area, we had 14 snowfalls that winter including one 4.5 foot snowfall, but that was the year after Mount Penatobo erupted. Maybe I have been looking at the computer so long, I have forgotten the usual weather patterns, but for all I know nobody else seems to be noticing any change in the normal cloud formation weather patterns. I remember in the reports after a major volcanic eruption, the volcanic clouds have an orange tinge, but as far as the reports on the internet; there are no reports of any major volcanic activity. I suppose I could go out to an airport and gossip with some pilots they might know something. Well for now, we have to accept the status quo as far the weather is concerned. Today I went by the library also and read PC Week and the local newspaper. I chatted with a local ornithologist about certain phenomena in the area. I think maybe since I am so focused on technology, I might be missing out on something that might be reported in National Geographic or Smithsonian or Audubon magazine. Well it is hard to tell, and one can't read all sources of information. I returned home and a guest came by to visit for a short spell. I chatted until about 7 P.M. and went to bed until midnight. I got up and had a Tony's supreme pizza, ice tea, and cappuccino. I will do a little internet work. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm , and I will probably be on a night schedule for a while depending on my sleeping pattern. CIO

Note:<888>10/22/98 Thursday 1:00 A.M. EDT: Nelson Rockefeller Gallery in San Antonio, Texas What's New in San Antonio! . Storm Relief 4 San Antonio , News 4 San Antonio , Prime Time Newspapers , San Antonio Express-News , San Antonio Express-News: News to You, breaking news , Street Closures , TransGuide: Incident Map , well I have not heard any news out of San Antonio since Saturday. CIO

Note:<888>10/22/98 Thursday 12:05 A.M. EDT: I was up until about 8 A.M. this past morning. I received a phone call about 8 A.M. and chatted. I rested until about 2:30 P.M.. I had breakfast of Grand Union raisin bran, toast, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice, and cappuccino. I went back to bed until about 5 P.M.. I went out about 6:30 P.M.. I stopped by Zyns and bought six, three packs of buy two get one free of Merit Ultra Lites and Merits Ultimas for $36. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. I chatted with a few of the Avenue locals. I went by the library and read the Greenwich Times and the two computer weeklies. I mentioned to the music librarian that the University of California at Santa Cruz has a large audio archive, and I believe a local radio station has a million record archive. I checked out a book "The Mafia, CIA & George Bush" by Pete Brewton, which I probably won't have time to read. It is probably one of those books written when George Bush use to frequent the Palm Beach Bath and Tennis Club and was very tanned, and everyone perceived him to be a tanned Hispanic, and nobody seemed to recognize him. I guess people whom go south and tan darkly have a hard time being recognized by pale people whom only visit for a week or two. I believe in Florida, they call them Cammelians. After going to the library I drove down on Steamboat Road and chatted with two local fishermen. One was from the Spanish Portuguese border area, and he had worked on a fishing boat off of Newfoundland. I chatted with him briefly about traveling through Spain and the Canary Islands. I noticed a group of "Old Guard" seniors were having a meeting in the east room of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. I suppose they were plotting "Americas Cup Strategy". I noticed one youth come down by the waterfront to observe the horizon. Many people whom live and work around the waterfront, like surveying the horizon in the evening or night, like navigators. The clouds were covering the sky until about 10 P.M., but right now it is clear out. I returned home and I broiled a boneless center cut pork chop about 1 1/4 inch thick, I did one side six minutes with garlic powder and pepper on that side, and on the other side I put the same garlic powder and pepper, and added Bournier French mustard and chopped garlic for seven minutes, and I also had steamed broccoli, and baked potatoes along with ice tea. I made another cup of cappuccino and went outside in the cool evening air and drank it along with smoking a Garcia and Vega Cavendish whiff. I came back inside to the warmth about 73 degrees inside, and updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . It was a good day for Microsoft and IBM, but the overall portfolio did not do much. Well back to net. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>11/07/98 Saturday 3:00 P.M. EST: I ran maintenance wizard until 3 A.M.. I was up at 11 A.M.. I had a mozzarella omelet, toast, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice for breakfast, and cappuccino. I watched the landing of the NASA Shuttle nasa.htm, and I freed up some disk space on my computer. I have 125 megs in the C: drive, and 200 megs in the D: drive, but with the 160 meg. swapper in the D: drive, I only have about 20 megs left. I ran maintenance wizard again. I am just about to make a complete backup of the system. I watched the astronaut interview after they came out. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>11/07/98 Saturday 1:15 A.M. EST: I just finished converting Scott's Internet Hotlist Downloadable Directory into Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 or 5.0 Favorites Format. Here is the link:

Scott's Internet Hotlist in Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 or 5.0 Favorites Format, 60,920 Working Proofed File Links in 289 Folders "scottie1.zip", 11/07/98, 17,086,742 Bytes Zipped, and 249,290,752 Bytes Unzipped Into "C:\Windows\Favorites", When Using Windows 98 in FAT 32 Partition, Much Larger in Fat 16. One Needs To Use WinZip7.0 To Extract "scottie1.zip", and I Have 64 Megs Memory on My System, Good Luck and Enjoy. One Probably Needs a Higher Powered System to Use It. It Works Fine On My 233/MMX with 64 Megs Memory and Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0. It Takes Up 250 Megs When Extracted On a Microsoft Windows 98 Fat 32 Partitioned Drive And Probably Three Times More On A Fat16 Partition. I Proofed All The Links With Left Side Software - Link Sweeper . I Have About 13,500 Links That Are Supposedly Bad, I Did Not Include In This File Group, Which I Might Include Some Of Later, Once I Have More Time To Proof Them More Thoroughly. Remember To Use WinZip7.0 To Extract The File, and Make Sure You Have Enough Memory. Thus The Other Directory "scott004.zip" Has About 75,000 Links Including The 13,500 Bad Links. I Also Included 1,700 More Recent Links, Collected In The Last Six Month. I Had To Delete Some

Sound Files From The Servers, and I Only Have 2.2 Megs of Disk Space Free on Each 50 Meg. Server. I Also Am Just About Out Of Hard Disk Space On My Computer, So I Will Some How Have To Free UP Disk Space. Well I Am Pretty Well Bushed, So I Am Going To Bed Shortly. Have A Good Morning. CIO

Note:<888>11/05/98 Thursday 12:35 A.M. EST: I was up at 6 A.M. this morning, probably because relatives in Florida were also awoken by the remains of Hurricane Mitch coming through their community. I received a call it was pretty rainy on the east coast of mid Florida this morning. I imported Scott's Internet Hotlist into the Netscape bookmark format and edited it, and then posted it at download.htm . It is the same number of links, for using with Netscape. This is the note I posted with it.

Scott's Internet Hotlist in Netscape Bookmark format "scotnet1.zip" 1,378,832 bytes, 63,000 links in 141 categories, 11/05/98, file is "bookmark.htm" for opening in Netscape Web Brower, I advise not installing Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 or 5.0 with this file installed in Netscape, or it will take many hours to import Netscape bookmarks into Microsoft Internet Explorer, save this bookmark and delete it before installing Microsoft Internet Explorer or running MS Internet Explorer 5.0 repair option, and then reopen it in Netscape. The links are not all proofed, but most work.

I will use a web utility to convert it into Microsoft Internet Explorer Favorites, if I have enough disk space, and then use Left Side Software - Link Sweeper to proof the links, and add the existing favorite.zip to the larger file, and if I have enough room on the servers, post a *.zip of Scott's Internet Hotlist proofed in Microsoft Internet Explorer Favorites format. Well lets see how it goes. I just had a mozzarella omelet, toast, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice, and cappuccino for a late breakfast. I have a 3 P.M. appointment today. CIO

Note:<888>11/05/98 Thursday 1:05 A.M. EST: The Florida Keys & Key West: News Flash Former President Bush Catches Fish in Keys. CIO

Note:<888>11/05/98 Thursday 12:50 A.M. EST: I updated favorite.zip which is linked from download.htm . I basically proofed the links with Left Side Software - Link Sweeper . I also reorganized the links a bit, and I use Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 feature of alphabetizing the links one category at a time, I think it should do this automatically. Well have a good night. I am a bit bushed. CIO

Note:<888>11/04/98 Wednesday 9:15 P.M. EST: I went downtown at 5:30 P.M. after starting a complete backup. I stopped by the library and chatted with a few regulars. I read the three weekly computer newsweeklies I usually read. I also read the Greenwich Times, they are having a recount in the tax collectors race, which was a close vote. I drove by CVS and bought a pack of black licorice for $1.05. I drove down on Steamboat Road and checked out the Radio Frequencies on my Marine Band Radio, and there was no response on any frequencies. The first 10 stations are NOAA weather stations. Station one is the only frequency that works that brings in the NOAA weather, which I am primarily concerned with. I will test the other frequencies in the day time some time soon. I returned home about 8 P.M. and completed the backup of the system. I will have a bite to eat shortly. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>11/04/98 Wednesday 4:30 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm , once again the total amount changed versus the arithmetic in the difference between the previous day don't match by a substantial amount. I will do some system maintenance and backup now. CIO

Note:<888>11/04/98 Wednesday 4:00 P.M. EST: I listened to the NASA Space Shuttle nasa.htm while resting until noon. I then downloaded the Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 beta and all its components until just now. It is available from Microsoft Windows Update if you use Windows 98. It took about 2 hours to download the entire suite of software. It all seems to be running fine. I am just doing some routine work. CIO

Note:<888>11/04/98 Wednesday 8:55 A.M. EST: Ask An Astronaut: John Glenn CIO

Note:<888>11/04/98 Wednesday 8:00 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's Weekly Broadcast sound.htm . CIO

Note:<888>11/04/98 Wednesday 7:00 A.M. EST: I updated stats.htm . CIO

Note:<888>11/04/98 Wednesday 6:35 A.M. EST: Niguaguan Volcano Email Address mailto:wil@ibw.com.ni CIO

```
{\rtf1\ansi\ansicpg1252\deff0\deflang1033{\fonttbl {\f0\fswiss\fcharset0 Arial;}} {\colortbl ;\red128\green0\blue0;} \uc1\pard\cf1\ulnone\f0\fs20 +++++\par \par Date: Mon, 02 Nov 1998 01:05:27\par To: VOLCANO@ASUVM.INRE.ASU.EDU\par From: Wilfried Strauch\par \par Report to Volcano Network, Managua, Sunday, 01 of November, 1998\par
===== \par \par Nicaragua suffers the worst natural disaster since the 1972 Managua earthquake.\par Heavy rain, inundations and mud avalanches cause widespread destruction,\par during the last week.\par A mud avalanche at Casitas volcano killed 1000 people, on Friday.\par ----- \par \par Heavy rainfalls related to Hurricane Mitch and lasting more than one week,\par have caused inundations of large parts of Central and North-Western\par Nicaragua. Rivers destroyed several important bridges, the Pan-American Highway\par between Honduras/El Salvador and Nicaragua is interrupted at many places.\par About 200 people were reported being killed in the floods, in their\par collapsed houses or in minor mud flows.\par \par Traffic between Managua and the northern and northwestern\par departments, as Matagalpa, Esteli, Jinotega, Leon, Chinandega is interrupted.\par Many of the isolated places suffer shortages of food. At several places people\par had to seek salvation on their roofs or on trees as the water level increased\par very fast. Tens of thousands lost their homes. Dramatic rescue operations\par took place as for instance in Malacatoya where a group of people was\par saved by a ship, coming from Granada city. Malacatoya river had raised its\par level by more than 15 m, the highways were over flooded and destroyed.\par \par At some places the landscape changed completely - rivers broadened their\par bed, or united themselves with other rivers, as occurred in the area of\par Sebaco. New lakes were formed and mountains were washed away, collapsed and\par disappeared. Crops were largely destroyed.\par \par Helicopter based rescue operations of the Nicaraguan Army were possible\par since yesterday when the meteorological conditions improved.\par \par Only today the dimension of a mud avalanche became clear which occurred\par already on Friday afternoon at Casitas volcano. The mud covered an area of\par about 20 km length and 2-3 km width, southwest of the volcano. Numerous\par villages, settlements and houses between Casitas volcano and the town of\par Posoltega were destroyed.\par \par Exact information about population density in this area do not exist\par but it is assumed that more than 1000 people, maybe even 2000,\par could have died. Today, Nicaraguan Army and Red Cross reported having\par found 400 cadavers. Rescue is very difficult because of the mud, and the rain\par continues.\par \par The Nicaraguan Government declared Natural Disaster Emergency for the\par most affected regions of the country. The main tasks for the next days are\par the rescue of people who are still in danger, helicopter transports of food\par to the isolated places and the preliminary reparation of the communication\par lines.\par Due to this extreme disaster the Nicaraguan economy has certainly\par suffered a sensitive drawback. Thus, the reparation of highways is now of extraordinary importance as the coffee harvest should begin in a few days.
```

-----

Wilfried Strauch
Geophysical Department
Instituto Nicaraguense de Estudios Territoriales
Managua, Nicaragua
tel (505)2492761 tel/fax (505)2331383 home
fax (505)2496987
email wil@ibw.com.ni

Note:<888>11/04/98 Wednesday 6:25 A.M. EST: Web White & Blue - 1998 Election Information CIO

Note:<888>11/04/98 Wednesday 5:45 A.M. EST: TechWeb Video + Audio Bill Gates Tapes. CIO

Note:<888>11/04/98 Wednesday 5:30 A.M. EST: CNN - Volcano erupts near site of Nicaraguan mudslide - November 3, 1998 . CIO

```
{\rtf1\ansi\ansicpg1252\deff0\deflang1033{\fonttbl {\f0\fswiss\fcharset0 Arial;}} {\colortbl ;\red128\green0\blue0;} \uc1\pard\cf1\u\none\f0\fs20 Date: Tue, 03 Nov 1998 21:30:08 -0800\par From: Dan Shackelford \par Subject: Cerro Negro Eruption Adds to Nicaraguan Misery... from CNN web page\par To: rwunder@mnh80033.si.edu\par Cc: JONATHAN.FINK@asu.edu, swvrc@usa.net\par \par MANAGUA, Nicaragua\par AP reports that Cerro Negro volcano began erupting Tuesday. Cerro Negro is\par located 35 km (20 miles) from Casitas Volcano, where 2,000 people were killed\par last week by massive mudslides triggered by Hurricane Mitch. This information\par came from the National Seismology Dept.\par \par According to photographs, lava flows and ash covered about 25% of Cerro\par Negro's north flank soon after the eruption began around 4 pm (2200 GMT).\par The flows appeared to have reached the volcano's base, and a vapor plume\par rose from the crater.\par \par There were no immediate reports of damage or casualties. There are villages\par on the cone's south flank but apparently none directly to the north. The\par largest nearby town, Malpaisillo, is 12 kilometers (7 1/2 miles) away.\par \par Cerro Negro last erupted 3 years ago, depositing ash as far away as the\par city of Leon, 90 km away to the west. The 1,000-meter (3,300-foot) volcano\par is one of Nicaragua's youngest and most active.\par \par Geologists from the Institute of Earth Studies in Managua discovered the\par eruption while traveling by helicopter to study the mudslide at Casitas\par volcano, thought to be inactive.\par \par danshack@ix.netcom.com\par }
```

Note:<888>11/04/98 Wednesday 5:20 A.M. EST: I went to bed at 9 P.M. last evening. I was up at 4 A.M. this morning. I had GU raisin bran, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino for breakfast. Congratulations to the Bush brothers on their republican victories in the governorships of Texas and Florida. I feel like applying for a job working for the Florida Marine Patrol, you know like "Flipper's Father". In more sobering news to add misery to misery another volcano, the major one Cerro Negro MTU Volcanoes Page - Cerro Negro, Nicaragua has started eruptive activity according to this report Volcano Adds To Central American Misery . Well I guess we are lucky to be in the warmth and safety of our homes here up north. I will do some internet work this morning, and maybe shower and go out after 9 A.M. for a brief spell. I have not read my email in several days. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>11/03/98 Tuesday 7:20 P.M. EST: I went out this morning and voted at the New Lebanon School in Byram at about 6:45 A.M. this morning. I voted republican as usual, despite a number of democratic acquaintances. I then went down to Steamboat Road and observed the waterfront. I went to the center of town and walked around the lower Greenwich Avenue area until about 8:30 A.M. in the morning. I had a Croissant at St. Moritz for a $1. I observed the train station commuters. It was a slow morning. I then went over to Old Greenwich and toured Staples and looked at their product display. I then went to Tod's Point and drove around. I chatted with a fellow with a U.S. Air Force cap from Arkansas who was walking around with his father. I mentioned that they should think about planting seed oysters in the tidal pond at Tod's Point, which might work with the fresh water supply coming through the pond now that both sides are open to the tide. The fellow with the Arkansas cap had graduated from the University of Illinois, so I told him about my father's family. I then continued on and walked around the entire length of Tod's Point about three miles on the clear cool day. My feet were hurting a bit because I was wearing a new pair of Timberlands that have not been broken in yet. I then went by the Old Greenwich thrift shop and found a bargain. I bought for $8.52 a Horizon Eclipse VHF Marine Radio GX1246S, made by Standard Communications. I then went by the Radio Shack in the Riverside shopping area, and they did not have a Marine radio antenna. I then went back to the Old Greenwich Thrift Shop, and they had not taken in a Marine Antenna. I then went by Putnam Trust in Old Greenwich and withdrew funds. I went by the Old Greenwich Marine Supply place west of Old Greenwich, and it is now run by a young Swedish fellow. I notice they are building a house next to the tidal pond there. I then went by the Radio Shack in Cos Cob and they did not have a Marine Antenna. There was a scuba diver there I recognized, and he told me I should try West Marine in Stamford. I instead headed to Royaton to Bliss Discount Marine supply underneath Palmers Supermarket. I purchased there a Shakespeare 5911 Emergency Marine Antenna which is only about a foot long with a suction cup that can fit it on the back inside window of my Volvo. It cost $37.09 I returned home and I had a Tony's Pizza for lunch. I went out and installed the Marine Radio in the Volvo. It was a fairly simple procedure mounting the holding bracket, and then connecting the positive wire to a positive terminal, and the negative wire to a ground. I mounted the Mike by drilling two small holes by the regular radio. I tested it and it works fine for bringing in the Marine Weather. It has broadcast capabilities to most of the 88 stations that are not weather reception stations. The sound comes in fine. Of course this time of year in the cold weather, there is not much traffic on the marine radio station. Standard Communications homepage is Standard Communications and this Standard Comm/Marine Products . I was told by the salesman at Bliss marine, the Marine Radio cost about $300 five years ago. It works really well. I have to find a frequency site but here are some Marine Weather sites Marine Weather Active Index Page for marineweather.com and FREQUENCY SITES . Well after installing the Marine Radio and testing it, I drove down to Steamboat Road and tried it out near the water. I heard a few people chatting along with the Channel 1 Marine Weather. I suppose in an emergency anywhere near the ocean, I could use it to summon the Coast Guard, but it is suppose to be restricted to Nautical Use. Well I now have two way communications in the car, but I am not sure whom else has a marine radio in their car, since most people probably use Cell Phones which are much more expensive. Well if the Micro Asteroid Belt in November knocks out any satellites in November I might have a backup form of communications. Well next I returned home and had a boneless center cut pork chop broiled with Dijon Mustard and garlic along with baked potato and broccoli and ice tea. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which was up quite a bit today. I then filed this report. I am tired and I think I will relax a while and then go to bed. Have a good evening. It suddenly turned cold here. CIO

Note:<888>11/03/98 Tuesday 6:20 A.M. EST: I had a Swanson's chicken pot pie for dinner last night and some Pepperidge Goldfish crackers. I watched the ABC evening news. I went to bed at 7 P.M., and I awoke at 4 A.M.. I had a mozzarella omelet for breakfast, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. I cleaned up and showered, and made my bed. I will go out at 6:45 A.M. to go over to the New Lebanon School, the Byram elementary school to vote a straight republican ticket at 7 A.M. when the polls open. I will then probably proceed down to Steamboat Road to check out the waterfront, and return to the center of town for a little while, before I come back home to work on the computer in the day time. Well have an enjoyable election day. On a small note I also noticed on Monday and Sunday while walking around downtown the Korean vegetable market just south of the Post Office is selling lots of cut flower arrangements.

However, for allergy sufferers I noticed that the cut flower arrangements have sprigs of Golden Rod, which is very high in pollen. I confirmed with one of my neighbors, and she said also while shopping at a local Pathmark, she noticed that their cut flowers also had sprigs of golden rod used in the floral arrangements. I would thus advise any allergy sufferers to avoid cut flower arrangements which have golden rod in their displays. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>11/02/98 Monday 6:30 P.M. EST: I went back out at 11 A.M. today. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York and withdrew funds. I went by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop and chose not to purchase anything. I went by the Central Greenwich Post Office and paid my Bell Atlantic telephone bill. I went across the street and got a haircut from Mike at Subway barbers for $13 plus $2 tip. I drove down by the water again. I went by the Greenwich Library and read the local paper. I surfed the internet for a while. Their connection at the library is not any faster than my home connection. I went by the ELDC thrift shop. I stopped by CVS and bought two 4 packs of 75 watt light bulbs for $1 each and a pack of black licorice for .99 plus .18 Ct. sales tax. I walked around downtown until about 5 P.M.. I noticed lots of people out and about today. I also bought an Almond Danish pastry at the St. Moritz Bakery another Swiss Enterprise in town. It was a very long day. I showed up at an appointment which is not scheduled until next week by mistake. Well not much happening today, but people enjoying the sunshiny weather. There was an article in the Greenwich Times that somebody in back country in a 40,000 square foot house has $5,000 a month electricity bills. I suppose they should watch their energy expenses. Well I also updated Scott's Index at scopor01.htm . Microsoft updated the <http://investor.msn.com> Investor Program today, and the portfolio was way off. It seemed to have misplaced about $11,001 for some odd reason. That is not the sort of exact accounting one expects out of a computer program. Well back to bed for a change, and I'll be out voting tomorrow for the Republican Party as per the status quo. CIO

Note:<888>11/02/98 Monday 10:30 A.M. EST: Well time to call it a day on the old internet machine, and go out and explore the local activity around town. Have a good day. I need to pay my telephone bill, and possibly get a hair cut if the shop is not busy. I also added more links to the Greenwich page greenw.htm .CIO

Note:<888>11/02/98 Monday 9:30 A.M. EST: I updated the Greenwich, Connecticut Thrift Shops page thrift.htm .CIO

Note:<888>11/02/98 Monday 9:20 A.M. EST: I updated the Greenwich, Connecticut page greenw.htm . CIO

Note:<888>11/02/98 Monday 8:15 A.M. EST: I went out with my morning thermos of coffee and drank it in my car down at the bottom of Steamboat Road, enjoying the bright sunrise. It was a beautiful sunrise with a couple of fishermen trying their luck. There were quite a few sea gulls out, so the fishing is probably fairly good this morning. I noticed a news helicopter flying over Belle Haven for some odd reason, which must have disturbed the neighbors there. I chatted with two of the regular fishermen. I went to the center of town, and had a White Owl panatela cigar in front of the senior center to relax. It looks to be a great day. I returned home and chatted with one of my neighbors about what is happening on the internet. She gave me two scones to eat which were very delicious. I noticed the geese, sea gulls, cormorants, and sparrows are still around. Well I will try to slow down from the cool and my coffee, and go back to reading the net news. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>11/02/98 Monday 6:05 A.M. EST: I had broiled boneless center cut pork chop, broiled on each side five minutes, and I put Dijon mustard and chopped garlic on the last side for a little extra flavor along with ground pepper and garlic powder of both sides. I also had steamed broccoli and baked potato along with ice tea. I am making regular coffee which I will take outside shortly in my thermos, and I might smoke a White Owl Panatela cigar while out this morning waiting for sunrise. I remember in the volcanic regions like the Cascades the Snowy White Owl can be like a Canary in a Coal Mine, in that as long as it remains in the woods, it does not expect volcanic activity, but once it flies the coop, so to speak, the Snowy White Owl knows when to leave the volcanic area. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>11/02/98 Monday 5:15 A.M. EST: My viewpoint is the Cascades Range "http://vulcan.wr.usgs.gov/Imgs/Gif/Projects/Deformation/Cascades/map\_volcanoes\_defm.gif" is evolving to the north, so Mount Rainier might become more active, as Mount St. Helens becomes less active, of course the time period we're talking about could be anywhere from a short period to tens of thousands of years, so this is why one needs to keep a close eye on the region, especially considering the large population in the area. Even non volcanic events, such as seismic activity could trigger major mud slides or volcanic lahars. CIO

Note:<888>11/02/98 Monday 5:05 A.M. EST:

<http://www.geophys.washington.edu/SEIS/pnw.epi.map.gif> , MOST RECENT NOTABLE EARTHQUAKE , Pacific Northwest Seismograph Network - Recent Event Catalog , OFR95-642 - History and Hazards of Mount Rainier ,

http://vulcan.wr.usgs.gov/Imgs/Gif/Rainier/rainier\_sunrise\_bw.gif , Mount Rainier - USGS OPEN-FILE REPORT 90-385 , Mount Rainier - USGS OFR90-385 - Abstract , Mount Rainier - USGS OFR90-385 - Abstract ,

http://vulcan.wr.usgs.gov/Imgs/Gif/Rainier/Maps/rainier\_rivers\_map.gif , Mount Rainier National Park , Mount Rainier, Washington, USA - IAVCEI \Decade Volcano\ - Hazards, Seismicity, and Geophysical Studies ,

<http://www.geophys.washington.edu/SEIS/PNSN/RAINIER/photo.gif> , Mount Rainier, Washington - Information , http://vulcan.wr.usgs.gov/Imgs/Gif/Rainier/rainier\_tacoma.gif , Mount Rainier - USGS OPEN-FILE REPORT 95-273 , INDEX to Cascades Volcano

Observatory, Food for thought for anyone living around Redmond, Washington or the area. CIO

Note:<888>11/02/98 Monday 4:25 A.M. EST: Mount Rainier Seismicity , Pacific Northwest (Washington and Oregon) Earthquake Information , Seismology and Earthquake Information , University of Washington Geophysics Program . CIO

Note:<888>11/02/98 Monday 4:15 A.M. EST: Volcano and Hydrologic Monitoring CIO

Note:<888>11/02/98 Monday 4:15 A.M. EST: Active and Potentially Active Volcanoes in the United States - Cascade Range , Information on Mount Shasta. CIO

Note:<888>11/02/98 Monday 3:55 A.M. EST: Well the laundry is done. Well it all goes to show, that the old professor at Lake Forest College, Professor Hantke, who always kept lecturing on Teddy Roosevelt, and Helen Williams who was Teddy's daughter's friend, must have known something about volcanology and seismology. Not to mention Teddy was involved in founding the Natural History Museum in Manhattan. For many years politicians looking at two dimensional maps always wanted to build the Panama Canal through Nicaragua, and judging from the number of volcanic ridges in Nicaragua, it seems that is was smarter to have built it in Panama. It seems the volcano activity in that area MTU Volcanoes Page - World Reference Map , and the story about Casita Volcano Nicaragua Volcano Slope 'Explodes' In Huge Mudslide , should show that dormant volcanoes can be dangerous too. I was thinking that if there was seismic activity in Lake Tahoe, what would be the run off if Lake Tahoe broke its surrounding banks in the mountains and started running out in a mud slide. What areas would be affected, and how would that event interact with other fault lines, seismic activity, and volcanic stretches in the Sierra Nevada range. At the moment, with the Lake Tahoe report, one might check into Mount Shasta a few hundred miles north in the same range. CIO

Note:<888>11/02/98 Monday 2:55 A.M. EST: I went out at 11 A.M. yesterday after relaxing a bit. I walked around the lower Greenwich Avenue area until 1 P.M.. There were lots of foreign visitors in town speaking foreign languages. They seemed to be enjoying themselves. I suppose quite a few people were out from New York City also. I went by the library and read the Sunday Greenwich Times at 1 P.M.. The library was not busy on a warm fall day. I returned home at 2 P.M. and went to bed. I awoke about midnight. I had GU raisin bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino for breakfast. I will be done with the drying cycle on the laundry in a half hour. In thinking about the record grain harvest in the Midwest this year, I suppose Archer Daniels Midland could use it for Methyl Butyl Ethanol which is used for clean burning fuel up north in the winter when mixed with gasoline. They also could use it for grain pellets for fish farming enterprises. Of course traditionally it is used for feeding livestock, and in lots of parts of the country, people whom work outside all winter enjoy drinking Kentucky Bourbon which is made from corn mash. Thus in three to five years depending on the aging process the country should have a record inventory of Bourbon, which comes in handy on cold winter evenings after one had been outside all day. If the Russians want to buy some of our grains, and don't have the hard currency, they should consider trading other raw materials such as crude oil, of which they have an abundant supply. Well I am back to the net this morning. In reading the report on the 5.3 Richer earthquake in Lake Tahoe two days ago, I am concerned that it might be a precursor quake to a larger seismic event in California. A report I read the same time from Nature magazine this month said frequently major seismic events can crush down upon the volcanic lava mantel in the earth causing a volcanic eruption to occur. CIO

Note:<888>11/01/98 Sunday 8:55 A.M. EST: I drove downtown at 6:30 A.M., and the fishermen were out in formation fishing at high tide. It was a clear crisp cool morning. I noticed the controls of high flying jets flying overhead heading west. They must be the early morning commercial flights heading to California or Chicago. Well after surveying the waterfront, I decided it will probably be a nice day. I returned to the center of town and stopped by Zyns and bought two five packs of White Owl panatela cigars for $3.49. I walked around the center of town smoking one of the White Owl panatelas. My right knee is still a little lame, so I did not walk that much. I noticed that that most of the trees still have their leaves, so we really have not had a severe frost yet. I drove by the ATM machine at Putnam Trust and withdrew funds. I went by the Exxon station and bought $11.00 of premium gasoline. I think premium gasoline is around $1.39 a gallon. I went by the Grand Union and bought a dozen jumbo eggs for $1.59, three boneless pork chops at $2.99 a pound for $4.10, two Kellogg's Raisin Bran for $2 each for $4, a head of broccoli for .99 for a total of $10.68, I then went by the Food Emporium and bought four Swanson Chicken Pot Pies with crust on top and bottom for .89 apiece, a Master Choice Four cheese pizza for $3.29, a gallon of goldfish crackers for $4.99, a can of Hadon House sardines for $1.34, Ternerine Dijon mustard for $1.99, a pound of Sorrento mozzarella cheese for $2.99 for a total of $18.16. I then returned home and put away the groceries. I think I will nuke a chicken pot pie after I file this report. I might sit back and relax and watch the morning news programs, and maybe go to bed earlier, so I can be up in the late afternoon. Well it looks to be a good day, so enjoy yourselves in whatever your endeavors are. CIO

Note:<888>11/01/98 Sunday 6:15 A.M. EST: I went out for a drive at 4 A.M.. I had to scrape a little frost off the windows. I drove down by the water on Steamboat Road. I stopped by the Greenwich Harbor Inn to use the bathroom, but the door was locked, and I did not feel like bussing the night desk. I returned back home. I watched a program on the history on History Channel about railroads in America, and they had a segment on Henry Flagler building the Florida East Coast railroad. I might sneak out in a little while, once the sun is up shortly. Sunrise is due at 6:24 A.M. Greenwich, Connecticut Pathfinder Weather , time for all Halloween vampires and goblins to be inside, lest they be touched by the light of the sun. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>11/01/98 Sunday 3:25 A.M. EST: As I recall in areas that have polluted water because of a disaster, one can improvise clean water by adding a couple of drops of Clorox and a couple of drops of iodine to a gallon of water for cleaner water. I am not actually sure if these are the correct measurements, but in an emergency needing water this is what I would do. CIO

Note:<888>11/01/98 Sunday 2:45 A.M. EST: Disaster Information 078.HTM . I went to bed at noon, and was up at 10 P.M.. I had breakfast of omelet, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I listened to www.ttalk.com 's weekender broadcast while I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants until about 2 A.M.. I showered and cleaned up microwave a Stauffer's lasagna, which I just had to eat with ice tea. I am having a regular cup of coffee right now. I will go out for a short drive downtown soon, and have a White Owl panatela cigar for a break shortly. CIO

Note:<888>11/14/98 Saturday 11:00 P.M. EST: I have rested most of the last day and a half. The visitor from Germany has not shown up yet. It is probably just as well that he is staying in Manhattan for a day or two. I finally went over to the hospital and I have bronchitis and the beginning of pneumonia . They took a Chest X-ray to see the beginning of pneumonia, and they prescribed me an inhaler of "Albuterol Inhalation Aerosol". Also they prescribed a antibiotic package of "Zithromax" which I first take two pill and then a single pill for the next four days. Well hopefully I will start feeling better sooner or later. Also I have to quit smoking, and I guess I should try to keep it up after I am over the bronchitis and pneumonia. I am making icetea.htm , so I have plenty of fluids. I don't know if I will have the energy to do house cleaning tomorrow. I guess I should just relax and stay in bed. Well I hope you're having a better weekend than I am. CIO

Note:<888>11/13/98 Friday 8:30 P.M. EST: I have had a cold and have been resting for the last two days and seem to be getting over it. Visitor from Germany is staying in Manhattan this evening, and coming out tomorrow. I have updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>11/12/98 Thursday 11:20 P.M. EST: I went to bed at 7 A.M. this morning. I was awoken at about 1:30 P.M. by a call from Germany. A friend is coming back here to Greenwich on Continental Airlines on Friday afternoon, and taking the Connecticut limousine to the Greenwich Harbor Inn for me to meet him. He is coming here to start working, since it is hard to find a job in Germany for an American. He will be staying here for a short spell until he gets settled. I called him back briefly in Germany to tell him I would be waiting for him to arrive on Friday afternoon. I had breakfast of Raspberry Danish, GU cereal, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice, and Cappuccino. I went back to bed until 9 P.M.. Another friend called at about 6 P.M.. I updated Scott's directory download.htm with the three hundred broken links that worked last night and when I got up just now. I am uploading it now. All the links should work pretty much in the directory. I will update Scott's Index scopor01.htm shortly. After I finish uploading, and showering, I will go out after that for some smokes. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>11/11/98 Wednesday 3:50 A.M. EST: Working on sifting through about 200 broken links to see if they actually might work, I am almost done. I accidentally stumbled across this Microsoft Beta site Microsoft Windows Media Technologies , which does not work right now Downloads: Microsoft Windows Media On-Demand Producer . Try it, I think we might like it, if we can download it from here

<http://www.microsoft.com/windows/downloads/bin/WMODPb1.exe> . CIO

Note:<888>11/11/98 Wednesday 12:40 A.M. EST: I finished email and my daily work list links scotwork.htm , I guess the Old Guard will all be in Paris today. Well Bonjour Mes Amis, O'Est Les Fetes. Il Y'a A La Arc Du Triomphe. Bon Soir. CIO

Note:<888>11/10/98 Tuesday 9:35 A.M. EST: I rested until 4 P.M.. I went out to the Arnold Bread Outlet and purchased two loaves of Healthnut bread for $1.29 each, one loaf of 12 grain bread for $1.59, and a Entenmanns Raspberry Danish Strudel for $1.89. It all came to $5.75. I can not find my change purse, I might have dropped it in the car. I next went by the Greenwich library and read the local paper. I heard on the Marine Band Radio there is a Weather Watch out for the tri state area starting early this morning, all morning long. They're expecting heavy rain and winds up to 60 miles per hour. I suppose any high rise construction projects should secure their equipment particularly in Manhattan. Also Naval and Aviation facilities need to secure their equipment. I then walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue, and chatted with some of the locals about life around Greenwich. There were quite a few people out, and I came in at 8:30 P.M., as it began to start drizzling. Well have a good evening, and anyone thinking about going out in the morning tomorrow should watch the weather closely. Well some of the lucky people might be having rough weather on the vomit comet Cunard Cruise Query Results which seems to have left port in Manhattan with out one of its major promoters. I dare say with 60 knot winds heading towards the Queen Elizabeth II cruise ship on this cruise, it might have a rough crossing to Bermuda due on the 12th. Well that is all for now folks. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which is way out of balance again today. By the way I had dinner of smoked ham, green peas, potato, ice tea, and cappuccino. CIO

Note:<888>11/10/98 Tuesday 11:00 A.M. EST: I proofed all of my 13,500 broken links with Link Sweeper a second time, and I came up with about 200 links that I will add to the directory. I did it this morning while I was asleep and worked on them a bit from 5 A.M. to 7 A.M. before going back to sleep until 9 A.M.. I had a mozzarella omelet, toast, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice, and cappuccino for breakfast. I linked the Casa Marina Hotel in Key West from my homepage for a few days. I updated Scott's broadcast at sound.htm . Well I will clean up shortly and go out for a little day light activity. Have a good day, and enjoy your internet activities as it gets colder this winter, in this neck of the woods. CIO

Note:<888>11/09/98 Monday 10:30 P.M. EST: I went for a walk at about 9 P.M. on the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. It is a very quiet night. They have trailers set up at the Volkswagen Automobile dealership for some sort of display. I smoked a White Owl Panatela at the Post Office plaza, while relaxing in the night air. I drove down by the water and one fisherman was present. I retrieved an old discarded briefcase at the train station office park parking area, that somebody had discarded. It is very used, and has the initials "PRL". I use to know somebody with the initials "PR" who manufactured sails in Essex, Connecticut; maybe the briefcase belongs to a lost "Livingston". This reminds me of the small book published by Yale University in the early 19th Century listing the first two hundred years of missionaries sent out by Yale College, which I bought for a dime at the Greenwich Hospital thrift shop. I thought it was an informative book, and I sent it down to the George Bush White House to be put in the National Archives or kept as a gift. I remember looking at the long list of names in the book, and the most common family name in the long list of missionaries was the "Livingston" family name which most people in New York are familiar with. Well the briefcase was empty. I suppose somebody might worry about discarding materials improperly, since it creates a security problem. I recommend people dropping off old reusable at the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop or the other thrift shops in town thrift.htm . Well time to read my email. Sooner or later I will need to upgrade my hard drive to a larger one, but for now, I keep editing out programs. I joked last Christmas when I set up a Christmas bar, which has not been touched hardly, that the unused liquor would keep increasing in value which it has, while if I had bought a hard drive last Christmas, it would only be worth a fraction of its cost at present. Likewise the moneys I have spent on computers and software and internet access not to mention time during the last eight years, if it had been sensibly invested would be quite substantial. Well I hope some of my internet users, appreciate my effort to disperse directory information on the internet, since I regard the internet as the "Open All the Time Library" for learning. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>11/09/98 Monday 8:20 P.M. EST: I went out and made my 4 P.M. appointment. I drove down by the sound, and observed the skyline and the waterfront. That reminds me, that last Thursday one of the residents on Steamboat Road observed an Albatross flying with the seagulls that they look like, but they're larger. I went by the Greenwich Library and read the Greenwich Times, and the three weekly computer magazines. I mentioned to the local ornithologist that, "The internet still seems like a massive conspiracy to sell hard disk drive space." I stopped by Val's Discount Liquor Store in the Grand Union shopping plaza and bought a larger 10 ounce bottle of Angostura Bitters for $7.99 and a 1.5 liter bottle of George Du Boeuf white table wine for $6.99 plus .82 cents tax for $15.80 total. I then stopped by Var Max liquor pantry in Port Chester west of Cumberland Farms, just across the New York border and bought a bottle of Chateau Peyraud 1995 Premieres Cotes De Blaye red which is normally $7.99 in the clearance bin for $3.99 plus .27 tax. I returned home, and started up loading my favorites directory to the California site. I watched the ABC evening news. I had dinner of sliced ham, potato, and green beans, with ice tea and cappuccino. I finished uploading the directory about a half hour ago. I set the automatic log off not to automatically log off after a certain period time in the dialer. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm , which seem to show a wide variance in math again today. Well have a good evening. I think I will go out for a walk shortly. CIO

Note:<888>11/09/98 Monday 3:00 P.M. EST: I updated download.htm , with a proofed group of my Favorites slightly larger, and also a Favorites add-on for the United States Department of Defense: Here are the two links again:

Scott's Internet Hotlist in Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 or 5.0 Favorites Format, 61,344 Working Proofed File Links in 289 Folders "scottie1.zip", 11/09/98, 17,233,729 Bytes Zipped, and 251,335,656 Bytes Unzipped Into "C:\Windows\Favorites", When Using Windows 98 in FAT 32 Partition, 25% Larger in Fat 16. One Needs To Use WinZip7.0 To Extract "scottie1.zip", and I Have 64 Megs Memory on My System, Good Luck and Enjoy.

U.S. Department of Defense Directory in Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 or 5.0 Favorites Format, 10,211 File Links in 2,239 Folders "usdodie1.zip", 11/09/98, 5,058,007 Bytes Zipped, and 41,824,256 Bytes Unzipped Into "C:\Windows\Favorites", When Using Windows 98 in Fat 32 Partition, 25% Larger in Fat 16. One Needs to Use WinZip7.0 To Extract "usdodie1.zip".

I was up at noon, and worked on the two groups of Favorites Links above. I deleted the Starr Report, and Queen Elizabeth Christmas 1997 Speech to free up room on the servers. I might have to wait to upload to California, since the site is busy. I had breakfast of GU Raisin Bran, toast, orange and grapefruit juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I will clean up while uploading, I have a 4 P.M. appointment. Have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>11/09/98 Monday 6:45 A.M. EST: I converted the Department of Defense Directory in Netscape Bookmarks Format for download. He is the link.

United States Department of Defense Directory "usdodns1.zip" In Netscape Bookmarks Format 318,471 Bytes , open "usdodns1.htm". Time for bed. CIO

Note:<888>11/09/98 Monday 12:10 A.M. EST: I went to bed at 3 A.M. last night and was up again at 9 A.M. this morning. I had GU raisin bran, toast, orange and grapefruit juice, vitamins, and cappuccino for breakfast. I chatted with a family member. I went back to bed until 2 P.M.. I worked on the computer, I did not get all of the NASA directory and Military directory in the new MS Favorites directory because of coding converting problems. Thus I have to update it with the rest of the links. I also might try converting the main military directory, but I only have 2.5 megs disk space on each of my servers, so I am not sure I would have room. Also I need to proof the batch of broken links again from the last time I proofed the main directory. At the moment, the directory does not seem like a hot item. Well a friend dropped by at 4 P.M.. We chatted. I cleaned up. I chatted with a family member. I made a dinner of omelets with mozzarella cheese, and tomato sauce, olives, onion, garlic, and herbs fillings and toast. We watched a Disney movie "Island at the Top of the World". After the movie, my guest left and I went down to the lower avenue news stand and bought three buy two get one free of Kent Ultra lites for $17.70. It has warmed up quite a bit and is nice out. I went by the Grand Union and bought two half gallons Tropicana Ruby Red Orange Juice for $1.99 each, a gallon of whole milk for $2.99, two I Can't Believe It's Not Butter for $1.29 each, a dozen jumbo eggs for $1.59, and a Hickory Hills Fully Cooked Boneless Smoked Ham at $2.79 a pound for $8.01 for $19.15 total. I noticed some of the hams at the Grand Union were out of date, so make sure if you buy a ham there, they're not expired. I returned home and did my house cleaning and watered the plants. I am doing laundry right now. Well have a good morning, and enjoy the warmer weather while we have it. CIO

Note:<888>11/08/98 Sunday 12:45 A.M. EST: I backed up the system. I also had dinner of broiled boneless center cut pork chop with Dijon mustard and garlic on the second side, broccoli, potato, ice tea, and cappuccino. I surfed through my last three days of email. I received email from a friend living in Germany, so he has found access to a internet computer. I also emailed a few people about my new directory format. Nobody has downloaded it from the Florida site yet, perhaps they could use it as the Scott Amudsen Polar Research Center in Antarctica. I suppose it is going to get colder here, before it warms up. I will have to get another hard drive sooner or later, as essential Microsoft Programs take up more and more room. Well for now, I can keep editing the existing drives. I should probably try using the directory more myself. The Favorites format works great on my machine with Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 beta 2, particularly the left screen Favorites option. I will add my daily work links as I find them, if I should not already have them. I really have not had much time to proof the directory, so I will probably update it in time as I use it more. I also made up a batch of icetea.htm for next week. Well have a good Sunday. CIO

Note:<888>11/30/98 Monday 8:55 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Broadcast sound.htm for this week. CIO

Note:<888>11/30/98 Monday 8:05 P.M. EST: I posted the this Thursday's shuttle page NASA, Space Shuttle STS-88, Endeavor Launch Thursday, December 3, 1998, 3:59 AM EST Approximate . It is linked from NASA . I was up at 4 P.M. today. I had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, orange juice, and vitamins. I backed up my computer which was finished about 7 P.M.. I went out at 6:30 P.M., and read two computer weeklies at the Greenwich Library. I drove downtown and surveyed the fog on Long Island Sound. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which was down quite a bit today. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>11/30/98 Monday 9:05 A.M. EST: This is the tip sheet Western Digital Corporation (Service/Support) - Tip of the Month (March 1997) Transferring Files From the Old to the New Drive in Windows 95 that I used for transferring my files from the old hard disk to the new hard disk. This morning, I downloaded www.earthtuner.com , along with three other radio programs one can find by searching "radio" from www.download.com . The other three are "vtuner.exe", "spinnerplus.exe", and "digi35c.exe". Three of them are two week demos, but they are handy for exploring radio stations on the net along with BRS Web-Radio which has lots of radio links. I also downloaded and installed McAfee's Anti Virus program and Netscape Communicator Professional Edition. I decided that my 300 meg "C:\windows\favorites" files was fragmenting my new hard drive, so I transferred the entire file group under "favorites" to the D: drive, and they still show up in the Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 Favorites . Thus by keeping them in the D: drive, I defragged my new C: drive without them, and it seems to run much smoother. Also when one runs System Maintenance on C: it runs faster without having to go through all the Favorites folders. I also made a backup of my C: drive to my D: drive. All of this took a bit of time. I also added the Win98 IDE drivers from www.pcware.com for my S-571 motherboard, which seems to work better. Thus the system is up and running fine, without any hitches. I will make a tape backup up when I get up this evening. Well have a good day, time for me to go to sleep. Just for the record, I now have 5.4 Gigabytes free on the C: drive with 892 MB used, and on the D: drive I have 203 MB free, with 828 used. Time for bed. I am just sneaking a few cigarettes a day, and my attempt with the patch to quit smoking seems to be working for now. CIO

Note:<888>11/29/98 Sunday 11:40 P.M. EST: I went to bed at 4 A.M. yesterday. I was up at 4 P.M. after a long sleep. I chatted with family members. I had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, orange juice, and vitamins. I started cleaning my apartment and watering the plants. I listen to half of the two week old weekend at www.ttalk.com while doing this. About 6:30 P.M., I decided to rearrange the cabling on the inside of my PC, so each hard drive has its own IDE cable, with the second on the same one as the Cdrom. I did this and tweaked the system for about an hour and a half. I am running my swapper on the empty D: drive. The new drive makes more noise than I would have expected, but works fine. I then finished cleaning the apartment. I cleaned up, and had a Stauffer's frozen lasagna. About 9:30 P.M., I went out, and filled the car with $11.45 of premium at Exxon. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a smaller box of Goldfish crackers for $3.69, since they were out of the economy larger boxes for $5. I then went downtown in the misty cool evening and walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. I chatted with one local about the internet. I noticed in the headlines of the Sunday newspaper, the residents of the YMCA are going to have to move out when the building is refurbished. I smoked a White Owl New York panatela at the Post Office square, and studied the overcast sky. I came back home and started my laundry, which should be done in about an hour. Well back to the net, have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>11/29/98 Sunday 2:50 A.M. EST: I went to bed about 4 A.M. Saturday morning, after working on the internet. I received a couple of phone calls on Saturday morning. I was up about noon and had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, vitamins, and orange juice. I have not been drinking coffee for two weeks. I had a friend come over about 1 P.M.. We chatted for a while and then went over to Tod's Point and sat out by the South East point enjoying the view of the Sound on the nice day. There were lots of people at Tod's Point. We returned via Caldor's in Old Greenwich, and my friend bought a Fuji telephoto 35 mm camera for a Christmas gift there. We stopped by Stables and viewed the merchandise. We returned to central Greenwich, and toured Outdoor Traitors and the Ski Shop at the top of Greenwich Avenue. It was very busy downtown. He dropped me off at 4 P.M.. I made icetea.htm , and reheated my Thanksgiving dinner again for dinner. I took the rest of the meat off the Turkey and froze it too. About 5:30 P.M. I went back downtown and parked in the center of Greenwich Avenue, and walked down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and had a White Owl New York Panatela cigar. I chatted with one of the fishermen from Taiwan. I returned back to the center of town. I then drove up to Norwalk, and stopped by the opening of the Circuit City store near CompUSA. They have a computer section there with a 17 inch monitor for $250. I then went to CompUSA and bought a Maxtor 5.1 gigabyte hard drive for $158.99 plus it comes with a $50 mailin rebate, so it is slightly over a hundred dollars. I returned home and spent the next six hours installing the new hard drive, and copying the old drive files onto it. It was not too tedious, but I spent some time fiddling with the settings. It all seems to work fine, but the new hard drive makes more noise than the old drive. Perhaps it will be quieter after I optimize it. I think I have it all installed, and the system is all working fine. I made my old 1 gigabyte drive the D: drive. Well I have to get some rest after I optimize the new drive. Have a good morning. Tomorrow afternoon I need to clean the apartment. CIO

Note:<888>11/28/98 Saturday 1:30 A.M. EST: I updated my Politics category 065.htm . CIO

Note:<888>11/27/98 Friday 11:20 P.M. EST: I did internet work until 6:30 P.M.. I then watched the ABC evening news. I had reheated Thanksgiving dinner. I went out about 7:30 P.M. and walked the lower area of Greenwich Avenue. I smoked a White Owl New York Panatela Cigar in front of the post office and chatted briefly with another cigar smoker about a few minor ideas. I walked up to CVS and bought two small one pound Plumrose canned hams for $1.66 each and some Wizard Air fresheners for .99 for a total of $4.81. I then walked back down the avenue to my car and stopped by the Grand Union for GU freezer storage bags for $1.49 to freeze some of my turkey, and a Tony's Pepperoni pizza for $3.49 for a total of $5.07. Also while on the Avenue, I bought a $3 Connecticut Lottery "Lucky Dog" ticket at Zyns, but did not win anything. I returned home and watched the last two hours of the CSPAN tour of the White House. I will do a bit of internet work now. CIO

Note:<888>11/27/98 Friday 4:45 P.M. EST: I was up at noon today after going to bed at 4 A.M. this morning. I had some early afternoon visitors briefly. I had breakfast of raisin bran, orange juice, vitamins. I went downtown to Putnam Trust Bank of New York to conduct some banking business. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. It was a cool and blustery day. The library was closed today. I returned home. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . All is pretty much quiet here out in the south west of Greenwich. Well time for a little net work. CIO

Note:<888>11/26/98 Thursday 11:15 P.M. EST: I upgrade the Netscape Bookmarks Folder for download from download.htm , it is the file named scotnet2.zip . The summary of the file follows: Scott's Internet Hotlist in Netscape Bookmark format "scotnet2.zip" 1,462,943 bytes zipped 12,246,257 bytes unzipped , 71,897 links in 141 categories, and 2,485 folders, 11/27/98, file is "scotnet2.htm" for opening in Netscape Web Brower, I advise not installing Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 or 5.0 with this file installed in Netscape, or it will take many hours to import Netscape bookmarks into Microsoft Internet Explorer, save this bookmark and delete it before installing Microsoft Internet Explorer or running MS Internet Explorer 5.0 repair option, and then reopen it in Netscape. The links are proofed, and organized. Well Netscape Users should have a lot of bookmarks to work with. Basically it is just converted from the Microsoft Favorites folders. CIO

Note:<888>11/26/98 Thursday 9:50 P.M. EST: I finished cooking the 10 pound Stew Leonard Butterball turkey at 8:15 P.M. for 2 hours and 45 minutes in the convection microwave oven. I made Paul Prudhonne's Rice Mix, and Grand Union Stuffing using one half white wine instead of water with both mixtures, and steamed Brussels sprouts along with ice tea for dinner which I finished about 9:15 P.M. including cleaning up. I went outside, and had a White Owl New York Panatela cigar and observed a few drops of rain sprinkling outside, and it seems to be a quiet evening to stay home and browse the internet. Well I hope everyone had an enjoyable Thanksgiving Day, and I hope to be out a little bit tomorrow when the Power Shoppers hit the streets in their pre holiday frenzies. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>11/26/98 Thursday 6:30 P.M. EST: I was up at 4 P.M.. I went downtown briefly. The buy two get one free cigarettes have gone up a dollar a pack and are now $7. In other words cigarettes have gone up .45 a pack. I will start trying to wear the patch tomorrow to quit smoking again. It started to clear about 5 P.M. before sunset. It looks like it rained all day. I straightened up my apartment to its normal appearance. It is nice to have my own place to myself again. I chatted with family members. I am cooking a Stew Leonard Butterball Turkey from the Harvest Assembly of God, which should be ready at about 8 P.M.. I am also having GU stuffing, Paul Prudon Rice Mix, and Brussels Sprouts, along with ice tea. Well I hope you all had a happy Thanksgiving. I will be on an evening schedule tonight. I will probably be out in the day time a bit tomorrow. CIO

Note:<888>11/26/98 Thursday 4:25 A.M. EST: I have finished sifting through my email, and some web work. It is time for me to go to bed. CIO

Note:<888>11/26/98 Thursday 3:25 A.M. EST: I went downtown at about 7 P.M. and walked around for two hours on lower Greenwich Avenue, and also the entire length of Greenwich Avenue. I bought a White BJeep Lighter at CVS for $1.39 and a five pack of Cavendish Whiffs for $1.77. I enjoyed walking around in the refreshing weather. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a six pack of 1000 sheet toilet paper for $3.59 and a box of GU stuffing mix for $2.19 for a total of $6. I then returned home and had a Tony's frozen pizza. I was called by my former house guest and I picked him up at the train station, and after some discussion he has decided to relocate to other premises and will not be visiting here ever again, except possibly with escort to retrieve some of his personal belongings. I finished discussing the fact with some local officials and I think he will be comfortable once he settles into his former domain, if he should choose to do so. Well I should be back to my normal routines without house guest again. The tension caused me to buy a couple of packs of cigarettes and I will try using the patch again tomorrow. Well enjoy your Thanksgiving Holiday. CIO

Note:<888>11/25/98 Wednesday 6:15 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Broadcast sound.htm for the first time in two weeks. I guess I am pretty much over my sickness of the last two weeks. I will have to see how I continue to feel. CIO

Note:<888>11/25/98 Wednesday 5:45 P.M. EST: I went to bed at 4 A.M. yesterday morning after chatting with my house guest. I was up at 9:30 A.M. and received a Thanksgiving call from a family member. I had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, orange juice, and vitamins. I made my 11:30 A.M. appointment. I came back home and slept until 5 P.M.. I am now catching up on some internet work. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>11/24/98 Tuesday 10:30 P.M. EST: I went out at about 2:30 P.M. today. I walked around downtown a bit. I am wearing the stop smoking patch, and I have only snuck four cigarettes today. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought Whole Milk gallon for $2.99, two boxes GU raisin bran for $1.99 each, three half gallons of Florida Natural Orange Juice for $1.99 each for a total of $12.94. I am feeling better today, and my house guest seems to be recovering. I came home and rested a bit, and had a simple meal of peanut butter sandwich and Ramen noodles. I went by the library and read the computer press and the local newspaper. I then walked around downtown until about 9 P.M.. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought 18 bags of Ramen noodles for $3 and a bottle of Kikkoman Soy Sauce for $1.79. I returned home and my house guest started to do his laundry. I made two bags of Ramen noodles for him for dinner. We have plenty of food in the house, but my house guest likes fasting occasionally and I try to occasionally loose a bit of weight. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well I will surf the net a bit this morning. I have a 11:30 A.M. appointment tomorrow morning, so I will have to be out sooner and to bed sooner. CIO

Note:<888>11/23/98 Monday 10:15 P.M. EST: I rested most of Sunday trying to get over my flu, pneumonia, or cold. I went out this morning and made a 1 P.M. reservation at the Hospital Out patient. I made the 1 P.M. appointment. The intern said I need to quit smoking, which I plan to do, along with continual rest until I build up my energy. I made another appointment. I came back and rested. My house guest is out this evening, and he should be gone in a day or two, since he is also trying to get over the same virus. Well I will have to see how I feel tomorrow. We had our first heavy dinner in a week this evening. I did go by the library and read the computer press and walked a short distance downtown. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good day tomorrow. CIO

Note:<888>11/21/98 Saturday 9:15 P.M. EST: Yesterday on Friday I rested trying to get over my cold. I took my house guest by the hospital early this morning to get some antibiotics for the same cold. It is like a stomach flu. My house guest will be relocating to another location on Monday. I will probably be back to more of my normal routine then. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm from yesterday. I noticed this evening while out for a walk, the movie "Elizabeth" was playing and seemed to be sold out. I picked up a dozen eggs for $1.59. The Harvest Time Assembly of God delivered a frozen butterball turkey today and a box of cookies, along with a copy of the New Testament. I was happy to see them again this year, and enjoy their holiday visits. I guess starting this Thursday, there will be a surplus of turkey in the house. Well time to catch up on email and internet news. It was moderately busy downtown this evening, and I got a little fresh air walking. There is an IBM PC probably a 486 in the train station dumpster for grabs. Well have a quiet evening. CIO

Note:<888>11/19/98 Thursday 6:30 P.M. EST: I took my house guest downtown at 11 P.M. this morning. I came back and rested until 1 P.M.. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I met up with my house guest downtown and dropped him off at the train station to go into Manhattan. He is due out around 10:30 P.M.. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well I will do a little net work. I have not been drinking coffee for about a week, and I feel more relaxed. CIO

Note:<888>11/18/98 Wednesday 11:40 P.M. EST: I am beginning to feel better today. I drove my house guest downtown at 11 A.M.. I slept until 3 P.M.. I picked up my houseguest at 5 P.M.. I came back and went back out to the library at 7 P.M. until 8:30 P.M. reading the local paper and the computer press. I then walked downtown until about 9:30 P.M.. I came home and made ham and cheese omelets. I am now finishing up doing the laundry. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well I will next do my email. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>11/18/98 Wednesday 2:30 A.M. EST: I rested a good bit of Monday trying to get over my pneumonia and bronchitis. I fixed my house guest breakfast and dinner and took him downtown and picked him up. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought two 5 pound bags of potatoes for .99 each, 9 bags of Ramen noodles, a Tony's Supreme High Pizza for $4.29, all for $7.77. My house guest and I each had a Stauffer's large Lasagna for dinner this past evening. He surfed the internet a bit this evening. I am just about ready to call it a day. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . CIO

Note:<888>11/16/98 Monday 11:15 P.M. EST: I rested until noon on Sunday. I went into Manhattan and picked up my house guest returning from Germany, and returned from New York about 4 P.M.. We chatted and went for a drive last evening. I rested quite a bit on Monday since I am still sick. I am feeling better this evening. I went out with my house guest and we walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. We drove around town. We stopped by the Grand Union, and I purchased three half gallons of Tropicana Orange Juice for $1.99 each, a Red Barron Pizza for $3.99, four Stauffer's large lasagnas for $2.99 each, boneless center cut pork chops $3.91, I Can't Believe It's Not Butter $1.29, and Kellogg's Raisin Bran $3.49 for a total of $38.89. We returned home and had the Red Baron Pizza for dinner. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I will sift through email and relax hoping I will soon be able to recover from my bronchitis and pneumonia, which seems to be passing. I and my guest will be out tomorrow about noon. CIO

Note:<888>12/07/98 Monday 1:00 P.M. EST: On my way out shortly. CIO

Note:<888>12/07/98 Monday 12:20 P.M. EST:

SXUS99 KBDR 071711

RERBDR

RECORD HIGH TEMPERATURE

NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE NEW YORK NY

1210 PM EST MON DEC 7 1998

...THE HIGH TEMPERATURE RECORD BROKEN AT BRIDGEPORT...

THE HIGHEST TEMPERATURE...SO FAR...TODAY IS 64 WHICH OCCURRED AT 1054 AM.

THE PREVIOUS HIGH TEMPERATURE RECORD AT BRIDGEPORT WAS 62 SET IN 1953. WITH THE BRIGHT SUNSHINE AND WEST WIND THE TEMPERATURE WILL CONTINUE TO GO UP ANOTHER DEGREE OR SO THIS AFTERNOON.

PJJ

Note:<888>12/07/98 Monday 12:10 P.M. EST: When using WeatherNode www.weathernode.com one can configure the program to show all the states, by selecting "Add Selected State" and entering "ALLSTATES". The program recommends you have a Pentium class computer with 64 megs of memory to use this "ALLSTATES" feature. CIO

Note:<888>12/07/98 Monday 11:40 A.M. EST: I went out this morning after the last message. I drove down to the waterfront on Steamboat Road and observed the morning haze and the sunrise. I lingered there for a while, enjoying the peace of the waterfront. I noticed across from the Greenwich Harbor Inn, there is a public notice sign, that one of the older homes next to the office building across the street is going to be torn down, I guess to expand the parking lot. It is too bad since, it is nice to see residential homes in that part of town as it becomes more and more commercial. I then returned to the center of town, and walked the lower area of Greenwich Avenue enjoying the unusually warm morning. I stopped by St. Moritz bakery and bought a blueberry muffin for $1 and a Danish honey bun with pecans on it for $1.50 both of which were fresh out of the oven. I walked up to the senior center and enjoyed eating them on the bench in front enjoying the morning. I then had a Philly tip cigar. I chatted with a Danish acquaintance about various food enterprises that I was acquainted with. I walked down to Zyns and bought a Tipporella for .50 and walked across the street and smoked it in the post office plaza. I chatted with an adjacent sitter about walking too much in New York in the old days, and how it is hard on the feet and knees. I then drove up to the Hospital Thrift shop and toured the selection of donated merchandise, nothing which interested me. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York did some business. I then drove back to the center of town and stopped by the Post Office and paid my local telephone bill and my Connecticut automobile registration for $74 by purchasing money orders and mailing them. I then walked back to the car and returned home. I rested for about an hour to slow down. I then ate a couple of Clementines and drank a cup of Cappuccino with two caps of Kahlua and a eighth of a teaspoon of vanilla flavoring in it for a change. I have a 2 P.M. appointment this afternoon. Well I hope everyone enjoys another warm day. CIO

Note:<888>12/07/98 Monday 6:15 A.M. EST: I finished doing the small group of Christmas Cards, I do every year. I also posted my Christmas Message on my site xmas98.htm for good cheer to my users. Now I have to go mail the cards. CIO

Note:<888>12/07/98 Monday 3:00 A.M. EST: I worked on the computer until about 6 P.M. yesterday. I downloaded the Star Division Online Office suite at about 60 megs. I installed the whole program, and then only kept the word processor part of the suite which I might eventually delete, since I am not sure I want to be saving their files in Star format, since most of my word files are in WordPerfect, and if I change I will probably try Microsoft Word. I also downloaded the Weather node program and the Byte blaster engine which are linked from this page RealEMWIN along with RealEmwin. I emailed www.weathernode.com about what the abbreviation is for selecting the entire U.S. in their weather alert map. I went to bed about 6 P.M., and I did chat with a family member during the day. I was up at 1 A.M.. I started laundry which should be done in about a half hour, and I am making icetea.htm . I had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and Cappuccino. I just finished showering and cleaning up. I have to write a Christmas letter and do my Christmas cards this morning. I have a 2 P.M. appointment today. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>12/06/98 Sunday 11:55 A.M. EST: <http://www.skywatch.org/realemwin.html>
Weathernode Program add on. CIO

Note:<888>12/06/98 Sunday 11:30 A.M. EST: New York, New Jersey and Connecticut Weather and Climate Information from the National Weather Service and this is the only station I can get on my Marine Band Radio in my 22 Year Old White Volvo NOAA National Weather Service Weather Radio WXRADIO <http://www.nws.bnl.gov/wxradio.html> , perhaps someday I will touch base with other nautical transmitters. CIO

Note:<888>12/06/98 Sunday 10:45 A.M. EST: I went out after I started the three hour download, and came back about a half hour ago, but I did not get the entire download, so I had to start it again. I drove down to Steamboat Road, and one fellow was out digging in the rocks for fishing worms, told me he is going down to Marathon, Florida in four weeks. I chatted briefly with him about Florida. I chatted briefly with another fisherman about fishing conditions. It is warm out, and the sun has burned off the early morning haze. I went back to the center of town, and I took out some fine steel sandpaper out of the trunk of my car, and sanded the rotor and cap points on my distributor while parked next to the town green. This is a quick remedy for fixing older ignition systems on older cars, when they don't need a tune-up yet. It gets the carbide off the points, so they start and run more smoothly. I next bought a buy two get one free of Doral Ultra lites for $6, so when I sneak a few cigarettes a day, I have some in reserve. I then smoked a White Owl panatela in front of the post office. I don't leave my cigar butts on Greenwich Avenue. I put them out thoroughly, and then dispose of them in the proper receptacles. I then walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. I stopped by St. Moritz and bought a Danish Almond pastry for a $1. I walked back up to the senior center and ate it on the bench in front of the building. I then walked to the top of Greenwich Avenue, and sat on the bench on the Post Road until 9 A.M.. I then went to CVS and bought a box of Hallmark Christmas cards pack of 20 for $9.95, two bottles of Pine Sol Cleaner with 50% extra with sprayer bottles for $1.99 each, and a jar of planters peanuts for $1.99 plus .84 Connecticut sales tax for a total of $16.76. I then walked back to the senior center, and smoked one cigarette. I noticed a lot of early morning walkers out, and quite a few couples of all ages out for morning strolls and exercise walks before the sidewalks are too busy, and quite a few people going to church. I returned home and started the download again. It will be done about 1:30 P.M., so I will just relax around home, since I have been up all night again. I am sure quite a few people will be out at Tod's Point walking their dogs, since starting in December you don't need a beach pass, and dogs are allowed, but one has to clean up after their dogs. I guess we are awfully lucky to have this weather this time of year, and I wish I had more time to enjoy it. Give my best to those who are out enjoying this late Indian Summer. Have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>12/06/98 Sunday 6:30 A.M. EST: I am downloading a free office suite from Star

Division Online . I guess, it will take a couple of hours for the 60 meg. file to download. I will go out in a little while as soon as the sun is up while I download. CIO

Note:<888>12/06/98 Sunday 4:40 A.M. EST: I called back a friend about 6 P.M. last evening, and he was having a crisis that needed to be resolved, hopefully everything will work out for the best. I went back to bed to reduce stress until about 10 P.M. with one phone call concerning the previous matter. I got up and made a mozzarella cheese omelet, toast, bacon, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino for breakfast. I listened to www.ttalk.com until midnight when it couched out, while I was cleaning the apartment and watering the plants. I also cleaned the old Compaq 15 inch monitor and set it up on the backup 486 computer in the bedroom. I finished house cleaning about 3 A.M., and I then showered and went downtown for a walk on the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. I smoked one of the Philly tips at the post office plaza. I returned home via Cumberland Farms on the New York border which is way overheated for a milk store with the people from India running it. I bought a gallon of milk for $2.89 and a package five Middleton Cherry Pipe tobacco cigars for .99 for $3.95 total with .07 N.Y. tax. I came home and put out my pine cone Christmas wreath. I am making dinner of boneless breast of chicken with chopped garlic, Dijon mustard, white wine, with herbs and spices, with baked potato, and baked onion quarters, along with mixed frozen farm vegetables and ice tea. I also snacked on a couple of Clementines. Well back to the net for a little work activity after dinner. I will go out probably between 7 A.M. and 8 A.M. for a morning walk and a little fresh air, on another nice day today. The new Acer monitor is working great, and I have set it up with the right driver, and set up the monitor settings to my preferences. Hopefully it will be easier on the eyes with the higher refresh rate, and less radiation emission. I will do laundry tomorrow morning. CIO

Note:<888>12/05/98 Saturday 4:50 P.M. EST: A friend came down and delivered an early Christmas gift. He bought me a ACER AcerView 77 E 17 inch monitor from CompUSA for $250, which works great, and I downloaded the latest driver from www.acer.com . I set up the monitor to my preferences, and changed to the setting to the higher refresh rate on the properties settings. I now have a really good monitor for viewing the internet and my computer work. My friend just left, and I have to have a bite to eat, and possibly get out for a stroll. With all the time I spend on the internet, I will be using this gift quite a lot in the upcoming years. Thanks again. CIO

Note:<888>12/05/98 Saturday 7:30 A.M. EST: I updated scott004.zip available from download.htm , with a few of the latest improvements, including a copy of the exxon01.htm page from my web servers. Well after I upload the changes, I will clean up and go out to enjoy the weekend morning. CIO

Note:<888>12/05/98 Saturday 5:30 A.M. EST: I finished setting up the backup 486 computer with Win98 and the auxiliary programs about 2 A.M.. I rested until about 4:30 A.M.. I just had a Tony's Pepperoni pizza, ice tea, and coffee. I chatted with someone from Maryland briefly on Iphone. Well back to the net. I am pretty much done with my morning's work, but it is too early to go out, I will probably go out about 8 A.M.. CIO

Note:<888>12/04/98 Friday 11:30 P.M. EST: I worked on the computer until 2 A.M. yesterday morning. I then decided to install Win98 on the backup 486 in the bedroom. I had to temporarily install my cdrom player in it. I also took out the 5 1/4 inch disk drive. I put in the 340 meg. Western Digital drive in the 486 along with a 120 meg. drive. I had problems getting the system to boot from a floppy initially. Once I finally figured out the problem, by temporarily disabling certain cmos setting, I fdisked and formatted the two drives. I then installed Win95 from floppies, so I could activate the sound card driver for the Cdrom. Once the cdrom was working, I installed Win98. I then ran maintenance wizard. I then setup up the dialers, and downloaded the updates from the Win98 updates. Once I had finished doing all of this it was 4 P.M. in the afternoon today, and I went to be bed until 9:30. I woke up and installed Netscape Gold 3.04 and the Real G2 player and its upgrades. I will have about 75 megs free on the C: drive, now that I have the backup 486 setup with Win98 and additional programs. I probably won't need it, but it is basically setup, and ready for use, should I need it. I have to install my directories on the system, and then I am done. I had corn flakes, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino for breakfast when I just go up two hours ago. I will update Scott's Index scopor01.htm in a few minutes. Well have a good morning. I might rest more, or surf the internet. CIO

Note:<888>12/03/98 Thursday 10:15 P.M. EST: I listened to the aborted space shuttle launch until 4 A.M.. I went out and walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue, and had a White Owl panatela. I returned home at 5:30 A.M. and fiddled with my system until 8 A.M.. I slept until 7 P.M. missing my 3 P.M. appointment. I had breakfast of Kellogg's corn flakes, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. I went out for a walk on the lower part of Greenwich Avenue at 8:30 P.M.. I bought two boxes of five Philly tips for $1.90 and a buy two get one free of Doral ultra lites for $6, for when I occasionally sneak a cigarette, although I am still wearing the patch to quit smoking. I am having about three to four cigarettes a day. I also smoked one of the Philly tips. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a Tony's Pepperoni pizza for $3, and buy one get one free of Purdue Boneless chicken breast two packs for $6.34 for both for a total of $9.34. I returned home and put away the groceries. It was busy downtown with lots of office people having dinner. I received a Christmas card from Vice President Albert Gore and family. I will have to do my Christmas cards during the next week. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which is down a bit today. Well have a good evening, and I hope you all have fun surfing the internet. There is an old odd piece of IBM equipment somebody dumped at the train station dumpster area. Well I might try sticking my extra 340 meg. drive in the backup 486 bedroom computer, but it is not necessary since that system is all configured, and I hardly ever use it anymore, since I am no longer doing the directory, and don't need to use the OS/2 editor, but I keep it in case I do need it some time. CIO

Note:<888>12/03/98 Thursday 1:45 A.M. EST: I updated my stats.htm. CIO

Note:<888>12/02/98 Wednesday 11:55 P.M. EST: Awake again at 11 P.M.. I had a cup of coffee, two clementines, and cleaned up and showered. I will work on the net this morning. I think the shuttle is suppose to launch about 4 A.M. weather permitting. Check out nasa.htm . CIO

Note:<888>12/02/98 Wednesday 5:55 P.M. EST: I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . A friend came down and woke me up at 4:30 P.M., so I am awake. CIO

Note:<888>12/02/98 Wednesday 1:45 P.M. EST: Well the drive kept making noise, so at 8 A.M., I drove up to CompUSA in Norwalk; which does not open until 10 A.M. despite the 9 A.M. time in the circular. I had two croissants for $1.38 at the Pathmark next to it. I exchanged the drive for an identical one that works fine. I toured the store merchandise. They now have $30 mailin rebates on Western Digital drives. I drove home at about 10:30 A.M. arriving in Greenwich after the traffic. I paid my rent while in town. I returned home and install the good Maxtor drive, and it works fine. I finished installing the software and restoring the system just now from the backup I keep on drive D:. The whole system is running fine and quietly without drive noise. I am exhausted, although it is a nice day. I plan to go to bed shortly. Enjoy the warm beautiful afternoon, perhaps I will see a little of late evening when I wake up. Well time for bed.

CIO

Note:<888>12/02/98 Wednesday 3:40 A.M. EST: I think I finally fixed my noisy new drive problem. The drive started acting up, so since I had the C: drive backed up to my D: drive, I deleted the C: drive in FDISK and reinstalled it. I then figured out the problem was having "Block Mode" turned on in the CMOS, so I turned it off. I then reformatted the drive, and did a minimal install of Windows 98 with the Backup program installed. I then restored my backup from the D: drive, and the system is back to the way it was, and it all seems to be running smoothly. I am now about to scandisk and defrag the drive with Maintenance Wizard to get the drive running even more smoothly. I had to restore a couple of files I had backed up since I did the complete backup yesterday, so I am back in business running smoothly. I might turn off "Block Mode" in the CMOS on the D: drive, but it has always been that way. Thus the way the CMOS recognizes the drive is not correct I believe. Time will tell. CIO

Note:<888>12/01/98 Tuesday 11:40 P.M. EST: I went out at 8 P.M. after resting a bit. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the local paper. I drove downtown and stopped by CVS and bought two five packs of White Owl Panatelas for $3.06 for both. I walked the lower area on Greenwich Avenue twice and chatted with one of the locals. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a Tony's pepperoni rising pizza for $4.29, two 16 oz. Sorrento Mozzarella cheeses for $4.69 for both, a Stauffer's Lasagna $2.99, I Can't Believe It's Not Butter Lite $1.29, three Thorne bacons 16 oz. 3.69 all, three dozen large eggs $1.39 all, three cans Chicken of the sea chunk white tuna $1.99 all, two cans Heinz turkey gravy .50 a can, three quart bottles of Fab liquid detergent with bleach $3.99 all, a box of Clementines $3.99, two large boxes of Kellogg's corn flakes $3 all, plus .24 tax for $32.54 total. I returned home and put away the groceries. I made a Mozzarella three egg omelet, five strips of bacon, two pieces of toast, Welch's grape juice and diet sprite, and coffee for dinner. Well back to the net, have a good evening. It was slow downtown which is usual for a quiet Tuesday night. CIO

Note:<888>12/01/98 Tuesday 5:40 P.M. EST: I was up at 3:15 P.M. today. I went downtown to Putnam Trust Bank of New York and withdrew funds. I went to the post office and purchased money orders to pay my MCI telephone bill, my electricity, my cablevision, and my GEICO insurance bills. I also bought 20 Christmas stamps for $6.40. I stopped by the Arnold Bread store outlet and purchased three loaves of Healthnut bread for $3.87. I returned home and had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I will shower and clean up and go out in a little while. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>12/01/98 Tuesday 4:25 A.M. EST: This is the sort of music senior management grew up with, check it out broadcast.com Radio Stations: WYCL - 107.3 FM Oldies CIO

Note:<888>12/01/98 Tuesday 1:25 A.M. EST: I went downtown at 9:30 P.M.. I went by the Food Emporium and bought a gallon of goldfish crackers for $4.99 and a 39 ounce Blue bag of 50 percent decaffeinated coffee for $7.99 for a total of $12.98. I stopped by and chatted with a friend, who came back briefly to pick up some tapes and clothes, he had stored in my apartment. While he was putting his things together I mixed the blue bag of coffee with the two jars of my existing blend, so it will be 25% less caffeine. I will probably eventually start drinking the blue bag mixture which is 50% less. I dropped him off at his present address. I went downtown and walked the lower Greenwich Avenue and train station area. I sat out in front of the senior center and had a White Owl New York Panatela cigar and returned home at 12:30 A.M.. I made a

Tony's Pepperoni pizza and am just about to try out my new blend in a cup of cappuccino. I have to go out in the morning, so I might take a nap some time this morning. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>12/14/98 Monday 11:00 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's Broadcast sound.htm . I had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. Well have a good day, I might go out about noon. CIO

Note:<888>12/14/98 Monday 9:55 A.M. EST: The bedroom backup system does not have the same problem with www.netzero.net , it seems that someone might have gained access to my system or some other program might have changed the networking setup. Please if persons or persons unknown are tampering with my system make yourselves known, or I will reset the password. It could be just a quirk from an update or some other file installed. It is amusing that one needs to install "ms128.exe" after uninstalling it and reinstalling the networking to get the Networking TCP/IP to work. For now the password remains the same. Also after setting up the Network one has to rerun MTUspeed setting it at "Optimal" MTU =1152, and Multiplier=6. Time for breakfast. CIO

Note:<888>12/14/98 Monday 9:30 A.M. EST: Warning the www.netzero.net dialer crippled my Networking and dialer in Windows 98. I strongly urge not to install it. I had to go to Networking and delete my entire Networking setup and reboot. I also uninstalled "128 encryption for dialup networking support" from the Add Remove programs. After rebooting I added the same Networking setup from the Add button in Networking. I also add to go to "Add Remove programs", "Windows Setup" to install the Microsoft Virtual Private Network. I basically have "Client for Microsoft Networks", "Microsoft Family Login", "Dial-Up Adapter", "Dial-Up Adaptor #2, VPN Support", "Microsoft Virtual Private Networking Adaptor", "NDISWAN->Microsoft Virtual Private Networking Adaptor", "TCP/IP Dialup Adapter", "TCP/IP Dialup Adapter #2 VPN Support" installed in Networking. I set Primary Network Logon to "Client for Microsoft Networks" with "Quick Logon". Also in the "TCP/IP Dialup Adapter #2 VPN Support" , I select "Properties" "WINS Configuration" and check "Disable WINS Resolution". I keep the other defaults in Networking. After rebooting after installing, I also found I had to install "128 encryption for dialup networking support" which is a file "MS128.exe" which I happened to have save on my hard drive in order to get the system to logon on to an ISP. Well the system is all running fine, and back to normal. I can't wait to get the Cable Modem service. Time for breakfast. CIO

Note:<888>12/14/98 Monday 12:00 A.M. EST: I signed up for Optimum @ Home: The Revolutionary Cable Modem Internet Service. which is now available in Greenwich. Installation will be on Thursday December 24, between 10 A.M. and 1 P.M.. They install a cable modem and connect it to the computer with an ethernet card which they sell for $30. I am renting the cable modem and service for $40 which is not bad since I will be able to delete both my ISP accounts that cost about the same. Well after all this time, it will be a short weight for cable service. Speed on Cable Modems reach 10 megabytes a second, much faster than the telephone, plus my only telephone line will be freed up. Well time for bed. CIO

Note:<888>12/13/98 Sunday 9:35 P.M. EST: <http://www.lotus.com/rw/direct.nsf/ss97cd> Lotus SmartSuite 30 Day Demo, free from IBM. CIO

Note:<888>12/13/98 Sunday 9:10 P.M. EST: I went out about 2 P.M., and stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the local paper. I went downtown and walked around a bit. I smoked a White Owl Panatela in front of the post office while sitting on the bench. I chatted with some local Sunday pedestrians. One of them wondered when I might be going to Palm Beach, but I don't have it on the itinerary at the moment. I am pretty much a stay at home anymore. I drove back down by the water. I returned home, and I stopped by Cumberland Farms and bought a gallon of milk for $2.85. I noticed in the building between Cumberland Farms and the Carvel Ice Cream store, they have a new Korean Farmers market, with the most reasonable produce I have seen in the area in years. All lettuce of different varieties was .79 a head, broccoli .79, cauliflower .89, avocado .79, celery .79, so I bought a head of lettuce for .79, avocado .79, mushrooms .99, and plum tomatoes .99 a pound for a total of about $3.09. I returned home and my dinner guest had arrived. We chatted a while. I made a mixed salad which we had early and then watched the evening news. I then cooked fresh broccoli, potato, ham, and ice tea. We relaxed and chatted after dinner. I went out with my dinner guest when he just left and gave him the music tapes I purchased earlier in the week. I smoked a Philly Tip, and came inside and filed this report. Well have a good evening, and tomorrow is another day. CIO

Note:<888>12/13/98 Sunday 1:20 P.M. EST: I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the local paper. I decided to go by CompUSA in Norwalk. I drove up there and the store was busy. I thought about buying the new Microsoft Works Suite for $79 discounted $20. I decided to go without. I toured the store for about an hour and left without spending any money. I drove up to New Canaan and had a large cup of coffee at Starbucks next to the train station. I sat outside and smoked a Philly tip and enjoyed the cool air in the evening. My arthritis began to act up in the cool air. I gave the Salvation Army kettle people a dollar in front of the fleet bank. I stopped by the news stand across from the Mobil station, and bought the local weekly newspaper for .75. I chatted with a Norwegian gal there about Norway. I drove over to the New Canaan Food Emporium and returned the cans I had in my car for $1.30 credit. I bought a 32 medium small shrimp ring for $4.99 and a large 38 ounce blue bag of 50 percent decaffeinated coffee for $7.99. Altogether it was $11.68. I returned to home to Greenwich via the Merritt parkway. I mixed the coffee in with my present mixture. I ate the shrimp ring right away and it was delicious with the sauce it came with. I got to thinking at COMPUSA they have their brand 19 inch monitor on sale for $399. I packed up the Acer I just gotten and drove up to CompUSA and returned it for credit, and bought the CompUSA 19 monitor for $160 more. Thus with the credit and the $24 sales tax the new monitor cost all together $423.99. Both monitor boxes just fit in the car with an inch to spare in the front seat. I returned home and installed the new CompUSA monitor, and it turned out to be one of the two percent that are defective in production. It's menu button would not work, and the on off switch stayed on, and when I pushed the menu button it collapsed into the case. I packed it up and decided to exchange it in the morning for a good one. I went to bed about 10 P.M. I woke up about 7 A.M., and had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. I next watered the plants and cleaned my apartment which took about two hours. About 9 A.M., I chatted with a family member. I read the New Canaan newspaper, and I noticed they have a choral today Sunday at 3 P.M. at the New Canaan Presbyterian Church which should be good. I noticed the houses are very expensive in New Canaan like Greenwich. I put my registration sticker for the next two years on my rear license plate, I had paid $74 for. I put the monitor to be returned in the car and stopped by the Exxon station and filled up the car with $10.85 in premium. I drove up to CompUSA in Norwalk and arrived a half hour before the store opened at 11 P.M., so I browsed the Barnes and Noble book store in the same mall. I noticed they did not have the Joy of Cooking with the Cdrom, but lots of copies without. I chatted with a fellow wearing a "Queen Elizabeth II" cruise ship cap on that looked like Dick Frances the famous equestrian horse writer. We chatted about various trivia. I returned to CompUSA with monitor and waited in line briefly and they gave me store credit to get the same monitor that is good. I checked the monitor boxes and selected one that looked like it had not been opened. The clerk said usually they have not been opened if there is only one layer of tape. I bought it with the store credit. I put it in the car, and drove back to Greenwich. I carried the monitor on a skate board, that a friend had left in my apartment. They weigh over 50 pounds. I installed it and it all works fine. I set up the menu selections to my preferences of light and contrast expanding the margins to the edges of the monitor. The CompUSA 19 inch monitor is 18 inches diagonally, where the Acer 17 inch was 16 inches diagonally. Thus I have 2 inches more diagonally. It is all working fine, and I will probably have a bit to eat and maybe go out for a stroll in an hour if it is still clear. Well have a good Sunday. CIO

Note:<888>12/12/98 Saturday 9:30 A.M. EST: Downloading

<http://www.musicmatch.com/cgi-bin/partners/MMJB.pl?DID=999990033> Juke Box Media Player, look at <http://dailymp3.com/mp3.html> for other media players all linked from mp3 downloadable music at the audio diner- serving the best free mp3 music on the web , downloading MediaRing Talk! program also.

Note:<888>12/12/98 Saturday 7:15 A.M. EST: Last night a friend from the New York Racing Authority stopped by to visited about 7 P.M.. We had dinner of ham, Brussels sprouts, potato and ice tea. We chatted until about 9:30 P.M.. I went to bed and got up at 6 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. I will now sift through my email this morning, it has been a couple of days since I have done that. Well have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>12/11/98 Friday 6:00 P.M. EST: I went back out at 2:30 P.M.. I drove by Putnam Trust Bank of New York and did some business. I chatted briefly with an officer about using a debit card, but one needs a checking account to use that, and I only have a savings account. I chatted briefly with an elderly Swedish gal who has been having arthritis pain, and she told me to go to Fresh Fields for the Glucosamine Sulfate pills which she showed me. I had looked at the book the "The Cure for Arthritis" and the Doctor who wrote it said one is suppose to take both the Glucosamine Sulfate and the Chondroitin Sulfate, so the elderly Swedish lady only has one of the necessary two ingredients, but she said she is feeling much better. I checked the different variations of the supplements out at Fresh Fields and then went over to CVS and looked at their Sun Down product line. I then went back to Fresh Fields and decided on the 90 capsule bottle of ArthriRescue which has both supplements in it. It costs $18. The other variations of the supplements were more expensive. I basically knowing a thing or two about vitamins know that the body can not always absorb mega dosages of vitamins or supplements, so frequently a smaller dosage over time will do the same good, besides what I purchased what was within my budget. I also bought an 8 ounce bag of Almonds. I next drove down Greenwich Avenue, and sat at the bottom of Steamboat Road observing the cloud formations in the winter sky. I next stopped by the Greenwich Library, and the local paper was unavailable. I said hello to local ornithologist, and mentioned most of my formal knowledge came from reading detailed lengthy books, not off the internet summaries. I next stopped by the Grand Union just before the five o'clock rush hour and the store was empty. I bought two quarts of Quaker State 10W40 oil for $1.99 a quart and a fresh Mrs. Budd's White Meat Chicken Pie for $2.99 for a total of $7.21. I noticed standing rib roasts were on sale for $3.99 a pound. I put a half of quart of oil in the car in the parking lot. I returned home and took one of the arthritis pills and drank a diet Pepsi. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well I might read some of my last two days email. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>12/11/98 Friday 2:30 P.M. EST: I went out after the last message. I drove downtown and bought a buy two get one free of Doral Lights for $6. I am still smoking about five cigarettes a day, and one cigar. I chatted with a couple of local citizens. I stopped by at the end of Steamboat Road. I viewed the beautiful clear cool day on the Sound. I then drove by the Hospital Thrift Shop and bought three cassette tapes including two of Christmas music for $5 all. I next drove over to Caldor's in Old Greenwich and bought a shower curtain liner for $3.29 and shower hooks for $2.49 for a total of $6.13. I gave the Salvation Army man at the door a $1 for the kettle. I then drove to Old Greenwich and stopped by the Old Greenwich Thrift shop. They're half price. They have a parallel port 2X Radio Shack Cdrom player with a joy stick that might work with plug and play for $5. I then stopped by the Old Greenwich CVS and bought Dental floss for .99, Licorice for .79, and a package of 20 Factory Value Mild Cigars for $2.69 with .27 CT. tax for a total of $4.74. I next went by Tod's Point and drove around. I sat on the center bench at the concession area and had one of the factory value cigars and it was quite good for a 15 cent cigar. So America still has a good fifteen cent cigar. I then returned home and hung the shower curtain liner and hooks. I had Ramen noodles with soy sauce and a peanut butter sandwich for lunch with a Schweppes Ginger Ale and then a cup of coffee. I received another Christmas card from a family member. I will go out shortly to enjoy the sunny afternoon. I finished optimizing the hard drive while I was out. The Norton Utilities Speed Disk crashes but keeps running to the end when I run it. Well have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>12/11/98 Friday 10:00 A.M. EST: Of course if you're stuck on the Rock, one could always check out The Helmsley Hotels CIO

Note:<888>12/11/98 Friday 9:55 A.M. EST: I just watched CNBC interview the chairman of Sun International , well I guess we all can't be in Paradise Island, Bahamas. I went to bed last night starting to download IBM Lotus Notes Beta 2 R5 on Notes.net! which was about 95 megs, and it was completed in about six hours when I woke up at about 2 A.M.. I then worked on installing and configuring the Lotus Notes beta 2 until 4 A.M.. I then slept until about 6 A.M., and downloaded AltaVista Discovery Search software while making breakfast. I had a Moser Ella Cheese omelet, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino for breakfast. I then installed the Alta Vista Discovery search software, and right now I am finishing updating the search index. I also copied the Windows 98 Cdrom files to my hard drive, for having them readily available for any updates are reconfiguration. I will optimize the hard drive once I am finished with the Alta Vista indexer. I will go out shortly do some errands. Well have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>12/10/98 Thursday 5:45 P.M. EST: I changed the format of my homepage, so it looks better on 14 inch and 15 inch monitors, along with being formatted in 800X600 on a 17 inch monitor. I went out about 12:30 P.M.. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and returned the three computer books, I took out yesterday after having used their CDROMs. I stopped by CVS and bought CVS mouthwash large 50 oz. for $3.49, Edge shaving cream $1.99, CVS disposable razors $2.69, CVS toothpaste $1.39 for a total of $10.13. I next drove down by the water and surveyed the waterfront briefly. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital and had an early dinner of the Roast Beef salad platter for $3.69 and a glass of water. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I stopped by the Grand Union and purchased a 12 pack of Lipton ice tea for $2.49, and a 12 pack Schweppes General Ale for $2.49 plus .60 deposit, a Tony's Supreme Pepperoni pizza $3.99, two Tropicana half gallon orange juices for $2.50 each, a large 500 pack box of Nutrataste sweetener for $3.99, a quart of Parmalat whole milk $1.45, two GU cans of Cranberry sauce for .33 each, a head of broccoli $1.50, a Thorne Apple Valley boneless ham at $2.49 a pound for $9.76 for a total of $32.23. I next returned home and put away the groceries. I chatted with a friend. I went outside and smoked a White Owl panatela and drank a frosted diet Pepsi. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well I was up early this morning, so I might go to bed in a little while. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>12/10/98 Thursday 11:00 A.M. EST: I worked on adding the banner ad advertisers. I also changed my screen resolution to 480X600, so internet pages will appear better for smaller monitors. I am having coffee, and will probably go out after I clean up. CIO

Note:<888>12/10/98 Thursday 4:10 A.M. EST: I put on some programs from the previous mentioned books, "Harley Hahn's Internet Yellow Pages" and two "Running Microsoft Windows 98" and "Windows 98 Preview Start" audio demo from the book "Running Windows 98". I the Adobe Acrobat Read Adobe Acrobat Free Reader and installed it. I went to bed at 4 P.M. and started downloading Symantec Trialware for United States Norton Utilities 30 Day demo, a 39 meg download. A friend called me up at 8 P.M., and the download was complete. I installed the Norton Utilities download and ran various maintenance programs until midnight. I went back to bed until 2:30 A.M. running a backup from drive C: to drive D:. Thus I have my entire system pretty well tweaked and running fine. I did not catch the update for Microsoft Investor at 4 A.M. our time, so I did not update that file. I am thinking about not updating that file, since only about one person a day looks at it. I just had breakfast of Kellogg's corn flakes, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. Well back to morning net activity. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>12/09/98 Wednesday 12:25 P.M. EST: I went out at 8 A.M.. I drove down to Long Island Sound on Steamboat Road and surveyed the morning haze burning off. It is a clear cool beautiful day with a high about 50 degrees. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop and drooped off the older computer equipment that I was going to donate yesterday which I did not do in the rain. I went by Putnam Trust Bank of New York and conducted some business. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and stopped by CVS looking for a gift. Instead I went to Waldenbooks and purchased for a family member the last copy of the New "Joy of Cooking" that comes with a CDROM of the book for $50 plus tax and shipping. Hopefully they don't already have a copy. I then went down by the Post Office and paid my Cable and Wireless bill for internet access of $14.95 plus .80 for a money order. I then had a Philly tip in the post office plaza. I then went by the Mews Thrift shop and viewed the merchandise. I next went by Exxon and purchased $13 of premium at $1.43 a gallon. The price of oil may be down, but gasoline certainly is not down in Connecticut. I next went by the Greenwich Library and read three computer newsweeklies and the Greenwich Times. I checked out three computer books with Cdroms "Upgrade and Manage Your PC" which comes with a Norton Utilities demo, "1999 Harley Hahn's Internet Yellow Pages" which I will copy the online directory from the cdrom to my local hard drive, and "Running Windows 98" which has the Windows 98 manual on the cdrom and utilities that I will copy. I then stopped by the Town Hall to drop off some correspondence. I returned home and made a cup of coffee. I guess I will spend the afternoon working on the computer, but I really feel like getting out and enjoying the day. CIO

Note:<888>12/09/98 Wednesday 6:30 A.M. EST: I went to bed at about 6 P.M. last evening. A friend stopped by from 7 P.M. to 8 P.M.. I went back to bed until 2:30 A.M.. I got up had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I tweaked the backup 486 system resetting the modem init string and downloading updates. The slower 28,800 baud modem on that older system does not always connect to the faster local ISPs, but several of them seem to work most of the time. I will defrag my C: drive with the large Favorites file when I got out this morning. It takes quite a while, since there are over 70,000 files in that group of files. I updated Scott's Broadcast sound.htm , this morning for your listening pleasure. Thus I will be going out about 8 A.M. this morning or slightly later. Have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>12/08/98 Tuesday 4:40 P.M. EST: I never did make it out today. It is a cold damp rainy day, good day for staying inside. I tested the IBM Lotus Notes 4.6 Gold Demo. It seems to work fine, but since it is a time expiring demo I uninstalled it. I don't think I will download the 5.0 beta 2, since it would take a bit of time. I also moved my C:\windows\favorites back to the C: drive from the D: drive, leaving room for a larger backup file. I downloaded some Windows 98 update files including the IE 5.0 beta Java file update. I will now do a C: drive to D: drive backup before going to bed. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening, I am bushed. CIO

Note:<888>12/08/98 Tuesday 11:00 A.M. EST: I signed up for ClickTrade Affiliate Partner Programs: Increase web site traffic and develop sales. in hopes of possibly generating a little revenue from my web sites to offset expenses which seem to be climbing at the decline of my lifestyle funds available. Hopefully my site will be accepted, and I might have a little revenue to defer expenses on my internet operations. I am just about done downloading the IBM Lotus Notes 4.6 Trial Lotus Development Corporation . CIO

Note:<888>12/08/98 Tuesday 9:00 A.M. EST: I surfed the net a bit this morning. I looked at the weather programs I have downloaded. I loaded up two 14 inch monitors, a 386 PC, and 486 PC without memory, and the Memotec to be dropped off at the Hospital Thrift Shop in about an hour. I am downloading in five parts Lotus Development Corporation IBM Lotus Notes 4.6 Gold Domino program which is free 90 day demo. It is about a four to five hour download, so I am doing it in five parts. I will go out once I download the second part, and start the third part. I just had dinner of baked boneless breast of chicken with a bacon strip, Dijon mustard, chopped garlic, herbs and spices, in white wine, along with baked potato, and baked onion, and mixed farm vegetables. I had this with ice tea and a cup of coffee. I am reading some news stories on the internet. It is colder out today, so I guess one should expect to stay inside more. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>12/08/98 Tuesday 2:45 A.M. EST: I went out at 1 P.M. and made my 2 P.M. appointment for my every two year physical. Everything seems to be all right healthwise. I drove downtown briefly afterwards, and returned home and went to bed at 6 P.M.. I got up at midnight. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I chatted briefly with Cable and Wireless Tech Support to see if the Primary DNS and Secondary DNS numbers on their servers are still the same. I cleaned up and showered. I will drop off two 14 SVGA color monitors at the Hospital Thrift Shop this morning when they open along with an older 386 and that Memotex CX1000 that has been sitting underneath my bed for a year. It is suppose to get colder again. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm , and now I will start my daily routine. CIO

Note:<888>12/21/98 Monday 7:55 P.M. EST: Well I had an all nighter last night, and I am back on a night schedule. I was having problems with my floppy A: drive working in Windows 98. I fiddled exchanging the drives and cables to no avail. I finally installed a second 3 1/2 inch B: drive, but I still had a problem writing to both drives in Windows 98 giving an error message. I fiddled with system files and nothing seem to work. I went to bed at 9 A.M. this morning without resolving the problem. I was up about 4 P.M. this afternoon. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, fresh Florida fruit, vitamins, and orange juice. I showered and cleaned up. I went back to work on resolving the computer floppy problem. I searched the Microsoft site and found no answer. I remembered that the problem first started when I installed the new monitor. I tried the floppies on a lower monitor setting of 800 X 600 and they both worked fine. I figured it was on my onboard video comptroller was not powerful enough for the new monitor. I set the CMOS "refresh" rate for it to 12 which the manual recommends. I then put the Monitor Video setting at higher resolution of 1024X768, and once again the floppies did not work. I fiddled with combinations of the video controller and monitor refresh rates. I finally lowered them from 85 HZ to 60 HZ for both which are the lower defaults, and both floppy drives work fine. I set the Monitor adjustment to enlarge the smaller picture frame to the edges and lowered brightness on the monitor button settings from 50 to 40. Thus everything is working fine, and still looks the same. When I can afford it, I guess I could get a more powerful video card that would support the higher refresh rate of 85 HZ, but for now all is fine and I now have both 3 1/2 inch floppy A: and B: drives working fine. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well time to take a break at the library. Have a good evening. I have to be awake on Thursday morning for the Cablevision Optimum Online Cable Modem installation. CIO

Note:<888>12/20/98 Sunday 8:30 P.M. EST: Today I was up at noon. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, Fresh Florida Fruit, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. I cleaned the apartment and watered the plants until about 3:30 P.M.. I cleaned up and went out at 4 P.M.. I stopped by the library and read PC Magazine. I found a Compaq online services cdrom in the magazine. I went for a walk downtown. It was not busy, and I chatted with one local I had not seen in a while. I smoke one of the Old Greenwich CVS fifteen cent cigars at the post office plaza. I drove down by the water and viewed the waterfront. I returned home and decided to get rid of some vintage computer hardware. I dumped an old PC case in the dumpster outside. I also took the two IBM 386 servers that weigh about 60 pounds apiece to the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop and dropped them off in front. I returned and throughout the day I have been listening to classical music for a change which is very relaxing. I also chatted with a couple of family members today. One of them is thinking of getting a top of the line Dell Computer system for Christmas. I had a dinner of sliced ham, potato, and green beans along with ice tea and cappuccino. I will do a little bit of internet work throughout the evening. Well have a good evening, and enjoy yourselves. CIO

Note:<888>12/19/98 Saturday 10:55 P.M. EST: I went to bed at 3 A.M. last night. I was up at 9:30 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I watched a little television on the impeachment debate and went back to bed. I watched more around noon time and rested a bit more. I chatted with an acquaintance around 2:30 P.M. for a while. I had some ramen noodles and a peanut butter sandwich along with Cappuccino. I went out after having cleaned up around 4 P.M. and stopped by the Greenwich library and read the local paper. I went downtown and bought a buy two get one free of Doral Lights which I have been still smoking a few of every day. I noticed lots of Christmas Holiday shoppers out along with a few dog walkers. They were setting up again for the Christmas

Nativity Pageant on the town Green again. I smoked a White Owl Panatela at the Post Office. There were a few dog walkers out that I chatted with. I returned home via the Grand Union. I bought a gallon of GU whole milk for $2.99, two half gallon Tropicana orange juice for $2.50 apiece, and I Can't Believe It's Not Butter for $1.29 for a total of $9.28. I returned home and watched the ABC evening news. I then relaxed a bit eating some goldfish crackers. I started watching a program about pirates on the learning channel. I guess quite a few of their descendants are still lurking in these waters. I ate the shrimp ring that I purchased last night along with Ramen noodles. I chatted with a friend. I sat around relaxing for a while, and thinking. I went outside and dumped the shrimp remains in the dumpster. I smoked a Middleton small tip cigar. I came back inside and spent the next hour making a fresh Florida Fruit salad. I sectioned three grapefruit, five orange, and six clementines and mixed them together in a large bowl. I added a half cup of white wine, a jigger of Mount Gay Eclipse Rum, a tablespoon of Angostura Bitters, a half cup of orange juice, and sprinkled it all with cinnamon and mixed it all together and put the mixed fruit salad in a sealed Rubbermaid container to sit overnight and soak up the flavoring which should be enjoyable for the next few days. I decided to file this report, since my major activity is on the computer and I have invested most of my resources into this activity. I was thinking today since I get over a thousand pages logged on each day which have the Value Link click through, I am getting less than .1% click through on my pages instead of the .8 to 1% I should be getting. Thus I am making less than a $1 a day on the clickthroughs. It goes to show a lot of the internet business might be hype and is not really there, since I seem to have over 10,000 different users on my site each month. Either something is rotten in Denmark, or I am being taken to the cleaners. I also noticed today in the Greenwich Times classified that somebody is trying to sell unused copies of Microsoft Office 97 $500 value for $100, but since Universities around the country sell this product for $5, it sounds like some enterprising college student is trying to profiteer. I suppose, <mailto:billg@microsoft.com> could send me a copy, but I guess he and all his minions are too busy. After all it is not like I have done anything to help out Microsoft or IBM on my site, since the general public seem to have made that determination. Well I guess I will start being the internet philosopher and worry less about commerce. Perhaps someday, I will learn what all the hub bub is about over the internet, since having always used libraries constantly in my neck of the woods, I have never had a shortage of reading material. I personally regard the Internet as the All Night Library Research Tool, and not the commercial product it seems to be becoming. Well I hope everyone is beginning to wind down as the Holiday season approaches, and enjoy their down time. I received another Christmas package from a family member, and with my early Christmas computer gifts, I look forward to having an enjoyable internet year. I suppose we all should try to think more about the truly less fortunate during this holiday season and spread some cheer around. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>12/19/98 Saturday 12:30 A.M. EST: I finished sifting through my email. I spent some time day dreaming at these two sites Harbor Branch Oceanographic Institution, Inc. and STARSHIP MILLENNIUM VOYAGE . Well at my age, I guess I would settle for a rubber raft in a warm swimming pool. I am tired, time for bed. CIO

Note:<888>12/18/98 Friday 9:00 P.M. EST: I went to bed yesterday at 3 A.M.. I was up at 9:30 A.M.. I posted a link to ValueLink's subscribe site on my homepage. I have only had 9 click through links, but I will keep using the service, since even a minimal amount of click throughs would help pay for my internet activity. I spent most of the rest of the day maintaining the system. I deleted most of the betas and downloadable files on the system and freed up a lot of space. It gave me enough room to back up the entire C: drive to the D: drive. I also made a tape backup which I just finished a little while ago. I thus have the system tweaked and ready for use. I had Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino for breakfast. At about 5 P.M., I made a chef's salad with escrodril lettuce, ham slivers, mozzarella slivers, sliced mushroom, chopped onion, chopped olives, and four crumbled bacon strips with olive oil, wine, herbs and spices, and Dijon mustard dressing with ice tea and cappuccino. I went out at 6 P.M. and stopped by the Greenwich library and read two of the regular computer weeklies I normally read. I went downtown and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. It was cooler out this evening. I smoked a White Owl panatela in front of the post office. I watched a Nativity Choral Production by the youth and local citizens on the town green with live animals until 7:45 P.M. It was very enjoyable. I stopped by the Exxon gasoline station next to the Greenwich Library and bought $10.90 of premium at $1.47 a gallon. I stopped by the Food Emporium and bought a gallon box of Pepperidge Farm goldfish cracker for $4.99 and a 33 medium shrimp ring with sauce for $4.99 for a total of $9.98. I returned home and the tape backup was complete. I am having a Diet Pepsi and Pepperidge Farm crackers while I write this. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . IBM was up quite a bit today. I checked out the videotape "The Mission" from the library. Well have an enjoyable evening. I might make a shrimp salad tomorrow. Speaking of shrimp, I noticed a white Volvo from Monroe Country where Key West is parked in front of the Colonial Diner about 8 P.M.. We must have visitors from the Conch republic in Greenwich. Well have a relaxing weekend. CIO

Note:<888>12/18/98 Friday 1:10 A.M. EST: I received the IBM SmartSuite 30 Day Demo and installed. Some of the scripts don't work in WordPro including the one that starts ViaVoice. IBM should study its demo more closely. I am off to bed. I hope people don't mind the click throughs. I am a bit bushed. CIO

Note:<888>12/17/98 Thursday 9:00 P.M. EST: I was up at 10:30 A.M. today. I worked all day until now installing the ValueClick Click Through Advertising on my web pages. I also created a new downloadable directory scott005.zip available for download from download.htm . The new directory has the Military directory incorporated into it, along with the ValueClick Click Through advertising. I hope to derive some modest income from the ValueClick through advertising in order to help pay for some of my internet activity which is draining my resources. I made it to my 3 P.M. appointment today. I had Kellogg's corn flakes, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino for breakfast, and for dinner this evening I had a Stauffer's Lasagna and a diet Pepsi. I also made up a new batch of icetea.htm this evening. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm. Well have an enjoyable evening, I think it is time to start relaxing before going to bed. CIO

Note:<888>12/17/98 Thursday 2:40 A.M. EST: ValueClick - The Pay For Results Advertising Network accepted me for paid advertising click through links, which means I get a dime for every time somebody clicks through on one of their ads. I added some of the ads links to my more popular pages and I may add more to other pages as time permits. Well I hope this might yield a little income to pay for my computer expenses. Well have a good evening, I am bushed. CIO

Note:<888>12/16/98 Wednesday 11:50 P.M. EST: I worked on the internet until about 6:15 P.M. this evening. I checked with Optimum Online if they could install me sooner, but they're very busy. I changed my email with them to "mikelouisscott@home.com" which does not have a number in it. I guess the current installation on Christmas Eve still applies. Well as far as I can tell not much else is happening around here. I noticed a modest group of senior citizens coming out from an internet lecture for beginners at the Greenwich Library when I was departing from copying some information that one of the local agencies needs. I made a copy of another receipt at the copy place across the street. I went downtown and walked around lower Greenwich Avenue. I noticed that where Quinn's grocery use to be, they have installed some sort of furniture shop. I smoked a Philly Tip at the Post Office. It was a very quiet cool evening, with the usual lurkers about town. I returned home and verified with Optimum Online that "mikelouisscott@home.com" was my new Optimum Online email which should be valid on Christmas Eve. Well not much else is happening in this neck of the woods. They finally have the Christmas lights lit up on Greenwich Avenue, and it looks a bit festive. The weather is warm enough I don't think we will have any snow for Christmas in this neck of the woods. There is some sort of military news on the television, but it might just be another rebroadcast by the propaganda bureau. The National Media news says they're going to wait until Monday to try to impeach Clinton, if he does not resign sooner. It does not make sense to me, since from all my extensive historical reading over many years, all presidents have lied and fooled around since the office was founded. It is the nature of the job. I suppose there is a new higher morality in the country, which is why the military propaganda is promoting adventure in the middle east. From the Arm Chair travelers point of view, if we get nuked, copper wires in the ground are more likely to work than optic fibers in the sky. Well who knows if what is on television is true, since for all I know they're all on vacation in Brazil, and the local maintenance crew is causing mischief. Well it is time to bid adieu until next time. CIO

Note:<888>12/16/98 Wednesday 4:20 P.M. EST: I went out at about noon. I dropped off some mail at the Greenwich Town Hall. I drove by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop and toured the merchandise. I bought a Mercedes Benz Cobalt Blue coffee cup for .25. I noticed they have a automobile refrigerator there for $25. I chatted with a few of the regular patrons. I next went down Greenwich Avenue and viewed Long Island Sound, as far as I can tell it is still there. Local waterfront people like flying a great big United States flag, which looks lots better than the old faded glory flying from the veterans monument downtown. I next stopped by the Greenwich Library. One of the regulars is going to buy a Dell computer for business work. I briefed him a bit about computer ops. I read the Greenwich Times. One of the regular library patrons wrote an article in the Editorial that noon is 12 A.M. and midnight is 12 P.M. for those of us who have it backwards. Well I use to know that, but so many people have it backwards on the internet, I started doing it wrong. I chatted with another internet patron, and he told me that one can use Hotmail or Yahoo mail to access one's personal email account off of another server. I will have to try that some time. After about 2 P.M., it got extremely loud in the library with jack hammers going from all the construction outside, so I departed. I returned home and earlier in the day I had received a Half Bushel of Grapefruit and Oranges from the Hale Indian River Groves in Wabasso, Florida. I ate an orange, along with two clementines I already had. I decided to make a Chef's salad. I put some of that good reddish lettuce on a plate, with lots of slivers of ham, and slivers of mozzarella cheese, sliced mushrooms, diced onions, chopped olives, crunched crispy bacon with a dressing of 3/4 th cup olive oil, 1/4 cup white wine, two tablespoons Dijon mustard, teaspoon garlic powder, teaspoon of Italian spices and oregano, ground pepper, and a half teaspoon of Lea and Perrins Wostershire sauce. I mixed those all up in a big bowl, and put it in a salad dressing holder and added some to the salad. I wolfed down the salad. I then filed this report. I will update Scott's Index scopor01.htm shortly. Well have a good day, and enjoy what is left of it. I also read in the local paper that the Sovereign of the Seas ran aground in St. Martins, and will be out of commission for a month or more. Let's hope Carnival Cruise manages the Cunard Line better. CIO

Note:<888>12/16/98 Wednesday 11:40 A.M. EST: I was up at 9 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of Kellogg's corn flakes, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I did a little internet work for a while. I checked with www.optimumonline.com and they said to keep checking back to see if there is an earlier appointment. They told me that my email address would be (mikescott1@home.com), apparently somebody has already taken the name without the "1". Frequently people have tried to use names like mine as names of convenience. Let me assure you, I am the Michael Scott with the background in my resume.htm, and anyone trying to impersonate me, better have my same education or a better one. Realistically having spent 44 or my 48 years constantly in the library, I have a pretty good idea of what some of the other "Mike Scotts" are up to, and quite a few of them are on the internet. Let's just hope they don't pretend to be people they are not and screw up in affairs they don't understand. I surmise, when push comes to shove, I will still be the same Mike Scott in Greenwich living around IBM all these years, along with the Republican Party activity, and NASA familiarity and a network of friends and associates derived from our family's historical ties in the community and the country. Well have a good day, and give my best to any other Michael Scotts you may stumble across. The most important Michael Scott in the English speaking language, I believe is the Marquis of Queensbury, but he would be quite a bit older than I am, although he might have younger children or relatives. Well time to clean up and go out. CIO

Note:<888>12/15/98 Tuesday 8:00 P.M. EST: Sorry, I did not make it to the Yale Club on Vanderbilt Avenue this evening, but my best regards to old Taft school chums. I guess if there are any Vanderbilts in the hinterlands, one would have to look for slightly overweight Dutchmen. There was an interesting article in the Greenwich Times today, that Prince Claus of the Netherlands has decided to forsake neck ties since he considers them an inconvenience, which is much my sentiment. Well any Dutch folk in the area might consider paying their regards this Holiday season, since this representative of the New Amsterdam Night Watch, is just about fed up with arthritis in this chilly weather, and is not spending much time out on cool evening strolls, until it warms up in the spring during tulip time. Well I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the local paper, and one computer newsweekly. I also checked out the "Windows 98 Resource Kit". It was very slow in the library, and the town Christmas lights are lit up on Greenwich Avenue, and it seems to be the festive Christmas season. I had a Tony's Supreme pizza for dinner along with ice tea and a cup of coffee. I am only drinking 50% decaffeinated coffee, so I am not as wired on coffee as I normally am. It is nice to slow down the pace of life away from caffeine and cigarettes. Well have a good evening, I will go back to a little net surfing. I am not well enough versed on the national political situation to comment on the general crisis in Washington D.C., since I have been focusing on computer technology, but I suppose the "Will of The People" will win out. CIO

Note:<888>12/15/98 Tuesday 4:30 P.M. EST: I did some internet work checking my email for a while. I then checked my monitor settings, and the slightly darker grayish four inch area in the lower right hand corner of the screen was still there. I checked with CompUSA tech support at 1-888-226-6772 and they said I should exchange it for one without the defect. I thus packed the monitor back up again and returned to Norwalk to CompUSA and exchanged it for another unopened box. They are very courteous and willing to exchange defective merchandise. I returned home and set up the new monitor and it works fine with no defects as far as I can tell. I set the wider perimeter on the new monitor again, and left the defaults except reducing the brightness from 50 to 30 to reduce eye strain when using it for extensive periods. I really like the monitor and it is an excellent value for $399. I am also using the Acer 19 inch monitor driver for the Acer 99C model, which might manufacture the CompUSA monitor since they're both made in Taiwan. I found this article on 19 inch monitors Top 10 Monitors and since the ACER 99 C is the only one that is actually 18 inches diagonally, I figure they might manufacture the CompUSA 19 inch monitor. Thus I am using their 99 C driver successful instead of the default Windows 98 Plug and Play monitor driver. One can see that other 19 inch monitors are substantially more expensive and the CompUSA 19 inch monitor is an excellent value. I noticed when going out on Western Junior High Road that across from Western Junior High, what I thought was going to be a new house is a four story modular housing complex with the components trucked in and lifted by crane. It is quite a large building for that corner lot. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm , which was up today. CompUSA symbol "CPU" was up 3% percent today after being low for quite a while. I actually like the CompUSA chain, since one does have the opportunity to browse the merchandise and return quickly if there are any problems. Well have a good evening. I am about to have dinner, and finish checking my email, and about 5:30 P.M. or slightly later I will go to the library. CIO

Note:<888>12/15/98 Tuesday 11:30 A.M. EST: I was up until 4 A.M.. I "Degaussed" my new monitor with the "Purity" setting on "0" and that seemed to eliminate the slight shadow in the lower right hand corner of my screen, and then reset "Purity" to "80".. I got up again at 9:30 A.M. and had breakfast of Kellogg's corn flakes, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. Well back to internet work. CIO

Note:<888>12/15/98 Tuesday 2:55 A.M. EST: File Mine - Virtuosa Gold 3.0, Freeware Audio Program. The laundry is done. I don't need to make ice tea yet. CIO

Note:<888>12/15/98 Tuesday 12:50 A.M. EST: I worked on the computer until 2 P.M.. I went out downtown and stopped by the Greenwich Library, and read the local paper. I chatted with a few of the local patrons. I went downtown and walked around until my arthritis kicked in, and then went inside for a while. I made my 4 P.M. appointment. I stopped by down on Steamboat Road and observed the waterfront. I chatted with one waterfront observer about the well preserved GMC he was driving. I returned home and watched Peter Jennings on the ABC evening news. I had a big dinner of ham, salad, broccoli, potato, and ice tea. I got a tired spell after a heavy dinner and went to bed about 7:30 P.M.. I received a phone call from a relative about midnight and chatted for a spell. I decided to get up from my night sleep after the phone call, and I started doing laundry. I guess I will work on the internet, and go back to bed later this morning. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>12/31/98 Thursday 11:30 P.M. EST: I went out for a walk on lower Greenwich Avenue at 9 P.M.. There were lots of cars mostly at the movies, I believe. Starbucks was closed. I noticed a few people on the train station platform going into New York. Rue du Croissant, Thataway, Figaro, and the French restaurant at the corner of Grigg street, and Dome were busy with New Year diners. I saw out at the Post Office Plaza and had a Old Greenwich fifteen cent factory made cigar. I noticed while walking the Christian Science Reading room has a broken window on it front window display with a piece of plywood inserted in it. I walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue. I chatted with another local evening walker. I drove down by the waterfront on Steamboat Road, and the Greenwich Harbor Inn and Maneros had lots of cars. Thus there are lots of people out, they're just not walking around in the 20 degree weather. The weather report is for sleet on Saturday night with medium snow on Sunday. Thus people should try to get ready for snowy winter conditions. I am having a glass of ice tea and relaxing reading internet stories. Well Happy New Years to all and stay warm, burr. CIO

Note:<888>12/31/98 Thursday 8:50 P.M. EST: I was up at 8 P.M.. I had breakfast of Oat Meal, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I will finish my cappuccino, and go out for a little fresh air after I shower and clean up. I will start a C: drive to D: drive backup. Happy New Years. CIO

Note:<888>12/31/98 Thursday 12:35 P.M. EST: I have been up all night since the last message. I spent most of the night tweaking the system. I add a few system irregularities that I fixed. I basically had to uninstall and reinstall some programs. Everything is working fine now. I went out at 9 A.M. this morning. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I stopped by the Post Office and obtained four money orders to pay my Optimum Online, Cablevision, MCI, and GEICO. I stopped by Zyns and bought two buy two get one free of Doral Lights for $6 apiece or $12 all together. I returned to the car and stopped by CVS and bought a four pack with coupon of 40 Watt light bulbs for .99 and Old Spice 3.5 ounce deodorant stick $2 plus tax .18 for a total of $3.17. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop. They have an old coffee table there for $100. I stopped by Exxon and bought $11.50 of gasoline. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought Dawn Power Plus liquid dishwashing detergent $2.49, a gallon of Pepperidge Goldfish crackers $5.29, I Can't Believe It's Not Butter .99, a pound of Cutrefellos mozzarella cheese $2.99, two pounds of Early Morning bacon for $1.50 each, Perdue Boneless Breast of Chicken for $2.99 a pound total $4.40, GU 5 pounds of sugar $2.09, two Tony's Supreme pizzas for $2.50 each $5. total, and three Tree Ripe fresh orange juice half gallons for $1.99 each plus .15 tax for a total of $32.37. The Grand Union was full of the Old Guard. I then went by the Arnold Factory Bread store and bought three loaves of Healthnut bread for a total of $3.49. I then returned home and put away the groceries. I had some Fresh Florida Fruit salad, Ramen noodles, and ice tea. I then filed this report. I am a little bit tired, so I will go to bed shortly. It is warm and comfortable inside my apartment, but it was a bit cold outside today, probably in the low 20s. Well have a Happy New Years. CIO

Note:<888>12/30/98 Wednesday 10:25 P.M. EST: A friend of mine came down at 7:30 P.M., and we went out to dinner at Thataways Restaurant at the bottom left on Greenwich Avenue. We both had the sirloin grill sandwiches, with French Fries, and I also had ice tea and coffee. I just returned. It is cold as it gets outside, it must be below ten degrees F. outside with a wind chill well below Zero. Well we are suppose to have 40 to 50 mph hour winds, to make it feel even worse. I guess you can call it an arctic cold front. It is warm and comfortable inside my apartment, and I turned the heat up a bit, and also have the DeLongi oil filler radiator going. Well back to the net. I am fiddling with the Communicator Plugins, so they work with the @home interface. Stay warm. CIO

Note:<888>12/30/98 Wednesday 4:35 P.M. EST: I have awoken, and it is time for breakfast. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . CIO

Note:<888>12/30/98 Wednesday 7:15 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's Broadcast for this week sound.htm . Well time for bed. CIO

Note:<888>12/30/98 Wednesday 6:20 A.M. EST: I have been working on the internet and system all night. It was pretty slow on the net until about 11 P.M.. I suppose with all the youth home from school and business people working at home, the net is slow. However my system is up to snuff as far as the setup. I downloaded Netscape Communicator 4.07 from their web site at 4 A.M. and got over 550 Kbytes a second, which is just as fast as I would expect to go at the max. It took less than a minute for a 30 meg file. I checked with Optimum Online support at 1-203-750-8790 a half hour before closing at midnight. Bill there gave me a tip to run from your Windows 98 Cdrom to install "E:\tools\mtsutil\ipac_off.inf" by right clicking on it and selecting "Install" with the computer online to the cable modem. He said it turned off a setting I don't need. I downloaded some of the plugins and addins to Communicator 4.07 also. I am frustrated that the IE 5.0 interface to @home does not work with my bookmarks immediately, but takes about five minutes to load. I did not figure out a way to work around that. I had MS IE 5.0 setup as my web browser default, so when one clicks the @home Icon it starts MS IE 5.0. I can start @home by starting Communicator without the wait. Basically it is a minor annoyance, but I like the @home interface for Microsoft Internet Explorer better since you can use it in a full window, however I don't intend to give up my Favorites. I had a Club sandwich about 3 A.M. and a bowl of Fresh Florida Fruit just now. Well it is time to be off to bed. Have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>12/29/98 Tuesday 8:20 P.M. EST: I worked on the computer yesterday morning until about 5 A.M. doing routine computer work. I chatted with on fellow down in Florida about General Motors. I had a CVS factory made cigar outside about 5 A.M.. I made a fresh Florida Fruit salad by sectioning three grapefruit, three oranges, four clementines, and mixing them together with a cup of orange juice, a cup of cranberry juice, two teaspoons of Angostura bitters and two jiggers of Mount Gay rum. I let the who mixture sit in the fridge for a day in a Rubbermaid container, and it should be ready for tasting about now. I got up at 4 P.M. and had breakfast of Old Fashioned Oatmeal, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I got a tired spell after breakfast, so I went back to sleep until 8 P.M.. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well I have to clean up, I don't know whether I will bother going downtown. CIO

Note:<888>12/29/98 Tuesday 1:40 A.M. EST: I have worked on the internet all evening. I went out briefly for a half hour around 9 P.M.. It is cold and lightly raining outside. I did my laundry this evening. I had another club sandwich for a light mid day snack about 10 P.M.. Not a lot happening on the net, with people relaxing over the Holidays. Well back to the net. By the way, the net speeds up a lot about midnight here. CIO

Note:<888>12/28/98 Monday 5:00 P.M. EST: I was up at 4 P.M.. My alarm did not go off, so I missed my 4 P.M. appointment, I called to day I would not be there. I had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I optimized the hard drive. I am using the Win98 version of speed disk, since the Norton Demo will expire in two weeks. I am listening to tech news stories. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>12/28/98 Monday 4:45 A.M. EST: I put up a sound file Beethoven's Ninth Finale <http://mrscott.com/beeth09.htm> to show how one can encode a Real Audio file from CD with MusicMatch: The Jukebox and rename the resulting .ra file .rm and place it in a Microsoft Media Player plugin and to have real time music from one's server. CIO

Note:<888>12/28/98 Monday 2:00 A.M. EST: I had a club sandwich about midnight along with a cup of Cappuccino. I logged onto the MP3.com - The MP3 resource on the Internet site and downloaded MusicMatch: The Jukebox , and then downloaded 36 songs about 110 megabytes from MP3 in about an hour. Now I have some local music on my hard drive for my listening enjoyment. Well the house is not exactly rocking, but I am warm and comfortable on this December Eve. Back to the Net. CIO

Note:<888>12/27/98 Sunday 11:00 P.M. EST: I went to bed about 6 A.M. this morning after checking out some net speeds. At the early hours of the morning between 3 and 5 A.M., I was getting 450 Kbytes a second uploading and downloading on the modem, so it is really fast when lots of people are not on the net. During the day, I am about five to ten times faster on the net with the cable modem. I also chatted with a tech person further out in Connecticut. He convinced me to set my onboard VGA and monitor to 85 HZ, which works much better and is less difficult on the eyes. The floppies still work, so it might have been a problem with a file, that I fixed when I reinstalled software like IE 5.0 beta. I went to bed about 6 A.M.. I was up about 5:30 P.M. after a good days sleep. I had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I chatted with a family member. I watered the plants and cleaned the apartment until about 8:30 P.M.. I cleaned up and went out for a walk on lower Greenwich Avenue which I walked twice. I smoked a White Owl panatela at the post office plaza. It was not too busy out with just a few people going to movies. It is in the low 30s F.. I stopped by Cumberland Farms and bought a spare pack of Doral Ultra lights for $2.34.. I am listening to www.imagineradio.com which has diverse music. I have to make myself another club sandwich, I am a little hungry. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>12/27/98 Sunday 3:40 A.M. EST: www.cablemodeminfo.com CIO

Note:<888>12/27/98 Sunday 3:10 A.M. EST: After doing all this I went out about midnight and drove downtown to the Chase money machine, since the Putnam Trust ATM is out of cash. I drove down Greenwich Avenue. I went back to Byram and stopped by Cumberland Farms for a gallon of milk for $2.89 and a pack of Doral Ultra Lights 100 for $2.19. I returned home and made a new batch of icetea.htm this time using a can of Ginger Ale in lieu of a cup of wine. I made another Turkey, Ham, Bacon, Cheese club sandwich for my meal. I had a cup of Cappuccino. I have not cleaned up today, so I will wait until after I do house cleaning when I wake up today to clean up. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>12/27/98 Sunday 2:50 A.M. EST: I was up at 6 P.M. today. I had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, fresh Florida fruit mix, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. I started working on the computer after breakfast. I looked at some cable sites about tweaking the Windows 98 setup for use with a cable modem. I found this site PH Net - Cable Modems . I set my "MTU" to 1500, Default MSS to "1460", and "DefaultRcv Window" to 64240. I will show where they are referred to in the text of the page I am pasting here.

* = Changes Scott used in excerpt of page below.

Recommended Registry Settings for Windows 95/98

Open the Registry ( START-RUN-Regedit ) and modify all the following parameters. If the keys don't exist, you'll have to create them. Don't forget to Backup your Registry, before editing. The best value for each variable is in RED.

HKey_Local_Machine\System\CurrentControlSet\Services\Class\NetTrans\000n (Where "000n" is your TCP/IP protocol. It contains "TCP/IP" assigned to the "DriverDesc" Value)

*I used MaxMTU="1500"

MaxMTU="1500" (string var, can be 552, 576 or 1500)

MaxMSS="1460" (string var, power of 2, 40 less than MTU)

* I did not find MaxMSS in the above registry key above , but I found "Default MSS" in the registry key below which I set to "1460"

* For "DefaultRcv Window" below I used "64240". I tried the other higher settings, but this setting on my system gave the most uniform download speeds, although some of the other produced higher download speeds results, they would drop back and were more irregular. I would advise backing up your registry before tampering with the settings, and the recommendations for Windows 98 in the page link above, I did not use on my system just the three you see mentioned with the "*".

HKey_Local_Machine\System\CurrentControlSet\Services\VxD\MSTCP

DefaultRcvWindow="64240" (DWORD decimal var, or string var, 4xMSS, 8xMSS or more...Can also be 4xMTU+24. Best settings to try are 64240 , 46720, 32120, 17520, 11680 and 8760 , in that order)

Note: If you're using Windows 98, you can try a larger value, however you'll have to experiment to find out whether you get any improvement with those ( you might want to try 372300, 186880 and 93440 ). If you're using Windows 95, stick to the previous recommendations, the maximum RWin should be a multiple of MSS, not exceeding 64K.

DefaultTTL="128" (string var, 32, 64 or 128)

PMTUDiscovery="0" (DWORD decimal var, zero for optimal performance)

PMTUBlackHoleDetect="0" (DWORD decimal var, zero for optimal performance)

Note:<888>12/26/98 Saturday 7:30 A.M. EST: Another night of web surfing. I tried to change most of my email addresses on my subscription email sites. I am a bit bushed, and I think it is time to rest. At night the Cable Modem is incredibly fast, more than I ever expected. I downloaded Microsoft Office - Microsoft Publisher 30 Day demo, to try out very quickly. CIO
 Note:<888>12/25/98 Friday 11:00 P.M. EST: I went out for a walk after cleaning up. I dropped off a videotape at the book drop at the Greenwich Library. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. It is about fifteen degrees F. outside. I noticed at the train station garage computer dumping area they have three computer metal slide drawers which normally cost $50 apiece, and several older wide carriage printers. I noticed a group coming out of the movie theatre. The Sun Down Saloon and the Globe Restaurant along with the Chinese restaurant were open. There were a few strollers out and about. I smoked a CVS cigar at the Post Office plaza. I drove down by the water on Steamboat Road and surveyed the sky and the stars. I returned home about 10 P.M.. Since I am overweight, having lost three pounds from 209 to 206, I decided not to cook a large Christmas dinner. Instead I defrosted some white turkey meat left over from Thanksgiving, I toasted two slices of bread, and put Dijon mustard on one piece and low fat mayonnaise on the other piece, I microwaved three strips of bacon, I put a slice of ham on the Dijon piece, I put slices white turkey meat on top of that with a few drops of Tabasco sauce, I put slices of mozzarella cheese on top of that and then three strips of crispy microwave bacon on top of that and the other piece of bread with the mayonnaise. I did not have lettuce or tomato to add to the Club sandwich, and which as usual I cut it into triangular quarters. It was an excellent Christmas meal with a Diet Pepsi. I am now having a cup of cappuccino. Well back to the faster net. Merry Christmas. CIO

Note:<888>12/25/98 Friday 8:10 P.M. EST: I just finished listening to BBC News | Christmas and New Year | Queen: Ties that bind the generations Queen Elizabeth's Christmas Broadcast. I will link it from the homepage. CIO

Note:<888>12/25/98 Friday 7:40 P.M. EST: Since the last message I worked until 9 A.M. this past morning making a backup from the C: drive to the D: drive which took one hour fifteen minutes. I also ran Norton Speedisk which took over five hours and left it running when I went to bed at 9 A.M.. I slept until 3 P.M. getting up some time to shut down the computer when the Speed Disk program was complete. I chatted with family relative during the period I was asleep and after I woke up. I started a tape backup of the C: drive which took 4 hours and 15 minutes. Thus I have the system all tweaked and routine maintenance performed including the two backups. I found out, that one can turn on the Cable Modem with the computer turned on, and it works fine initiating, and one does not need to turn it on with computer off. I have my cable modem power connected to the Ground Fault protected control panel, so I just flip a switch to turn it on, along with the other components. Well I got some nice gifts for Christmas including my Computer accessories which I am using. Well Merry Christmas. I will probably have a Christmas dinner around 10 P.M. CIO

Note:<888>12/25/98 Friday 2:50 A.M. EST: On the Florida site, I am uploading at 300 kilobytes a second. CIO

Note:<888>12/25/98 Friday 2:30 A.M. EST: I uploaded a slightly larger version of scottie1.zip linked from download.htm, the large Microsoft Internet Explorer Favorites File Group with 62,078 working file links which added to the U.S. DOD file group means Scott's has 72,293 Favorites available for download. I basically added about another 500 links from the tech news letters I read in the last month, and there are a few new links in the "Shopping and Malls" category for your shopping pleasure. It takes about 300 Megabytes for both file groups in FAT 32, so it is a hard disk hog. I also found out that Optimum AT Home Microsoft Internet Explorer Web Interface tries to import all the favorites every time you open it, which takes five to ten minutes, so I recommend using the Netscape interface to open At Home's content. They should give an option on opening the Favorites. This happens every time you open their MS Internet Explorer interface. With the Cable modem at this hour of the day, I uploaded the almost 18 meg file to California in about fifteen minutes at 150 kilobytes a second. Pretty good speed across country, but of course in the daytime it would be much slower. Let's hope somebody enjoys it somewhere in the world. I also left my MTU settings as they were before, I don't know if they effect Cable Modem speed on the LAN. I will have to look into that. I suppose, they might be right. Also I reinstalled MS Internet Explorer 5.0 beta 2 from the download on my local hard drive, to have the original beta files installed. I hope this does not affect any of the other MS upgrades. I also changed the count and email in the "scott005.zip" download. Well I think I might do a speed surfing and maybe try chatting a bit before going to bed. CIO

Note:<888>12/25/98 Friday 12:40 A.M. EST: Merry Christmas to All. I am warm and comfortable staying inside. My new cable modem service from <http://www.optimumonline.com> is working great, lots of increased speed particularly at night. Of course in the day time, one slows down a bit because of net congestion and slower sites. I had a bowl of Progresso New England Clam Chowder about 7 P.M. and some Ritz crackers. I slept from then until 10:30 P.M. when family members called up. It is great having a free telephone line for the first time in eight years of online activity, so I can receive incoming phone calls while online on the internet. How times have changed. I hope everyone enjoyed their Christmas Eve services. I updated my email settings and checked out the Cable configuration. Everything seems to be running fine. I will test out a few sites, before going back to bed and resting and relaxing. I sent out change of email messages to a few people. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I have about an inch of snow on my car, and feel like relaxing in the warmth and comfort of my apartment before getting some sleep. Merry Christmas. CIO

Note:<888>12/24/98 Thursday 2:30 P.M. EST: I went to bed at 3 P.M. this morning and awoke at 8:30 P.M.. I had my usual breakfast. I cleaned up and awaited the arrival of Optimum Online. Three Optimum Online Technicians arrived at 10:30 A.M. and after installing the cable split from the wall after testing the circuit. They installed an Intel Ethernet 100 MB card in the computer and connected it to the Cable Modem, which I set on top of the computer. I connected the cable modem power supply to the Control Panel ground fault interrupter for electrical surge protection. The computer technician installed the software and setup the system. They were pretty dang fast and had it all installed by noon. Thanks again guys. I downloaded some of the web browser updates from Cablevision and add-ons. Downloading is super fast. When the system boots, it logs onto the At Home Network. The At Home Icon boots Netscape Communicator. However, Microsoft Internet Explorer also starts with At Home interface if desired. I can not get it to start fast though, since it take about five minutes to load my large bookmark file, into its interface, thus I open it to my local copy of Scott's Site. I checked the settings the technician setup on my system on the network, and will have to jot them down, so I remember for future reference. The service is extremely quick depending onto what sites one logs onto, and the time of day. I am most pleased with the professional of the installation by the crew. I do recommend plugging in your cable modem power supply to your ground fault interrupter power supply. I will have to do a bit of net surfing. We had an inch of snow this morning. My new email is "mikelouisscott@home.com". Well Merry Christmas Everyone. CIO

Note:<888>12/24/98 Thursday 2:15 A.M. EST: Time to get a long nap, before getting up around 9 A.M. to wait for the Cable Modem installer to arrive this morning. Have a relaxing Christmas Eve. CIO

Note:<888>12/23/98 Wednesday 9:10 P.M. EST: I was up at noon and had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cappuccino. I felt a tired spell, so I went back to sleep until 4 P.M., so I am up on a night schedule. I had a snack of Ramen noodles and Fresh Florida Fruit salad at 6 P.M.. I went out at 6:30 P.M. and stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the local paper, and two computer newsweeklies. I went for a walk downtown on lower Greenwich Avenue and smoked an old Greenwich factory made fifteen cent cigar at the post office plaza. Not much is going on around town, and it is quite slow with the colder weather. The library was virtually empty. The library elevator has been broken for the last two days, so people have to enter through the back basement entrance. I heard that they will be closing at 3 P.M. on Christmas Eve. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm , so the Stockmarket is doing quite well. However, more than likely that will change next year, and the River Boat gamblers whom are profiteering during our economy's bullish period will probably be going back to other forms of less profitable gambling. Still the sense of prosperity is in the air, but prosperity is only a temporary illusion, more than likely "Good Health" is more important in the long run. For those of you whom don't pay much attention to the night people whom work the night hours of the day, remember, "Half the World Dies at Night". Well enough of the gloomy predictions, so let's hope everyone has a "Merry Christmas", and a "Prosperous and Peaceful New Years". If one feels like attending Christmas Eve services in the area, Christ Church has an earlier service about 7 P.M., and if one times it right, one can leave that service about 9 P.M., and make it to St. John's Cathedral in the upper west side of Manhattan for their Christmas Eve service about 10 P.M., which is quite a delight to see such a large group of people. I am looking forward to having my cable modem service installed tomorrow between 10 A.M. and 1 P.M..

Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>12/23/98 Wednesday 3:20 A.M. EST: I am bushed time to sign out for the day. Stay Warm. BrRrRrRr! CIO

Note:<888>12/23/98 Wednesday 1:45 A.M. EST: I signed up for another universal email address which I probably won't use at NET@DDRESS - Free E-Mail For Everybody! . CIO

Note:<888>12/23/98 Wednesday 1:45 A.M. EST: I took the long Microsoft Favorites file off the Florida site, and left it on the California Site linked from download.htm . I added Queen Elizabeth's Christmas 1997 Christmas Broadcast File at the Florida site linked from gb.htm . I also added the Previous Scott's Broadcasts linked from sound.htm at <http://mrscott.com/soundpr.htm> for those of you whom want to listen to some of my earlier broadcasts. I will use the additional space at the Florida Site for this purpose, until I have other content. The California pages will link to the Florida site. It will be a little bit more difficult to maintain both sites, since they won't be identical, but since my *.zip files occupy a lot of space and don't generate a lot of traffic, although they are my main effort, I will post less of them at both sites gradually. I also have 2 Gigabytes transfer at the Florida site now, so I have more baud with without overcharges for now. CIO

Note:<888>12/22/98 Tuesday 11:15 P.M. EST: I had dinner of bacon, ham, and mozzarella cheese omelet, toast, ice tea, and cappuccino. I went out at 8 P.M. and stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the local paper. It was not very busy. I noticed downtown that it was not busy either since it is cold out for a change. I walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue and the lower section three times. It is was comfortable enough for me since I wore my long underwear, turtle neck along with Canadian Goose sweater and down parka and Icelandic Knit cap and leather gloves to stay warm. It is a windy cold wind. It is suppose to get colder, lets hope it is not five degrees on Christmas day that might be a little too cold. I found a walking cane discarded in front of Lecters at the post office boxes, and I placed it by the entrance to the senior center. Starbucks was busy with Holiday coffee drinkers. I suppose this time of year, most people are getting ready for the deep freeze. I put out my DeLongi oil filled electric radiators for a little extra heat. It is plenty warm in the apartment. I also activated the humidifier to remove the dryness and put in some of the humidity that electric heat takes out of the apartment. I suppose I will do a little net surfing this evening. Enjoy the morning hours, and I hope everyone is warm enough. CIO

Note:<888>12/22/98 Tuesday 6:45 P.M. EST: I went to bed at 5:30 A.M. this morning. I was up at 12:30 P.M. when a friend called. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, fresh Florida fruit, vitamins, orange juice, and cappuccino. I dressed and went out and stopped by the Stamford YMCA to deliver a letter and a package my friend had received. I also dropped off some housekeeping provisions for him. He plans to take the bus from the Port Authority in Manhattan on early Wednesday morning to visit his family in Northern Vermont. He is truly a cold weather person for these parts. I then stopped by the Old Greenwich Thrift shop. I stopped by the Old Greenwich CVS and bought twenty factory made mild cigars for $2.85. I drove out to Tod's Point, but it was a bit cold. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove down to Zyns and bought a pack of buy two get one free of Doral Lights for $6. I smoked one of my factory fifteen cent cigars in front of the post office. I drove by the Arnold Bread Store outlet and bought two loaves of Healthnut bread for $2.58. I returned home and showed one of my neighbors my internet setup. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening. After dinner, I will probably stop by the library and read the computer press. It is pretty cold out, suppose to be going down into the 20s. CIO

Note:<888>12/22/98 Tuesday 5:20 A.M. EST: I tweaked a few setting on the computer. All seems to be running fine. I noticed in an older CompUSA circular from November that my CompUSA 19 inch monitor had been on sale there for $350 with an instant rebate instead of $399 which I paid. Maybe if they have it on sale in the next 30 day period, I will get back an extra $50 which I could use since they have price protection. Well it works fine for me. I listened to some "Oldies" on www.spinner.com . In my broadcast sound.htm in mentioning Liberty Travel's package to Tobago Trinidad & Tobago Destination main staying at the Mount Irvine Bay and Golf Club, the price I was quoted last December was $850 per person double occupancy with airfare. I guess there are a lot of new destinations in the world, so this is no longer off the beaten path. Well I hope to see some daylight today, so I will bid adieu and catch some shut eye. Enjoy the beginning of today, before it gets cold. CIO

Note:<888>12/22/98 Tuesday 1:40 A.M. EST: I updated my weekly broadcast file sound.htm .

Note:<888>12/22/98 Tuesday 12:00 P.M. EST: Well I went out at 8 P.M., and stopped by the Greenwich Library and read a copy of the Greenwich Times. Today they had lots of copies. I read InfoWorld Computer Newsweekly. I went for a walk on the lower section on Greenwich Avenue. It was a cool damp evening. An artic cold spell is suppose to come in tomorrow afternoon. I smoked a CVS Factory made fifteen cent cigar in front of the senior center. There were not many people out on Monday night. I returned home and started my laundry, and I just finished putting it away. About 10:30 P.M., I had a bacon and mozzarella cheese omelet, a bowl of Campbell's low fat clam chowder, and a Schweppes Ginger Ale and then a cup of Cappuccino. I have put on weight and weigh 209 pounds I need to loose ten to twenty pounds. I weigh more now than I ever have. I suppose with all the sedentary activity in front of the computer, I don't get enough physical activity, although I don't really eat that much. I will now do a little internet activity. Enjoy the morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/07/99 Thursday 6:05 P.M. EST: I went back out at 2:15 P.M.. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I drove down by the water on Steamboat Road, and viewed the harbor. The weather forecast is for light snow tomorrow. The weather report seems a little confused, in that they said we were having a gale. My understanding is that a gale is usually winds above 50 miles per hour that come with lots of rain. Today it was clear and cool with winds about 30 miles per hour, so I am not sure if it was actually a gale or not. The latest news in the grapevine is that the town has a great many flu cases, and the Greenwich Hospital is almost filled to capacity with flu cases. I saw one person wearing a face mask today trying to avoid catching or spreading the flu. Well lets hope no one gets any severe illnesses. I feel find after a busy daytime schedule. I read one computer magazine in the library, and it was the normal level of activity there. I returned home and chatted with two of my neighbors. I had a light dinner of Ramen noodles and fresh Florida fruit salad. It is a bit blustery out, so lets hope everyone has adequate shelter, and provision is made for those without. The old Norwegian Rule of Law is that all people are suppose to have shelter during the cold season unless you happen to be an Eskimo who likes chilling out. I suppose the amount of activity this afternoon reflects the fact that are plenty of able bodied people around to lend a hand in any eventuality. Well I will do a little net surfing. Have a good evening. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm, the market was down a bit today, and as they say down on the street what goes up must come down. CIO

Note:<888>1/07/99 Thursday 1:55 P.M. EST: I was up until 8 P.M. last night doing a bit of web work. I awoke this morning at 4 A.M.. I uninstalled Norton Utilities demo and Microsoft Publisher demo. I had breakfast of HoneyNut Cheerios, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cafe au lait. I cleaned up. I wrote a letter to a family member and printed out my accounts. I started optimizing the computer and left it running while I went out on my morning errands. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York, the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I went by the post office on Greenwich Avenue and obtained a money order to pay my telephone bill. I stopped by Subway barber across the street and had my ears lifted. I drove down by Steamboat Road and observed the waterfront. I drove over to ELDC and viewed the merchandise. I stopped by Stables in Old Greenwich and a toner cartridge for the HP Laser II is $69.99 in HP model or $59.99 in Xerox recycled cartridge; I decided not to get one just yet.. They still carry lots of cartridges for that model, so I guess it is still steadily used. I drove by the Old Greenwich Thrift Shop and bought a Veterans of Foreign Wars calendar for a quarter. I drove out to Tod's Point and sat in my car on the South West parking lot and started to smoke a Old Greenwich Factory made cigar a bit and then walked out to the point while smoking it in the blustery wind. I spent about a half hour observing the waterfront and enjoying the cigar in the high wind. I noticed about a dozen walkers on the point some with dogs. I returned to the car and stopped by CVS in Old Greenwich. Shopping in Old Greenwich is enjoyable since it is less hectic. I bought a can of Danish butter cookies for $2.99, 32 oz of Windex Cleaner for $2.49, two 6 oz CVS air fresheners for .99 both, two bars of Dove for Sensitive Skin $1.99, CVS invisible tape .79, two 100 count Gold Emblem CVS brand Hals cough candies in Cherry and Honey Lemon flavor, a bag of licorice .99, Italian Herbs .89, a 20 count bag of Factory Made JAVA cigars for $6.83, a 20 count bag of Maduro cigars $3.33, and five 12 oz. cans of Honey Roasted Mixed Nuts for a total with $1.06 CT. sales tax of $36.26. I next stopped by Portocellis Food Mart next to the Old Greenwich Train station. I was looking for Squirt grapefruit soda since I had seen an empty can of it at the beach. They told me 7UP distributed it, but it was not available there. I chatted with an employee who was giving away Boars Head ham samples and cheese samples with mustard and horse radish dressing. I chatted with him about Hickory smoked Jack Daniels Hams they have down in Tennessee. I then bought an excellent roast beef sandwich at the deli for $3.60 with potato chips, a 6 oz. bottle of Pinders Horseradish for $2.29, a 5 oz. bottle of McHilleneys Tabasco pepper sauce for $2.89, and a 4 oz. bottle of Angostura bitters for $2.99 with CT sales tax of .22 for a total of $11.99. I noticed they have lots of expensive shrimp in the store that looked really good. It is one of my favorite food stores in town, and the display was a feast for the eyes. The lighting is not too bright in the store, so one does not get eye glare when looking at the merchandise. I was told that half the orange crop had frozen in Florida, so one can expect a lot of inexpensive orange juice coming our way as a result of it. I noticed they sell imitation Cuban cigars near the tobacco case at Portocellis, Old Greenwich. I then returned home at noon and put away the groceries and other items. I put horseradish and Tabasco on the roast beef sandwich and had an enjoyable lunch with a can of Lipton Ice Tea and regular coffee. I then filed this report. I have a 3 P.M. appointment, and then I will probably read the weekly computer press in the Greenwich Library. Well have a good afternoon. It is rumored we might have snow tomorrow. CIO

Note:<888>1/06/99 Wednesday 5:30 P.M. EST: I took a three hour nap this morning. I downloaded and installed Web Trends Demo, I posted my December Stats wtst0199.htm in their format. I went out at 1 P.M.. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I went by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and parked down on Steamboat Road for a while. I returned to the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop and bought an old HP LaserJet II printer for $20. I returned home and tested it. It needs a new $65 cartridge, so I won't be using it, and it is not very fast anyway. I put it on the bedroom desk. I had some Ramen noodles for dinner along with ice tea. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I noticed the Queen Elizabeth II was in New York yesterday, and leaves Miami tomorrow Thursday January 7 for its Around the World Cruise. Well if you don't like cold weather catch it in Miami, you only live once this time around. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/06/99 Wednesday 8:20 A.M. EST: Well I am done with the web work for the day. I made up a batch of icetea.htm . It is time for a nap. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/06/99 Wednesday 5:40 A.M. EST: I added the Connecticut Web Sites Guide to the Favorites directory download.htm in the Destinations category. CIO

Note:<888>1/06/99 Wednesday 4:50 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's Broadcast sound.htm . Well I had a bowl of Fresh Florida Fruit after the last message. I then went out to Cumberland Farms and bought two packs of Doral Lights for $5.25. I noticed four Greenwich Police cars had pulled over a red jeep. I drove downtown and drove down by the water on Steamboat Road and observed the Sound, listening to the NOAA weather report which said it is 19 degrees F. here. I noticed two police cars and a glass truck were at the Laundromat at the Grand Union shopping center. I returned home and made a cheese omelet, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cafe au lait for breakfast. I will continue my internet work this morning, have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>1/06/99 Wednesday 2:05 A.M. EST: I uploaded the new downloadable Microsoft Internet Explorer Favorites available from download.htm . I tried until 6 P.M. when the internet slowed down. I went to bed at 7 P.M.. I woke up at 1 A.M. and finished uploading. I need to go out briefly for some smokes in a little while. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/05/99 Tuesday 6:00 P.M. EST: Believe it or not I am getting 80 Kbps uploading to California this time of day, so I guess they have the @home service running again better in Connecticut. I am connected by phone also to IBM Armonk ISP this might make a difference. I am just finishing uploading the new Microsoft Favorites available in the download download.htm page. I already had dinner of chicken, ham, cheese, and bacon BLT with ice tea and cafe au lait about 4 P.M.. I might sneak out for a brief spell after I finish the upload. I download some interesting audio files for making one's own broadcast from www.shoutcast.com today. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/05/99 Tuesday 5:30 P.M. EST: I did not rest this morning, I continued my regular internet routine. I decided to reorganize my Microsoft Favorites downloads download.htm into 11 smaller downloadable files, which can be added to the c:\windows\favorites directory, all or part depending on ones desires. I will upload them to the California site this morning when I wake up, since the net is too slow this time of day. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening, I don't know whether I will go out for a spell or not, probably not, I am tired. CIO

Note:<888>1/05/99 Tuesday 9:00 A.M. EST: I went to bed at 11 P.M. after a call from a friend on Long Island. I got up at 4 A.M. and started tweaking the system. I moved about 80% of my Favorites into a separate folder, so the IE @home interface starts faster in about a minute. I checked with @home at why the CNN video clips don't play in its interface, they said to download the www.vivo.com plugin for IE. The site is busy right now. However a vivo clip does play locally of Connecticut news, so maybe there is something wrong with the @home CNN interface. I will have to check that later. I also setup my newsgroups for Outlook 98. Well I am tired, time to rest some more. CIO

Note:<888>1/04/99 Monday 10:00 P.M. EST: I search @home newsgroups for info on the bookmarks, but to no avail. <http://home.tampabay.rr.com/philip1/cable.htm> and <http://www/V3/guide/chat/newsgroups.htm> . I found this note on cable modem setting for Win98 and Win95. CIO

Subject:

The right cable modem tweaks for Win 95/98

Date:

Sat, 12 Dec 1998 23:28:23 GMT

From:

"Dr Falken" <i.will.keep.th@t.2myself.com>

Organization:

@Home Network

Newsgroups:

athome.users-win95

Recommended Registry settings for Windows 95/98

Open the Registry ( START-RUN-Regedit ) and modify all the following parameters. If the keys don't exist, you'll have to create them. Don't forget to Backup your Registry, before editing.

HKey_Local_Machine\System\CurrentControlSet\Services\Class\NetTrans\000n
(Where "000n" is your TCP/IP protocol. It contains "TCP/IP" assigned to the "DriverDesc" Value)

MaxMTU="1500" (string var, can be 552, 576 or 1500)

MaxMSS="1460" (string var, power of 2, 40 less than MTU)

HKey_Local_Machine\System\CurrentControlSet\Services\VxD\MSTCP
DefaultRcvWindow="64240" (DWORD decimal var, or string var, 4xMSS, 8xMSS or more...Can also be 4xMTU+24. Best settings to try are 64240 , 46720, 32120, 17520, 11680 and 8760 , in that order)

Note: If you're using Windows 98, you can try a larger value, however you'll have to experiment to find out whether you get any improvement with those you might want to try 372300, 186880 and 93440 ). If you're using Windows 95 the maximum RWin should be a multiple of MSS, not exceeding 64K.

DefaultTTL="128" (string var, 32, 64 or 128)

PMTUDiscovery="0" (DWORD decimal var, zero for optimal performance)

PMTUBlackHoleDetect="0" (DWORD decimal var, zero for optimal performance)

Additional (and important) Windows 98 registry settings

HKey_Local_Machine\System\CurrentControlSet\Services\VxD\MSTCP DefaultRcvWindow="372300" (DWORD decimal var, or string var, 4xMSS, 8xMSS or more...Can also be 4xMTU+24. Recommended settings to try are 372300, 186880, 93440, 64240, 32120 and 8760 , in that order)

HKey_Local_Machine

\System\CurrentControlSet\Services\VXD\MSTCP\Parameters

Tcp1323Opts="3" (string var, recommended setting is 3. The possible settings are 0 - No Window scaling and Timestamp Options, 1 - Window scaling but no Timestamp options, 3 - Window scaling and Time stamp options.)

SackOpts="1" (string var, recommended setting is 1. Possible settings are 0 - No Sack options or 1 - Sack Option enabled) MaxDupAcks="3" (DWORD decimal var, taking integer values from 2 to N.

 Recommended setting is 3)

This should do it for those of you who wants to try it...

--

Dr Falken

END

Note:<888>1/04/99 Monday 5:20 P.M. EST: I reinstalled the @home Internet Explorer Interface to try to get the Quick Time player to work to no avail. It also set it up again to load Favorites. I tried reinstalling the Windows 98 updates and Internet Explorer 5.0 beta 2 again to replicate the feature that eliminated the Favorites to no avail. I decided to leave as is for now, and use Communicator for the @home interface for now. I get a script error when quitting the @home interface with Internet Explorer. I guess @home needs to fix that. I started optimizing the drive and went out at 9 A.M.. I stopped by the bank and picked up funds. I paid my rent. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop, and then drove down to Steamboat Road to observe the water. I drove up to CompUSA in Norwalk and was given $21.20 cash refund on the price protection policy on the purchase of my monitor. I browsed the Merchandise for about an hour, but did not buy anything. I was told if you want to network a second computer to a cable modem, you can buy a networking hub for $50 and run the cable modem into that, and then connect both computers to the network hub. One can buy a 10 meg ethernet card for $20 or a 10/100 card for $40. The cables are about $10 for three feet and $18 for $12 feet, so for my particular installation to add the backup computer it would cost about $100 with tax, which I decided not to do. I noticed you can buy a USB two plug adaptor to the motherboard for $10, which I might buy whenever I get a USB device. I returned back via Darien, and the Darien thrift shop was closed for construction. I went by the New Canaan Visiting Nurse thrift shop and it was closed until January 17. I returned back to Greenwich via the Merritt Parkway and down Round Hill Road. I stopped by the Greenwich Healthmart and bought a 100 tablets of 500 milligram Niacimide for

$7.95. I stopped by CVS and bought Spectracite multiple vitamins, E-400, B-12, C, Zinc, B-100, and Garlic pills, and European Mystic Shampoo for $18.97. The "Your Life" vitamins are 50% off at CVS. I drove down the Avenue to the Mews thrift shop and toured the merchandise. I drove back down Steamboat Road again. I returned home and the optimizing program was still running. I made a ham and cheese omelet, three strips of bacon, toast, and ate it with ice tea and cafe au lait. I went out at 2:30 P.M. and stopped by the Grand Union and bought two half gallons of milk for $1.67 each or $3.34 total. I then stopped by the Exxon gasoline station next to the library and bought $9.65 of premium at $1.47 a gallon. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read this weeks PC Week and another computer magazine. I made my 4 P.M. appointment. I returned home and the optimizing program was still running, so I quit it to file this report. I guess the drive was very fragmented from all the updates, I reinstalled. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well I will probably have a small bite to eat and go to bed, it has been a long day since last night. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/04/99 Monday 4:20 A.M. EST: I finished the laundry. While doing laundry, I downloaded all the Windows 98 updates installed on the computer since I first bought Windows 98 when it was first released. I downloaded them and installed them in groups of the different categories, including reinstalling MS Internet Explorer 5.0 beta 2. I could do this fast with the cable modem. The system seems to be running much faster, more over when one starts the @home interface for Internet Explorer with my 72,000 favorites, it does not load the Favorites anymore with the long delay, instead it starts up the interface without the Favorites right away which is great. I had a problem with FrontPage Express beta which I have had before, so I uninstalled it, and reinstalled from the IE 5.0 setup file, for some odd reason it prompted me for a disk, so I put in my Windows 98 disk, and it installed the older version on the disk which I overwrote when prompted with older files from the disk. It works fine now. Thus if FrontPage Express is working on your system, I don' t recommend installing the beta from IE 5.0 beta 2. The overall system is running fine again. I ran System File Checker from System Information with the default setup installation file installed, and only two files which I left as is have changed from Windows 98 original installation. They are C:\windows\system\user.exe and C:\windows\system\iosubsys\amsint.mpd . I just finished cooking boneless breast of chicken with wine, herbs, and garlic with baked potato and onion. Thus I am just about to sit down to dinner. CIO

Note:<888>1/04/99 Monday 1:30 A.M. EST: We supposedly had a little rain Sunday morning. I went to bed about 11 A.M. after chatting with a family members and another friend. I slept until 8 P.M.. I got up and had breakfast of Cheerios, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cafe au lait. I watched a program on the History Channel on the "Last Days of Adolph Hitler". I rearranged my backup computer in the bedroom and transferred it onto the glassware cart and bar next to the laser printer, and moved the contents of the top half of the cart underneath the television in the television cabinet. I now have the backup computer about six feet from the primary computer, where I guess I could put an Ethernet Card in the backup computer, and put a cable T split coming out of the cable modem, and with about a ten foot Ethernet CJ5? cable I could connect the backup computer to the cable modem hopefully. I got a tired spell and went back to bed and got up at midnight. I showered and cleaned up. I started my laundry, and it should be done in about an hour, I have to do the drying cycle shortly. I might go up to CompUSA about 9:30 A.M. in the morning when they open at 10 A.M., and check on my $20 price protection refund on my 19 inch monitor , and look into the networking contents for the backup computer and see what they would cost. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/03/99 Sunday 7:55 A.M. EST: It is raining heavily out, so most of the ice should be washed away soon, but it is not a good day to go out particularly if one has arthritis, so I will sit back and remain comfortable in my warm and comfortable apartment for the rest of the day. I have finished reading the internet stories and my email for the day. I listened to BBC a bit this morning. They have my 19 inch monitor on sale at CompUSA this week for $379.99, so with 30 day price protection, I will go up there some time this week and pick up my $20 difference from what I paid. There is nothing I need up there for now. Well I suppose lots of travelers coming back from the West coast won't be able to make it back since the Chicago Hub at O'Hare will be closed until Tuesday. Enjoy a quiet day. CIO

Note:<888>1/03/99 Sunday 5:00 A.M. EST: National Catastrophe Team Home CIO

Note:<888>1/03/99 Sunday 4:50 A.M. EST: I posted this notice at the three front exits and on the bulletin board, hopefully by the time the seniors are awake, it will have melted. CIO Warning, Ice and Sleet Conditions Outside. Watch Out For Slippery Sidewalks!

Note:<888>1/03/99 Sunday 4:30 A.M. EST: I went out at 4 A.M., and there is about a eighth of an inch of sleet over everything outside. I scraped the ice off the windows of my car, and I decided not to drive, since the roads are not sanded yet. I could hear the sand trucks in the distance, and it is warm out, so hopefully with sun rise about 7:30 A.M. most of it will have melted. Since we have early risers in the retirement home, I will post "Ice Warning" notices at the exits as soon as I print them out. I smoked an Old Greenwich CVS factory made fifteen cent cigar out by the front entrance. Well once the sun comes out it should be a nice day, since it is only about freezing and hopefully it will warm up. Well have a good morning. I guess the planes and jets at Westchester Country Airport will need to be deiced before they take off for any travelers. CIO

Note:<888>1/03/99 Sunday 3:45 A.M. EST: I had baked boneless breast of chicken in wine with chopped garlic, bacon, and oregano on it, along with baked onion and baked potato and green beans I threw out, because they had been previously defrosted. I am listening to <http://www.bbc.co.uk/radio5/live/stub/output28.ram> Morning broadcast. I here they are calling the Euro counties "Euroland". I guess this means since I am half Dutch, one fourth French, and one fourth Scottish, I am of "Euro Scottish" Descent. I guess I should have a T-Shirt made up saying "Euro Scottish", so any of the curious visitors in the area will be able to identify my origins, but I don't think I feel like wearing a T-shirt in the present weather. For now I will be an American Mutt. Well I am having regular coffee, and I might go out at 4 A.M., and pretend like I am on a shift change. I might have to dust a light powder of snow off my car, I won't know until I go outside. I also have to brush my teeth and gargle to get rid of the garlic and onion smell on my breath. Well here is to the "New Amsterdam Dutch Nightwatch" or the "Freezing Norwegian Patrol" as some of the locals call it. I guess it could be the "Scottish Black Watch" in the English vernacular. CIO

Note:<888>1/03/99 Sunday 2:00 A.M. EST: I was up at 8 P.M. last night, and I had breakfast of cheerios, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cafe au lait. I started house cleaning and watering the plants, and I just finished since I also did a little computer work updating the site in California where ftp is now working. I chatted with a fellow from India at the site about what it is about. I guess the server had to recycle. I still have to have a club sandwich and clean up. I noticed a light layer of white snow or ice outside, but I have not been out yet. I will probably wait until morning to go out, since there is no point in going out on a sleety night if the forecast is right. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/02/99 Saturday 7:30 A.M. EST: I put the Pearl Harbor Memorial Listing in HTML format with a little code tweaking in the text editor, see pearlmem.htm . Well I better start slowing down. CIO

Note:<888>1/02/99 Saturday 5:50 A.M. EST: I did some minor corrections to my homepage. The California site still won't let me upload changes for some odd reason. CIO

Note:<888>1/02/99 Saturday 3:35 A.M. EST: I download and am about to install CyberSpyder Link Test . I am maintaining my usual work routine this morning. I also updated Scott's stats.htm .CIO

Note:<888>1/02/99 Saturday 1:55 A.M. EST: I have been looking at www.goes.noaa.gov weather satellite photos. I also just had a turkey, ham, bacon, and cheese club sandwich along with ice tea and cafe au lait. I also found this report from the National Weather Service which indicated temperatures I assume in Fahrenheit not Celsius which indicates it is petty dang cold outside here, report follow. CIO

CITY SKY/WX TEMP DEWPT RH WIND PRES REMARKS

NYZ049-050-052>054-071>077-020700-
.... SOUTHEAST ....

ALBANY PTCLDY -4 -11 71 CALM 30.61
NEW YORK CITY CLEAR 11 -6 45 NW8G20 30.62 WCI -3
LA GUARDIA PTCLDY 13 -9 36 NW16 30.58 WCI -15
JFK AIRPORT PTCLDY 12 -6 43 NW17 30.59 WCI -18

$$

NYZ005>009-017-018-044-045-055-056-020700-
.... CENTRAL....

BINGHAMTON CLEAR -3 -7 82 W5 30.44 WCI -8
WATERTOWN CLEAR -22 -29 69 SE6 30.62 WCI -33
SYRACUSE SNOW 6 2 83 W6 30.59 VSB 3/4 WCI -2

$$

NYZ026>028-035-041>043-020700-
.... NORTHEAST....

GLENS FALLS CLEAR -12 -16 82 CALM 30.57
MASSENA CLEAR -17 -24 69 W8 30.62 WCI -35

$$

NYZ003>004-010>016-020700-
.... WEST ....

BUFFALO MOCLDY 2 -6 68 S3 30.55
ROCHESTER FLURRIES 6 -1 72 SW5 30.56 WCI 2

$$

Note:<888>1/01/99 Friday 11:20 P.M. EST: I just read that Champaign, Illinois where my father's family are from and where NCSA is located is expecting 18 inches of snow tonight. Also a tip to the wise, particularly for us in this area tomorrow night Saturday when we're expecting sleet. Don't lock you car door unless you have to for security reasons, because frequently sleet can cause automobile door locks to freeze up. Also you can get lock deicer at Caldor's, and if you have it keep it outside of the car in a handy location. Lock deicer in a locked up car that has its locks frozen is not very practical. CIO

Note:<888>1/01/99 Friday 11:00 P.M. EST: I had breakfast of Cheerios Honey Nut cereal, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cafe au lait. I was listening to

<http://www.bbc.co.uk/radio5/live/stub/output28.ram> BBC Up All Night live this evening, and I decided to email them a Happy New Years message at <mailto:upallnight@bbc.co.uk> , and about fifteen minutes later while I was getting into the shower, I heard them read part of my message "Happy New Years from Mike Scott in Greenwich, Connecticut" on the BBC Up All Night Broadcast. Well I guess that is my fifteen seconds of fame. I then went out for a walk on lower Greenwich Avenue walking the lower part of the Avenue twice. I noticed quite a few people seem to like eating underneath the Aquarium at the Inferno Pizza restaurant across from the train station movie theatre. I smoked a White Owl Panatela on the second walk around. I chatted with a police officer that was taking a picture of a crack in the sidewalk in front of Citibank with a Polaroid camera, and I inquired if it worked in the severe cold. He said they keep the camera in the car and it works. I returned back home. There were not to many people out this evening, and I saw quite a few youngsters out about town. I returned home and filed this report. Well it is very cold out probably in the single digits, so stay warm and enjoy various diverse activities on the internet. CIO

Note:<888>1/01/99 Friday 7:00 P.M. EST: I went out this morning at about 8 A.M.. I stopped by the Grand Union which was open and bought a 24 pack of toilet paper for $5.99, and a eight pack of paper towels for $5.99, two boxes of Honeynut Cheerios for $2 apiece, and a bottle of Kikkoman Soy Sauce for $2.59, and a bottle of Lea and Perrins Wostershire sauce for $2.50 for a total of $21.88. I next went for a drive down by the water. I walked the lower area of Greenwich Avenue. I bought a 10 pack of White Owl Panatelas for $3.59. Starbucks was not opening until 9 A.M.. There were not many people out. I returned home about 9:30 A.M. and chatted with a family member. I had a bowl of Florida citrus in the morning. I also snacked on some Pepperidge Farm Goldfish crackers and ice tea. I went to bed about 10 A.M., and just go up now. Time for breakfast. Well have a good evening. I might sneak out before I start working on the computer. CIO

Note:<888>1/01/99 Friday 7:50 A.M. EST: I am finished my web work and email for the night. I might go out for a little morning light in a while. CIO

Note:<888>1/01/99 Friday 5:30 A.M. EST: I downloaded mirrors of both my sites to my local hard drive, so I have them available in correct file order on the local hard drive. It is pretty quick at this hour of the morning. I received a phone call at 4 A.M. in the morning from a friend who had been in Manhattan in Times Square for New Years, and had gotten off at the train in Port Chester. I went out and picked him up and drove him to the Stamford YMCA where he lives. He was happy to chat and I suppose he was tired after having faced that crowd, considering he grew up in the isolated regions of Vermont. I suppose he was happy to see the full moon on New Years Eve. There is a ring around the moon right now. On the way back from Stamford, a female tried to flag me down in the middle of the road in front of the Diamond Hill Methodist Church, but I did not stop since there was other traffic in the road, and one of them probably stopped. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and surveyed the harbor. There are a lot of guests overnight at the Greenwich Harbor Inn. I saw one or two early morning walkers out already. Well I will go back to reading the internet reports. All quiet on the Eastern Front. CIO

Note:<888>1/01/99 Friday 2:10 A.M. EST: For some reason, I can't upload the files to www.mikescott.org in California, although I deleted some files, and have 3 megs free space, I guess their server has to recycle. I am cooking a Tony's Pizza. CIO
Note:<888>1/01/99 Friday 1:30 A.M. EST: I did a minor update to Scott's downloadable directory scott005.zip linked from download.htm . I added Atlantic Communications web page ctweb.htm of Connecticut Web sites to give a little worldwide exposure to Connecticut Web Sites. I hope nobody minds. I watched the Times Square Ball fall on television at midnight and was back to the web. Happy New Years. It is getting colder inside, so I turned the heat up. CIO
Note:<888>1/14/99 Thursday 8:30 P.M. EST: I found this Microsoft Internet Explorer 4.0 Tweak program IE4 Tweakin' Tool . If you turn off the Favorites in the Start Menu with it, the Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 @home interface does not load the Microsoft Internet Explorer Favorites into your interface which can be lengthy if you have a definitive group of Favorites like I do. However, using Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 beta 2 in the @home interface, the Quick Time movies from CNN don't play, while they do with the Communicators Interface. Also I get a Java Script debug error when I close the program. Hopefully the finished version of Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 won't cause these problems with the @home interface. Today I was up at noon after receiving a call from @home inquiring as to whether I liked their service. I do like the @home service, and now that I have tweaked the system, it is everything that I expected. I went out about 2 P.M. after doing a little net work. I spent about fifteen minutes scraping the ice of my car windows when I went out. It was a light snowy, cold, and sleety day. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I was shown a local area network with Windows NT and for some reason my web site froze their network. Maybe somebody on a NT network should check it for me. Perhaps the Windows NT network did not have the latest version of Microsoft Internet Explorer or the right Java Virtual Machine. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop and bought a AT&T Model 1320 Answering machine for $5. They were closing early. I drove down by the waterfront and viewed the cold bleak shoreline. It looks pretty bleak today. I noticed a local Danish citizen was flying the American flag. I went by the Greenwich Library and checked out ten Broadway Music CDs, and a local teen working in the library recommend me check out "Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy". I read the local paper. The library was going to close early at 5 P.M.. I chatted with a fellow in the parking lot who was near Mt. St. Helens when it blew up working at the Haneford Nuclear Reservation. He has a patented "Proven Liquid Oxygen Injection Oil Recovery Process" which sounds interesting. We chatted a bit about engineering. I heard on the NOAA weather radio, we are suppose to have "Flash Flood Warnings" tomorrow with a warming trend and rain causing local area flooding. I returned home and connected the AT&T answering machine. It took quite a while to figure out how to record a message, since it did not come with instructions. I had the operator call me back to check it. I had dinner of cold chicken with Tabasco, baked potato, broccoli, ice tea, and regular coffee. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Lucent was up today, while everything else was down. Lucent is basically your "Optic Fiber" company. Well back to the net, I don't think I will be going out on this cold bleak night. Now anyone calling me while I am away from home, can leave a message on the answering machine for me to call back. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/14/99 Thursday 4:00 A.M. EST: I am doing routine work this morning. I had one small problem, I lost my Outlook 98 Address Book, but I had the contacts, so when I reinstalled it, the Address book came back. I made a backup of the address book to other directory and floppy. Well I am sifting though my email, and then I will go to bed. I recommend reading up on Optic Fibers at <http://www.lucent.com> . CIO

Note:<888>1/13/99 Wednesday 10:55 P.M. EST: I went out at 7 P.M., and it was beginning to sleet. I stopped by the library for an hour and read the local paper and PC Magazine. I could get a 333 MMX Cyrix Processor for my machine for about $100 if my motherboard goes at 83 MHZ, but since I do mostly web browsing, the 233 MMX is fine enough. I will wait until I can get a 500 MHZ Pentium III clone processor and motherboard for about $200 in about a year, if prices keep coming down. It was not too busy in the library and construction on the new addition seems to be progressing well. I then went down town at the lower Avenue stationary store across from Figaro, I bought buy two get one free of Kent Light 100s. I am still sneaking a few cigarettes a day, but I have cut back by about 80 percent. I then walked the lower avenue area. At 8 P.M. Starbucks was empty, but by 9 P.M., it was full. The Senior and Arts Center was busy. The restaurants were not too busy in the sleet storm. It let up a bit for a while, and the salt trucks were out. It is not advisable to go out on a night like tonight unless one absolutely has to. I then smoked a dark Manturo CVS factory made cigar at the Post Office plaza in the shelter of the portico. I read in the paper, that there is a shortage of one cents stamps to upgrade the old postage stamps, and there are long lines at the Post Office. I heard on the radio broadcast today, that Riverside now has a Food Emporium where the A&P use to be. I suppose they might also be open all night or at least late. I then walked the lower Avenue area again and then walked back up to the center of the Avenue. I returned to the car, and drove down to Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. The houses on the Harbor are mostly darkened with people going to bed early. I then drove to the Exxon station next to the library and bought $11.65 of Premium at $141.9 a gallon. I noticed two long black stretch Lincoln limousines at the station, and they had just dropped off passengers here in town coming from Newark Airport, and the drivers said the roads were treacherous. All during the driving period, I was listening to the NOAA weather radio in my car, and they said one to two inches of sleet, ice, and snow by morning continuing through Thursday with possible warming near the shore turning to rain. I then stopped by the Grand Union. I bought two large 39 oz. cans of Chock Full of Nuts ground coffee for $4.99 each on sale at the half the price, less than half the price of beans, 8 bags of Raman noodles for $2, a bag of Florida Oranges about a dozen count for $1.99, 8 Grapefruit at 4 for .99 for $1.98, a head of Broccoli for $1.50, an a 15 oz. bottle of Kikkoman Soy Sauce for $2.59 for a total of $20.04. I returned home slowly on the frosty roads about a half mile from the store. I remembered to leave my car door unlocked which is advisable during a ice or sleet storm. I put away the groceries. I made a cup of the Chock Full of Nuts coffee, cafe au lait style which I enjoyed with four Danish butter cookies. I am well stocked up on provisions. I got to thinking that the Red Cross should stock up on the Chock Full of Nuts coffee while, it is on sale. Each customer is allowed four cans to buy. The Red Cross also is down to a two days supply of blood, so they need donors in the area. I then filed this report. Well back to up all night on the net. I won't be doing any broadcasting for now, it is back to normal routine. Have a good early morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/13/99 Wednesday 6:30 P.M. EST: I had my early dinner and just finished cleaning up. I will check to see if the library is open. I have my long underwear on. I updated Scott's Broadcast for this week sound.htm . I am just finishing making my weekly batch of icetea.htm . I will go out shortly for a while. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/13/99 Wednesday 4:30 P.M. EST: I am up finally for the day. We have rough weather coming into the area. I had breakfast of Cheerios, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cafe au lait at 9:30 A.M.. I will now have dinner of roast chicken, potato, broccoli, ice tea, and cafe au lait. I will update Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/13/99 Wednesday 11:10 A.M. EST: I put up a separate Scott's SHOUTcast Broadcast Page scshout.htm . CIO

Note:<888>1/13/99 Wednesday 10:40 A.M. EST: After a four hour of Beatles Music this morning, I am rebroadcastng the Greenwich Radio Station WGCH FM. One links to it from Scott's ShoutCast Link on the sound.htm Broadcast Page. One needs the WinAmp Player to listen to it <http://www.winamp.com> . Well back to bed. CIO

Note:<888>1/13/99 Wednesday 5:15 A.M. EST: beatles1.htm Beatles Play List. CIO

Note:<888>1/13/99 Wednesday 5:10 A.M. EST: Up all night again. The ShoutCast Line In Plugin Plays from my microphone, so you can broadcast live. I downloaded a lot of Beatles MP3 files from "147.222.135.44". You have to use a FTP client to access them, but there are lots of other MP3 files besides the Beatles. I will go to bed with my computer on, broadcasting the Beatles with a link from my sound.htm Broadcast page for Shoutcast broadcast. I will see how it works in the day time, while I am asleep. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/12/99 Tuesday 10:30 P.M. EST: I went out at 7:30 P.M. and stopped by the library and read the local paper along with Computer World. I went for a walk on lower Greenwich Avenue. I smoked a Old Greenwich CVS Factory made cigar at the Post Office Plaza. I chatted with an acquaintance. I retraced my steps and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue again. It was a warm night for this time of year, and there were quite a few people out and about. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought two Ruby Red Tropicana half gallons for $2 apiece, GU 30 count Kitchen trash bags for $2.79, a gallon of Pepperidge Farm goldfish crackers for $5.29, and a Cumberland Gap Hickory Smoked Ham at $2.49 a pound for $9.34 plus .17 tax for a total of $21.59. I returned home and put away the groceries. The computer was finished defragging. I had some Ramen noodles and goldfish crackers and ice tea for a light meal. Well back to the net. Have a good night. CIO

Note:<888>1/12/99 Tuesday 5:45 P.M. EST: I put the ShoutCast Demo link on the sound.htm Broadcast Page, so when I am broadcasting live occasionally, I can be linked from that page. I can broadcast live voice with ShoutCast from their server I believe, but I have not determined yet if the line input is from my microphone or my line in plug to the sound card or both. I could not get online with my second computer on phone ISP to the Shoutcast directory server <http://yp.shoutcast.com> to verify the output at this time of day, so I will have to wait and see. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm , it was down a bit today along with IBM and Microsoft. I also fixed a dinner of Purdue Oven Roaster chicken, broccoli, baked potato, ice tea, and cafe au lait. Well I will go out shortly for a little diversion. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/12/99 Tuesday 2:20 P.M. EST: Scott's ShoutCast Broadcast Demo, 33 MP3 Recordings Being Broadcast from Scott's Home Desktop Computer.<http://yp.shoutcast.com/cgi-bin/shoutcast-playlist.pls?addr=24.228.18.154:8000&file=f.pls> . I am cooking a Purdue chicken. CIO

Note:<888>1/12/99 Tuesday 1:20 P.M. EST: I have been configuring the

<http://www.shoutcast.com> plugin for <http://www.winamp.com> . I have it working and I am broadcasting on the internet MP3 music linked from SHOUTcast Directory search with the find command for "Scott" in that directory list to hear my audio selection. I was up at 8 A.M. this morning after going to bed at 11 P.M.. I had breakfast of HoneyNut Cheerios, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cafe au lait. I then started working with the ShoutCast audio setup. Well enjoy the listening. I have it set on low baud rate, and basically with it going, I only have enough resources to run it and my web browser. Well time to clean up. CIO

Note:<888>1/11/99 Monday 8:25 P.M. EST: I chatted with Optimum Online tech support that handle the @home tech support which are two different service connections offered in different areas of Connecticut by Cablevision. They advised me in MS Internet Explorer, Internet Options, Connections, LAN Settings, To turn off "Use Automatic Script Configuration", which turns off the proxy script, which you don't need if you don't use the @home content much. I did this and on their test download page Download Optimum Online Login Agent , I downloaded the Netscape 4.05 or 4.08 file getting up to 325 Kbytes a second, of course other slower sites are not as fast. I am still having trouble uploading to my two servers with FTP, but that is probably because of traffic. The IBM dialer which I still have does get through at a slower speed. I also tweaked one of my setting in this page PH Net - Cable Modems , I set the DefaultRcvWindow= to 186880 which seems to be ten percent faster than the 64240 I was using tested on the @home download test page. I also set in the same setting area "DefaultMSS to 1460 instead of the 1112 default that my machine had, which makes a big difference. I had already done this. Of course the earlier mentioned MAXMTU has to be 1500, and in Win98 I did not have MAXMSS, instead the other DefaultMSS. Well I can speed up the next, but by eliminating the "Use Automatic Script Configuration" my machine went ten times faster on the download test page. Thus I guess I have it pretty much tweaked to the limit. Mike the Tech Rep who helped me had his own gaming page, you might find interesting HAWK The Ultimate Clan.. Welcome . Thanks to the Islanders who are also a bit chilly. Well back to the net. I might be up all night again. CIO

Note:<888>1/11/99 Monday 5:00 P.M. EST: I was up at 8 A.M. this morning after going to bed at 2 A.M.. I had breakfast of HoneyNut Cheerios, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cafe au lait. I cleaned up and showered. I read tech sites until 12:30 P.M. when the apartment inspector showed up. He toured the apartment and I chatted with him about tech. I went out at 1 P.M. and toured the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I bought a metal steamer for vegetables for $1.25, everything is half price. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and viewed the cold blustery day on Long Island Sound from Steamboat Road. There was a high of about 25 degrees F. today. I stopped by the Town Hall on an errand. I stopped by the Greenwich Library, but this weeks computer press was not yet in. I went by the Grand Union and I bought 16 bags of Ramen noodles of various flavors for about $4 priced from .22 to .25, two Tropicana Grove Stand half gallons for $2 apiece, two Morrell Honey flavored bacon for $1.50 apiece, Stauffer's frozen Lasagna for $2.99, Angostura bitters 4 oz. for $2.99, two large boxes of Kellogg's corn flakes for $1.50 each, a pound of GU Mozzarella for $2.69, a Purdue Whole Roaster at .79 a pound for $5.83, I Can't Believe It's Not Butter $1.29, a gallon of GU whole milk for $3.09, a head of broccoli for $1.50, 6 cans of Chicken of the Sea Chunk lite tuna for $2 all, a five pound bag of Russet potatoes for $1.99, a box of Clementines for $3.99, for a total of $42.31. I then went back to the bank for some more money since the ATM did not work at the Grand Union and returned to the Grand Union and bought a Tony's Supreme 4 Cheese pizza for $3.99, a sale item of a gallon of Pepperidge Farm goldfish crackers for $5.29 for a total on the second order of $9.28. I then returned home and put away the groceries. I had a bowl of Ramen noodles with soy sauce, Fresh Florida Fruit, Pepperidge Farm Goldfish crackers, ice tea and regular coffee. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which was down quite a bit today. Well have a good evening, stay warm. CIO

Note:<888>1/10/99 Sunday 11:30 P.M. EST: I restored the old September 1998 bios to my computer that I had a copy of. The new bios that I tried was a bit buggy. I went out for a walk about 6 P.M.. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue, and smoked a Java Factory made cigar at the Post Office plaza. I returned home and watched a little television and chatted with family members. I just finished doing my laundry. I have my annual apartment inspection tomorrow, so I have to be ready for them by 12:30 P.M.. There is not a lot to report on the internet, I have been looking at @home content. Well back to the net, it is going a bit faster now for a change. CIO

Note:<888>1/10/99 Sunday 3:55 P.M. EST: I went to bed after the movie last night at 9 P.M.. I was up at 8:30 A.M. this morning after a good rest. I had breakfast of HoneyNut Cheerios, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cafe au lait. I went back to bed after a tired spell set in until noon. I got up and started watering the plants and cleaning the apartment. Part way through this I decided to upgrade the CMOS on my computer. I downloaded one of two CMOS updates from BIOS & Drivers for my particular MB-571 motherboard. Bios V 7.0 did not work on my system since it crippled the floppy drive controller which was quite a pain. I had to do a safe command prompt boot and install the other Bios V 3.2 (A) which works fine. V 7.0 enabled a infrared port which I don't have. V 3.2 (A) brought up my screen in a smaller picture which I was able to correct by adjusting the monitor setup to a larger size. It seems a little bit more responsive. I finished cleaning the apartment and watering the plants about 3 P.M.. I just finished a Tony's Pizza with ice tea and regular coffee. I have to clean up next, and I will probably go out for a short walk after that just after sun down. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/09/99 Saturday 6:00 P.M. EST: Quiet Saturday. Internet going slowly. I am going to watch "Islands in the Stream" on Channel 45 with George C. Scott starting now at 6 P.M.. On AMC American Movie Classics. CIO

Note:<888>1/09/99 Saturday 1:20 P.M. EST: Well I went to bed at 9 P.M. last night. I was up at 5 A.M. and had breakfast of HoneyNut Cheerios, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cafe au lait. I went back to bed until 9 A.M.. I watched a bit of the computer shows on the SciFi channel. I showered and cleaned up and went out about 11 P.M.. I went by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop, I drove downtown and had a Almond Danish I bought at St. Moritz bakery and ate it in front of the senior center. I bought a Mona Lisa Lottery ticket which I did not win. I went by the Greenwich library and read the local paper. I chatted with a local about Florida in the old days. I returned home and filed this report. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good day. It is pretty gloomy out there, but at least it rained and we only have slush left. CIO

Note:<888>1/08/99 Friday 5:30 P.M. EST: HUSKY - Healthcare for Uninsured Kids and Youth , Greenwich Housing , and Welcome to...Taft Sports . Three local Connecticut links you might find useful. CIO

Note:<888>1/08/99 Friday 5:10 P.M. EST: For a taste of Scotland, a slightly different rendition of the Greenwich Country Day School theme song, better known as "Scotland the Brave" click on this link about doings up in the Highlands. I am still maintaining usual quiet routine. <http://www.scottish.internetradio.co.uk:90/ramgen/pres1.rm> . Well since the Scottish Oil is pretty hard to extract from the sea, we might think about saving some it. I suppose if Scotland is to become a separate country, and since the Scottish are well known for their frugality, I could continue to maintain my present duties and also assume the post as Scottish representative to the United Nations, not to mention it would add another friendly vote at the U.N., of course I can't afford or be bothered traveling into New Amsterdam, so I would have to see about using some sort of other communications like a couple of Dixie cups and a string, to see if that worked better. It seems to me that the real "Old Guard" might descend upon us, not this recent group of makeshift pretenders. Of course, I am not sure if anyone is left in Nathaniel Witheral for all I know they escaped on the Queen Mary to warmer ports of call. Keep an eye on the real Old Guard, whom we don't see too much of anymore. Well I am confused why the broadcasts are not live, but I suppose they can't afford Real Audio servers in the Eastern Hemisphere or it would take up too much band width. Not much happening as far as I can tell, but it has been a quiet day, and I am beginning to slow down in this neck of the woods. Keep a keen eye out for any stray wolves that might have drifted down from the North Woods. As I have told you many times before, there is a wolf den or briar patch at Tod's Point, which means the wolf is use to returning to that patch of land. It is a mighty animal with senses keener than man, so I suppose it will be prowling our neck of the woods. Yeh the Orange wolf, not the gray timber wolf. I have a feeling it is back. Well so much for nature stories. I guess a Russian or Irish wolf hound might be handy if such is the case. Back to square one. CIO

Note:<888>1/08/99 Friday 2:50 P.M. EST: Merry Christmas in the Russian Orthodox Christian Calendar, click on http://www.wrn.org/audio/1700\_usa.ram to listen to the English Broadcast from Russia. Well it sure looks like Russian Christmas outside the way things are beginning to shape up, look at the satellite photo GEOSTATIONARY SATELLITE SERVER - VISIT OFTEN! to check out the current snow front. Merry Christmas, Michael.

Note:<888>1/08/99 Friday 1:50 P.M. EST: I am staying inside today. We started to get snow about noon. We have about an inch of snow at the moment. Arthur our trusty building custodian is keeping a close eye on the snow in case it starts falling hard, but he goes home at 4 P.M., and remember I am on a day schedule, so I will be going to bed about 9 P.M.. I spent the morning and early afternoon reading @home newsgroups about cable modem service. I searched the words "Cable Modem" at Yahoo and read up a bit on them. I also called Cablevision and am spending an extra $5 a month for some of the Optimum family service instead of the basic service, so I will get a few rerun movie channels which might enhance ones television viewing experience. It is my contention that since I am paying around $75 a month for Optimum Online Cable Modem and the Optimum Online Cablevision, I should get all the premium packages thrown into the package at that rate, particularly since their cable service is not really as fast as they claim most of the time during the waking hours. Well lets wait and see what the FCC determines about this network of events. Well time for lunch. CIO

Note:<888>1/08/99 Friday 8:25 A.M. EST: I finished my email. If you want to listen to the BBC, click the third Loch Ness Monster on my Homepage, and that will bring up the radio link to the BBC. BBC stands for "British Broadcasting Corporation" or "Auntie B". I believe they have their headquarters in Bush House, but you have to remember in World War II, they use to send out cryptic messages to Field Agents in the Underground to advise them on their various clandestine affairs. I suppose today, they are more commercial. Well it is a gray sky outside, as I sit here in my Long Johns trying to ward off the morning chill, one gets use to the morning chill, and remember as the day progresses, it generally gets warmer until sunset. Not much happening, I thought I might try some of the internet communications programs. Iphone usually works despite their voyeur audience, whereas the Microsoft Netmeeting Server out there in Redmond, is hard to reach and is frequently busy with a large Asian audience of users. Well a gray day for Green Town. CIO

Note:<888>1/08/99 Friday 6:50 A.M. EST: I went to bed at 8 P.M. last night and was up at 5 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of HoneyNut Cheerios, Toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cafe au lait. I listened to a bit of the BBC's broadcast on the internet, they tend to have a EURO sense of humor that is a bit different. I suppose it comes from Europeans indulging in various alcoholic drinks more frequently, since they don't drive automobiles as much over there, so they don't have to be aware on restrictions on drinking and driving. I guess in less developed countries where there are fewer automobiles, people actually drink more to ward off the cold weather during the winter. Still it is part of their culture, which only recently has had the automobile introduced to their part of the world. So if you see any tipsy travelers from the other side of the pond, remember they are not use to the velocity of automobile traffic in our neck of the woods. Yesterday I noticed the daytime drivers particularly do not pay any attention to pedestrian traffic in the area as they come barreling into the local area. I remember one college classmate who is now a district attorney in Colorado who used to wear Harley Davidson motorcycle boots with steel plates, and whenever a car almost hit him as a pedestrian, he would give it a good quick kick. Of course he was young and quick in those days, and I don't think he would be up to that anymore. Well anyway be respectful of Pedestrians, particularly since they might be important visitors. I dare say, we could blockade the town, and eliminate all automobile traffic, but that would create a security problem for emergency vehicles. Well I cleaned up, and surfed my daily work links scotwork.htm . I now will sift through my email. Well have a good day, and keep a weather eye out for any snow that might have been forecast. CIO

Note:<888>1/21/99 Thursday 4:15 A.M. EST: I worked on installing Real G2 audio server and encoder on my machine, but my computer is not powerful to support them. I also tried the MS Netmedia server programs, but they need Windows NT server. I went out at 8 P.M. this past evening and read the tech press in the library. I went for a short walk. I showed one of the regular evening walkers, my internet setup for a couple of hours, and explained what has been happening on the net for the last couple of weeks. I went for a walk again at 11 P.M., and there was a lot of traffic since the turnpike was backed up headed East, and a number of automobiles and semi trucks were exiting into downtown Greenwich to avoid the backup. I returned home at midnight and had a Tony's frozen pizza and ice tea and coffee. I worked on the audio server programs until just about now to no avail. I will now do some of my regular internet work. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Check out Bill Gates Net Worth Page to see how much Mr. Bill is worth. Well back to simpler activity. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/20/99 Wednesday 4:35 P.M. EST: I downloaded Lotus Notes R5 beta 2 and Domino server betas from www.lotus.com . I installed them. I noticed that the Domino Server setup with @home, and one can use one's @home connection to have one's own server on one's own personal computer. I then downloaded the most common server from www.apache.com and configured it, and it also works with the @home connection. Basically my @home server address is the "@home Computer name.stmfd1.ct.home.com", where @home Computer name is the name Cablevision gave to your computer in the Network setup and the rest if my local @home network server. I don't know if one can make this name freely available, or one is suppose to keep it secret. However, after configuring the Apache setup file, my server works fine with the @home network. However, for security reasons, I don't know if I am going to make it available just, yet since I don't know about Firewalls Etc. Trust me a server works with @home. Well I went to bed at 10:30 A.M. and was up at 4 P.M. Time for breakfast. CIO

Note:<888>1/20/99 Wednesday 2:35 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's Broadcast sound.htm . I put links on the homepage to IBM and Microsoft quarterly reports. I believe IBM's 4th quarter report is due out after the stock exchange close today. I am listening to the IBM Lotus Lotusphere <http://www.lotus.com> broadcast on the upcoming release of Lotus Notes 5.0 due in February. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/20/99 Wednesday 12:25 A.M. EST: I was up at about 1 P.M. today. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I headed out at 2:30 P.M. and stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I saw the head of Greenwich's Millennium Event next New Years Eve entering the bank. I also chatted with a neighbor who had just returned from Jamaica. I drove over to the Stamford YMCA and gave a friend a ride to Greenwich. I noticed a look-alike of a famous singer there. I made my 4 P.M. appointment. I drove down to Steamboat Road and viewed Long Island Sound and listened to the NOAA weather report which was talking about ice on the Delaware River melting and causing flooding. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the Greenwich Times. The usual group of students and citizens were there. There was an article in the Greenwich Times, that the Greenwich Library is missing 17,000 volumes. I suggested to them that the University of Illinois between the Urbana and Chicago campuses has 60 million volumes, and they might have surplus older volumes in storage that could be used to replace the missing older volumes from the Greenwich Library. While downtown I said hello to one of the senior Anglophile members of the community, whom seem to have a sense of humor about it all. There were some very tall teenagers in the library, so I guess not everyone is short in Greenwich. I returned home and was tired, so I slept until 10:30 P.M., and then got up and listened to some BBC internet news. I made a dinner of ham, potato, broccoli, ice tea, and coffee. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which has IBM and Microsoft up quite a bit today. Well I will be up all night again. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/19/99 Tuesday 8:15 A.M. EST: I did my usual internet work until about 2 A.M. this morning. Then I got bogged down. I downloaded the latest driver for my Intel Network card, and I could not get the card to install properly after numerous attempts and various trials. I finally called @home tech support as soon as they opened at 7 A.M., and they said to install the driver from the @home CD. I started the @home CD installation, after having deleted the Network card from the driver setup, and when it prompted me to reboot, it asked me for the new network card drive disk I had downloaded from Intel, and it all installed properly. Well back to square one. I am bushed and time for bed. I have a 4 P.M. appointment this afternoon, so I have to be up at 2 P.M.. Have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>1/18/99 Monday 11:55 P.M. EST: I was up at 2 P.M. this afternoon. I worked on the internet, and it started raining and thundering about 5 P.M.. I unplugged the computer, and disconnected the ethernet cable from the cable modem to the computer, to protect against lightning, although I do have a surge suppressor in my control panel, I thought it would be safer. There was quite a bit of rain. I rested until 8 P.M. when I chatted with a friend. I went out and walked the lower area of Greenwich Avenue twice. It was not too busy out, and most of the restaurants were empty. I bought two packs of Wave Lights 100s for $3.80 and two five packs of White Owl panatelas for $5.60 and a snow brush ice scraper for $1.60. I smoked one of the White Owl panatelas at the post office plaza. I drove down Steamboat Road and observed Long Island Sound. I notice quite a bit of aviation traffic with the clearing skies. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a gallon of Pepperidge Farm Goldfish crackers for $5.29, a bag of taco chips for $1.99, and McCormick Peppercorns for $5.29 for a total of $10.98. I returned home and put away the groceries. I ate some of my soup mixture as a cold dip with the taco chips with ice tea. I watched a rerun of "Violent Planet?" about volcanoes on the Discovery channel. I made coffee, and I received a phone call from a family member. I filed this report. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/18/99 Monday 4:00 A.M. EST: I did my internet work and finally finished my email. I finished doing my laundry. I had Florida Fresh Fruit and goldfish crackers for a snack just now. I posted my recipe for Scott's Cajun Onion Chicken Ham Soup . Well have a good morning, time for me to start slowing down. CIO

Note:<888>1/17/99 Sunday 8:40 P.M. EST: I was up at 2 P.M. today. I cleaned the apartment and watered the plants until 6:30 P.M.. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I had dinner of the soup I made a couple of days ago along with Ramen noodles, ice tea, and coffee. I am doing routine internet work. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/16/99 Saturday 11:40 P.M. EST: I worked on the computer for a while. I went out for a walk about 8 P.M. and walked around downtown for an hour and a half. The local citizens were out for evening strolls, dining, and movie going. It was busy downtown. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue twice. I noticed that quite a few people seem to lose gloves in exiting their automobiles, and I even saw one pair of gloves on the ground. I guess people put gloves in their laps and when they exit the automobiles, they fall on the ground. I actually don't wear gloves much myself unless it is below 20 degrees since I just put my hands in my jacket pockets. However on very cold nights, I do wear the gloves. I noticed quite a few youngsters were out on the weekend evening. After my stroll, I stopped by the Grand Union and purchased a jar of Hellmann's Real Mayonnaise for $2.79, a gallon of GU whole milk for $3.09, and a half gallon of Tropicana Ruby Red Orange juice for $2 for a total of $7.88. I returned home and put away the groceries. I ate a bowl of Fresh Florida Fruit. I watched part of Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy, but I lost interest, so I filed this report. It is warm and comfortable in my apartment, and since there are younger more able bodied adults in the town with qualified vehicles in town, I will let them maintain the cold watch night patrol, and relax at home on the computer myself. I have a number of automatic email messages to sift through. Well tomorrow when I awake, it will be another Sunday house cleaning day. Have a good nights rest. I will probably be up until about 4 A.M., give or take. CIO

Note:<888>1/16/99 Saturday 6:15 P.M. EST: I went out at about 1:30 P.M.. I was up at about noon. I had Kellogg's Corn Flakes for breakfast, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and regularly Chock Full of Nuts coffee. I was awoken by a neighbor who had found a pair of Maine Hunting Boots size 11 1/2 discarded, asking me if I wanted them. I retrieved them, and I only wear size 9 1/2, but I have a friend that they will probably fit. I drove by the Arnold Bread Factory Outlet bakery store and bought three loaves of Healthnut bread for $3.87. I went by the Greenwich Library and there were lots of teens using the library. I noticed they have four copies of the Heart Association Cook Book just coming in. I drove by Putnam Trust Bank of New York and retrieved funds at the ATM. They have their ATM slips up side down, so they come out printed upside down. I drove down by Indian Harbor on Steamboat Road and viewed the waterfront listening to NOAA Weather Radio from Brookhaven, Long Island. They mention Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard a lot in their weather forecasts. I noticed somebody in red pants sailing a Cat

Boat in the harbor to the east of the pier. I chatted with a Chinese Gentleman who was driving a new gray Cadillac about Cadillac's and General Motors. I told him I thought they might be quitting making the large Cadillac Fleetwood and Brougham. He said he thought the Cadillac should have rear wheel drive. I went back uptown, and noticed a brand new, I believe large white Cadillac Brougham with temporary license plates on it from Victor Potamkim, so I guess they are still selling the large Cadillac Sedan. I went by the lower Avenue stationary store, and bought three packs of Wave Ultra lites for $5.55. I sat in the Town Green on bench in front of a very slippery brick walkway. When they put in the brick walkways on the town green, they should have allowed for proper drainage, so in the winter it does not ice up. I guess they could have slightly elevated it, so it would not be covered with ice. I smoked a Old Greenwich CVS Factory Made fifteen cent cigar. I chatted briefly with a Polish fellow who wanted to know about the Greenwich Police traffic directing hours. I returned towards Byram and stopped by McDonalds and had a McRib Sandwich meal with large fries and diet coke for $4.44. I returned home and made a cup of Chock Full of Nuts coffee and filed this report. Well have a good evening. I still have to go back out and buy milk and mayonnaise. CIO

Note:<888>1/16/99 Saturday 3:10 A.M. EST: I received a call from a friend and chatted for a while. I stopped by over in Stamford at the YMCA to pick him up and we took a night cruise up U.S. 1 to Darien chatting and drove north to New Canaan which was quiet downtown. I noticed one lone pedestrian sitting outside at the patio at Starbucks by the train station. I noticed the lights were on at the old Gates restaurant which a junior school classmate of mine runs. My passenger said he could smell the Italian cooking, and I explained to him that was the smell of me from my onion soup. I returned to the YMCA in Stamford and we chatted until about 1:30 P.M. in the car in front of the building. I returned via U.S. 1 to Greenwich. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and I noticed an elderly gentleman walking up the Avenue in a orange parka in front of the Dome Restaurant. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and turned around drove up Milbank and headed west on East Putnam Avenue. I noticed the same elderly gentleman had stumbled in the sidewalk at Lafayette Place in front of the Presbyterian Church, so I stopped to assist. I flagged down a passing taxi and asked them to call the police. The gentleman explained he was trying to walk to the hospital, so I put him in my car and drove him over to the emergency room at the hospital. The inner door was locked, so I left him there and went to park the car and get security to open the door, at which time three police cars showed up. I explained the situation to the police and they went to assist the gentleman, and I departed. I returned home and had a glass of ice tea. It is pretty cold out, so I hope everyone is all right. I will file this report and go to bed, since I am tired. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/15/99 Friday 9:40 P.M. EST: I went out after the last message and drove down Steamboat Road and surveyed the waterfront. I noticed two small ducks male and female that I had not seen before. They had a white and black head respectively, with greenish black body, about half the size of regular ducks. I chatted with the Italian chef at the Indian Harbor Yacht club about food in general in various places I had lived and worked. He seemed to have the same perspective that I did. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read P.C. Week. I chatted with the Burns Security Guard about encyclopedias. I returned home and decided to start making onion soup. All during this period and while cooking I was broadcasting Broadway melodies. I first peeled three pounds of onions. I pureed half in the GE food processor, and sliced the other half in the same machine. I put about eight tablespoons of olive oil in the bottom of a gallon revere soup pot. I then put in half the pureed onions. I put in half the sliced onions. I put in about six ounces of chopped garlic from the prepared chopped garlic from the Grand Union. I put in the rest of the sliced onions. To the other half of the pureed onion in the food processor, I added three tablespoons Italian seasoning, one tablespoon oregano, a teaspoon thyme, a half teaspoon garlic powder, a half teaspoon of Pep Erica, along with dashes of curry powder and Chinese five spice, a quarter teaspoon of celery powder, a cup of white wine, four ounces of Jack Daniels, two ounces of soy sauce, four teaspoons of Lea and Perins, two teaspoons of Tabasco sauce, two teaspoons of Angostura bitters, a teaspoon of chicken and meat seasoning, ten beef bullion cubes, four ounces of horse radish. I then pureed the whole mixture in the GE food processor and put it in the soup pot. I stirred up the ingredients in the soup pot and added another cup of white wine. I added a pad of a stick of I Can't Believe It's Not Butter. I turned on the soup pot to medium high to let it heat up. I then removed about two pounds of Purdue chicken from the chicken I had cooked earlier in the week, about two thirds dark meat and one third white meat. I pureed one pound and diced one pound and added that to the soup mixture. I then took two pounds of the Cumberland Hickory smoked ham and pureed one pound and diced one pound and added it to the soup mixture and stirred with about a cup of milk, and ten strips of lightly cooked bacon. The whole mixture was two full for the gallon pot, so I separated it into equal amounts in a second pot and added about two cups of milk or more to desired consistency to each pot along with a teaspoon of parsley to each pot and six bay leaves to each pot. While each pot was simmering on medium low for a half hour with stirring, I sectioned four grapefruit, five oranges, and ten clementines, and added angostura bitters to the mixture with orange juice along with the pureed remains of my old fruit salad a shot of Mount Gay Rum. I put the fruit salad in the refrigerator. I then turned back to the soup and lower both pots down to simmering for another hour. I cleaned up while I was working which is good advice while cooking. I went out and smoked a White Owl Panatela and observed the melt off today and turned to solid ice, so it is very slippery outside. I threw away all the garbage left over from the food preparation. About 8 P.M. after one and half hours total cooking the soup was ready. I put two Rubbermaid containers in the freezer and one Rubbermaid container in the refrigerator. I had a big bowl of the soup which is spicy and delicious along with Pepperidge Farm goldfish crackers, and diet Pepsi. I then made a regular cup of Chock Full of Nuts coffee with Nutrataste a half teaspoon of sugar and milk which I am drinking now with two Danish cookies. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which was up a bit today, just reaching the level of the Index a year ago mid March. I will finish my coffee and go out for a short stroll downtown after I finish it. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/15/99 Friday 2:00 P.M. EST: I was up until about 2 A.M. last night. I was doing routine internet work, when I stumbled across a slight problem which looks like a local version of Industrial Espionage. I noticed the reason that my @home Favorites don't load in with the @home interface for Internet Explorer is not from using the IE4 Tweakin' Tool , but that my all the files in my @home folder had been eliminated. I reinstalled @home's interface to correct the problem, and the Favorites now load with or without the tweak. I ran the @home Network Diagnostics and it indicated that the "Name Server" was not working. I checked my Network settings, and I discovered in the "TCP/IP -> Intel EtherExpress Pro100+ PCI Adapter" setting for some odd reason under "Properties" , "DNS Configuration", "Enable DNS" had been checked, and the IP number of "209.4.160.164" had been entered. This was not the setting put in by Cablevision, since I had checked it when they installed. It is suppose to be disabled. I checked with Optimum Online Support at 203-750-8790 and they confirmed that it is suppose to be disabled. I confirmed with them that the deletion of the @home folder files and the "DNS Configuration" setting would not have been caused by any software installation or virus, but would have to have been done deliberately by someone accessing the computer, which was not done by me. This means that persons or persons unknown have access to my computer to perpetrate this change of setup. I thus changed my Computer "Password" that only the senior personnel know. Moreover, since it is obvious that people are accessing my computer and changing system setups, why would they do it? I don't know that much about networking, but entering that "DNS Configuration" setting I believe would have set up my computer with the Intel EtherExpress Pro100+ PCI Adapter" so that the infiltrator could have downloaded the contents of my 2 gigabytes on my 5 gigabyte hard drive to a laptop computer very quickly through connecting with an ethernet cable to an ethernet port on a laptop. Thus we have established proof that certain individuals with Network Experience are accessing my computer for clandestine purposes only known to themselves. I thought about this in the early morning hours, and figured it out. I then went to bed and secure the apartment to prevent intrusion. When I woke up this morning, I conferred with a senior advisor, and then conferred with IBM security in Armonk about the event. To them it seems somewhat curious too, why someone would try to take free internet content, unless they were after my personal setup of my PC that has taken many thousands of hours to set up. I then conferred with a family member and gave them the password. I next went outside, and check the light ice condition. It was beginning to rain, so I scraped a thin layer of ice off my car and chatted with my neighbors who were doing the same. I scraped a thin layer of ice off of one of my neighbors car, so she should get out also. I then returned home and filed this report. Well whatever the case, the primary directive is to reduce stress, and therefore I am not letting the aforementioned matter bother me, since I prefer to keep my stress level down. Well have a good day, and I will go out as soon as I clean up. The telephone answering machine is working fine too. I also called the White House Secret Service intelligence office this morning and advised them they should go down to Tobago and play some golf at the Mount Irvine Club to get away from all the negative propoganda on the Marconni Wireless Picture device I have installed in my apartment. Well I suppose "No News, Is Good News". Have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>1/30/99 Saturday 12:30 P.M. EST: Well I finished most of my routine internet work today. I had a ham and cheese sandwich on toast with Dijon mustard, mayonnaise, and horse radish along with Ramen noodles and ice tea and I am finishing my coffee. I also finished the Banana Nut Crunch cake. Well it is warm inside, and I really don't have anything to do outside, so I will just hang around inside and not irritate my arthritic condition. Anyone with a few extra pennies to spend, can check out gwreal.htm to see what is happening in the local housing market. I prefer my "Grace and Favor" establishment, since it is part of the hereditary legacy of the family in this area for over 350 years, of course I could always reclaim Long Island, but leading ministers from Foreign Nations figured out it would be underwater in about a 100 years along with Florida and the Netherlands. Thus since I am an living at an interesting topographical location, it might be at the location of a new light house in about a 100 years overlooking Westchester Harbor. Well enough of future planning, no news is good news. I think I will listen to some of my MP3 collection music1.htm, which I can play continuously on my computer through my stereo system. Well have a good afternoon, and give my best to the weekend warriors. CIO

Note:<888>1/30/99 Saturday 6:00 A.M. EST: I was up at 4 A.M., and I had Quaker oatmeal, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cafe au lait for breakfast. I am sifting through my email. There is Diamond Multimedia's MP3 site RioPort.Com Home Page - Your source for Digital Music on the Web which has MP3 music links. Well have a good morning. I have the heat turned up, and it is warm and comfortable inside this morning, but my legs still feel stiff after walking around in the cold yesterday. I need to get more of the arthritis pills Claucostomine and Glucosomine pills at Fresh Fields at the first of the month along with having my Doctor check into giving me a prescription for Monsanto's new arthritis pill Celebra. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/29/99 Friday 4:40 P.M. EST: I did some work on the computer this morning, I can't recall what. Someone called me to deliver some items, so I went out and delivered them around 1 P.M.. I stopped by the ELDC thrift shop. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove down by the water and observed the sound. I stopped by CVS and picked up a prescription. I stopped by the Arnold Bread store outlet, and bought two loaves of Healthnut bread for $2.33 together, my Arnold card was filled up so I got two free cheese cakes, and they also gave me a green line banana cake. I returned home and put the bake goods in the freezer. I had a piece of banana cake. Well it is a very nice sunny day out, but my arthritis condition is very severe and I felt crippled while walking all day long. I will have to take a hot bath to feel better. I guess the arthritis cuts in and out like a neurological disorder, one minute I am walking fine, and the next moment I am walking at a very slow pace, which is hard to break. It happens all the time in the winter, so I just spend more time inside. Living around senior citizens, one learns not to complain about arthritis, and one gets use to the normal routine. They have two nice Paul Revere lamps at the ELDC shop for $150, like the old saying about the British Arriving, "One If By Land, Two If By Sea." I chatted with some decent chaps from Jamaica about the Caribbean while browsing the Arnold Bread Outlet. Well enjoy the rest of the day, I am going to take a hot bath. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/29/99 Friday 7:10 A.M. EST: I finished my daily internet routines of web surfing and email, I also read the @home newsgroups. I had a light meal of pasta and broccoli with olive oil and butter and herbs about 5 A.M. along with ice tea. Well it is warm and comfortable inside. With this North Sea weather the visitors have brought, my arthritis has been kicking in and out when I go outside, but it is warm and comfortable inside the apartment. It seems like a Saturday although it is only Friday, so I guess we can pretend like it is a Holiday for some odd reason. Well time to relax a bit, I will leave Iphone open for conversation, but nobody ever wants to converse anyway, and the British are never on Iphone anyway, since there are to many odd balls using it, not to mention if I never can get on the Microsoft Netmeeting server, the Brits certainly can't log onto it, but both have a few freezing Canadians regularly using them. Well no news is good news. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/29/99 Friday 4:10 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's Broadcast sound.htm , well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/29/99 Friday 3:20 A.M. EST: I was up at midnight and had breakfast of Quaker Oat Meal, toast, coffee, orange juice, and vitamins. I listened to some tech reports. I got a tired spell and went back to sleep. Well have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>1/28/99 Thursday 4:40 P.M. EST: I went out at 8 A.M. and stopped by Steamboat Road and chatted with a local waterfront observer about nautical and volcanic activities. I mentioned that the Seismic activity in Columbia is probably caused by Volcanic activity in the area. I also filled up my car at Exxon. I went by the Hospital Thrift shop and toured the shop again for the millionth time. I returned home and worked on the computer a bit in the morning. I rested from noon until 1:30 P.M.. I went out and dropped off an item for an acquaintance whom needed it and drove him back home. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I returned home and had the same dinner of red and white clam sauce with noodles with ice tea. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well I have been up since about 8 P.M. last night, so it is time for me to go to bed and get some rest. Enjoy the evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/28/99 Thursday 7:20 A.M. EST: While chatting with a friend last night about the news, I mentioned that there was a lot of news recently about Scott base in Antarctica and the Scott - Amudsen base there too, particularly with concern from New Zealanders whom are keen on Antarctica. I read there stories saying that in the next 100 to 200 years if the polar ice shelf drops off and falls into the ocean melting its 2500 meters of ice, that it would substantially change the ocean levels for low lying countries and climates after changing the ocean currents. The same articles also mentioned that 90 percent of the earth's fresh water is frozen in Antarctica. What I also know is that the weight of the South Pole is so substantial that if it were to melt into water, and flow freely in the earth's ocean, it would more than likely effects the earth's polar axis, thus also causing the earth's orbit to possibly change along with the angle at which the sun strikes the earth, thus in such an eventuality that the earth could be tipped on its axis, and the poles would be tropical and dry, the equatorial countries would be frozen. So another event to be looked forward to by future planners, if it should happen, just imagine Norwegian orange juice, camels, and palm trees. Well back to some early morning activity around town, perhaps I will float outside for a while to see what the morning Titans are up to. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/28/99 Thursday 5:55 A.M. EST: I went out for a walk on Greenwich Avenue after the last message. I walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue. I smoked a dark CVS fifteen cent cigar in front of the post office plaza and walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue. I also drank a thermos of coffee at the post office. I noticed an automobile trailer vehicle drive up Greenwich Avenue the wrong way at about thirty miles an hour carrying three automobiles for delivery. About 45 minutes later I noticed him drive back down Greenwich Avenue the right way. I noticed the Street Cleaner out going up Greenwich Avenue the wrong way. I had to relieve myself once in the park and once next to Saks in alley way. As one gets older there are not always the proper facilities downtown when nature calls, which is much the gripe of a lot of our visitors who come into the area late at night. Of course there is always the Greenwich Harbor Inn or the Colonial Diner if you happen to have the time. I noticed the street clock in front of the location that use to be the Greenwich Hardware store now a Vermont Handicraft shop is no longer working properly. I once talked to the clock man fixing it several years ago, and I believe he comes from the Northeast part of Connecticut. Thinking about Perrier, I got to thinking about the Gulliver's Discothèque fire that occurred on its office location around October 1974, and I remember beside the local citizens, the casualties included European students, so possibly some of their relatives occasionally visit the site. I am not sure if there is any fitting memorial to the casualties lost in that most tragic fire. I will have to look at the Greenwich Time microfilm in the Greenwich Library when I have time to refresh my memory on those events, as I recall at the time although I lived here, I was actually working in Manhattan and only visiting Greenwich on weekends to cut the grass and rake the leafs. Since I was not continually in the area during the tragedy, I did not read the newspaper accounts, but I do know there were lots of foreign visitors in town as usual and I had friends around the French consulate in Manhattan that I would occasionally see in my activities in Manhattan. Well I suppose the younger folks at Perrier don't know whom was lost, but I recall there were French citizens lost in the fire. Well enough of gloomy remembrances, let us try to stay current with present events which bare just as much attention. I have a 3 P.M. appointment this afternoon, I might try to stay up until then. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/28/99 Thursday 2:00 A.M. EST: I went to bed at 1 P.M. yesterday. A friend called just as I was going to bed and I chatted for a while. I slept until 8 P.M.. I was up and had breakfast of Quaker Oat Meal, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cafe au lait. I had optimized the computer while I was asleep. I started a hard drive to hard drive backup. I went out and stopped by CVS in Riverside and bought another carton of Hav-A-Tampa Light Small Cigars for $13.96. I said hello to a French gentleman there. I stopped by the Stamford YMCA and chatted with a friend outside in my car observing the local night street activity. I stopped by the Old Greenwich Hyatt and withdrew funds from the Putnam Trust ATM machine there. I noticed both Seamen's and Perrier were having receptions there. I chatted with a Perrier representative from Dallas, Texas about my knowledge of Perrier and Nestle and other local business activities. I would imagine there were some French citizens at the Perrier reception. I returned to central Greenwich and drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and observed the weather. I returned home and boiled a package of noodles and mixed a can of white clam sauce with some defrosted pizza sauce I had in the freeze and put the red and white clam sauce mixture on the noodles for dinner and saved the rest for later. The compute backup of as many files as I have room to backup is finished. I made a cup of coffee and put it my thermos, and I will go out to drink it outside and have a cigar downtown in another exciting adventure of Mike up all night. I will try to get around to doing my weekly broadcast this morning also. Well have a good morning. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm , just now. CIO

Note:<888>1/27/99 Wednesday 10:40 A.M. EST: I went out at 8 A.M. this morning and scraped a light layer of ice off my automobile windows while Finoccios Garbage hauler showed up to empty the contents of the building dumpster. It is a clear warm day in the mid 40s to mid 50s F.. I drove by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop and toured the meager collection of goods they have available, mostly clothes and not much of interest this week, but it depends on what the local citizens decide to chuck away. A local camper from Maine was there in his GMC and very peculiarly wearing shorts as if it is a spring day. I said good morning to some of the regular staff and volunteers. I then drove down Greenwich Avenue which was not too busy to the bottom of Steamboat Road and observed two swans on the completely calm Long Island Sound on a bright sunny morning. I put a half of a quart of Quaker State oil in my automobile. I listened to the NOAA weather radio from Brookhaven Laboratory out on Long Island I believe in the Cold Spring Harbor Area. I noticed a couple of morning walkers and newspaper readers down by the harbor. I checked the dual fan belts on my alternator and they need tightening and make a little noise, but nothing major to worry about. I returned up town and stopped by the Greenwich Library. I said good morning to the regular Burns Security. I read the Greenwich Times which had the usual local content. I chatted with one of the long time Greenwich Residents who recently moved downtown and uses the library regularly in the morning. He said it is noisy downtown at night with all the fire engine activity coming and going at all hours. I told him I try to keep an eye on downtown at night and mentioned the extra traffic we have had at night recently. The library was not too busy. Burns security told me the new Peterson addition has at least another year before completion. I returned home and made a ham and cheese sandwich on toast with Dijon mustard, mayonnaise, and horse radish. I am just finishing up a class of ice tea. Well it is a nice pleasant morning in Greenwich, but NOAA radio says it is suppose to turn colder and rain earlier this evening. So enjoy the pleasant morning. Well have a good day, time for me to get some sleep. CIO

Note:<888>1/27/99 Wednesday 6:55 A.M. EST: Well I downloaded some more MP3 files, I put on the server. I fiddled with a few MP3 find programs, but ftp sites seem to be restricted so far. I fiddled with trying to use the WinAmp Shoutcast plugin without the shoutcast server using the apache server instead, so one might be able to broadcast a winamp broadcast without going through the shoutcast server, but through the apache server, I am sure there is a simple way in the settings, I just have not figured it out or what the link would be for loading it, if one were successful. Well I am hungry, so time for some Fresh Florida Fruit and time to go to bed or least start slowing down. I also finished sifting through my email. CIO

Note:<888>1/27/99 Wednesday 12:05 A.M. EST: I had some Goldfish crackers and Taco chips for a light snack. I finished up the goldfish crackers. I am having a cup of coffee. I though I would write a letter to a family member now. CIO

Note:<888>1/26/99 Tuesday 11:05 P.M. EST: I went out at 8:45 P.M.. I did not stop by the library. I parked in the center of town. There were lots of dog walkers out. I chatted with a regular Shepard walker. I walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue. It was not too busy out, but I-95 I believe has construction East of Greenwich Avenue, so there is lots of traffic with people trying to bypass the I-95 tie up. I chatted with the Starbucks crew while they were closing about franchising experience in the marketing department. I told them the coffee shop across the street from the United States embassy in Paris kitty corner from the Louvre is an excellent location of a coffee shop, where one can smoke, however it is not for sale. I smoke a Java CVS 30 cent cigar while in the post office plaza. I reawaked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. I have noticed lots of discarded materials around town the last couple of nights, like discarded tires and last night somebody left out a toilet brush. I guess people occasionally drop items in the street. I noticed a backpacking visitor walking around town. I believe the British have some sort of program called "Outward Bound" where they experience outside reality camping around other people's areas to observe what is going on in other areas. We use to have "Outward Bound" headquarters in Greenwich for youth who would go camping in the woods in the old days. I recommend that if one is to try such an experience in our local area, they be amply prepared with adequate provisions for camping, since the local tundra particularly at night can be quite inhospitable, unless you happen to be "Nanook of the North". Well I returned home, and will file this report. Have a good morning for you all night people. CIO

Note:<888>1/26/99 Tuesday 7:25 P.M. EST: Well this morning before I went to bed, I had to restore the System information file a program from my backup. I guess the FrontPage 98 beta 2 corrupted them. Once system information was running, I restored a number of files that had been changed with System File checker, just leaving the two changed files

"c:\windows\system\user.exe" and "c:\windows\system\iosubsys\amsint.mpd" that I believe the MS Internet Explorer 5.0 beta changed, and one does not restore those or the MS IE 5.0 beta would not work. I guess it goes to show one should not use old betas. I was up at 6 P.M.. I had breakfast of Quaker oatmeal, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I watched ABC evening news. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm and Microsoft was up quite a bit today. Bill Gates' personal weather is up a tad too, see Bill Gates Net Worth Page . Well if I had some money I might check out CompUSA In-Store Advertised Products: Systems , if one felt like going to CompUSA in Norwalk, for me I will shower and stop by the library. Well have a good evening.

CIO

Note:<888>1/26/99 Tuesday 5:40 A.M. EST: I had breakfast yesterday evening of Quaker Oat Meal, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins. I watched the ABC evening news. I cleaned up. I went out at 8 P.M.. I scraped a thin layer of ice off the car windows. There was black ice out on the roads and sidewalks. I went by the Greenwich Library and read PC Week and the local paper. I drove down by the waterfront and viewed the harbor listening to NOAA radio. I parked in the center of town. I walked the entire distance of Greenwich Avenue which was slippery at the top while smoking a CVS factory made fifteen cent cigar. There were not many people out. I said hello to a couple of young fellows visiting from Chicago. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought 20 packs of four different flavors of Ramen noodles for $4. They now have shrimp flavor Ramen noodles. I generally don't use the flavor package since it has MSG, and just use soy sauce instead. I returned home and started working the internet about 11 P.M.. I was curious about FrontPage 98, and I found a site with the FrontPage 98 beta 2 and a cracker which I don't normally use, but one needs it to use the beta. I downloaded and installed it on my machine. It works with @Home. It uses too many resource for me to use it though, so I uninstalled it. I had to reinstall it again, because for some reason it change my machine IP address to bring up a blank home page. I was able to remedy the problem on the reinstall, and now I have the Apache server with Win Proxy running which takes up less resources. I liked what I saw of FrontPage 98, but since I don't have a machine to run a dedicated server on, I won't be using it. I am not sure if one needs the explorer feature running to run a server with @home. I am hungry and tired, so I will boil some Ramen noodles in the microwave. My formula is to put the noodles in a Rubbermaid container with a whole in the top, and add a cup of water and microwave on high for five minutes, and then strain off the water and add soy sauce. Well not much accomplished this morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/25/99 Monday 6:20 P.M. EST: Well I am up, I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Time for breakfast. CIO

Note:<888>1/25/99 Monday 10:45 A.M. EST: I took a three hour nap this morning from 4:30 A.M. to 7:30 A.M.. I worked with several free encoding CD ripper programs, but none of them seemed to work. I don't know if I really need to post MP3 files, since there are plenty of them for download on the net, but at night when it is not as busy I might check out some MP3 sites. I also set up my NEC 800 Plus printer as a LaserJet configuration in the menu options on the printer with the NEC 860 Plus driver, and it is working perfectly fine, unlike in PostScript configuration. Well I might rest a bit after reading some news. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/25/99 Monday 4:00 A.M. EST: The CDEX program mentioned below did not encode from Cdroms properly, so I will probably have to register and buy one of the CD rippers MP3.com CDrippers to post cd mp3 music or download one like Easy CD-DA Extractor or search "mp3" at www.download.com . I went out at 11:30 P.M. and stopped by the Shell Station for laundry change. I drove down to the end of Steamboat Road on the chilly night and viewed the harbor. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. I noticed they were playing live music at the Dome and Thataway Restaurants. I smoked a White Owl panatela in front of the post office. I returned home and did my laundry. I made a ham and cheese omelet with toast and three strips of bacon, ice tea, and coffee. I will now fiddle with Easy CD-DA Extractor and see if I can find a better free Cd ripper. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>1/24/99 Sunday 8:55 P.M. EST: I decided to encode some MP3 files from my cdrom player on the computer. I found CDex which seems to be a good "Free" CD to MP3 ripper encoder. I might not go out for a while. CIO

Note:<888>1/24/99 Sunday 7:55 P.M. EST: I worked on the computer until 9 A.M. this morning. I chatted with a family member. I slept until about 6 P.M. with one call from a family member. I had breakfast of oatmeal, toast, orange juice, cafe au lait, and vitamins. I watched the ABC evening news. I chatted with a family member who was watching CBS sixty minutes. I read the Yahoo news stories. It sounds like it has quit raining, so I might go out for a walk after I shower. I will encode some more music, which I am not doing anything. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/24/99 Sunday 4:00 A.M. EST: I went out after the last message. I stopped by Cumberland Farms, and bought a gallon of milk from the fellows from India for $2.89. I then went downtown and viewed the harbor from the end of Steamboat Road. The tide is high and with the rain there is danger of flooding in the lower areas. I then walked the lower area of Greenwich Avenue. I noticed somebody had lost a wire hubcap on a blue station wagon. I put it on the hood. There are new can bottle containers on the lower section of Greenwich Avenue for the proper disposal of those containers. I lite up a Java cigar at the Post Office Plaza, and it finally quit raining for a spell. I then walked up to the top of the Avenue and returned back down viewing the store windows. I noticed the staff at several of the local pubs were cleaning up, and I waved at the staff of the Dome Restaurant. I then returned down to the lower section of Steamboat Road listening to NOAA radio with the flood warning for lower coastal areas. The harbor water was up to within a foot of the top of the sea wall at the Greenwich Harbor Inn, so there is a high tide with the rain. I returned back home. The usual security patrols were out and about. I put away the gallon of milk. I listened to RADIO ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT Saturday, January 23, 1999 . It is interesting I left the BBC morning radio playing when I left the apartment. It is like somebody comes in and turns it off. I have suspected for a long time that persons or persons unknown might enter my apartment, but I have no evidence of it, except a few strange setting changes on the computer that I can not account for. It seems strange, but like the title of the book I never read "The Ghost in the Machine" by Arthur Koester, I suppose the computer might be haunted by its own invisible spirit. I found a pair of women's sun glasses on Greenwich Avenue. I noticed Boswell Drugs has an antique replica doll house of their store in the window. It is sort of sad to see some of the long established merchants struggle to get by while the new chain operators come into town and take over Greenwich Avenue. I guess this is all part of change. We still have Peabody's garage who use to run a stable in the same location, and occasionally have low mileage horseless carriages obtained from elderly folks in back country whom do not drive very much anymore. Well it was a quiet evening on Greenwich Avenue, and I got a little exercise. My arthritis did not kick in or perhaps I did not notice it since I was strolling by myself. I suppose the weather report on NOAA radio for early morning showers might be correct, so be prepared with you umbrella if you venture outside in the morning. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/24/99 Sunday 1:45 A.M. EST: I went to bed at 5 A.M. yesterday. I received a call at 6 A.M. and I talked for a while. I slept until 4 P.M.. I was up and had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I was tired and slept again until 9 P.M.. I am leaving the internet server going with my local server linked from Scott's Internet Hotlist Greenwich, Connecticut . I did a little computer work reading email. I started listening to www.ttalk.com weekender program, and they mentioned Greenwich, Connecticut with an internet site Welcome To Haggie Zone! that just came online from here. I cleaned the apartment and watered the plants while listening to the program. I had dinner of ham, baked potato, broccoli, ice tea, and coffee. I just finished showering after the show. I also just finished making a batch of ice tea. I noticed a friend gave me some of the "Prince of Wales" Dutchy Originals Fine Assam Tea, which I opened, but did not use for ice tea. I have it available in case any visitors need a fine cup of tea. Well with the server running, I will go out for a little fresh air this morning. I am running the BBC news. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>1/23/99 Saturday 2:30 A.M. EST: I decided to post my local site with more content at my local Greenwich computer. Site is Scott's Internet Hotlist, Greenwich, Connecticut , I will leave it up for now depending on the traffic and how much it slows up my other work. I also have a number of MP3 Music files on my computer including Beatles music, so I linked them from Beatles and Other Music MP3 Files at Scott's Internet Hotlist Local Greenwich Site . I am using WinProxy WinProxy: Secure Firewall Proxy Server Software for Shared Internet Access by Ositis Software which is good for 30 days at which time I will have to buy it and the Apache www.apache.com Windows 98 Server. Well I hope local users enjoy the local site, if my computer can handle it, and hopefully no one will try to sabotage my efforts. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>1/22/99 Friday 8:45 P.M. EST: I was on the computer until 4:30 A.M. this morning. I received a call at 1 P.M. and chatted with a friend. I was up at 3 P.M. and had breakfast of Kellogg Corn Flakes, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I showered and cleaned up. I went out at 5 P.M. and stopped by the Stamford YMCA to visit the same friend. We toured the Stamford Government Center lobby which has a modest art collection in the lobby along with a jobs computer bank. I was advised the Stamford Police fine pedestrians $60 for jay walking. I chatted with the pool attendant at the Stamford YMCA about swimming in salt water. I returned from Stamford via CVS in Old Greenwich looking for the proper brand of lite little cigars that don't have the tax on them. I then toured the new Food Emporium in Riverside which is about 40% more expensive than the Grand Union I shopped at in central Greenwich. I tried to buy two boxes of Lipton Tea on sale for $1.29 but one of the foreign employees told me that I would have to buy $10 in items to be eligible for the discount. I felt like telling him to go back to India. I left without making a purchase. If Huntington Hartford walked into some of the local Food Emporiums around here, and saw how poorly the stores were being managed, he would probably draw and quarter the store employees. Obviously the A&P management does not know anything about using sale items to promote regular purchases, like the Grand Union does. Well the customer is always right. Next I went to CVS in the Riverside shopping plaza and toured the cigar section. It is rather amazing with two major tobacco companies headquartered in Greenwich, Fortune Brands "the old Duke Tobacco" the largest tax payer in Greenwich, and U.S. Tobacco which sells tobacco also, one can not find out what individual tobacco products they sell. I studied the little cigar tobacco labels and they all come from down south in Florida and Georgia where money is tighter, and I decided to start purchasing Hav A Tampa Natural Little Cigars, which I believe come from Tampa. I purchased a carton of the item for $13.96 which is $16 cheaper than the Virginia cigarette product since not many people smoke them, and apparently the taxes on cigars are substantially less since politicians don't like taxing one of the main products they are use to consuming in the old days along with a few of the old guard. Also before the Food Emporium I toured Stables which has a Clearance section that has HP ink printer cartridges for $1 along with other copier and printer toner cartridges for $1 none of which fit any models I use. I did not purchase any items at Stables. I returned directly home after CVS and filed this report. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which does not include any internet stocks, since most of them are over hyped and overvalued as far as real value is concerned, so watch your portfolio if you own any internet stocks, since they are headed for a rocky road of decline to reflect their real value. To give you an example the bird brains at AT&T and @Home and TCI bought Excite for $6.5 billion dollars, which mean that hopefully if the Excite directory database had a million entries at least of a paragraph each that would be $6,500 a paragraph which seems awfully pricey for a computer generated database. If I were an AT&T stockholder, I would demand an SEC investigation into the real value of Excite along with the other internet companies, which are substantially overvalued and over hyped. As they say in the Netherlands, "A Fool and His Money Are Soon Parted". Well have a good night and watch your pocketbooks and savings. CIO

Note:<888>1/22/99 Friday 12:25 A.M. EST: I went to bed at 5 A.M. yesterday, and was up at 1 P.M.. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Corn Flakes, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I came directly home to change the tape on the tape backup I started before I left. I just finished the tape backup at midnight taking 11 hours and five tapes for 2 1/2 gigabytes. I read three months back issues of the Greenwich Post. I had dinner of fresh Florida fruit salad, Ramen noodles, and goldfish crackers, ice tea, and coffee. I watched the ABC evening news and CNBC news and channel surfed. I eventually watched for about two hours Prince Edward's Program on the Duke of Windsor on Public Television. I have Larry King on with Dan Quayle announcing he is going to run for President. I plan to turn off the TV and do my email. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>2/07/99 Sunday 10:25 P.M. EST: I went to bed at 2 A.M. this morning. I was up at 8 A.M. and had breakfast of oatmeal, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I went back to bed until noon. I got up and had a bowl of Ramen noodles and started cleaning my apartment slowly and doing a little computer work. I emailed a neighbor this message about Cable Modems:
<http://support.intel.com/support/etherexpress/pro100/software.htm>

I upgraded the Intel EtherExpress 100 Pro adaptor, they put in my computer with the latest drivers. One problem the first time I did this a month ago is that after Win98 recognized the adaptor, it disabled the @home setup, and I had to install the first part of the @home setup from the @home Cdrom, which then enabled it, without going thru the second part of installing the Web Browser software. When installing the first part of the @home software, you need to enter your @home Identification for the computer name beginning with "CV", and the work group in Networking is "@home". Also if Win95 recognizes your Intel card with the Intel drivers, make sure you don't have any IRQ conflicts. Also if you get the modem going, go to :

<http://home.tampabay.rr.com/philip1/cable.htm>

Registry Edit:

HKey_Local_Machine\\System\\CurrentControlSet\\Services\\Class\\NetTrans\\000n\

First tweak MaxMTU to "1500"

Second Tweak in registry

HKey_Local_Machine\\System\\CurrentControlSet\\Services\\VxD\\MSTCP\

MaxMSS "1460"

Third Tweak same location:

DefaultRcvWindow="186880"

Also I disabled the Proxy setting in MS Internet Explorer from:

"Tools", "Internet Options", "Connections", "Lan Settings", do not check "Use Automatic Configuration Script"

If also using Netscape do the same in Netscape's setup for proxy settings.

If all works you should get over 200 Kbytes/sec at @home test download page at: downloading Communicator Version 4.08 a 15 meg. file for test download.

<http://167.206.112.3/>

Remember after reinstalling the Intel EtherExpress 100 Pro Adaptor card in Win 98 a month ago, I had to reinstall the first part of the @home network software from their Cdrom.

In a Win95 setup, the driver should be at the same location:

<http://support.intel.com/support/etherexpress/pro100/software.htm>

and would probably work the same way.

Note: I downloaded the new driver "100pw9x.exe" from

<http://support.intel.com/support/etherexpress/pro100/100PW9x.HTM>

for my Intel EtherExpress 100+ Pro Adaptor, and installed it in Windows 98 by selecting in "My Computer", "Properties", "Device Manager", "Network Adaptor", "Intel Pro/100+ PCI adaptor", "Driver", "Update Driver", and selecting the driver "Net82557.inf" and installing it from the driver location I had downloaded it to. It also installed an Intel Card monitoring program that runs all the time on the system with a little icon in the lower right of the screen next to the sound speaker.

After installing the Intel card driver update, I finished cleaning my apartment and watering the plants. I had dinner about 5 P.M. of Stauffer's frozen lasagna and chatted with family members for a while. I finally got a chance to go out about 8 P.M. There was about an inch of snow on the car, and we are suppose to get three to six inches of snow this morning. I walked the lower area of Greenwich Avenue stopping at the lower Avenue news store and buying a buy two get one free of Basic lites for $6. I noticed one single glove and one pair that people had lost. I returned home and filed this report after chatting with someone else. Well have a good evening, I will do a little computer work to while the time away. All is quiet as far as I can tell. CIO

Note:<888>2/06/99 Saturday 10:15 P.M. EST: I had dinner of baked garlic wine herb boneless chicken breast club sandwich with Mozzarella cheese and bacon on toast with horse radish, Dijon mustard, and mayonnaise. I downloaded CDH Productions Product Downloads CDX Media Wizard and while watching the movie "Volcano" on Channel 50 the Max channel, I encoded at 256 kbyte/sec some Frank Sinatra music from his Duets CD Frank Sinatra Index of /music6 . On my machine, it takes about eight times the length of the song, to encode the music in MP3. I am very tired and will go to bed now. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/06/99 Saturday 5:00 P.M. EST: I worked on my email until 3 A.M. this morning. I was up at 7 A.M. and had breakfast of GU Old Fashioned Oat Meal, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I surfed the net until 10 A.M. when I called a family member. I did some more computer work, and went out at noon. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I went by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop and bought an old HP DeskJet 500 for $15, and I stopped by Stables and priced the Xerox HP LaserJet Series II cartridge, it was $59.35 with tax. I went by Old Greenwich Putnam Trust and withdrew funds and went back to Stables and bought it. I stopped by McDonalds in Greenwich and bought two Big Macs for $2.35. I returned home and ate the Big Macs. One of my neighbors was having a Cable Modem installed. I installed the Xerox HP LaserJet II cartridge in the HP LaserJet II printer, and it works like new, but not as fast as the new Lasers. I am very pleased with its performance. I tried to get the HP DeskJet 500 going but the ink cartridge it came with and the spare it came with were both dried up, so I would have to buy a new one for $21.45 to use it, for now I can get by without it. Well I am a bit bushed and think I should rest. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/05/99 Friday 12:00 P.M. EST: I saw YourGrocer.com 's delivery truck on Putnam Avenue this evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/05/99 Friday 11:30 P.M. EST: I went out at 7:30 P.M. and read PC Week at the Greenwich Library along with the local paper. It was not too busy. I also received my $50 Maxtor drive rebate in the mail, so if you bought one of the Maxtor drives around the first of December and mailed in the rebate then, you are do to receive it. I walked the lower area of Greenwich Avenue and smoked a White Owl panatela at the Post Office plaza. It was quite busy downtown with all parking places filled. I returned home, and downloaded a 14 day usage version of Webtrends and ran it against my local and Florida logs. Well I am sifting through about a 100 automatic email messages, so I guess it is pretty much normal routine. CIO

Note:<888>2/05/99 Friday 6:30 P.M. EST: I slept from 11 A.M. to 4 P.M.. I had a meal of baked garlic wine chicken breast club sandwich with cheese and bacon flavored with Tabasco, horse radish, Dijon mustard , and mayonnaise on toast along with ice tea and coffee. I updated Scott's Broadcast sound.htm along with Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well time for the ABC evening news. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/05/99 Friday 10:55 A.M. EST: After breakfast of Post HoneyNut Oats, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins, I updated the Greenwich part of my Favorites directory to mirror the page Index of /favorites/Destinations/Greenwich, Connecticut . I had a call from a family member. Well time to possibly take a nap, I am still a bit tired. CIO

Note:<888>2/05/99 Friday 8:05 A.M. EST: I was up at 7 A.M.. This is the line of code I placed in my Apache for Windows' "httpd.conf" file to display Scott's Microsoft Internet Explorer Favorites in the present format, for Fancy Indexing, I put in this line of code:

```
___code line follows make one line in "httpd.conf"
IndexOptions IconsAreLinks NameWidth=* SuppressLastModified SuppressSize SuppressDescription FancyIndexing ___code line ends
```

Well time for breakfast, should I email <mailto:billg@microsoft.com> about what I figured out. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>2/05/99 Friday 1:30 A.M. EST: I made my 3 P.M. appointment today. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop. I drove down by the water. I went to the Greenwich library and read the computer press and the local paper. I returned home about 5 P.M. and started working on the computer. I had dinner of baked garlic and wine boneless breast of chicken, potato, ice tea, and coffee. I worked on trying to get the Apache server set up, so it returned my Scott's Microsoft Internet Explorer Favorites, in a presentable format. I chatted with a family member. I took time off to watch the last half of the ABC internet terrorism movie. I just now figured out by reading the Apache manual how to configure the server properly to present my Scott's Microsoft Internet Explorer Favorites in proper format. I hope all you Microsoft Internet Explorer users enjoy it. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which was down quite a bit today. Well I am bushed, so time for some sleep. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>2/04/99 Thursday 1:50 P.M. EST: I was up at 5 A.M. and had breakfast of Post HoneyNut oats, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins. I worked on the internet and rested from 9 A.M. to 11 A.M.. I had a thought about posting my Microsoft Internet Explorer Favorites from my home server, so I figured it out. This is the link Scott's Microsoft Internet Explorer Favorites alas, they only work with Microsoft Internet Explorer. I also configured the Apache server to show the full file names of the files. Well I have a 3 P.M. appointment, so I have to eat and clean up. Have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>2/03/99 Wednesday 9:00 P.M. EST: I started a tape backup this morning at 7:30 A.M. that just finished about 7 P.M.. I use an older model HP Colorado 1000e backup device which takes a little time. After starting the first tape, I decided to discard my old HP 500 + printer which I hauled outside and left by the dumpster. It needed a new cleaning cartridge and toner cartridge, which would cost far more than the ten year or more old laser printer was worth, but I will admit in Postscript fashion it was fast, about two pages a minute. Somebody retrieved it during the day. I showered and started the second tape about 10 A.M. and then went out. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop and toured the merchandise and said hello to the regular staff. It was not busy in the morning. I drove down by the Harbor. I drove by ELDC thrift shop. I stopped by the library and read the local paper and checked out "The Oxford Companion to Classical Civilization". I stopped by McDonalds and had two Big Macs and a large French Fries for $4.04 total. Big Macs are a $1.22 recently. I returned home at noon and chatted with one of my neighbors about the internet. I put the third tape in the tape drive. I went back out. I stopped by Entree Computer and toured the showroom. I mentioned that in order to sell in Europe today, one needs to meet the specifications for recycling the items after they have reached the end of their useful lives, so items like Phillips Televisions are designed to be recycled, and I assume PC systems also. Well I then drove up the old Connecticut Turnpike to Royalton and cut back and went to the Connecticut Department of Motor Vehicles for my annual emission check. Since my car is pre 1980, it was a $10 charge. I was lucky only two people were in front of me, so it did not take long. The staff there are very courteous and friendly. They are starting construction on a new facility, so I suppose next time I go there it should be completed. I then went up the Post Road thru Darien and went to CompUSA in Norwalk. I toured the several clearance item areas in the store, but there was nothing I needed. I did buy a Belkin USB motherboard dual port cable for $10.59. I then returned to Old Greenwich and sat out at the Southwest corner of Tod's Point and smoked a CVS java cigar. There were quite a lot of people out walking in the spring like weather. I then returned to central Greenwich and stopped by Putnam Trust and headed down a busy Greenwich Avenue and viewed the Harbor. I bought $12.50 of premium from Exxon. I returned home and started the fourth tape. I had a bowl of my home made soup for dinner and goldfish crackers. I watched the ABC evening news. The computer tape backup was finished at 7 P.M after a small part of a fifth tape, it took five tapes for about 2 gigabytes of information. I then turned off the computer and installed the USB Port putting it at the top at the rear of the computer, so it is easily accessed. I selected USB in the CMOS, and when I started the computer Windows 98 Plug and Play recognized it and prompted me for my CD and installed the drivers. I now have USB capability with two ports, which is handy since I have no IRQs left. I put the case back together. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening, I will start to slow down. CIO

Note:<888>2/03/99 Wednesday 7:30 A.M. EST: I did a C: drive to D: drive backup last night and had some Ramen noodles and went to bed at 8 P.M.. I was up at 5 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of Post HoneyNut oats, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins. The milk was spoiled, so I threw out the rest of the gallon and will use the new gallon. I sifted through some regular internet work this morning. I will start a tape backup, and go out when I insert the second tape in about 1 1/2 hours. Well have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>2/02/99 Tuesday 5:15 P.M. EST: I posted a bolero.htm MP3 file. I sifted through my email and did my scotwork.htm . Someone emailed me this site <http://members.tripod.com/~andybauch/magic.html> . I also suggest looking at FAST MP3 Search - The World's Largest MP3 Search Engine . I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well I have been up since 2:30 A.M., so it is time to begin winding down, have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/02/99 Tuesday 1:45 P.M. EST: This morning I finished adding the unique numbers to the ValueLink code in about the top 80 pages that get over a 100 hits a month. I had a Tony's 4 cheese pizza at 9:30 A.M. along with ice tea and coffee. A friend called worrying about a matter. I told him to check with the expert. I rested a bit in the morning and channel surfed a bit. I finally showered. It is raining today, so I don't plan on going out at the moment. I have about five issues of Interactive Week to go over. Well have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>2/02/99 Tuesday 5:35 A.M. EST: I added a new file "scott006.zip" at the home site download download.htm , which is the same as "scott005.zip", but without the ValueClick Advertising Click Through Links, for users in more remote locations, they won't have to wait for the ValueClick links to appear. I finished my laundry. CIO

Note:<888>2/02/99 Tuesday 4:20 A.M. EST: I was up at 2:30 A.M.. I had breakfast of Post Honey Nut Oats, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I am on the drying cycle on my laundry. I updated stats.htm for the mrscott.com site. I will do a bit of routine work, before I work on adding numbering to the ValueClick links in the code of the pages. Well Happy Ground Hogs day. CIO

Note:<888>2/01/99 Monday 6:45 P.M. EST: I went out and paid my Bell Atlantic telephone bill via money order at the Post Office. It was busy downtown. I made my 4 P.M. appointment. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the Greenwich Times. I returned home and made a ham and cheese sandwich and I also had a bowl of my homemade soup soupcajn.htm along with ice tea. I also had some of the soup earlier this morning. With all the garlic in it, I hope it helps with the arthritis. I received these email links about George Bush the governor of Texas The Bush Watch and Jennifer's Bush Family Gossip which the local Greenwich Bush group might find interesting for following his career. I have to add some numbers to my link through images, so they are counted more. Well I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm , which showed that GM was up a bit today for a change. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/01/99 Monday 2:10 P.M. EST: Well I finally awoke at 4 A.M. this morning. I guess I slept so much because I had some sort of mild cold. I am feeling a little bit better, but I seem to be a bit exhausted and run down. I finished cleaning my apartment while listening to the www.ttalk.com weekend report. I also finished watering the plants, and I made a batch of icetea.htm . I went out at 8:30 A.M. and stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I stopped by the Post Office and got money orders to pay my cablevision and optimum online, along with the last Cable And Wireless bill, and my MCI telephone bill. I also bought a book of H series new stamps for $6.60. I stopped by Zyns and bought buy two get one free of Parliament lights for $7.10. I smoke a few cigarettes occasionally along with the Tampa Lite little cigars. I paid my rent. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop and browsed the merchandise. I chatted with a local donator from Kennebunkport about how cold the water is up there in the summer. I drove down to the end of Steamboat Road being followed by one of my former neighbors down there. I did not have a chance to speak. I went by Fresh Fields and bought a bottle of the ArthriRescue for $17.99. I stopped by Putnam Trust again. I went over to Oil Star in Cos Cob and had my oil and oil filter changed for $34.90. I drove by Old Greenwich and visited the Old Greenwich thrift shop. I stopped by CVS there, and bought two bags of 100 CVS cough drops for $1.29 each and a jar of Basil for .99 for $3.57 total. I drove around Tod's Point. I stopped by Stables and viewed the Clearance Aisle merchandise. I went to McDonalds in Old Greenwich and bought two Big Macs for $2.37 for both. I went by the Greenwich Library but the local paper was not available. I went by the Grand Union and bought two Tropicana Ruby Red Orange juice half gallons for $2 each, a gallon of GU whole milk $3.29, Post oat cereal with almonds for $2.50, three cans of Campbell's New England Clam chowder for .99 each, a 12 pack of diet Sprite for $1.99 plus .60 can deposit, "I Can't Believe It's Not Butter" lite $1.29, GU old fashioned oatmeal for .99, a gallon of Goldfish crackers for $5.29, Purdue Boneless breast of chicken for $2.99 a pound for $2.75 expires 2/04/99, 15 bags of various Ramen noodles for $3 for a total of $28.79. I then returned home and put away the groceries and had a diet Pepsi and Tylenol, Arthricure, and aspirin. I updated this report. Well have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>2/01/99 Monday 2:30 A.M. EST: Well I have been sleeping a lot since the last message. I did get up and start cleaning my apartment on Sunday morning about 3 A.M., but I fell back asleep about 7 A.M. until now. I guess I might have a mild cold or am just tired. I will have breakfast of oatmeal, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee now. I will try to stay awake unless I get another tired spell. Well I missed the Blue Moon. Have a good morning. I have to change the code on my banner ads, so that each ad has a different number, which will take quite a while. CIO

Note:<888>2/14/99 Sunday 3:50 A.M. EST: I went to bed yesterday about 3 A.M.. I was up about noon today. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Mueslix, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I had a phone call thanking me for the water filter. I recorded a two Album Set into a long Wav file, "The Greatest Hits of the War Years" from my stereo record player. It then took 11 hours to encode the file into MP3 format which I have linked from Greatest Hits of the War Years for you listening pleasure, if you have a fast enough connection to download the 157,104,047 byte file that runs for 1:21:49. I also went out this afternoon and paid a visit. I walked around downtown twice this past evening and it was quite busy and very cold out. I had dinner of Stauffer's frozen lasagna and blueberry pie. Well it is time for bed, so have an enjoyable St. Valentine's Day. CIO
 Note:<888>2/13/99 Saturday 1:25 A.M. EST: I did a minor fix to the Beatles High Baud Users Download 90 Beatles Songs"beatles90songs.zip", 223,259,681 bytes download, so it unzips into Directory c:\beatles90 . I had a salad and blueberry pie for dinner. I went out about 8 P.M. and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue in the rain. It was very busy out with lots of diners and movie goers. I chatted with one local. I returned home and my compute was finished defragging. I did a C: drive to D: drive backup until about midnight watching a little television while the computer did the back up. I had some Ramen noodles and Clementine fruit for a late snack. I sifted through my email. I just finished my weekly broadcast sound.htm which I hope a few of you enjoy. Well time to do my daily work list scotwork.htm , well it seems like it is back to normal routine on the night schedule. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>2/12/99 Friday 4:40 P.M. EST: I went to bed at 2 A.M. last morning. I had a phone call at 7 A.M.. I was up at noon and I had breakfast of Kellogg's Meuslix cereals, toast, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice, and coffee. I got a tired spell after breakfast and fell back asleep until 4 P.M.. I posted a link from my homepages of the Webtrends Traffic report on my Florida and Greenwich Servers Scott's Florida and Greenwich Webtrends Default Report from January 1, 1999 , for any of the curious public. The California site does not have a log. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which was down a bit today. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/12/99 Friday 1:35 A.M. EST: I downloaded and installed Microsoft Personal Web Server for Windows 98 and 95, which is available for free download in the Windows NT Option pack page Get IIS 4.0 - Download by selecting "Windows NT Option Pack Download Wizard for Windows 95". I thus am running my home server with it, instead of the Apache server. It seems to work fine, and does not use any more resources. It was easy to install, I just transferred my server directory contents to the default directory for Microsoft Personal Server. Well I am bushed so time for bed. CIO

Note:<888>2/11/99 Thursday 10:45 P.M. EST: I went back to bed after posting the previous note and I think I awoke around 1 P.M.. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Mueslix, toast, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice, and coffee. I showered and went out about 2:30 P.M.. I dropped off the paper work for my lease. I went by the Hospital Thrift Shop and chatted with a lady from Stonington, Connecticut about the Mystic Aquarium and she told me Bob Ballard had an exhibit there, and they also have Polar Bears there. She said the Mohegan Sun Casino up that way where Ringo Starr and his band will be playing in February has seating for 5,000 people. I briefed her on Volcano logy and what I had done on the net, and she mentioned that in either Mystic or Stonington, there was an Octagon House like the ones in Santa Cruz, California; North Salem, New York; Jane West Hotel, Manhattan, New York; Key West, Florida; and North Salem, New York; and Octagon Building in Washington D.C., and I suppose other octagon structures exist in other parts of the world. Well I have a double tiered Octagon table. I next drove down Steamboat Road and chatted with a gal about the ocean. I next stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the local paper. I noticed the library will be closed at noon tomorrow to install the electrical connection from the Peterson addition. I returned home and fixed the High Baud Users Download 90 Beatles Songs"beatles90songs.zip", 223,260,601 bytes download and made a access page Beatles Music 90 MP3s to download and play individual files or the whole suite of music from. From my WebTrends stats the Beatles are the busiest part of my home server taking up 50% of the activity. Remember I downloaded the files from other public sites on the internet, and am simply making them available for local users on high speed connections. If any of the former Beatles or their managers or agents object, I will gladly remove the music if they find it a breach of copyright. Six people downloaded the 200+ meg file today, so there must be some high band width old Beatles fans in the area, or possibly they are uploading them to the new RioPort.Com Home Page - Your source for Digital Music on the Web Rio Player, for the old guard music fans to listen to. Well I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm and IBM was up a bit today. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/11/99 Thursday 9:45 A.M. EST: I finished my email last night. I rested from 2 A.M. to 8 A.M.. I posted a link from music1.htm to High Baud Users Download 90 Beatles Songs"beatles90songs.zip", 223,260,601 bytes , so one can download the entire group of Beatles Music. It is a large file and one would need a high baud connection to download it fast. Well time for some more rest. CIO

Note:<888>2/10/99 Wednesday 7:40 P.M. EST: I was up at noon today. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Mueslix cereal, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I showered and cleaned up. I went out about 2 P.M. and mailed the package for $18.55 two day overnight rate at the post office. I chatted with a police officer while waiting in line, and he told me that there has been a Sam's Wal-Mart Discount outlet in Elmsford, New York up Route 287 for the last couple of years. I will have to check it out when I have the funds and the need. I then stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop. I next stopped by the Hallmark card store and bought a Valentines card. I then drove down Steamboat Road and chatted with a fellow with a miniature gray poodle about dogs. I then went home and wrote a letter. I then mailed the letter. I stopped by the Greenwich Library. I then drove down Steamboat Road again. NOAA weather radio says that tomorrow Thursday and Friday are suppose to be warmer in the mid 50s. I then went by the Exxon gasoline station next to the Greenwich Library and they lowered their premium gasoline to $1.38 a gallon and I put $10.65 of premium in the car. I then went by the Arnold Bread store and bought two loaves of Winter Wheat Bread that has lots of nuts and seeds in it and one Entenmann's Blueberry Orchard Delight all for $4. I then returned home broiled a shell steak with red and green pepper slices, along with steamed broccoli, and microwave potato with ice tea with lemon slice and a cup of coffee. I watched the ABC evening news. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening, time for some net work, I have email to catch up on. CIO

Note:<888>2/10/99 Wednesday 3:35 A.M. EST: I proofed volcanoe01.htm , for uniformity. I am tired, time for bed. CIO

Note:<888>2/10/99 Wednesday 2:30 A.M. EST: I made a page of my most current Volcano Links volcanoe01.htm from my Microsoft Internet Explorer Favorites Folder of the same group..CIO

Note:<888>2/10/99 Wednesday 12:20 A.M. EST: I printed out the last five months of Scott's Notes with my HP LaserJet II printer with the new cartridge from Xerox. With the Microsoft Font Cartridge in it, and using the Postscript fonts, it printed out 170 pages in less than an hour, so I have a good heavy duty printer for use. I also make a text file available of my Scott's Notes linked from the top of note02pr.htm Scott's Previous Notes. Well time to read the Email. CIO

Note:<888>2/09/99 Tuesday 9:10 P.M. EST: I went to bed at 3 A.M.. I put Play Lists on my music directories, so one can listen to the music sequentially. I was up about 8 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of Post Honey Rolled Oats, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I worked on the computer a bit. I worked on the computer until about 11 A.M. and fell asleep until 2 P.M. when somebody from Medford, Oregon that works for Webtrends called me about whether I want to buy their product. I chatted with Burt a while telling him I liked his product, but I could not afford to buy it. He knew about Volcanoes, since he had lived in Hawaii. I showered and went out at 3:30 P.M.. I stopped by the West Putnam Post Office and bought a box for shipping for $2.75. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and viewed Long Island Sound. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read PC Week and the local paper. I drove over to Stables in Port Chester and toured the store and bought a fancy ballpoint pen that looks like a fountain pen out of the Clearance Bin for $2.14. I chatted with a fellow from Geneva, Switzerland there, and told him with the Avalanches in the Alps after over six feet of snow, they need to contact groups like The California Rescue Dog Association, Inc. (CARDA) which might be able to provide emergency rescue, like they did after the earthquake in Columbia. I then went to Odd Job and bought 4 boxes of different herbal teas for .88 apiece, 2 Hellmann's Low Fat Caesar salad dressing for .59 each, 2 Pritkin Dijon Balsamic salad dressing for .69 each for a total of $6.08. I noticed that gasoline at the Port Chester Mobil station is 20 cents a gallon cheaper than at the Exxon station across from the Greenwich Library. I then stopped by Var Max liquor pantry and bought 3 bottles of French White Les Deux Châteaux 1997 Chardonnay for $3.99 each that they are clearing out plus tax of .81 for a total of $12.79. I then stopped by the Farmers Market in the Cumberland Farms shopping center and bought a head of Romaine lettuce for .79, a head of Cauliflower for .59, a box of Almonds for about $3, a Bermuda onion for about .50, a green pepper for about .50, a red pepper for about .50, an orange tomato for about .50 a box of mushrooms for .99 and 8 lemons for .99 for a total of about $7.50. I then returned home. I started making a salad for dinner. I washed five leaves of Romaine lettuce and shredded them and put them on a plate. I microwaved three strips of bacon on high for 7 minutes in three layers of paper towels covering them to make crispy bacon. I then diced a quarter of a red pepper and a quarter of a green pepper and added them to the salad, I added wedges of a half of tomato, I diced a half of Bermuda onion, I sliced six mushrooms, adding them. I started boiling an egg in cold water and let it boil once it reaches boil for five minutes, and I then chilled it in ice water for ten minutes, I crumbled the bacon on the salad by cutting it, I sliced the chilled boiled egg after peeling it onto the salad, and I added Parmesan cheese, I then sat down with a glass of ice tea and added the Hellmann's Low Fat Caesar Salad Dressing to the salad and enjoyed dinner. I then made a cup of coffee. While waiting for the coffee to cool, I packed the shipping box I had bought earlier with old plastic grocery bags, I put in a water filter that I bought at the Old Greenwich Thrift shop which is a little heavy since I ran water through it once to try it out, but since my faucet threads don't hold the adaptor I don't use it. I also added a "21" Mustard Pot, and two bottles of the Les Deux Chateau White Chardonnay. After coffee, I then went out to mail it UPS at Zyns, but alas they don't take UPS anymore, so I have to wait to go to Packages Plus at the Grand Union Plaza tomorrow. The package weighs about 14 pounds. I returned from downtown and filed this report. I updated Scott's Index which was down quite a bit today scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/08/99 Monday 10:00 P.M. EST: I went up to CompUSA in Norwalk and browsed the store after dinner. I spent about two hours looking at the merchandise. I bought a $2 container of air cleaner spray. I noticed they sell a recycled cartridge for the particular laser printer like I bought for $40, $15 less than the Xerox recycled cartridge. The store was not busy. I noticed lots of traffic headed west while I was traveling east to the store. I stopped by Circuit City. I stopped by Staples in Old Greenwich on the way back. I drove down Greenwich Avenue. I started my laundry when I returned. I just started the dry cycle. I am watching the CSPAN-2 rerun of the King of Jordan's funeral. Well have a good night. CIO

Note:<888>2/08/99 Monday 5:45 P.M. EST: I just finished dinner of broiled shell steak with garlic and pepper seasoning, broiled red pepper quarters, broccoli, potatoes, ice tea, and I am just finishing my coffee. I will go out to walk off my dinner shortly. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/08/99 Monday 4:30 P.M. EST: I went to bed about 2 A.M. and was up at 10 A.M.. I had breakfast of GU old fashioned oatmeal, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I did some routine computer work. I backed up my C: drive to D: drive with everything except the music files. I chatted with a family member about the Westminster Dog show at Madison Square Garden that will be going on the next few days. She said it is on the Life channel. I went out about 2 P.M. after starting to defrag my C: drive. It was a beautiful sunny mid forties day with most of the one inch of snow melted. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. I went by Putnam Trust on Mason street. I drove down by the water on Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. I went by the Grand Union and bought two Kellogg's Mueslix for $2.99 each, Ronzonni Spinach Fettuccini box $1.75, GU Parmesan Cheese $3.39, two Stauffer's 20 oz. Lasagna for $2.99 each, two Tony's Cheese Pizza for $3.49 each, two Tropicana half gallons of Ruby Red orange juice $2 each, two Tropicana half gallons of Red Grapefruit juice $2.49 each, two jars of five brothers Pesto sauce for $1.99 each, a gallon of Pepperidge Farm Goldfish crackers for $5.29 each, three GU frozen broccoli .79 each, GU frozen green beans .69, GU frozen Spinach .69, GU frozen mixed vegetables .75, two GU frozen peas for .75, 4 GU chunky peanut butter .49 each, two Campbell New England clam chowder .99 each, two Chicken of the Sea chunk lite tuna .59 each, a quart jar of Spice World Minced garlic $4.99, two I Can't Believe It's Not Butter $1.29, two Red peppers .98 at .99 a pound, Oscar Myer thick bacon $2.14, two packages of two bone in Shell steaks at $2.99 a pound for $5.32 and $5.68, a box of Tetley British tea $2.49, a can of large Black Pearl olives .99, a 3 pound bag of onions $1.99, GU soy sauce $1.29, a 5 pound bag of Russet potatoes for .99, for a Grand Total of $87.26. I then returned home and made two trips from the car to bring up the groceries. I then put away the groceries and had a glass of ice tea while making another batch of icetea.htm which will go in the refrigerator in a half hour. Well time to check the stockmarket. Scott's Index was up a bit today scopor01.htm , Bud was the big gainer. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/20/99 Saturday 11:00 P.M. EST: I went to bed about 10 A.M. this morning after relaxing. I was awoken by a call at 3 P.M.. I got up about 4:30 P.M. I had breakfast of GU oatmeal, toast, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice, and coffee. I went out about 6 P.M.. I put $10 of gasoline in the car at Exxon. I paid a courtesy call on someone. I was advised that one local Tuxedo cat since it is not getting enough cat food is eating lots of Cardinals recently to supplement its appetite. I went downtown and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue twice viewing the evening dinners and movie goers. I chatted with one local about horses. I played a dollar quick pick and lost. I smoked a CVS Java factory made cigar. I noticed last night while looking in the Greenwich Country Day alumni manual last night, I noticed one alumnus is living out on Mercer Island in Microsoft Country, so there is obviously a connection from Greenwich to Microsoft Country. That particular alumnus use to have a younger brother that worked in Rockefeller Center, thus it only takes about 2 cents of common sense and a American Express credit card to figure out that the Harvard mafia still thinks it is running the country. Let me remind any Harvard alumni that one of the oldest alumni of the University use to live out on Peak Island off Portland, Maine and the Boston Brahms take a dim view of those whom don't play the game by the rules. Thus the grass is always greener on the other side of the continent. Well here in Greenwich back east, I have noticed lots of visitors as usual, and I even noticed a familiar Russian wearing one of the those Russian lambs wool caps that are very popular in Red Square. Well with all the aviation personnel in the area, more of our traveling citizens are probably in warmer locations. I did noticed on the internet that one can fly to London on British Airways for about $120 each way on a round trip fare, so I guess some people whom are worried about Dingo fever might have crossed the Great Pond, to see what is happening in the Eastern Hemisphere. Well for us armchair travelers we make money off the traffic, no matter which way the wind blows; so I hope everyone is enjoying themselves and resting their dogs after lots of walking around in Manhattan. I noticed this evening that the cigar store across from the Greenwich train station sells Monte Cristo cigars for about $9, which are similar to Havana cigars that are commonly available at Dunhill's in Canada. Well I suppose if one reads all the international media from around the globe on the internet, one will notice that there is a distinct lack of coverage from the Boston area, so I think it is easy to surmise that most of the conspirators are out of the Boston Cambridge area. Well enough of constant comment. Back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>2/20/99 Saturday 4:40 A.M. EST: I am finishing my email, and I also updated Scott's Weekly Broadcast sound.htm . Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>2/20/99 Saturday 2:50 A.M. EST: Dinner was delicious, I am having my coffee. For you computer enthusiasts, today Saturday and Sunday February 20 and 21, MarketPro <http://www.marketpro.com> is having one of those computer events at the Westchester County Center from 9:30 AM to 4 PM, where they have discounted merchandise from a wide variety of vendors, however if one needs to return any merchandise, it is usually quite a trip to the vendors' home bases of operation. Well I am limited on funds right now, so I won't be going myself, but I am sure for the eager consumers in the computer field, one will find lots of needed items.

Admission is $7 also. Well time for a little routine computer work. CIO

Note:<888>2/20/99 Saturday 2:05 A.M. EST: I went out this morning at 8 A.M. after doing my usual computer work. I stopped down on Steamboat Road and chatted with one of my former neighbors who had just returned from Peru. He was cold and not use to the cold weather. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York and did some business. Somebody was there in a 25 year old white Cadillac that had a New York Worlds fair license plate on it. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop and somebody was there in a green 1960s Oldsmobile station wagon. It was slow there in the morning, and not much going on. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the local paper. I checked out "Charles at 50". There is a Asian mosquito encephalitis scare in the area, and a few of the critters have been trapped on Long Island around Brook Haven National Laboratory. I returned home and went to bed about 11 A.M.. I slept until about 6 P.M.. I had a telephone call from a family member that mention that the Delta Force has been doing some exercises. I had breakfast of GU oatmeal, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I relaxed for a while. I went out about 11 P.M. and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue twice. I chatted with a local walker. I noticed a few of the youngsters out and about the downtown area. I also drove down to the end of Steamboat Road twice. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought at $4.99 a pound a filet of salmon for $3.24, Post toasted oats and almonds for $2.99, a Stauffer's Lasagna for $2.99, a Tombstone 3 cheese self rising pizza for $5.49, some tiny Spanish onions at .99 a pound for .46, asparagus at $1.99 a pound for $1.75 a red pepper at .99 a pound for .51 for a total of $17.43. I returned home and I am baking in wine and herbs the filet of salmon with baked potato, small onions, cauliflower, asparagus, olives, and red pepper which are just done now. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>2/19/99 Friday 5:20 A.M. EST: I have been doing routine internet work while listening to Auntie B, "The BBC". I am pretty much all caught up with my routine work. Well I hope all of you 50,000 people a month using my various web sites, enjoy the internet activity.

Although I am a high level user, more than likely the younger eager generation are a bit ahead of me, and regard me as the "Old Dinosaur" on the internet. Well to each his own. Have a good morning, I might be going out this A.M. for a few errands and then off to bed, but I still have until about 8:30 A.M. when the village merchants begin opening their various shops. Well what to do for the next three hours, maybe I will try taking a nap, but I am not really tired, but I don't feel up to chatting on Iphone, since I am in my usual quiet routine. I think it would be a good idea to have a all night radio talk show like the BBC, but I have a feeling there are lots of them here in the states, but having maintained a benign interest in the United Kingdom for years, I try to hear some of the local gossip. I basically feel like I have "Cabin Fever" having been inside the last day. A little bit of community networking will bring me back to reality. CIO

Note:<888>2/19/99 Friday 3:20 A.M. EST: I fixed a dinner of baked salmon steak, baked potato, baked onion in wine and herbs along with ice tea and coffee. I listened a bit of the BBC morning broadcast. I went out just now to throw out the fish remains, so it does not smell in the waste. It is brisk and cool out, and I smoked a White Owl panatela and enjoyed the breath of fresh air. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>2/19/99 Friday 12:25 A.M. EST: Well I got http-analyze working on my local server Scott's, Greenwich, Connecticut Local Server Stats starting January 1, 1999, be sure to look at the small secondary internet explorer window to examine more detailed log statistics. I have to run the update from my home server, not over the internet, which is just as well since executables should not be allowed to be done remotely. Well time for routine work. CIO

Note:<888>2/18/99 Thursday 9:00 P.M. EST: I went to bed at 11 A.M. and was up at 6 P.M.. I received two phone calls while I was asleep. I had breakfast of GU oatmeal, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I watched the ABC evening news. I received a phone call at 7 P.M. from an older woman who said my telephone number had shown up on her caller ID. It was not me whom called. I went downstairs and chatted with one of my neighbors who had been to the Mohegan Sun Casino in Eastern, Connecticut. He said they have Ringo Starr posters all over the Casino. I came upstairs and showered. I want to try to install http-analyze - Log analyzer for web servers on my web site this evening. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/18/99 Thursday 8:30 A.M. EST: Well I finished the Email. Time for a rest. CIO

Note:<888>2/18/99 Thursday 4:30 A.M. EST: I was up at 4 P.M. today. I had breakfast of GU oatmeal, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I started a partial C: drive to D: drive backup. I rested for a couple hours until 6 P.M. when the backup was finished. I started a partial backup to tape of all my music files and compressed files, which was not finished until about 4 A.M. on four tapes. I went out at 7 P.M. and stopped by the library and read the local paper and two computer news weeklies. That reminds me I have about ten back issues of Interactive Week I have to read when I have time. I checked my site on the library computer, and Scott's Apache Status <http://24.228.18.154/server-status?> comes up on their computer, so I will link it from my homepage, so the curious can follow my home servers present activity, mostly Beatles music, I hope Michael Jackson is not irritated since I believe he owns Apple Records rights to the music, but since the tunes are freely available on the internet, I have just made them more easily accessed. After the library I drove down Greenwich Avenue and to the bottom of Steamboat Road and then returned home to put in another tape. I stopped by the Grand Union on the way and bought a salmon steak at $2.99 a pound for $2.18, fifteen packs of various Ramen noodles for $3, and three half gallons of Tree Ripe orange juice for $5 for all three. I also returned .85 cents in cans. The grocery bill came to $10.18 minus the cans. I returned home and put in the second tape. I started to watch a movie, but I decided to go out and enjoy the warm evening. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue twice. I smoked a CVS Java cigar in front of the senior center. I chatted with a local night time stroller. I also had some Ramen noodles before going out, and stopped by McDonalds for a $1.29 Big Mac. After walking the lower section of Greenwich Avenue, I drove down by the harbor. I returned home about 11:30 P.M. and put in the third tape. I watched a program on channel 89 about the history of Princeton University which was very well done. I last visited Princeton on Palm Sunday about eight years ago and toured the library there, and had dinner at the Old Inn downtown. I made a salad of Escarole lettuce, red pepper, onion, black olives, cauliflower, parmesan cheese, with Balsamic salad dressing. I watched the beginning of an Italian movie about St. Margaret. I finally finished the backup with the fourth tape. I will do a little internet work now before retiring. CIO

Note:<888>2/17/99 Wednesday 4:50 A.M. EST: Well I finally fixed the problem. There is a hidden file "index.dat" in the "C:\Windows\Temporary Internet Files\Content.IE5" folder. I removed the System attribute with "attrib", and I then copied the hidden file "index.dat" to a backup folder. I then did a F8 safe boot to the command prompt, and deleted the file "index.dat" in the "C:\Windows\Temporary Internet Files\Content.IE5" folder and when I rebooted the system, the Real Audio program worked. What a hassle, back to normal. I think I will shut down for the night. CIO

Note:<888>2/17/99 Wednesday 3:10 A.M. EST: I was up at about 6 P.M. yesterday. I had breakfast of GU oatmeal, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I started working on the computer, and I noticed that my Real G2 Player does not play when I clip on a recording link, and I get this error, "Can not find the file 'C:\Windows\Temporary Internet Files\Content.IE5\CLAZGDIB\'name of the file.ram'"(or one of its components). Make sure the path and filename are correct and that all required libraries are available." The error seems to have started after installing the @home update software 1.6 . I have tried reinstalling @home, internet explorer, Real 5, Real G2, Media Player, restoring the registry, restoring the system file directory referred to in the error message, all to no avail. I will have to go with out listening to audio files until I figure this out. I will call @home this morning when I am awake. Well not much accomplished today. I did update Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I also uninstalled the Microsoft Personal Server in trying to fix the audio problem. It has me stumped, since the hidden system files referred to are in their directory. Well time for some rest. CIO

Note:<888>2/16/99 Tuesday 5:00 A.M. EST: Well I am done with my routine internet work. I have been running the Apache server again for the last day since it support 50 streams, while the Microsoft Personal Server was running out of streams since it support 10 streams. I also figured out how to configure the Apache Server so I can get server status from Scott's Apache Status <http://24.228.18.154/server-status?> from my machine. I don't think this works from another machine. The Apache instructions for doing this are wrong. One enables server status, and detailed reports, and the server permission, but the entry for detailed reports needs to be after the server permission, not at the beginning of the script. Anyone curious about this let me know. Well not much happening on the net, since yesterday was a holiday. I am pretty much back to routine. Well have an enjoyable morning, and for those of you whom are on vacation, we'll try to make sure the town is still here when you return. Well time to slow down and rest. CIO

Note:<888>2/15/99 Monday 10:50 P.M. EST: I was up at 6 P.M. today. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Meuslix, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I went out about 8 P.M., and since today was a holiday the library was closed. I stopped by and chatted with a retired electronics person who was repairing a bicycle about technology. It reminds me of the old days when working on a garage apartment in Long Island, I always went to Wright Brothers Hardware store for parts. As we all know, aviation had its roots with bicycle mechanics. I suggest using a swinging pivot instead of a sliding pivot when pulling a grocery cart behind the bicycle. I next walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue and smoked a White Owl panatela. It was very slow out, and the entire town looked like it had been evacuated. I returned back home via McDonalds and had two big Macs for $2.35. I told them one of the busiest McDonalds is outside Disney World, and I had seen a large one on the Champs Elysee in Paris. I now have to do my laundry and back to regular computer work. I am not sure if the stockmarket was open today, but my portfolio changed with tech stocks down quite a bit, look at Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a quiet evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/15/99 Monday 2:35 A.M. EST: I went to bed at about 6 A.M.. I awoke at 3 P.M. and had breakfast of Kellogg's Mueslix, toast, vitamins, coffee, and orange juice. I chatted with a family member. I went back to bed until 6:30 P.M.. I chatted with another family member. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants until about 10:30 P.M.. I made a large mixed salad with escarole lettuce, red pepper, green pepper, mushrooms, chopped bacon, two chopped hard boiled eggs, Bermuda onion, and parmesan cheese with Balsamic Dijon mustard. After what happened to be Monday with putting rancid chopped garlic on my steak and not cooking the rancid garlic too well, I guess rancid garlic makes and excellent laxative. I went out about 11:15 P.M. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. I drove over to CVS at the Riverside Plaza and bought a carton of Swisher Sweets light little cigars for $13.96. I chatted with the all night pharmacist there for a while. I noticed that somebody had run over a bag in the plaza parking lot and broken open a gallon of white paint and a few other items were lying there. I found a bottle of low sodium premium soy sauce. I next drove downtown and stopped by the Greenwich Harbor Inn to use the restroom. I chatted a while with the regular night clerk. I also chatted with a couple of tan gals whom had just gotten back from a stay at the Holiday Inn in Jamaica. The said they flew Air Jamaica and had a delightful stay. They said that they heard Jamaica is running out of Bauxite. I told them a bit about my Caribbean visits. Two night ago I had chatted with somebody returning from the Hague who was Hungarian, and a fellow from Johannesburg, South Africa also. I guess Greenwich continues to be an international community. I returned to the center of town. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue smoking a JAVA CVS cigar. There were a few people exiting the Dome restaurant and Sundown Saloon and Thataways. NOAA radio said it is in the low 20s to high teens. I was wearing my long underwear, so it was not to bad out. I returned via Cumberland Farms and bought a gallon of milk for $2.89. The fellow from India was irritated there because a young Hispanic fellow has been stealing merchandise there for the last few nights. I returned home and started making a batch of icetea.htm . Well another cold bleak night in Greenwich with not much to report. Pretty much the same old routine. My cable modem has been blinking constantly with all the people downloading Beatles music. Well back to the net, have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>2/28/99 Sunday 11:15 P.M. EST: I relaxed a bit this evening. I did not bother going out today. I chatted with a family member and friend, not much to report on the home front. Well rainy days, make for quiet days. CIO

Note:<888>2/28/99 Sunday 5:30 P.M. EST: I was up at 9 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of Post Raisin bran, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I chatted with a family member. I went back to bed until noon. I started house cleaning and watering the plants while listening to the www.ttalk.com weekender show. I finished house cleaning about 3 P.M., and I made up a batch of icetea.htm . I chatted with the @home technician about the possibility of increasing my baud width. One of my neighbors said they are getting 4.5 megs a second. The top I have ever gotten is 1.2 megs a second. I had dinner of ham, baked potato, and spinach along with ice tea and coffee. The @home technician seemed to know the business quite well. Well not much else to report from this side of the globe, I did hear a rumor on Greenwich Avenue two days ago that Vesuvio in Naples, Italy had "Cracked". I also tried to chat with someone from Argentina last night who lives in the mountains in the Andes, that seemed to know something about tectonics. If anything is happening in the Volcanology field, I am unaware of it, unless John Fink emails us from the University of New Mexico, but right now I think his team is monitoring Popocatepetl or I believe John Williams has the sulfur gas monitoring equipment there. Well maybe I should go out after I clean up, it is pretty quiet here. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/27/99 Saturday 11:20 P.M. EST: I went out after the last message. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. I then walked up to the top of the Avenue. I returned back to the bottom of Greenwich Avenue. I then walked up to the Post Office and smoked a CVS Java cigar. I then walked down to the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. I chatted with some locals and it took a while for all the walking. It was a nice night out, and they had an event going on at the Greenwich Arts center. Quite a few diners, walkers, movie goers, and pub crawlers were out along with coffee sippers. Well it is time to relax a bit before going to bed. Have a good night. CIO

Note:<888>2/27/99 Saturday 7:10 P.M. EST: Snow on main street in Nantucket does not look that bad Nantucket.net's Live Cobblestone Cam - Nantucket Island, MA - nantucket net . I had my Stauffer's frozen lasagna for dinner. I looked at my neighbors web site, but I don't speak German, but his English is very good. I put on my new pair of Lee Riders and they fit perfectly. I am just finishing my coffee and I will go out for an evening stroll. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/27/99 Saturday 6:30 P.M. EST: I worked on the internet deleting the Lotus Notes and Domino Server R5 beta, since the Domino Server administrator feature is not yet complete. I also installed a novel piece of IBM demo ware IBM Home Page Reader which works quite well, but my neighbors think I am talking to myself. I went out about 2 P.M.. I drove downtown and there was no parking so I parked on Steamboat Road down by the water and chatted with an elderly couple. I then went back through the center of town and stopped by the Greenwich Library. The local paper was not available. I checked out a book, "Washington's Mount Rainier Centennial Celebration National Park". I then drove back down Greenwich Avenue. I drove over to the Port Chester Caldor's shopping center. I bought a pair of Lee Riders jeans size 42 X 30, slightly larger since I figure they will shrink a bit when washed. They were 30% off, and I paid $16.09 plus $1.09 NY tax for $17.18 total. They have quite a number of blue jeans still left. I then went over to Odd Job in the same shopping plaza and bought a 1 Kilogram can of Maxwell House ground coffee for $5.99, a fifteen pack box of ACT II popcorn for $3.99 and two cans of 24 bag Boston tea of Bing Cherry flavor and Strawberry for $1.29 each for $12.56 total. I put my bags in the car and then stopped by Staples. I returned home and chatted with one of my neighbors from across the street that produces medical software for cholesterol monitoring and his site is Imageweb from Switzerland where he is from. He use to work for IBM and he was out with his children. I talked his ear off as usual. I returned home and put away the items and am just about to eat a Stauffer frozen lasagna. Well have a good evening.

Note:<888>2/27/99 Saturday 10:35 A.M. EST: Today I was up about 9 A.M. I had breakfast of Post Raisin bran, toast, vitamins, coffee, and orange juice. I updated Scott's Weekly broadcast sound.htm . Well have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>2/26/99 Friday 10:40 P.M. EST: I downloaded the February 18, beta of Lotus Notes R5 and Domino Server from www.lotus.com and installed them. On my system they are a bit slow, but I will study them for the next couple of days, and figure out how to configure the Domino server. I also gave someone a ride from Port Chester to Central Greenwich about 9 P.M.. I am tired and just had a bowl of Ramen noodles and ice tea. Time to wind down and go to bed. Have a good night. CIO

Note:<888>2/26/99 Friday 6:00 P.M. EST: I went out at 2 P.M. and dropped off some envelopes at the Greenwich Town Hall. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. They have a bag sale going on where everything you can stuff in a bag is $30. I bought a picture frame to hold the copy of my first internet advertising check for $1.75 and a half ounce shot glass for .25. I next drove downtown and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. The arthritis was acting up in my right knee, so I walked very slowly. I next drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road. I next went to the Greenwich Library and read the local paper, which did not have much content as usual. I spoke with a couple of regulars about general gossip. I next returned home and filed this report. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which was down again today. I guess the high tech industry is loosing some of its luster, and people are beginning to come down to reality, of course the profit reports ultimately decide which industries people might invest in. Well not much else to report. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/26/99 Friday 1:45 P.M. EST: I did my normal internet routine and sifted through my email this morning. I also did a C: drive to D: drive backup. I ran scan disk and also defragged the C: drive. I used the system information tool to not load a couple of drivers. I had a Tony's pizza for lunch and ice tea. A friend of a friend just called up asking about him. I turned off the server while I was doing systems maintenance. I will restart the computer and start the server shortly. I will clean up and go out then. Well have a good afternoon. It is clear and 55 degrees. CIO

Note:<888>2/26/99 Friday 6:45 A.M. EST: I was up at 6 A.M.. I had breakfast of Post Raisin bran, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins. It looks like it snowed a little bit outside, but not much. Well I have noticed a couple of interesting activities in the last couple of days on a day schedule. I noticed a tall fellow about 6'4" at Starbucks in New Canaan. What was strange was he was wearing white jockfers, which as I thought white jockfers are usually worn by women and girls. I also over the years have noticed a lot of young kids have been practicing the marshall arts at the Knights of Columbus for self defense. Last night I saw a group of young teenagers going into the police firing range for practice I assume, so I guess the teenagers are also learning how to use firearms. I guess this is normal, since when I was at Lookout Mountain Camp they had us practicing with 22 rifles when I was eight. From years of observation, it is my viewpoint that the military is best prepared for self defense, and it is safer to rely upon them, not to mention one does not have to be bothered with the noise of practice. I guess some of the local youth feel the need for self defense. However, having a vague idea of what some of the military's capacities are, I have a feeling the self defense orientated youth would be out matched. Well enough of the peace nick viewpoint. Well I will do a little internet work this morning. Have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>2/25/99 Thursday 9:00 P.M. EST: I had the same problem with the Real Sound files playing, so I did the same routine as last Wednesday: following routine
Well I finally fixed the problem. There is a hidden file "index.dat" in the "C:\Windows\Temporary Internet Files\Content.IE5" folder. I removed the System attribute with "attrib", and I then copied the hidden file "index.dat" to a backup folder. I then did a F8 safe boot to the command prompt, and deleted the file "index.dat" in the "C:\Windows\Temporary Internet Files\Content.IE5" folder and when I rebooted the system, the Real Audio program worked.
What a hassle, back to normal. I think I will shut down for the night. end routine
For some odd reason my microphone keeps turning off also. It all might be caused by having to shut down the system when it occasionally freezes when I am working on multiple activities. I also updated the driver for the Intel Pro/100 + PCI adapter to version 3.03 Windows* 95/98 Driver Software Release 3.1 and Tivoli Management agent [100PW9X.EXE], by running update driver for the adaptor and selecting the directory of the download extracted. I also installed the new Microsoft JAVA virtual machine Download the Microsoft Virtual Machine for Internet Explorer 5 and Visual Studio . Well I am bushed, so time to relax a bit of Ramen noodles an then to bed. Have a good night. CIO

Note:<888>2/25/99 Thursday 5:25 P.M. EST: I had a baked chicken with herbs and wine and cheese with Tabasco and mayonnaise and Dijon mustard on toast sandwich with a salad of escarole lettuce, red pepper, black olives, and onion with balsamic dressing and ice tea and coffee for lunch. I showered and went out about 1 P.M.. I dressed up in my long underwear, corduroy pants, red sweater, Burberry Sports coat, and Camels Hair Overcoat with a tie and blue shirt, unfortunately I have put on so much weight my clothes are a little bit tight. I weigh 206 pounds. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read Computerworld and PC Week. I chatted with one Norwegian patron about the avalanches in the Alps and suggested the Norwegian Offshore Oil Platform All Weather Helicopters might be useful for all weather Alpine rescue. I chatted with another regular patron about the fact that the Greenwich Police now buy that their gasoline at Greenwich Exxon. Greenwich Exxon also carries Natural Gas for vehicles which run on compressed liquefied natural gas. I went by the Greenwich Hospital thrift shop. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I drove down Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. There was one lone sea gull and one lone crow at the waterfront. Somebody threw a potted plant into the harbor from the stone pier, that one can see in the water for some odd reason. I guess the terracotta pot it is, probably is cracked, so it is not worth salvaging. I next went by Greenwich Exxon and bought $9.60 of premium gasoline. I then went to the Grand Union and bought a half gallon of milk for $1.77, a box of GU old fashioned oatmeal for $1.29 and a Gwaltney low sodium carved ham at $2.49 a pound for $10.93. I then returned home and put away the groceries and had a glass of ice tea. It is snowing lightly out, but according to yesterday's weather report, it is not suppose to snow until Saturday. I have not looked at the weather report today. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which was down a bit today. I saw that Green Grey 737 flying in from the southeast as I drove up the driveway. I notice that jet the most. I am sort of in a blah mood today, I suppose once it warms up a bit, and the sun comes out, I will be more upbeat. Well time for a little internet activity, have a good evening. I am not sure what I will have for dinner, but I am not hungry now. CIO

Note:<888>2/25/99 Thursday 11:35 A.M. EST: I chatted with a friend last night about 6:30 P.M.. I went to bed about 8 P.M.. I was up this morning at 4 A.M.. I had breakfast of Post Raisin bran, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I did a little bit of minor organizing around the apartment. I went back to bed at 6 A.M. to 8 A.M.. I did a little routine computer maintenance running Scandisk and I also set up the Apache server to show file sizes when one looks at file directories. I'll have a chicken and cheese sandwich at noon. I have a 3 P.M. appointment, so I might start cleaning up after lunch and go out after that. I still have yesterday and today's email to sift through. All quiet on the home front. CIO

Note: <888>2/24/99 Wednesday 5:20 P.M. EST: I had a dinner at 6:30 A.M. this morning of boneless breast of chicken baked in wine and herbs with baked aperagus, onion, potato, ice tea and coffee. I worked on the computer trying another Xitami server, but it was half as fast as Apache. Also I am using IFW2000 for a firewall since the Winproxy beta expired. I noticed using Internet Firewall 2000 that my Apache server goes two to three times faster than without using the firewall, which is hard to explain. I left the present Apache server going with the Internet Firewall 2000 going. I went out at 9 A.M.. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and photocopied my ValueClick check since it is my first internet income. I then went to Putnam Trust Bank of New York on Mason Street and cashed it. I next drove down Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. NOAA weather radio is now using a computer simulated voice to broadcast the NOAA weather reports, but I don't hear them mention Nantucket shoals as much anymore. I next drove through Bruce Park to the East Putnam Avenue and up the Boston Post Road through Stamford and Darien to CompUSA in Norwalk. I toured the store. Nothing is on sale this week. I did not notice anything of interest in the clearance bins. I did not feel like buying anything, but familiarized myself with some of the latest merchandise. At noon I went to Caldor's in Norwalk and bought 5 pairs of flannel boxer shorts size 36 to 38 for $19.95 at a 20 percent discount with the store closing. They have WebTV keyboards there on sale, but not the WebTV. Basically a little bit of everything. I next drove into Darien and up to New Canaan. I noticed that Prudential reality has a house on the New Canaan Road next to the little horse stable for rent. I noticed that the New Canaan high school is under renovation. I also noticed the New Canaan train station is undergoing a renovation. I went to the Visiting Nurse Thrift shop next to the fire station, but was only able to spend a minute there, since I was not able to find a metered parking place. I next drove through downtown New Canaan and got on the west exit of the Merit parkway and drove back to Greenwich exiting at North Street. I went to the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop. I then drove down Greenwich Avenue and parked. I smoked a cigar cigarette in the park. I went to the Mews Thrift shop and found a bargain. I bought a framed with glass water color of the Moulon Rouge 24 inch by 24 inch by Girard vintage 1930s for half price for $20. Someone donated 50 suits size 44 and 46 waist 44 inseam 27 for a portly gentleman which they are also selling. I next drove to the Greenwich Hardware store with a stop at Putnam Trust on Greenwich Avenue. I bought the German professional picture hanger hooks and nails at the Greenwich Hardware store $2.49 for three 30 pound hooks with nails and $2.49 for eight more nails and I also purchased at a 70% discount a large 15 inch diameter outdoor thermometer with an Eagle picture for $5.40 for a total of $11. I next went down Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. I returned through the center of town and went to the Arnold Bread store. I bought three loaves of Arnold Healthnut bread for $1.29 each a loaf, and two pineapple cheesecakes for $1.89 each for a total of $6.89. I chatted with the NCR technician there who was trying to repair the scanner. I suggested he clean the reflecting mirror and he said he had fogged it since it was bothering the cashiers eyes. I suppose they could try polarizing lens on scanners to protect people's eyes. I talked a bit of other tech with the NCR technician and told him about my internet site. I returned home and put the large thermometer outside in the window, so I can read it. Of course when the sun shines on it, it won't be accurate. They have another one 70% off at the Greenwich Hardware store entrance with Sun Flowers. I put the Moulin Rouge picture above my desk over the laser printer underneath the cafe sculpture and beneath the Maxims water color. I put the Life Magazine coronation picture of Queen Elizabeth II on the opposite wall next to the marlin and hung my old outdoor iodine thermometer next to it. I rehung the picture of my mother and also of myself outside the Louvre next to the front door. Well after that bit of interior redecoration, I had some reheated pasta fraise and a glass of ice tea. I am a bit bushed, but it was a warmer day than expected. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which was down today, but up for the last three days. Well time to start relaxing before going to bed, unless I try to stay up later who knows. Anyway have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>2/24/99 Wednesday 5:25 A.M. EST: Well I lied down shortly after the last message. I guess I was tired, I received a call from Lake Forest College about 8 P.M. asking for alumni contributions. I explained to them that a family relation donates through the company. I am not sure what I said since I was half awake. I slept until midnight and had breakfast of Post Raisin bran, toast, orange and grapefruit juice, vitamins, and coffee. I got a tired spell again and slept until 4 A.M.. I checked my mail from yesterday, and I received my first check from ValueClick - The Pay-for-Results Advertising Network for $44.04 for my first ad links from mid December to the end of January. At the rate the clickthroughs are going, I might be making about $50 a month, which would help pay for the Cable Modem and equipment maintenance. Well I have cleaned up, so time for a little routine internet work. It is not as cold as expected this morning, only about 25 degrees according to Pathfinder Greenwich, Connecticut Weather . Well lets hope spring comes soon, I feel with all the sleeping I have been doing recently, I am going into Winter Hibernation. Well today is a new day, maybe I will make it up to CompUSA to browse the Clearance table or some other exciting activity. MarketPro www.marketpro.com is suppose to have another one of their shows at the Stamford, Connecticut Sheraton this Sunday, but alas I would rather save my funds for provisions than splurge on computer parts, so I guess the Chinese trying to sell the less expensive parts will have to go without my business. Still I enjoy the extra rest, all this internet work builds up on you. Well I will cook dinner in about an hour or so. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>2/23/99 Tuesday 1:45 P.M. EST: Well it was a little chilly out this morning. I went out at 8:20 A.M.. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and viewed the harbor from the bottom of Steamboat Road. Long Island sound looks clear bleak and cold today. I drove over to the Greenwich Library and read the Greenwich Times. I left the library and headed east on Putnam Avenue. I stopped by St. Catherine's thrift shop. They have a diverse collection of merchandise. I went to Caldor's in Old Greenwich and everything is 20% or more off, since the Caldor's chain of stores are closing. I stopped by Staples and bought 500 sheets of paper for $3.17. I drove back to the center of town. I drove back down Greenwich Avenue and viewed the harbor from Steamboat Road again. I drove back over to the Grand Union and bought 20 bags of different Ramen noodles for $4, 2 cans of Chicken of the Sea tuna fish for .49 each, a Tony's Pepperoni pizza for $3.49, GU mozzarella for $1.99, Post Raisin bran for $2.50, 2 half gallons of Florida Natural orange juice for $1.99 each for a total of $16.94. I returned home and put away the groceries. I reheated some pasta fraise and had a glass of ice tea with it. About noon I lied down for a half hour. I channel surfed for a half hour. It is colder outside, and the Greenwich Times says this Canadian cold front is suppose to be with us for the next ten days, so we might as well get use to it. Well not much to report, so I am just staying inside and relaxing. Well I hope you all had a good day. Stay Warm. CIO

Note:<888>2/23/99 Tuesday 8:15 A.M. EST: Well I have finished my daily internet routine. One of the big stories is that hundreds of thousands of people are stranded by blizzard conditions in the Alps. Jackson Hole, Wyoming has lots of snow also. I noticed in computer press lots of IBMers are down in New Orleans also. Well not much happening for now, I suppose I should go out and check out on the local daytime activity, but first I have to put on my Long Johns. I believe Levine's Army Navy store in Port Chester sells Long Johns. Well tomorrow morning is suppose to be 8 degrees, so enjoy the warmer weather today. I suggest that some people should make sure their antifreeze is strong enough for the colder temperatures we are experiencing. Well enjoy the cold crisp artic like conditions, in another month it should start warming up again. CIO

Note:<888>2/23/99 Tuesday 5:25 A.M. EST: Well the laundry is done. The laundry room is about the warmest place in the building. I defrosted some boneless breast of chicken. I am baking boneless breast of chicken in wine and herbs, with baked potato, baked onion, cauliflower, asparagus, and I will have it all in about a half hour with ice tea and coffee. Well it according to Pathfinder Greenwich, Connecticut Weather , it is pretty dang cold outside, so stay warm. CIO

Note:<888>2/23/99 Tuesday 4:15 A.M. EST: Well I worked on the computer until 1:30 P.M. yesterday. I started Alta Vista indexer, and took a short nap. However, I woke up just before 4 P.M., and did not make my appointment, but I called in. I slept until midnight and had breakfast of GU oatmeal, toast, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice, and coffee. I got another tired spell and slept until 3 P.M. I guess I was tired. I showered and cleaned up, and then I went downstairs and started my laundry. I am now on the drying cycle, done in about thirty minutes. It is warm and comfortable in the apartment, but a bit drafty. I keep the fan on the air conditioner on to bring in a bit of fresh air when I am awake. It is very cold in the hallways in the building, and I keep getting this feeling of cold, although I am not personally cold, perhaps I am tuning into one of my neighbors. Well I will cook dinner after I finish the drying cycle. I quit the Alta Vista indexer program, since after running it for 14 hours, it was not complete, and when I pressed CTL-ALT, it said it was not responding. Well lets hope it is a little warmer this morning. I feel like this building is like the "Ice Hotel" in that Volvo commercial I saw on television a couple of days ago. Well I guess I will be out about 8 A.M. this morning back on a day schedule. Stay warm. CIO

Note:<888>2/22/99 Monday 11:40 A.M. EST: I watched a little television until 8 A.M.. I went out and drove down to the end of Steamboat Road, and viewed the clear cold sky. It is rather chilly outside, but I was dressed warmly enough for it in with my Long Johns, and I had my Icelandic knit cap. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop and said good morning. I drove by CVS and bought a 12 oz. can of Planters cocktail peanuts for $1.88, a round tin of Danish butter cookies for $1.50 which is a very good deal, a carton of Swisher Sweets light cigars for $13.17, plus a package of CVS razors for $2.39 plus .93 CT. sales tax for a total of $19.87. I then went down Greenwich Avenue and back up to the Greenwich Library. I said good morning to some of the staff. I read the Greenwich Times. I noticed a few new faces. I then went down to the end of Steamboat Road and chatted with one of the morning regulars. I then went to the ELDC thrift shop. I next drove back down Greenwich Avenue and stopped by the MEWS thrift shop. I noticed they have a nice Panda print there for $50 along with a carved gift souvenir from Innsbruck for $5 along with a copy of the book "The Last Lion". I gossiped a bit. I next came home and I had a bowl of reheated pasta fraise and ice tea. I had some Danish butter cookies and am now sipping a cup of coffee. Well I have a 4 P.M. appointment this afternoon, so I guess I will hang around the apartment until going out for the appointment, unless I feel motivated to do something else. I noticed one of the regular personal jet aircraft in the area taking off in the direction of Bermuda. Well for all I know, some people don't like cold weather and have headed towards warmer climates. Well back to normal routine. CIO

Note:<888>2/22/99 Monday 6:50 A.M. EST: I finished my daily internet routine. When I was up at midnight, I had a Stauffer's frozen Lasagna dinner. I just finished having Spinach noodles with a cheese sauce mixture about an hour ago. Well it is very cold out, so I will a relax a bit, and maybe go out about 8:30 A.M.. Well have a good morning, and stay warm. CIO

Note:<888>2/22/99 Monday 2:45 A.M. EST: I went to bed shortly after the note on Saturday night. I slept until 7 AM on Sunday morning. I awoke and watched Robert Schuller on morning television. I had breakfast of GU oatmeal, toast, vitamins, orange and grapefruit juice, and coffee. I chatted with a family member. I started cleaning the apartment and watering the plants. I got a tired spell and rested through out the rest of the day I slept, I finally awoke about midnight on Monday morning. I finished cleaning the house and watering the plants. I made up a batch of icetea.htm . I watched a program on Doris Duke on the Lifetime channel. I also downloaded a few more classical mp3s Index of /music4 . Well time to wait for the morning to come around soon enough. Well at least I am rested for a change, this internet activity tends to take up a lot of time and can gradually wear someone out. Well I hope all enjoy my internet content, the Beatles still seem to be ever popular. Time for a little of my regular internet routine. CIO

Note:<888>3/07/99 Sunday 9:50 P.M. EST: Well, I was up at noon today. I worked a bit on the computer and the Thunderstone web indexer again to no avail. I finally gave up and deleted it again. I finally got around to having breakfast at 4 P.M. of Kellogg's crunchy raisin bran, toast, vitamins, coffee, and orange juice. I ran a defrag on the hard drive. I started cleaning the apartment and watering the plants with one slight rest, and finished a half hour ago, and just finished showering and cleaning up. I will go out for a breath of fresh air now. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/07/99 Sunday 4:10 A.M. EST: Well I fiddled with Thunderstone web indexer for a while, and finally gave up and deleted it. I had the Apache server cgi-bin directory viewable, but now it is not again and I still don't think it would have worked. It is really designed to work with Windows NT, so I am not sure all the script was right for Win98. Not much accomplished, but time to slow down and get to bed early. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>3/07/99 Sunday 12:10 A.M. EST: I went to bed about 7 A.M. yesterday morning. I had downloaded the free Thunderstone Taxis web search engine for my server. I started indexing the server and went to bed. I was up about 1 P.M. and had breakfast of Kellogg's Crunch raisin bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I went back to bed and chatted with a friend. The thunderstone index ran to partial completion when it ran out of buffers. I can finish the indexing later, however I have not been able to configure it for the Apache server in my server root directory, it says when I run it the folder Scott's Internet Hotlist Local Server, Greenwich, Connecticut Search: is 403 Forbidden . Well I have not figured it out after trying to reconfigure the Apache, and it is time to relax. I did have two slices of Elos pizza and ice tea about 10 P.M.. I am a bit tired and my eyes are blurry. Well have a good night. I am not sure what my plans are for the rest of the night. CIO

Note:<888>3/06/99 Saturday 3:25 A.M. EST: I tried to get IBM Web Servers : Overview IBM Web Sphere Application Server 2.0 for Windows NT to works with Windows 98, but alas it does not, but when I uninstalled it, the system seemed more responsive. It installs the Apache for Windows NT, and I reinstalled Apache for Windows 98 saving the "http.conf" file which was slightly modified. Tricky business to no avail. Well not much to report on, so I guess I will start to wind down for the night. Have a good morning. Ah yeh, on ADSL Download Speed Test , I am clocking about a .5 meg/sec downloads, I guess I might have a little room for improvement. CIO

Note:<888>3/05/99 Friday 11:05 P.M. EST: I went out after dinner and cleaning up after the last message. I stopped by the Greenwich Library, but the local paper was not available but I saw in the news box downtown an article about Linda McCartney was in the paper. I went for a walk downtown. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue twice. I viewed the usual evening strollers. I chatted with a local downtown proprietor about the economy. I drove down to the end of Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor and listened to the computer generated NOAA weather forecast. For a change I decided to shop at the Food Emporium since I needed Temerrier French Dijon mustard. I bought a rib eye steak at $3.99 a pound for $4.19, Temerrier French Dijon Mustard 12 oz. jar $2.09, a head of cauliflower $1.29, a Pepperidge Farm frozen layer cake $1.59 on sale $1.60 off, a half gallon of 2% milk for $1.89, Americas Choice dry roasted peanuts $2.99, Post HoneyBunch cereal $2.99, a nine slice pack of Elio's Pizza slices for $2.49, a gallon of Pepperidge Farm goldfish crackers $4.99 for a Food Emporium Total of $24.51 with Bonus Club savings of $2.10 if you have a Food Emporium Card. I returned home and put away the groceries and ate some peanuts and made a cup of coffee. Well have an enjoyable evening, back to net after my coffee. Remember the Hospital Thrift shop's last day of the bag sale is Saturday, and they will be closed on Monday and Tuesday before their spring opening on Wednesday. CIO

Note:<888>3/05/99 Friday 7:15 P.M. EST: I was up at noon today and had breakfast of Kellogg's crunchy raisin bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I did a C: drive to D: drive backup. I rested a bit while this was going on and finally got up at 4 P.M.. I worked on the computer a bit, and I changed my firewall to WinProxy 1.4 (WWW proxy & mail server with firewall for Windows) which has a free demo. I configured it, and it all seems to work. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I am cooking ham, potato, broccoli, and ice tea for dinner; and then I will clean up and go out for a while. I need to buy milk. CIO

Note:<888>3/05/99 Friday 1:30 A.M. EST: Well I goofed off since the last message. I watched a bit of the History Channel about Railroads and also a bit about Hadrian's Wall. Apparently a group of clever engineers have tunneled between France and England with the Chunnel. I am not sure if it was complete when I was last in Paris, but there were quite a few Land Rovers illegally parked on Paris Streets last time I was there when Boris Yeltsin was visiting before the Albertville Olympics and after that event. I would have to check the dates of the Chunnel completion with that time frame. Unless I sleep walked into the Paris train station and caught a train to England, I don't think I have ever been in the British Isles. Well I received one call from the person I gave a ride to today, and he was back at work. I suppose there is not much real news to report, since most of the area seems pretty quiet this past week, perhaps people in mass have the winter blues, and have not been generating much activity. There was a nice article in last

Sundays Greenwich Times about the renovation of the Victorian Parish house on Christ Church grounds that cost about $2,000,000; so I suppose despite the street traffic on the Boston Post Road, it is a pleasant habitat and maybe they will install some sound proofing or check with "Noise Cancellation" an area company about making the area quieter. Of course as far as I know everything is still fine in the general vicinity, and there is not much to report on. I guess the old adage holds, "No New Is Good News". Well there was a commercial on the history channel advertising $1,100 five day trip packages to Australia on Quantas; but I suppose they have not finished some of the new planned cities down there. I have not been making the usual rounds since, I am on an earlier schedule, and just about ready to go to bed. So have a good night from the New Amsterdam Colony. I noticed by the park when one exits I-95 in Byram east bound; they have a sign saying that Byram was founded in 1640, I believe the same time as the New Amsterdam Colony, so maybe someone should construct a windmill in Byram Shore Park, to commemorate the event. I did read another article that the U.S. Government was thinking about buying the YMCA "Calf Island" camp which is up for sale for some environmental program. Well I missed that article just saw the headlines. Well give my best to Big Ben, and remember the Pubs are suppose to close in London at 11 P.M. unless one happens to belong to a "Club", I believe. All quiet on the Western Front. CIO

Note:<888>3/04/99 Thursday 9:20 P.M. EST: Well my friend showed up after the last message. We went to the car rental place in Port Chester and returned the car. Then we drove to Safeway towing in New Rochelle, New York and picked up his car, and he headed off to work. I returned home and had dinner of ham, green peas, potato, ice tea, and coffee. I then went to the Greenwich Library and read the local paper about the large number of lap top computer thefts in the area. I also read PC Week and Computer World. I was chatting with the reference librarian telling her about the Microsoft Terraserver Picture of the Vatican Microsoft TerraServer St. Peters Image Page , there is a large building on the hill to the Northwest of St. Peters. I asked her if she knew what it was. I looked in the World Book, and there was no name for the hill. I looked in Fodor's Guide and there was no name for the hill. I looked in the Michelin Guide and found out the hill was Mount Mario. I searched in Alta Vista and found out the building on the hill northwest of St. Peters is OAR - Osservatorio Astronomico di Roma . Thus using the everyday resources of the library combined with the internet, one can find out all sorts of answers to obscure questions. I also happened to notice at Recent update for Library Construction that the library will be closed from May 3 to May 18, which looks like they have a lot of work to do on the new addition to have it done by then to move in. Well I drove down Greenwich Avenue after leaving the library and viewed Long Island Sound. The NOAA radio broadcast did not come in over in Port Chester. Well it was cold and blustery out, so I guess the forecast in the Old Farmers Almanac for a cold March was correct. I will sit back and relax on the internet for a while this evening, and not risk freezing in the artic like conditions outside. Well back to the net. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which was up a bit today. Stay Warm. CIO

Note:<888>3/04/99 Thursday 4:05 P.M. EST: I was up at 11 A.M. today. I had breakfast of Kellogg's crunchy raisin bran, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I slept until 1 P.M.. I went out about 2 P.M.. I bought $8.45 of gasoline at Exxon. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I am expecting a friend to stop by and I will drop his rental car off, so he can pick up his car which had a broken timing belt at the Subaru dealer in New Rochelle, New York. After dropping him off, I might stop by CompUSA in White Plains, New York to browse the store. Not much happening, it is a bit cold and blustery out, but the snow showers have quit and the sun is back out. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/04/99 Thursday 1:00 A.M. EST: I edited my Apache Log, so it only contains March 1999 entries, since it was up to 5 megs. It had some scrambled code, I also removed. I saved the old part of the log. My stats for the Apache server, still show all the previous months entries. My home Apache server seems to be pretty busy, and my ValueClick click through were up to 29 yesterday. Well time to wind down and go to bed. CIO

Note:<888>3/03/99 Wednesday 11:00 P.M. EST: I had dinner of ham, green peas, potato, ice tea, and coffee. I watched the ABC evening news. I worked a bit on the internet. I read about 25 pages of "Charles at 50". I turned on the Fox channel at 9 P.M. and there was a recent program on the Windsor family. I updated Scott's Stats from the Florida site stats.htm . I am doing a little bit of regular internet activity. Well have a good evening. My luncheon guest from yesterday is coming out again tomorrow Thursday to pick up his car in the latter morning. The rain seems to have quit. CIO

Note:<888>3/03/99 Wednesday 6:00 P.M. EST: I went out shortly after the last message. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York, and waited in line for some minor business. I chatted with one local citizen. I stopped by the central Greenwich Post office and bought money orders to pay my Cablevision and Optimum Online. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop and they're now down to $15 a bag. I stopped by Electrolux off Greenwich Avenue on Armergone Way, and bought a ten pack of Electrolux vacuum bags for $12.70. I drove down Steamboat Road and viewed the rainy overcast waterfront. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and chatted with a regular user. I returned home and put a new Electrolux vacuum bag in each of my two older Electrolux vacuum cleaners I own. I asked the Electrolux salesman, if he knew what happened to the statue that the Duke of Windsor dedicated at the old Electrolux factory in Old Greenwich in the 1930s, and he did not know what happened to it when they put in the new condominiums there. Scott's Index scopor01.htm did not do much today. It seems like the server was stalled when I returned home, but it is running fine now. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/03/99 Wednesday 2:15 P.M. EST: I was up at 10 A.M. today, and had breakfast of Kellogg's Crispy Raisin bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I added "header.html" files Scott's Internet Hotlist Directory Listing , so that the directory listing of Index of /favorites and also the directory listing of music files will display advertising links, so I might generate a little bit more revenue. I earned $50 in February from ValueClick and during the last few days the click throughs have gone up a bit. Well time to clean up and go out and pay my Cablevision and Optimum Online Bills which run about $85 a month for both, which one of my major expenses. Have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>3/03/99 Wednesday 2:45 A.M. EST: I finished up my usual internet routine. As far as I can tell, it looks like it is sort of slow on the net, I suppose a few people are taking down time. CIO

Note:<888>3/02/99 Tuesday 11:00 P.M. EST: I went out after the last message. I just started my laundry. I drove downtown. I stopped off at the bottom of Steamboat Road. I drove over to Stables in Old Greenwich. They have the Sony 6G and 10G backup tape system, but last week for $149.99 they also threw in a $50 tape, so if I ever get one, I will have to wait until they have the same deal again. I drove to CVS in Old Greenwich and bought two bottles of shampoo and conditioner for $1.58 total with tax. I stopped by the Hyatt in Old Greenwich. I withdrew funds from the Bank of New York Money Machine there. I noticed Purdue chicken and Lehman Brothers were having meetings there. I next drove to the new Food Emporium in the Riverside shopping plaza. The store was virtually empty. I bought a bottle of Angostura Bitters for $3.49. I next went to the CVS nearby in the same plaza, but they were out of Swisher Sweets lights cartons. I drove to CVS on Greenwich Avenue, and I bought a carton of Swisher Sweets light cigar cigarettes for $13.96. I next parked on the lower section of Greenwich Avenue, and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. I returned home and had a bag of quartered radishes and six small slices of New York Valley extra sharp cheese and ice tea. The temperature in the apartment is down to 74 degrees. I received a call from my luncheon guest, and his car broke down in Harrison, New York and he had to get a tow and rent a car. He will be out on Thursday morning to pick up the repaired car. I chatted briefly with another friend. Well I am doing laundry, and not much more exciting to report on the home front. Have a good night. CIO

 Note:<888>3/02/99 Tuesday 5:20 P.M. EST: I was up at 9 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of Kellogg's crunchy raisin bran, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. The thermostat got thrown out of whack in my apartment and the temperature was up to 80 degrees instead of 70 degrees, which has made me feel tired. I went back to bed until 1 P.M. when a friend called to say he would be coming out for lunch. I had the friend arrive from Long Island for lunch. We split a Tombstone Self Rising cheese pizza and some New York State extra sharp cheese. We chatted about general subjects and looked at some horse racing internet sites. We went outside for a walk, and when I came in I discovered it was too warm inside, and I turned down the thermostat. He just departed. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well not much else to report on. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/01/99 Monday 12:00 P.M. EST: Well we have reached the midnight hour, time to bid "Adieu", "Bon Soir". CIO

Note:<888>3/01/99 Monday 10:50 P.M. EST: For a bird's eye view of Cosmo's Prayer Palace from the Russian Sputnik follow this link Microsoft TerraServer Full Resolution Image Page El Duomo, Firinze Italia .CIO

Note:<888>3/01/99 Monday 10:35 P.M. EST:I had a slice of baked ham and spinach for dinner. I was reminiscing today that when I lived in Florence, (Firinze); Italy (Italia) during the winter of 1972, we frequently had a large lunch after noon during siesta, and then dinner around eight P.M. and then another petit dinner around 1 A.M. after our evening strolls in the old part of the city around the Duomo, and I enjoyed viewing the city during the night hours when there was no traffic, to get a better perspective than during the daytime with all the Fiats. Also in older European cities like Firinze which were part of city states and at different periods were fortified, the substantial houses look rather ordinary from the outside since they were inward facing upon courtyards, and they did not make the homes too ornate on the outside, so as not to attract attention. Well enough of old world wisdom. The Florentines use to marvel at General George Patton when told that the Ponte Vecchio would not support the weight of his tanks, he went right ahead and successfully drove them over the bridge, so it goes to show well built construction tends to survive the ravages of time. Well cream filled pastries and cappuccino or cafe au lait were always enjoyable for breakfast in Firinze, since there was a lack of corn flakes. Needless to say I am still keeping an eye out for the missing panel of the Baptistery Doors which got washed away during the flood of 1971 before I arrived. If you really want to have fun, climb the steps of the Duomo about 11 A.M. on Saturday morning about 550 feet high to enjoy the view, and just when you arrive at the top of the windy curving sloped steps to enjoy the view, they ask you to leave since it closes at noon, and you find out it is much more difficult descending the steps than it was climbing them. So much for experience, but the view is breathtaking. I think I enjoyed the bus ride to the top of Fiesole that Larry use to be governor of, since I could take the bus and enjoy the view over the valley that Firinze resides in, and have an enjoyable carafe of wine at the small cafe in Fiezole if the sun it out. Of course strolling up and down the street that the Santa Trinita bridge opens out onto, is equally enjoyable since many of the posher vanity stores are there attracting many strollers. Also since one of the Medici Merchant Princes did not like getting cold, I believe it was Cosmo, they built a covered walkway from the Medici Palace to the Uffici where he kept his offices and currently has much glorified art including Rembrandts from Holland along with the usual Italian masterpieces. I believe the second story covered walkway is about a mile long. Needless to say in the Medici palace, every square inch is covered with art work of the Renaissance, and the gardens behind or in front of the palace depending on one's perspective climb up the hill, to I believe the circle where the David statue was originally displayed, before they replaced it with a duplicate and moved it inside to prevent deterioration. Well I never made it to the opera in Firinze, but it is suppose to be enjoyable and quite colorful along with many other hidden treasures in the city in the middle of northern Italy on the railroad from Pisa to Venice. Well I never did make it to Venice, but I enjoyed my stay in Firinze, since I got plenty of rest and peace and quiet since I had an inside room away from the noise of the outside rooms that overlooked the noisy streets. I suppose it has changed a bit, and after a couple of months I discovered that old Florence also had a modern part with high rises and other modern buildings such as you see everywhere in Europe. I stayed at the Pensione Adria which back in 1972 was an inexpensive and congenial pensione with a view of the river, and I enjoyed the quiet of the inside room across from the wine cellar and the kitchen, since I could sleep in the day if I wanted to and wander around at night when it was quieter. Well I suppose some people have been so many places, they don't always remember some of the first places they ever visited, but from my perspective, I enjoyed the festive atmosphere of Firinze, Italia and I enjoyed the hospitality. Well time to relax, I am debating whether to slow down or have a cup of coffee. The heat has finally warmed up the apartment a bit. CIO

Note:<888>3/01/99 Monday 9:30 P.M. EST: Former Greenwich area residents to give lecture Peter Lowe International Seminar Barbara and George Bush Participate in Lecture Detail Page . CIO

Note:<888>3/01/99 Monday 8:05 P.M. EST: I lounged around the apartment this morning. I chatted with a family member. I went out about noon. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I paid my rent on Lafayette Place. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift Shop. They have their $30 bag sale. Next Monday and Tuesday they are closed, and they will put out their new selection on next Wednesday. I guess towards the end of this week they will lower the price of their bag sale to even less. I went to the central post office and obtained a money order to pay my MCI bill. I got a hair cut from Mike at Subway Barber. I looked a little bit arthritic today, but I don't notice it much myself. I said hello to somebody who works for Renaissance Capital. I returned to the car and drove down Steamboat Road. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and read the local paper. I chatted with one of the local users. We compared notes on news stories. I told him that people who warehouse large amounts of alcoholic whiskeys and other beverages in their basement wine callers are creating a fire hazard if they don't know how to properly manage the stored provisions. I made my 4 P.M. appointment. They have a new Xerox Docucenter. I next went to the Grand Union and bought 4 Tropicana half gallons of orange juice for $2 each, GU 2% milk half gallon for $1.77, a box of GU tea for .89, Kellogg's crunchy raisin bran for $1.99, a box of Anderson Dutch Bavarian pretzels for $1.49, a dozen large eggs for .89, two packages of Thorne Apple Valley bacon for .99 each, a package of Great Lakes extra sharp cheddar cheese for $1.79 and three bags of Radishes for .99 for a Grand Total of $19.79. It was beginning to have a cold rainy sprinkle outside. I returned home and put away the groceries. I had eight pretzels and about ten Danish cookies and I rested a bit. I then had a half of bag of radishes. I turned up the heat a bit. Not much else happening. Certain family and associates are heading to Las Angeles, Santa Barbara, Carmel, Sun Valley, and the Great Barrier Reef in Australia while I sit back here with the rest of the arm chair travelers watching the world go by. There has been a lot of air traffic for the last two hours, so I guess the wandering travelers are flying in and out of the local airport. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which did not do much today. Well not much to report on, I guess most people have the winter blues. Well enjoy the evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/01/99 Monday 10:45 A.M. EST: Well I was up at 9 A.M. this morning. I just had breakfast of coffee, orange juice, vitamins, toast, and Ramen noodles. I was out of milk for cereal. After I finish my coffee, I will shower and go out and pay some bills. Well the never ending routine has come full cycle. It looks like a decent day, so have a nice day. CIO

Note:<888>3/14/99 Sunday 8:40 A.M. EST: Since the profits have been so meager in the local computer business, I was thinking with all this advanced technology, it might be more profitable to go into the business of dictating books again, since any one with a fertile imagination can let the mind flow and come up with some original or more entertaining plot themes, of course most fiction only has relevance to its own geographical area, and when all is said and done the books keep piling up for the myriad librarians to keep shelving into the rows of endless paper. Well not much happening since the last message, I am still awake waiting to fall asleep, I guess the local karma of the local villagers waking up and beginning their Sunday morning routines is keeping me awake. I did notice a license plate on a black Mercedes from Ohio last night, so as usual we had visitors. Of course for security reasons people don't drive around with Foreign license plates on their cars, so as not to stand out. Moreover, I am not sure if foreign license plates are legal, but I have seen Canadian and English, license plates in the area along with European long number plates. I guess it depends on where the vehicle is registered. I was once advised that many of the motoring public on cruise ships bring their vehicles along, since they are familiar with them, and more comfortable with them. Of course arm chair travelers don't like to be moved too much, since it disturbs their train of thought. Well not much really happening so to speak of, I suppose we will have a few more visitors today, give them my best. CIO

Note:<888>3/14/99 Sunday 3:30 A.M. EST: I went to bed about noon today after doing a little computer work. I was awoken by a phone call about 4 P.M.. I went back to bed until 5:30 P.M.. I had breakfast of Kellogg's raisin bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and cafe au lait. I then showered and cleaned up, and went out about 6:45 P.M. for some fresh air. I stopped by to visit with someone who was not there. I went downtown and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. I chatted with a local proprietor. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a roast beef sandwich and cat food for $18.15 for someone who had a hungry cat. I delivered the parcel to a local institution. I went back downtown and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue twice. I chatted with a local musician who was playing his guitar. I drove down to the end of Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. I returned home and had a Tony's pizza, ice tea, and coffee. I received a phone call about 1 A.M. and went back out for a chat with someone, hopefully matters are cleared up. I drove back down to Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. I returned home about 2:15 A.M.. I will do a little regular computer work now. Today is the St. Patrick's Day parade in Greenwich, so I will probably be sleeping through it. I will probably do my usual house cleaning routine when I wake up late tomorrow afternoon or early evening. I will have to be out in the afternoon on Monday, but as usual will probably be on a night schedule tomorrow again. It was a little bit warmer out this evening, and I suppose it will start warming up a bit in the evenings starting soon, and walking around in the evening for exercise and fresh air will be a little bit more enjoyable. Well there is not really much to report on since when one leads a quiet routine, you post quiet reports. As far as I know, the daytime people need to sort out their responsibilities and not interfere with the people who prefer to be awake at night and have the experience working long time hours at night. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>3/13/99 Saturday 8:40 A.M. EST: Well the latest news from the Russian Front is that last week the British report that somebody was manipulating their satellites, and yesterday a General Electric communications satellite was manipulated out of orbit. It would seem if one used deductive reasoning parties unknown have built a supercomputer system to decrypt the encryption codes of the defense and communications satellites for their own specific purposes, therefore the information fed by these satellites could be just as easily suspect. It would more than likely have to be the Russians or the Chinese and since the Russians don't have the funds for that activity, more than likely it is the Chinese whom have decided to start manipulating other powers satellites, but equally true we have the same capability to do the same to their birds, so tit for tat, and so and so. I have not done much this morning, and am thus thinking about having a cup of coffee and maybe after showering going out for the morning rounds. I was speculating yesterday that a major power surge in the world trade center antennae would more than likely knock out all communications in the New York area, and people would have to resort to gossiping through the grapevine or chatting with any birds that happened to be passing by like in the Audubon network to pass the messages. Since bird watching is a major pass time in this area, we tend to enjoy our hobbies on weekends outside when it is warmer, but not always in the winter when their are mostly Canadian Snow Geese. I have never seen a Russian Vulcan in this area, but if one did show up more that likely a Condor from the Andes would run it out of the hemisphere and back to its native hemisphere. Thus enough about bird watching and other leisure activities in the Greenwich area. I also reinstalled the new Java machine, and Internet Explorer 5.0 and the @home software for Netscape, so thus java works correctly on the machine again along with Communicator as the default browser for @home since MS internet explorer with my 74,000 favorites takes about seven minutes to load the @home interface. Enough of theoretical communications jargon, if you want to understand some of the basic elements think of some of the basic premises of physics which one learns in their first term physics course. Time to begin focusing on the daytime routine. CIO

Note:<888>3/13/99 Saturday 1:20 A.M. EST: Latest report on the cold front from Greenwich, Connecticut 31 degrees F.. Greenwich still seems to functioning here since we have lots of Russians whom work here, and half the staff of the United Nations are Russians. Thus although it is cold the lights still seem to be on, and the heat is still going. I did some Russian Studies at Lake Forest College. In my travels in America I have seen millions of Russians living on the west coast and Alaska is full of them. Needless to say lots of Russians work for Exxon at the Prudoe Bay. Thus it is my viewpoint the Mellon group sitting down in Key West instead of Pittsburgh, should be minding their own business in Pittsburgh and not the Hess refinery in St.

Croix which they don't own. I believe most of Hess' oil comes from Venezuela. On a minor note, one of the main patrons of the Greenwich over the years was Nan Carnegie Rockefeller whose family beside being involved in United States Steel and donating libraries today probably are involved in USX the old United States Steel, and last time I looked at www.usx.com which was about a year ago, they owned 10,000 or more Marathon gasoline stations none of which are in Greenwich or www.uxc.com which offers other energy resources. Thus if push comes to shove some of the old people might have access to other oil reserves besides what they are freely using now. The Greenwich library is funded to the tune of about $5 million a year by the taxpayers of Greenwich, of whom I am not one, but my family is. The largest tax payer in the town of Greenwich is Fortune Brands the old Duke tobacco company which is thinking of moving out of town. The Exxon company jet has been seen flying in and out of Westchester airport more frequently, or at least what I perceive is the Exxon company jet, since it is painted dark gray with Chinese fire engine red lettering. It has four engines and has a large extended range, and more than likely old guard stockholders who don't like the cold weather are flying to warmer ports of call. Well for the average citizens who live here, we don't mind the cold and we have our simple routines that revolve around simple frugal lifestyles. I believe Nan Carnegie Rockefeller use to volunteer washing dishes at the senior center when nobody else would help out. Thus Greenwich has a long tradition of volunteerism, and we seem to get by; however certain buildings like the Greenwich Town Hall, Local Library, Local Hospital, and Public schools use lots of energy to stay warm in the winter, so although certain members of the establishment don't live here continually, we still have to keep all these facilities up and running for the general public or whatever group of Russians shows up to squat in the rather deluxe facilities that we provide. Thus paying for all the out of town guests to use these facilities is a continual financial drain on the community and those who pay the taxes to support them. Thus for the United States government to presume it can shake down the Exxon stock holders for another $5 billion when the Exxon money has already paid for many deluxe well endowed facilities around the world is a gross miscarriage of justice. Moreover with the oil industry in recession, it would not be good business judgment for the Exxon management to forsake $5 billion in working capitol which is much needed in maintaining the existing Exxon corporate infrastructure, so it can continue to serve the needs of the many world wide communities it serves. Thus any environmentalists who claim that Exxon is wasting precious resources should produce their accounts and show how much in energy and other resources in travel and transportation they are consuming in their world wide environmental efforts, and try to justify the expenses they keep arguing in their world wide conservation efforts. In other words, if you live in a company town remember whom the stockholders are and whom the taxpayers are, and who pays the bills and whom are the executives of these various corporations and institutions that support these various local institutions. Quite frankly it is my viewpoint that General Electric Credit Corporation on Long Ridge Road in Stamford is probably sitting on more funds than Swiss Bank also in Stamford. Thus from my viewpoint, it is "Don't Rock the Boat Baby" or we might be in the same situation as in the early 1970s when there was no oil for energy in this area, and the local communities came to a virtual stand still, which is why quite a few people ended up living for a while in Florida. Thus if there are any Texans driving around with bumper stickers that say, "Drive Fast, Freeze a Yankee"; New York financial person might cancel their credit cards and see whose money it really is. As an economist, I remind people that 77% of the private wealth in this country is controlled by women over 70 years who tend to be somewhat frugal, since the more grandchildren they have, the pie gets smaller. So before you make value judgments about other people's lifestyles, you might look into the realities of the situations as they exist, not in some sort of utopian New York Times public relations press hand out. Thus enough of constant comment, and time to get back to normal routine. CIO

Note:<888>3/12/99 Friday 5:50 P.M. EST: Well I went out at 2:00 P.M.. I drove downtown to the bottom of Greenwich Avenue, and viewed the harbor from Steamboat Road. I went noticed a few other people doing it. I drove over to E.L.D.C. thrift shop, and they have a couple of exercise saddles for $10 apiece. They also have good $15 reams of paper for $5. I chatted with the staff there on various subjects. I then drove back to central Greenwich and chatted with a few of the regulars at the Hospital Thrift Shop. I next went down Greenwich Avenue and viewed the harbor again from Steamboat Road. I then went to the Greenwich Library and told one of the regulars my viewpoint on the Exxon Valdez accident, since the government has so much microwave antennae up there, the probably messed up the ships navigations system. If the government covered up this fact, then it was a democratic plot to wreck the Rockefeller Exxon republican establishment. Strangers things have happened in our memory. Well next I chatted with one of the power walkers in town about how good Timberland are for walking, and I prefer them in cold weather. I then went to the Arnold Bread store and spent $3.59 on 3 loaves of Healthnut bread. I returned home and started listening to Beethoven's Ninth for a change of pace. Well it was a very uneventful day in Greenwich, just usual errands. The weather man if you can believe them says we're going to get one to two inches of snow. Well I have been up since 9:00 P.M. last night, and I am a little bit tired, so I will go to bed shortly. Have a good night. Cheers from the far side of town. Yeh the banana market was up a bit in Manhattan today scopor01.htm . CIO

Note:<888>3/12/99 Friday 1:15 P.M. EST: I went downtown at 10 A.M.. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York and cashed my ValueClick advertising check. I briefed an officer there that it was my viewpoint that if the United States is committing troops to Yugoslavia, the old rules of military secrecy still probably apply in this country and foreign visitors and residents are not allowed to transmit information on troop movements within the country or elsewhere, since the civil penalties during time of conflict probably still apply. I also speculated that the Exxon Valdez more than likely had its navigation radar knocked out by the large radar facilities in Alaska, and therefore the Exxon Valdez accident is more than likely United States government liability, and not the sole responsibility of the Exxon corporation, since maga amounts of radar waves from government facilities can disrupt civilian and commercial facilities. This is more than likely the scenario whether the government cares to admit it or not. I next went to the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop and viewed the merchandise there. They have a small Braun coffee grinder there amongst numerous other items. I then went to CVS and bought a carton of Hav-A-Tampa cigar cigarettes for $13.97. I chatted with a sun glass lady there about sun glasses. I chatted with a toothpaste salesman there about toothpaste. I chatted with a sales staff member there about the upcoming St. Patrick's Day parade, and the Scott family that settled in New Amsterdam in 1640 might have been one of the first Scott Irish families in America, unless more than likely there was a Scott in Williamsburg in 1620, and more than likely one of Columbus' sailors was probably a Scott coming over to meet one of his Scott cousins that arrived with the Vikings who came over to visit one of his Scott cousins that arrived with Mongolians and so forth back and forth. Well after hob nobbing in CVS, I drove on down to the center of town and stopped by the Greenwich Post office and paid my telephone bill and mail the cooking CDs to a family member who might use them. I then walked over to the Mews gift shop and checked out the merchandise. They have some nice tables in there for $100. I chatted with a staff member about how the Europeans make coffee and maintain their coffee shops and coffee machinery and a bit about coffee in general. I found a bargain a nice pair of heavy solid wood case 18 inch by 3 foot ADS stereo speakers for $5 for the pair. Each of them weigh about 50 pounds apiece. I drove my car over to pick up the speakers and then drove directly home. I install the pair of speakers in the living room with the other four pairs and I put them on the incoming south wall, so I now have even better surround sound in my living room, but I can't turn it up to loud or I would disturb my neighbors. I filed this report, and I guess I should start slowing down and going to bed since I am a bit tired and burned out. Well have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>3/12/99 Friday 9:50 A.M. EST: I have been doing my routine computer work. I also tested the IBM beta of Websphere which is a little buggy and I deleted it. I am going to have a bite of my stew and then go out and browse the Hospital Thrift Shop briefly and pay my phone bill. Well have a good morning. I am tired and will go to bed about noon. CIO

Note:<888>3/12/99 Friday 1:15 A.M. EST: I went back to bed and got up at 9 P.M.. I went out at 9:30 P.M. after showering. I noticed the Mercedes Benz dealership was just ending a party, so they must have introduced a new automobile model to the public. I stopped by Exxon and bought $9.60 in premium. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue twice. It is about 30 degrees F. outside right now. There were quite a lot of people out tonight having dinner which is usual for Thursday nights in Greenwich when the cooks have the night off. I suppose a few people still do employ private chefs in Greenwich, and they seem to make a living. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road. I next drove up to the Post Road and smelled that somebody had run over a skunk in front of Christ Church. The smell carries for quite a way. I drove to the Riverside shopping plaza and stopped by the new Food Emporium there. The store is quite a feast for the eyes. I chatted with a few customers and staff. I bought two half gallons of Florida Natural orange juice for $1.49, Bournier Dijon mustard for $1.99, Asparagus at $1.49 a pound for $1.69, two Blue bags of 50% caffeine A&P coffee for $1.99 each for a total of $10.64. I then went over to CVS and bought two packs of cigar cigarettes for $2.80 one of Captain Black and one of Hav-A-Tampa. One of the customers who was a lawyer was upset that somebody in front of the store driving a Mustang with tinted windows had tried to run him down in front of the store. Apparently they have problems with rowdy kids at the adjacent McDonalds. I chatted with the cashier about computers. She told me she was paying $3,500 to rent a computer outfit, and I told her she could buy a new system without a monitor for about $399. I next returned to central Greenwich and drove down Greenwich Avenue to the bottom of Steamboat Road. I then stopped by the Grand Union and bought 4 Tony's Pizzas for $10 all, and a Stauffer's 20 oz. Lasagna for $2.99 for $12.99 total. I then returned home and put away the groceries. I mixed my old and new coffee beans together. I have been drinking ground coffee out of the can recently, and it does not taste as good as when I grind the beans. I made a Tony's Pizza and am now enjoying a good cup of Cafe Au Lait made with my Braun or Gaggia coffee grinder, and brewed in my Braun Cappuccino espresso machine. Europeans do make a good cup of coffee compared to average American coffee. Well time to sit back and sip the coffee. Yeh, Nestle in White Plains, New York besides being in the chocolate business is also in the coffee business and if I am not mistaken they're a Swiss company that also own Perrier across the street. Well back to the net after coffee. CIO

Note:<888>3/11/99 Thursday 5:05 P.M. EST: I was up at 3 P.M., and I missed my 3 P.M. appointment. I had two calls this morning. I finally awoke at 4 P.M.. I had breakfast of Post

HoneyNut Flakes, toast, coffee, orange juice, and vitamins. Well not much to report on the home front. I received notice from Internic that they would process my Internic registration for "mrscott.com" manually, so hopefully it should be up and running in a few days. Well I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Microsoft Investor is suppose to be able to export my portfolio to the new Microsoft Money 99 Basic, but I can seem to find it in Microsoft Money when I open the program after exporting it. I will have to study the matter more closely latter. Well time for another night owl session, but after I clean up, I will probably go out this evening first. CIO

Note:<888>3/11/99 Thursday 5:05 A.M. EST: I had a Tony's Pizza at 3 A.M.. I had a problem with my Internic registration. You have to have two domain names and two I.P. addresses to register and my @home service only has one I.P. address, so I think I fixed the problem by naming my primary as before www.mrscott.com for the I.P. address "24.228.18.154" my @home server here in Greenwich, and for the secondary name I used www.2.mrscott.com, and for the secondary I.P. address I used my Florida server I.P. address of "199.227.52.191" which is also registered to me for mrscott.com , so I guess if my Greenwich @home server should go down, the secondary address www.2.mrscott.com will refer to my Florida site. I think this should work with Internic. Keep your fingers crossed. @home does not support Internic listing for this reason, since they only offer one I.P. address, but on their Multiple Accounts page, they say they are working on new services to offer multiple I.P. addresses. Well time for bed. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>3/11/99 Thursday 2:05 A.M. EST: I have the Microsoft Money 99 Basic running fine. It imported my old Microsoft Money files quickly and the $10 rebate form is in the box. I registered the internet domain for my home Greenwich server today, of www.mrscott.com today. It should be working in a few days. Although the address sounds, a bit too authoritative, I figured it is similar to the other addresses and easy to remember. One has to pick and choose names from what is available. I noticed in the internet news that Prince Charles is going to visit Falkland Islands Tourist Board this week. I guess he will get a little peace and quiet. I also put links from my home page to a Bush & Dole 2000 banner image that might come to pass, the way the republican politics are developing. Well time to do my regular internet work. I will go to bed about 4 A.M., since I have to be up at 1 P.M. tomorrow for a 3 P.M. appointment. CIO

Note:<888>3/10/99 Wednesday 10:45 P.M. EST: I left here about 7:45 P.M. and drove and stopped by Stables in Old Greenwich, but nothing was on sale. I drove up to CompUSA in Norwalk and toured the store. I bought Microsoft Money Basic 99 for $19.99 which has a $20 mailin rebate. I also bought a two package cooking CDrom set "MasterCook All Around the World Recipe Collection" and "MasterCook deluxe" from the Clearance bin for $3.99 plus $1.44 Connecticut sales tax for $25.42 total. I chatted with a couple of customers and sales staff about tech. I then went over to the Wiz and viewed the merchandise. I showed one of the sales staff my internet site with the music since they have cable modem demonstrations in the store. I chatted tech with a couple of the staff. One of the staff's mother works for IBM. I noticed they have 200 Watts Technics amplifiers for $200. I returned to Greenwich and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. Lots of youngsters in Starbucks. I returned home and heated up some of my stew and will not eat. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/10/99 Wednesday 5:25 P.M. EST: Well, I went to bed after the last message. I had one call this morning. I was up at 4 P.M.. The sun looks like it is out coming in bright and shinny through my curtains. I had breakfast of Post Honey Nut flakes, toast, orange, vitamins, and coffee. I listened to the Tchaikowsky, Peter; Nutcracker Suite and Swan Lake mp3s I encoded last night with Deion's White Tiger 1.8.46 Music Program (FreeWare) . The quality of the music seems just like the CD. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I will clean up and go out in a while. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/10/99 Wednesday 8:30 A.M. EST: Well the Greenwich Hospital Thrift shop is opening about now for their annual spring sale. I finished encoding Tchaikowsky, Peter; Nutcracker Suite and Swan Lake for your listening pleasure. Well I am bushed, but I guess I will go out. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>3/10/99 Wednesday 2:20 A.M. EST: I had dinner of my home made stew and goldfish crackers and ice tea about 11 P.M.. I went out at midnight and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. Nobody was out to speak of. Tuesdays are always a quiet night. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. I drove through Bruce Park and out to the Post Road and headed to CVS in the Riverside Shopping Plaza. I chatted with some of the staff there. I was looking for Swisher Sweet lights, but their supply has not arrived. I bought CVS disinfectant spray for $1.99, Ajax dishwasher detergent for .89, two CVS air fresheners for .89 each, a White DJeep lighter for $1.59, and a tin of Danish butter cookies for $1.99 for a total of $8.62. I drove back to the center of town and drove back down Greenwich Avenue and returned home. I started my laundry which should be done in a half hour. I had a cup of coffee and four Danish butter cookies. I am encoding the tenth of 16 tracks for the Nutcracker Suite, hopefully I will have it up tonight. I received a check for my internet advertising last month of $49.92, and this month is running about twice as busy. Well it is a quiet night, so it is back to the old internet routine. CIO

Note:<888>3/09/99 Tuesday 10:15 P.M. EST: I was up at 5 P.M. this evening. I watched a little bit of news and had breakfast of Post HoneyNut Almond Oats, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I started fiddling with the computer, and I went to www.pcware.com who manufacture my S-571 motherboard. I am using the 09/02/99 cmos update "5710902s.rom" which works great. The latter versions cause my hard drive to hesitate. This could be because the motherboard came with a 1995 Pentium American Megatrends bios chip. I downloaded the January 29, 1999 bios update, but my drive hesitated with it. When installing the bios update the "amiflash.com" program would not work from a floppy boot. I finally deleted the old cmos by moving the short dip pin inside the computer. On my system you can do the same which is dangerous by pressing the "End" key while turning on the computer power and this deletes you cmos setup, which is dangerous, so don't advertise it. Well after determining the January 29, 1999 bios update still caused my hard drive to hesitate which the September 02, 1998 bios update does not, I restored the September 02, 1998 "5710902s.rom" bios and the system works fine without drive hesitation. As I said this is most likely caused by the 1995 American Megatrends bios that came with my motherboard, a newer bios might not have had this problem. Well I also downloaded a new onboard display adaptor January 99 driver for my onboard computer display adaptor, and installed and it malfunctioned on reboot. I deleted the display adaptor driver and did a reboot, and when the machine prompted me for the driver, I reinstalled it from the download on the hard drive. The new display driver now works fine, and has higher resolution capabilities, but I will leave it as I had it before, since I can't see finer text. With new the 9/2/98 cmos reinstalled, and the new display driver, the system seems more responsive and is working great. I guess something mess up my cmos where "amiflash.com" would not work, possibly effecting performance, but I seem to have the system remedied. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm

. Well time to clean up and maybe go for a drive. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/09/99 Tuesday 7:25 A.M. EST: Well I did my routine internet work. Not much to report on. I downloaded a couple of IBM demos and beta which I will install later. The White Tiger encoder worked, I just did not name the Beethoven file the right name I thought I had. I found the file in another directory. It is in the classical directory Index of /music4 Classical Beethoven 3 Allegro. I will encode the entire Tschaikowsky Nutcracker while I sleep today. I had some of my stew with gold fish crackers, and I thought it was quite tasty. Well time to make the *.wav file before I encode. Have a good morning, stay warm. CIO

Note:<888>3/09/99 Tuesday 4:25 A.M. EST: I finished the soup stew at 2 A.M.. I put on my long johns, with turtle neck, flannel boxer shorts, wool socks, flannel shirt, blue jeans, Canadian Goose sweater, Green parka, Timberland shoes, Icelandia Ski cap, and leather gloves and drove downtown in 21 degrees and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue and then down to the Greenwich Harbor Inn. I chatted with the regular night desk clerk about recent activity around town. She said they are going to remodel the Greenwich Harbor Inn again. I walked back uptown. I mentioned that when walking around at night in the Steamboat Road area and lower Greenwich Avenue, it is advisable to keep a couple of quart cans of tomato juice handy because the area has a large skunk problem. After returning to the center of town, I sat in front of the senior center a while. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and there was a flock of about a dozen Canadian Geese sitting on the rocks down by the stone pier. I guess they don't mind the cold. I noticed in news reports that there is snow to the west of us, but there is no mention of snow here in the forecast. I noticed in the Microsoft MSN ski reports that most of the Vermont and upper New England ski resorts got from 16 to 20 inches of snow recently, so ski conditions up in the north country should be ideal. I listened to a bit of the NOAA weather forecast. I returned home and filed this report. I might try eating some of the stew in about an hour. All the garlic in the stew is good for the heart and arthritis. My arthritis has not been bothering me too much this winter since I have been taking the Arthricure pills and staying inside more and keeping the apartment warmer. Well I had an enjoyable walk. I don't know whether I will go out in the morning or not, I will probably go to bed before then. The Greenwich Hospital thrift shop is closed today, but tomorrow morning on Wednesday they have their spring opening. It looks like it might be a cold St. Patrick's Day parade again this year. Well not much news to report, so enjoy the morning. CIO

Note:<888>3/09/99 Tuesday 1:15 A.M. EST: I tried encoding a MP3 file of Beethoven 3 with Deion's White Tiger 1.8.46 Music Program (FreeWare) , but after recording the *.wav file from a CD, it did not write the *.mp3 file after encoding it for some odd reason. It takes about two hours for a half hour recording. Well, I went out while doing that at 8:45 P.M.. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue to the middle section. I chatted with a local proprietor about living in Italy years ago as a student. I told him how good the food was. That go me to thinking I would make a home made French soup when I got home, so I went to the Grand Union. On the way I noticed four police cars in front of the Pickwick plaza responding to a call. I bought two Tony's pizzas for $5, Uncle Ben's Wild rice $2.09. two Kellogg's raisin bran for $4, a box of mushrooms $1.99, a gallon of GU whole milk $3.09, a 49 oz. can of Swanson's chicken broth $2.79, two red peppers $1.56, a bag of onions $1.99, and a bunch of 3 leeks for $2.99 for a total of $25.50. I made one of the Tony's pizzas when I arrived home. I then chopped a pound of rib eye steak into cubes and browned them in four tablespoons olive oil, I diced two pounds of ham, I added four tablespoons of olive oil to a second 1 1/2 gallon pot. I put equal parts of the ham and beef in each one and a half gallon pot. I peeled eight medium onions, and sliced them in the GE food processor adding half of each to each pot. I cross sliced into slivers a half pound of bacon and added half to each pot. I diced two red peppers putting half in each pot. I sliced the box of mushroom and put half in each pot. I sliced the white part of the three leeks and put half in each pot. I crumbled and diced a head of cauliflower and put half in each pot. I added half the Uncle Ben wild rice and seasoning to each pot. I put eight ounces of chopped garlic in each pot. I added five beef bouillon cubes to each pot. I add a teaspoon of Italian seasoning, basil, and oregano to each pot. I added dashes of garlic powder, celery salt, poultry seasoning, hot curry, ground black pepper, and Chinese five spice to each pot. I added a tablespoon of Lea and Perrins to each pot, along with a few dashes of Angostura bitter and McHilneys Red Pepper sauce and three more tablespoons of olive oil. I stirred all these ingredients in each pot lifting them up from the bottom and stirring them. I then added a cup and half of white wine to each pot, 25 oz. of Swanson's chicken broth to each pot, and a cup and a half of milk to each pot and a half of stick of I Can't Believe It's Not Butter to each pot. I stirred it all up again and at midnight I turned on each pot to medium high for fifteen minutes until they started boiling and then mixing them again. I turned them down to medium for another fifteen minutes. After that first half hour I added 3/4 cup of regular brown rice to each pot and reduced them to a simmer or warm on my electric stove. I will cook them another 1 1/2 hours on that setting or two hours all together. The soup should be done about 2 A.M.. I am stirring each pot every fifteen minutes. Well the temperature outside is 26 degrees F. at 1 A.M., so a bowl of hot soup latter this morning should be good and hearty. I will refrigerate part and freeze the rest. I am missing one of my large freezing containers, so I have to put it all in smaller containers. Well have a good morning. Back to the net with the smell of garlic and onion simmering in the air. CIO

Note:<888>3/08/99 Monday 7:30 P.M. EST: Well the latest report from Frost Bite Falls is that I went to bed at 9 A.M. this morning. I was up at 2:30 P.M., and I did a little computer work trying a search beta, and I also had breakfast of Post Almond Crunch cereal, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I went back to bed at 4 P.M. and got up at 6 P.M.. I watched the ABC evening news. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well I will shower and then go out in about a half hour to the library and downtown for a cruise. It is 31 degrees F. outside and dropping quickly to the teens tonight with a wind-chill near zero. Well stay warm. CIO

Note:<888>3/08/99 Monday 8:35 A.M. EST: I have been trying to get the Lycos Inmagic search engine for Windows NT to work with Windows 98, but to no avail. I suppose Lycos might be able to reprogram it to work with Windows 98, since the Apache server for Windows 98 works great, but I guess this is all based on being penny thrifty and pound foolish. Well time to call it a day, have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>3/08/99 Monday 1:00 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's weekly broadcast sound.htm . CIO

Note:<888>3/08/99 Monday 12:15 A.M. EST: I went out after the last message. It is 21 degrees F. outside with a wind chill close to zero. I listened to NOAA radio and there is a gale warning out tonight. I suppose most people are staying inside. I stopped by the Grand Union first since it closes at 11 P.M. on Sunday night. I bought 15 bags of various flavors of Ramen noodles for $3, a 100 count box of GU tea bags for $1.69 and two Tony's Pepperoni pizzas on sale 2 for $5 for a total of $9.69. I then drove down town and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue from midway around the train station area and back. I noticed that both Thataways and the Dome restaurant as usual have live music on Sunday nights. I also noticed that the ATM door on the bank in the middle of the avenue with the Dome was cracked. It looked like somebody had hit it. It was cold out, so I only stayed out until 11 P.M.. I drove down to the waterfront on Steamboat Road and listened to NOAA weather radio, and there were not many lights on the harbor, so I guess people have gone to bed early. I returned home. Earlier in the evening, I listened to the BBC up all night, and they mentioned there was a golf tournament in Trinidad this weekend. When I returned home I put away the groceries, and I heated some baked ham, ramen noodles, broccoli, along with ice tea and coffee for dinner. I am now making a batch of ice tea for the week also. Well it is 73 degrees inside according to the Queen Elizabeth Iodine thermometer, and the watchful eagle outdoor thermometer says 21 degrees, so it is a little bit drafty by these high one pane windows where all the heat rises up to the ceiling and false ceiling area instead of transferring across the room. Last months electric bill including the heat was $175, so I imagine this next bill will be higher. It is suppose to average $135 a month a year. It is suppose to be cold warming up gradually over the next few days. Well I am happy to be inside warm and comfortable, but I am wearing my Long Johns to stay a little warmer. I have not been running the humidifier this winter to keep down the moisture for my arthritis. However while I am awake I leave the fan on the air conditioner going a bit with the small flap on the outside of the air conditioner drawing in a little fresh air, since I am still smoking a bit inside. Well spring should be here in another month. Have a good morning and stay warm. Back to the net. CIO mailto:rotor@psinet.com FBI Internet Agent in Washington D.C.

Note:<888>3/31/99 Wednesday 7:05 P.M. EST: Copy of email to FBI in Washington D.C..

To: FBI Internet Agent

Subject: Hack into Scott's Internet Hotlist Sites by www.univ-tour.fr

Dear Sirs:

Per my conversation at 5:40 P.M. EST this afternoon 3/31/99, I am reporting a synopsis of events that lead into the hacking of all three of my internet sites.

I have been publishing three internet sites with downloadable directory information since October 1994.

The first site of my own: <http://mrscott.com> has been up and running for two years at a Florida site of <http://www.valueweb.net>

The second site of mine <http://www.mikescott.org> has been running in California at <http://www.123bizweb.com>

since September 1998.

My primary site <http://mrscott.com> has been running off my home computer using the @home cable modem provided by <http://www.optimumonline.com> since December 24, 1998.

I have approximately 25,000 monthly users downloading about 100,000 files monthly on all three sites put together.

I provide downloadable directories mostly on technical information, and also included the U.S.

Department of Defense downloadable directories.

Recently since I posted some music *.mp3 files the <http://mrscott.com> Greenwich, Connecticut server has been running about 85% music files.

On this past Sunday 3/28/99 my home server in Greenwich, Connecticut went down. I restarted the system and did not think anything about it.

Last night on Wednesday night and Thursday morning 3/31/99, I was looking at the news story about the White House hack <http://www.wired.com/news/news/politics/story/18787.html> that posted links to <http://www.occaviationandspace.edu/> and I posted a mirror of the link at <http://mrscott.com/Russian%20hackers%20demand%20to%20stop%20terrorist%20aggression%20against%20Jugoslavia!.htm> . In the Meta Search tag of that file, there is the term, "S-300 Rocket System" which I thought was peculiar, and I called the White House Secret Service Intelligence Division number at: 202-435-5000 and report the unusual meta tag that nobody seems to have noticed.

I went to bed at 9 A.M. this morning Wednesday 3/31/99 after reporting it. I woke up at 3:30 P.M. this afternoon, and I discovered my Greenwich, Connecticut server running the Apache server for Windows 98 was down. I rebooted the system, and before starting the system again, I checked the "error.log" of the Apache server, and the last entry was from an I.P. address of "193.52.222.240" looking for "robots.txt" which I don't use on my server, and what ever that person did next brought down my server. I did a reverse DNS look up of the I.P. address, and it is "ta240.univ-tours.fr" which is at <http://www.univ-tours.fr> . I assume that person brought down my server, since not many people ever look for "robots.txt". I checked with IBM security, and I finally called you. After calling you I found out that my other two servers, <http://www.mikescott.org> and <http://mrscott.com> had also been hacked and the homepage file "index.html" had been removed from both servers causing them not to work. I restored both files from my backups.

It would appear that Scott's Internet Hotlist's three sites were the subject of a three prong attack today, by hackers from the University of Tours or somebody spoofing their address. Maybe they don't like Volcano information, who knows.

Well that is a short summary of what happened, let's wait and see what happens next.

Yours Truly,

Michael Louis Scott
71 Vinci Drive
Apt. # 206
Greenwich, Connecticut
06830-2902
USA
203-531-6754
mailto:mikelouisscott@home.com
email:"mikelouisscott@home.com"

Thank You for Your Cooperation.

mailto:mikelouisscott@home.com
<http://mrscott.com/> Local Home Greenwich, CT. USA
<http://mrscott.com/> Florida
<http://www.mikescott.org/> California

Note:<888>3/31/99 Wednesday 4:10 P.M. EST: I called the White House Secret Service information desk about the White House Hack at 202-435-5000 at 9 A.M. this morning and gave them the information mentioned below. I went to bed and woke up at 3:30 P.M.. When I woke up my computer was down, and the monitor and server would not work. I rebooted and it all works fine. I looked at the error.log on the Apache server, and the last entry is somebody from 193.52.222.240 searching for robots.txt on my server. The DNS lookup of that IP address is ta240.univ-tours.fr which has a web site at www.univ-tours.fr . It is all very mysterious why anyone in France would want to bring down my server. The server was also brought down last Sunday. I referred the matter back to the White House Secret Service Information Desk. Well the server is back up and running again. Time for breakfast of Post Raisin bran, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. Have a good afternoon, it looks like a nice day outside. CIO

Note:<888>3/31/99 Wednesday 8:20 A.M. EST: The page where the White House hack appears Russian hackers demand to stop terrorist aggression against Yugoslavia! . If you look at the source code of the page, the Meta tag says "S-300 Rocket System". I wonder if there is any code in the *.jpg image it displays. I also posted a local link to the hack on my server at Russian hackers demand to stop terrorist aggression against Yugoslavia! on my local server. Well I am not the NSC, but perhaps, there is more to it than meets the eye. Links were from this story Political News from Wired News . CIO

Note:<888>3/31/99 Wednesday 8:00 A.M. EST: Well I went out at 5:30 A.M. and hung out on the bottom of Steamboat Road. I sanded my distributor rotor and the contacts inside the distributor cap and sprayed WD-40 on various ignition parts while parked on the bottom of Steamboat. I added Prestone antifreeze to the coolant, and did a routine check over under the hood including checking the oil. I chatted with a couple of morning strollers and parkers. The geese sounds like they are making quite a loud noise on the island off the Benedict house, so I guess harbor dwellers have to put up with the early morning squawking of the geese or whatever type of birds they are. I parked in the center of town and sat on the bench in front of the senior center for a while. I returned about a half hour ago and had a batch of pasta fraische. Well it is too busy for me out, since I am ending my day. A friend who just got back from Key West is calling me up shortly. Well Greenwich seems normal and busy as usual for the morning. It is much warmer out, almost too warm for this time of year. I guess we have a warmer spring. Well keep a weather eye for spring showers. Not much to really report on. Have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>3/31/99 Wednesday 4:55 A.M. EST: I just remember, when I looked at a copy of the hacked page that the Russian hackers posted on the White House web site, there was in the code of the page, in the meta tag, a reference to what I think was a specific type of Soviet Aircraft, something like the SU-300, I assume somebody checked the code in the hacked web page. Well not much happening tonight, I tried to download some Elvis music, but I found only two tunes from working links which I posted. Another peculiar event tonight is that the Electronic Telegraph web page came up twice of the day of Princess Diane's accident. I suspect it was a gigo error. Well not much else to report on, all pretty quiet here. Routine work here, and not much to report on. CIO

Note:<888>3/31/99 Wednesday 12:05 A.M. EST: Well I slept from 4 A.M. yesterday to about 7 P.M. this evening. I had breakfast about 2 P.M. of Post Raisin bran, orange juice, coffee, vitamins, and toast. I then went back to sleep. I finally got up at 7 P.M., and had some pasta fraise. I went out at 8 P.M., and I read the New York Times for the first time in four years and the local Greenwich paper. I can read the text in the New York Time faster than Reuters Yahoo news. I noticed the stone facing on the front of the Peterson addition is finished. I went down town, and I walked the lower section of Greenwich three times and the entire length of Greenwich Avenue. I chatted with a couple of locals. It was a quiet evening with quite a few people out for dinner. I noticed somebody loading a harp into a station wagon at St. Mary's. I guess it is pretty much the same old routine downtown. Walking on Greenwich Avenue like I do is good for the Cardiovascular System. I returned home and had some more pasta fraise, diet Pepsi, and coffee. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Microsoft stock split today 2 for 1 today. I was using Earthtuner last night, and I noticed that WRN Russia Daily News in English has a link http://www.wrn.org/audio/1700\_usa.ram where one can listen to the Voice of Russia World Service in English, to see what the propaganda is from the Voice of Russia, which can be quite informative. www.vor.ru Voice of Russia has been talking about the idea of putting together a Troika of "Russia, India, and China" for security purposes which account for nearly half of the world's population to counter the NATO advances in Yugoslavia. Well I did not read that in the New York Times. Well time to finish my coffee. Remember 2 billion people also speak Spanish and add to that the Commonwealth of Nations Countries which also includes India, and you're talking about more than half the Earth's population, so India could hold the balance of power in world confrontation. Well enough of Geo Politics. Over and Out. CIO

http://www.wrn.org/audio/1700\_usa.ram

Note:<888>3/30/99 Tuesday 3:30 A.M. EST: Well UConn beat Duke. I am bushed time for a nap. CIO

Note:<888>3/30/99 Tuesday 2:30 A.M. EST: I searched The Police Officer's Internet Directory for wanted posters, but I did not recognize any of the faces I regularly see on my strolls on Greenwich Avenue. Well back to the net, another slow night on the net, maybe I should take up knitting or go back to watching television. CIO

Note:<888>3/29/99 Monday 11:40 P.M. EST: For those of you who know Yugoslavian and are interested in keeping track of the news from the front. Here are four local Yugoslavian links.

"<http://beotel.yu/>" BEOTELNET - Vas Internet provider

<http://www.bits.net/>

<http://www.sezampro.yu/>

"<http://www.eunet.yu/>" EUnet Yugoslavia

Note:<888>3/29/99 Monday 11:20 P.M. EST: Cable Modem service is working again. I checked with IBM Security in North Castle, New York 914-765-4400, and told them that the @home Cable Modem was out, and since it had never happened before, perhaps it had to do with the War in Yugoslavia and Government censorship. Well it is working for now. I keep the free NetZero \FREE\ Internet Connection Services dialer ISP service, for backup when the Cable modem does not work. However, the first time I installed the Netzero dialer, it messed up my Network settings, so exercise caution. I went out for a walk on lower Greenwich Avenue while waiting for the cable modem to come back up. Not much happening it was really slow. I noticed a couple of young bikers walking around, a dozen teenage girls in Starbucks, and a couple of au pairs smoking cigarettes in front of the senior center. Well I guess Monday and Tuesday nights are always slow. I guess it is back up all night on the net for me. Well have a good night. CIO

Note:<888>3/29/99 Monday 9:35 P.M. EST: I received a phone call about 6:30 P.M., and I chatted for a while. I went out about 7 P.M. and went to the library. I read two computer newsweeklies. I drove down Greenwich Avenue, and stopped by Steamboat Road. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought 6 bags of Ramen noodles for $1, a half gallon of Tropicana premium orange juice for $2, and box of Ronzonni Ziti for .67 and a box of Ronzonni Spaghetti for .67 for $4.34 total. I returned home and made a box of Spinach noodles and five brothers cheese sauce with herbs and spices and wine, and mixed the two together and had a dish of pasta fraische for dinner, along ice tea and a cup of coffee. The Cable modem is not working right now for some odd reason, so I will upload this with NetZero. Well have a good night. CIO

Note:<888>3/29/99 Monday 6:10 P.M. EST: Well I was up at 2 P.M., and I had breakfast of Post Raisin bran, toast, coffee, orange juice, and vitamins. I received a phone call while I was showering that my 4 P.M. appointment was cancelled. I rested until 5:30 P.M.. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which was at it's high today with the market closing above 10,000. I made a note in the index that the gain for the last year was +$90,870.66 on $1,199,698.25 invested in 156 different stocks a year ago, rising to 1,290,568.91 today which is a little less than 8% gain for the last year. Well I will go out shortly have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/29/99 Monday 3:15 A.M. EST: I finished my daily internet routine. It is pretty quiet on the internet. I updated Scott's Broadcast sound.htm . CIO

Note:<888>3/29/99 Monday 1:05 A.M. EST: I went out after the last message. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. There was live music in both Thataways and the Dome. It was very quiet out. I noticed the town finally got around to putting up a new flag at veterans monument. The old one was a little thread bare. I drove down to the end of Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. I returned to Byram, and I stopped by Cumberland Farms and bought a half gallon of one percent milk for $1.59. I made a cup of coffee when I returned home. Well time for another quiet night on the net. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>3/28/99 Sunday 11:00 P.M. EST: I was up at noon today. I had breakfast of Post Raisin bran, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins. I got a tired spell after breakfast. I went back to bed until about 6 P.M.. I got up and finished my coffee. I had some Ramen noodles. I started cleaning my apartment and watering the plants. I finished about 9:30 P.M.. I listened to last weeks weekender report from www.ttalk.com . I just finished a Tony's pizza and I also finished making a batch of ice tea. I chatted with a family member. Well I have cleaned up while listening to the BBC up all night, so I will go out for a little while for fresh air. Well have a good night. CIO

Note:<888>3/28/99 Sunday 4:25 A.M. EST: I put reverse IP lookup "on" my Apache server. It is time for me to quit the net, and start relaxing. CIO

Note:<888>3/28/99 Sunday 2:55 A.M. EST: I upgraded from Apache 1.3.4 to 1.3.6 from www.apache.org which is pretty much a straight forward upgrade. Well back to relaxing. CIO

Note:<888>3/28/99 Sunday 1:55 A.M. EST: Well I went back out at after the last message. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought 6 bags of Roast Beef Ramen noodles for $1. I noticed one of the head local observers in the grocery store. I had my coffee in the rain. I also walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. I drove down to the end of Steamboat Road listening to NOAA weather, and there are flood warnings for the area. I returned about 11:30 P.M., and relaxed with a glass of ice tea until now. I am enjoying a quiet morning without much Net Activity. Today is Palm Sunday, so try to relax and enjoy yourself. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>3/27/99 Saturday 10:10 P.M. EST: I went out after the last message. I drove down Greenwich Avenue with a stop at CVS and they did not have the cigar cigarettes I like. I drove down Steamboat Road and I saw a new tan and white cat around the Indian Harbor Yacht Club hopefully to keep the rats away that linger around the waterfront. I went through Bruce Park and down by the Mianus River and west on the Post Road, and drove down to downtown Old Greenwich. I stopped by CVS there, and they did not have any of the cigar cigarettes I like. I went to Stables in Old Greenwich and browsed the merchandise, and chatted with the sales staff. They need help at Stables, they're shorthanded. I went by the Food Emporium at the Riverside shopping plaza and chatted with a few staff and customers there. I bought a gallon of Goldfish crackers for $14.99. I then went to CVS and bought five Swisher Sweets Lights and five Dutch Masters Lights little cigar cigarettes for $13.96. I returned to central Greenwich and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue and I chatted with a couple of locals. I returned home and broiled a shell steak, steamed mixed vegetables, microwaved Ramen noodles, and ate them all with ice tea. I made a cup of coffee and put it in my thermos, and I will go out and drink it downtown shortly. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/27/99 Saturday 6:05 P.M. EST: Well I woke up at about noon today, and the tape backup was finished. I turned off the Sony SuperStation and put away the tape. I had Post Raisin bran, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and cafe au lait for breakfast. I got a tired spell, so I went back to sleep until 5:30 P.M., and I then finished my coffee and had some Ramen noodles. Well time to clean up and go out after I read the news. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/27/99 Saturday 4:15 A.M. EST: Well believe it or not I feel tired, I guess it was all the walking. I guess, I will reboot and start a backup on the tape drive. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>3/27/99 Saturday 3:15 A.M. EST: Well I finished my email. I put together a George Bush - Elizabeth Dole 2000 Page . On Tuesday or Wednesday IBM will release the download of Lotus Notes and Domino Server, they usually post a time expire demo from this link Lotus Software Downloads , however since IBM does not know who I am, I guess I won't be using it, and since I am so simple minded, I would not be able to figure out the complexities of an IBM software product that 40 million smart people seem to enjoy using. Well lets see if Lou Danes to send me a copy to try out, and he knows I will download the demo when it comes out. Well I like the night schedules, it is much more quiet and relaxing instead of watching all the stressed out people in Greenwich on Thursday worrying about security. I chatted with the Kennedy security guard across the street from the Greenwich Train station in the office building, and he seemed to be a smart security person. I guess like in Scotland, the Duke of Argyle is a large fellow who maintains his own private army, and technically the Duke Edinburgh as the Queen's husband maintains the largest private military in the world, depending on one's perspective. Well have a good morning, and if you have problems falling asleep, you can always try a cup of hot chocolate or coco with a little liquor in it. CIO

Note:<888>3/27/99 Saturday 1:30 A.M. EST: Well I went back to bed until 6 P.M.. I got up and watched the ABC evening news. I had a broiled rib eye steak, Ramen noodles, green beans, ice tea, and cafe au lait for dinner. I digested the steak before going out, since it was out of the freezer it gave me a bit of gas. I went out about 9 P.M. and walked around lower Greenwich Avenue several times, and then walked up to the top of Greenwich Avenue and sat on the bench in front of U.S. Trust. I chatted with a traveler from Maryland about the area and briefed him on national news. I walked back down to the bottom of Greenwich Avenue, and quite a few people were in the Dome restaurant. I returned home to my building. An ambulance and police car were in front of the building, and another tenant was being taken out who was not feeling well. I had some Ramen noodles, ice tea, and Pepperidge Farm gold fish crackers. I will do a little regular internet work. It is still very cool out, and my left leg fell asleep while sitting on the bench downtown, so I guess I have to keep walking a bit to keep my circulation better. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/26/99 Friday 2:10 P.M. EST: Well I finally was to bed about 6 A.M. this morning. A relative from Houston, Texas "Nute Scott" called up about making sure his listing for Scott Surplus Machinery, Houston TX was listed in my internet directory. I chatted with him for about an hour, and he is related to Winfield Scott like I am. He has the same Texas drawl that my southern relatives usually have. I don't think he knew I was half awake. Well I put him in the Engineering, Scott's Internet Hotlist page. I don't think he knew I was a little bit foggy. Well having a few relative in the country, it was good to hear from a relative. I had breakfast of Post Raisin Bran, toast, vitamins, coffee, and orange juice. I am just getting going. I also checked with a local group that advertises a lot about having them looking into being written into the Simpson's cartoons which seems to be very popular amongst the younger generation. Well time to begin to clean up, and see a little afternoon daylight. Have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>3/26/99 Friday 4:15 A.M. EST: Unusual Audubon sighting today, there were about eight Canadian Geese on the lawn of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club late this afternoon, which is rather peculiar since they usually flock to other parts of the harbor, I hope they don't anticipate unusual weather changes. CIO

Note:<888>3/26/99 Friday 3:45 A.M. EST: Well I have been reminiscing about the old days, back to square one. CIO

Note:<888>3/25/99 Thursday 7:55 P.M. EST: I went to bed at midnight last night, and I was up at 9 A.M. this morning. I did a bit of work on the computer. I had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, coffee, orange juice, and vitamins. I chatted with a family member. I went out about 1 P.M.. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I chatted with a bank employee. I went by the Greenwich Hospital thrift shop, and it was quite busy. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I went by Exxon and bought $11.25 in premium. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat road and chatted with a local about the waterfront. I ran into a former neighbor, and I drove him uptown to buy Benson and Hedges. I saw the organizer of the Greenwich Year 2000 millennium event, and chatted with him. He said he just got back from skiing. I dropped off my former neighbor. I went by the Greenwich Library and read the local paper, and mention to a local investor that in the last year, my bellwethers index Scott's Index scopor01.htm had not done much this year and was only up a half percent, and it would probably be smarter to keep one's money in a bank like Northern Trust and draw interest. I also mentioned I knew somebody who sells Porches who seems to know how to handle various vehicles. I next went to the Grand Union and I noticed a local 1980 Red Volvo was not starting, so I tried to help its owner get started. I gave the owner some steel sand paper to clean off the points and contacts in the distributor cap. I tried spraying the ignition with WD-40. I sprayed a few other parts with WD-40 and I checked the spark plug wires. The car still would not start, so I suggested it was flooded, and for him to wait a half hour. I thought when I got home, that possibly the fuse for the electronic fuel injection in the fuse box was blown possibly. I went into the Grand Union and bought Post Raisin bran for $2.50, Tropicana Ruby Red Orange Juice for $2.00, and half gallon of 2% milk for $1.77 for $6.27 total. I noticed the red Volvo was still there, but the owner was not. I returned home and heated some my Scott's stew and I had ice tea with it and coffee. I updated Scott's Index. Well after I finish my coffee, I guess I will go out for a while. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/24/99 Wednesday 9:20 P.M. EST: Well I listened to President Clinton's Speech. I finished drying one load, and am just about finishing drying the second load of laundry. I chatted with one of my neighbors, and she told me that when my next door neighbor was taken out by the EMT on Sunday, she had been lying on the floor for two days with a broken hip, and she had taken off her Emergency Button necklace to "Call for Aid" in order to clean up, so she was unable to get help for two days. I was also told that a couple of neighbors who regularly check up on her were away. She will be in the hospital recovering from the hip operation and recuperating for a while. Thus it seems there should be a better system of monitoring are elderly and disabled neighbors in the building than what there is. I might go out for a walk after I finish the laundry. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/24/99 Wednesday 6:50 P.M. EST: I made a C: drive to D: drive backup. I am watching ABC evening news. I have to do laundry some time tonight. CIO

Note:<888>3/24/99 Wednesday 4:30 P.M. EST: I just had a bit to eat of my Scott's Stew and goldfish crackers along with ice tea, and I am having my coffee. I updated the Real Player, and WinAmp is suppose to come out with a update, but it is not posted yet. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Scott's Index is up less than a half percent for the year, and it lost most of its profits yesterday when it was down 3.4%. Well it goes to show, the Blue Chips have not changed much. Maybe with all my focus on high tech and the internet, I should have put more high tech stocks in the Portfolio, but remember it was suppose to be a Bellwether portfolio. Well time to finish my coffee and clean up, and I guess go out. CIO

Note:<888>3/24/99 Wednesday 12:55 P.M. EST: I put together Scott's Internet Hotlist Wisebot Search Links page, and linked it from the homepage, along with Scott's Greenwich Times Press Release scottgt01.htm . Well time to have a bite to eat and maybe a light nap before cleaning up. Have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>3/24/99 Wednesday 10:25 A.M. EST: Here is link to a copy of the email I sent to Gregory Cowles of the Greenwich Times regarding my internet activity scottgt01.htm . CIO

Note:<888>3/24/99 Wednesday 9:25 A.M. EST: I let the Wisebot index run over night. I went to bed at midnight and was up at 8 A.M.. The Wisebot generated files are in Index of /wisebot . These are the key pages Wisebot Index , Wisebot Index Applet , Wisebot Sitemap - test , What's New . The cgi-bin search engine Wisbot generates, needs "perl.exe", which I am not sure whether it is available for the Win98 Apache server in order to use it. Time for breakfast. I also have a copy of the press release to the Greenwich Times, that I will release as soon as I proof it. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>3/23/99 Tuesday 4:45 P.M. EST: Well I went to bed at midnight last night after replying to an email message about an interview. I was up at 9 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins. I did a bit of internet work today. I downloaded Download Wisebot 30 day demo for Win98 Internet Site search engine, and I am running the indexer on it right now. If it works, all right, I won't be able to use it after the demo expires, since the program costs a $1,000. Well a freebie for a month anyway. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which was down 3.4% today. Well not much else to report. I guess I will clean up soon and go out to enjoy the late afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>3/22/99 Monday 9:30 P.M. EST: I went out after the last message. I drove down Greenwich Avenue, and stopped by the end of Steamboat Road. I chatted with a retired fisherman. I noticed a upturned Yellow Plastic Kayak in the water against the Indian Harbor sea wall, and about the same time I noticed the Fire Chief's car pulling into the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. I walked up and told him about the Kayak. He summoned the rescue squad and several Greenwich Police emergency vehicles showed up along with a fire truck. One officer suited up with his dive equipment, and by the same time another officer had commandeered a Zodiac from the Yacht Club and they upturned the Kayak, and no one was in it. The Harbor Patrol scouted the water to see if there were any bodies floating around. It looked like the high wind out of the west, northwest and southwest had possibly blown the Kayak off shore. It was partially waterlogged and with water in it weighed about 200 pounds, so it is possible the wind blew it into the water and then absorbed the water in a leak caused by it banging against an obstacle like the sea wall. In all there were about 15 personnel on the response to the scene including a half dozen civilian observers. The Yellow plastic Kayak was similar to the model that Outdoor Traders sells, and it had written on the bow in magic marker, something like Ski Shop #15. The fire department retrieved the Kayak for missing property, and the rest of the crew retreated. One young girl was parked on the scene and was wandering why the response team had shown up at the end of the road. I saw a few faces, I had not scene in a while. I then headed up to the Greenwich Library and chatted with a couple of regulars. I started to read the paper, only to realize, I did not have my reading glasses. I then went downtown and chatted inside with one local downtowner, and I then walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. It is very windy and cold out, lets hope we don't get more snow. I had some Ramen noodles with stew for a light dinner. Well have a good evening. Scott's Index has been updated scopor01.htm . CIO

Note:<888>3/22/99 Monday 4:35 P.M. EST: One of the reasons I maintain this site, is that I have relatives who work and travel outside of the country. I just received distressing news that my oldest half sister Mary Ellen who works setting up Hospitals in Zambia went Kayaking last week with a friend, and an alligator knocked over the kayak and the fellow she was with was eaten by an alligator, and she floated down the river full of alligators and hippopotami for an hour before she was finally able to crawl up on one of the banks. The only remains of the fellow she was with were a couple of fingers. I just chatted with another friend who is going down to the Keys tomorrow. It reminds me of when I was hiking the Appalachian Trail around 1978, and it started snowing after four days in April and we were surrounded by bears, the friend I was hiking with decided to hitch hike down to the South Carolina shore. After walking through Huntington Island and camping out there on the beach to awake on Sunday morning with thousands of Marines around us, we went down to Hilton Head to camp on the beach. That evening we heard what we thought was a hoot owl, but I knew better, and since we had no weapons with us, I started boiling water for tea. I knew exactly what it was, and the following morning there were alligator tracks around our tent from about a fourteen foot alligator. Also when I was about four years old in Pensacola, Florida around 1954, I used to take the row boat out in Bayou and once when the rowboat was about 20 feet offshore, an alligator swam up to the side of the boat. I was really scared and I pushed at the alligator with the oar, and I was finally able to pull the boat in with the rope that was still attached to shore. Also when I use to camp out in Florida in 1977 and 1978 in the winters while I was homeless, I had a feeling there were alligators around, so I have learned to keep my karma with alligators, but at my age I think I will avoid hitchhiking on Alligator Alley for now. Well it goes to show, when you travel out of your familiar environment, you have to watch yourself. Time to clean up and go out. I set up my server to 100 streams instead of 50. I also received an interesting email message, that I have to think about. CIO

Note:<888>3/22/99 Monday 2:45 P.M. EST: Well I was up at 9 A.M. this morning and had breakfast of Post Raisin bran, toast, cafe au lait, orange juice, and vitamins. I watched an hour of the Discovery Channel on Geotectonic and they mentioned www.discoveryschool.com . I got a tired spell about 10:30 A.M., and went back to bed until 2 P.M.. I got up and finished my coffee and I updated Scott's Broadcast sound.htm . I am also making up a batch of icetea.htm . Well have an enjoyable afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>3/21/99 Sunday 11:00 P.M. EST: Well after the Tony's pizza and ice tea, I went out for a walk on lower Greenwich Avenue about 9 P.M. to 10 P.M.. It was drizzling out, but I walked the lower section twice. Not much happening on a rainy night with everyone watching the Oscars. Well you know I don't watch much of the old tube, so I am off in my own world. However, my server is serving up 43 of 50 steams right now, so I guess I am busier on rainy nights. My next door neighbor is in the hospital, and there is a note on her door not for Meal on Wheels to deliver. I hope she is all right. She has been having problems with her eye sight. Not much else to report. I guess I could try some creative writing, but who knows if it were successful, I would have to give up the computer and take up writing. It was basically a pretty quiet day. There is a sign on the Post Road opposite near the entrance to my apartment complex pointing our way, saying "Red Cross Disaster Center", which seems rather peculiar. CIO

Note:<888>3/21/99 Sunday 7:45 P.M. EST: I went out about 5 P.M. and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue in the rain twice. There were not many people out. I noticed a few people had staked out Starbucks. A few shops were closing. I guess we still have the winter doldrums around here. I remembered I had to get some ArthriRescue. I drove over to Fresh Fields organic grocery store, and they lowered the price of ArthriRescue from $17.99 to $14.39. I bought a 90 capsule bottle for $14.39, and I also bought a half gallon of 2% milk for $1.89. There were quite a lot of people at the Fresh Fields shopping center. They have a very nice selection of food, but it is very pricey compared to the Grand Union. Still it makes one hungry just looking at it all. I returned home. I watched a bit of television about Italy, and they were also showing the party facilities for the Oscars www.oscar.com . I guess they will be chowing down in Hollywood. I then watched bits of a couple of cooking shows, and I started watching the "Two Fat Ladies" cooking show about making Venison Pie and Eggplant stuffed red peppers. It is a very amusing show on channel 71. They seem to have a sense of humor about cooking, and obviously know how to cook. I am low on spending funds after buying the Sony Tape Drive, but I have plenty of food in the freezer and a few jars in the cupboard, so I have enough food until the end of the month. I am trying to think what I will have for dinner. I guess I will have a Tony's frozen pizza. Well time to put it in the convection oven, and I guess then back to the net. CIO

 Note:<888>3/21/99 Sunday 4:45 P.M. EST: I was up at 8:30 A.M.. I had breakfast of GU raisin bran, toast, orange juice, coffee and vitamins. I chatted with a family member. I fell back asleep until 12:30 P.M.. I watched a PBS program with Bill Gates and Warren Buffett. I made some Ramen noodles and put some of my heated stew on them for a filling lunch. I put on some music and started cleaning the apartment and watering the plants. I heard one of my neighbors check on my next door neighbor. He called the EMT and my next door neighbor left with the EMT. I hope she is all right. I finished cleaning the apartment and watering the plants while listening to opera and classical music. I had some ice tea and took a shower. I will go outside now for some fresh air. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/21/99 Sunday 12:10 A.M. EST: Well not much happening in this neck of the woods. I suppose everyone has bowed out for the evening. As far as I can tell, no one is very much interested in the comings and goings in this area, since it is too cold for most people except the North people. Well today is the first day of spring, so I suppose we're have to start working up a sweat soon enough. As far as I can tell, the same media activity is being broadcast and there is not much new content, just enough to barely keep the visitors occupied. Basically most travelers don't pay too much attention to the media, since their itineraries are usually organized ahead. Well back to net ville. Try searching you name at Alta Vista and see how web spiders optimize "GIGO", Garbage In Garbage Out. I suppose the real truth is that too many people are lost in the hinterlands never to return. OAO, CIO.

Note:<888>3/20/99 Saturday 10:00 P.M. EST: I went out and mailed two letters at the West Putnam Avenue post office. I drove downtown and down by Steamboat Road. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a box of GU raisin bran for $2.19 and a pound of "I Can't Believe It's Not Butter" for .99 for $3.18 total. It looks pretty quiet out this evening. I suppose with everyone into the internet, and the movies being boring and rather redundant, most people as usual would rather stay home in the quiet and comfort of their homes. All quiet on the eastern front. CIO

Note:<888>3/20/99 Saturday 8:40 P.M. EST: I had an asparagus omlet with parmesan cheese sprinkled on it with bacon and toast for dinner along with ice tea. I am just about to go out to mail a letter. CIO

Note:<888>3/20/99 Saturday 7:50 P.M. EST: I had a quiet afternoon. I ran scandisk and I defragged the C: drive. I watched a bit of television while doing this. I shut down the server while running the maintenance utilities. I received a post card from Australia with a King Parrot on it, and I turned on the television and there was a program about river rafting in Australia. Well I guess it is time for dinner. I am not sure what I will have yet. Have a quiet evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/20/99 Saturday 2:25 P.M. EST: Well I went back to sleep after the last message. I just had a bowl of stew and am making a cup of coffee. The sun from the west is beginning to shine through the curtains, so it looks like it is sunny and warm out. I guess I am rested. Another day facing the onslaught of activity in Greenwich. Not much happening on the internet. The first lady is looking for Nick's place in Casablanca. Well I suppose Starbucks is crowded with tired shoppers. I guess when the rich and powerful weekenders start spending their paychecks it is good for the local economy. Well I hear the coffee brewing into the pot, time for my coffee. CIO Note:<888>3/20/99 Saturday 7:45 A.M. EST: Well I was up about 4 A.M.. I had breakfast of GU old fashioned oatmeal, toast, cafe au lait, vitamins, and orange juice. I rested a bit until 6 A.M.. I wrote a letter to a family member. I am printing out a few envelopes right now. CIO Note:<888>3/19/99 Friday 7:20 P.M. EST: And for you culinary enthusiasts who want to know what else I ate today, I had a Tony's pizza at 9 A.M. that gave me a bit of heart burn. I just finished a bowl of Scott's World Famous Stew that I made up and froze several months ago, so not much happening on the net, since the Chinese kidnapped Bill Gates and are trying to teach him Chinese, so he can learn the different Asian mathematics system. It is just a theory, but I believe Chinese numbers go from 0,1,2,3,4,5,6,7, and 10 is the equivalent of 8, so a lot of their engineering is a bit different. 0,1,2,3,4,5,6,7,8,9 is the Arabic mathematics system. Startrek numbers might be based on a binary hex system. CIO Note:<888>3/19/99 Friday 5:40 P.M. EST: Well I installed the Seagate Tape Backup software this morning that came with the Sony Superstation Tape backup, and installation was straight forward with no problems. I started a backup of the entire system about 3.5 G. on the C: drive plus 1 G. on the D: drive of the partial hard drive backup to the New Sony System. It took 6 hours for 4.5 G. of mostly compressed material, so I only got 1.10 compression. However it all fit on the 5G-10G compressed tape. I went out at 9 A.M. after starting the backup. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and viewed Steamboat Road waterfront. I returned to the center of town and parked on the lower Greenwich Avenue parking lot. I stopped by Consignment Express upstairs at 6 Griggs Street, but they only do business by appointment anymore. I chatted with Di's son who is a commodity trader next door about tech. The Consignment Express at 6 Grigg Street handles used equipment and tech and repair. Di knows the business. Their business phone is 203-869-7330. I received a $7.50 check from them yesterday for a controller I consigned years ago. I next walked up the center of Greenwich Avenue and back down to the Mews thrift shop. I next walked around the Greenwich Avenue area until 11 A.M.. I then went to the Greenwich Library and the local paper was not there. I chatted with a couple of regulars and surfed the internet until noon. I returned home and rested for an hour, and then had a cup of coffee while the tape backup was still continuously running. I received a telemarketing call saying that because of the situation in Russia, It was time to refinance my home which was very peculiar. I then went back downtown at 2 P.M. and stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop, and viewed some of the merchandise and chatted with the staff. I then drove down Greenwich Avenue to the bottom of Steamboat Road, and viewed the harbor. I returned to the center of Greenwich Avenue about 3 P.M.. I parked and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue around the train station. I noticed a Worcester and Providence freight train come through the station east bound on the express tracks with four new diesel locomotives and about a dozen new coal or gravel cars. Thus I guess that railroad is still in business. I walked up to the center of Greenwich Avenue, and sat in front of the senior center for a while. I walked up to CVS and checked to see if they carry men's change purses. I stopped by Saks and they don't car them either. Wagner's leather has gone out of business that usually carries them. I checked with the cowboy boot shop and they don't carry them. I checked with the luggage store next to Richards and they don't carry them , but they have a $40 key chain with leather purse, which is a bit pricey compared to the $8 change purse Wagner's use to carry. I stopped by Richards and they don't carry them either. I stopped by Euro Sport and they don't carry the item either. I returned to the center of Greenwich Avenue, about 4:30 P.M.. I headed on over to the Arnold Bread store and bought three loaves of Healthnut bread for about $3, and they gave me a box of St. Patrick's chocolate donut holes and a pound cake. I commented to them that the Granddaddy of All Sea Gulls must feed out of their dumpsters. I told them about the Crows that fly into Jamestown, New York every night by the hundreds of thousands, and warned her the sea gull can be a dangerous bird. I returned home and gave one of my elderly neighbors the pound cake and a loaf of bread, since it was too much for me to eat or store. I watched part of President Clinton's new conference, and closed out the tape backup program that was finished. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm which was down a bit today with IBM the big loser. Well have a good evening, it is time for me to begin to relax and go to bed. A lot of walking and a long day. Have a good night. CIO

Note:<888>3/19/99 Friday 7:50 A.M. EST: Well I went out and stopped by the Roosevelts' Bank on Mason Street better known as Putnam Trust Bank of New York and withdrew funds to buy the Sony Superstation Tape Backup. I drove over to Stables in Old Greenwich and bought the Sony Superstation External Tape Backup Machine for $149.99 plus with the Staples circular coupon one gets a free Sony 10 gigabyte tape worth $39.99 for free plus $9 Ct. Sales tax, the total bill was $158.98. Well time to shut down the server for a short time and connect the tape drive and install the software and then make a full backup of the system. Well have a good morning. Enjoy the day. CIO

Note:<888>3/19/99 Friday 6:15 A.M. EST: I was up at 2 A.M., and did a little regular internet work. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Raisin bran, toast, coffee, orange juice, and vitamins. I got a tired spell and went back to sleep until 5 A.M.. I checked with Switchboard. Find a Business - Results, Police Redmond, Washington as to weather they have any problems with Bill Gates look-alikes. I checked with the White House Secret Service Intelligence Agency 1-202-435-5000 and told them that it seems like Carlo Di Bennedetti and his group of Olivetti Italians are ticked off for some reason. I also told them they should check with the treasury department and FDIC about auditing Putnam Trust Bank of New York, since unusually large amount of cash seem to moving through the bank possibly caused by some sort of illegal money laundering activity. I also chatted with Microsoft Security in Redmond, Washington 1-425-936-0000 Ext. 0 and compared notes on any Microsoft activity in the area. Well Putnam Trust Bank of New York's 800 number 1-800-CALLBNY says that I have funds available, so after I shower now, I will go downtown and withdraw funds, and stop by Staples in Old Greenwich and buy the Sony Tape Backup which comes with the free tape for $150 plus about $10 tax for $160 total. It will make matters tight financially a bit at the end of this month, but I think it is important to have a decent backup of my computer system, since it reflects up to 50,000 hours of work, irregardless of what some cheap misers might think about the value of the work. After all I do have close to 100,000 people a month using my three sites, so somebody out there thinks my work is worthwhile. Well have a good day, time to hit the showers. CIO

Note:<888>3/18/99 Thursday 4:25 P.M. EST: I did routine internet work until noon. I had a bowl of Scott's Stew about 7 A.M. along with ice tea. I had coffee about noon. I went downtown and returned "Charles at 50" and "Mt. Rainier" to the Greenwich Library and owed a .60 fine on both. I chatted with a couple of regular patrons. I stopped by Putnam Trust Bank of New York on Mason Street and all the regular staff were not there, just the temporary employees, so nobody knew me, so I could not cash a check. It seems rather confusing all the bank's senior staff would be out of the office today, I guess it was a nice day; so they were out playing golf. Thus at the moment I don't have the ready funds to get the Sony Tape drive. I don't think I need it anyway, since IBM and Microsoft don't think my site is worth anything, I guess I really should not spend funds to help them prosper. Well I'll check it out tomorrow. It seems that most of the floor staff at Putnam Trust Bank of New York are foreigners, since United States citizens don't feel like doing the jobs. Well if some of the "old guard" had walked in, they would have pulled their funds and put them in Northern Trust, just to teach them a lesson. Well I then went to the Hospital Thrift Shop and viewed the merchandise, and I chatted with one customer about Currier and Ives prints and golf clubs. I noticed they have a reproduction print of the J.F.K. library. I then drove down Greenwich Avenue and viewed the harbor. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I also stopped by the Greenwich Hospital and had a roast beef sandwich for $3.65. For those in the know the Greenwich Hospital cafeteria is one of the most reasonable places to eat in town. I returned home about 3:45 P.M.. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well not much else to report. It was up to about 70 degrees F. today, but I have a feeling this is just the teaser before we get colder weather again. I made a C: drive to D: drive backup of the critical files. It is rather amusing with all the foreigners in town, it is hard to communicate since a lot of people don't seem to know English very well, and I don't speak Spanish. Well have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>3/18/99 Thursday 6:15 A.M. EST: I updated info.htm which goes in the downloadable files "scott005.zip" and "scott006.zip" and also put it in the downloadable. CIO
Note:<888>3/18/99 Thursday 5:40 A.M. EST: Well I downloaded the full download of Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 from my Windows 98 Update Link, and downloaded the "ie5setup" file. I downloaded and installed the full version. After installing I went through the reboot process and just for safe measure I rebooted a second time to write the new setting to the registry. I then downloaded the other new files from the Windows 98 Update which included the usual updates with Microsoft Internet Explorer, and after installation and rebooting, I rebooted a second time to write to the registry. They all work fine with one exception. The new version of FrontPage Express is still buggy like the beta. It is still does not work. I restored my older version of FrontPage Express from my backup. If you don't have a backup of FrontPage Express and you have installed the new version and have the same problem, you can uninstall it, and install the older version of FrontPage Express from the Windows 98 Cdrom. I am not sure what the problem is with the beta and new version of FrontPage Express, but I suppose Microsoft will have some explanation, unless they want us to buy FrontPage 2000. Also yesterday when I went out on my second trip I stopped by CVS and bought a large bottle of CVS generic aspirin for $3.79, a can of Gold Emblem Cashews $2.69, and two packs of Dutch Masters cigar cigarettes for $1.25 each with .15 CT. sales tax for $9.13 total. Well I have all the Microsoft Internet Explorer 5.0 updates up and running, time to test them. Have a good morning. CIO
Note:<888>3/18/99 Thursday 3:40 A.M. EST: Well Scott's Internet Hotlist "mrscott.com" Greenwich, Connecticut Local Server my Internic name "mrscott.com" is up and running. I have to reenter the Internic address to also show www.mrscott.com which is not working yet. Today I went out at 8:30 A.M. after starting a tape backup of the major contents of Drive C:. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove down Greenwich Avenue to the harbor and viewed the harbor and chatted with a local resident and another visitor. I returned home at about 10:15 A.M., and put in a second tape. I had some Scott's Stew for an early lunch. I went back downtown to the library and read the local paper. I also read P.C. World.. I went downtown and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. It was quite busy near lunch time. I said hello to a few people I know. I returned home about 12:30 P.M. and put in a third tape. I started to rest for a nap. About 5 P.M. after a phone call, I took out the last third tape and started backing up the Beatles, Classical, and some of my other music Mp3 files. I did not do the music1 and music3 directories. I had a bite to eat of Scott's Stew again. I changed to a second tape about 9 P.M. after resting more. I woke up finally about 2 A.M. and put in the third final tape. I had breakfast of Kellogg's raisin bran, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. I watched two programs on Channel 21 about the Erie Canal. About 3 A.M. the third and final music tape backup was finished. I updated links to "mrscott.com" on my three homepages at my three sites. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well time for routine internet work, have a good morning. CIO Note:<888>3/17/99 Wednesday 5:40 A.M. EST: Well I finished my laundry. I received notification that Internic finally accepted my domain name "mrscott.com". I resubmitted the application again using my home server "valueclick.net" for "mikescott.net" Domain name server for the secondary IP address in the domain registration. I used :

>>> >Secondary Name Server(s)

>>> >8a. Secondary Server Hostname.....: NS.VALUEWEB.NET

>>> >8b. Secondary Server Netaddress.....: 199.227.124.192 which worked. I received a message from www.internic.net that my domain name would be added in the next root server update at 18:00. Well what a hassle. Now I have to pay $70 to Internic for the name, and I also owe them another $70 for registering the two year old name "mikescott.net", which is $210 all total for Internic names this last six months. Well so much for the profitability of the internet. I still have not decided whether to get the Sony Tape backup or not. I suppose I should, but I am waiting for a check in the mail. All this money on computers and the internet, just to sit home and wonder where my next meal is coming from. Maybe some of my Deadbeat Advertisers should pay for my homepage links to their sites. Well back to the net. CIO

Note:<888>3/17/99 Wednesday 4:30 A.M. EST: Well Happy St. Patrick's' Day. I suppose any Irish cousins won't be in too good of shape today. Well I woke up at midnight and had some of my Scott's Stew and did a little internet work, before going back to bed. I was up at 4 A.M. and started my laundry, and it is now on the dry cycle. I had breakfast of Kellogg's Raisin bran, toast, coffee, vitamins, and orange juice. I am sipping my coffee and starting my internet work. I should be done with the dry cycle in about 45 minutes. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>3/16/99 Tuesday 9:00 P.M. EST: I was finally up at about 9 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of Kellogg's raisin bran, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins. I cleaned up and went out at 10 A.M.. I started a tape backup of most of the system before going out. I went by Exxon and filled up my tank. I stopped by the Greenwich Hospital Thrift Shop. I drove down Greenwich Avenue and went by the Mews thrift shop. I drove down to the end of Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. I went by ELDC thrift and bought a solid oak lazy Susan for $8 and a ream of Simpson paper for $5. I had to run over to Putnam Trust to get the funds where I chatted briefly with the floor manager. I returned to ELDC thrift and purchased the items. I returned home, and put the lazy Susan underneath my television, so it can be swiveled for viewing. This was about noon, and I put in a second backup tape into my tape machine. I had lunch of Stauffer's lasagna and ice tea. I went out and went by the Greenwich library and read the local paper and chatted with a couple of regular users. I drove down to the harbor again and viewed the water. I drove around Bruce Park and then returned home. I put in a third tape about 3 P.M.. I lied down for a short nap, and I fell asleep until 8:30 P.M. when somebody called me up. The tape drive was not finishing its "writing header" finish progress, so I removed the tape, and the tape backup program gave me a error message. I then reinserted it, and it finished its progress, I guess without writing the header, it was having an error flushing the header. I am not sure if it is good for a backup or not, but for now it will have to do. I don't have a backup of my music files. I received email from Internic about my domain registration for "mrscott.com", and I changed the secondary domain name to "mikescott.net" with its IP address instead of "2.mrscott.com", which should work. Thus it should be a couple of days until the "mrscott.com" domain name starts working. Well I will have a bite to eat and do a little computer work. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . CIO

Note:<888>3/16/99 Tuesday 5:25 A.M. EST: I guess I was tired after the last message when I went to bed, because I mistakenly turned off the computer CPU from the control panel instead of the monitor. Well system is back up and running. I also woke up and ate a Tony's pizza at midnight. CIO

Note:<888>3/15/99 Monday 6:50 P.M. EST: I went out at about 10 A.M.. All the thrift shops were closed today, so there was not much to do. I had a Almond Danish from St. Moritz while I waited for the library to open late at 11 A.M.. I went in and read the local newspaper and a couple of computer newswweeklies. I returned home about noon and slept until 3 P.M. when I got up and made my 4 P.M. appointment. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. I drove over to Old Greenwich and toured the Stables. This week through Saturday they have the Sony 10-6 G. tape backup for $150 and with the coupon in the store circular you get a free $40 tape. I should get it, but at the moment I don't have the funds. I went by the Hyatt Hotel and toured the tourists. I chatted with Hotel Security about Scott family matters. I stopped by Caldor's, but they are closed. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and chatted with a patron and a staff member. Well I am back at home base. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>3/15/99 Monday 9:20 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's Broadcast sound.htm, well have a good day. CIO

Note:<888>3/15/99 Monday 9:00 A.M. EST: Well I had a cup of coffee. I finished internet routine. I emailed an internet pal in Denmark. I suppose it is time to go out and check out on the daytime activity, have a good day. I have a 4 P.M. appointment this afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>3/15/99 Monday 7:15 A.M. EST: I went downtown at 4 A.M.. I cleaned about five inches of snow off the car. The Department of Public Works have the roads cleared, and were working on clearing the sidewalks. I walked around the train station area and the entire length of Greenwich Avenue to the top and back down. I said Good Morning to some of the snow crew. The NOAA weather radio said there might be more snow, but it was 34 degrees then and 36 degrees now, so it is warming up. I then drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. I returned home and one of my neighbors gave me $5 to drive him over to Port Chester. I returned home and chatted with one of my neighbors having their morning coffee. I suppose I will go out at 8:30 A.M.. I am not sure whether the Greenwich schools are open today, but the roads downtown are cleared. Well stay warm and have a good day. Time for coffee. CIO

Note:<888>3/15/99 Monday 4:05 A.M. EST: Well there is about four inches of snow on the roof. It is 34 degrees F. outside. I finished cleaning the apartment and watering the plants. I listened to www.ttalk.com weekender report while doing the house cleaning. About 3 A.M. I had filet of Salmon baked in wine and herbs with baked potato, baked onion, steamed asparagus, and ice tea. I am just finishing up making a batch of icetea.htm which should be ready in ten minutes.

I also just finished showering and cleaning up. I will do a little internet work, and I guess I will go out in the morning about 8:30 A.M.. Well stay warm, it is not snowing now, so it does not look like we got a lot of snow. CIO

Note:<888>3/15/99 Monday 12:20 A.M. EST: I was up at 6 P.M. yesterday. I chatted with a family member. I went out to the Grand Union for a gallon of 2% milk for $3.09 and a piece of filet of Salmon for $5.15. It was just beginning to snow. I returned home and had breakfast of Kellogg's raisin bran, toast, vitamins, coffee, and orange juice and while I was drinking my coffee I got another tired spell and went back to bed until just now. I had one phone call while sleeping. I am finishing my reheated coffee, and I will start house cleaning shortly. There is about two to three inch accumulation of snow. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>4/07/99 Wednesday 5:15 P.M. EST: I made coffee and showered and went out at 7 A.M. this morning. I drove down to Steamboat Road and observed a sea gull on the waterfront. I spent a while down there and returned to the center of town and had my coffee. I walked the lower area of Greenwich Avenue and around the train station. I returned to the center of town and at 8:30 A.M., I went to Putnam Trust Bank of New York. I deposited part of my ValueClick check. I chatted with a couple of the bank staff. I went to the Hospital Thrift shop. I noticed that they have a brass coal bucket for sale for $35. I mentioned that there use to be an antique furniture restorer in Glen Cove, Long Island that was very good. I drove back downtown. I stopped by the Greenwich Post office and obtained a money order for my telephone bill and sent it off. I walked through the park to the Greenwich town hall, and delivered some mail. I sat in the town park, and I noticed the black squirrel again. I drove down Steamboat Road again, and viewed the harbor. I went to the Greenwich library, and read yesterday's New York Times which had a lot of Dutch advertising in it. I read today's Greenwich times. I noticed the library parking lot will be closed for paving tomorrow, and entrance will be through the Deerfield Road basement entrance. I then went down Steamboat Road again, and saw somebody who looked like an African chief sitting on the pier. I drove through Bruce Park, and stopped by the ELDC thrift. I noticed they have to nice copies of French garden scenes for half price. I then went east on Putnam avenue to Old Greenwich and stopped by the Old Greenwich thrift shop. I noticed they have some hand carved either chess or nativity scene figurines carved out of wood. I then went to Tod's Point, and one of my former neighbors is back at the gate. I drove to the far side and viewed the waterfront. I noticed the caretakers garage now has a 500 gallon gasoline tank. I drove to the concession area and there were about fifty mothers with two to four year old toddlers on the beach enjoying the sunny day. I then drove back to the center of town. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought two half gallons of Florida Natural juice for $1.99 each, a half gallon of GU 2% milk for $1.72, a pound of GU mozzarella $2.29, GU grated parmesan cheese $3.29, a box of NutraTaste sweetener $4.69, boneless breast of Purdue chicken at $2.99 a pound for $3.86, a jar of five brothers 4 cheese sauce for $1.99, a jar of Gold's horseradish $1.69, two packages of Luigi angel hair noodles .60 each a 4 oz. bottle of Angostura bitters for $3.29 for a total of $28.20. I next returned home about 12:30 P.M. and put away the groceries. I had some Ramen noodles and goldfish crackers. I ran the AltaVista indexer from about 6 A.M., which slowed down my server, and I finally had it quit indexing about 2 P.M. and it is still writing the index and shutting down now. It says it found about 100,000,000 new words on my hard drive, which is somewhat confusing, unless it is the help files with various programs. I tried to rest and go to bed, but I have not fallen asleep. The sun shining on my outdoor thermometer reads 105 degrees F. which shows I get the green house effect in the spring, I wish I got it in the winter. Well I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm , and bank stocks were up today. I suppose I will try to go back to sleep. It in all was pretty much a normal day in Greenwich. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>4/07/99 Wednesday 5:35 A.M. EST: I finished my routine internet work. There is not much to report on. I am making a Stauffer's frozen lasagna, which should be ready in ten minutes. Well I suppose the day time people will be surprised to see me out in the daytime again this morning. Well since the weather is nice, I guess I can enjoy a little day light. I have to clean up before I got out after I eat. I might go out a little earlier around sun rise around 6:28 A.M.. Well all quiet on the eastern front. CIO

Note:<888>4/07/99 Wednesday 2:50 A.M. EST: Well I went to bed at 1 P.M.. I was up at 8 P.M. for breakfast of Post Oats and Almonds, toast, vitamins, orange juice, and coffee. It was thundering outside. With low blood pressure that I have whenever it rains, lowering the barometric pressure, it also makes me tired, so I went back to bed until now, and I am just finishing my reheated coffee. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . I received a check from ValueClick for $68.40 for my internet advertising links, which will help pay some of my cable and computer expenses. Basically it costs me a lot more for my internet activity than what I make, so it is financially a net loss. Well have a good morning. By the way the Mews thrift shop has a Duncan Fife sofa for sale. CIO

Note:<888>4/06/99 Tuesday 12:20 P.M. EST: Copy of Reply from Hartford, Connecticut
Dear Mr. Scott, Thank you for your e-mail letter to Governor Rowland, which has been referred to me for electronic response. The Governor cannot tell the legislature what to do. While I believe the change in utility billing was intended to encourage residents not to waste electricity, you may want to your state senator and representative know what the actual financial impact has been. Sincerely, Nancy Ahern, Constituent Services, Governor's Office

Well Hartford is still in the dark, and out to lunch. I suppose we might just turn their lights off, or at least blink them for a while. Well I went out at 8 A.M. this morning. I drove down to the Harbor and viewed the water fowl on Long Island Sound. There were geese, ducks, mallards, sea gulls, and three swans, and it was a nice pleasant morning down by the water. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop and viewed the merchandise. I went to CVS and bought a carton of Captain Black cigar cigarettes for $10.13 and a jar of dry roasted peanuts for $1.59 plus .61 CT. Sales tax for a total of $12.37. I next went down to the center of town and walked around for while. I sat in the park and noticed that amongst the gray squirrels, there is also a black squirrel. I chatted with a young gal walking her two German Shepards about dog handling. I then drove by the Mew Thrift shop, and they were not open yet. They were spraying buy spray on all the bushes there. I then drove down to Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor. I returned to the Mews thrift shop, and told them a bit about World War II, that I had learned in Illinois. Then I went to the Exxon station and put $9 of premium in my car. I then drove by the Greenwich library and chatted with one observer. I read the Greenwich Times. They are laying what looks like the lower brick patio. I then returned home and chatted with my neighbors about local news stories. I had some Ramen noodles and peanuts for dinner. Well not much to report on, just another normal day in Greenwich, Switzerland. CIO

Note:<888>4/06/99 Tuesday 6:15 A.M. EST: Well I finished my daily internet routines. There is not really much to report on here. Pretty quiet from what I can tell, but I suppose it I go out this morning, it will be a little busier. I guess I will start cleaning up. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>4/06/99 Tuesday 3:40 A.M. EST: I making spaghetti to use with my reheated sauce. I received this hint. CIO

This hint was sent to me by a friend. It is not an intuitive problem, nor is the "fix" obvious, however I think that it is probably valid. For your info. ESW A helpful hint! I bet you hadn't thought that this would be an issue for Y2K! You won't be able to use the programmed recording feature on your VCR. However, do not throw away your VCR in the year 2000. Set it on the year 1972 (with the appropriate month & day for the year 2000), because the days will be the same. Please pass this on, as you know VCR manufacturers will not share this information. They will likely advise you to buy a new one that is Y2K compliant! This is just the beginning of the subtle, though hardly devastating, problems that the year 2000 will cause! ----- This hint was sent to me by a friend. It is not an intuitive problem, nor is the "fix" obvious, however I think that it is probably valid. For your info. ESW A helpful hint! I bet you hadn't thought that this would be an issue for Y2K! You won't be able to use the programmed recording feature on your VCR. However, do not throw away your VCR in the year 2000. Set it on the year 1972 (with the appropriate month & day for the year 2000), because the days will be the same. Please pass this on, as you know VCR manufacturers will not share this information. They will likely advise you to buy a new one that is Y2K compliant! This is just the beginning of the subtle, though hardly devastating, problems that the year 2000 will cause!

Note:<888>4/06/99 Tuesday 3:10 A.M. EST: Well I was up at 3 P.M. yesterday afternoon, and made it to my 4 P.M. appointment. I returned home after checking out the waterfront. I went to bed, and I got back up about 9 P.M. and had breakfast of Post Almond Oats, toast, coffee, orange juice, and vitamins. I went back to bed until 1:30 A.M.. I worked on reinstalling Microsoft Money 99 which was corrupted by trying to import my Microsoft Investor portfolio. I finally got it straightened away. I made a number of phone calls on unrelated matters concerning security. I also got Bell Atlantic to delete a bogus charge on my telephone bill. Well I guess I am up in the morning, and will probably be out some time or a couple of times this morning. Well have a good morning. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm , which has IBM up quite a bit today. CIO

Note:<888>4/05/99 Monday 5:25 A.M. EST: I updated Scott's weekly broadcast sound.htm . CIO

Note:<888>4/05/99 Monday 5:00 A.M. EST: Well I went out after the last message, and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue, and since it was cold out I returned about 3 A.M. after driving down to view the waterfront. There were four young musicians jamming in the window of Thataways after it had closed. It basically was pretty quiet and peaceful. After returning home, I finally got around to reading the past two months of issues of the Greenwich Post, which I frequently don't have time to read. Well all quiet on the eastern front, I guess the sun will be coming out an hour later with day light savings time. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>4/05/99 Monday 2:20 A.M. EST: I went to bed at 9 A.M. yesterday morning. I was awoken by a family member calling at 3 P.M.. I finally got up at 6 P.M., and I had breakfast of Post Almond Oats, toast, coffee, orange juice, and vitamins. I watched the ABC evening news. I did a little computer work. About 9 P.M., I went back to sleep until 11:30 P.M.. I got up and started cleaning the apartment and watering the plants. I finished that about 1:45 A.M.. I had some spaghetti and ice tea. I made a new batch of ice tea. I finished showering and cleaning up, and I filed this report. I think I will go out for a stroll. Enjoy the early morning. CIO

Note:<888>4/04/99 Sunday 4:15 A.M. EST: Happy Easter, well I guess everyone will be late for church this morning, unless they remembered to set their clocks forward an hour before going to bed. I went out at 10 P.M. last night and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue three times. I chatted with a new hospital security guard about the internet and volcanoes. I told him the most common people I see on Greenwich Avenue after 10 P.M. are hospital personnel going back and forth from the hospital to the train station at late and early hours. I also walked down to the Greenwich Harbor Inn to use the restroom and they were entertaining an Irish soccer team there, quite festive. I returned home at midnight and relaxed for a while. I had a bowl of spaghetti rested for about an hour and a half until now. I guess I should start setting my clocks forward. Well enjoy the early morning. CIO

Note:<888>4/03/99 Saturday 9:45 P.M. EST: I had a spaghetti dinner about 8 A.M.. I went to bed until 2 P.M., when I received a phone call. I showered and I stopped by Christ Church to pick up some parcels to deliver to Westport. I paid a visit in Westport and I also stopped by CVS there and bought toothpaste $1.39, CVS disposable razors $2.69, two packages of Odor Eaters for $4.27 for $13.18 total. I stopped by Radio Shack there and bought a AM/FM radio for $12.71, and I delivered both sets of packages and parcels to a visitor staying in Westport. I browsed the software store where Egghead use to be. I drove down thru Norwalk and browsed the Gateway computer store there, and the CompUSA store in Norwalk. I noticed that CompUSA sells the external Sony SuperStation tape drive there for $180, and I only paid $150 for the same item at Staples, plus I also got the free $40 tape. CompUSA does sell the Sony 10G tape for $35 where as Staples sells it for $40. I returned directly home. I had a bowl of Post Almond and Oats cereal, toast, orange juice, and vitamins. I made coffee, but I got a tired spell, so I went to bed from 7 P.M. to 8:30 P.M. when a family member called me, and told me there was a Bill Gates program on biography on the Arts and Entertainment Channel. I watched it until 9 P.M., and I then reheated my coffee and started drinking it, and filed this report. Well have a good evening. After my coffee, I might go out for a stroll. CIO

Note:<888>4/03/99 Saturday 6:50 A.M. EST: I went out after the last message. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road. I walked the entire length of Greenwich Avenue and around the train station. The street sweeper was out. It seems to be a quiet morning. I went over to CVS at the Riverside shopping plaza. I bought four packs of Dutch treat lights little cigars for $1.45 each, a jar of Gold Emblem dry roasted peanuts for $2.69, a jar of Italian spices for .99, CVS toothpaste $1.39, Gillette aftershave $1.99, Gillette shaving cream $1.99, 2 bottles of CVS pine sol disinfectant $1.99 each, Right guard deodorant stick $1.49, and a large 50 oz. bottle of CVS mouth wash for $3.49 plus $1.21 Ct. sales tax for $25.02 total. I next drove back to the center of town and drove down Greenwich Avenue and viewed the harbor. I then went to the Grand Union and bought a bag of Idaho potatoes for $2.99, 90% lean ground beef at $2.99 a pound for $3.05, a half gallon of 2% milk $1.77, two boxes of Post Almond Oats for $2 each, a can of tomato puree .99, 2 pounds of "I Can't Believe It's Not Butter lite" $1.29 each, a can of Chicken of the Sea tuna .99, a Stauffer's 20 oz. lasagna $2.99, a Tony's 4 cheese pizza $3.99, and a box of Gorton's fish sticks $2.99 for $26.34 total. I returned home and put away the purchases. I started to make a spaghetti sauce. I browned the ground beef, I diced three medium onions, I added four tablespoons olive oil to a gallon and a half pot. I added the browned meat and onions, I added one large can of pureed tomato sauce, I added 6 oz. of chopped garlic, I added a large can of plum tomatoes with sauce, I added four ounces of white wine, I added ground pepper, garlic powder, Italian spices, oregano, basil, celery salt, poetry seasoning, chili powder, and Hungarian pepperica, I added another large can of tomato puree, and I chopped a pound of asparagus and added them along with a can of mushrooms. I stirred the mixture and brought it all to a boil on medium high, and then have reduced it to simmer for an hour on low. I will make up a batch of spaghetti noodles when it is done simmering and have spaghetti in about an hour. Well have a good morning. It looks overcast, and it looks like it will be a cloudy day. CIO

Note:<888>4/03/99 Saturday 2:15 A.M. EST: I worked on the computer until noon yesterday. I chatted with a friend in the morning. I went to bed about noon. I got up at about 6 P.M. and had breakfast of Post Oat and Almond flakes, toast, coffee, orange juice, and vitamins. I watched the ABC evening news. I went back to bed until midnight. I got up and watched a bit of CNN. I had a Stauffer's lasagna to eat along with ice tea just now, and I am making coffee. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>4/02/99 Friday 7:00 A.M. EST: Well I went out and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue three times, and the entire length of the Avenue once. It was a quiet foggy morning with the usual crows out in the morning. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought Ronzzoni Fettuccini Florentine noodles $1.75, a 32 oz. can of Maxwell Columbian Coffee for $5.99, two Stauffer's 20 oz. Lasagnas for $2.99 each, a five pound bag of GU sugar for $2.09, a 12 pack of Diet Pepsi One $2.99 plus .60 deposit, Asparagus at .99 a pound for .94, Ziti noodles .67, 2 Post Oats and Almonds cereal $1.99 each, two half gallons of Tropicana orange juice $2 each, for a total of $29.19. Well I returned home and heated one of the Stauffer lasagnas and ate it with ice tea. I watched a little bit of the CNBC morning business news, and they said the number one job is web master, and the number three job is systems analyst, so I have a couple of fun hobbies; if you don't mind living like a prisoner. Well I like the peace and quiet, so I have a fairly quiet routine, as long as I avoid the busier parts of the day, when the frenzy begins. Well I guess my life here is more like living in the country, as long as I avoid the city folks that try to speed you up. Well enough of the Farm report from Greenwich, time to start relaxing and take another nap. Have a good morning. By the way I noticed that some youngsters left a bag of empty bottles on Greenwich Avenue, of a beer called "Blue Moon" from Belgium. CIO

Note:<888>4/02/99 Friday 3:00 A.M. EST: Note on automobile insurance. I spend about $900 a year for automobile insurance. I spend about $600 a year for gasoline, so I don't drive very much at present. The way it works out, I give Warren Buffett at Berkshire Hathaway about 20 cents for every mile I drive, which is quite a racket compared to what the profits of the oil companies are on a gallon of gasoline. Steamboat Road has the office building owned by General Reinsurance that is owned by Berkshire Hathaway, so when I am covering Steamboat Road, I am also spending my own time and money to keep an eye out on Berkshire Hathaway property. Between Gates and Buffett, I think they have quite a racket going, but in the old days they never paid me for walking around Rockefeller Center at night either. I was told by a friend that just got back from Key West that a Dupont family member just bought a $2.5 million house in Key West on the Truman Annex resort development, so I guess there are a few French people down there tanning. Well us pale Nordic types consider the weather warm here, so I might go out for a morning stroll about now, since it is not too busy. During the Viet Nam war there were millions of people working and awake at night, and when I use to go out to O'Hare airport at night while attending Lake Forest College, I would see tens of thousands of government and military personnel traveling at night around the clock. I suppose if the situation in Yugoslavia keeps evolving, we will have much the same situation again. Well time for a little morning drive and walk around. CIO

Note:<888>4/02/99 Friday 2:50 A.M. EST: Well I went to bed after the new and the Tony's pizza. I got up about midnight. I watched a little bit of television. I had Ramen noodles, ice tea, and a cup of coffee right now. I am doing my regular internet work. I have about three days of email to sift through. It seems pretty quiet. CIO

Note:<888>4/01/99 Thursday 6:20 P.M. EST: I was up at 1 P.M.. I configured my log analysis program with the old log and new log, so it records all previous months. Usually once it is incorporated in the program, it does not need the old log. I had breakfast of Post Raisin bran, toast, coffee, orange juice, and vitamins. I showered and cleaned up. I prepared my bills that I have received. I went out and paid my rent at the bank at Lafayette Place. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I stopped by Putnam Trust, and there was a long line because the bank is closed on Good Friday, so I withdrew funds from the money machine. I went to the post office and obtained money orders to pay my GEICO Insurance, MCI long distance, Connecticut Light and Power and mailed them. I stopped by the Hospital thrift shop and browsed the merchandise. I stopped by CVS and bought a bottle of 100 tables of 50 mg. of Vitamin B complex for $6.75. I drove down Greenwich avenue and viewed the harbor. I stopped by the Exxon station and bought $10.25 of premium. I went to the library and read the Greenwich Times and the New York Times. I returned home and am about to watch the ABC evening news and then cook a Tony's Pizza. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>4/01/99 Thursday 5:40 A.M. EST: Well I downloaded the IBM Lotus R5 90 days demos. Notes, Domino, and Designer all installed, but when I installed the Domino administrator, it did not work, and it crippled Notes. I uninstalled all the programs, and deleted the downloads, since my system really does not have the resources to run them anyway. Well off to bed. CIO

Note:<888>4/01/99 Thursday 2:40 A.M. EST: I went out after the last message and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. It was very slow out. I sat in the post office plaza and observed the Blue Moon. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road. I stopped by the Grand Union and bought a Tony's Supreme pizza for $3.99 and a half gallon of 2% milk for $1.77 for a total of $5.76. I returned home and started my laundry. I am on the drying cycle now with about a half hour to go. I noticed when I was outside at the front door there are swarms of thousands of what look like young termites around the entrance to the building. I called the Housing Authority at 203-869-1138 about them, and the Answering service said that there had been similar complaints from Putnam Green across the street. I guess with the early spring lots of bugs are coming out of the ground. I also had to restore my Microsoft Money 99 data file from the backup, because I accidentally over wrote it with an older file. Well time to finish laundry and get back to the net. I have a 3 P.M. appointment tomorrow, so I have to be up by 1 P.M.. Well have a good morning. I also received a call from a friend last evening, and we chatted about old times. CIO

Note:<888>4/01/99 Thursday 12:05 A.M. EST: Happy April Fools Day, and Happy Birthday to a friend. I rested this evening. I had an omelet, bacon, toast, and ice tea for a light meal. I renamed the Apache server logs and copied them to a different directory, and I put in two blank files name the same in the Apache server log directory. Well I am cleaned up, so I thought I would go out for a breath of fresh air. I have to do laundry later this evening. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>4/14/99 Wednesday 11:35 P.M. EDT: I went out after the last message. I drove down by the waterfront on Steamboat Road and chatted with some locals for a couple of hours. I then went to CVS and bought a large container of liquid detergent for $2.79 plus .17 Ct. tax for $2.96 total. I also bought at CVS a eight pack of paper towels for $2.99, odorless garlic pills for $3.49, a 3 pack of CVS beauty soap for $1.49, 2 cans of pink Alaskan salmon for $1.50 each, a bottle of B-12 vitamins for $2.14 plus .27 Ct. tax for $13.38 total. All CVS vitamins are half price this week including the garlic pills. I then went to the Grand Union, and their deli is open until 9 P.M., but they only make sandwiches until 8 P.M.. They did make a roast beef sandwich on a hard roll with mayonnaise and that cost $3.79. I ate the sandwich in front of the Greenwich library. I went upstairs and read the Greenwich Times and half the New York Times before the library closed. I then went downtown, and walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue and chatted with one local. He asked me where there was a tack shop in the area, and I told him I believe there was one in Weston where they still sell food and grain and saddles and other equine necessities. I observed one fancy groomed Champaign poodle and a Alaskan huskie downtown. It was a milder evening, and my arthritis did not bother me. I returned home after driving down by the water. I put away the supplies and I drank a Dr. Pepper, which certainly has a different taste. Well back to the drudgery of the net. I suppose if the war takes off in Europe, we will probably have internet censorship and they might shut down access to countries involved in the military conflict. Well have a good night. CIO

Note:<888>4/14/99 Wednesday 5:35 P.M. EDT: I uninstalled the Acer 99c monitor driver, and am using the default plug and play "GVC990" monitor driver. They seem pretty much the same. Well time to clean up. CIO

Note:<888>4/14/99 Wednesday 4:55 P.M. EDT: I was up at 10:30 A.M. to finish off the tape back up, and shut down the tape machine. It takes about six hours for my 3.5 G. of contents. I had breakfast of Post Almond oats, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins. I watched CNBC and CNN with the Chinese premier at MIT. I went back to sleep about 12:30 P.M., and got up at 3:30 P.M., and I had Ramen noodles, and I finished off my coffee. I paid Internic $70 for my "mrscott.com" address for two years, and $35 for my "mikescott.net" address for another year. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well it is a sunny afternoon, so I guess I will shower and go out. Have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>4/14/99 Wednesday 4:00 A.M. EDT: Well I did my normal internet work. I installed the new Microsoft Media player beta. I also tried installing the Internet Explorer 5.0 setup file, and it said I had the wrong version; so I reinstalled that. System is running fine. I am about to quit for the night, and start a tape backup. I was able to update the Sony Superstation SCSI driver. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>4/14/99 Wednesday 12:50 A.M. EDT: New Greenwich Link Greenwich Community Page . CIO

Note:<888>4/13/99 Tuesday 10:10 P.M. EDT: I had my dinner, and I watched the ABC evening news. I went out after my coffee about 7:30 P.M.. I stopped by the Greenwich library and read the New York Times, the Greenwich Times, and one computer newsweekly. I drove down Greenwich Avenue, and viewed Long Island sound. I drove over to CVS in Old Greenwich, but they did not have the lite cigar cigarettes. I went by Stables in Old Greenwich, and they said the store in Mount Vernon, New York is going to be open 24 hours a day. I mentioned to one store employee they should sell Angostura Bitters by the quart for about $10 a bottle instead of the small bottles. I went to CVS in the Riverside shopping center, and I bought a carton of Dutch Masters cigar cigarettes lite for $15.04. They also have one pound cans of Alaska salmon there for $1.50 a can. It is good in tuna noodle type casseroles. I went to the Food Emporium in the same plaza and bought a five pound bag of sugar for $1.49, and three half gallons of Tropicana Ruby red orange grapefruit orange juice for $1.49 each for $5.96 total. I noticed the Thorne Apple hickory smoked bacon there was $4.18 a pound, and since I had thrown out two pounds of it frozen just before I left, because of the Thorne Apple Valley warning, I decided to retrieve it from the dumpster when I returned home directly from the store. I put it back in the freezer. I think it is probably not contaminated. I only paid .99 a pound for it since it was a clearance item at the Grand Union a couple of months ago. I did throw out fifteen eggs that were out of date. I am drinking some ice tea, and I guess I will have to make up a new batch of ice tea this evening. Well I have a bit of email to catch up on. A volcano in Alaska Shishaldin 1999 Activity is on condition orange and is near eruption. That would probably send some colder weather this way. I was thinking while in the library this evening, that on the new Petersen addition that the east facing glass wall of the addition, might have a problem with automobile lights shining into the building, and possibly they should use polarized glass. I also thought they should put up a traffic barricade opposite that wall, in case an automobile or truck went off the Putnam Avenue west bound lanes and ran down the slope into the new glass wall addition. It is much the same worse case scenario if a train derailed west bound on the train tracks coming into Greenwich, and went plowing through the movie theatre. Well not much else gloomy to report. It is colder outside tonight and my feet are sore, so I decided not to walk this evening. Well have a good night, time to make ice tea. CIO

Note: <888>4/13/99 Tuesday 5:40 P.M. EDT: Well it seems why I felt so tired for the last few days is the thermostat was set too high in my apartment, and the temperature was up to 80 degrees F. inside. I went out about 2 P.M. this afternoon after listening to some old Elvis records and having some Ramen noodles and ice tea and cleaning up. Today is a beautiful sunny day. I stopped by the Housing authority, and left off my new lease papers. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and viewed the harbor and the clear blue skies. I returned to the center of town. The exterior work on the old Rogers building is just about done. They will have deluxe apartments on the upper levels of the building. I don't know where people will park though. I parked in the center of town, and walked up to Putnam Trust Bank of New York and withdrew funds. I stopped by CVS, but they don't have the kind of cigar cigarettes that I smoke, they just have the stronger types. I returned to the center of town, and sat in the park. I stopped by the Greenwich Library and neither the Greenwich Times or the New York Times are available. I mentioned to one regular patron, that the design in the bricks that they are putting in the pavement on the lower courtyard is different I believe than what is on the model of the building in the main library. I drove back down Greenwich Avenue, and I parked at the water's edge at Grass Island for a while, and sat out viewing the harbor. It is still a little chilly out. I returned to the center of town, and purchased $11.70 of premium gasoline at $1.43 a gallon at the Exxon station. I then went to the Grand Union and bought a 12 pack of diet 7Up for $1.99, a 12 pack of diet Coke for $1.99 plus $1.20 can deposit, GU 2% milk half gallon $1.72, 3 cans of Tutto plum tomatoes for .50 each, one package of GU frozen spinach and two packages of GU frozen chopped broccoli .59 each, Jumbo dozen eggs $1.69, Purdue boneless breast of chicken at $2.99 a pound for $3.65, two Elos frozen cheese pizzas for $1.50 each, a pound of fresh asparagus at $1.29 a pound, a Stauffer's frozen 20 oz. lasagna $2.99, a half gallon of GU premium orange juice $1.99 for a Grand Total of $25.02. I returned home and put away the groceries, and I had a diet Pepsi. I called a family member to wish them happy birthday. They told be I should be careful about using Aspertaine, since it can have side effects. I am using two packages of Nutratate each day with my coffee. Scott's Index did not do much today scopor01.htm . Well it is a nice sunny evening, so I think I will start cooking some baked boneless breast of chicken in red wine, with chopped garlic, and herbs and spices, along with steamed asparagus, baked onion and baked Idaho potato, and ice tea and coffee. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>4/13/99 Tuesday 11:55 A.M. EDT: Well I have been resting since the last message. I have been tired most of the last week. I guess it is like in the movie I once saw up while visiting Dartmouth College, "Cousin, Cousine" about the French sleep cure, where they put you to sleep for 2 weeks, and you wake up feeling entirely rested. Well I guess I have done my own version of the French sleep cure, but if I sleep any more, I will start getting depressed; so I will start my day out trying to be a little bit more active. Happy Birthday to a dear family member. CIO

Note:<888>4/12/99 Monday 7:45 P.M. EDT: I relaxed a bit, and I updated Scott's weekly broadcast sound.htm. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>4/12/99 Monday 5:05 P.M. EDT: Well apparently somebody has a penny or two left in their purse, because according to Cunard Cruise Query Results, New York Cruise ; somebody has chartered the QE II for a cruise from May 1, to May 8; destination unknown. Well some folks have all the fun. I am having my coffee. CIO

Note:<888>4/12/99 Monday 4:50 P.M. EDT: Well I rested after the last message. I got up about 4 P.M., and had a Tony's Pizza. I am just about to make a cup of coffee. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well it was an overall pretty quiet day, I guess I will be venturing out a little bit this evening. CIO

Note:<888>4/12/99 Monday 10:50 A.M. EDT: Well I chatted with a family member last night. I will pay my Internic registration bills this week. I relaxed and went to bed about 2 A.M.. I was up about 8:30 A.M. this morning, and had breakfast of Post Almond Oats, toast, coffee, orange juice, and vitamins. I relaxed a bit after breakfast and watched a bit of CNN. According to Queen Elizabeth II Around the World Cunard Cruise Query Results , the QE II is suppose to back in South Hampton on April 14th. It then returns to Manhattan a week from tomorrow on Tuesday April 20 before heading to Miami. I believe the largest cargo on the QE II coming out of South Hampton, England is bonded liquor from the United Kingdom and other neighboring regions, so in times of military conflict any extra supplies we receive in the western hemisphere, should be used as Red Cross emergency rations for those in the old guard elderly generation who spend a lot of time outside in the colder weather and need a pick me up during the late afternoon or evening. You have to remember a lot of these liquors were consumed by people in the old days who worked outside in the bone chilling cold all day in the frigid North Sea areas, and when they got inside or when they were relaxing outside, the liquor helped ease the bone chilling cold they were enduring. Well so much for the history of why certain parts of the world, produce certain products. I believe the QE II has a bonded warehouse somewhere in the New York metropolitan area, that is kept under close observation to prevent any bootleggers from pilfering the goods. Remember the old timers can tell the difference between the real stuff and cheap imitations. Well so much for the lesson on imported alcohol. Also at this time, the North Atlantic might have lots of ice burgs, but I would imagine the QE II would have the latest navigation equipment. Well I should start thinking about getting started for the day, but I have a case of the blahs. Have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>4/11/99 Sunday 7:05 P.M. EDT: Well I was up at 7 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of Post Almond Oats, orange juice, coffee, toast, and vitamins. I went back to bed until 1 P.M.. I cleaned my apartment and watered the plants until about 5 P.M. I had Gorton's fish sticks, spinach, and Ramen noodles with ice tea and coffee for dinner. I went out about 6 P.M. and drove down Greenwich Avenue and viewed the weather on the harbor. It is cold and damp North Sea type weather. I walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue and chatted with a few local people. It was not very busy out. While chatting with one local retired fireman, there was a tremendous bolt of lightning, so I returned to my car and came back home. I also ran scandisk and defrag on the computer while doing my chores, so the server was down for a while. If you ever get a lot of lightning, it is advisable to disconnect the computer from the power source along with the telephone and cable modem connections. I am fortunate enough to have a well grounded building, but I still worry about lightning. Well have a good evening. I might watch television or one of the videotapes I checked out yesterday. CIO

Note:<888>4/10/99 Saturday 10:35 P.M. EDT: Well I went back out at 6:15 P.M. after dinner and my coffee. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and observed one fly fisherman practicing his technique. I chatted with a couple of young gals about Golden Retrievers. I told a few other visitors about waterfront activities. I found a large Swiss Army knife that someone had lost with a name on it. I gave it to the fly caster who said he thought he knew whom the owner was. I returned to the center of town and took a long time to walk the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. Lots of youngsters and families were out which is normal for warmer weather. I chatted about horses with one railroad retiree. I returned home about 10 P.M. Well it has been a long day on my feet, and I have house cleaning tomorrow per usual. Well it seems like we had a full house this evening, so enjoy the great weather while we have it. Time for a little shuteye. CIO

Note:<888>4/10/99 Saturday 4:50 P.M. EDT: Well I went back to bed until 7:30 A.M. this morning. I showered and went out at 8 P.M.. I drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and returned to Putnam Trust, but they're not open until 9 A.M. on Saturday. I went over to the Hospital Thrift shop. I decided to buy a glass bicentennial coin memorial dish for $3.75. I returned to Putnam Trust at 9 A.M. and withdrew funds. I chatted with an officer there. I returned to the Hospital thrift shop and bought the bicentennial memorial dish with the Liberty Bell memorial coin on it for $3.75. I chatted with one of the staff members about the bicentennial in 1976. I mentioned I was in a receiving line for Queen Elizabeth and Prince Phillip when they toured Bloomingdale's Department store on July 5, 1976 before they went on to a reception at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. I mentioned the following day she sailed by Greenwich on the Britannia on her way to New Haven, Connecticut. The hospital thrift shop volunteer said that he got a metal from the King of Belgium for the Tall Ship activities. I mentioned that a lot of people outside of Belgium don't recognize the King of Belgium. I believe his sister is into psychic activity. Well next stop was downtown. I went to the Post officer and obtained money orders to pay my Cablevision and Optimum Online. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. I bought a Almond Danish at St. Moritz bakery for $1 and ate it at the Post Office plaza. I stopped by the Mews thrift shop, and everything is half price. They sold the Duncan Phife sofa for $1,300. I have mentioned many times over the years that two good places I know of outside of this area for getting used furniture at lower prices if one does not mind searching is a place south of Poughipsie, New York on Route 9 that has a large wooden white horse in front of it. They have all that old heavy Hudson Valley furniture. I also found that the Salvation Army, in Waukegan, Illinois use to have a few interesting pieces that people from Lake Forest would donate. Of course on the more upscale side, there is always the United House Wreckers in Stamford, not to mention in Greenwich and other parts of this area, there are consignment shops and plenty of antique shops. Well I next drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and chatted with a frequently Steamboat Road walker from Jamaica about the Caribbean. I then headed over to ELDC thrift and they still have the four fishing rods in the front window for $25 each, but they don't have reels. I next headed to Stables in Old Greenwich and toured the store. They're now open until 9 P.M. on Sunday. I then parked in front of the Old Greenwich elementary school and they have a Cranberry 1989 Peugeot station wagon parked in front of it for sale for $4,500 in excellent shape. I walked down to the Old Greenwich thrift shop and toured the store. I walked over to the Old Greenwich Food Mart and ordered a roast beef sandwich on a Kaiser roll with lettuce, tomato, mayonnaise, Bermuda onion, and horse radish which with potato chips cost $3.60. One local walker gave me a flyer protesting the bombing in Yugoslavia which I took. I chatted with him about Yugoslavians in Manhattan. I mentioned I use to see a lot of Yugoslavian seamen around the Seaman's church in Chelsea at 10th Avenue and 20th church next to the Anglican seminary. I next went out to the far side of Tod's Point and ate my sandwich. They now have a gate attendant at Tod's point, so you need proof of Greenwich residency. I walked out halfway to the point, and watch a squirrel munching on some food in the cool clear breezy day. I drove over to the other side, and there were two people flying kites. Possibly today or tomorrow there is a kite flying contest. There were lots of young families at the beach walking and strolling for exercise. I returned back to central Greenwich and parked in the center of town. I chatted with one local downtown. I walked the lower section of Greenwich Avenue. There were quite a few people out strolling. I then drove down to the bottom of Steamboat Road and it was busy. I drove up to the Greenwich library, and neither the New York Times or the Greenwich Times were available. Then I checked out two videotapes, "Dr. Stangelove" and "The Mouse That Roared". I then went to the Grand Union and bought a half gallon of GU 2% milk for $1.72 and a 24 roll bundle of Charmin toilet paper for $5.99 plus .36 Ct. sales tax for $8.07 total. I then returned home, and I sat down and relaxed and drank a diet Pepsi. Well it was a beautiful breezy spring day with lots of sunshine. Well time to start thinking about cooking dinner of boneless breast of chicken baked in wine with herbs and spices and garlic, along with baked onion and a frozen vegetable. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>4/10/99 Saturday 4:10 A.M. EDT: I turned the heat back on in the apartment, it was a bit cool and damp. I rested last night and got up at 3:30 A.M. this morning. I had breakfast of Post Almond Oats, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins. Well I will do a little bit of work on the net this morning, and go out at about 8:30 A.M. to pay my cablevision and Optimum online bills. I guess I will see a little bit of the day time, but I think it is suppose to be overcast. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>4/09/99 Friday 7:25 P.M. EDT: Well I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm as if anybody cared. The only stock I have ever owned in my life is five shares of Polaroid which I sold after six months back in 1971. Well I went out about 4 P.M. after starting a C: drive to D: drive backup. I stopped by the Greenwich library and chatted with a local user. I mentioned as far as I know most of the personal fallout shelters in the area have been turned into wine callers except one he mentioned got filled with fuel oil. I was unable to find any daily publications. Well not much else happening downtown, other that it was a full house of people out in the rain. I returned home and chatted with my neighbor's daughter and her mother is recovering from a broken hip, and won't be returning here, but is going into full time retirement home. Well her daughter is moving back up north, and I told her after two warm winters, it is too much to expect a third warm winter in a row. I guess the weather effects everyone's mood. Florida is having a dry spell and desperately needs rain. I guess so many people go down there expecting sunshine all the time. I can remember in the old days it use to rain down there all the time. Well I guess the grass is always greener. Needless to say today we had enough rain, and I guess people in this area are use to frequent rainy days all the time. I can recall only about two dry summers in 38 years I've been up north. Well I guess we can all expect another wet spring and summer. I heard today that Walmart is the nations largest employer. Well if you need something from them Sam's built a large new warehouse outlet over in Elmsford, New York that basically put Caldor's out of business. I can't afford to join Sam's club since it costs $25 and I don't usually make any large purchases anyway. In other news one way to end the NATO Serbian conflict might be to have some sort of Peace Talks, or at least negotiations anyway. I don't think anyone wants to have the present conflict expand more than it has. Well situation here is pretty much the same as always. I have to pay my Cablevision and Optimum online bills either tomorrow morning, if I am up or on Monday. I guess I am up all night again. Not much else to report. Maybe I will try to head over to the library and read the papers. It is a cooler raw day out not very good for arthritis suffers to be out in. Well have a good evening. CIO

Note:<888>4/09/99 Friday 2:15 P.M. EDT: Well with the rain and the damp weather with my low blood pressure, I felt tired, and I went back to bed until 1 P.M.. I watched a bit of CNN. I am making baked in wine boneless breast of chicken with garlic and herbs, baked onions, and steamed green peas. I will shower after I eat and go out a little after 3 P.M.. I guess I will stop by the library. In all it is a pretty blah day, but I'm sure we're have some warmer sunny weather to look forward too. I will also have coffee. Well enjoy the afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>4/09/99 Friday 8:30 A.M. EDT: Well I went to bed at 7 P.M. last night. I got up at 3 A.M. and started my laundry. I had breakfast of Post Almond oats, toast, orange juice, coffee, and vitamins. I slept during the drying cycle, and finished the laundry about 5 A.M.. I went back to bed until 7:30 A.M.. channel surfed a bit of the morning news and watched the end of a Jan Michael Vincent surfing movie. I noticed last night on a commercial after the evening news, that Amtrak is offering a new fare package. Buy one full price ticket and get the second ticket half price, and the third ticket for free, thus three people could travel for half price. Of course one can only go where Amtrak goes, but riding on the train is enjoyable since you can relax while traveling, of course I don't think you can smoke on the train anymore. Well not much else to report on this morning. It is suppose to rain a bit today. I noticed two days ago that ELDC thrift has fishing rods for sale without the reels. I generally don't watch much television, so besides going to the library I will have to dream up other activity when on a day schedule when on a limited budget. Apparently according to Yahoo the Russians have targeted their rockets at the NATO allies, so I guess we could start cleaning out the old fall out shelters or whatever one is suppose to do when worrying about Russian rockets. Still hopefully matters won't reach that point. I noticed yesterday that Tampa, Florida had its main power station explode, so there are lots of West Florida without needed power reserves for air conditioning as the weather gets hotter there, so we might see some travelers from Florida come out way to escape the heat. I guess it is opening day for the New York baseball teams, despite the threat of rain. Well I will get out in a while after checking my email and surfing the net a little bit. Enjoy the day. CIO

Note:<888>4/08/99 Thursday 5:15 P.M. EDT: Well I went out at 2 P.M. and sat outside talking to my neighbors until 2:30 P.M.. I made my 3 P.M. appointment. I stopped by the Hospital Thrift shop. I drove down Greenwich Avenue, and I drove down by Steamboat Road. There were quite a few people parked there, so I went over to the Grass Island area and parked by the waterfront for a while. I returned home about 4 P.M., and relaxed a bit. I updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm . Well I guess it is time to start slowing down for the day. I forgot to do my laundry this week, so I have to remember to do it when I first wake up tomorrow. Well have a good evening, and keep a sharp eye out for whatever one keeps a sharp eye for. Today the weather was perfect, but the wind is out of the northwest, so I guess we are do for colder weather and a bit of rain. I commented today to someone, that in the country in Illinois it is so quiet one can here a train for fifty miles. I guess people who grow up in the country find it quite loud around here. Of course one could live in the country and have a neighbor start their lawn mower at 5 A.M. on Saturday morning, or have large flocks of noisy birds. I suppose it is what one gets use to. We all enjoy the quiet. CIO

Note:<888>4/08/99 Thursday 1:50 P.M. EDT: I went out about 9:30 A.M.. I stopped by the Hallmark Card store downtown and bought a card for $2.07 for a family member. I went to the post office and mailed it. I walked down Greenwich Avenue, and west of railroad avenue, and back up Arch street. I sat in the park a while. I went down to St. Moritz and bought a large Danish pastry for $1.25. I walked back up the avenue. I always say good morning to the officers directing traffic. I sat in the park and ate the Danish pastry. I then drove down Greenwich Avenue, and viewed the harbor. I drove back to the Greenwich Town Hall and parked on the lower level of the parking garage which has all day parking. I found a meter with five hours on it. I walked up to the Greenwich library which has its parking lot closed today for paving work. I noticed while crossing Putnam Avenue with the new cross walk lights, they only give you 22 seconds, which is not much time if you're a slow walker, like I am today with my feet bothering me. I will try a different pair of shoes this afternoon. I read the New York Times in the library, the Greenwich Times, and two computer newsweeklies. I chatted with library security. It was very quiet there this morning. I returned back to the town hall, and told one anglophile about Royal Insight: A monthly guide to the life and work of Britain's Royal Family which just was previewed by Prince Andrew yesterday, and says the Queen and Prince Phillip are going to Korea this April. I then returned home. I had some ice tea. I made baked boneless breast of chicken with herbs, wine, and spices with baked onion quarters and green peas. I am just about to have my coffee. I have a 3 P.M. appointment this afternoon. Well enjoy the afternoon, I believe tomorrow is suppose to be cooler. CIO

Note:<888>4/08/99 Thursday 7:35 A.M. EDT: I wrote a letter to a family member. I edited my local Greenwich, Connecticut <http://mrscott.com> Apache Server for Windows 98 "httpd.conf" file to log error messages for server errors 500, 404, 403, 402, 401 to error pages; so that users will be redirected back to the homepage. Let's face it a tenth of more of the hits are error messages, so it useful to try to retains those users. CIO

Note:<888>4/08/99 Thursday 4:30 A.M. EDT: I went to bed about 6 P.M. letting AltaVista indexer continue to run. I got up about 10 P.M. and stopped it. I restarted it using only the major directory files that I needed to index along with my email. I went back to bed. By 3 A.M. it was completed running, and I got up and stopped it. I went back to bed until 4 A.M. and had breakfast of Post Almond Oats, toast, orange juice, vitamins, and coffee. I will do a little internet work now. It is 74 degrees F. inside and 49 degrees F. outside without the heat turned on. I turned the heat off for the season yesterday. Well have a good morning. CIO

Note:<888>4/21/99 Wednesday 11:45 A.M. EDT: I went out at 7:40 A.M. after relaxing a bit. I chatted with one of my neighbors about the helicopter flying over the building at midnight last night. I drove over to the Arnold Bread Outlet and bought 3 loaves of Healthnut Bread for $3.75

total. I drove down to Steamboat Road, but there was no parking down there. I drove up to the center of town, and parked and walked down to St. Moritz bakery and bought a Boli Italian pastry for $1. I noticed they are digging up the tanks at the Sunoco gasoline station to begin building the new Richard's clothing store. I sat in front of the senior center and ate the pastry. I walked over to the park and viewed all the people walking their dogs unleashed and not cleaning up after them. I guess some people don't read the local press. I drove over to the Hospital Thrift shop and viewed the merchandise. I told them that today is the Queen's birthday. I notice they have a few new items in stock. I drove back down Greenwich Avenue and found a parking place on Steamboat Road. I chatted with one regular water viewer, I had not seen in about two weeks. I told him about my travels in Europe in 1972 and about the layout in Key West in the mid 1970s. I noticed that dark green or blue 737? was flying back into the airport. I see that Jet all the time. I drove over to Grass Island and viewed the harbor. They have the park cleaned up there. I drove through Bruce Park and all the Tulips and Daffodils are out. I imagine all the Daffodils are also out along North Street. I stopped by the ELDC thrift and they have a large mahogany coffee table in good shape for $40 and they still have the fishing rods for $25, but no reels. I noticed at the Hospital Thrift shop they have a good golf bag pull cart for $40. I gossiped with some of the staff at ELDC. I returned back to the center of town and bought $10.80 of premium at the Exxon station. I next went to the Greenwich Library. I said hello to someone coming out of the construction trailer that looked like the former head librarian. I mentioned to him they need to put up anti skate board devices on the west entrance wall to prevent the local youth from falling down onto the patio, which might cause insurance liability for the town. I forgot to tell him about the barricade in front of the glass east wall to prevent a vehicle from plowing through it, if it ran off the road there. It would not be amusing if when they are throwing the fund raising event for the library before the opening, if a MAC truck plowed through the library. Tickets are suppose to be $750 to $10,000 for different patrons. I guess there will be dinner, dancing, and a silent auction as is the norm for such events. I suppose those who like dancing in a spacious building, will have lots of fun. I read the Greenwich Times, and the library was very busy. I noticed quite a few new people. I looked for the New York Times, but it was not available. I checked out "The Restless Sea" by Robert Kunzig. I returned home and put away the bread and had a glass of ice tea. Well it is a very beautiful day in Greenwich, but it is suppose to rain late this afternoon and this evening, so take your umbrella. I am about to start to slow down, and I might try to go to bed soon. Well have a good afternoon. CIO

Note:<888>4/21/99 Wednesday 7:15 A.M. EDT: I had some Ramen noodles and ice tea after the last message. I cleaned up. I went out at 4 A.M. and drove down Greenwich Avenue, and viewed Long Island Sound from the bottom of Steamboat Road. I drove over to CVS in the Riverside shopping plaza and bought a carton of Dutch Treats sweet and lite cigar cigarettes for $14.19 plus .85 CT. sales tax, and two 15 oz. boxes of Kellogg's raisin bran for $1.50 each, and a half gallon of 2% milk for $1.50 for $19.63 total. I then drove back and parked in the center of town. I walked the lower part of Greenwich Avenue and around the train station, and as usual a few early risers were waiting for the train at 5 A.M. at the train station. I am not sure when the first train is, since I have not ridden into New York City on the train in probably over ten years, and I have only been to Manhattan I believe once in eight years last fall to pick up someone. Well after observing some of the morning activity and listening to the birds and viewing the flowers in the Post Office plaza and the center of town, I returned home. I made some chicken salad out of the remainder of the chicken and I had some of it and ice tea. I listened to a bit of the morning broadcast of the local Greenwich radio station. I relaxed a short spell. I will go out about 8 A.M. and stop by the Arnold bread store for some bread and then make a few rounds in town. For those of you whom are Anglophile in the area, today is Queen Elizabeth II, not the cruise ship, but the Monarch's 73 birthday. I believe the British celebrate the Sovereign's birthday in June when the weather is warmer, and they have what I believe is called the "Trooping of the Color". Well I am not an expert on Anglo American activity, but I will try to keep an eye out for Queen Elizabeth II, the ship passengers that may have embarked into this area or returned yesterday. Well have a good morning, I will try to get back on a day schedule for a bit. CIO

Note:<888>4/21/99 Wednesday 3:00 A.M. EDT: I updated Scott's Weekly broadcast sound.htm . I am also making a up a batch of ice tea. Have a good morning, time to shower and clean up, before I go outside. CIO

Note:<888>4/21/99 Wednesday 1:45 A.M. EDT: I chatted with a family member last night. I had an Elos' pizza about 10 P.M. last night, and then I went back to bed until 12:30 A.M.. I heard a low flying helicopter wake me up circling my apartment building neighborhood, but it eventually went away. I checked out some internet sites. I looked for a downloadable copy of Windows 2000 beta, but it is not available. I emailed Bill Gates about sending me a copy, I guess I could install it on my D: drive where I have the partial backup and change the CMOS to boot the D: drive when I want to try it out. I was very tired while awake until a while ago, I discovered that last night I had turned off the fan on the air conditioner and raised the heat, thus it was up to 80 degrees in the apartment making me very tired. I turned down the heat, and turned on the fan on the air conditioner and I am having coffee, so I am beginning to wake up a lit bit, and be a little bit more alert. Well have a good morning. I might do my weekly broadcast some time today, if I get around to it, and have anything to chat about. I also updated Scott's Index scopor01.htm .CIO

Note:<888>4/20/99 Tuesday 8:35 P.M. EDT: I was up at 3 P.M., and I watched the CNN news on Columbine High School. I had my usual breakfast. I went back to bed. I got up at 7:30 P.M., and I watched the latest CNN News. In looking at the Yahoo and Alta Vista Search engines, Columbine High School has a web site <http://204.98.20.35> and <http://columbin.jeffco.k12.co.us> , which are not working right now. Also Jefferson County Public Schools, Colorado , Columbine High School , Columbine High School , <http://www.punks.net> , Columbine High School Library Information , ENI Online -- The Columbine Courier , <http://www.denverpost.com/> . Well time to clean up and go out. Have a good night. CIO

Note:<888>4/20/99 Tuesday 4:00 A.M. EDT: I suppose if someone needed to escape this area because of the weather or world politics, and if they had a car; and if they had pull with the British and the Cunard Line, they could drive their car into Manhattan, and see if the Captain of the Queen Elizabeth II cruise ship would let them park on board and deliver them to the port of Miami or one of its upcoming Caribbean destinations. However, older people probably get better medical care here than what they would get in the Caribbean, and I suppose in my case, I might have a hard time finding Volvo maintenance in Nassau; of course I could always ship the car back to Sweden for maintenance or import a Volvo mechanic that does not mind tanning. Well I suppose it will be warmer here sooner or later, and we will all be sweating with heat prostration. I was thinking if NATO is planning to send in troops to Yugoslavia eventually, they should do it soon; since this upcoming winter promises to be a cold winter particularly since one Volcano erupted in Alaska today which might make it colder. Thus if ground troops were to be on the ground in Yugoslavia or neighboring countries next winter, they would need adequate shelter

